Aviation Delegates Propose International Air Transport Plan

CHICAGO (AP)—A complete plan for regulated world air competition which could be made effective immediately through executive action was available yesterday to delegates of the international civil aviation conference for the first time in their 24-day meeting.

The blanks in a proposed overall air transport plan submitted jointly by the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom Monday were filled in yesterday by separate documents from the American and British leaders, with the lines so close together that only one important point of controversy appeared to remain.

While this was taking place, the conference went ahead in closed session, determined to clear as quickly as possible those points on which the "Big Three" countries had agreed. The blanks were passed over and attention centered on getting a tentative general agreement. Considerable progress was reported, with the hope expressed that the two documents covering the blanks—these relate to a "fifth freedom of the air" and adjustment of carrying capacity to traffic—would be reached on Monday.

The conference atmosphere changed to one of rising optimism, although leaders still were cautious of predicting complete success.

The unsolved problem — it is freely admitted — is on principle had been reached last week — concerns the right to pick up and discharge traffic in countries other than the home and terminus countries of the airline (the so-called "fifth freedom") and its application to the adjustment of traffic carrying capacity (escalator clause).

The differences on this point relate to both the initial allotment of capacity and the formula for increasing capacity quotas after a three-year trial period on the basis of average payloads carried. There seemed to be no other serious divergence between the two outlines, and much of the language used in the separately prepared documents was similar.

The British said frankly they had acceded to inclusion of a "fifth freedom" in the light of conference discussions; that they were willing to limit the functions of an international body to "advise and recommend," as the United States proposed, and that they had accepted the escalator theory to encourage the efficient operator. Those steps represent important concessions to American and Canadian views.

One potential difficulty which the two countries solved was the British objection to a downward

Opinion On and Off the Campus—

What Human Traits Do You Think Cause Wars?

I. J. Barron, insurance salesman of Iowa City: "I think it is a selfishness that leads to a misunderstanding."

James Baldwin, radiator repairman of Iowa City: "It is greed that causes wars."

Henry Cutler, AI of Logan: "I think that want of power by certain unscrupulous individuals is the chief cause of war."

Jesse L. Richardson, state D. A. V. adjutant of Iowa City: "I think that it is a feeling of superiority on the part of individuals and groups. This feeling grows and becomes an obsession. It is this same feeling of superiority that causes quarrels between individuals. One could say that selfish nationalism is the cause of wars."

Cadet Nurse Dorothy Brown of Bethany, Mo.: "Greed."

Jean McFadden, A4 of Oska-loosa: "I think selfishness is the chief human trait that causes war."

Paul Mallon Says—

So many people hate to see the other fellow get ahead of them."

Claire Ferguson, AI of Des Moines: "I suppose the idea of getting ahead of rival nations. A good example is the Romans conquering the world. Since that time other nations have gotten the same idea."

Shirley Miller, high school senior: "I think that greed is the main cause of wars. I suppose the best example is the present war, with Hitler as a typical example of someone ruled by greed."

Mary Lamb, A2 of Des Moines: "I think lust for power causes many wars. A person, or group of persons, will go to any lengths to fulfill personal ambitions, when they are after power. They do not care what methods they use or how many people they hurt in achieving their own ends."

Jean Kuehl, A2 of Waukee: "An insane desire for conquest and mastery of the world has been and is the cause for wars. Hitler wanted to be master of the world and look what happened."

Lois Ita, C4 of Burlington: "I think the desire for power and the selfish interest of many people does a great deal towards causing wars. After the last war Germany was cut down from her former political power with the result that the people became frustrated and readily accepted a man who could restore this power to them."

Dee Haffner, visitor from Chicago: "Pugnaciousness, greed, nationalism, selfishness and prejudice are all undesirable characteristics in men which tend to cause wars."

Ralph Capito, G of Des Moines: "I think that greed causes more war than any other human trait. Greed is the nucleus of all the evil and selfishness in war."

All the News From China Has Been Bad Lately

WASHINGTON—All the news from China has been so bad lately, excepting Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek's thorough shaking out of his cabinet.

From the inside, it appears that the Generalissimo, having been instrumental in ousting our General Stilwell and thus having saved face with his own people for the military failures, is now getting ready to cooperate more closely with the other united nations, at least this is what might be termed the inner official view here.

The motives behind the Stilwell withdrawal, unexplained at the time, thus now become more fully evident. The whole panoply of mystifying news from that front thus becomes apparent. Chiang has always been suspicious of the Chinese Communists.

While they are fighting on his side with their armies far off in the north, he actually has had soldiers detached from his own war effort on the Japanese front to watch them. True, the Communists have not been much of a deterrent to the Japs. While some published estimates of their strength run as high as 300,000, numbers are worthless in gauging any Chinese fighting forces.

No one knows exactly how many troops the Communies have, except that these have been sufficient to repel a few Jap attacks. Many whom they count as soldiers are actually farmers who run to action in an emergency. Others are untrained civilians, and the term "bandit" has been applied to a few in the past.

