

Significant Day For Red Cross

March 1, 1944, is a day of great significance in the history of the American Red Cross.

First, it marks the opening of Red Cross month, during which there will be the 1944 war fund campaign to raise $200,000,000, the largest goal in the organization's history.

Second, it marks the 62nd anniversary of America's ratification of the Geneva treaty which set into motion the train of events which today has sent American Red Cross workers all over the world in a global service-for-victory program.

The seed of the Red Cross was planted many years prior to 1882, however. It was in 1859 when Jean Henri Dunant, a Swiss banker touring Italy, witnessed the terrible aftermath of the battle of Solferino.

Although the treaty was not ratified by the United States until after 18 years had passed, the idea and ideal of the Red Cross were espoused before that time by such enthusiastic humanitarians as Clara Barton and others.

In 1905 the American Red Cross, having grown constantly and rendered service to the nation in war and peace, was granted a congressional charter giving it quasi-governmental status.

From the signing of the Geneva treaty in 1862 until 1944, the development of the Red Cross has been continuous. Today, with Red Cross workers in every theater of war rendering morale-building services, back home the American Red Cross has nearly one-third of a nation enrolled in its ranks.

In war or peace, in time of disaster or the never-ending battle against accidents, to the men, women and children of the nation, the American Red Cross brings its services which make for a better way of life.

Senator Taft Now Regarded As Possible G. O. P. Candidate

WASHINGTON — Watch studios "Bob" Taft, the senior senator from Ohio, as a potential "dark horse" for the presidential nomination when the Republicans meet in Chicago.

Taft has pledged himself to the camp of Ohio Governor John Bricker who, at present, appears to have slight chance of heading the GOP ticket in November.

Bricker's presidential drive fizzles. Taft is ready to climb aboard the Dewey bandwagon, but conservative Republican forces already are marshalling a "Draft Taft" campaign to be put on if, for any reason, Dewey also is stopped.

His vote-getting potentialities, however, are in the dark. He concededly is one of the ablest men in the senate, but some quarters question whether he has political "it."

One significant fact which has escaped general attention in discussions of the Pacific war has been the sharp reduction in the length of the lulls between major allied operations.

Recent developments indicate that the periods between operations will grow shorter in the coming months and that two or more may be launched simultaneously because of the rapidly mounting strength of American land, sea and air forces.

After the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, there was a long wait before the Americans gathered ships and men for the Guadalcanal invasion in August, 1942. The next major move was in May, 1943, when the Japs got knocked off Attu and had to abandon Kiska a few months later.

The pace was stepped up tremendously beginning last Nov. 1 when United States forces landed on Bougainville island in the northern Solomons. Even while that beachhead still was being enlarged slowly, other powerful units on Nov. 20 swept into the Gilberts and cleaned up 6,000 Japs in four days.

Then, in December, New Britain island was invaded and a land drive was started against the Jap base at Rabaul. A little more than a month later came the gigantic invasions of the Marshalls.

Small wonder the Tokyo radio recently has been warning its listeners that they must be prepared for setbacks and must make every effort to "push back" the advancing allies.

Wayne L. Morse's resignation from the war labor board to make the race for the Republican senatorial nomination in Oregon caused no tears in WLB circles.

Morse, stormy petrel of the board, long has been a chronic dissenter. He flayed the board's action in approving a wage agreement signed while the coal miners were on strike.

Morse also objected vigorously to the fact that Economic Czar Vinson frequently overrules the board and takes cases under his own wing.

Things finally got to the point where the Oregon law school soldier at Solferino is a far cry from today's warrior who has "your Red Cross at his side" wherever he may be, bringing him aid and encouragement.

It is a long road which leads from Dunant's little band of villagers to today's vast organization of good neighbors wearing the Red Cross. To the people of America, March 1, 1944, is not only the birthday of a hallowed ideal, but also the challenge to continue the development of humanitarianism in the affairs of man.

Interpreting The War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press War Analyst Russian capture of Krivoi Rog, last Nazi bastion in the depths of the Dnieper bend, may loose on the German high command a new flood of disaster fully warranting Marshal Stalin's declaration that the Hitlerite regime "is advancing inevitably toward catastrophe."

There are plain portents of this in the German situation along the whole south flank of the eastern front. The fall of Krivoi Rog, throwing the Nazi forces back to the southwest apparently for a new stand behind the already out-flanked Ukrainian Bug river line, could well prove the beginning of the end for Germany in southern Russia, in Rumania, and in the Balkans.

Important as Krivoi Rog was to the Nazis for its iron and other war minerals, its military value in sustaining the whole Nazi Ukrainian front was even greater. The wide Dnieper itself afforded it security from the south in the spring flood period just ahead.

