

Are We Doing Our Share?— University Women and the War

Students in American colleges and universities today are among the most fortunate people on the face of the earth, materially speaking. While their contemporaries, both in this country and in others, have been forced to give up their studies and their comfortable way of life to face death on the battlefronts of the world, college students continue their pre-war existence.

There have been changes, of course. On the Iowa campus, for example, women for outnumber civilian men. Many professors have taken leaves of absence to take over administrative tasks connected with winning the war, and others are on active duty with the armed forces. University social life has been curtailed; athletics has been taken over largely by 17-year-olds.

Despite these and other relatively minor changes, those of us who remain can count ourselves very, very lucky.

Why is it, then that we "leaders of tomorrow—as we have been called, tritely—are often slow to take our part in the nation's war effort? Why is it that the University Women's association has had more success in finding volunteers for the USO and Union open house divisions of its admirable Double-V program than it has for the bandage-rolling division, for example?

One of the reasons may be that we feel that we do our part by thinking. The "Information First" lectures, also a part of UWA's Double-V program, have been well attended. A couple of the speakers said that the response to their talks spoke well for the college generation and for the future. And it does. It is important that we keep ourselves well-informed about what is going on, and more important that we try to discover, through reading and thinking, what today's events mean in terms of tomorrow and next year. We must maintain our sense of proportion. We must see things in their proper relationship to each other and to the future.

But it is equally important that we do not forget that unless we take care of today, we will have no tomorrow and no next year to plan for—not on our terms.

That is why we must not overlook the irksome jobs that must be done. That is why we must skip a coke date to roll bandages, and pass up a new sweater in favor of some war stamps. The skipping, the sacrificing are necessary for two reasons:

The first is a practical reason, and boils down to the fact that somebody has to roll bandages, and somebody has to help at the hospitals on Sunday mornings. University women can better afford to give of their time than can Iowa City women with homes and families. Somebody has to put ten percent of his income into war bonds and stamps, too. If a lot of somebodies didn't, the threat of inflation ruinous to the monetary system of this country would be a whole lot closer than it is.

The second reason is a matter of ideals. Just because we are lucky enough to be in college doesn't mean we're privileged characters. This is our war, and it isn't decent of us to sit back and let other people do all the fighting and all the giving up. We pride ourselves on having a government of, by and for the people. That means that it's up to us to take part in that government's activities, and not just by criticizing congress, either. It means carrying our share of the load, and the load right now is the war effort.

These are the facts. They don't add up to anything very damaging. But they don't add up to anything very commendable, either. And that's the point—they should. —S. McK.

News Behind The News

Legislators Sum Up Political Situation On the Home Front

WASHINGTON — Congressmen came trooping back from their Christmas recess with strange tales of political doings at home. From their talk, I gather everyone is against Roosevelt, and that he may be re-elected.

Three midwestern senators came back with approximately the same story: farmers are more antagonistic to the administration than ever before, due most recently to the hog situation; labor split even wider open politically since the unsettling rail settlement; no one seems satisfied with the Roosevelt administration.

These deductions were personally confirmed in a week's trip I made through the midwest during the holidays. Yet, as the senators, I found political sentiment jelling in favor of no one Republican candidate who could be said to be more popular than Roosevelt—or even widely popular. Willkie has many friends, but not among organization Republicans. In Wisconsin, he will have a melee battle with Dewey, Stassen, and the farm editor, Wheeler McMillen. Some of his friends have quietly tried unsuccessfully to get Stassen to withdraw. Nebraska will go to the favorite son governor, with Stassen possibly holding second strength.

Illinois is lost to Willkie and Indiana has not been won, the organization people saying it will never give Willkie more than a minority of its delegation. Michigan is incontestably Dewey, Ohio Bricker, Minnesota Stassen, Iowa unchecked, and an impartial South Dakota authority says that while Willkie has many friends, Dewey would win in a primary 2 to 1.

This whole decisive area is therefore unsettled in its opposition opinions which explains the paradox that a Roosevelt victory is temporarily the common accepted talk at a time when his opposition runs higher than ever before. As no one yet has accumulated power to beat him, his defeat cannot be foreseen.

The Willkie strategy is to contend his nomination is already in the bag, and this idea was carried by his people into the Republican national committee meeting at Chicago. Willkie people claim 60 of the 106 national committeemen are for him, but other authorities have counted no more than 30 to 35. His New York associates (chiefly through the Herald-Tribune) bestirred the hotel men there toward doubling the Chicago bid for the convention, but the hotel men were not particularly enthusiastic and the money had to be raised largely in other channels.

But press and magazine polls confuse the current standing of political powers still further. Henry Luce's Fortune magazine (Willkie supporter) is currently printing a poll indicating Roosevelt would get 55 percent of the vote if the war is on, 50 percent if only over in Europe, giving the "best Republican" (unnamed) an astounding minority of only 32 percent, with 12 percent of the people in the don't know class. Even more astonishing, Fortune gives Willkie nearly a 2 to 1 popularity rating over Dewey among Republicans, listing him at 32 percent, Dewey 17 percent.

The conclusion is contested by the Gallup poll. Mr. Gallup (unattached) gives Dewey leadership with 36 percent (up 1 percent since September), Willkie 25 percent (off 4), MacArthur 15 (unchanged), Bricker 10 (up 2), Stassen 6 (unchanged) and Taft 5 (unchanged).

