Professor Clapp on the Air—

This writer first became acquainted with Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp through his radio broadcasts over WSUI. Unfortunately, the acquaintance has not grown any closer. But the point we wish to make is not thereby affected.

We were interested in Professor Clapp, not so much at first for the music he was teaching, as for his personality on the air. We remember clearly some of the things he said almost ten years ago. For example, "The name of this one of the Album Leaves can be translated either 'The Dance of the Elves' or 'The Dance of the Elephants.' The way many young ladies play it, you might think the latter is the correct translation." And again: "I've put some comments on your papers. Now I hope you'll take those comments—not as abuse—but as help!"

We were always thrilled with the fine playing with which Professor Clapp illustrated his lectures, and thrilled, too, with the enthusiastic applause that his classes gave when he had finished at the keyboard—clapping that we always imagined was a pleasant pun on the musician's name.

It was fortunate for us that Philip Greeley Clapp is so charming a radio personality, for we learned a lot by listening to his broadcasts. There is a big field in instruction by radio; and all who try it may well take a page from Professor Clapp's book.

Interpreting the War News—

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Masive American armor in Normandy, teaming up with better weather and a stunning preliminary bombing by air comrades, has driven a significant dent in German defense lines west and southwest of St. Lo.

As disclosed by early unofficial advices, an initial dent four miles deep and two-and-a-half miles wide was achieved at a point supremely critical for the foe. Nazi failure to halt or contain the drive promptly must inevitably force an enemy retreat on a wide front to escape looming entrapment.

Press advices said that the St. Lo-Coutances highway had been reached in the first rush, one important village taken and another, Marigny, entered by tank-riding American doughboys. That places the scene of action just west and slightly south of St. Lo and within close striking distance of an important rail lateral, the Coutances-Torigny line between the Vire and the Seine rivers.

The thrust, obviously endangers the whole defense triangle to the west, apexing at Lessay and protected by an ocean inlet from the coast. American forces have encountered hard going on that end of the line to prevent complete conquest of the Cherbourg peninsula and furnish elbow room for larger scale maneuvers.

The new dent in the German front west of St. Lo is a grave flanking threat to that Nazi triangle. Pushed on southward beyond the St. Lo-Coutances highway and the railroad beyond it, or turned southwestward in the flatter country suitable for armored operations south of Coutances, the drive would certainly unhinge the whole German left of

With the AEF in Italy—

By KENNETH L. DIXON

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY. July 16 (Delayed) (AP)—It has been more than six months since Pfc. Dahas D. Prather of Princeton, Ill., was killed in action back at San Pietro in December, and now most of the boys in the old platoon have been wounded, gone home or joined Dahas in death.

Those still surviving and still in action were pretty pleased when they heard the other day that he had been awarded the distinguished flying cross posthumously. And little as they usually like to talk about such things, they told how Dahas died.

He was wounded there at San Pietro, but he saved the whole platoon in a crossfire and the battle-torn terraces and through the town. Finally it landed in a terrific concentration of mortar and small arms fire.

Rains Bring Ruin to Wheat

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—Heavy rains, which came just in time to save Kansas' huge corn crop from drought damage, are bringing ruin to much of a near-record wheat crop. Some of the wheat is piled on the ground because labor and box cars aren't available to get it to elevators, and some is still uncut in soaked fields.

Rains totalling from one to four inches have drenched the state

A 'New Trend' In Women Now Says Columnist

BY HELEN ESSARY
WASHINGTON—Some people say there's a "new trend" in women.

No, I'm not talking about a trend that points to stream lines. Nor waist lines. Nor even to those dotted lines that sometimes spring from the eyes of a purposeful female to light on her prey.

I am talking about a new trend in the personality of women. Some people say that the civilization-saving, career type of woman is going out of style. In her place, these prophets insist, there now comes softly into the eyesight and into the heart of the great American people, the home, or my-only-career-is-my-husband type of woman.

An interesting thesis and somewhat frightening, this. And I'm not prepared to deny or affirm its truth. But I do notice certain signs and portents that indicate women, up and coming women, had better be practicing up on feminine wiles if they want to continue to hold their "sphere of influence," whatever that overrated thing may be.

Among the signs and portents just hinted at are the women about to be brought into the political foreground. I refer of course to Mrs. Dewey and Mrs. Bricker.

Both these charming women are gentle, soft-voiced and so determinedly unopinionated that you wonder if they are speaking the truth when they say almost in unison: "I really haven't thought much about that matter. I leave such things to my husband."

The trouble about women is that when opinionated they are so terribly opinionated. They know all there is to know about all there is to know about.

When women first began to be smart in public, having got bored with that sanctified role of "the power behind the throne" they were a little grim to behold. They wore plain clothes and plain complexions, straight hair and spoke the truth when it wasn't at all necessary. They behaved this way because they thought, poor dumb things, that men would respect them more.