On the north flank of the German Ukrainian wedge now toppling back from its Krivoi Rog apex, however, Russian deployments in force on a front nearly 500 miles long from Krivoi Rog northward to Lutsk in southeastern Poland has sinister possibilities for the retreating Nazis.

That is the southern flank of the hugely expanded Kiev bulge. Along it stand three or more Ukrainian armies threatening every Nazi route of retreat from the southern Ukraine including the Odessa-Tarnopol-Warsaw trunk line. The Russians are no more than 20 to 40 miles from that railroad for a distance of nearly 200 miles.

There seems no direct route open for a retreat behind the Bug river for the Nazi divisions routed from the Krivoi Rog sector except southward, then down the right bank of the lower Dnieper to Kherson and to Nikolaevo on the Bug mouth estuary. If that is true, they are in immediate danger of being cut off and trapped by the Russians at any point before they reach the Bug. The stage seems set for a Russian thrust from the south, direct at Nikolaevo itself, by armies long poised on the left bank of the Dnieper opposite Kherson.

But it is the vast Kiev bulge that holds the greatest danger for the retreating Germans. It is heavily manned along its south flank to form natural ground for successive entrapment thrusts south and southwestward to harry the German retreat all the way to the Rumanian border—and possibly beyond.

But it is the vast Kiev bulge that holds the greatest danger for the retreating Germans. It is heavily manned along its south flank to form natural ground for successive entrapment thrusts south and southwestward to harry the German retreat all the way to the Rumanian border—and possibly beyond.

Zadok Dumkopf wants a new law—one revoking the poetic license of those spring poem versifiers.

To those Nazis lost in the deep Russian snows, the eastern front campaign has changed from "blitz" to "Br-r-rlitz."

Everything in Hollywood Makes Sense When Selznick Makes a Picture

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—This is a wonderful place and everything here makes sense, especially when you watch them make a movie like "Since You Went Away."

David O. Selznick, who made "Gone With the Wind," took Margaret Buell Wilder's slim little volume of "letters to a soldier from his wife" and he's making an epic out of it. He's giving it scope. He's making an American "Mrs. Miniver." He's making a "home front panorama,"—in short, an epic. Maybe with sweep, too. I'm not dreaming up these blurbs. They come straight from various enthusiastic, if slightly groggy, members of the cast.

D. O. S., 42-year-old sensation of the cinema,—no other local genius made "GWTW" or as much money,—is writing the script himself as he goes along. It's what is known as a "fluid script" in higher artistic circles, as "chooting" off the cuff among the lowbrows. That means anything can happen.

D. O. S. is a spare-no-expense man. When he went after a cast, he got a cast. He persuaded Claudette Colbert that playing the mother (still young and pretty, of course) wouldn't destroy her glamor-g rating. He signed up Joseph Cotten, Monty Woolley, Shirley Temple, Jennifer "Bernadette" Jones, Jennifer's husband, Robert Walker, Hattie McDaniel and only D. O. S. knows who else—if even he does. Neil Hamilton was there for a while to, but he

'Eternal Mask' Film, Psychological Drama, To Be Shown Tonight

A German film, "The Eternal Mask," will be shown tonight at 8 o'clock in the art auditorium by the university film society with admission by film society season tickets only.

An unusual film depicting a drama of the mind's psychological twists and illusions, the movie depicts a young doctor's fight to relinquish his dream world and to return to sanity.

"The Eternal Mask," which was filmed in Vienna just before the fall of Austria, is reputedly the best and most widely approved psychological film ever produced.

The picture, starring Mathias Wiemann and Olga Tschekowa, is in German with English captions.

Prof. George Glockler Says Future May Be 'Age of Cellulose'

The coming era may be called the "age of cellulose," just as the past century has been known as the "age of steel," according to Prof. George Glockler, head of the chemistry department.

"Many articles of commerce will be made from synthetic lumber derived from cellulose especially grown for this purpose by the botanist and treated by the chemist. This will be necessary because a serious metal shortage will have to be faced," Professor Glockler maintains.

Some of his paintings are owned by important European collectors and in this country by such collectors of modern art as Walter Chrysler Jr., Museum of Modern Art and S. Guggenheim.

Marjorie Schenck Marries George Dane In Ceremony in Home of Her Parents

In a setting of spring flowers, palms and candelabra, Marjorie Schenck, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Schenck, 1123 E. College street, became the bride of Lieut. George R. Dane, son of Capt. and Mrs. H. J. Dane, Haldane farm, at 5 p. m. yesterday afternoon in the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Iilton T. Jones, pastor of the Presbyterian church, performed the double-ring ceremony in the presence of the immediate families.