Polls are worthless except for orientative purposes at this unsettled stage of the race, but obviously one of these two is at least 100 percent wrong at this time.

New Russ Drive Taking Shape; Allies Endanger Nazi Oil Fields

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A new threat to an all but trapped Nazi host in the lower Ukraine is developing rapidly with Russian advance guards already reported on or beyond the upper reaches of the Bug river south-east of Zhmerinka junction.

At that point the last direct rail link for the Nazis with Poland or Germany is virtually in sight of Soviet patrol. It lies less than 20 miles from any of four or five upper Bug crossings at which the Russians are striking on an indicated 40 mile front. Another 40 miles southwestward, beyond the doomed Odessa-Warsaw enemy communication route, lies the Dniester river—the one-time Russian-Rumanian border.

It begins to look as though the Russian southwestward thrust has by-passed Vinnitsa and Zhmerinka to strike and cross the Odessa-Warsaw trunk line and push on to outflank the Dniester as well as the Bug in a single bold, sustained drive.

The last Russian advance points in that most critical sector as reported by Moscow were Voronovitsa and Nemirov. Both lie within ten miles or less of the crossings of the upper Bug. Nazi reports said Russian patrols already were along the Bug crossings, while Soviet capture of the two towns cut the railroad in the rear of Nazi troops in the upper salient of the Dnieper bend trap.

In strategic importance, the Russian-trumpeted success at Sarny junction, nearly 40 miles deep in old Poland, is of less consequence. It completes the splitting up of German north and south fronts in Russia above and below the Pripiet marshes; but a lull in the Russian attack still seems probable there while the vast annihilation battle to the south is fought out.

If the Russian drive by-passing Vinnitsa is in fact headed for the Dniester, it means that even that river line, marking the Ukrainian-Bessarabian border, is in immediate danger of being turned in the north. And at that point, Russian advance guards are even now not much over 300 miles airline from the Ploesti fields in Rumania, main Nazi source of high grade natural oil.

That is easy shuttle-bombing distance for Russian planes. The Rumanian oil fields on the east flank of the Carpathian Alps above Ploesti are even closer to Russian air fields in the Kiev bulge.

American bombers from across the Mediterranean struck damaging blows at Ploesti many weeks ago at extreme range. Heavy losses were incurred in that flight. With captured fields on the Italian mainland now in use by heavy American bombers such as have blasted Sofia this week, Ploesti and its vital war resource for the Nazis is in close danger.

The Russians could reach it in a two hour flight from the Kiev bend. American air heavyweights in Italy are less than 600 miles away now as compared to the 2,400 mile round trip from Africa involved in the first American attack.

It's a grim prospect for Rumanian oil and communications centers vital to the Nazi war effort. In all probability, such plans for two-way air attacks were laid at Teheran.

Attendance at graduate schools of universities in the south has fallen off 40 percent since the school year of 1940-41 because of the war.

Hollywood Sights and Sounds Screen's 'Vanishing Americans' Won't Be Indians in '44 By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — The screen's "vanishing Americans" this year won't be Redskins. They'll be types that used to fill the screen in picture after picture but no longer have a place there. You'll remember them. Pre-war relics. The sleek, wise-cracking playboy, the lounge lizard, the ne'er-do-well who used to balance a cocktail in one hand and a shaker in the other, pouring out flippant conversation and drinks. Then there was the poor little rich girl, the spoiled darling whose main problem in life was battling boredom, the giddy debutante. And the big town racketeer, with his gangs and guns.

They're all gone, lost or submerged in the realities of today. A movie director named Mark Sandrich was talking about just this the other day. Sandrich, since he entered pictures in 1922, had made nothing but comedies and musicals until last year. He directed Wheeler and Woolsey, Jack Benny, Bing Crosby, Fred Allen. He made some of the gayer Astaire-Rogers musicals. Then last year, as producer-director, he made that grim war picture, "So Proudly We Hail."

Today he's making another topical film, "I Love a Soldier." It deals with the problem of a girl's marrying a soldier sweet-heart in war time. Should girl (Paulette Goddard) marry boy (Sonny Tufts) or just keep on being a lady welder?

"The war," remarked Mark, "has made the public want pictures that have something to say. It used to be that the safest course for a movie which counted for its appeal neither on music nor comedy was the boy-meets-girl formula. Now it isn't enough. People want to learn about concrete matters. Hollywood can do pictures about Madame Curie, Dr. Wassell, the Hitler gang or Rogers' Rangers and tell the true stories of real people in real situations. This hunger to know is the result of every war."

It may not be clear how Miss Goddard and Sonny Tufts, in a movie romance however topical, will give an answer universally applicable to the soldier-marrying problem, but Sandrich's point is that the problem is real and the movie tackles it. His next picture won't be serious at all—a light comedy musical about the WAVES with Tufts, Crosby, and Betty Hutton.

"It doesn't matter what type of picture you make," he says, "as long as your characters are real people of today. If your characters are phoney, if they aren't folks the theater-goer meets every day, you're on the wrong track. You can't do a picture about characters who existed before the war—the playboys, the idle society girls, the gangsters—but have passed out of being or become such a minority they don't count."

