Dewey Discloses Campaign Plans—

By WILLIAM W. TYLER

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey indicated yesterday his presidential campaign would be pitched heavily on the theme of "conflict" between federal, state and local governments, which he said "has been a constant source of friction for 12 years in this country."

With his running mate, Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, seated beside him, the GOP presidential nominee told newsmen the success for the efforts of Republican governors meeting in St. Louis Aug. 2 and 3 to settle areas of "responsibility" between federal and state governments would "wholly unite the Republican party as it goes before the people."

Adding it would "also unite the viewpoints of the 26 states headed by Republican governors, where three quarters of the American people live," Dewey declared:

"That means that the disgraceful spectacle of petty bickering and constant warfare between the various units of government will come to an end on next Jan. 20."

Dewey listed 15 subjects to be offered the St. Louis conference for consideration, asserting "some or all" were included in "the areas in which this continuous domestic warfare has been waged by the New Deal, which we should attempt to settle, not permanently of course, but for the next four years."

Reporting he and Bricker had explored all of the subjects, besides discussing campaign plans "rather extensively," Dewey said: "We found ourselves in disagreement on nothing."

Bricker nodded and injected one comment of "fine!" as Dewey indicated a statement that "enough people are spending full time

Nazi admission that Russia's air and air forces. Nazi-invented blitzkrieg tactics are being American improved and turned against their authors.

There are glittering possibilities in the developing situation. While it is as yet doubtful that the allied immediate purpose goes farther than to widen and deepen the Normandy bridgehead to accommodate larger forces in preparation for more decisive action, the means for immediate exploitation of enemy confusion appears to be at hand. The situation in German ranks as well as Germany itself invites bold action.

As the air escorted tank columns mushroomed out to east and west from the deep penetration of enemy lines below St. Lo there seemed no question that the desperate Nazi effort to contain the allied invasion had failed. Front line dispatches told of American infantry swarming through the air-and-tank cut gaps to consolidate the ground, disrupt German rear echelon services and outflank his battle lines in both directions.

Long range heavy guns were falling into American hands unspiked by their fleeing Nazi crews. The toll of German prisoners was mounting hourly to indicate that an allied break-through that must force a general German retreat across the whole Normandy front had been achieved.

West of the St. Lo dent American troops had taken Lessay and passed the Nazi roadhub block to threaten Coutances from the north while tank columns rolling down the St. Lo-Coutances highway pressed upon it at even closer range from the east. There was little doubt that German hasty retreat from the Coutances-Lessay coastal triangle of the Cherbourg peninsula was in progress to escape a closing allied trap.

Saipan Gives U. S. Strangle Hold On Jap Shipping

WASHINGTON—Full effect of the American capture of Saipan in the Marianas may not be noticeable for months, but its main value is a base from which the United States can tighten its blockade around the Japanese mainland.

Reconnaissance planes can cover waters and within reach of the Pacific as far as Japanese Philippines, and submarines will be able to increase their attacks on shipping because they will have a much shorter distance to travel than they did when Midway was the nearest American base to Japan.

Japan already is beginning to feel the lack of shipping to move raw materials from the south to the homeland and to move war supplies and men to the outlying bases.

Now United States forces in the Marianas are astride the direct route over which Japan used to ferry planes and ship-borne supplies southward.

The new pinch on Japan's supply lines will be imposed gradually at first until supplies in large quantities turn Saipan into a major air and sea base.

Saipan is considered by some naval experts as the key to domination of most of the Pacific between Truk and the Philippines. The once-mighty Bonin Islands, 600 miles from Tokyo, will be virtually useless as a base to the Japs as soon as American bombers begin to shuttle from Saipan on their lethal runs.

Soon Japanese shipping still may slip through the blockade, but now there is little hope for the enemy of sending planes to reinforce his flying fields southeast and southwest of Saipan.

GEN. CHARLES DE GAULLE, head of the French National committee, while in Washington achieved virtual recognition from President Roosevelt of the authority of his group in civilian affairs of liberated France.

However, as the president pointed out, the acknowledgement of authority is only until the French people, totally liberated, are able to pick their own government.

The general charmed the president and the president charmed the general, and the fog was dispelled during the White House conferences, if indeed, it ever existed.

De Gaulle did not prove as formal and austere as he had been pictured. He was gracious. He won friends, and now he and the president understand each other.

The general left for France on the closest of terms with the United States.