They gave up guile and double-dealing and other accomplishments by which they had been earning their bed and board since the days when the first ameba set up joint housekeeping with the second ameba in a prehistoric mud bank.

When you think how women have labored in order to have men "respect them more" you weep over the poor things' shortsightedness. But we won't go into that problem now. Later, career women took it in their stride.

We'll get back quickly to the new trend in women. And to women's rights era in fair womanhood. Some people say that era having run its meandering, devastating way through the two generations since the suffrage crusaders got themselves locked into jail, has now come a headlong cropper in the White House.

Mrs. Roosevelt, the prophets add (I must confess that these prophets are largely Republican prophets), is going to mark the end of the career or publicly opinionated woman. The world, certainly the United States world, wants to rest its eyes and sooth its nerves on a self-effacing home body.

War is so elemental a pursuit that it brings the thoughts and ideals of human beings back to fundamentals. To home and family. The millions of men who have gone off to battle have little concern with opinions and rights. They want to get back to a home and a woman they love in the home.

The home body is due for a revival in popularity. This is the conviction of theorists who believe they can see the pendulum swinging the other way—the other way

War Loan in Iowa—

Nears Goal

DES MOINES (AP)—Iowa was within $7,100,000 of its $74,000,000 series E bond goal, according to federal reserve bank reports through Tuesday, with four more days left to make the state quota.

Sales registered Tuesday totaled only $700,000, bringing the state up to 90 percent of its quota.

State officials said that was far under sales of the Fourth war loan campaign, in which Iowa made 124 percent of its goal, selling $82,075,000 worth of series E bonds.

Thirty-nine counties were reported over the top on the E bond quota, with 13 in the 90 percent quota bracket and 17 in the 80 percent quota bracket.

Farm Real Estate Purchasers Warned Of New Land Boom

WASHINGTON (AP)—Concerned over a new land boom, the agriculture department raised a cautioning hand yesterday to prospective purchasers of farm real estate.

Would-be buyers were told in a report on current developments in the farm real estate market, that they should realize that the present period of favorable prices and ready markets for agricultural products—prime factors in the land market—may be drawing to a close.

In many areas, the report said, farm values have advanced far beyond averages likely to be maintained if prices of farm commodities return to pre-war levels.

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard on several occasions has warned that the present situation corresponds in many ways to the runaway land market of World War I, which was followed by a collapse in land values and ruin for many who had bought at inflated prices.

Reflecting favorable commodity prices, the volume of farm land sales during the 12 months ended in March was up 20 percent from the previous year and was the highest of record. Values for the country as a whole increased three percent between March and July this year. They now stand at 42

No. 2 Nazi—

Himmler, the Smiling Killer- Deputy Fuehrer

Flat, florid Hermann Goering, once proclaimed by Adolf Hitler, as his successor, has been pushed into the back seat by a mild-appearing man who, 20 years ago, was too unimportant for the police to arrest when he seized Hitler in the famed Munich beer hall putsch.

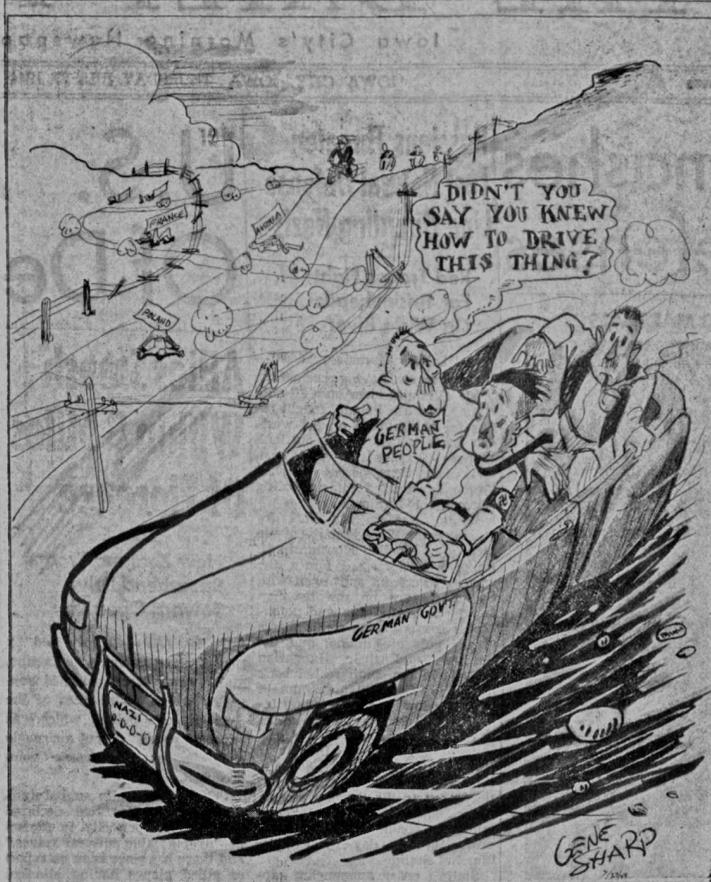

This new deputy fuehrer is Heinrich Himmler, rushed into command of Germany's home forces in Hitler's reply to a purported plot within army ranks.