SCREEN GUILD STAR. Washington in Wartime— Silent Speaker Says a Mouthful. By HOWARD FLIEGER. WASHINGTON—Sam Rayburn is a Texas Democrat who doesn't talk much. He's a speaker of the house who spends most of his time listening. He holds a daily news conference that seldom produces more than half a dozen short sentences. You can count on one hand the speeches he's made in congress since the war began. But one day Sam Rayburn, tired of listening, made a speech that quietly worked its way into a sensation. It was shortly before Christmas. He spoke only a few minutes, but already some of his colleagues have ticketed it as one of the great speeches of the war. For days he had listened to congress row about subsidies, price ceilings and restraints on the home front. His patience was frayed by bickerings. "I desire to speak on some dangerous trends," said the speaker. He spoke about distrust among allies. He talked about complaints, about sacrifices, about those who

Pearl Buck's Novel— Iowa City's 'Main Street' —Is 'Real Thing'

By SUE ONO

A painted semblance of Washington street, Iowa City's "Main Street," appears in the February issue of Cosmopolitan magazine as an illustration for Pearl S. Buck's dramatic novel, "The Real Thing."

The painting, finished in watercolor, was drawn by Hardie Gramatky, illustrator and author of juvenile books. Although the picture is not an exact reproduction of the Iowa City we know, the fact that it is definitely Iowa City is immediately apparent.

A part of Washington street takes the limelight in the painting, which is a bird's eye view of the city when the first light snow of winter had fallen.

In it is one distinguishing landmark, the city hall with its clock and on top of it the American flag. It also includes a detailed likeness of the restaurant, theater, jewelry store, paint store, and the post office which belongs to Iowa City's own Washington street.

A native of Dallas, Tex., Gramatky went to California where he took an interest in art and from 1930 to 1936 worked as head animator for Walt Disney in Hollywood.

Gramatky always sees that, whatever may be afoot in the world about him, he gets a "good picture." He has traveled from the inland seas of the Hudson bay to the tropics of the Bahama islands painting sceneries. It is possible that he might have stopped for a short visit in Iowa City during this tour, but no one here knows about it.

His water color technique is swift, pleasant and accomplished. The best of his present paintings belong to the "Washington Square" series. Included in this group are his "Rooftops" and "Roof Garden, Winter."

"Little Toot" is among his better known juvenile books. He believes that making an illustration first and then writing a story around it is the best method.

"The Real Thing" is a novel of America today. Part I begins in the February Cosmopolitan and in it, the great contemporary writer shows us ourselves and our country.

Concert Offers Two Sonatas

Pianist, 'Cellist Play Grieg, Franck Works Tonight in Iowa Union

Two sonatas and a number of shorter compositions comprise the program of cello and piano music which will be presented tonight by Felix Salmond, 'cellist, and Abram Chasins, pianist, at 8 o'clock in Iowa Union.

The program of the joint concert includes "Sonata in A Minor, Opus 36" (Grieg); "Piece in Form of a Habenera" (Ravel); "Nocturne" and "Humoresque" (Chasins), featuring Salmond; "Impromptu, F sharp" and "Waltz Brillante, A flat" (Chopin), featuring Chasins and the Philadelphia and Boston orchestras. A faculty member of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, he is known for his work in composition and radio, as well as a concert performer.

In the first of the university concert series of the semester, the two artists will present a variety of 'cello and piano compositions. The 'cellist, who has been soloist with some of the country's leading orchestras, will play his own adaptation of the Franck violin sonata. Salmond has been soloist in several first performances of musical compositions. He was chosen by Enesco and Sir Edward Elgar to be soloist at first performances of their musical numbers. He has played Enesco's "Symphonie Concertante" with the composer conducting the New York Philharmonic orchestra. Salmond has been on the faculty of the Julliard Graduate school in New York since 1924. He has also been head of the 'cello department of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

Recognized as one of the 'cellists who has been responsible for the recent interest in the violin-cello as a solo instrument, Salmond will demonstrate his skill as a performer in tonight's concert. Playing an extensive variety of numbers, he will demonstrate his versatility and skill in handling his instrument.

Tickets for the concert are available at Iowa Union. University students may obtain tickets by presenting their student identification cards at the ticket desk. A limited number of reserved seats will be available to the general public.

Prof. P. R. Olson to Lecture Today for 'Information First'

The series of lectures to be presented by Information First the second semester will open tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock with Prof. Paul R. Olson of the college of commerce as the first speaker.

Professor Olson will discuss "The International Economic Position of the United States." His extensive study of international economics and its attendant implications qualifies him to speak on such a subject.

He has been a member of the faculty since 1931. He received his Ph.D. degree here after completing undergraduate work at Grinnell college in Grinnell.

Professor Olson is co-author, with Prof. C. Addison Hickman, also of the college of commerce, of the recently published book, "Pan-American Economics," the first book on that subject to be published in the United States.

In his lecture, as in the book, Professor Olson will analyze the economic structures of the Pan-American countries, stressing international aspects, and placing special emphasis on the economic relationships of Latin America and the United States. The effects of the war will also constitute one of the major topics discussed by Professor Olson.

The Information First meeting will be held in the senate chamber of Old Capitol, as will the regular weekly meetings for the rest of the semester.

Iowa Ties for Big Ten Basketball Lead

Danner Third In Scoring

Herwig Ties Two For Lead in League Free-Throw Section

The first week of Big Ten conference competition closed last Saturday night with Iowa coming out on top of the heap, tied for first place with Northwestern and Purdue by virtue of their clean sweep of the two game series against Minnesota, 37-34, and 37-29.

