Humorously Speaking—

The other day a new book was slipped on the market, and immediately fell heavily on an unsuspecting public. The title of the book is Esar's Comic Dictionary, and, oddly enough, the author is an individual named Esar.

Although this is not intended to be either (1) a hearty recommendation to read the book before nightfall, or (2) a brutal condemnation of the same on the grounds that you probably will not recover if taken in sufficient doses, we feel that here are several interesting observations made by Mr. Esar.

For instance, starting in the front of the book with the letter A, our author defines asbntine as "that which makes the heart grow fonder." Adolescence he remarks is that period when a "girl's voice changes from no to yes."

Turning a few pages we learn that, "ahem," is a seamstress' exclamation, and that alcohol is the stuff that makes the world go round. And, just in case any budding law students are interested, the technical definition of alibi, is "the legal proof that a person wasn't where he was, and therefore didn't do it."

Skipping a few letters, there is the observation that delirium is something that's different from love, but not very much. And, a dentist is a strange character who always looks down at the mouth.

However, the biggest section in the book is dedicated, rightly enough, of course, to love. Evidently our man Esar couldn't decide on any one definition, so he included several (29 to be exact). Here are a few of the more printable: "perpetual emotion," "the greatest indoor sport," "a little sighing, a little dying, and a great deal of lying," "the odd feeling that makes a man think almost as much of a girl as he thinks of himself."

Just to end this on a political note, there's an interesting definition of a Nazi propagandist: "Hot Aryan."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

Allied Visé Squeezes Tighter on Nazi Escape Corridors From Cherbourg

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

An allied visé squeezed tighter on Nazi escape corridors from the Cherbourg peninsula on the eighth day of the second-front invasion. This action raised a question as to whether any substantial portion of the German garrison in Cherbourg could make its way southward to safety.

St. Lo, main rail and road hub at the center of the base line of the Normandy front, was within field gun range of American troops driving down the Bayeux-Coutances highway west of the captured Cerisy forest. A push in the area of La Haye and Lessay junctions farther north, threatened to snap the Lasz road or rail lines over which the beleaguered enemy garrison on the tip of the peninsula could get out of the trap.

Nazi battle bulletins went even farther than jubilant allied announcements toward confirming the impression that the battle of Cherbourg is approaching the mopping-up stage. General Eisenhower's headquarters already was turning its attention from that sector to developments elsewhere on the deepening beachhead in Normandy.

A big new dent in German lines south of Bayeux was reported. Presumably, British and Canadian troops on the left-center and left of the invasion perimeter were shifting from their first defensive role of guarding the flank of the American thrust on the Cherbourg peninsula. They were striking out offensively both south of Bayeux and east of half-encircled Caen, to the defense of which the German high command rallied its first major reserve waves.

Caen is a vital cog in the German

Nazi War Prisoners Prove Tough, Smart Says Columnist

By HELEN ESSARY

WASHINGTON—You get a first hand glimpse of our Nazi foe when you see a German soldier in a United States prisoner of war camp. You think: Here is the enemy. Is he tough and smart? As tough and smart as we hear he is?

"Certainly he's tough and smart. He's a fine soldier," Col. Philip Moisan and Maj. William Gleason, war prisoner camp commanders at Fort Lee and Fort Pickett, described the German soldier in almost identical words. "He's a first class fighting man. We've watched him work in captivity. He's been trained to obey orders and give the best he has to the task at hand. So when we study him we say, if we're honest: This is what we've got to beat. We've GOT to beat him. So we've GOT to be better than he is."

I asked many questions of the W. P. camp commanders of Fort Lee and Fort Pickett about the German soldier as best I could from the distance I was permitted to see him on my recent visits to the forts. What I learned of this young fighting man who typifies the enemy we are struggling to defeat I shall now condense in small paragraphs.

The German soldier is NOT a superman. He has health, strength, industry and stamina. He has had years of military training. But he is NOT superior to the average American soldier. "Put American uniforms on Germans and German uniforms on Americans. Mix them up and you wouldn't be able to tell them apart." Both Colonel Moisan and Major Gleason told me this individually. Each commanding officer was unaware that the other had so spoken.

The German soldier has been disciplined to obey like a machine. But such machine-like obedience has its weakness. It kills initiative. For example—put 50 German P. W.'s—as the prisoners of war are called—to work at 8 o'clock some morning on a swamp cleaning project. At 10 o'clock take 25 of them off the project and move them, under guard, of course, to a new project—say farming. The 25 P. W.'s left in the swamp job will be completely demoralized. They won't know how to fill in the gaps the departing 25 have made. The departing 25 put into the farm job for which they had not been given early morning instructions will be demoralized in their unexpected environment. The result of the change will be that no work will be had out of 50 men all day.

