U. S. Third Army Pushes 3 Miles Into Saar Basin

French Speed To Rhine

Reach River At Three Places Near Swiss Frontier

LONDON (AP)—The United States Third army plunged two miles into Germany's rich Saar industrial basin in a new invasion of the Reich yesterday—a momentous one for allied arms that saw the French in the greatest breakthrough since Normandy storm in force to the Rhine at three places near the Swiss frontier.

The great fortress of Metz had been overrun, and far to the south outflanked Belfort—like Metz a French fortress immune to capture for centuries—rocked under the attack of French colonial Zouaves fighting inside the city.

Once more the French and Germans were trading shots across the Rhine for the first time since early in the war.

The German lines bent inside the Reich and broke in France under the shock of six assaulting allied armies swelling their winter offensive to a furious pitch.

The Paris radio said a French armored division, which smashed 20 miles in 24 hours to the Rhine, was assaulting the French city of Mulhouse in a rampage up the Rhineland valley against the exposed southern flank of the German army.

Reports from Switzerland said the French were throwing a bridge across the Rhine for an imminent new invasion of Germany, and another unconfirmed story from the frontier said American troops had occupied Mulhouse.

Violent artillery fire could be heard in Basel, Switzerland, and German troops and long lines of civilians could be seen fleeing toward the Rhine.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's Tenth armored division tanks rumbled two miles into the Saar basin—vital source of steel and coal for the German war machine—and were within two miles of the German town of Merzig, on the Saar river.

Northwest of these forces, mechanized cavalry prowled five miles into Germany up the Moselle river valley, ancient gateway to the Rhineland, moving at least a mile beyond Nennig.

On the right other units reached Kesselring, four miles deep into Germany and three miles west of a bend of the Saar river.

Other forces wheeling southeast of Metz had shoved to within 10 to 12 miles of the Saar frontier at several places.

The resistance in Metz collapsed so swiftly that Maj. Gen. Anton Duncern, SS (elite guard) commander, was captured in his headquarters without a shot by eight doughboys.

Smith W. Brookhart Buried in Washington

WASHINGTON, Iowa (AP)—Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa's United States senator for nine years, was buried here yesterday. More than 300 old friends and neighbors attended services at the Methodist church for the former senator, who had formerly made his home here.

The Leon Beatty post of the American Legion conducted graveside services beneath gray skies, and Brookhart was laid to rest in the cemetery in which Mrs. Brookhart and his parents were buried.

The Rev. Carl Klein of St. Louis, a close friend of Brookhart's, officiated at the services. He described Brookhart's record as a father of an outstanding family, a distinguished soldier of two wars and a statesman, whose ideas were 10 years ahead of the times.

Hitler's Will

LONDON, Tuesday (AP)—The Daily Sketch said yesterday that according to information received by two diplomatic sources here the Nazi party is now in possession of Hitler's will—and this indicates Hitler is dead. The will, the Sketch added, leaves all Hitler's property and business assets to the Nazi party and disinherits his relatives.

Chiang Kai-Shek Changes Cabinet

Gen. Chen Cheng Becomes Chinese Minister of War

CHUNGKING (AP)—With China's military position becoming increasingly more critical, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek reshuffled eight cabinet posts yesterday, naming able Gen. Chen Cheng minister of war succeeding Gen. Ho Ying-Chin.

Popular clamor had urged a shakeup of the central government for some time in the face of continuing Japanese military gains in southeastern China.

The changes followed the recent recall of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell as American commander in China-India-Burma and the disclosure that Washington had been insisting on a reorganization of the Chiang government and a settlement of the Communist question.)

Gen. Cheng, 44, formerly was commander of the Chinese expeditionary force which now is fighting successfully in the Salween river area to open up a land route from India through Burma to China. Gen. Ho had been minister of war since 1930.

O. K. Yui, former mayor of Shanghai, was boosted from vice-minister to minister of finance succeeding Dr. H. H. King, who now is in the United States.

(The retirement of Gen. Ho as minister of war, although he apparently retains his position as chief of the general staff, conceivably may remove one of the chief stumbling blocks to a political settlement of the stalemate between the central government and the Communists.)

WASHINGTON (AP)—A one-year extension of the second war powers act—keystone of the war production and rationing program—started in its way through congress yesterday.

A sub-committee reported the extension to the house judiciary committee without recommendation after a one-day hearing. That means any changes in the act must be worked out by the full committee which meets Wednesday.

Although the sub-committee's action did not give the measure formal approval, there was every indication that it will have no trouble getting through the short session of congress. There may be

Chinese Recapture Burmese Mangshih, Invade Bhamo

High Command Hints Of Jap Forces Severing China

CHUNGKING (AP)—Chinese troops are fighting inside Bhamo, strongest remaining Japanese base in north Burma, and have recaptured the Burma road town of Mangshih, 62 miles inside China from the Burma border, the Chinese high command announced yesterday.

Against these allied victories, the high command acknowledged indirectly that two great Japanese forces aggregating probably 250,000 troops who are invading Kwangsi province from the east and north had completed a junction west of Liuchow, serving China and completing an unbroken link all the way from Manchuria to Hong Kong.

U. S. Air Force (The Tokyo radio in a broadcast recorded by the FCC declared the United States air force in China has destroyed and abandoned its air field at Nanning, about 100 miles southwest of the point where the Japanese junction appeared to have been effected. The unconfirmed Japanese report said the Nanning field was "the sole enemy air base in south China.")

Arrivals in Chungking reported all routes leading from the danger zone in Kwangsi province were choked with refugees—a sorry spectacle of human misery. It was conservatively estimated a total of 70,000 Chinese now had fled their homes since the war with Japan began in 1937.

A communique said that Bhamo, south of Myitkya and 175 miles northeast of Mandalay, was penetrated by Chinese troops Saturday after a heavy American dive-bombing attack and that bitter fighting was going on in the streets. The town was encircled by the Chinese.

Mangshih Falls (Mangshih, third important Burma road town to fall to the Chinese in their offensive in western Yunnan province, was captured Sunday night in a frontal attack coupled with a double envelopment, the high command said.)

(A communique issued at southeast Asia command headquarters at Kandy, Ceylon, said more than 1,900 Japanese troops had been killed since the drive on Bhamo and down the Mandalay railway began Oct. 15.)

CIO President Asks Wage Limit Revision

CHICAGO (AP)—CIO President Philip Murray brought delegates to the seventh convention to their feet cheering yesterday when he extended a real olive branch to employers, and called for revision of the little steel formula limiting wages.

"We have no desire to quarrel with business," he told the 600 representatives of constituent members of the congress, "we don't want to indulge in constant fights with business or industry."

"It is our desire to get along with business, to get along with industry. . . . We believe in labor-management cooperation. We do not subscribe to the foolhardy, antiquated notions of strike and strife."