Dave Danner, Iowa City prep school ace and Missouri Valley champion in '41, '42 and '43, eclipsed the early season scoring lead of Dick Ives, freshman from Diagonal, to take over the third place slot in the conference. Danner, with 31 points in two games, was outranked only by King of Michigan with 40 and Patrick of Illinois with 36 in three games.

Lloyd Herwig, Iowa's sensation pivot man tied for first place in the most-free-throws-in-one-game division with King of Michigan and Lodge of Purdue.

Friday night at Champaign baskets by Desmond Smith and Russ Wendlund and free throws by Roy Patterson and Glen Seibo in a closing rush put Wisconsin ahead by a score of 43-38, although Illinois had led throughout the game except at one point when the score was tied at 31.

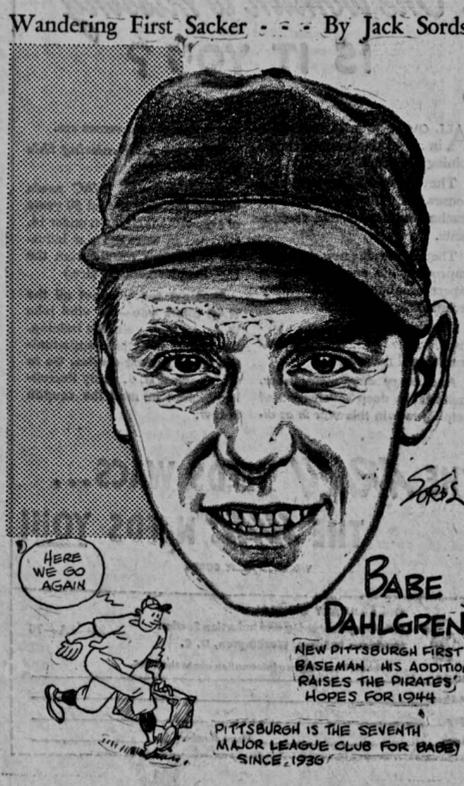

Chicago and Indiana each playing only one game during the week, met defeat at the hands of Purdue, Chicago 27-Purdue 70 and Indiana 43-Purdue 62. De Graaf of Chicago was high scorer for Chicago and Young for Indiana. Horn, Huffman, Haag and Lodge headed the Boiler-makers scoring machine. These two games totaled enough points—132—to put Purdue out ahead in points of both Illinois (128) and Wisconsin (124) although these two teams had played three games.

Michigan broke even losing to Northwestern 57 to 47 and winning from Illinois 52-45. Not until the last five minutes of the game did Michigan take the lead to keep it, the lead having alternated ten times during the game. Dave Strack's two one-handed shots from far out and Tom King's high scoring (24 points) in the Northwestern game the preceding night and 16 points in the Illinois game were the high lights of the Wolverine's scoring power. King is high scorer for the week with 40 points.

Dutch Lonborg's Wildcats won from the Wolverines in their opening game at Ann Arbor Friday night 57-47 and on Saturday night met Wisconsin at the Chicago stadium. Starting out with a ten-point lead they kept well out in front throughout the game. Bob Schadler (12), John Ward (10), George Felt (8) and Otto Graham (9) were the Wildcats high scorers.

3 GOALS UNASSISTED
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—When Alex Ritson skated through the Pittsburgh Hornet hockey team recently to register three goals unassisted for the Indianapolis Caps, he established a new single game record for the American Hockey league.

Race Goers Place Tremendous Bets On Nation's Tracks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The racegoer who helped set some dizzy betting records in the north last summer has come to Florida for the winter, with plenty of money in his pockets.

And he has a well-heeled cousin down his way who also likes to see 'em run and isn't timid about backing his choices with cash.

Horse and dog track parimutuel machinery is whirling at a pace which would have brought words of satisfaction from operators even in pre-war days.

This, mind you, a scant 12 months after a ban on pleasure driving forced the suspension of horse racing and closed some of the dog tracks.

Take Monday—"Blue Monday" some places—for example.

At five parimutuel establishments within 20 miles of Flagler street and Miami avenue a total of 15,500 paying patrons turned out and laid an aggregate of $816,757 on the line. That's an average of more than $52 a person, and at gorgeous Hialeah park, where 7,242 bet $581,651, the average was more than $80.

During the first three days the horses ran at Hialeah, the average daily handle was $587,572. The season's average for the last meeting before the war was $553,416, and for the months just after Pearl Harbor was $520,185.

Badgers Meet Strong Quintet

Michigan Cage Team Includes Wisconsin's Elroy 'Ghost' Hirsch

MADISON, Wis. (Special)—Refusing to be downhearted over its defeat at the hands of Northwestern's Wildcats, the University of Wisconsin's basketball squad began making preparations Monday for its crucial doubleheader this week-end with Michigan's Wolverines.

The Badgers meet the Michigan quintet on the Wisconsin field-house floor here on both Friday and Saturday nights. With two losses and one win so far in its Big Ten campaign, the outcome of the two games will be a deciding factor in determining Wisconsin's fate in the conference basketball race.

The two games are expected to attract about the largest crowd of the season to the Wisconsin field-house, not only because of their importance to the Badger basketball team's Big Ten standing, but also because one of Wisconsin's sports heroes, Elroy "Ghost" Hirsch, now in marine training at Michigan, will be playing for the Wolverines.