Himmler is cast in the true Nazi mold—even wearing a small mustache that is a respectful imitation of Hitler's own. He was born in Munich in 1900, the son of a Catholic schoolteacher. He was a great one to orate and at 15 his schoolmaster told him he should be a government minister, but his father said he was a "potential criminal."

Too young for active service in the last war, he heard Hitler in one of the Munich beer halls, immediately joined the party, and caught the attention of an important Hitler lieutenant, Gregor Strasser, who made him his secretary.

Strasser wrote of Himmler, "He's very ambitious, but I won't

Wife Works—

No Secret

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri, Democratic nominee for vice-president, said yesterday that "it is no secret" that his wife is on the senate payroll as a clerk in his office at $4,500 a year.

"She's a clerk in my office and does much of my clerical work," he said. "I need her there and that's the reason I've got her there. I never make a report or deliver a speech without her editing it."

"There's nothing secret about it."

His comment followed published reports that Mrs. Truman was on the payroll as a $4,500 a year clerk in his office.

Discontinue Production

DES MOINES (AP)—Phillip G. Brown, superintendent of the foam plastic division of the United States Rubber Co., which operates the Des Moines ordnance plant, announced yesterday that production of a special plastic would be discontinued at the plant Aug. 1.

Since the 1935-39 average, values have risen more than 60 percent in east south central states and approximately 50 percent in east north central, south Atlantic, mountain, and Pacific states. The smallest increase—about 20 percent—was reported for New England.

Still Some Iowa Vehicles Without $5 Tax Stamp

DES MOINES (AP)—Approximately 20 percent of Iowa's registered motor vehicles still lack the new, purple $5 federal tax stamp, a check of stamp sales showed yesterday.

Stamp sales reported by all post-offices in the state to the Des Moines postoffice as of July 25 totaled 536,364.

The registration division of the state motor vehicle department reported registrations to date as totaling 675,552. There were 578,230 passenger cars, 94,722 trucks and 2,600 motorcycles, all subject to the $5 federal tax.

A few thousand stamps have been sold through internal revenue collector offices, but no total figure yet was available.

August Heavy Truck, Bus Tire Allocation Cut 75,000 by OPA

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The August allocation of heavy truck and bus tires for civilian needs will be 60,000 casings as compared with the July quota of 135,000, the Office of Price Administration announced yesterday.

Despite an emergency situation reported by truck and bus operators, the War Production Board ordered the deep slash at a special session at which members agreed the army's requirements for heavy tires "must be met at all costs."

The board said the decision was necessary even though it "involves serious risks in the field of absolutely essential civilian transportation."

Bus and truck operators had advised their services might have to be curtailed unless they received more tires.

WPA said the supply is not expected to improve substantially in September.

Army officials stated, WPA reported, that any diversion of heavy require modification of military plans, "slow up American offensives and prolong the war."

The August quota is the smallest since the start of rationing. Allocations of the last four months have averaged 125,000 to 130,000 tires, while the office of defense transportation estimates that a minimum of 165,000 large-sized tires are needed each month of the current quarter to keep the present number of trucks and buses on the road.

OPA said it was advised by the office of the rubber director that the principal reasons for the shortage of tires were an acute shortage of skilled manpower in manufacturing plants and the military's sharply increased demand for large-sized airplane and truck tires.

WPA said it planned to call the tire manufacturing industry together at once to plan a boost in truck and bus tire production.

To meet the emergency situation, OPA authorized its district offices to form truck and bus tire rationing panels to pass on applications and issue ration certificates. It said this was necessary because the "total quota is too small for effective division" among the country's 5,500 local boards.

Under the plan, truck and bus operators will continue to apply for tires at their local boards which will turn over applications to the special panels.

Passenger car tire allocations for August remain at the 1,950,000 total announced earlier, the same number provided this month. The quota for smaller truck tires is reduced, but not so heavily as the allocation of large size casings. The August total is 280,000 compared with 375,000 for July.

American Red Cross To Send Christmas Boxes to Prisoners

Private orders for special Christmas packages for United States servicemen held prisoner in enemy countries cannot be accepted by the Johnson County Red Cross chapter, according to Mrs. Lorna Mathes, executive secretary.

The American Red Cross is preparing 10,000 special Christmas boxes for distribution to United States prisoners, but these are being paid for by the army and navy and none are available to fill special orders from relatives of prisoners.

Individuals who are next of kin of prisoners held in Europe, however, may mail Christmas gift parcels directly to those prisoners by using labels provided by the government, but these packages must be mailed immediately to insure their receipt by Christmas, because approximately three months are required for delivery.