Murray's address preceded a plea by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the president, for increased participation by women in the affairs of the world, and an increased education that all might become better citizens.

Counterattack by Nazis Pushes Polish Troops From Monte Fortino

ROME (AP)—A fierce German counterattack has knocked Polish troops of the Eighth army from Monte Fortino, a small peak overlooking two secondary roads to Faenza about five miles to the northwest, allied headquarters said yesterday.

The Poles repulsed two Nazi charges before being forced to withdraw.

Patrols reported the Germans have dug in and set up crude fortifications in this area which apparently is the pivotal point for both the enemy line swinging northeastward to the Adriatic and the thinly defended line running into the Apennines.

Supreme Court Rules Campaign Expenses Taxable by 5-4 Vote

Refuses to Grant Appeal of Condemned Train Cook

WASHINGTON (AP)—Here's bad news for political office seekers: you can't deduct campaign expenses in computing your federal income tax.

The supreme court by 5-4 vote laid down that rule yesterday in turning down an appeal by Michael F. McDonald of Ashley, Pa., who sought to deduct $13,207 for expenses of his campaign for election to a county judgeship in 1939.

McDonald ran for the office after completing a brief appointive term.

The opinion, by Justice Frankfurter, said that McDonald's campaign costs "were not expenses incurred in being a judge but in trying to be a judge for the next term."

The court also refused to grant the appeal of Robert E. Lee Foulkes, Negro train cook, convicted and sentenced to death in the "lower 13" murder of Mrs. Martha Virginia James, wife of a navy ensign.

FROM 'My Own Yesterdays'

By Charles R. Brown who will speak at University Vespers Sunday, Nov. 26, 8 p. m. in Macbride auditorium

"In my judgment, the state of Iowa is one of the best states in the Union. It has no picturesque natural scenery; it is exposed winter and summer to the extremes of both heat and cold; it suffers periodically from those frightful, devastating storms known as cyclones. It has never in all its history had anything especially dramatic to be recorded, such as one finds in the annals of Massachusetts and New York, Virginia and California. Yet for all that it is a remarkable state."

"The men and women who came to it in the early days were compelled to live meagerly, to face hardships, and to suffer many deprivations. But they had that fine, reliable stuff in them out of which any sound social order must be built. They were, almost universally, industrious, thoughtful, self-reliant, law-abiding, God-fearing people, intent upon showing themselves upright, useful citizens. They were also intent upon educating their children and training them in turn for worthy lives of life. The air we breathed upon those wide prairies was, in more senses than one, pure air. I am grateful that my own boyhood was spent in an atmosphere so altogether favorable for a wholesome development."

Reds Enter Miskolc, Hungary's Fifth City

Germans Assert Russians Open Latvian Offensive

LONDON (AP)—Russian troops fought their way yesterday into the outskirts of Miskolc, Hungary's fifth largest city, and Berlin announced the Red army had opened its grand winter offensive on the frozen terrain of western Latvia, where 30 German divisions are pinner against the Baltic sea.

Cut Escape Roads German escape roads out of Miskolc, 85 miles northeast of besieged Budapest, were cut on the east and west as the Russians drove through Csaba, less than a mile south of Miskolc, a Russian bulletin announced.

Red troops in Hungary also drove to within two miles of Eger, another mountain town commanding the invasion roads to southern Slovakia 22 miles southwest of Miskolc.

Moscow did not confirm the Latvian drive which Berlin said was sprung from the Russian salient around Priekule, 20 miles east-southeast of the Baltic port of Liepaja, one of two harbors available for any Nazi escape by sea.

German radio accounts of the battle said it began Sunday—celebrated throughout Russia as Red army artillery day—with a crashing artillery barrage along a front 20 to 30 miles wide. They all agreed it was a major assault.

Riga Captors The Russians last were reported to have at least 500,000 troops on the Latvian front, and possibly 1,000,000—the men of Gen. Andrei Yeremenko's Second Baltic army and those of Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's Third Baltic army, co-captors of Riga Oct. 13.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, German military commentator, said of the attack against the 5,000-square-mile pocket: "Strong Russian forces yesterday morning started another all-out offensive against the southern flank of the Courland (peninsula) front."

"The first waves were mown down by German cross fire. In subsequent fighting, the Russians scored minor breaches which were eliminated in counterattacks."

Nation Opens Bond Drive

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Sixth War loan drive was launched yesterday in bad weather over large sections of the country but good spirit throughout the land.

Treasury officials said that as yet they've seen no signs of the war complacency that had been feared in connection with the $14,000,000,000 borrowing campaign.

There were no figures available on yesterday's bond sales.

But Ted Gamble, national director of the drive, told reporters, "We have had no more auspicious launching."

From one end of the country to the other, great parades, pageants, realistic war demonstrations, rallies, and variety shows were held yesterday and last night. Ten counties, led by Prairie county, Montana, (population 2,051) surpassed their quotas even before yesterday's opening. Five of the ten are in Montana.

Over Nine Million Dollars Asked—

Iowa State Schools

DES MOINES (AP)—Presidents of the five Iowa state board of education schools yesterday outlined requests for appropriations totaling $9,662,000 for new buildings and equipment.

The building program was outlined to the legislative interim committee at a conference here yesterday.

The requests were made on the basis they would have been made if the buildings could be built. They were made with the understanding that the legislature be asked to pass upon them in the same way and to set aside until it can be used whatever of the money sought is authorized.

On a two-year basis, the requests by the five institutions were:

State University of Iowa, $4,100,000; Iowa State college, $3,900,000; Iowa State Teachers college, $1,370,000; Iowa School for the Blind, $150,000 and Iowa School for the Deaf, $142,000.

Asking for the next two years by the state university for buildings and equipment included: New library unit, $350,000; remodeling of Schaeffer, Macbride and University halls, $50,000; women's physical education building, $150,000; auditorium, $500,000; community center, $262,500 and new pharmacy building, $150,000.

Head of AFL Urges Higher Wages For Post-War Labor

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—William Green, president of the American federation of labor, sounded a keynote of higher wage scales in opening the annual convention of the AFL here yesterday in municipal auditorium.

He declared that higher wages were justified for labor to maintain prosperity in the post-war world because of technological developments which enable the individual worker to produce more goods.

The World Is Small, Isn't It?—

By KENNETH DIXON
WITH THE AEF ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 13 (Delayed) (AP)—Sooner or later almost everybody gets tired of hearing that old gag: "It's sure a small world after all."

But Corp. Gordon E. Cross of New York City, a medical aid man in the 34th division, especially is tired of hearing it. He's always having someone say: "Haven't I met you somewhere before? Your voice sounds familiar."

Then patiently he explains that they probably haven't met him but the reason his voice sounds familiar is simply because it probably is. Prior to the time he swapped sheep music and a microphone for sula pills and blood plasma, Corporal Cross was one of radio's best known tenors performing on various national radio shows.