The hard-fighting Badgers lost their first game of the conference cage race to Illinois, but gained revenge by defeating the junior Whiz Kids last Friday night. Their second loss came from Northwestern in the Chicago stadium Saturday night. Wisconsin's quintet will get an opportunity for revenge against the Wildcats in their return game Feb. 4.

Coach Harold "Bud" Foster announced heavy practices for his Badger players this week, beginning Tuesday. With the exception of a few colds, the squad returned here in good shape.

Coach Foster also announced that Bob Gallagher, reserve forward, a navy flyer, has finished his training at Wisconsin and left yesterday for the Iowa Pre-Flight school. Leland O'Brien, reserve center, naval radio school trainee at the university, also finishes his training this week and may be moved out by the navy before the Michigan games.

Athletic Commission Issues Order On Wrestling Matches

NEW YORK (AP)—The state athletic commission, which for years has recognized wrestling matches simply as exhibitions and not contests, yesterday issued an order imposing a $50 fine and suspension of license for any grapple-pier guilty of—

1—Throwing an opponent out of the ring.
2—Using the drop kick on an opponent.
3—Trying to drive an opponent's head against a ring post.

The No. 3 violation, the commission agreed, can do serious harm even to a wrestler.

Little Hawks Aim For Third Straight Conference Victory

City High's Little Hawk cagers will be after their third straight conference victory of the season this Friday, when they meet a strong Davenport team on the home court. High in the conference, Dubuque should provide plenty of competition for the Hawks.

In conquering Franklin of Cedar Rapids last week by a score of 28-20, the Iowa City basketekers showed definite improvement in getting the ball off the backboard, a fact which may count for a lot in this game.

Still missing plenty of shots when in scoring position, the Hawks have not been able to run up many big scores thus far this season. High man for individual scoring honors for most of the games has averaged only about eight or ten points, a pretty low figure.

Iowa City's forwards will have to break loose with plenty of stuff on the ball Friday night in order to trounce the tough Dubuque team. A good night for big "Moose" Mellicker would put the Little Hawks in the ball game.

Irish Down Marquette

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Notre Dame's Irish managed to hold onto a quickly amassed lead last night to defeat Marquette university, 52 to 46, in the first part of a two-game basketball series.

The Irish held a 16-4 margin after six minutes of play and remained in front all the way. Marquette threatened several times, the most strongly at four minutes before the half-time intermission, when the Hill-toppers tied the score at 22-all. Notre Dame led, 31 to 24, at the half.

Leo Klier of Notre Dame led the scoring with 17 points.

All-Stars Announced by Sporting News, First Time on Team for Nine Players

Big Mort Cooper Only One Held Over From 1942 Ball Team

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Reflecting the great changes in baseball resulting from the war, the 1943 all-star team, announced yesterday by the Sporting News, includes nine players chosen for the first time by members of the Baseball Writers' association.

Only Morton Cooper, the St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher, held over from the 1942 team, while Luke Appling, shortstop of the Chicago White Sox and the American League's batting champion, came back after having been named previously in 1936 and 1940.

The virtually complete remaking of the team brought initial recognition to such established players as Billy Herman of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Rudy York of the Detroit Tigers and Billy Nicholson of the Chicago Cubs, who had failed to make the grade in previous seasons.

Walker Cooper of the Cardinals was selected the catcher to form an all-star brother battery with Morton Cooper.

Two rookies—Dick Wakefield of the Detroit Tigers and Bill Johnson of the New York Yankees—were placed on the team, which was headed by Stan Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' outfielder and National league batting champion.

Musial received 217 of a possible maximum of 224 votes. Spurgeon Chandler, the New York Yankees' pitcher, was the vote-getting runner-up with 215.

The team's lineup (with votes in parentheses):
Dick Wakefield, Detroit Tigers (122), left field.
Stan Musial, St. Louis Cardinals (217), center field.
Bill Nicholson, Chicago Cubs (129), right field.
Rudy York, Detroit Tigers (165), first base.
Billy Herman, Brooklyn Dodgers (128), second base.
Luke Appling, Chicago White Sox (131), shortstop.
Bill Johnson, New York Yankees (109), third base.
Walker Cooper, St. Louis Cardinals (158), catcher.
Spurgeon Chandler, New York Yankees (215), Morton Cooper, St. Louis Cardinals (197), and Truett Sewell, Pittsburgh Pirates (182), pitchers.

Of the 1942 all-star team, five members—Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Enos Slaughter, Johnny Mize and Johnny Pesky—are in the armed forces, while Joe Gordon, Stan Hack, Ernie Bonham, Mickey Owen and Tex Hughson failed to qualify again.

The army air forces Meteorology cadets yesterday started the week's Olympic competition to determine the platoon with the most athletic and competitive ability. At the end of yesterday's competition, platoon A-7 was in the lead with 34 points, followed by A-4 with 31 points.

The 100 yard dash was won by Charley Spencer of A-6, who ran the distance in 10.8 although running barefoot on a snowy track. Robert Killian won the mile in the first time of 4 min. 34.9 sec. Paul Oyer, the shortest man in the high jump, jumped higher than his own height with a 5 ft. 8 inch performance. The shot put was won by Dale Faulds, the hop-step and jump by Sid McDonough, and the broad jump by Warren Loy with performances of 32 ft. 3 inches, 39 ft. 2 inches, and 17 ft. 6-3/4 inches respectively.

Today's events include apparatus, events on the parallel bar, horizontal bar, side horse, buck and rope climb.