Labels for such parcels are furnished by the United States provost marshal general's office to the next of kin as soon as the government is notified of a prisoner's name and the address of his internment camp. It is not necessary to request the labels, but they are provided only to next of kin.

Labels Provided One of these labels is provided each 60 days and they may be affixed to gift parcels for prisoners in Europe and not to prisoners of the Japanese, the local office explained. It was pointed out that Japan has not yet agreed to the transmittal of packages to persons it holds prisoner.

In addition to the 10,000 special Christmas boxes, the American Red Cross also is preparing 400,000 standard food packages for distribution to prisoners of war during the Christmas season. These will be decorated with Christmas motifs in red and green.

Standard food parcels contain lunch biscuits, cheese, chocolate, cigarettes, coffee concentrate, corned beef, dried fruit, liver paste, powdered milk, oleomargarine, orange concentrate, pork luncheon meat, salmon, soap and sugar. United States prisoners of war in Europe receive one standard food parcel each week. Contents are provided by the United States government, but packing, shipment, and distribution are the responsibility of the Red Cross.

Special Packages The special Christmas packages differ from the standard parcels in that they contain baked ham, fruit cake, fruit bars, jam, army spread, peanut butter, sugar coated and sweet chocolate, hard candy, candied nuts, and one game, in addition to cheese, coffee and cigarettes.

Gift packages for prisoners must weigh no more than 11 pounds and be no more than 18 inches in length and 42 inches in combined length and girth. The local office pointed out, "Perishable articles will not be accepted for mailing and fragile articles should not be included."

Suggested Items The following are suggested by the American Red Cross as items which would be appreciated by prisoners of war: toilet articles, soap, towels, wash cloths, tooth brushes, razors and blades, shaving mirrors, chewing gum, nail clippers, safety pins, pencils, pillow slips, sheets, socks, belts, shirts, underwear, handkerchiefs, small games, footballs, basketballs, dried fruits, vegetables and soups, bouillon cubes, malted milk tablets, and sugar. Foods must be securely wrapped in cellophane or cardboard containers. No more than one pound of sugar should be included and this should be in a strong paper bag or a cardboard box.

One of the most important things to keep in mind is the mailing date. At very latest, this must be before Oct. 15.

He will relate some of the background of the Japanese culture which is not generally publicized. The talk will present the various factors involved in family life, the economic system, religion, education, etc., which affect the Japanese soldier and cause him to behave as he does.

Boston Braves Take 9-2 Win In First of Doubleheader; Drop Nightcap, 8-5, to Reds

Blast Walters Out of Box In Opener

BOSTON, (AP)—After knocking Bucky Walters out of the box for a 9-2 victory, the Boston Braves dropped the nightcap by an 8-5 margin yesterday while splitting a double header with the Cincinnati Reds.

Red Barrett held the Reds to seven hits and only one earned run, the result of successive two-baggers by Max Marshall and Gee Walker in the first inning of the opener.

Walters was chased during the sixth inning, when the Braves set off a six-run scoring blast after collecting three tallies in the fifth.

Ira Hutchinson and Al Javery gave the Reds a total of 11 bases on balls in the second game but the Braves closed in determined fashion by driving over three runs with five hits in the ninth.

Tommy Holmes homered for the Braves in the third off Harry Gumbert, who went the full distance for the Reds.

GEORGE RUTENBAR, top, and George Yamor, bottom, will be serious losses to the Seahawk lineup when they face the La Tourette team of Peoria and the Ottumwa All-Stars this weekend. Rutenbar has already left the school and Yamor is scheduled to leave before the end of the week. U. S. Navy Photo

Rutenbar Leaves Navy Lineup as Team Faces Peoria, Ottumwa This Weekend

The Iowa Seahawks, who survived the test of two of the nation's ranking service nines last weekend, will go after their 22nd straight victory against La Tourette's in Peoria Saturday and Sunday will return here to face the Ottumwa All-Stars.

With George Rutenbar already gone and George Yamor scheduled to leave before this weekend, the ever-shifting lineup is due for another twist before the weekend games. Three reserves, who also have completed their course here and awaiting orders, are infielders Jay Cummins and John Powers and Catcher Bill Bates.

Seahawk coaches, down to their last two starting pitchers in Ed Weiland and Keith Simon, probably will be forced to send the one not assigned to the mound to center field to replace Rutenbar while the right field vacancy will be filled by one of several reserves.

Leading candidate is Hugh Hoy, a combination pitcher and outfielder who played for South Dakota but never has appeared in the Seahawk batting order. Other possibilities include relief Catchers Bob Smiley of Princeton and George Strommeyer of Texas A & M.

Pitching assignments call for Weiland to oppose the Peoria nine, previously whipped, 21 to 6, in a six-inning affair here, and Simon to face Ottumwa in the teams' first meeting. Although Simon was forced by the heat to retire from the mound at the end of six innings last Sunday, he transferred to the outfield where his hitting could be further utilized.