But the other day, Gordon didn't mind a bit when someone said: "Haven't I seen you somewhere before?" in slightly quizzical tones. Looking around, he saw his brother, Sgt. Glenn B. Cross. Neither had any idea where the other was, but, it being a small world, they had stumbled across each other. The fact that they met along the western front was not particularly unusual. You'd be amazed how often it happens—even in the midst of battle.

Sergeant Thomas Lawfield of Sikeston, Mo., and Harold Anderson of Shelbyville, Ind., a couple of line company siders in the 35th division knew their brothers were in the army but didn't know where.

The other day, when their company was right in the middle of a hot fight, Sergeant Lawfield looked over to the outfit's flank and saw his brother, Pvt. J. D. Lawfield also in action. He'd just arrived as a replacement.

A few hours later the outfit passed through another regiment of the same division and Sergeant Andrews hailed his brother, Pvt. Leon Andrews, who also had just arrived as a replacement.

War or no war, there was quite a reunion and practically everybody in earshot allowed as to how "that goes to show it's a small world after all."

If you need more proof, there's the case of Don Asbell, a Kansas boy who four years ago was a rookie with company E, 137th regiment, 35th division. He left it to attend officer candidate school, was graduated and assigned to another outfit.

Time passed and one day Lieutenant Asbell was pulled out of his new outfit and was shipped overseas as a replacement officer. Reaching the western front after bouncing around from one replacement depot to another, he wound up leading the same platoon in the same company in the same regiment with which he had taken his basic training.

In spite of all odds against it, that sort of thing keeps happening. For instance, I turned this story over to Lieut. Dick Strong, of Warren, Ohio, a field press censor, whom I just met the other day. It seems he used to be stationed at Camp Ellis, which is near Macomb, Ill., where I was born and raised.

"I married Marjorie McLean there," he said, getting up and walking the floor. "The fact is, we are supposed to be having a baby about now."

"McLean," I said. "Why, I know the McLeans there!"

"Did you say your name is Dixon?" he asked. "I met a Dorothy Dixon who used to come out to the Camp Ellis USO club sometimes."

"That's my sister!" I said—whereupon he both agreed that, by George, it sure is a small world after all. Isn't it?

What Power Will FDR Give CIO?—

By PAUL MALLON
WASHINGTON — Even the Democratic insiders in congress are waiting to see how Mr. Roosevelt handles the complex and conflicting forces behind him in the election, the radicals and conservatives, particularly what power CIO will have hereafter.

He started out rather leftily by appointing Paul Porter, the Democratic publicity man, to succeed Chairman Fly of the federal communications commission. But he managed to keep James Byrnes, as assistant president, and thereby balance the picture.

The resignation of probably the ablest civil servant in the government, John R. Steelman, as head of the conciliation service was announced as due to his desire to get out and make some money.

But both this and the resignation of William H. Davis as chairman of the labor board reflected in many inner opinions the difficulties ahead in settling labor disputes. (Mr. Davis had been brushed around considerably by the White House, or thought he had and wanted to get out for some time.)

Obviously these two jobs are not open to CIO appointees but the personal character of the men, especially whether they lean left or right, will be important. With the AFL strongly anti-Communist and anti-radical no doubt the balance will have to be preserved in the two top jobs to handle further labor disputes.

The CIO has given out some big figures on how many men it elected to the senate and house, but their claims include many men who would have been elected without their support.

Apparently they succeeded in electing about 84 to the house, and were unsuccessful in about 98 contests. They got seven victories in the senate against five defeats. This will only make them directly a minor bloc in both houses, if they can really rally that many to function as a bloc.

Chiang Strengthens Control in China By Cabinet Shuffle

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has considerably strengthened his control of the Chinese government by his cabinet shake-up.

Whether he will use his stronger position to reorganize the army, seek improvement in China's economic and political affairs and try for cooperation with the Communists of north China is still a wide open question.

American officials are looking for the answer but they are not looking through rose colored glasses. There is a distinct air of skepticism about the whole affair insofar as its effect on China's war effort is concerned. Some hope is felt in official quarters that the effect will be good, but fingers are crossed.

The impression here is that Chiang reorganized because of the internal crisis, which was intensified by the Stilwell affair. American Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, who came home at President Roosevelt's order, was well liked by his men and many of the officials who had worked with him.

Incidentally the CIO chieftains Sidney Hillman and Philip Murray are supposed to be preparing to go abroad, rather than concentrating on developing their political power, whatever it is to be. They are to head an international labor conference meeting January 1.

Whether they will continue their aggressive political action secretly or openly for the next congressional elections is what concerns most congressmen.

In an off year race, they might have an opportunity to do the job they did down south, and they still have more money with which to play politics than anyone else in the picture. In publicity and propaganda, their influence is likely to continue strong.

All in all congress seems in no great fear of them at the moment but no one is making any predictions either upon this phase or Mr. Roosevelt's future course. The tendency everywhere in Washington is to await developments watchfully.

Runover shoes pull shoes out of shape and cause them to wear out faster.

35th Division Notes

WITH THE AEF ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 12 (Delayed) (AP)—The latest angle on how to bust German morale concerns five guys out on patrol. They included Lieuts. Ira Austin of Ripon, Wis.; Staff Sergts. Lewis Smith of Liberal, Kan., and Howard Hardy of Council Grove, Kan., and Sergt. Dick Krebs of York, Pa.

Deep behind the lines they spotted a German chow wagon, bound to the front with hot food for the Nazis. They shot the two Germans aboard the wagon, which was loaded down with meat, potatoes, black bread and hot coffee. They couldn't eat it all, so they destroyed it, figuring that hungry Nazis would not fight nearly as hard as the well-fed ones do.

Pvt. Harold Freyer of New York City, formerly a nationally-ranking checker player now is a battalion aid worker. The other night, he just had returned from evacuating some wounded when an enemy observer spotted him. Freyer started to move, but the enemy steadily made countermoves and outguessed him. It seemed that a new shell landed at every hiding spot he chose just a moment before he chose it. Finally he executed what he calls "a double-triple ump!" and managed to get safely away. He says he prefers checkers.

Pfc. John J. Famiglietti of Glen Cove, N. Y., says, "Tell mom that letter really raised my morale."

A member of a combat engineer outfit, he was lying in an improvised bed in a battered French farmhouse at the front, wishing he'd get some mail from home. Suddenly the mail clerk yelled that Famiglietti had a letter. He got up to get it and returned to find that a shell had smashed the room and torn at least a dozen holes in his blankets.

Pfc. Julian Riley of St. Louis holds the division record for a busy night. A German motor column, lost in the dark, ran into a road block that he was guarding. Riley killed three Germans with a machine gun, wounded another, took 15 prisoners and captured eight fully-loaded supply trucks and two ambulances—all single-handed.