LOOK FOR CONGRESS TO APPROVE legislation requiring the government and private shippers to pay equal rates on the nation's railroads, thus paving the way for the financial betterment of the carriers in the post-war period when competition with airlines and other means of transportation is likely to assume cut-throat proportions.

A bill, sponsored by Representative Lyle H. Boren (D.) of Oklahoma, provides that the inequalities in rates to the government and private shippers on land-grant roads shall be erased. The measure already has passed the House by an overwhelming vote.

Russian crossing of the Vistula on the 30 mile span where they had reached the river southeast of Warsaw had not been confirmed by Moscow but seemed highly probable. Red forces had seized east bank towns, Deblin and Pulawy, guarding the important rail and road crossings west of Lublin. Nazi evacuation of Brest Litovsk was clearly impending since the breach in the Vistula line meant Warsaw was due for flanking, not frontal attack, and the Brest Litovsk garrison was in growing danger of being cut off and annihilated.

Once beyond the river in the Deblin-Pulawy sector in any force, the Russians could swing northward to take the old Polish capital from the rear, its vulnerable side, or cut its communication lines. Whatever the Russian plan, however, the battle is rolling back upon Warsaw again just two months short of five years from the day it fell to German arms, Sept. 27, 1939, and launched the world into the greatest war it has ever known.

THE NAZI PURGE

News Behind the News

You Need Go No Farther Than Russia Front to Know End Is Nigh

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON—These reports out of Sweden and Switzerland on the German revolution are always open to suspicion of exaggeration.

The Germans long have had no real reason agents well planted. True also Hitler may well have decided to make a virtue out of the purge. Dictators have done that before.

But you need go no farther than the Russian front to know the end is nigh. His military situation has become indefensible in any substantial or durable manner. The end should be a matter of a few weeks, or at the most months.

Perhaps the best indication of the actual condition is a letter the Russians captured from the pocket of the Nazi Tank General Hoffmeister. It sounded like what a German tank general might well say and is considered authentic.

Hoffmeister related how he had been called all the way back to Berlin from the fighting front last May to hear a speech by her fuhrer to assembled generals.

Hitler talked along in an easy way saying he and national Socialism had been in desperate conditions before, that he had always surmounted these trying times, and he suggested with polite but unmistakable innuendo that they read the history of national Socialism and study its Nazi application.

But the pause is apt to be covered by a switch in Russia emphasis to the Lwow area. (The Nazis probably have removed most of their 300,000 men reported trapped in the Baltic states by this time.)

In Normandy the same Nazi weakness is evident. The slow fighting there lately has merely represented our upbuilding of strength for the push ahead.

While the Nazis have 60 divisions in France and the lowlands, they have been able to present us with only 24 on the Normandy line, and obviously are in a situation where they cannot build up much else they would have, in view of the time allowed.

Only in Italy can they hope to hold out for long. There, they are retreating upon a mountainous short line (Gothic) upon which they once had 20,000 Italian laborers at work preparing positions and in all, spent at least six months building positions which could be defended by a weak force.

These same older generals are the ones who led the revolt. Since the middle of June the Russian advance has been little more than a march. Put no trust in the planted Swiss reports that none of the revolutionary or dissenting generals were on that eastern front.

By far the greatest resentment against Hitler has been evident on that line since Stalingrad. At

Senators Complain About Corn-Hog Program to Wickard

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defending its price control and rationing activities under the corn-hog program, the office of price administration has told protesting western senators that a balance between corn and hog prices was restored by a reduction in the government's support rate on hogs.

The senators had complained in letters to Secretary Wickard, War Food Administrator Marvin Jones and OPA Administrator Chester Bowles that the corn-hog program was not proving satisfactory.

Deputy Price Administrator James G. Rogers Jr., replying for the OPA in a letter to Senator Capper (R., Kan.) made public yesterday, said the OPA faced a serious problem early in the war in efforts to stimulate livestock production and the problem became more difficult due to a lack of balance between the livestock population and feed resources.

Rogers said an increase in the price of corn sufficient to restore the corn-hog ratio would have upset the entire stabilization program, and the balance was restored by the reduction in the support price of hogs, announced last fall.

"During the past fall we were again asked to raise the price of corn," Rogers said. "In our judgment such an increase at that time would have been disastrous in that it would have forced such heavy marketings of hogs that the already crowded packing houses could not have absorbed the supply.

There would have been a far worse situation in the corn belt and in the packing industry than occurred in the winter."

Officers who are as much responsible for the continuation of this war as Hitler. They are the ones who answer a question which has long been in my mind as to how in the world he could possibly maintain himself in the face of his situation.