The 19-year-old Long Beach, Calif., youngster has continued to improve his batting until he rates the No. 1 spot in the averages with .438. Ned Harris ranks second with .429 but Bill Baker made the biggest climb over the weekend, moving from .214 to .304.

Probable batting order for Saturday, with Weiland alternating with Simon on Sunday: Lou Rouchelli, ss; Charley Heck, 3b; Harrie, lf; Baker, c; Carlos Radloff, 1b; Simon, cf; Don Yohe, 2b; Hoy, rf; Weiland, p.

Steagle Grid Combine Looking for Centers, Name to Fit Headlines

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers-Chicago Cardinals National football league entry is casting about for a couple of centers and a name that will fit into headlines, but otherwise the club figures it is pretty well set for next autumn's football grid.

"We've got enough good men for every position but center," Head Coach Walt Keisling said yesterday, "and with four men recently discharged by the army it looks like we're better off than we've been for a couple of years. But you can't tell what will happen."

Last year the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia combination—they picked up the name of "Steagles"—finished second in the eastern division of the league.

Out of 24 men on the roster to date, the Pittsburgh-Chicago combine has 12 men with professional grid experience, headed by Ted Doyle, ex-Nebraska tackle who has played in the big time for seven years.

"We'll play ten league games this year," Keisling said as he worked on details of the combine's camp which opens at Carroll college, Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 14.

"Three of them will be in Pittsburgh and two in Chicago. The rest will be on the road."

"But we still need centers. The only one we have signed so far is Al Wikits, formerly of Duquesne. He's had one year of professional experience."

"I don't know what we're going to call this team," said Keisling. "There doesn't seem to be any combination of Steelers-Cardinals that can be shortened enough to hit a headline."

Director Cites Plans For Post-War Fitness

Recreational needs for ex-servicemen after the war will be greatly emphasized. V. K. Brown, director of recreation for the Chicago park district, in his talk of "Post-War Planning and Recreation" yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the senate room of Old Capitol.

He said that he and his staff have sent pamphlets to servicemen asking them what type of recreation they will want after the war. The servicemen contacted are men who enjoyed Chicago parks in their childhood. He stated that the staff has been receiving a large number of answers from these men.

Servicemen will want to maintain the physical fitness they have attained in service by indulging in sports after the war Brown pointed out. There has been a rebellion of youth which indicates that youth wants a partnership status in recreation. During the war, planning will be done only tentatively, according to the recreational director. What the adult community can do to help the youth is to help them accomplish in recreation plans of ultimate importance he said.

He enumerated the recreational forces of the nation, such as the united service organization, and explained the way civilian recreational groups have cooperated with the war effort.

Following the talk, an informal discussion of the subject was held by a panel consisting of Prof. Gladys Scott of the physical education department, Prof. Margaret Mordy, instructor in the same department, and Prof. Arthur Wendler, of the department of physical education for men.

Ice Cream Production Will Be Cut Further

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Ice cream production will be cut still further Aug. 1. The war food administration announced yesterday that manufacturers will be limited to 65 percent of the milk solids used in the corresponding months of 1942.

During the past three months, quotas were 75 percent. This reduction reflects a seasonal decline in the output of milk. Ice cream made after Aug. 1 also will be less rich than that made during May, June and July. Maximum milk solids content of frozen dairy foods will be 22 percent compared with 24 during the May-July period.

Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp Honored at Anniversary Concert

Conductor Completes 25th Year With SUI Music Department

Prof. E. E. Harper Designs Special Program for Occasion

By GLORIA WEISER

Last night in Iowa Union, music was definitely put "in the hands of those who create it and those who enjoy it" as Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp led his orchestra in the concert commemorating his 25th year at the University of Iowa.

Special Program

As a tribute to the conductor, a special program was designed by Prof. E. E. Harper. A character line drawing of Professor Clapp was sketched on the blue cover by Prof. Philip Guston of the art department.

The booklet contained notes of the life and career of Professor Clapp, listing his many publications and compositions since 1908.

Notes by the conductor on his last night's concert were also included with comment on his own Symphony No. 5 in D Major which was composed at Berkeley, Calif., during the summer of 1926 with later revision from time to time. The present score as presented last night was completed in Iowa City in 1941.

Composition by Clapp

About his own composition, Professor Clapp writes, "Like most American composers, the composer of this symphony has waited longer for his first performance than Liszt and Shostakovich."

The complete personnel of the summer session symphony orchestra was listed in the program.

Professor Clapp became conductor in 1936 of the University Symphony orchestra and by 1938 had developed the orchestra to a point where a series of six symphony concerts were scheduled and performed annually.

Artist's Achievements

In the comments described in nine pages by Dr. E. E. Harper, the achievements of Professor Clapp are summed up in a quotation from "Music at Harvard" in which Prof. Walter Spalding wrote, "The orchestra (Harvard) showed marked improvement by reason of the ability and magnetic power of the conductor."