American soldiers in a similar situation would bang ahead and try to fill the gaps left in the first job and plunge into the second job without an instant's hesitation.

Undoubtedly there are Nazis and political maneuverers in the P. W. camps. How could it be supposed there would be none? Perhaps among the P. W.'s there are young Germans who are not Nazis. But how would it be possible ever to be sure which were which?

Yes, there have been some unpleasant disturbances in several of the P. W. camps. There have been rebellions and fighting among the prisoners. There was the German P. W. who was found hanging to a rafter in his room one morning. It is not possible to supply enough guards to watch every P. W. The guards and the commanding officers do the best they can. In civilian prisons fighting is not unheard of. Prisoners in civilian prisons have been known to kill each other, and to commit suicide.

We know we are not up against lollipops in the Germans either on the battle field or in the war prisoner camp. Handling the war prisoner is a delicate and hazardous job.

Most of the German prisoners in the United States camps are aware of their rights under the Geneva conference, to which all the nations engaged in this World War II except Japan agreed. Several

News Behind the News

'Leftist Journals' Campaign for Beveridge Proposed 'Way of Life'

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON—The unre-solved conflict between the four freedoms and radical ideologies which is apparent behind the confusing political news from abroad is also conspicuous behind much domestic news and interpretation.

The leftist journals are currently campaigning for the Beveridge proposed "way of life" in Britain, with the critical demand that it also be pursued here. They think that is what the four freedoms mean, assumption by the state of more complete authority over the lives of men economically, fixing their wages, their employment, their security rather than encouraging the individual to do it himself on his own initiative. That is the kind of peace and post-war planning they want.

But we have campaigned this war through to a point near victory on the basis of bringing liberty and democracy for the individual both here and abroad. Is their thinking now not as confused and as far wrong as it was a few months ago when they were campaigning for a quart of milk a day and labor-wage standards to be fixed throughout the world?

What is liberty? What is democracy? What is freedom of the individual? If we do not first decide that, how can there be anything but confusion about post-war planning?

To me, an individual enslaved to a state economically by taxation or otherwise, is no less a slave than if controlled politically. In a minor disturbance in the P. W. camps have been caused by rebellious groups that thought they were receiving unfair treatment. Some P. W.'s objected through their camp spokesmen to working with fertilizer on the ground that it was unhealthy work from which they were protected by the Geneva convention. Medical advisers explained that fertilizer work was unpleasant but not harmful. The P. W.'s went back to work.

Suppose there is some civilian complaint at what civilians, always more bloodthirsty than the military, call "softness" in our treatment of the German prisoner. Johnny Doakes, locked up in a German prison camp, on whom the German authorities might bring down reprisals were not the German P. W.'s in this country fairly treated, is the person to be considered. Not the civilian. Johnny, who is now having a reasonably comfortable time in his Nazi camp might have to bear the brunt of a violation of the treaty of Geneva.

Getting Your Life Back--

By KENNETH DIXON

But until dawn it was a case of whether we would be the trappers or the trapped. It seems slightly melodramatic now in the morning sunlight, but it didn't seem so last night.

At sunset the soldiers still cracked grim jokes, plodding along the road but they had less and less stomach for them. "I wonder how the rangers felt before Cisterna," said an already weary doughboy. "Shut up," then the dust settled deeper and we stumbled along in silence and the inevitable isolation of any individual front line action crept into the war.

I thought of last minute things I should have done, remembered some valuable personal papers back in Naples which no one will be likely to find. By concentrating on little things, such as staying exactly five paces behind the soldier ahead of me, it was easier to keep my mind off the unknown horrors which lay before us.

At midnight we were speaking to our last outpost in the moonlight. The men's combat boots crunched on the grass and leaves as we filtered shadow-like through the trees. It seemed too beautiful a night for men to die but we could hear them dying against the chatter of small arms fire and the artillery's thunder.

Back there at the last "turning back point" fear had been intense for a quick moment, but pride had turned a screw there and now it was easier, with no more decisions to make.

At 2 o'clock we were lying in a vineyard in no man's land with an enemy air raid going on—flares so bright you could see the ants scurrying through the dirt under your face.

There was light from other sources, ack-ack tracers spurted into the sky flaring back and forth like liquid fire from a garden hose; machine gun and machine pistol tracers flashed over our heads as the ground battle defiantly continued; anti-personnel bombs splattered among the front-

Budget Officials See All-Time Record High In Federal Expenses

WASHINGTON—Budget bureau officials explain that the four billion, 800 million-dollar reduction in the war program for the next fiscal year, announced by President Roosevelt, represents a curtailment in the dollar volume of contracts to be let, but not a decline in actual government expenditures.