Now by kicking from his cabinet the strongest anti-communist elements, Chiang is falling in line with the ideas of officialdom here for more coherent action on that front.

However, the change can be interpreted as more political than military so far.

Those who know the new war minister say they expect his leadership to bring some "improvement" in Chinese fighting, but very few people in this country, appreciate the difficulties he is facing.

Frankly, it must now be said that no satisfactory Chinese military effort has developed anywhere lately. The action on the Salween river front may be an exception, but there we trained the officers and men. It is now time to admit also China is mostly in Jap hands. All of the industry and much of the agriculture went long ago. The seacoast is closed. Most of the internal railroads are controlled by the Japs.

We are today flying in from India through the only contact the Chinese have with the outside world, more materials of war than were carried on the Burma road before the Japs cut it.

But our planes flying in a load of gasoline for instance probably consume as much as they can carry as a load. The limitations upon our assistance are therefore evident, and likely to continue indefinitely, although we have greatly increased our supplies in the last 5 months.

Then again we must recognize that her armies are sometimes led by what we used to call "provincial war lords," many of whom are politicians not strictly supporting the Chungking government.

The Chinese internal economic distribution system has not improved much since before the war, when news of vast starvation was a world sensation almost annually. Inflation is unbelievable, and indeed most authorities suspect China cannot survive financially even if peace comes soon. Certainly the central government is none too sure of itself.

But as these internal inefficiencies, dissensions and weaknesses are native to the Chinese, so also has been their cold, valorous spirit of resistance against the conqueror. While the difficulties practically amount now to internal demoralization, they are not likely to lead to a collapse of the fight on that front.

No one here expects such a critical conclusion. For one thing the Japs are not in a position to take full advantage of the situation.

You must therefore turn your eye to other fronts for good news and in any other direction you look, you will find it good.

Kirke L. Simpson Interprets the War News—

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
There was a post-Thanksgiving thrill in the war news from Europe and Asia alike.

Superbombers based on captured western Pacific islands blazed a new trail to Tokyo. The air siege of Japan aimed at her widespread war industries had begun.

In Europe, French-American breakthroughs were being swiftly exploited to sweep Alsace, and all France, free of Germans. Allied scouting elements even were reported beyond the Rhine in the region of recaptured Strasbourg, French Rhine bank metropolis, which had been the last French city of consequence in German hands.

These were headline rating developments, but to General Eisenhower and his joint staff at allied supreme headquarters in the west, there were other items in the news from the front probably of even greater moment.

Of prime importance to allied planners of the swelling western winter attack is the indication that the German command in the west now has been forced to commit its guarded and scanty reserves to battle on the Roer. Front line advances told of multi-division counter attacks thrown against British and American armies pounding through the Aachen breach in the Siegfried line. Included were jealously conserved Nazi armored divisions equipped with tiger tanks shipped direct from factory to front.

tively unimportant dents in the British or American attack front. The allied approach to the Roer moat guarding the way to Cologne and the west Rhine plain has been slowed but not stopped.

To General Eisenhower and his top staffers, however, the fact that the foe has elected to risk his all west of the Rhine rather than to retreat behind its broad waters for his final stand is of supreme importance. It means that in all likelihood the most decisive battle of the war in the west has been joined, even though the full scope and power of allied efforts to crash deep into Germany has yet to be reached.

Eisenhower's mission and the objective of all allied or Russian strategic moves is to come to grips with and destroy German armies in the field. The chance for that is immediately offered west of the Rhine if the Germans have now thrown in the bulk of their reserves there.

Americans Buy 500 Million Dollars In War Bonds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The gigantic home front assignment of borrowing five billion dollars from Mr. and Mrs. America was moving forward last night—with $563,000,000, snug in the vault.

This figure, announced by treasury officials enthusiastic over yesterday's news from the field, represents money paid by individuals and actually deposited to the credit of the treasury through Wednesday night.

Reports of additional sales in the Sixth War loan drive were pouring into the treasury—sales that probably won't show up importantly in the national totals until next week.

Besides the five billion dollar quota for individuals, nine billions must be drawn from corporations for an overall goal of 14 billions. No corporation figures will be announced until after Dec. 1, the issue date of various securities designed for corporate investment.

The drive began Monday and is slightly less than a week old—it will last four weeks, until Dec. 16.

Ninth Baconian Lecture Review—

"An engineer is one who utilizes materials and directs the forces of nature . . . to the benefit of society," stated Dean F. M. Dawson of the college of engineering last night as Baconian lecturer in Old Capitol.

Speaking on the "Advancements in Engineering Research at the State University of Iowa in the Decade Preceding Pearl Harbor," Dean Dawson stressed the various developments in departments of engineering at the university.

In dealing with improvements in each engineering department, he also pointed out that the most important single factor in the training of a competent engineer is his opportunity here to put into operation that which he has been taught.

"An analogy between engineering and medicine may be drawn, in that if medical students do not have opportunity for practical study and research, they have no knowledge of action required when they actually start their profession," said Dean Dawson.

