

Council Considers Proposed Recreation Commission Ordinance

Students to Aid In Program

Six Commissioners, Ex-Officio Members Would Serve

An ordinance providing for juvenile playgrounds, establishing a juvenile playground commission and defining its powers and duties was submitted to the city council at a meeting held in the City hall council chamber last night.

No action was taken on the adoption of the ordinance which provides for a playground commission consisting of six members to be appointed by the mayor with the approval of the council.

Also on the commission would be a group of high school boys and girls who would have a voice in plans made by the commission.

The chairman of the Iowa City school board, the president of the Parent-Teachers association of Iowa City and the chairman of the park board shall by virtue of their offices be ex-officio members of this commission, according to the ordinance.

All adult members of the playground commission shall be qualified voters of the municipality and shall serve without compensation.

No commissioner shall be appointed to succeed himself, as provided in the submitted ordinance.

Under the power granted by the electors, the council shall provide one or more playgrounds, swimming pools and recreational centers, either on lands to be acquired or lands already owned or to be leased by the city.

The number and location of the playgrounds, swimming pools and recreational centers shall be determined by the council by a majority vote of the entire council.

As provided in the ordinance the term of office for each member of the playground commission shall be three years but the members first appointed shall be appointed for one, two or three years.

Members of the commission would be conferred with the powers granted the municipality in relation to the equipment, maintenance and conduct of any juvenile playground, recreational center or swimming pool.

Sixty airport bonds of $1,000 each to be sold soon will bear one percent interest annually, according to a resolution constructed by the airport commission, which met at Hotel Jefferson yesterday noon, and passed by the council last night.

Approve Bond Issue
A resolution approving the levy and a resolution authorizing the issuance of the bonds and the levy approving such issuance were approved.

Plans for the swimming pool as recently submitted by H. Green, architect, were examined by the council last night. Action on these blueprints was postponed pending a meeting at which persons interested in the project will meet with Green.

Other business at last night's meeting included the approval of the installation of a fire hydrant at Fifth and Friendship streets under the direction of the city engineer.

C. F. Mighell, 630 Iowa avenue, was granted a cigarette permit. A request by the Pla-Mor bowling alley for such a permit was referred to the city attorney.

More than 11 lots owned by the city are now available to the public for purchase through the De Rue Realty company as provided in a report acceptance by the council.

Deadline For Overseas Gifts October 15

Save strong string and box material and start to plan shopping. Postmaster General Frank C. Walker advises Americans in announcing the rules for mailing of Christmas gifts for army, navy personnel overseas.

This year the Christmas mailing period for both army and navy overseas forces is the same, Sept. 15 to Oct. 15. After Oct. 15 no gift parcel may be mailed to a soldier without the presentation of a written request from him.

The great demand upon shipping and the need of giving preference to arms, munitions, medicine and food is the prime reason for the early mailing date. Moreover, gift parcels must travel great distances to reach army and navy personnel who are located at remote points, and frequently the transfer of large numbers to new stations necessitates forwarding of the packages and additional time is required.

"I know our people will observe the overseas mailing schedule once more this year but I do wish to stress this fact: More care must be taken in wrapping and packing parcels securely and addressing them clearly and correctly," said Walker.

"It is not a pleasant thing to visit a postal concentration center and see the number of Christmas parcels which will never reach servicemen and servicewomen. Postoffice personnel have orders to do anything they can to effect delivery of such gifts, because we know how important they are for the happiness of the armed forces. Too frequently, nothing can be done."

"I am sorry," continued Walker, "that anyone ever mentioned that the size of a shoe box is the approximate limit for packages intended for gifts overseas. Unhappily many people became convinced that a shoe box is the best possible container. If the gifts are to be protected in transit they must be packed in boxes made of metal, wood, solid fiberboard, or strong double faced corrugated fiberboard, reinforced with strong gummed paper tape or tied with strong twine."

"We advise that everyone write the address of the sender and addressee inside the package as well as outside," said Walker.

The most important rules for Christmas mailings to the armed forces overseas are the following: The parcel must not exceed five pounds and must not be more than 15 inches in length or 36 inches in length and girth combined.

It should be marked "Christmas parcel" so it may be given special attention to assure its arrival before Dec. 25.

Not more than one parcel may be mailed in any one week to the same member of the armed forces by or in behalf of the same mailer.

I. C. Youth to Collect Milkweed Pods for Floss in Life Jackets

Boys and girls of this community will be collecting milkweed pods for floss to be used in life jackets, according to F. J. Snider, county superintendent of schools.