Cash outlays in the fiscal year beginning next July 1, they report, still are estimated at 92 billion dollars, as in the January budget.

This will be an all-time high. It will be two billion dollars more than estimated cash expenditures for the fiscal year to end at mid night, June 30.

What the president was saying, officials explain, was that there will be a net decline of four billion, 80 million dollars in the obligations which the government will incur in the next fiscal year to keep the war going. And this is based on the assumption that the war will continue at least until June 30, 1945.

Since there is a time lag between the letting of contracts and the final payment for the delivered article, cash outlays drag some distance behind obligations.

The president disclosed that the war program of the United States government, considered in itself, had been cut back eight billion, 300 million. But three and one-half billions had been added to the January program for additional lend-lease aid, so that the net curtailment was four billion, 800 million.

Reliable sources on Capitol Hill have come up with the report of an amusing, almost embarrassing, sidelight on the highly explosive armed seizure of the Chicago plant of Montgomery Ward and company.

The report has just now begun to circulate while a special seven-member house committee is investigating the seizure by holding open hearings under chairmanship of Representative Robert Ramspeck (D) of Georgia.

It seems that after President Roosevelt ordered the seizure, the administration was set to have the plant turned over to War Production Board Chairman Donald Nelson.

The stage was set for Nelson to take over the sprawling mail order house by the Chicago river, using whatever means necessary to commandeer it and run it until the dispute between management and union was settled.

Then, at the last minute, Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones was designated to take over instead.

The reason was that administration officials suddenly remembered that Nelson was chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck and company before he went to work directing production to win the war.

In that role he was—by position, at least—the Sewell Avery of Ward's greatest rival in the mail order business, a rival fighting for common sense for peace. If we wish to dispel confusion and plan our way, we must first define our words and understand our goals. We must decide that, internationally or domestically, the star of real liberty must be maintained as indispensable.

We must abhor collectivism as an ideal, and compromise with it reluctantly and temporarily only to the extent truly necessary to bring justice to the individual.

We must abhor oneness domination, totalitarianism, dictatorship, and remember always that an individual enslaved to the state by any means whatever will have no more liberty and democracy than the fluctuating goodness and justice of that controlling force.

Men do not take well that kind of power either as heads of worlds or any of the subdivisions of society including nations, states, counties, cities, or even labor unions.

Certain officials, the report concludes, are considerably relieved they remembered in time to prevent that Nelson order.

The national party conventions in Chicago are drawing ever closer with no word from the executive mansions in Washington and Albany, but politicians are confident it will be Franklin D. Roosevelt vs. Governor Thomas E. Dewey in the November election.

F. D. R. has well over the majority of Democratic votes needed to nominate him and Dewey, counting uninstructed delegates that undoubtedly will vote for him, has the GOP nomination in the bag.

Drastic Post-War Change Envisioned Engineering Methods

A drastic post-war change in engineering educational methods, which would send prospective students directly into industry to obtain practical experience before beginning their college studies, is envisioned by George F. Bateman in his annual report as dean of the Cooper Union (New York) school of engineering.

Under such a system, Dean Bateman says, the function of engineering colleges would be "to adjust and prepare for advancement, rather than preparation for entrance to employment." It would be desirable, he adds, to have students return to industry at intervals during the collegiate course to acquire further practical training.

The experience of teachers of engineering with young men from industry who have taken special wartime courses has made it clear, according to Dean Bateman, that such students generally are far ahead of the average day student in appreciation, response and understanding. This fact, he points out, raises the question: "Why continue the wasteful ineffective training of adolescents whose contact with industry is nil?"

Citing the enormous debt which the war has imposed upon the country, Dean Bateman asserts that "unless we are willing to revert to a much lower standard of living than we now possess, all in our generation will have to work harder and contribute more to the increased production of all goods and to all services."

"Under such conditions," he asked, "will society continue to permit the aimless mental wandering and the idle frittering away of four years' time by so many of the able-bodied adolescents on college campuses? If not, and if boys generally are placed in industry, after a suitable period of preparation for life in our reorganized high schools, will not the function of engineering colleges then be to adjust and prepare for advancement, rather than preparation for entrance to employment?"

"To influence and win over industrial executives and labor leaders to the advantages of such a system of training, so as to render it feasible in operation, is indeed a task and a challenge to all our forward-looking leaders in engineering education."