Lorraine Hobbs, accompanied by Norma Cross, sang "I Love You Truly" (Bond) and "Because" (D'Hardelot).

Attending the bride as matron of honor was Mrs. Ted Hansen of Cedar Falls, the bridegroom's sister. John Dane, of Iowa State college at Ames, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Wore Grandmother's Gown
The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore the wedding gown of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Anna Denton. The dress, of ivory broad satin trimmed with four and one-half inch ivory silk lace of rose design, was styled with a fitted basque, square neckline and three-quarter length sleeves trimmed in lace. The floor-length skirt had a draped polonaise lace-trimmed front and a bustle and train. Alternate panels of broad satin and knife pleating of plain satin extended to the hemline which was caught with godets of silk lace over a double flounce of knife pleating in plain satin. She wore an antique gold bracelet which her grandmother wore at her own wedding 50 years ago, and a Sigma Chi locket, a gift of the bridegroom. A colonial arrangement of Johanna Hill roses, lavender sweetpeas and yellow freesia formed the bridal bouquet.

The matron of honor wore a gown designed with a fitted bodice of teal blue silk jersey and a full gathered skirt of white chiffon. Her colonial bouquet was of pink rosebuds and multi-colored sweetpeas.

Mrs. Schenck chose a wine wool crepe dress and black accessories for her daughter's wedding. Her corsage was of gardenias. The bridegroom, served at best man.

Prof. M. W. Lampe Will Present Lecture For Information First

To Discuss Effect Of War on Religion In Old Capitol Today

The religious views of our fighting men and the hazards such views will face in the post-war world will be discussed in an Information First lecture presented at 4 o'clock this afternoon in the senate chamber of Old Capitol by Prof. M. Willard Lampe, director of the school of religion.

"Religion When the Boys Come Home" will be the subject of Professor Lampe's lecture, in which he will outline the possible effects of the present war on religion.

Professor Lampe, in his work in the school of religion, which he helped to establish here in 1927, comes in contact with the personal viewpoints of men who have taken their religion to war with them.

The results of such contacts will form the basis of Professor Lampe's explanation of the importance of religion in the post-war world.

Following his lecture, Professor Lampe will answer questions

The group, which was under the direction of Mrs. O. B. Limoseth, wore costumes of the colonial period. Pupils included were Nancy Meyers, announcer, Kathryn Kupka, flagbearer, and the couples who were Sharon Kelley and David Tarrant; Elma Harpley and John Larew; Nancy Meyers and John Dolezal; Sue Simmons and John Hammond; Marilyn Goettle and Bobby Reynolds, and Mary Jean Davis and Billy Phelps.

The group decided to buy a war bond for the Americanism and national defense department of the auxiliary. A social hour with refreshments followed.

From The Sidelines . . .

by Yoke

Again there is cause to mention the fact that nothing at all is happening in the sports world. Except for the local shows going on around us this scribe might shrivel up and die for the lack of something meaty to chew on.

Next weekend should live things up quite a bit here in town what with the sectionals of the state basketball tournament being run off at City high and Northwestern meeting Iowa in the fieldhouse on the same nights.

If you should happen to be blown down by a strong wind current moving in the direction of the fieldhouse let me beg your pardon right now.

John A. Pollard, magazine writer, started something recently when he wrote an article for Quill, the magazine of Sigma Delta Chi, national men's honorary journalism fraternity, stating that he became ill when he read some sports stories with athletic jargon and a great deal of alliteration.

John says that he now longs for the days of good sports writers like Ring Lardner and Westbrook Pegler and the way they used to coin such delightful phrases as "Notre Dame's foreign legion which stopped off at South Bend now and then during the autumn to collect its mail."

But now John feels that the whole thing is just a little bit too "gee whizz" for modern consumption.

This article started the sports scribes shouting and they came back at "Jeerin' John" in grand fashion.

They pointed out that if there is anything truly American it was nicknames. They said that the boys want to return to times when the "Gas House gang" was knocking the "old apple" around the "orchard" with memories of "Larrupin' Lou" and the "Sultan of Swat" to talk about during the long afternoons.

Let's second that motion. If Pollard becomes ill from reading sports jargon we might call him "Pollard of the Punny Pancreas." Here's for bigger and better alliterations in the future not to say assassinations on the gridiron, or assassinations on the basketball court.

They have a boy at the Pre-Flight school now that can run the 60-yard dash in 6.6 which is just about four-tenths of a second above the national indoor record. His name is Alkon and he is presently running for the Vincitor squadron in the battalion finals and the Pre-Flight sports officials are planning to run him in the Chicago relays next month if he is around next month.