A surprise French First army dash through the Belfort Gap to reach the upper Rhine close to the Swiss border seemed likely to force a German retreat in the south for a new stand behind the Rhine itself.

The southern end of the west front would be the logical place for such a withdrawal. Reputedly powerful fortifications of the Siegfried line lie east of the Rhine—the Swiss frontier to Karlsruhe. They offer the enemy an opportunity to find reinforcements in the south for his hard pressed troops in the Saar area and the Aachen sector, where the main weight of the allied six-army offensive is striking, without weakening his lower Rhine front.

Such a "disengagement" move on the south flank would not greatly shorten the Nazi defensive front. It would, however, release first line field troops, now deployed to guard the passes of the Vosges, for support of those battling the American Third army's wide-fronted thrust at the Saar basin gateway and grudgingly giving ground before the combined British-American three army advance toward Cologne.

Secondary troops, undependable for field operations, could offer stubborn resistance from the Rhine fortifications along the upper river. It seems obvious that the supreme need of the foe as the allied winter break-through campaign develops is adequate first line reserves to meet the Saar and Aachen areas attacks without weakening the still dormant but critical Nether Rhine front in Holland.

By every sign it is in that northern sector that the German command expect the culminating allied attack to come in due course. The Rhine front itself is vulnerable at that point. Only extemporized defensive works lie east of the Nether Rhine and the Arnhem gateway. That, too, is the short and direct road to Berlin and great German north coast ports.

It is there, guarding the Dutch extension of the Siegfried line, that allied reports have indicated the cream of German shock troops in the west are concentrated. Yet the massive drive launched by General Eisenhower along virtually the whole line south of that Dutch sector is making such progress that no Nazi recourse but retreat or the bringing in of heavy reinforcements from the east or Italy remains.

Faced by that dilemma, the Nazi command will may elect to retreat behind the Rhine in the south, or, if necessary, along its whole length, rather than shuttle troops westward from the Warsaw front on the vista in Poland. For there can be no doubt that heavy Russian forces have been massed there for a major effort to match the allied winter drive in the west.

All-Sorority Variety Show to Call Out Student Talent

Student Production Planned for February

Panhellenic Council To Select Writers From Houses Nov. 30

Sorority women who can sing, dance, act, write, draw, or just be useful in general, might do well to polish up their talents for an all-sorority variety show in the offing about the middle of February.

To be held in the University theater with a war stamp as the price of admission, the program promises to be one which will provide fun and jobs for all. It will be entirely under student supervision and will offer a chance for women to work together and become better acquainted with each other. This is SU's first attempt at an all-sorority variety show—a program which is carried out on most university campuses.

The publicity committee, headed by Dorothy Herrick, A2 of Denver, Col., announced the tentative plans to the sorority houses this week and it is expected that a new high in Panhellenic talent and co-operation will be hit.

Beverly Zlotky, A3 of Omaha, Neb., Panhellenic inter-chapter activities chairman, will be general chairman of the production and the members of her committee will help in the planning. Eileen Schenken, A3 of Marion; Mary Beth Pilner, A3 of Des Moines and Mary Ann Lawton, A2 of Benton Harbor, Mich.

Miss Zlotky's committee will cooperate with the members of Dorothy Herrick's publicity staff: Kay Barngrover, A3 of Cedar Rapids; Eleanor Pownall, A2 of Iowa City; Mary Osborne, A3 of Ottumwa and Martha Richardson, A3 of Evansville, Ill.

Each sorority will choose a representative to act as a writer and she will appear for an interview before the publicity and inter-chapter activities committees of Panhellenic, Thursday, Nov. 30. From these twelve women, four or five will be chosen to start immediate work on writing the production.

Soon after this, talent will be called for try-outs from all sorority houses.

Paul Fan Speaks To Cosmopolitan Club

Paul Fan, G of Tsing Tao, China, addressed Cosmopolitan club Sunday evening at the Unitarian church on "A Better Understanding of China."

Nearly 8,000,000 Chinese have been killed, wounded, or left refugees by the war against Japan, declared Fan. He pointed out that the Chinese have suffered greatly because they were in favor of peace. "Sometimes there is too much peace," he remarked, "and if there is another war, the people will be ready. Fan expressed great confidence in the future of China after the defeat of Japan.

"We realize that many of our government officials ought to be shot, he exclaimed in refuting charges that the entire Chinese government was undermined by corruption.

Communists in China have created a problem, but one not nearly so great as certain newspapers would lead one to believe, stated Fan. One cause of friction with the Communists is the existence of their separate army which operates independently of the regular Chinese force. Nearly 90 percent of the people in northern China, where Fan has lived, disapprove of the Communists, he said.

Fan explained that most people favor the Kaominto, Chinese national party headed by Chiang Kai Shek, a leader who has won the respect of most all the Chinese people.

As a part of the Cosmopolitan club program, a dinner featuring Chinese dishes was served. Chairman of the committee planning this meeting was Mary Jane Zech, A3 of Omaha, Neb.

7,000 Turkeys Dressed and Ready For Holiday

More than 7,000 turkeys are dressed and ready for their star performance on Iowa City dinner tables Thursday. The manager of the Iowa City Poultry and Egg company said yesterday that the dressing of poultry for the Thanksgiving holiday has been finished.

Some retail stores yesterday had fewer than 100 turkeys available. Most of these were on order.

One retailer said all small turkeys had been sold and that the only other birds available will be 20 or 25 pounders.

Although poultry dealers think Iowa Citians should be quite well satisfied with their Thanksgiving fare, they fear persons in larger cities will not enjoy the usual holiday dinner.

Patients at University hospital will find baked turkey on the trays Thanksgiving day. Boys and girls at children's hospital will have mashed potatoes and giblet gravy, frozen peas, cranberry sauce, hot rolls and chocolate ice cream.

Chickens and geese (ducks aren't so easy to get) will share the spotlight with turkeys this Thanksgiving day in many homes.

Hawkeyes Receive Day Off; Seahawks Hold Light Practice

Iowa to Try For Showing In Last Game

Beaten, battered and bamboozled the Iowa Hawk took the day off yesterday to give its broken and chipped talons time to grow back in before preparing for the questionably healthy business of taking on the Seahawks in the last ordeal of the year.

After more or less close examination of this contest about only one strong point can be found in its favor. That is that the government will have no complaint as to the location. All the travelling will be done by foot with one team having to cross the raging Iowa river, and the other merely having to trek a couple of hundred yards from its barracks to get to the battlefield.

Hard Year

It is difficult to say how Slip Madigan's team will react to the slapping they took last Saturday but, on the other hand, maybe it is nothing to worry about. This has been a long, hard year which, if nothing else, has taught the Iowa kids how to endure pain without complaint.