Almost 1,000 open mesh sacks arrived at the county school office yesterday morning and will be distributed to county schools where the pod collection project will originate the first of September.

Kapok has been used almost altogether in life jackets, not only because it is cheap and handy but because it had high buoyancy values. Just as with the rubber supply, when the Japs took the East Indies no kapok was available because that is the only part of the world where kapok trees were being grown in large plantations.

Kapok floss is very similar to milkweed floss. Both have small hollow hairs covered with wax and these two are the only entirely satisfactory materials for making life vests, aviators' suits, and other war materials where very light weight and high buoyancy or "floatability" are needed.

It takes only about 1 3/4 pounds of either milkweed or kapok fiber to hold up a man in the water.

When the kapok supply was diminished the navy and the air corps found that milkweed was just as good (and in some ways better) and asked for enough to make life vests and life saving aviators' suits.

Everyone who can be asked to collect milkweed this year. Collectors are paid 15 cents per bushel bag of green pods and 20 cents per bushel dried.

No matter how soon Germany is out of the war kapok will not be available until the Japs are out of Java and it doesn't mean fewer life jackets will be needed.

The navy and air corps are counting on school children of the United States for real help in winning the war.

Standard open-mesh onion bags which hold about one bushel of pods are supplied to those picking milkweed. The freshly picked pods at the start of the season weigh about 15 pounds per bag, but later the fully dry pods weigh only about five pounds per bag. Prices are based upon full bags, not weight.

Picking may be done any time after the seeds begin to turn brown and until the pods have opened but before the floss has blown away. It is not necessary to examine every pod before it is picked. If the majority have some brown seed, they may all be picked. This degree of ripeness should not be expected before early September.

Immediately after picking, the bags are hung in the open to dry from two to six weeks.

If the pods are packed in a tight box or thrown in a heap in the barn or on the ground, they will mold and spoil the floss.

Dew, rain or snow will not harm the pods if the bags are properly hung on a fence or wire.

Grace Carson Wed To John Schutte In California

Word has been received of the marriage of Grace Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Carson of Davenport, formerly of Iowa City, and granddaughter of the late Thomas G. Carson, Iowa City pioneer and former president of the Johnson county savings bank, to John Henry Schutte, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John H. Schutte of Dixon, Neb. The wedding took place July 11 at 8 p. m. at the T. and T. ranch in Lone Pine, Calif., with the Rev. Robert Kersey reading the ritual of the Protestant Episcopal church.

The bride was attired in a sheer white gown cut on Grecian lines. She wore a tiara of daisies and carried an arm bouquet of white mountain flowers and daisies. Her only jewelry was the diamond star brooch which her mother wore as a bride.

Following a wedding reception, the couple left for a short wedding trip, and for traveling the bride chose a powder blue suit with navy accessories.

The bride attended Iowa State college at Ames and the American College of Art in Chicago. She received her degree from the University of Iowa, where she majored in graphic and plastic art. For the past three years she has been engaged in art work in California and has served as assistant director of the research department of the Merchants and Manufacturers association in Los Angeles.

The bridegroom was educated at Fremont college, Waterbury, Neb., and is now a ranchman at the foothills of the High Sierras near Lone Pine, where the couple will reside.

Mrs. Schutte visited in Iowa City earlier this summer. Her mother was prominently identified with University of Iowa activities during their residence here, and founded the Rho chapter of Gamma Phi Beta sorority at the university in 1915.

CHICAGO (AP)—The uprising Philadelphia Phillies won their fourth straight game yesterday when southpaw Ken Raffensberger held the Cubs to only one run on 11 hits and beat them, 6 to 1.

It was the eighth defeat in nine games for the Chicagoans, who still maintained their slim hold on a first division berth.

10 Easy Questions—

How to Be a Grid Scout

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP)—As one who has glanced through football scouts' reports with a feeling awe, wondering how anybody but an old hen could make anything out of the page after page of chicken tracks, we are interested in the simplified scouting system devised by Lieut. Dan Stavelly.

Adequate Reports
Lieutenant Stavelly, now head of the air WAC recruiting service at Topeka, Kan., formerly coached a Colorado high school team, says Don Pierce of the Topeka Daily Capital, and like most high school coaches he found it difficult to get adequate scout coverage. Most high schools don't have a spare coach to send on such jaunts. They rely on a helpful fan or alumnus, some of whom don't know a wing-back from a punt and who, describing a touchdown play, are likely to say: "A guy ran around the right end, and gosh, he ran fast."