The amazing thing about this 6.6 record is that he is doing the running in tennis shoes, without spikes.

Give a man a horse he can ride, or a runner some shoes he can wear and let him go. We might garner a new national title in the course of events.

Bluejackets Dump Phillips Oilers, 55-39

GREAT LAKES, Ill. (AP)—Great Lakes' Bluejackets spilled the Phillips Oilers, National A. A. U. basketball champs, of Bartlesville, Okla., last night, 55 to 39, to score their 29th victory in 32 games.

Merman Schaefer, ex-Indiana paced the Bluejacket offensive university ace, and Chuck Joachim with 16 and 14 points each, while Nash accounted for 11 of the Oilers tallies.

The White Sox lead the list in both inactive returning and amateurs. Jimmy Dykes will have five of the retired citizens trying to regain a little spring in the spring, although two of them still are of tender years. He'll also have seven men fresh from the amateur ranks.

The Senators have five amateurs in addition to the eight anonymous gents with no records, and they also are tied with Chicago in the matter of numerical strength. Each club lists 39 names.

Second Win For Irish

'Red' Gatens Tops For St. Patrick's; Colbert for Ramblers

The Irish of St. Patrick's played a repeat performance last night as they downed the St. Mary's Ramblers for the second straight time this season, 46-20.

Outclassed in practically every department, the Ramblers fell behind 9-4 at the end of the first quarter. At the half the Irish had increased their lead still more by going ahead 19-9.

"Red" Gatens, Irish guard, took scoring honors for the evening as he dumped in 7 field goals for a total of 14 points. Next high for the St. Patrick's team was Phil McLaughlin and Jim Montgomery who each made 3 baskets and 1 free throw for 7 points apiece.

High point man for the Ramblers was tiny Ed Colbert, who connected for 2 field goals and 3 charity tosses to mark up 7 points.

The Ramblers, without the aid of Tom Stahler, their high scoring forward who did not play due to a throat infection, were stopped cold by the Irish defense. They were unable to break through for close-up shots, and consequently, had to shoot from far out on the floor.

Despite their definite height disadvantage, St. Mary's fought to the end, even though their ball handling was generally listless and inaccurate, and they fumbled and threw the ball away time and again.

Jim Diehl, small red-headed Rambler guard, looked the best for the losers as he played a nice defensive game, grabbing rebounds under both baskets and looking good on his floor game.

There was no doubt as to the outcome of the game from the very beginning. The Irish controlled the ball most of the time as they drove in for set-up after set-up only to miss the majority of their shots. They had little trouble in overpowering the Rambler defense, and kept their offense bottled up most of the time.

Gatens looked the best for the south siders as he played a bang-up ball game on both offense and defense.

McLaughlin started the scoring with a short set-up after four minutes had elapsed in the game. Kennedy came back for the Ramblers to tie the score 2-2. Hogan moved the Irish ahead once more, but O'Brien again tied it up. From then on, it was the Irish's ball game. Gatens, Montgomery and McLaughlin all scored to make the scoreboard read 9-4 at the end of the first period.

Baskets by Montgomery and Hogan and three by Gatens added 10 more points to St. Patrick's total during the second period while Kennedy and Colbert were connecting for 5 points for the Ramblers.

During the last half St. Mary's was held to 2 field goals and 7 free throws for 11 points while the Irish were pouring in 13 baskets and 2 free throws for 28 points.

Yank Coach Missing For First Time

NEW YORK, (AP)—Silver haired Earl Bryan Combs will be missing from Yankee stadium this season for the first time in 9 years, during which he participated in 11 world series, as player and coach, with the New York American league club.

Combs was granted a year's leave of absence yesterday by President Edward G. Barrow, to permit the Kentucky colonel to devote full time to his farms near Richmond, Ky.

The loss of Combs for the year results in Johnny Neun dropping the managerial reins at Kansas City to take over the first base coaching berth for the Yanks while Jack Saltzgeber, former Yank infielder who has been playing with Kansas City since 1938, will be the new skipper of the American association Blues.

Saltzgeber was born in Keokuk, Ia., in 1906, came to the Yankees in 1932 and was optioned to the Newark Bears in 1933 and 1934. He came back to the Yanks in 1935 and stayed until 1938, but since then has been a Kansas City infielder.

Seahawks Play Last Game

This weekend is the final wind up for the Seahawk basketball team, with the Loras College entertaining the cadet quintet Saturday night, followed by a game Monday night on the Drake floor in Des Moines.