Wergeles Released On Slander Charges

NEW YORK (AP)—Chick Wergeles, the big noise in the little man, was hailed before the state athletic commission yesterday to explain some mean things he said about one of its referees—and much to Chick's surprise, he not only was set free but one commissioner actually agreed with him.

The whole thing centered around Chick's charges against Eddie Joseph, who refereed last Friday's fistic fox-trot between bouncing Beau Jack and Lightfoot Lulu Constantino. Immediately after the fight, in which the Jumping Jack won a split decision, Chick let out a "we wuz robbed" howl over the motives which inspired Joseph to give Constantino the fight, 8 rounds to 2. Wergeles manages Jack.

Later, Chick said he guessed he'd popped off too much, but that while he wasn't arguing against Joseph's honesty, he thought the referee was incompetent. For these remarks, he was invited to appear before the fistic fathers yesterday, and for the first time in his life was unable to say a word because Dr. Cilian Powell, most recently appointed member of the state's three-man commission, upheld his charge that Joseph was incompetent in this particular punch-party.

Beau Jack's Manager Contested Constantino Split Fight Decision

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK (AP)—Chick Wergeles, the big noise in the little man, was hailed before the state athletic commission yesterday to explain some mean things he said about one of its referees—and much to Chick's surprise, he not only was set free but one commissioner actually agreed with him.

The next Red move probably will be sharing the profits with the fans. Or is that asking too much?

Sports Trail . . .

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP)—The Cincinnati baseball club will take the fans into its confidence as to what is happening down on the playing field, a laudable innovation which might have far-reaching effects as the fans can tell the players who, in some games we have seen, were a little confused themselves.

The idea, announced by General Manager Warren Giles, will give the spectators sort of a running education, acquainting them with the low-down on puzzling plays and unusual decisions as they develop. That should keep a commentator, or explainer, fairly busy, since to some fans any decision an umpire makes is an unusual decision.

The Reds, under the astute Bill McKechnie play pretty smart baseball on the whole, but we would have had great sympathy for any commentator had he been required to explain some of the intriguing situations the Brooklyn Dodgers used to get tangled up in a few years ago while they still were the daffiness boys.

Most of the situations and decisions are fairly obvious, although some of the strategy seems to call for a little explaining at times, and some of the actions never can be explained. It would be difficult to find a logical explanation, for instance, for Red Faber trying to steal an occupied third base in the 1917 world series without insulting Faber, and nobody yet has answered the question as to why Walker Cooper didn't slide into second base in the last game of the 1943 world series on the play in which he ambled right on to be tagged out.

Seriously, there are occasions when a little light is needed, and we don't mean games called on account of darkness. There was Augie Galan's hit in the 1936 all-star game at Boston for instance, which hit the foul line. It bounced into foul territory and, as it was a National league park, was ruled a home run. Had it been an American league park he would have been held to a double.

Then there was Lou Gehrig's wallop into the stands in Washington in 1934, with Lynn Lary on base. Lary thought he saw Goose Goslin catch the ball in center, so rounded second and ran to the dugout. What he didn't know was that Goslin had caught the ball on the rebound from the seats. Gehrig continued around the bases and was called out for passing a runner. He was given only a double, robbing him of the leadership in home runs that year, as he finished in a tie with Babe Ruth with 46.

Then there was Larry Doyle, trying to stretch a single into a double and thinking he couldn't make it, reaching up and catching the throw-in, automatically putting himself out for interference.

"The right to earn enough to provide adequate food and clothing and recreation;

"The right of every farmer to raise and sell his products at a return which will give him and his family a decent living;

"The right of every business man, large and small, to trade in an atmosphere of freedom from unfair competition and domination by monopolies at home or abroad;

"The right of every family to a decent home;

"The right to adequate protection from the economic fears of old age, sickness, accident and unemployment;

"The right to a good education."

He said all these "spell security," and added that "after this war is won we must be prepared to move forward, in the implementation of these rights, to new goals of human happiness and well being."

From time to time in the future, he said, he would communicate with congress with respect to these problems.

The chief executive also described security as the chief objective of his meetings at Teheran and Cairo with Marshall Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill and President Chiang Kai-Shek—security not only for their own nations, but for all.

"And that means not only physical security which provides safety from attacks by aggressors," he continued. "It means also economic security, social security, moral security—in a family of nations."

The chief executive left to congress details of the national service act, but said it was an issue which "transcends politics" and the measure should be "wholly non-partisan in its makeup."

A pending measure, introduced months ago by Senator Austin (R., Vt.) and Representative Wadsworth (R., N.Y.), would fit universal service into the draft law. Both men and women would register under selective service and be subject to call for service in war industries at customary wages. It would exempt pregnant women and women with children under 18.

Psychiatric methods used by the Army Medical corps during the Sicilian campaign resulted in the return to duty of about 25 per cent of men suffering from battle shock.

Prof. A. W. Binder Gives Lecture Recital In Macbride Hall

"The most significant musical creations of the Jew are the folk-songs written in Palestine and about the land and the people," Prof. A. W. Binder of the Jewish Institute of Religion in New York said last night in a lecture-recital presented in Macbride auditorium.

Rabbi Gilbert Klaperman of the school of religion introduced Professor Binder, whose appearance was sponsored by the B'nai B'rith Hillel foundation.

Music plays an important part in the life of the Jewish people and the first reference to song in the Bible was by Moses when he led the freed slaves in a song of triumph, accompanied by a primitive drum.