Probably the most unpleasant feature of last week's get together with the galloping Gopher was the realization—brought home with a sledge hammer—that the Old Gold took the worst chipping of the entire year. This could lead to the sad supposition that the team has not become any better since the first massacre against Ohio State "way back" last October. Either that or the opposition has been living on raw meat each week before tackling the Hawkeyes.

Illinois Game

Looking at it all from still another viewpoint those who have seen the outfit in action during every game this season are being heard to say—if you strain your ears—"no, they can't be that bad." And, chances are, they aren't. There have been times, not many it is true, that the Hawks have looked as though they had more than a bowing acquaintance with the sport. These occasions were in the Illinois tiff, despite the 40 to 6 tally, the first half against Purdue and the Nebraska epic at which time the tackling was a thing of beauty to behold.

There are still those who say that if Buddy Young had worn Gold and Black that day at Champaign the score would have been reversed. On the other hand there are those who say that "if" is a very large word.

The Boiler-maker tilt saw the best football displayed by the squad at any time thus far. Maybe it is true that a team which is only fair does go over its head but once during a campaign. At any rate the group for a while displayed football which was definitely Big Ten caliber.

Tough Big Ten

It is a real puzzle as to why Iowa has not made a better showing. After all, the team is loaded with what was—last year, at any rate—excellent high school talent. A good many of the players had seen plenty of action and had received high ratings for their performances.

Why, then, the grammar school showing as typified by last Saturday's satire? Well, maybe the jump from simple addition to higher mathematics has been too great. Big Ten football is of high caliber and those who teach it demand results close to perfection. Slip Madigan is a good coach and his brand of T calls for a blend which is difficult to find without much exploration.

This weekend obviously offers little hope, except for a decent showing. It would seem, then, that it is now out of Madigan's capable hands, and the players' fate tossed right into their own laps.

Girls Divide Matches In Chicago Hockey

The Iowa field hockey team won the second of two games at hockey play day, organized by the Chicago Field Hockey association, in Chicago Nov. 18 and 19. Saturday, Nov. 18, the Iowa players lost to the North Shore association 5 to 0. Nov. 19 the Iowa players met the University of Chicago and defeated them 2 to 1.

Competing teams were from three colleges and four associations. The association teams are made up of women who are not in school but play hockey as a pastime. The three universities included the University of Chicago, the University of Illinois and the University of Iowa. The four associations were North Shore, Ill., Chicago, Milwaukee and Madison.

Umpiring ratings of the United States Field Hockey association were awarded to several of the players who took their trials at the play day. The National B was awarded to Miss Margaret Poley and Miss Carol Dunger of the physical education staff. Miss Margaret Mordy of the physical

ONE OF FEW Iowa Hawkeyes who has given unhappy fans something to cheer about this year is center Bob Snyder. Obtaining a regular berth shortly after the start of the campaign the husky 191-pounder has been a tower of strength at his job of backing up the Hawk line. He will be in the starting lineup when Slip Madigan's men play their last contest of the year Saturday against the Seahawks.

Bucks Fight For Title

Ohio State, Michigan—A Football Natural Playing Saturday

By HAROLD HARRISON COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If there ever was a football "natural," it's coming up here Saturday between Ohio State's unbeaten and united Bucks and Michigan's once-beaten Wolverines.

Over the years, there have been few gridiron rivalries more intense than that between Ohio State and Michigan but that's only incidental this year.

Capacity Crowd The game Saturday will have more angles than you'll find in junior's geometry book and because of them there will be a capacity crowd of around 74,000 for the game.

First, Ohio State now is just 60 minutes of playing time away from its first perfect regular season in 24 years.

Next, a combination of circumstances has made this game the Western conference's championship tilt. Ohio State can take the title for the second time in three years by beating or tying the Wolverines. A Michigan victory would give the Wolverines the crown, with six games won and one lost, against five won and one lost for Ohio State and possibly Purdue.

Rose Bowl Possibility And then there is that intriguing Rose Bowl possibility. If the Big Ten decides to lift its ban on postseason games, it's a good bet the winner of the game here will be invited to the New Year's day classic.

Acting head Coach Carroll Widides of Ohio State reported yesterday the Bucks came out of Saturday's game with Illinois without any serious injuries. Ohio State has won every game by at least two touchdowns and Widides described the Michigan game as "the toughest one yet."

Assistant coaches Ernie Godfrey and Paul Bixler, reporting on the scouting trips to Michigan games, said they were "tremendously impressed" by the Wolverines.

Michigan Good "Anyone who says Ohio State shouldn't be the big favorite just doesn't know what he's talking about," said Godfrey.

"Last week Crisler (Fritz Crisler, the Michigan coach) pulled a master stroke of psychology in getting ready for this game. The Michigan offense was limited to just about five or six plays and it made the boys look bad. But other scouts say the Ohio State and Michigan lines are about on a par. I believe they're strongest offensively with their running attack and I don't think they lost much strength by service transfers."

education staff received the Local B and Paula Raff, A3 of Highland Park, Ill., received the Local C.

Old Professor—Illini Unlucky

By WHITNEY MARTIN NEW YORK (AP)—The Old Professor was trying to dope out the winner of the Army-Navy game as he faced his Monday morning class of football coaches. The Old Professor was always trying to dope out something. That's why they called him an old doper, he hoped.

Old Professor—Good morning, gentlemen, and quit giggling, Mr. Widdoes. Carroll Widdoes, Ohio State—Can't help it, professor. I keep thinking of those ticklish spots we've been against Illinois. But we got past them. The boys just kept digging. We've got the big one coming up.

Illinois Ray Eliot, Illinois—Now I don't want to sound like sour grapes, professor, but that 27-yard run by Greenwood was the 10th touchdown we've had called back this year. This is one of the most luckless ball clubs I've ever seen. Saturday was just another case of experience telling.

Old Professor—Well, I suppose it's all right for experience to tell if it's no secret, heh, heh. You seem pleased, Mr. Simons. Claude "Little Monk" Simons, Tulane—Yes sir, I'm glad that Clemson game is over. We scored easily, but so did Clemson. Their Sid Tinsley was great.

Frank Howard, Clemson—My boys fought their hearts out. Tinsley's 60 minutes of play was pleasing. Tulane just had too many guns in Robinson, Renfro and Jones.

Old Professor—Mr. Simpson, where are you going? Missouri Chauncey Simpson, Missouri—I think I'm in the wrong class. I notice the Iowa Seahawk coach here, and that bunch isn't in our class. I used some regulars sparingly after I saw the game was lost, as I couldn't afford to risk injuries with the Kansas game coming up.

Lieut. Comdr. Jack Meagher, Iowa Seahawks—The thing that pleased me most was the showing of our reserves, and our fine downfield blocking. I thought maybe Missouri was thinking about the Kansas game next week.