P. Later the couple left for Camp Crowder, Mo., and for traveling the bride chose a yellow frock of wool-gabardine with brown and white accessories and a corsage of white daisies.

Mrs. Davis was graduated from Iowa City high school and attended the university.

The bridegroom, also a graduate of Iowa City high school, attended the University of Colorado at Boulder and the University of Iowa. He is now stationed with the army at Camp Crowder.

New Who's Who Lists Three Horacks Of Same Family

In the 1944-45 edition of Who's Who, the name "Horack" is listed three times: All three Horacks are graduates of the University of Iowa; all three are members of the same family; all are educators and one is a professor at the university here.

Two were born in Belle Plaine and one in Iowa City.

Prof. Frank Edward Horack of the political science department, took his Ph.D. at the University of Iowa in 1897, and his M.A. in 1899. He has been a member of the faculty here since 1915, and is the author of several books.

His son, Prof. Frank Edward Horack Jr., born in Iowa City, obtained his A.B. degree at the university in 1926. A Phi Beta Kappa, he has been a professor of law at the University of Indiana since 1935.

From 1939 to 1942, he was adviser to the General Counsel Federal Security agency, and is the author of several volumes on law. His present home is in Bloomington, Ind.

The younger brother of Iowa's political scientist, Prof. Claude H. Horack went into the field of law. Born in Belle Plaine, he took his Ph.B. at Iowa, and taught law here from 1907 until 1930.

In 1930 he became professor of law at Duke university, and was made dean there in 1934. Also a Phi Beta Kappa, Prof. Claude Horack has taught at the University of Michigan, University of Wisconsin, Stanford university, and University of Southern California.

He is living in Durham, N. C. Professor Horack was president of the Iowa State Bar association from 1927 to 1928.

Omitted from the unofficial list of Who's Who Iowans published last week was Prof. Arthur Carleton Trowbridge, head of the geology department here since 1934.

Professor Trowbridge has been director and state geologist for the Iowa Geological Survey since 1934, and editor-in-chief of the Ninth Annual Field Conference

University Professor Author of Article On Language Habits

"Studies in Language Behavior," a volume containing three doctoral dissertations and an introductory article by Prof. Wendell Johnson, director of the psychological and speech clinic, has recently been published in "Psychological Monographs." This publication of the American Psychological association is No. 24 of the series; University of Iowa Studies in Psychology" and is edited by Professor Johnson.

New measures of language behavior and their possible uses in a proposed series of investigations are discussed in the introductory article entitled "A Program of Research," by Professor Johnson. It describes the language development and relations of various kinds of language disorder to environmental and personality factors.

The doctoral dissertations are by Mrs. Helen Fairbanks, Mrs. Mary Bachman Mann, and John W. Chotlos, who recently received the Ph.D. degree in the department of psychology at the university.

The studies by Mrs. Fairbanks and Mrs. Mann deal with certain measurable differences between the spoken and written language of normal university students and in contrast, the patients in mental hospitals. The study by Chotlos involved a detailed analysis of the written language of Iowa school children.

Other studies in this program of research have been completed by Mrs. Vernice Van Duzer and Curtis Tuthill, who is now on duty with the United States navy.

Browns Down White Sox

5 to 3 Victory For St. Louis

Ninth Inning Collision Turned Into Winning Rally for Three Runs

CHICAGO (AP)—The league-leading St. Louis Browns turned a Chicago White Sox fielding collision into a ninth inning rally that netted three runs and a 5 to 3 victory yesterday.

Wally Moses, veteran Chicago right fielder, crashed into second baseman Roy Schalk just as Schalk was catching pinch hitter Ellie Clary's pop-fly at the start of the ninth frame. The Browns added singles by Mike Kreevich, George McQuinn and Mark Christman, to give pitcher Jack Kramer his eighth victory.

Clary, who pulled up at second as his pop fly squirted off Schalk's glove into right field, was trapped on Don Gutteridge's bunt. Gutteridge scored the tying run as hits by Kreevich and McQuinn drove Ed Lopat to the showers. Gordon Maltzberger, ace relief hurler, got Vern Stephens on a foul and walked pinch hitter Gene Moore to fill the bases. Then Christian singled in the marginal runs.

George Caster shut out the Chicagoans in the ninth, although Trosky got a pinch double in his first appearance since injuring his side May 26.

Manager Jim Dykes of the White Sox watched most of the game from the left field boxes after being banished by umpire Cal Hubbard between halves of the second inning for his remarks from the bench.