Throughout the Bible are mentioned the four choirs of a modern symphony orchestra, string, wind, percussion and brass instruments.

Professor Binder demonstrated his versatility as a composer, singer and pianist in his interpretations of Hebrew music. During the lecture he explained the types of scales and harmonies used in the compositions.

In the cantillation modes, quaint melodies used as accompaniment for the reading of the Bible in the synagogues, one symbol stands for a group of notes. The prayer scales and modes usually end on a dominant chord instead of the tonic. The third type of Jewish composition is the specific melody, sung in services today.

These traditional melodies have been molded to choir music, which along with folk songs compose the extent of Hebrew songs famous today.

The Jewish people, during the last century, have turned to music for an uplift of heart. Thus, songs without words became the most important medium of expression. The Hebrews felt that words might detract from the melodic feeling.

Every part of the song, however, has its own meaning. The music without words is either slow and meditative, written to throw off earthly garb and rise to heavenly spheres, or the dance type, very lively and used at times of religious exaltation.

Professor Binder mentioned his journeys to Palestine and the songs he compiled in his first collection of Palestinian songs in 1924. He noticed that the real composers were the peasants and that the songs reflected the spirit of the land.

Music activity begins in the schools in Palestine. The Hebrews have many fine musical groups, music schools and young composers.

In 1936, the Palestine Symphony orchestra was inaugurated by Arturo Toscanini.

The Jews sing about religion, the Holy Land, holidays, Palestine nights, the Mediterranean region, very few love songs and many dances. Today, the Jews are singing songs of war.

In closing, Professor Binder said that the Hebrews are aiming to develop a Jewish musical idiom that will be distinguishable, as is true of many nations and their typical music today. When that song comes, it may bring healing to the present time of torture.

Some Women's Shoes To Sell Ration-Free From Jan. 17 to 29

Shoe stores will be able to sell ration-free, at $3 or less a pair, a percentage of their stock of women's footwear for two weeks, Jan. 17-29, Waldo F. Geiger, chairman of the Johnson county war price and ration board announced yesterday.

The footwear to be released is limited to 15 percent of the dealer's stock of women's shoes listed in his September inventory report to the office of price administration. The action is taken to help dealers dispose of wearable shoes, mostly novelty types, which in consumers' hands will provide additional shoe mileage.

Ballet, Tap Dancers To Resume Classes

'Doll House' Preview— The Weeping Willow Weeps

—In Methodist Church

A TINY ORGAN with keys one-sixteenth of an inch wide and set between columns of gold and ivory is one of the unusual features of Colleen Moore's miniature castle, on exhibit this week in the recreation hall of the First Methodist church. The floor of the chapel is of ivory, inlaid with gold, on which are depicted events from the Old Testament. Included in the $435,000 structure are such novelties as a tiny dresser set, the brush set with diamonds and platinum with silver fox fur bristles, and a package of cork-tipped cigarettes of real tobacco, only a fraction of an inch long.

A weeping willow tree that actually cries, a complete dinner set of Royal Doulton china that will fit into the palm of a hand, and a dueling pistol three inches long that really shoots are only a few of the many wonders of Colleen Moore's doll house which will be exhibited in Iowa City this week in the recreation hall of the First Methodist church.

Tickets, which will be 25 cents for adults and 10 cents for children, can be obtained from members of the Women's Society of Christian Service or the Methodist church office.

The doll house, 9 feet square and 12 feet high, began as a hobby, according to Miss Moore, who not only shares her beautiful possession with others, but also donates the funds raised by its exhibit to help crippled children all over the world. The castle is shown only for charity purposes.

Among the rare treasures in the vest pocket building are amber vases more than 400 years old, which once belonged to the empress of China, and a floor of rose quartz with a jade border which was made in China.

40,000 Volunteers To Sell War Bonds

State preparations for the Fourth War Loan campaign are nearly finished, the War Finance committee in Des Moines announced. More than 40,000 volunteer workers will be sent out to help sell $177,000,000 worth of bonds between Jan. 18 and Feb. 15.

F. D. Williams, co-chairman of the Johnson county committee, said that plans for the local drive are nearing completion and would be announced shortly.

V. L. Clark, executive manager of the Iowa War Finance committee, said he believed Iowa could reach the over-all quota of the drive, but that the big problem would be filling the E bond quota of $66,600,000. This is $8,000,000 more than the E bond quota in the last War Loan drive.

Persons on payroll savings plans will be expected to buy extra bonds during this campaign beyond savings accumulated through the payroll plans.

"The cost of the war is now running about $250,000,000 a day, or about $175,000 a minute," said Clark, "which shows that every possible dollar is needed right now to back the attack."

In the dining room is seen the round table of King Arthur, with minute table service of solid gold. Tapestries, made in Vienna of the world's finest-detailed needlepoint, adorn the walls.

Cork-Tipped Cigarettes In the prince's chamber are found a pack of cigarettes a fraction of an inch long with twenty cork-tipped real cigarettes. There is also a gold safety razor with genuine blades.

Prof. Homer Cherington, president of the church board, and Mrs. L. G. Lawyer, president of executive board of the Women's Society of Christian Service, will act as official host and hostess at the preview, assisted by other members of the boards.

Committee Members Co-chairmen of the ticket committee are Mrs. C. R. Rasley and Emma Stover. Mrs. I. A. Rankin, Mrs. F. W. Richardson, Mrs. Charles Beckman and Mrs. Winifred Montgomery make up the committee for the tea which will be held at the preview.