Old Professor—And if I know Kansas, it was thinking about Missouri. Any comments, Mr. Allison? California L. B. "Stub" Allison, California—Only this, professor. That team we met Saturday is one of the best U.S.C. teams I've ever seen. Well-balanced, with good players. Quarterback Jim Hardy is one of the best. How you going to beat 'em if you can't catch 'em?

Jeff Cravath, Southern California—We had the all-around advantage, including the fact it had no effective pass thrower against us. Considering his material, I think Allison has done a swell job. That Roger Harding is a great defensive player, the best center on the coast.

Hawklet Basketball Varsity, B's Drill

Outcome of Season Depends on Number Called to Services

With four lettermen of last year's team back in the fold, a couple of reserves as possibilities, several players from the freshman-sophomore squad, and bolstered by three transfer students, Coach Wally Schwank of the City high Little Hawk basketball team is keeping his fingers crossed.

A squad of 25 players started workouts three weeks ago in preparation for the coming season. From all indications it looks as though the Hawklets might gain some measure of revenge among the perpetrators of their many Mississippi Valley conference football defeats, suffered during the past season.

Plenty of "ifs" However, there are plenty of "ifs" connected with those rosy prospects and only time will tell just what will materialize from the squad of classy performers now on hand.

Most of the "ifs" connected with the present set-up center around the gentleman with the long white whiskers, Uncle Sam is just likely to call a couple of the better boys before the season is very far along, or as a matter of fact, before it even gets under way.

With only two games on the Hawklet schedule before Christmas, and those of the so-called warm-up variety, it will be hard to get a clear picture of the power of the Red and White until they meet McKinley at Cedar Rapids Dec. 8.

Open Season The Hawklets will open their doubtful season Nov. 28 on their home floor against West Branch, following up with another warm-up scrimmage against Washington there Dec. 1. Both of these games, although admittedly merely workouts for the Little Hawks, should give some basis to work out presumptions for the coming season.

As the season is still much too young to prognosticate as to just who will show up whom, little can be said on the formative plans of Coach Schwank. Some of the kids coming up from the freshman-sophomore squad are sure to make a race of it with the more "diced in the wool" contenders for the positions.

Lettermen At the present, Coach Schwank is not sure whom the squad will be built around. He has three lettermen out for practice now and another expected out after he is over a siege of illness, but just because they hold letters is no sign that they will be on the starting varsity five. The three lettermen drilling now include: Bob Freeman, Dick Kallous and Boddy Lacina. Bob Lee, the fourth member of the quartet, is expected to report this week.

Two standouts from last year's freshman-sophomore squad may aid the Hawklets materially. Jim Van Deuzen, whose father was an All-American basketball player at the University of Iowa some years ago, and Dick Drake are giving the experienced lads a serious problem in the battle for positions.

Reserves from last year's squad who will undoubtedly offer plenty of competition for the coveted spots on the varsity are: Bud Ruppel, Otto Proehl, Dean Housel and Phil Cady.

At the present time, Don Sehr, transfer student from Sharon, is getting plenty of attention from Coach Schwank. The towering height of Sehr, along with his ability to handle rebounds, should aid the Little Hawks' offense considerably.

Two other transfer students, Russell Lackender, also of Sharon, and Dean Hartzler of Riverside, are counted on heavily for plenty of front line duty when the conference battles open.

Freshman-Sophomore The freshman-sophomore squad has also started work and as things appear now, some of the more outstanding players on the "B" squad might get promotions to varsity competition before the season is very far along. Coach Schwank said that the "B" squad will play certain raises at all of the Little Hawk home games and will also play a few out of town games.

Coach Schwank announced late yesterday the varsity squad

Second Guess

Seahawks Will Use Plenty of Reserves

Iowa football, which reached a new 1944 low last weekend, has taken considerable panning from state scribes in the last few days and it seems fitting to let bygones be bygones and to look ahead to new, and maybe better, days.

But don't look for a brighter future in this Saturdays' contest. It stands to reason the cadets will have plenty to yell about this Saturday in the Iowa stadium and the crippled Hawk youngsters will find there is nothing they can do about it.

A post-mortem on the Seahawk fiasco at Columbia last weekend might be in keeping in view of coming events. The pre-flighters pulled a smooth trick in gathering in a point for every one of the 51 cadets they took on the trip. As it was, all the travellers got a chance to play with almost five complete teams seeing action in the course of the afternoon.

Much of the Seahawk secret lies in their seemingly endless pool of reserves. While the Hawks struggle along with almost an entire 60-minute line and a few changes in the backfield, the Seahawks will be able to trot a new team on and off the field at least every quarter, if they so desire.

Chances are that the majority of Saturday's contest will be played by pre-flight reserves with the regulars in only at the beginning of the halves.

Even at that the Hawks are bound to have trouble with the Navy's variety of plays and capable passing.

Both teams are closing their season and the all-Iowa contest was planned as a sort of finale—but will turn out to be only a curtain call for the nationally ranked pre-flighters.

A couple of Minnesota sports writers sat in front of us in the press box Saturday and complained throughout the game that they needed to be introduced to the Gopher team on the field.

Which may not be too indicative as we think it over. The same men were still in a haze early in the fourth quarter as to the identification of Iowa's most frequent ball carriers. "Who's 57?" they muttered.

Kellog House Beats Phi Beta Pi, 14-13

Kellog house emerged victorious by a one point margin over Phi Beta Pi in yesterday's only intramural battle. Kellog 14; Phi Beta Pi 13.

Calvert paced the Kellog boys, passing to Speiss for both tallies, and connecting to Robinson for the extra points which meant the ball game.

had been cut to 20 to better facilitate handling of individuals. The freshman-sophomore squad was cut to 25.

Army-Navy Tickets—Big Jumble

Baltimore (AP)—"No sir, we can't do anyone any special favors. Mail a bond receipt and $4.80 to the Maryland war finance committee and you'll get a ticket to the Army-Navy game?"

"Miss Smith, this party wants to know if she can buy 50 bonds in the name of a club and get tickets."

"Miss Smith, here's Washington again. It's a senator's office."

"Winston-Salem is more than ten miles from Baltimore, isn't it?" "Miss Smith..." And so on, ad infinitum.

Jangling telephones, jumbled people and jittery nerves—that was the normally sedate Maryland war finance committee office yesterday a few hours after applications for service classic tickets became acceptable.

Across town somewhere, at an undisclosed rendezvous, eight men prayed for volunteer assistants and plunged into the first three batches of mailed applications—approximately 5,000 envelopes.

It's a cinch more than enough applications to fill the stadium—the acceptable mailed variety and not those given by phone or in person—will be neatly numbered in order of opening long before the first tickets are mailed out early next week.

No, the committee or Chairman F. W. Wrightson don't know how many civilians they can cram in the expected 70,000-plus capacity stadium after expansion now under way. The Army and Navy have first call on tickets and what's left over go to civilians.