But they cannot long continue fanatically oblivious to the decisions in which so many of their wiser elders lost their lives.

Lieutenant Completes—

54 Bombing Missions

BY TERRY TESTER

"I owe my life to the English. If it hadn't been for them I wouldn't be here now," First Lieut. Robert Paukert, veteran of 54 bombing missions over occupied Europe, declared in speaking of the protection some RAF Spitfires gave his crippled bomber on its return last Sept. 27.

Those fellows have seen their homes destroyed and they mean business. It's the same way with the Norwegian, Dutch and Polish flyers. We like to have their fighters escort us."

Lieutenant Paukert is a member of the Ninth airforce and was based in England for 13 months before he returned to the States several weeks ago.

The bombardier-navigator of a Marauder bombers, Paukert says that his plane has never reached Berlin, but that he flew over Germany several times. "But going over Paris is just as bad as Berlin. We saw the Eiffel tower, but we didn't have time to look around and see anything else."

Wings on Blue

Paukert's silver bombardier's wings are mounted on a blue background, indicating that he has been in combat. The ribbons on his tunic include those of the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with a silver and three bronze Oak Leaf Clusters, the American theater ribbon, and a ribbon which indicates that he has been in combat and took part in the invasion.

Their job on D-Day was to bomb gun emplacements on the coast. "The Nazis save their fighter planes to protect German targets, so we didn't meet much opposition," he explained.

Of the robot bombs which he saw in the weeks before he left England, Paukert says, "They're pretty terrible. When they come it sounds like a Model-T Ford approaching." Many of them are faster than the fighters that go after them and the only defense is to try to explode them in the air before they reach the ground. "It's worse than the blitz, because then the people knew the planes would eventually have to leave. The robots just keep coming."

Maries English Girl

Anyone who talks to Lieutenant Paukert long is apt to find him

Cards Sweep Phillies in Doubleheader, 8-7, 5-0

Stave Off Phil Rally

Morton Cooper Holds
For Shutout in Finale;
Teams Finish Series

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals swept their four-game series with the Philadelphia Phillies by taking both ends of a doubleheader last night, 8-7 and 5-0.

Morton Cooper held the Phils to two hits in the shutout finale. The game was marked by a three-run Cardinal uprising in the fifth, featuring a triple by Ray Sanders and a double by Stan Musial.

The Cards took an 8-0 lead in the early innings of the twilight affair, battering Big Bill Lee and Dale Mathewson off the mound. The Phillies kept plugging away and finally knocked Harry Brecheen out of the pitching box in the ninth.

Buster Adams batted in five runs for the Phils in the opener. His ninth homer of the year came with two on base in the seventh, and he doubled two runs across the ninth.

Byrd Supporters Hope To Keep Group Intact To Oppose Roosevelt

WASHINGTON (AP)—Plans for holding the Byrd-for-President organization intact to help in the formation of a third party anti-Roosevelt ticket were announced yesterday by John U. Barr of New Orleans, chairman of the recent campaign to make Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia the Democratic presidential nominee.

"The events of the next 30 days may develop the fighting names and slogans under which we will wage our battle," Barr said in a statement. "At the proper moment we shall make the necessary announcements. There will be a genuine Democratic ticket for the electoral college."

Barr did not detail any of his plans, but he is believed to be preparing to go south to lend a hand to dissident Democrats in trying through petition and other means, to get electors on the ballot pledged to some Democrat other than the president.

Texas and Mississippi Democrats have already freed their electors to vote for a Democrat other than the party nominee. Louisiana and Alabama factions have taken preliminary steps toward the same aim. If carried through in a close election, the presidential contest might be thrown into the house.

Barr made no reference to the fact that Senator Byrd got only 89 votes in Chicago and President Roosevelt received 1,086, but he said that the fact his organization was able to "make Mr. Roosevelt announce his candidacy before the convention showed that we were the only genuine draft movement." He would not say whether Byrd would be his third party standard bearer.

HITLER'S FIGHTERS SEE MOSCOW AS PRISONERS

THIS IS AN OVERHEAD VIEW of German prisoners being convoyed through Moscow. For an hour and a half a steady stream of the captives marched through the Russian capital on their way to internment. There were no demonstrations by Russians who observed the parade, but most of them were thinking that the "supermen" finally got to Moscow—as prisoners, not conquerors. (International Soundphoto)

Japanese Culture Handicaps Soldiers, Says A. S. T. P. Officer

A Japanese soldier can't think for himself because of his father. His life has been completely dominated by his father or elder brother and it is impossible to escape from the culture that has enmeshed his life since childhood. Lieut. Bernard Aginsky, A. S. T. P. officer who spent a year in Japan doing research work, pointed out these facts in his orientation lecture, "The Japanese Soldier—a Result of His Environment."