In charge of newspaper publicity is Mrs. C. W. Keyser, radio publicity, Mrs. C. Woody Thompson; posters, Mrs. G. H. Swails, Mrs. E. E. Gagle, Mrs. Glen Kaufman, Mrs. G. L. Boss and Mrs. Walter Daykin.

Publicity in the schools is handled by Mrs. C. G. Sample, Mrs. O. B. Thiel, Mrs. Raymond Schlicher and Mrs. C. Woody Thompson. University publicity is done by Mrs. David Shipley, Mrs. A. W. Bryan and Mrs. Homer Cherington.

Opinion On and Off Campus

QUESTION: WHEN AND WHERE DO YOU THINK THE UNITED NATIONS WILL OPEN A SECOND FRONT IN EUROPE?

Walter E. Steinmetz, G of Davport: "It won't start until spring because of climatic conditions. I think that it will start in Yugoslavia first, with an attack on France of secondary importance. In the first place, the fortifications across the channel have been adequately prepared while the portions of the Yugoslavian coast have been held until recently by partisan armies. Consequently it has been impossible to erect fortifications on a scale comparable to those in France."

E. D. Williams, bank president: "It will start, I believe, within 120 days, probably at five different places. I say this judging from preparations that are being made all over this country and abroad."

Betty Comfort, A4 of Des Moines: "The second front will be started within the next two and a half months. I think it is going to cover quite a bit of territory—southern and northern France, Norway and Sweden. The forces will have England as their base."

Rex Whitworth, M4 of Des Moines: "I should say late spring. I trust it won't be where the Germans think it will be."

Dick Ives, E1 of Diagonal: "I presume it will be in the latter part of April. They will attack, I presume, the lower part of France."

Mrs. A. H. Harmelmer, housewife: "It is hard to say. Probably in the spring. I would think that they would attack from the north, for they are fairly well fortified on all fronts. It will have to be a surprise attack."

George L. Mosse, history instructor: "The first half of spring seems to be the most logical time for attack. I think they will strike at several points at once in order to divert enemy forces. Perhaps France and Denmark. France would be good, because the underground is quite active there, and Denmark is good strategically because it is near Berlin."

Julianne Freund, A2 of Cedar Rapids: "I think it will begin in the summer of 1944. They will most likely strike through Denmark, Sweden and the Balkans. I think these places are the most logical because these countries are so destitute that they are susceptible to anything that will make their future look bright."

Marian Crews, A2 of Ft. Dodge: "I think either in late 1944 or 1945. It seems to me as if it would take place from the east, because they have strength there."

Charles Denton, of Bronwood, Ga., advanced engineer in A. S. T. P.: "I think it will start within the next three months. I think we will attack in northwestern Europe. I believe this is a good place for attack because that portion of Europe is nearest to England and to Germany. It can be softened up easier than any other place. There is a good possibility of invasion through the Balkans because we have friendly neighbors in those countries."

Fred Zeller, E1 of Iowa City: "It will take place within seven months. The heaviest attack will be in the Balkans primarily due

SUI Women Urged To Register Today For 'Double V' Work

War Work Includes Recreation Leadership, Military Hostessing

Beginning at 8 o'clock this morning in the Y. W. C. A. rooms in Iowa Union, university women may register for additional activities in the "Double V" program for wartime service. Registration will continue until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

All university women are asked to participate in some kind of volunteer war work, but those who registered last semester need not register again unless they desire to take part in additional activities or change those for which they are at present registered.

The "Double V" program for this semester includes recreation leadership for activities of various age groups in the Recreation center, Girl Scout assistants for hikes and expeditions and leaders to supervise children at public playgrounds.

The silver wings of an army air forces pilot were presented last week to Howard Ernest Hallenbeck, 21, of Macomb, Ill., at graduation ceremonies held at Napier Field, Alabama, an advanced single-engine flying school of the army air forces training command. Preceding the presentation of the wings, he was sworn in as a flight officer in the army air forces.

Flight Officer Hallenbeck was a student at the University of Iowa when he entered the armed service for flying training. He was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity, and his wife is the former Dorothy Herndon of Macomb.

Five 1942 women graduates of the University of Iowa were graduated from the naval reserve midshipmen's school at Northampton, Mass., during its first year, 1943, and have been assigned to specialized training or active duty posts at shore stations in the United States. They are Arlene Elizabeth Brunsting, Sioux Center; Mary Jane Middleton, Sioux City; Sarabel Schiffer, Wilmette, Ill.; Louise Nathanson, Pipestone, Minn., and Mary Louise Weaver, Galesburg, Ill.

Arriving safely in Australia, Elwood M. Miller, former University of Iowa student, has taken up his duties as assistant field director in the American Red Cross. He was graduated from Coe college in 1934 and took graduate work in educational recreation at the University of Iowa in 1939-40. Until his Red Cross appointment, Miller was athletic director at Maquoketa, State Center and Reinbeck, and for nine summers was swimming instructor at Marion. His wife, Iola, lives in Cedar Rapids.

Cadet Marvin E. Andrews, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wencil Andrews of Toddville, was recently graduated from the Marana army air field, Tucson, Ariz. He will be sent to an advanced flying school to complete the last phase of his cadet training, after which he will be awarded his silver pilot's wings. Cadet Andrews was attending the University of Iowa before joining the air corps.