The Seahawks have played both teams previously, downing Loras 51 to 1, and Drake 52 to 20. The Loras five is enjoying a 6 game winning streak at the present time, and has lost only to Camp Grant in the last 11 games.

A sorrowful note was cast in the Seahawk direction this week, as their high scoring center George Dalman, came down with a cold, and perhaps he will not be in the starting line-ups this weekend.

The Seahawk scoring machine now has to its credit 1,006 points for its seasons work, with center Al Shirley, who is now in advanced training, leading the pace with 167 points. Their opponents have gathered 619 points, against the high scoring cadets, Wilcoxen, the speedy forward, leads the teams current personnel with 91 points in 11 games.

Notre Dame Mystery Team

Erratic Season Forces Hawks to Go Easy; Pointing for Wildcats

If University of Iowa basketball players can't get their minds off Northwestern while they are playing Notre Dame at South Bend Saturday, that mental reaction is perfectly natural, Coach "Pops" Harrison said Wednesday.

"Sure it would be nice to beat Notre Dame and of course we will play to win. But the boys won't be keyed for that game as they will be for the Northwestern games next week which decide whether we win a championship share," declared the Hawkeye coach.

Irish Have Erratic Season

The Irish have had an in-and-out season, winning nine and losing eight. But their last two games were wins over New York university and Great Lakes. In contests with Big Ten teams, Notre Dame beat Purdue twice and broke even with Wisconsin, but dropped two to Northwestern.

Kramer Moved Up

Coach Harrison in some workouts this week has tried Ned Postels at center in place of Lloyd Herwig, with Glen Kramer, who held up a guard job in fine style against Purdue when Postels went out on fouls, at guard opposite Jack Spencer. This combination has shown good scoring strength and may be used part of the time against Notre Dame.

Iowa's reserve situation also has been bettered by the fact that Floyd Magnusson, who can play either forward or center, did not leave for the army air corps last weekend as expected. Magnusson was notified at the last moment not to report until later.

Official figures from the Big Ten service bureau show that Iowa, tied for second with Purdue in the percentage standing, ranks fourth on offense and defense. Averages are 51.8 and 43.3 points. (See columns 5, 6, 7).

Sports Editor, Cafe Owner Save Team For Sacramento

SACRAMENTO (AP)—An eleven-hour drive by a sports editor and a cafe owner, who in 48 hours raised $52,000 and fought off a rival bid of more than twice that amount, had saved Sacramento its Pacific coast league baseball franchise.

Dick Edmonds, young sports editor, and Yubi Separovich, cafe man, beat a deadline by hours and snatched the franchise back from Tacoma, Wash., which seemed to have the club sewed up.

League directors scheduled a meeting for Tuesday in Los Angeles at which to transfer the club to Tacoma. Edmonds and Separovich started out at 5 p. m. last Saturday and by that hour Monday had called on every sports-minded citizen they knew of. One contributor came through with $20,000. From lawyers, businessmen, bowling alley proprietors and plain baseball fans checks, cash and pledges came pouring in.

Edmonds and Separovich took their money to Los Angeles, even though they knew Tacoma eventually had the deal clinched. Ten days earlier, Tacoma announced and Sam Bredson, St. Louis Cardinals president, confirmed that San Francisco's franchise had been sold to the Washington city for $50,000. Tacoma had raised $125,000 more to make good the club's operation.

To complicate matters the train to Los Angeles was held up by a snowstorm, but the directors waited for the Sacramentoans. After Edmonds and Separovich presented their case the directors voted in favor of Sacramento.

Seahawks Tilt Gophers There Saturday

Lieut. Dave Bartelma, former wrestling coach at the University of Minnesota, and now coach of the Seahawk varsity wrestlers, will take his team to Minneapolis Saturday night for a Homecoming match with the strong Gophers.

The Seahawks' 7-match winning streak was broken last weekend when the Navy Pier (Chicago) team beat the Pre-Flighters, 16-9. Earlier in the season the Seahawks had beaten Navy Pier.

Minnesota took third place in the Big Ten wrestling meet at Chicago last week. Gagne, Minnesota 175 lb. man, won the conference title at that weight, and Lister and Nelson were second at 160 lbs. and 145 lbs.

Last year Minnesota beat the Seahawks, 19-11. Coach Bartelma plans to stick to the lineup that started against Navy Pier, with the exception of Ralph Garner, of Canton, Ohio, who replaced Donald Strachan, of Ann Arbor, Mich., at 128 lbs.

Others in the lineup probably will be: 135—R. E. Grangaard, LaCrosse, Wis.; 145—D. R. Norman, Bloomington, Ind.; 151—Albert Scharf, Bellwood, Ill.; 158—Newton D. Copple, Lincoln, Neb.; 165—Harold Lincoln, De Witt, Iowa; 175—James Dernahl, Riverside, Ill.; Hvy.—F. E. Jerace, Canton, Ohio.