In the fall of 1919 Professor Clapp accepted the post of professor and head of the music department at the university and he has held the position continuously since.

Harper Speaks

During the concert intermission Prof. E. E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts, spoke over WSUI concerning the accomplishments of the artist and his music courses. The radio broadcasting course on the history and appreciation of music he referred to as "one of the best for teaching a love and appreciation for music." Concerts, song cycles, string and brass ensembles are a part of this course, brought to the students by a conductor who "sets music as an ideal to pursue."

The project's purpose is "to get to have a continuing experience in knowing good music performed by competent artists."

It is in this course that people are given the opportunity to hear good music and learn to love it and live it.

Liszt Symphony

The concert as presented by the 70 piece orchestra and its esteemed conductor was easy to digest. Had Liszt been among the 1,300 persons at the concert he would have been proud of the rendition of his Symphonic Poem "Die Ideale."

In 1857 Liszt selected to interpret musically Schiller's poem, "Die Ideale" (our ideals) for an unveiling of a monument. The poem laments life's disillusionment is easily followed throughout the various phases of gaiety, communion with nature and happiness, to aged weariness and to frustration and vain yearning.

The orchestra with conspicuously beautiful string passages gave the interpretation of the fire and enthusiasm of youth and the beauty of true friendship.

In his program comments, Professor Clapp points out the inability of Liszt to suffer as deeply as the poet for he completed his composition with the confident knowledge that everyone would be eventually reworded in heaven.

With musical clarity the symphony is simple to identify as it goes through the phases of happiness and sobriety.

Poet, Composer Differ

In disagreement with some of our opinions of life ending with serene and placid nothingness, Liszt provides a touch of smile to the poet's seeming negligence and tucks a footnote to the effect that doing one's best is actually the noblest possible realization of one's ideals.

The symphony thus concludes with a riotous but unexpected jubilation of brasses and kettledrums, tympany and cymbals in the "1857 world's record in triumph."

Kathryn Rose

Kathryn Rose, pianist, received well-deserved applause as she touched the final keys in Shostakovich's Concerto for piano and small orchestra. Her interpretation of the music so well defined by the Russian composer was alive and more than adequate in the entire concerto.

Few could resist the loveliness of the modern theme with counter-theme of piano and trumpet in the opening Allegretto movement and again in the concluding Allegro. The anticipated dissonance in some of the piano-trumpet obbligatos were enjoyable and to some of us a thrilling experience. In Soviet Russia, Shostakovich, although he was recognized as an outstanding musician was dismissed from official favor because his music was "bourgeois" rather than "proletarian." However, he triumphed because the public endorsed him as their musical spokesman.

Shostakovich Commendable
With the full combination of piano and violin, cello, and woodwinds, the concerto flourished in a harmonious race of full tones, decisive and precise. The Russians may well be commended for producing a Shostakovich.

Kathryn Rose assisted by Raymond Moses on the trumpet and the orchestra personnel provided a concerto for piano worth remembering.

Last night we were delighted to see, feel and listen to good music. With the effortless baton beat, Professor Clapp, the conductor and composer, directed his own delightful symphony to an effective concert close.

Symphony Themes

All themes of the symphony are presented in the short first movement whose style is that of a lyrical slow movement but with thematic sequence of the traditional sonata form in miniature.

The second movement further develops the theme in the "not too fast" movement which leads to the full lively finale in a climax of themes. This movement is the longest and most elaborate with quick, lively and decidedly

Analysis of Prussia Planned for Discussion

This week's geography round table will be held today in room 309 University hall at 3:10 with two topics under discussion.

The first is on East Prussia, a geographic analysis designed to illustrate the way in which modern geography may be used to study affairs of current interest.

The second subject covers classroom equipment with a survey and exhibit of available material for use in the classroom under discussion.

Killed in Crash

Enns Robert C. Gray, husband of the former Mae Schaefer of Iowa City, was killed in an airplane crash Monday, it was learned here.

He was stationed at a navy base in Columbus, Ohio, but it is not known where the crash occurred.

His wife, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Schaefer, 731 E. Burlington street, arrived in Iowa City last night.

They were married in Iowa City last November. Ensign Gray entered the service Dec. 24, 1942.

When you peel a potato you throw away from one-tenth to one-fourth of its bulk, including valuable minerals and vitamins.

the most pleasing with an energetic bit of cornet tonguing and clever drum beat that concluded one of the finest examples of musical compositions. While listening to the composer who felt the music he watched on the rostrum before him was exciting in itself.

Resounding Applause

The music master returned through the resounding applause four times and finally spoke to the audience regarding the anniversary concert and his gratitude.

"Tonight," he said, "is also the 70th anniversary of Koussevitzky of the Boston Symphony orchestra. 'It is a great thing to grow up with so beautiful an orchestra,' he stated, 'but we were spoiled.'"