Chuck Evans at 53 Plans Tourney Play; Has Toured Edgewater Course 5,000 Times

CHICAGO (AP)—Sunburned Chick Evans, still boyish-looking at 53, has played 5,000 rounds at the Edgewater golf club in preparation for the Chicago Victory National championship there June 28-July 2.

"I guess you could call 'em practice rounds," winked the original boy wonder of golf. "I'm about the oldest Edgewater member and in the last 33 years I've played some 90,000 holes of golf on the course—just waiting, you might say, for a big tournament like the Victory National to come to Edgewater."

Evans holds the course record of 64—six under par—and is such a familiar figure on the links the traps don't bother to yawn when he passes.

"But I'm not kidding myself about winning the title," he grinned. "Craig Wood, Jug McSpaden, Sammy Byrd and Byron Nelson—those are just some of the fellows this old man will be up against. A 72-hole score of 272 should win. My ambition is just to shoot a 70, which would be the lowest single round score made in a major tournament by a 50-year-old."

Evans—the terror of the links from 1909-1925 during a career climaxed by winning both the national open and amateur in 1916—got his start by breaking his leg.

"I came up from the caddy ranks at the old Edgewater course which now is an apartment house district," he recalled. "One day I broke my leg playing football. I just stayed around the golf course and sort of convalesced while the other kids were in school. By the time summer came in 1903 I was the best golfer in the caddy ranks. Yep, that broken leg gave me my chance."

In 1907 Evans won the Chicago city title and two years later he captured the first of his eight western amateur crowns.

"Haven't won a major tournament in about 20 years," he said, "but I've been knocking at the door many times."

The door may squeak open for the "grand old man of golf" this time.

Sports Trail . . .

By WHITNEY MARTIN NEW YORK (AP)—"Hit it with your practice swing," Sonny Fraser kept saying, and we obediently would step up to the ball, immediately get tighter than New Year's eve, and with a tremendous slugging effort send the ball jack-rabbiting down the fairway a good 50 yards.

Which is neither here nor there except that it shows what kind of a guy this James E. (Sonny) Fraser is. Here was the best amateur golfer we ever saw (we never saw Bobby Jones) and the longest hitter, pro or amateur, playing the Atlantic City country club course with a 120 shooter and patiently trying to iron out the pretzels in his swing. A hopeless job, we might add.

Our colleague, Tom (Pap) Paprocki, had been dining the name of Sonny Fraser into our ears for two or three years. Pappy is quite a chunk of man himself. He has wrists and forearms like truck axles, and we didn't think anyone hit a golf ball farther than he does.

"Phooey," he would say when we'd "ooh" and "aah" at his clouts, wait until you see Sonny. He'll outdrive me 30-40 yards."

Well, we saw Sonny last weekend, and Pappy will have to get down off that pedestal. We've got a new hero.

Sonny, playing casually and running over to coach us on every shot, was one under par for the nine holes we played with him, and we saw him make shots we still don't believe. Usually it was his distance and accuracy that amazed, but we saw him come out of a waist-deep bullrush swamp to the green, a good 175 yards away. In other words, he has other shots to go along with his block-busting tee shots.

We can't exaggerate those tee shots. Playing with Sam Sneed over the Seaview course at Atlantic City before the P. G. A. tournament there Sonny outdrove Sneed from 20 to 30 yards consistently.

He played in a foursome immediately behind Jimmy Thomson in a pro-amateur at the Atlantic City country club in 1940, and Whitey Grubler, sports editor of the Atlantic City press-union, out of curiosity and to base sure his local pride was not baseless, marked Thomson's tee shots then waited to see how Sonny's compared with those of the slugging pro.

Eliminating the par 3's, on 13 holes Fraser was ahead on eight, three were about even, and Thomson was ahead on two.

When Sonny was five years old he shot 120 to beat President Warren G. Harding, and at 13 he tied the A. C. country club course record, held jointly by his dad and Walter Hagen, with 69. He refused to better that mark, because it was his father's best effort, until someone else did. Then he went to work on it. He made it twice in 60, really something for a course more than 6,000 yards long.

Why isn't he national champion, you might ask. Well, he plays golf just for the fun of it and doesn't care to leave his own section. It would be fun to shoot 60's, at that.

Pirates Tilt Cincy, 3-2 in Five Frames

CINCINNATI (AP)—Three doubles in the fourth inning helped account for three runs yesterday as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Cincinnati, 3 to 2, in a game stopped by rain and hail after five innings.

The doubles were contributed by Johnny Barrett, Frank Coleman and Al Lopez. These plus an infield fly and a walk to Frankie Gustine gave the Pirates all their runs to edge out first frame Red scoring manufactured on two singles, a fielder's choice and miscues by Lee Handley and Barrett.