Fred G. Bale Views Alcohol, Youth Problem

With vigorous contempt for the prevalent idea today for "what it takes to be a good fellow" as a cause of the present juvenile delinquency problems, Judge Fred G. Bale spoke to a large audience in the Methodist church last night. In chaotic days the "Citizens of Tomorrow" were considered by Judge Bale when he quoted from Matthew, chapter 18, which warns against "causing a stumbling block to be placed in the path of these little ones." Safeguarding the moral, physical and mental health of all young people in these days of increasing immorality was the chief plea of the speaker.

The commercialized, propagated evil, the saloon, is the feeding ground for all the wrong-doing in cities all over the country, he contends. Mothers leaving their children and their homes to become shells of filth and inattention, youths drinking just to be a good fellow and court cases of parents bringing moronic children born into a dark world because of parental frailties were all discussed by Judge Bale, for eight years judge of an Ohio juvenile court.

of alcohol are appetite, avarice and apathy, all of which he called stumbling blocks in the growth of normal young people. Reviewing instances in his own court and telling of children of junior high school age being intoxicated at various nightclubs on successive occasions, Judge Bale pleaded for persons to become increasingly mindful of their job in raising souls, not necessarily with the highest degree of literacy, as we are today, but with the highest degree of morality.

The statement of J. Edgar Hoover concerning the status of minors during 1942-43 when there was a 40 percent increase in minors arrested and taken to courts, was cited by the speaker.

Francescatti Concert Provides Brilliant Finale to Music Season

The 1943-44 university concert series was brought to a brilliant finale last night with the recital of Zino Francescatti, sensational French violinist, who made his local debut at Iowa Union. Francescatti is deceptively unassuming in manner, but his casual geniality became an impressive and almost stern devotion to the task at hand when he struck the first notes of the "Star Spangled Banner"—a prelude to a memorable evening. "Struck" is the right word, incidentally, for there is a passion, forthrightness and virility which characterizes his playing, and lifts it quite apart from a too-usual fragility associated with violin playing.

The program which Francescatti chose would have done honor to Carnegie hall. It opened with the Bach Sonata in A Major, at once revealing the violinist as a musician of uncompromising integrity and complete mastery over his instrument. His tone is remarkably brilliant, yet sonorous and often velvety, and capable of the most delicate nuances. In violinistic parlance, he has a superb "bow arm." Throughout the sonata, there was an electric effect, coupled with a sense of architecture; a passion restrained by intellect, yet always alive, always glowing. Bach here was Bach, in the most traditional sense, yet also accorded a humanity that goes far to explain the immortality of the composer.

In the Tartini variations on a theme by Corelli, transcribed by Francescatti, his musical link to Paganini was revealed. (He is a kind of great-grandson of the "Prince of Fiddlers," for his father studied with the only direct pupil of Paganini—Sivortti.) The Variations presented nearly every feat possible to the violin—flying staccato, diabolical trills, faultless harmonics, dazzling arpeggios—quite in the Paganini tradition. If further proof had been needed of Francescatti's virtuosity, the Corelli variations furnished that proof.

But the major performance of the evening was surely the Beethoven Sonata in A Major, Op. 47, the great "Kreutzer." Here the human polarities of the decisive will and the questioning, different heart alternated until, monumentally, the typical Beethoven "Sturm und Drang" emerged. Yet never did the passion break out of control, and here the lightning of Francescatti's superb technique and dominating intellectual control struck, and struck again. The performance had that "certain magnitude" which one of the earliest of art critics insisted upon as prerequisite to great

Answer Sex Queries Of Children Honestly, Doctor Tells Parents

"Parents should not evade a child's question concerning sex," said Dr. Wilbur Miller, head of Psychopathic hospital, at a meeting of the Child Conservation club Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Virgil Fordyce, 222 Highland drive.

"Evading or untruths will cause the child to lose confidence in his parents after he finds the questions have not been frankly and honestly dealt with."

When a child grows up understanding matters concerning sex, many mental and emotional difficulties are prevented. He should be familiar with both pleasant and unpleasant aspects regarding the situation if he is to be better equipped to deal intelligently with sex problems, Miller advised.

"When parents have established trustful relations with children, they will accept parents' explanations in later life, and there should be little difficulty regarding sex troubles during adolescence. There is no reason why a child's sex outlook on life should not be normal and wholesome, provided the parent has done the best he can in creating the right idea to his children," he concluded.