The elder male in every family holds the power of life and death over all members. A son may not obtain either a job or a wife for himself because his father bargains for each.

The supreme control of the father in Japanese society was illustrated by the story of a clique of young officers who rebelled. They hid themselves in strongly fortified building and it was impossible to remove them. At least a general sent an airplane to drop letters from the fathers of the officers demanding them to surrender. The revolt ended the next day.

Young girls most of them only 12 to 14 years of age—are sold by their fathers at a lump sum. Lack of true companionship among men and women has warped the life of every Japanese. Lieutenant Aginsky believes that many of their horrifying actions such as killing the wounded and mutilating women are a direct result of this lack. A mother must subordinate herself to her own son when he reaches an early age.

Suicide has permeated every part of society, Lieutenant Aginsky said. It is the honorable way of finishing something started but not finished. Most important of all, it saves face.

Lieutenant Aginsky told the story of a wealthy man who had some pink rice. One day he found it was gone and he asked his son if he knew what had happened to the rice. The young boy claimed that one of his playmates had eaten it and so the man went to the playmate's father. He denied the accusation and cut his son's stomach open with a knife to prove the rice was not there. The other boy confessed to having eaten the rice and so to save face the wealthy man cut his own son's stomach open.

Japan's society is completely dominated by males, Lieutenant Aginsky pointed out. He told of seeing in a railroad station a wealthy Japanese wearing a tall hat, carrying a cane and smoking American cigarettes. Three paces behind—never less—walked his wife dressed in a silk kimono and carrying the children. It was her duty to buy the tickets and to make her way the best way possible through the crowded Japanese terminal following at a respectful distance behind her lord and master.

What shall we do with Japan when the war is over? This represents a real problem, according to Lieutenant Aginsky. They have no background on which to build a democratic nation. The control of the country has always remained in the hands of a few and freedom is almost unheard of.

WHAT POLES CLAIM OF GERMANY

THIS MAP shows the borders of Poland after the first World War and what areas of eastern Germany the Soviet-supported National Council of Poland demands in a manifesto issued declaring itself the "sole lawful source of authority in Poland." It called upon the Poles for restoration to the motherland of old Polish Pomorze and Opolska Silesia, from eastern Prussia, for a wide outlet to the sea, and for Polish frontier posts on the Oder river. The U. S. and Great Britain recognize that government any longer. Map above, self-explanatory, shows Poland after World War I and areas the Polish people ask to have today. (International)

54 Civil, Electrical Engineers of A.S.T.P. to Leave July 29

7 Reservists To Leave For Texas

Fifty-four civil and electrical engineers of the A. S. T. P. at the University of Iowa will leave at the conclusion of this term July 29 for assignment to various stations. The order was received yesterday.

The departure of this group will leave 30 electrical engineers in the program and it is not anticipated that any more will be assigned at the present time.

The majority of the men who are leaving have been here more than a year. They were originally quartered in fraternity houses but were transferred to East Hall. Lieut. Irving Smith is their company commander.

In addition to the engineers, seven reservists will leave before the end of the month for Texas A. and M. Eight or 10 reservists will report here in the near future from Texas.

It is anticipated that a consolidation of men remaining in the program will take place at the end of this term. Two major companies will be formed and it is probable that those on the east side of the river will be under the command of Lieut. Bernard Aginsky. It is thought that one company will include engineers, dentists, reservists and pre-professionals and the other company will include the medical students.

A party for the engineers and reservists who are leaving Iowa City will be held Friday evening at the Elks' club.

War Correspondent Unable to Write Tribute to Bede Irvin

BALTIMORE (AP)—Lee McCardell, Baltimore Sun war correspondent with the Ninth air force in Normandy, said yesterday he had attended the burial of Bede Irvin, Associated Press photographer who was killed two days ago while photographing an aerial bombardment.

McCardell, who saw Irvin killed, said the photographer was buried Wednesday at the American military cemetery at La Cambe with the soldiers killed in the same action near the village of Pont-neuf.

"Bede was attached to this headquarters," the correspondent cabled. "Like the other correspondents here, I have tried for two days to write a tribute to him, one of the finest men any of us ever knew. But words are inarticulate."