Ray Starr, waived from the Reds two weeks ago, yielded one other hit, a fourth-inning triple to Ray Mueller, in winning against his old teammates, while Ed Heusser parceled out a total of five.

Braves-Phils Split Double Bill, 8-7, 2-1

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Soaping out of a five-game losing streak, the Phillies defeated the Boston Braves 8 to 7 in the night-cap of a doubleheader here yesterday, after dropping the opener 2 to 1.

Jim Tobin outpitched Ken Raffensberger in the first game, protecting a lead given him in the third inning, when singles by Tommy Holmes, Damon Phillips and Butch Nieman, followed by a double play, accounted for both Boston runs.

In the second game, the Phils lashed Nate Andrews and Ben Cardoni for 13 hits, including Ron Northey's eighth home run of the year. Luke Lupien collected a pair of triples and a single.

Chet Ross homered off Al Gerheuser in the seventh with two aboard, and the Braves almost tied it up with two more runs in the ninth.

Two Fraternities Resume Operations

Council Gives Consent For Re-Opening Under New Method

Two fraternity houses, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Kappa Psi have been authorized to operate for the remainder of the summer under the new method of fraternity operation, with only affiliates using the house facilities, according to an announcement made by C. Woody Thompson, director of the office of student affairs.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Kappa Psi, the two houses now in operation have been activated by the fraternity council. Theta Xi has applied and received permission to have the house occupied as a residence with the former house mother serving as house manager. The other 13 fraternities normally in operation are closed. Further plans will be reviewed in August for new plans and housing provision in fraternity quarters.

This fraternity house occupancy is the first step taken following the decision of the Special Committee on University Fraternity Relations to set up fraternity regulations under which the chapter houses are permitted to continue operations or re-open. This program was set up in April of this year with certain agreements specified.

In the program drawn up it was decided that the fraternity living groups and their houses would be recognized as an essential part of the housing facilities of the university and as an "integral part of the university academic and social life."

The fraternity living quarters were also to be publicized by university publications in the same manner as dormitories and other housing units.

Another decision of the sub-committee was in regard to the administration of student aid, including tuition exemptions, scholarships, loan funds and university employment without regard to affiliation with any student organization. This will alleviate all financial barriers and no penalties will be made upon men breaking housing contracts in order to become affiliated.

Army units used the fraternity houses up to the month of June when the residences were turned over to the fraternities for their use from June until August when further plans will be received.

Servicemen Collection of Pictures, Souvenirs

Hundreds of persons passing the window of the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric company on Washington street have stopped to scan the pictures of Johnson county service men representing every branch of the armed forces.

Almost 800 pictures have appeared in the window since the collection was inaugurated 18 months ago by George Sheets of the Gas and Electric company.

The photographs are of men in every branch of the service including paratroopers who have participated in the invasion of Europe; marines, navy, army and air corps members.

Many of the pictures are of men in the local National Guard who have been overseas and in combat for many months.

Almost every day a new picture is placed in the gallery at the front of the window. No distinction is made as to rank and newest pictures are placed on the front easel.

In a single glance at the contents of the display one can see all types of backgrounds suggesting the many battle fronts represented.

There are backgrounds of palm trees, icebergs, airplanes, ships and one photo is of a cavalry member on horseback. Among the picture identifications which also appear in the window are listed the following locations: Iceland, South Seas, Carolines, Gilberts, Ireland, North Africa, Near East, India, Italy, Pearl Harbor and many others.

The Purple Heart has been awarded to several of the men pictured in the window and one photo is accompanied with a list of 17 battles.

New Hearing Testing Method Described To Medical Men

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS CHICAGO—A new method of testing hearing, in which words spoken by human beings are substituted for tones made by machines, was described to the American Medical Association yesterday.

The spoken words catch hearing troubles which the best instruments missed. The words make it possible to write better prescriptions for hearing aids.

The word method was developed independently by military forces and by the Acousticon Research laboratory, New York City, which is demonstrating the test here and offering physicians a service designed to enable any doctor to tell his patient more precisely what may be wrong with his hearing.

The military forces found that the standard instrument test failed to measure a selectee's hearing properly in many cases. The words were substituted.

In instrument tests a person listens to a series of pure tones, running from low pitch to high, which are just barely loud enough to be heard. This shows frequently that he hears some tones much better than others, usually low better than high.

For years it was thought this test also showed what a person could hear in human speech. The scientists, both military and civilian, now say this is not correct. Each human spoken word is a mixture of tones of score of different pitches.