Acting as assistant hostesses at the meeting were Mrs. Guy Welch, Mrs. Nate Moore Jr., and Mrs. L. K. Norris.

ago. Very modestly, he speaks of his material as footnotes to history, although actually they are the flesh and bones of history. In fact, it is Mr. Bonsor's modesty that first impresses the reader. Few men dealing daily with the great of the earth keep their perspective so well.

The general attitudes of the various delegates are pretty well known, but here the hot words and the boredom and the machinations of 1918-19 are made specific. Colonel House's unsuccessful effort to keep President Wilson in Washington is explained, and for the first time, so far as I know, the possibility that Wilson and Senator Lodge might have been brought to agreement, with what incalculable benefits one cannot guess, is shown.

Bonsor is very fair to Wilson, but he shows also how far from free of smallness even he was, particularly in his treatment of Lansing and the other delegates at Paris. There are sharp little vignettes of hundreds of people, Lady Asquith to Persian princes, and as a result of some research on the spot in 1919, it is evident that Bonsor and House as well understood very well what was happening in Central Europe.

In observation of the 97th birthday of the University of Iowa, a Founder's day broadcast will be presented on station WSUI tomorrow night at 9 o'clock. The special program will be dedicated to the 7,300 graduates and former students now serving in the armed forces, and to the 70 who are known to have lost their lives.

The program will include the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school band, which will play two marches by Sousa, "Semper Fidelis" and "Stars and Stripes Forever," under the direction of Chief Musician J. J. Courtney. The chorus of the band will sing "Over the Seas" and "Anchors Aweigh," being directed by Musician Second Class Wilbur Peterson.

President Virgil M. Hancher will speak on "The University Plays Its Part," discussing the varied contributions of the institution to the war effort.

The university string quartet, composed of Prof. Arnold Small, violin; David Robertson, violin; Otto Jelinek, viola, and Prof. Hans Koelbel, cello, all of the music department, will play "E Minor" from String Quartet in C, Scherzo opus 44, number 2, by Mendelssohn.

Students of the speech department will present a sketch entitled "The University Now," written by Evelyn Nolt, A4 of Webster City. Also on the special program, which is under the direction of Prof. H. Clay Harshbarger of the speech department, will be a series of excerpts from letters written by Iowa men and women in the service.

In addition to WSUI, KMA in Shenandoah will carry the birthday broadcast tomorrow night. WMT in Cedar Rapids and Waterloo will have a transcription of the program tomorrow from 11:05 to 11:30 p. m. and KRNT of Des Moines will broadcast a transcription Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

John Sterba Sues Crandic

John C. Sterba of North Liberty petitioned district court yesterday for $15,000 damages from the Cedar Rapids and Iowa City interurban for the death of his wife, Mrs. Anna Sterba. Mrs. Sterba was killed Nov. 3, 1943, near North Liberty when the truck in which she was riding was struck by the interurban.

Sterba claims that the interurban was not under proper control at the time of the accident; that it was traveling at a greater speed than was allowed; that there were no proper precautions to indicate the crossing; that they had not considered the safety of others, and that they could have stopped in time to avoid the accident.

Representing the plaintiff is the Swisher and Swisher law firm of Iowa City and R. S. Milner of Cedar Rapids.

Army Air Medal Presented to Widow

Major Clyde W. Hubbard, commanding officer of the army air corps pre-meteorology school here, yesterday presented the army air forces air medal to Mrs. Ann Humke of Sigourney. The medal, earned by Mrs. Humke's husband, Lieut. David A. Humke, was awarded posthumously. Lieutenant Humke was killed in action over enemy territory.

The presentation was made in West Liberty, where Mrs. Humke is employed.

A second air medal will be presented soon to Mrs. Mae Sampson of Davenport. This medal, accompanied by two oak leaf clusters, was earned by her son, Sgt. Charles A. Bein, for "exceptionally meritorious service while participating in aerial flight against the enemy."

Come and Go Musician's Life Full Of Timetables

By MILDRED BOUY

Concert musicians learn more about states than people living in them, according to Zino Francescatti, French violinist who appeared here last night. In fact, the life of a concert musician is full of timetables and schedules of future engagements.

Francescatti has made several tours in America since he arrived here four years ago. His spring tour calls for a plane trip to South America, where he will give another group of concerts.

The repertoire of a concert musician is one which has enlarged through the years, according to the French violinist. Many of the compositions which the artist plays are those which he learned 20 years ago. When Francescatti is on tour he rarely has an opportunity to practice between engagements. Any such playing he terms "fun."