Guesses on general public admissions, however, centered around 30,000, dependent on how many temporary stands will be erected in the stadium where normal seating capacity is 60,000.

The Navy, at Annapolis, will honor some 19,000 applications received for the game when it was due to be played in Annapolis.

The war department in Washington said the army athletic association could meet ticket requests for its subscribers members—four each, and that other personnel should apply through the Maryland war finance committee.

And they are—in wholesale numbers.

But it was all in reverse. Maj. Andy Gustafson, Army backfield coach, discussed Navy's prowess and then leaned back while Lieut. Comdr. E. E. (Rip) Miller, Middle line tutor, divulged all the secrets of the Cadet scoring machine.

Gustafson rated Don Whitmore as the best college tackle in the country and one who needed very little help from anyone in halting plays. Hal Hamburg, Navy's mife passer, got almost as much praise.

Players Hear Scouts Report; Reserves Lost

Iowa's Seahawks, who had an easy time of it Saturday when they drubbed the Missouri Tigers 51-7, were back at work yesterday charting the course for victory No. 10 when they play their final game of the season with the Iowa Hawkeyes here this Saturday.

The Seahawks, who have definitely established themselves as one of the top football teams in the nation again this year, spent most of their practice session yesterday listening to a scouting report, although they did report to the field for a brief loosening up drill later in the day.

Field Day In the field day which the Pre-Flighters had at Columbia Saturday, only forty more men would have been needed to make a total of five full football teams see action. As it was, not only second and third stringers got to play, but nearly every cadet who made the trip got in for at least a little while.

Of the 51 players who took part in the massacre of Missouri, only one Seahawk player, Bob Baggott, was injured seriously enough to keep him from the final contest with Iowa.

Reserves Absent Baggott, a former Chicago Leo high school star, who was described last week by Lieut. Comdr. Jack Meagher as "the equal to any end on the squad" suffered a knee injury when he broke through the Tiger line to spill a Missouri back for a four yard loss.

Other reserves who will not be on tap for the home contest with Iowa are No. 2 fullback Jim McEvoy, and quarterback John McCullough, who have joined guard Harold Holmes on leave. While both of the first two players were starters at the beginning of the season, they have not seen too much action in recent weeks.

Scoring Parade In the race for the scoring championship of the Seahawks Bob Smith, fancy stepping halfback who has shone for the Seahawks all season, kept one step ahead of his closest rival, Don Samuel, by scoring two touchdowns.

Not to be outdone, Samuel also crossed the goal line twice for the cadets to give him a total of seven touchdowns to eight for Smith.

Four Men Executed For Bolivia Revolt LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Four men were executed yesterday in the city of Oruro for an unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the government of President Gualberto Villarroel, it was announced by the government radio.

They were identified as Colonel Eduardo Blanco and Fernando Carron and two civilians, Miguel Brito and Fernando Loyaza Beltrán.

A government communique said loyal troops had entered Oruro and "received a hearty ovation from the people."

The newspaper El Diario said former President Gen. Carlos Quintanilla was under arrest along with a former defense minister, Gen. Miguel Candia, and two other former cabinet members in previous administrations.

Three Year Record Shows Registration Or 2,773 Bicycles

There now are 2,773 bicycles in Iowa City, police records show. Police began to register all bicycles in the city and issue licenses July 18, 1941. Before the metal shortage became acute, bicyclists were given a license plate in the form of a shield. The new plate is a thin metal strip.

A 25 cent charge is made for each permanent registration and each time ownership of a bicycle is transferred, the change must be registered at the police station. A charge of 10 cents is made for transfer of ownership.

Navy Man Charged With Reckless Driving

The trial of Robert Ned Harris, who is charged with reckless driving, was continued until 5 p. m. Friday by Police Judge Jack C. White yesterday.

Harris is stationed at the Iowa Navy Pre-Flight school here. Navy officers objected to the trial on the grounds that the state has no jurisdiction in such a case. The trial has been continued until proper jurisdiction can be determined.

Harris was driving north on highway 218 late Saturday night when D. O. Braden of the Iowa Highway Patrol and H. M. Putnam, sheriff of Washington county, pursued him from the Ainsworth junction.

Braden said they followed Harris for 26 miles and at no time did he drive less than 70 miles an hour. Harris was arrested after entering the city limits of Iowa City.

Doris Mae Campbell, Ens. Don R. Huddleston Wed in Double Ring Service in Iowa City

Ens. and Mrs. Don R. Huddleston

In a double ring ceremony, Doris Mae Campbell, daughter of Mrs. A. L. Cople of Cedar Rapids, became the bride of Ens. Don R. Huddleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joy B. Huddleston of Bridgeport, Ill. Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock in the Methodist church. The Rev. Victor V. Goff officiated before an altar decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums, palms and candelabra.

Preceding the service, Mrs. Thomas Muir presented nuptial organ selections and Margaret Allen, university student from Cedar Rapids, sang "I Love You Truly" (Bond) and "Because" (D'Hardelet).

Attending the couple were Mrs. Williams Henthorne, university student from McGregor, as matron of honor, and Edward Kopeck, student in the college of medicine under the navy program, as best man. Ushers were Kenneth Krabbenhoft and John Foster, also navy medical students.

White Satin Gown
The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, selected for her wedding a floor-length gown of white satin designed princess style, accented with lace panels. The fitted bodice was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and bridal point sleeves and outlined with satin rosebuds. Her full skirt extended into a junior train. She wore a Juliet cap with a fingertip veil and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and white chrysanthemums. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

The matron of honor was attired in a floor-length gown of pastel blue brocade taffeta, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and three-quarter length sleeves. She wore a pastel yellow Dutch cap and carried a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Cople chose a moss green crepe ensemble with brown accessories and a gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a black dress accented with sequins and had black accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Home is wonderful, agrees Pfc. Marine Glenn Fitzpatrick, home on a 30-day furlough for the first time in two years—but it isn't all sleeping until 12 every morning and loafing with the boys after lunch.

He was wearing a sweat shirt, fatigue jacket and wrinkled trousers yesterday afternoon—and he was wearing a white shirt and tie today. Iowa City is a long way from the Marshalls but you don't have to be on active duty in the marines to serve detail, the young private is discovering. Even a small town in the heart of America can be pretty rugged.

Beating rugs is far from Private Fitzpatrick's usual pastime, however, during his precious 30 days at home. "I spend my time just horsing around," he grinned, "most of the time sleeping and eating." Which sounds pretty much like the furlough dream of any fellow in the service.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Fitzpatrick, 431 S. Dubuque street, the young marine has been pretty well occupied the last two years manning a 50 caliber machine gun with an anti-aircraft battalion on the Solomon and Marshall islands. He entered the service in September, 1942.