He recalled that at Harvard music was for "gentlemen and scholars" and he cited the strange occupations his classmates engaged in so as to hire foreign musicians to make music from "the other side of the tracks if not from the ocean."

Make Music Yourself

To make music yourself is the ideal of Professor Clapp. He explained how he began teaching in a building on Clinton street and in 1919 moved to one equipped with a filing cabinet and piano which to him was evidence of distinct possibilities of progress.

"Make music and live it," the conductor urged. He concluded, "I hope this feeling will go on and on, so that people will be more and more interested in this great source of happiness—music."

Who were privileged to hear the results of his 25 years of producing happiness among us say, "Well done, Professor Clapp. Thank you—for music."

AT HOME WITH MRS. EVERETT PLASS

"People know the Plass's by their magnolia trees," smiled Mrs. Everett Plass as we followed her past the side porch of their home at 407 Melrose avenue.

As evidence for her statement, she pointed out the two towering magnolia trees growing beside the walk leading to their garden.

"These trees are over 30 years old," Mrs. Plass explained, "and are among the few in Iowa City. When we first planted them, they demanded careful tending in order to survive, now we do nothing more than hoe and fertilize the ground around the roots."

The lovely white blossoms of these rare trees appear before they leaf in spring, and the buds for next year are now forming.

"Sometimes we have blossoms, leaves, buds, seeds and pods all at the same time, which makes a very unusual sight," our hostess declared.

"We call our backyard garden our 'outdoor living room,'" she remarked as we continued around the side of the house.

"When we bought our home this wide slope presented a real challenge in landscaping. It took careful study and planning, but we've developed it into a garden spot that we can really enjoy from day to day."

The grounds have indeed become a secluded outdoor living room, its boundaries bordered by bushes and trees which provide a natural and informal sheltered effect.

The main feature of the Plass garden is the succession of bloom. It begins with the first budding narcissus and brightly colored tulips planted in the borders, with a background of early lilacs. Next come the spectacular mass of the pink and white provided by the abundance of peonies, then the roses, blending beautifully with the late lilacs. Last of all bloom the honeysuckle, crab tree and fern leaf sumac, which now, with the variety of phlox, are making a display of late summer color.

The upper terrace is highlighted by a large tree around which a wooden seat has been constructed. From here one can sit and view the sloping garden, which is built almost in a circle. On the right, high bush cranberry, flora plum and white spirea form a background for the iris and tulip beds. Centering the far end is a circle of peonies and mixed flowers surrounding the tall crab tree with its bright red berries now making a colorful spectacle. Behind this, Mrs. Plass has planted a small herb garden, containing mint, sage and marjoram.

At the head of the garden, is the rock garden and pool, a really unusual corner. Two small pools on two terraces top the large pool down in a natural water fall.

"The rocks are fossilized stones from Turkey creek not far from Iowa City," Mrs. Plass commented. "Those are lilacs and evergreen banking the pool and the tall tree spreading over the whole corner is a pecan tree."

A carpet of blue, yellow and violet on the slopes surrounding the pool is formed by the Mysola flora, a forget-me-not variety, and yellow allysium. Squirrels and many species of birds have made this their habitat.

A rose arbor across the garden on the left leads to the Plass victory gardens, for flowers are not their only project. These victory gardens are 40 by 60 feet and contain vegetables such as potatoes, tomatoes, corn, celery and even soy beans. The results of the second and third plantings are now in evidence and Mrs. Plass said that they raise enough each year to completely provide for their family of four.

"Our daughters, Ruth and Betty, experimented with everything from strawberries to peanuts here when they were children, and our son, Bill, who is now a private with a forestry unit in Burma, went into that branch of the service as a result of his experiments in our flower and victory garden."

"Since Bill has been stationed in Burma," Mrs. Plass continued as we started back to the house, "my interest in traveling has again been aroused. We've covered a good deal of the United States and also were in Albania with the Red Cross after the first World war."

From their trip to Albania, Mrs. Plass has a number of unusual pieces which she consented to show us as we entered their cool, comfortable living room. Included in this collection are two very small silver filigree salt spoons, the spoons parts of which are formed by pieces of Albanian money about the size of a dime. These portray the king's head and are labeled "50 Hapa." Other souvenirs are the colorful handwoven Albanian prayer rug, the hammered copper platter with each tiny piece welded together to form a primitive design, and the metal candlesticks shaped in the form of Indian cobras.

Beside the fireplace is their favorite piece, a handmade brass hammered woodbox about 2 by 2 1/2 feet, which originally came from France. The lid pictures a typical little village, the front, a scene from the ancient crusades. A scene outside a French peasant hut is depicted on one side, and a family group in a kitchen forms the design on the other side.