"My violin was my most beautiful toy," the Frenchman reminisced. He began playing at the age of three, and made his first public appearance when he was five. Although he has only been in America for a few years, the Frenchman speaks a understandable English, made charming with his native accent and gestures. When he travels in South America he learns only the essential words.

The violinist has a number of hobbies in which he renews interest between concert sessions. "Hobbies come and go with me," he comments. He likes chess particularly, and he has a collection of over 20,000 stamps.

Francescatti appeared with the Andre Kostelanetz orchestra on a recent radio broadcast. He explained that for his four-minute radio appearance he practiced with the group for four hours. Several microphones are placed in the studio during the broadcast, and the musicians move about the room for special effects.

No Deaths in 1943 From Car Accidents

Iowa City had no deaths caused by traffic accident from Jan. 1, 1943, to Jan. 1, 1944, according to information published in the February issue of Safety Service, a magazine for police officials.

During 1943, 591 deaths occurred in the city with 14,597,000 man-deaths, the figure derived from the deaths multiplied by the population.

2 Soloists to Appear In Sunday's Concert

A concert of 12 choral numbers will be presented in Iowa Union at 4 p. m. Sunday by the University chorus under the direction of Prof. Herald Stark.

Gladys Noteboom, A4 of Orange City, and Donald Ecroyd, A4 of Arkansas City, Kan., will appear in vocal solos with the group. Included on the program will be a composition by Louis H. Diercks, former conductor of the chorus and member of the music department.

Sunday afternoon's concert will mark the third appearance of the university group this season. Free tickets are available at the main desk of Iowa Union.

The program will be composed of choral works by Handel, Gluck, Brahms and Schubert, and a number of modern and folk song arrangements. Miss Noteboom will appear as soprano soloist in "The Omnipotence" (Schubert) and Ecroyd will sing the tenor solo in "Has Sorrow Thy Young Days Shaded?" (Davis arrangement).

John Ebert, President Of Iowa Mountaineers Gives Illustrated Talk

Illustrating his talk to the Lions club yesterday noon with technical movies of scenic spots, John Ebert, president of the Iowa Mountaineers club, said, "Hikers in the club go on the trips for the climb, scenery and food."

Although the hikers frequently plan an 8- or 10-mile jaunt, the highlight of each year is the main trip of the season, when nationally known scenic spots are visited and explored.

Anyone who is interested in the out-of-doors is eligible for membership. The real story of the organization lies in its diversified activities.

Quoting a Chinese proverb, the speaker said that "one picture is worth 10,000 words," and he showed many scenes of glacial parks, Wyoming and California which the hikers have visited.

Of the 220 club members, three-fourths of them are the heads of, or subsidiaries to, university departments. Several of the hikers are in their early twenties while others are from 40 to 45 years old.

From Iowa City, the hikers sometimes bicycle on a country road or take an interurban several miles out of town and hike back. Ebert assured the audience that

Director of Letters Publishes Lecture

"The Faith of the Scholar" is the title of an article by Prof. Norman Foerster, director of the school of letters, appearing in the March issue of "The American Scholar," quarterly journal published by Phi Beta Kappa.

The article was presented by Professor Foerster in a Baconian lecture entitled "American Learning When Peace Comes."

since climbers always wear a rope around their waists, they are free from danger, and it is possible to scale almost any precipice. Parallel climbing and high mountain climbing were illustrated in the pictures.

Eating time is a favorite recreation in the hikers' schedule, and barbecues, weiner roasts and dinners with large quantities of food frequently succeed the hike.

Several pictures depicted the party climbing the mountain, sometimes four on a rope. When they reach the summit, they sign their names and place the paper in a tube which is an accurate record of mountain climbing accomplishments.

In 1940, the hikers went to California and explored Mt. Whitney, the highest mountain in the United States. In all their climbing experience not one accident has occurred, the speaker said.

March Quota Red Cross to Raise $36,500

Quota of the Johnson county chapter of the American Red Cross in the 1944 War Fund campaign in March is $36,500, according to Prof. Jack T. Johnson, war fund chairman.

The quota is based on the needs of the chapter plus its apportionment of the budget of the national organization, which has a total goal of $200,000,000. The quota is the largest in the history of the chapter.

"The increase in the requirements for Red Cross work results from increased needs for work with the armed forces," Johnson said. The number of men in the armed forces of the United States to be served by the Red Cross has been very greatly increased during the last year and dispersion of forces to more and more combat zones and outlying stations necessitates Red Cross service at many more locations."

Viewed as a total, Johnson commented, the Red Cross goal seems large, but if it is considered in relation to the number of men now in the armed forces, it represents "a very modest sum for Red Cross service for a full year."

"We are confident," he added "that the people of Johnson county and all of America will respond