Anyway, Lieutenant Stavelly decided that sketchy, but accurate, information was better than a carload of misinformation, so he formulated a set of 10 simple questions that even a novice could turn in information of some value. The points involved are:

- 1—How many steps does the opposing end take across the line of scrimmage?
- 2—Who is the hardest charging lineman?
- 3—What play do they call most often?
- 4—What plays did they use to score?
- 5—What plays are called inside the 20?
- 6—How good is center's passing, especially on punts?
- 7—Which linemen pull out for interference?
- 8—Who fills the hole?
- 9—Who is the best pass receiver and who is the passer's favorite?
- 10—What was their opening play?

Now it is granted that, compared to the report of an experienced college or pro scout, such information is elementary, my dear Watson. An A-1 scout practically can give you the life history of every player, where he is on each play, how many times a halfback hitches up his pants when he is going to carry the ball, that the right end runs left-footed, and the left guard had a heavy date the night before.

But the high school coach without the benefit of these observation experts the information provided in answering Lieutenant Stavelly's 10 questions gives a pretty fair hint on just what to expect from the other team. He can figure which lineman might be mouse-trapped effectively, whether it is better to run inside or outside an end, who to watch on passes and whether it will pay to work on a nervous center. Lieutenant Stavelly's record was good enough to warrant his being hired as line coach by Denver university, and his scouting-in-10-easy-questions might have had something to do with it.

Boston Red Sox Take St. Louis Browns, 5-1

Emmett O'Neill Hurls To Drop Browns' Lead To Five and a Half

BOSTON (AP)—Righthander Emmett O'Neill tossing four-hit ball, the Boston Red Sox yesterday reduced the St. Louis Browns' lead to five and a half games by defeating those American league pace-setters, 5-1.

O'Neill, winner of his three previous starts, limited the Browns to two hits until the ninth, when George McQuinn's double and Vern Stephens' single cheated him out of a shutout.

The Soxers hammered starter Danny Galehouse, who was striving for his sixth straight win, for 11 of their 12 hits and all of their runs before he was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

Freddie Annon Leads Field in First Round Of PGA Qualifiers

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Little Freddie Annon, one of the dark horse contenders among the country's golf professionals, scrambled around the Manito course in below par fashion yesterday to lead a class field in the first round of the 36-hole qualifying test for the 1944 National P. G. A. championship.

His 34-34—68 against a 36-36—72 par course, was good enough to set the pace for a the two leading performers of the year, Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, and Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Philadelphia.

Annon, 30-year-old defense plant worker of Mamoroneck, N. Y., and spare-time golf instructor, had to hustle for his leading score; he strayed off the fairways and batted balls over greens but a putter that seldom failed saved him time and again. He couldn't miss when he got on the greens.

Trailing him with 69's were Nelson, former U. S. open and P. G. A. champ; Ed Dudley of Colorado Springs, president of the P. G. A., and Morrie Gravatt of Williamsport, Pa., also an outsider.

The field of 69 starters teed off yesterday under a drastic rules change, elimination of the traditional stymie. Tournament committee members on the grounds voted Sunday night to remove this regulation from their national title event.

Coder Appointed Director of Veterans' Service

Professor to Join Student Affairs Staff

New Post Created To Handle Problems Of Rehabilitation

Prof. William D. Coder has been appointed director of the veterans' service at the University of Iowa, it was announced yesterday afternoon by President Virgil M. Hancher.

The appointment is in the office of student affairs and the position is a new one. Professor Coder for the past year and one-half has been administrative assistant to Dean Harry K. Newburn of the college of liberal arts, working with the various army programs on the campus. He is also secretary of the university committee on war service students.

President Hancher stated that Professor Coder's duties will be to act as university representative in matters involving federal programs for the education of veterans of World War II.

The president emphasized that the new position was created for the express purpose of rendering such additional service to returning veterans as they may require over and above service now regularly available to all students, or services which may later be made available to all students.

Professor Coder declared that his own philosophy was to treat veterans simply as students and wherever there are existing channels, he said, he will see that veterans are referred to the proper agencies for the solution of their problems.

Prof. William D. Coder

'No Attempt to Be Made to Segregate Veteran in Any Way'—Coder

By ROBERTA WHEELAN
Daily Iowan Managing Editor

The ability to perform capably two jobs at one time has been characteristic of Prof. William D. Coder, newly appointed director of the veterans' service program, a new department in the office of student affairs.