Lovely original paintings, souvenirs of their other travels, complete the effect of the Plass indoor home, which is indeed as attractive as their lovely garden, their "outdoor living room."

Keeper of the Keys—

Foreman Completes 40 Years at SUI

By GLORIA WEISER Daily Iowan Campus Editor

One of the few men to begin a job at the top, Ernest L. Bright, officially known as the steep foreman of the university physical plant, began 40 years ago emptying wastebaskets in Old Capitol and has remained an employee of the university since that time.

Forty years ago last week he emptied the waste baskets in the room which is now the senate chamber of Old Capitol when George E. MacLean was president of the university. He recalls now what a job it was to pick the papers off the ceiling of that room which was the law library where aspiring lawyers tossed papers equipped with a silver dollar and a pin. On another occasion he earned 25 cents rescuing a silver dollar from a place high on the law building ledge.

Few Buildings

"Buildings were few then" (1904) he said, "the geology building was located where Macbride hall is now, and it was moved to its present site without marring one single brick," he marvelled.

His job consisted of aiding his father who was then head janitor, filling out university bulletins and sending copies from the basement of Old Capitol. West of Old Capitol at that time there stood a building where the board of regents comparable to the present board of education, met.

"I was tickled stiff to clean their room," he ejaculated, "the men always left cigar bands and I was collecting them." Even now he makes strange cigar band additions to his collection, started by the board of regents.

Building Changes

Now situated in the old dental building he remembers it when it was the new dental building with the corner observation rooms and drive and later its conversion to a University high school.

Mr. Bright might be called "keeper of the keys" for in his possession in the vault which formerly housed the gold used by the college of dentistry, are all university keys—ones designed for each door in the university buildings. Each of the keys is numbered, hangs on a hook in magazine order and the collection for each building is closeted in the vault. There you can locate Currier hall, room E. 117 without any difficulty or the basement laboratory of the chemistry building, the River room of Iowa Union, tenant property or any room in the buildings of the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school. The services of Mr. Bright's brother who is now handling the keys are invaluable. Upon paying 50 cents, a key is made here and a card representing that key is filed in the vault. The keys are made here and there has been little difficulty getting blanks, he stated.

Window Shades

In addition to this job, Bright and his men take care of ordering and fitting all window shades for the university. This number totals 5,000, as there are 2,000 for the University hospital alone. The rods are sent and sized down to fit any window. A sewing machine and vari-colored thread are facilities in the foreman's office.

There are few dances, parties, lectures and concerts for which Mr. Bright is not partially responsible.

"If you want a dance in the Union I'd take care of it for you," he said jesting. "A concert, party or picture unveiling, the chairs that are set up, the desks moved—that's my job."

A requisition comes to his office from the individual desiring the set-up having been granted a permit by a department head.

Bright's Busy Day

He looks on the day of the Jesus memorial Convocation as one of the hardest, for in addition to the 946 chairs set up for the service, the peace officers were holding meetings in the River room which had to be cleared out to prepare for the dance to be held that night, and 250 chairs had to be set on the west lawn of Old Capitol for the final summer session lecture.

"With the man power shortage that was a real job," he sighed, recalling with envy the days when 15 students helped with the jobs of the physical plant. He regrets the necessity of stealing from one crew to man a second.

The number of chairs set by Bright and crew probably could not be estimated and the weight hauled for each event is difficult to calculate.

In 1922, 1,200 chairs were set for a famed singer. Each chair weighs 12 pounds and a man carries four chairs each trip.

The battalion dances on Saturday night are also a part of his jurisdiction and seeing parties "set up and taken down" is just every-day routine.

Keeps Future Book

Conscientious and keen in his work, Mr. Bright says he relies a great deal on the university calendar published daily. He clips each one out and looks on it as his "future" calendar and is methodical and certain about each memorandum. For a concert, three hours must be allotted to set up the platform, 50 by 32 feet in size. As many as 120 chairs have been spaced on it, necessitating accurate measurement and systematic arrangement.

Lining up the chairs, a string and block are placed on the floor and each chair is allotted a specific space with a certain number of inches from the front of one to the front of another.

Gradual Expansion Noticed

All of the old buildings and their gradual changes are quite vivid to Mr. Bright although the expansion has been so gradual it all seems quite a mystery to have the campus the size it is today.

After 40 years of watching the campus grow and expand Ernest Bright is still satisfied and quite used to taking orders such as "have my desk moved," or "set up those 900 chairs, for the concert tonight."

Keeper of the keys and back stage chief as long as the university keeps playing the role of "education first," Ernest Bright is one of the "essential" men and one whose memory dates back to State University of Iowa in 1904.

SAIPAN BATTLERS TAKE TURNS AT THE FRONT

A COLUMN OF MARINES, right, weary from the tenacity of battle, march to the rear for rest, as replacements, left, start for the front. This scene was caught by a photographer covering the struggle for Saipan in the Marianas group which is now in American hands. (Interactions)