The human word is further complicated by the fact that a sound like "aw" is intrinsically 700 times louder than "ess."

The first result is that some words, no matter who speaks them, are low pitched, some medium, and some high. The new test

Presidential Politics Boom to Crescendo

CIO's Sidney Hillman Defends Labor's Right To Endorse Aspirants

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Presidential politics boomed to crescendo yesterday as the approach of the national nominating conventions built up pressure in every partisan camp.

For variety and degree of heat in the give and take, the day perhaps exceeded any similar period in weeks.

As a starter, the senate's preliminary inquiry into the CIO political action committee heard an assertion by Chairman Sidney Hillman that his group is violating no federal law in working for President Roosevelt's renomination, but will have to curtail some of its work after the presidential candidates are selected.

Hillman Defends Right
Hillman argued existing law does not ban labor organizations from endorsing candidates in primaries or prospects for the presidential nominations.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) contended the organization "clearly has violated" the corrupt practices act.

In the senate itself there was a lively exchange during which Senator Hatch (D-N M) declared Mr. Roosevelt probably would be willing to retire if that would bring unity on peace aims, but the Democratic party would not let him "make that sacrifice."

Hatch made the statement in reply to a demand by Senator Bridges (R-N H) for information on where the president and Democratic party stand on foreign policy.

When Hatch asserted that Republicans have a past record of repudiating proposals for an association of nations, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) jumped up to denounce what he called the injection of partisanship into the "utterly desperate question of foreign policy." He said there is no less devotion to peace ideals among Republicans than among Democrats.

Records Willkie Articles
The New Mexico Democrat, implying that others should make their views known, inserted in the Congressional Record the first two of Wendell Willkie's series of articles on Republican platform suggestions (favoring a strong central government which will "properly administer" its power, and anti-poll tax and anti-lynching laws).

In a third article published today, Willkie advocated expansion of social security laws.

Supporters of Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio hailed an announcement by Dr. John Koehler, elected a Wisconsin delegate-at-large, pledged to General MacArthur, that he would vote for Bricker at the Republican national convention.

Roy D. Moore, chairman of the Bricker-for-president campaign committee, said "We think there are a good many delegates not now pledged to anyone who will vote at the convention for Governor Bricker."

Indiana Controversy
In Indiana there was an aftermath of the recent state Republican convention controversy over whether the delegates knew what the question was when they voted against instructing for Gov.

Air Corps Nurse Returns to Evacuation Duty With American Soldiers in Invasion Area

Today an army air corps nurse is winging toward New York, toward England and then to France to assist in the air evacuation of allied soldiers wounded in the invasion. She is Lieut. Retha Opal Rodgers who visited friends in Iowa City yesterday.

Lieut. Retha Opal Rodgers

Upon her arrival in England she will don a flying jacket and slacks, and board an army plane to fly to the established air strips in France where wounded men will be carried aboard. On the plane, which resembles a small hospital ward, she will dress wounds and care for the soldiers in their trip across the English channel to a base hospital. This is the work she has been doing for a year and a half in the Tunisian, Sicilian and Salerno campaigns.

She was a member of the first air evacuation transport squadron to begin overseas duty. She was among the first nurses to land in Africa, Sicily and Italy. The first nurses to land on the newly built allied airstrip in France were those she had trained in England during the pre-invasion days.

Accompanied Wounded
Lieutenant Rodgers returned to this country in a plane full of wounded soldiers from the European.

Her three campaign starts represent days of air evacuation work amidst the flak of anti-aircraft barrage and the fire of enemy planes; weeks of living in a tent with 22 nurses on the African desert; months of washing in a helmet and using one quart of water a day for all her needs.

Lieutenant Rodgers described the landing on the Salerno beachhead in an air raid as her most harrowing experience. She has

Thomas E. Dewey for the presidential nomination.

A secret ballot taken at a meeting of the delegation was made known by Ralph W. Gates, former GOP state chairman. It showed, Gates said, that 26 of the 29 delegates to the national convention expressed a preference for Dewey.

The ballot was not binding, however, since the state convention rejected a motion to instruct the delegates June 2.

Robert W. Lyons, Indianapolis lawyer and a Dewey supporter, resigned as Indiana national committeeman because, he said, of criticism over his reported former connection with the Ku Klux Klan.

made many trips under constant enemy fire. Fighter escorts accompanied their planes to the front lines, but despite continual danger the group of 25 nurses suffered not a single loss.

"And we've lost only one patient," Lieutenant Rodgers added.