Dating from his graduation from Haverford college, in Haverford, Pa., with a double major, in chemistry and English, the greater portion of Professor Coder's time has been spent in handling at least two types of work at one time.

For the first several years this "double life" took the form of attending school while working at various jobs.

Worked as Reporter
Following his graduation from Haverford college, Professor Coder held several successive positions on the Philadelphia Ledger, starting as a district reporter and finally becoming a feature writer.

From the Ledger, he went to work for several years in his other major field, chemistry, as an assistant metallurgist in the metallurgical department of the Brier Hill Steel company, in Youngstown, Ohio.

Then followed four years of teaching in Pennsylvania high schools, in Kennett Square, Pa., and in South Brownsville, where he was principal of the junior high school. For eight years he was English instructor at Muhlenberg college, Allentown, Pa. During these years of teaching, he earned two more college degrees, receiving his M.A. from Haverford college in 1928 and his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1936.

California Position
From Pennsylvania Professor Coder went to the College of the Pacific, Stockton, Calif., where he was an instructor of English and chairman of the English department.

During the summers of 1937, 1938 and 1939, while still holding the position at the College of the Pacific, Professor Coder came to the University of Iowa as a visiting lecturer in the dramatic arts department and in 1939 left his California position to become an associate professor in the dramatic arts department of the university.

In April, 1943, he was granted a leave of absence by the dramatic arts department and became administrative assistant to Dean Harry K. Newburn of the college of liberal arts, in charge of the university's army programs.

Army Program
In this position he has handled the army specialized training program from the academic standpoint and acted as liaison officer between the army and the university. He will retain this office for the duration of the army training programs on the campus and add to it his new work to carry out his custom of "double action."

The new office, Professor Coder stated, will act first as a veterans' information service, serving all returning servicemen of World War II, in order to inform them of their rights under existing laws to further education, loans, allowances for dependents, life insurance, etc.

Secondly, the office will work with both the veterans' administration and the university in handling contracts, accounts, required reports on students and other matters with which both agencies are concerned. Since one of the requirements of veteran education is satisfactory work, Professor Coder explained, this phase of the veterans' service work will include reports of unsatisfactory academic work.

Point of Contact
The third function of the office will be as a first point of contact for returning veterans, whereby they may not only receive information about the university and the opportunities it offers them, but they will be referred to the proper authorities and agencies to handle the details of their entrance into the university.

The office will also serve the purpose the name implies, a veterans' service organization or office of student affairs, where the veteran students may bring their special problems that are distinct from the ordinary problems of university students.

"There will be no attempt to segregate the veteran in any way," Professor Coder declared. "This office will be separated from the main office of student affairs only because different types of problems are involved and returning veterans will be encouraged to become normal university students as quickly as possible."

Veteran Education
The two types of veteran education with which the office will be concerned are the type provided for in the "G.I. bill," whereby returning veterans are privileged to return to school at government expense, and the vocational rehabilitation program, in which disabled veterans are given vocational training according to their needs and abilities.

Quick adjustment to university life will be offered every returning veteran. Problems of interrupted education, differences in age, maturity and war experience will be the special function of the newly-created office.

Professor Coder's own war record includes service with Company I of the 110th infantry and with the United States marine corps, in which he was a member of the shock troops that went as replacements for the second division in World War I.

Fraternities to Serve as SUI Residences

Fraternity houses operating in compliance with the regulations of the committee of fraternity-university relations may open their houses as regular university residences for men during the 1944-45 school year, it was announced by C. Woody Thompson, dean of students, yesterday.

Five-Point Program
A five-point program has been set up under which fraternities may qualify for permission to open their houses to university men.

The requirements are that they submit in writing to the dean of students a plan of operation, including provisions for adequate supervision and control. This document must be signed by an alumni committee of three or more and the governing board of their house-owning corporation or the owner of their property.

A mature person or persons residing in the house must assume responsibility for the observance of all university rules and regulations governing students, and must submit a signed statement acknowledging this responsibility.

Financial Success
The fraternity must show that its plan of operation has a reasonable chance of financial success or submit a signed statement by its alumni committee, house-owning corporation or owner of property to the manager of the fraternity business service. Also each fraternity must agree to use the services of the fraternity business service and the university business offices, including the accounting and bookkeeping services and the collecting of house bills and other charges against members.

Fifth, a certificate must be obtained from the manager of student housing stating that the house is a properly equipped residence for men.