"We all loved him too deeply and admired him too much for what he was—an honest, gentle, genuine man, whose soft voice and sweet, ingratiating smile we will never forget. Bede was even dearer to those who had known him better and loved him longer."

"And so many other good men and true die here, equally loved and far from those who love them, that our grief in his case is a poor and tiny thing indeed in a world awash with others' tears. We can only record it humbly, from the bottom of our hearts."

Court Dismisses Injunction in Dispute Against Musicians

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—A temporary injunction against radio station KSTP's musicians, restraining them from striking in the prolonged KSTP-musicians dispute over a new union contract, was dismissed in Hennepin county district court late yesterday.

Announcing that the injunction was dismissed on motion of KSTP's attorneys, Stanley Hubbard, KSTP president, said settlement of the dispute was in the hands of the regional war labor board.

Hubbard said in a statement that "this action was taken by KSTP to remove the musicians from the impossible position in which they had been placed, through no fault of their own, by the strike order issued by James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL)."

"Petrillo's order for a strike," said the statement, "following issuance of the temporary restraining order prohibiting the strike in violation of state law and the war labor board, would have forced our musicians to choose between being labeled as law breakers or as strike breakers. They would have had to choose between jail or dismissal from the union."

"We have no quarrel with these musicians; they have no quarrel with us. Rather than embarrass our own employes by forcing them to choose between jail and Petrillo's vengeance, we have withdrawn the court action on which the strike restraining order was granted."

'Voice of the Turtle' Rights Sold to Movies

NEW YORK (AP)—Motion picture rights to "Voice of the Turtle," John Van Druten's comedy, have been purchased by Warner Brothers at "the largest price ever paid for a Broadway play," the Warners publicity department announced last night.

The price was understood to be $500,000, plus other cash provisions to be paid over a five-year period, such as a percentage of income over a certain figure, which may boost the total price to approximately $1,000,000.

Warner Brothers also paid out the last all-time high, $425,000 for "Junior Miss," another Broadway comedy success.

Alfred de Lisiere Jr., producer of "Voice of the Turtle" previously had offered all future rights to the witty little comedy, which has only three persons in the cast, as a "package" deal, wherein all rights, including television, movies, radio and any other medium by which it might be presented, for $3,000,000. Warners said yesterday's purchase involved only the screen rights.

The report suggested that the smaller war plant corporations be authorized to buy surplus supplies and re-sell to small businesses as a curtail of monopolistic trends.

Preference to Veterans

The report suggested preference to veterans who need equipment or supplies for post-war civilian business. Post exchanges and ship's stores for their benefit after the war could be operated, the group added.

Submitted with the report was a proposed bill to set up a surplus war property administration within the office of war mobilization. Such an office already exists, directed by W. L. Clayton. It was set up within OWM by executive order of President Roosevelt, Feb. 21, 1944. The bill proposes it as a policy control agency, with actual property disposal to be handled by the army, navy and other war agencies.

Further Safeguard
In proposing that disposition of industrial facilities costing above $5,000,000 be left to congress, the report said this policy should apply especially to aircraft, aircraft parts, synthetic rubber, high octane gasoline, aluminum, magnesium, steel, ships or shipyards and pipelines.

As a further safeguard the subcommittee said the attorney general's office also should review all property sales of more than $5,000,000.

FBI Apprehends German Prisoners After Second Escape

PIERRE, S. D. (AP)—Conditions described by one witness as "terrible" on the Standing Rock reservation in North and South Dakota were cited yesterday by Sioux tribesmen in a hearing conducted by a congressional Indian affairs sub-committee.

Sub-committee members heard Mrs. Josephine Kelly, Ft. Yates, N. D., secretary of the Standing Rock tribal business council, assert that Indian bureau officials "make Indians suffer for what little they get."

She said tribal members "get only a little relief money—$10 or $12 a month—from congressional appropriations" by the time funds pass through the Indian bureau and reach reservation residents.

"Some of our children have barely enough to eat," she said.

Abolition of the Indian bureau was asked by Basil Two Bear, Ft. Yates, who said "We have plenty of land but we're starving to death."

Need for improved health facilities and better living conditions on the Standing Rock reservation was outlined by Henry Ankle, Little Eagle.

Indians from the Cheyenne, Lower Brule and Crow creek reservations were also to appear at the hearing. Members of the sub-committee will continue a tour of reservations today.

Members include Representatives Karl Mundt, South Dakota, acting chairman; Antonio Fernandez, New Mexico, and Fred Gilchrist, Iowa.