"Mail service on the islands was very good," he reports. "Letters came through in about 10 days, that is, airmails and V-mails. Packages took quite a bit longer, of course."

As for entertainment, U. S. O. shows were just starting to come out, said the marine private. "But I didn't see any of them. They were quite a ways from our camp and I didn't bother to go." Among the entertainers who came to the islands were Bob Hope and his troupe.

"We spent most of our time off reading and horsing around," added Private Fitzpatrick. "We had some phonographs but no radios."

After two years away from home, there are quite a few calls a fellow has to make on relatives and friends, the young marine is discovering, and he has been spending a good portion of his afternoon "just plain visiting."

A graduate of St. Patrick's high school, he attended St. Ambrose college in Davenport for a year before entering the service. He reports to the naval supply depot at Williamsburg, Va., on Dec. 17.

Students are invited to come over during the afternoon and to stay for dinner in the evening.

After the dinner there will be entertainment, including stunts, skits and group singing. Those wishing to go should make reservations immediately with Victor Goff at 3753.

A Thanksgiving open house beginning at 7:30 p. m. Thursday will be given for all members of Westminster fellowship of the Presbyterian church.

Entertainment has been planned by the social committee, and students may come and go as they wish during the evening.

Marjorie Tennes Married Sunday In Little Chapel

In a double ring ceremony, Marjorie May Tennes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Tennes of Davenport, became the bride of Lieut. (j.g.) John Frederick Kagay, son of Mrs. Marion C. Kagay, of Columbus, Ohio, Sunday at 4 p. m. in the Little Chapel of the Congregational church.

The Rev. James E. Waery officiated at the ceremony in the presence of immediate friends and relatives.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Thomas C. Muir, organist, presented a medley of nuptial selections, and also played the traditional wedding recessional march.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Mary Sass, student at the University of Iowa, and serving as best man was Ben Merritt, army medical student, who is stationed in Iowa City.

The bride was attired in a street-length dress of jonquil wool, fashioned with a V-neckline edged with white ruffles, and short tailored sleeves. Black accessories and a corsage of white carnations completed her ensemble.

The maid of honor selected a two-piece street-length dress of turquoise wool, designed with a V-neckline and short sleeves. She wore black accessories and her corsage was of pink roses.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Tennes chose a two-piece brown silk crepe ensemble, with brown accessories. Tallismans formed her shoulder corsage.

The bride was graduated from Davenport high school, and is now a senior at the University of Iowa. Lieutenant Kagay is a graduate of the Richmond, Ohio, high school and Ohio State university at Columbus. He is now being transferred from the Ottumwa naval station to Pensacola, Fla., where the bride will join him after her graduation in December.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Tennes of Davenport.

Boy Scouts To Assist In Bond Drive

Determined to equal the perfect record of meeting and exceeding the quotas set in the five previous bond drives, Johnson county yesterday began its Sixth War Loan drive with a quota set at $1,883,000. This is part of the $14,883,000 the American people are asked to contribute during the drive.

In this campaign the quota has been divided, with $1,309,000 set for individual purchasers and $574,000 for corporations. The goal for this drive is $171,000 less than the figure set for the Fifth War Loan drive, which was the highest set for the county.

Boy Scouts of America, under the direction of Owen B. Thiel, Boy Scout executive, will assist in the campaign. The Scouts will be organized into units resembling the civilian defense block worker plan and will be responsible for soliciting bond buyers in assigned areas in Iowa City. They will be a portion of the 6,000,000 volunteer workers who will conduct a house-to-house canvass throughout the nation.

Edith Reynolds Files Petition for Divorce
A petition for divorce was filed in district court yesterday by Edith Reynolds charging her husband, Amos Reynolds, with cruel and inhuman treatment and desertion.

The couple was married in Iowa City, Aug. 1, 1920, and separated during August, 1940. They have two children, Richard, 9, and Glenn, 15.

Mrs. Reynolds asks for custody of the children.

Swisher and Swisher are the attorneys for the plaintiff.

Motorists who use gasoline illegally to travel to winter resorts face the loss of their mileage rations, Waldo Geiger director of the local war price and rationing board asserted yesterday.

University of Buffalo Professor Discusses Alsace-Lorraine

Prof. Charles J. Beyer, visiting member of the faculty of the French department at the University of Buffalo, spoke last night on "Alsace-Lorraine, a Barometer of Franco-German Relations" in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

"What distinguishes a nation is neither the race nor the language," he remarked, pointing out the fallacies in German propaganda which would gather all people of the same race or language into one group. German propaganda was disguised under the form of cultural interests while that nation gathered strength to declare war, he explained.

This policy of German aggression can not be explained on the basis of "hereditary enemies" or only German militarism, since France was a united nation over 100 years before Germany rose to power and since the military might of a nation is only the tool of its leaders, he said.

French citizens in Alsace-Lorraine were treated to only "one refinement in German cruelty," he remarked. They suffered the humiliation of being considered German citizens with the resultant duties of military service. Many forced into the German army surrendered to the Russians on the eastern front and have returned to France by way of North Africa to form a special brigade fighting for the liberation of their homeland.

"In the case of Alsace-Lorraine, it is easy to see how the Germans would sometimes speak only of culture and at other times would do the opposite and admit they wanted to have Alsace-Lorraine whatever the people there might wish."

It is already pretty obvious that we will not be able to entrust the government of Germany to the so-called good Germans. They need some time in order to become

Shop Now—Mail in November to Avoid Christmas Congestion, Post Offices Urge

Unless more people buy and mail this month the postal service cannot do its job of delivering all Christmas gifts on time," according to Postmaster General Frank C. Walker. Public response to the post office department's "Shop Now—Mail in November" campaign is good but needs to be better.

"It is not pleasing to us to have to ask the American people to mail packages so far in advance of the delivery date," Walker said. "We do so only because it has to be done. The job is a tremendous one, but we are confident that it will be done because we know from experience that given sound reasons, Americans cooperate magnificently."

"Unprecedented shortage of manpower and transportation facilities growing out of the war compel early mailing. The postal service has given 50,000 experienced employees to the armed forces and 300,000 railroad workers have gone to war. Equally serious is the fact that rail and other transport facilities are taxed to the limit with the great burden of war traffic which all of us know must take precedence.

"In a great number of our 43,000 post offices the manpower situation is critical. The 200,000 extra workers whom we normally recruited to handle the swollen Christmas volume of mail were able to work long hours of overtime and to do heavy work. This cannot be expected from the women and high school boys and girls who will help this year," he explained.

"The way in which everyone responds in making it possible for us to handle a volume of 70,000,000 parcels for the armed forces overseas leaves no doubt in my mind that the November Christmas mailing will be equally successful. I ask for the help of the press, radio, business advertisers, civic groups and all Americans in making it possible for the postal service to do its work."

Walker urged everyone to buy now, mail in November and mark gifts "DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISTMAS."