Presented to King
Last summer she was one of four nurses presented to the king of England while he was reviewing British troops at a camp in Africa.

"He intensely interested in air evacuation," she remarked, "and he asked me many questions about our work."

King George, whom she called a "stickler for correct uniforms," asked her about her summer beige attire which she was wearing instead of army olive drab. A general jokingly explained to the king that the beige uniform represented 3,000 hours in the air.

By last Christmas her group had removed 50,000 patients from the front lines to base hospitals. For their work the nurses received a commendation from General Williams.

Lieutenant Rodgers was housed in General Eisenhower's headquarters while she was on detached service in Algiers caring for Gen. Follett Bradley, general inspector of the air corps.

'Treated Like Queens'
"From lieutenants to generals we were treated like queens," she remarked. She described teas which were held in the barracks where dressing tables were pushed together and covered with sheets instead of tablecloths. To give the barracks an air of festivity helmets filled with flowers were used as centerpieces.

Until December, 1942, when she joined the nurse corps, Lieutenant Rodgers was supervisor of the ear, nose and throat clinic under Dr. Dean M. Lierle. After three months of instruction at Bowman field, Ky., with the first group of air evacuation trainees, she left for Africa.

She is a graduate of the university's school of nursing.

Democrats Lose House Majority Held for 13 Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time in 13 years, the Democrats lost yesterday an actual majority of the house membership, with the election of a Republican in the 19th Illinois district.

The new house lineup became 216 Democrats, 212 Republicans and 4 minor party members. Thus, the Democrats have exactly half the membership, their numbers equalling the Republicans and minor party members combined. There are three vacancies.

However, Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr. of Massachusetts, said "We have no intention, at this time of trying to reorganize the house." But he added: "The trend is still toward the Republican party."

Missouri River Levees Out

Flood Repair Funds Asked of Legislative Interim Committee

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Prisoners of war from the Clarinda camp were summoned by Missouri river district engineers last night to hold bolster levees along the Missouri river, which breached five embankments between Omaha and Hamburg, Iowa, in the past 24 hours.

Brig. Gen. R. C. Crawford, division engineer and Lieut. Col. D. B. Freeman, Omaha district engineer, asked for the prisoner of war help after an inspection trip up the river from Nebraska City.

"The Payne-Givens levee, protecting Hamburg, failed in several places today—a definite threat that Hamburg would be flooded," the engineers said.

Other Levees Out
Other levee failures included: the Folsom levee, five and one-half miles above Pacific Junction; the McCartney levee, near Pacific Junction; the nine-mile levee on the Iowa side of the river above Nebraska City, Neb., and the levee south of Bartlett.

Townpeople from Bartlett managed to close the breach in their levee with the assistance of army engineers, but water was still pouring through the others last night. The McCartney levee, the first to fail, went out Monday.

Meanwhile, United States Meteorologist M. V. Robbins said in Omaha Tuesday night that the Kansas City weather bureau has predicted "one of the worst floods in recent years" along the Missouri between Nebraska City, Neb., and St. Joseph, Mo.

State Funds Requested
At Des Moines the legislative interim committee yesterday received a request from the state conservation commission for funds with which to repair recent flood damage at various state parks and recreation areas.

F. T. Schwob, state conservation director, estimated the $29,255 would be needed to clear away debris left by flood waters and repair roads, bridges, dams and spillways.

Repair work already has begun where it was necessary to act quickly to avert still further damage, Schwob explained.

He reported that the commission has about $3,200 available for this work, and asked the legislative committee to supply the remainder needed. The committee took the request under advisement, but indicated it would give an answer before it adjourns today.

Three Institutions Named
The board of control asked for a total of $26,685 for repairs and replacements at three institutions. The proposed projects include a new roof for one building and a calf barn, at the state school at Woodward; re-building a generator and an incinerator at the Oakdale sanitarium; and replacement of a water softener and hot water facilities at the Cherokee state hospital. This request also was taken under advisement.

City, state geologist, told the committee that damage to stream gauging stations in the recent floods amounted to $1,975.

Proposals approved at yesterday's meeting were for an additional boiler inspector for the state department of labor, and for a home teacher and a field consultant and medical social worker for the commission for the blind.

The committee allowed $4,575 to the state bureau of labor to pay salary and expenses of an additional boiler inspector; $3,000 to the commission for the blind for a home teacher, and $4,200 for a field consultant.

The first call came at 2:15 p. m. from Mrs. Frances Cilex, 127 N. Dodge and second was at 5 p. m. from John Novak, 1015 N. Dodge.

Both were mattress fires which were extinguished immediately and caused little damage.