In the department of chemical engineering, undergraduate and graduate students and faculty members participated in research on the modifications of various laws dealing with mathematical physics. These developments were made over five years ago.

Also of value in the field of chemical engineering research was work done in fuel, and especially with coals native to Iowa. Major coal investigations were undertaken for possibilities of cleaning low-grade Iowa coal. The results of these successful probings are now in use in many large manufacturing corporations.

Mechanical engineering research advancements have been made mainly in the areas of automotive fuel mixtures, ventilation and confidential military investigation. A blending of gas and alcohol for automotive fuel mixture was studied as well as ventilation problems for large-scale industrial plants.

In 1939 the mechanical engineering department dealt with special work on parts of battleships and aircraft carriers for the United States navy, as well as the bureau of aeronautics of the navy," said Dean Dawson.

Rocket and jet propulsion tests and studies are now in operation for the army and navy, which are necessarily confidential, he continued.

In the field of industrial engineering, training has been mainly in supervising and managing large industries. "Specialization in work simplification techniques" has been stressed in this area. According to Dean Dawson, the university college of engineering is a nation-wide leader in this type of course, stressing easier and better ways to work. In the phase of visual aid through motion pictures, the university has "proved a pioneer."

One of the largest and most unique features of the university college of engineering is hydraulic study. In the decade 1931 to 1941, this hydraulics laboratory was the first to concentrate upon model testing in connection with hydraulics. Much time, effort and money was saved on great river construction by the use of models here. Also studied in this field were the transportation of sediment by flowing water and the problem of turbulence.

The National Association of Master Plumbers chose the Iowa Institute of Hydraulics as its national laboratory, and much research has been devoted to plumbing problems.

River flow around bends, improvement in lock design and problems of seepage flow through sand have been investigated here, with resulting vital answers to questions dealing with these fields, stated Dean Dawson. Spillways and spillway dams, an ever-present problem in dam construction, have been studied and advanced here within the last decade.

"Many great structures have been built in this period and much of the information on which their design was based came from the Iowa Hydraulic Laboratory," said the dean.

In civil engineering, Dean Dawson stated that much has resulted from the civil engineer's study of air fields, buildings, dams and bridges.

Electrical engineering research has been based mainly upon television and electronic study. Television and related fields was introduced in the university in 1931, at which time it was the second university in the United States to receive a license for television operation. This research continued for a period of seven years.

"The importance of the general field of electronics has increased so rapidly that many of the important technical developments in the near future promise to be dependent upon it," stated Dean Dawson.

In addition to the many phases of actual research at the university college of engineering, Dean Dawson commented upon the great number of papers written and published in connection with the investigations made.

In conclusion, Dean Dawson said, "Unfortunately we cannot tell you at this time of the various research projects in connection with the war effort. However . . . the part played by the college of engineering has not been a minor one."

Senators to Probe Cigarette Shortage

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The senate war investigating committee decided yesterday to look into the cigarette shortage.

A preliminary exploration will start immediately, and the committee will decide next week whether to sanction a full-dress quiz into the scanty supply of smokes available for fighting men overseas and workers in the United States.

The investigation was suggested by Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) who declared "The shortage is a blow at the war effort when it hits the boys at the front."

Ferguson reported that Chairman McAd (D.-N.Y.) agreed to the recommendation and felt much the same way about the situation.

Littell May Refuse To Resign Post

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some members of congress expressed belief yesterday that assistant Attorney General Norman M. Littell would refuse Attorney General Biddle's request for his resignation.

Biddle was reported to have given incompleteness as his reason for asking the resignation. Neither he nor Littell had any public comment.

If Littell, a presidential appointee, should decline to tender his resignation, congressional sources contended that he could only be removed from office by presidential revocation of his appointment.

Japanese Report Arrival of American Relief Supplies

American Red Cross relief supplies for prisoners of war are reported by the Japanese to have arrived in Kobe, Japan, from Nakhodka, a Soviet port 100 miles east of Vladivostok last year, were moved by the Soviet government to Nakhodka and picked up by a Japanese boat.

Food, medicines, clothing, and some recreational supplies were sent by the American and Canadian Red Cross societies and the YMCA from a west coast port of the United States via Russian ships to the port of Vladivostok at the suggestion of the Japanese government after other methods of sending prisoner of war supplies to the Far East had been rejected by that government.

The cargo, valued at about $1,500,000, contained approximately 300,000 eleven-pound food packages, 2,661 cases of drugs and medical supplies, 19,500 sets of clothing, 4,200 pairs of army shoes, 7,080 overcoats, 125 cases of shoe repair materials, 21,000 sets of toilet articles, 1,000,000 cigarettes and 299 cases of Y. M. C. A. books and religious and recreational supplies.

It is understood that a delegate of the International committee of the Red Cross met the ship on arrival at Kobe to direct the forwarding of materials to allied prisoners of war. The international delegate has been instructed to make every effort to see that supplies are sent to camps that did not receive their share of the previous two shipments sent by the American Red Cross. Former shipments, valued at $1,462,926, were made on two voyages of the diplomatic exchange ship, Gripsholm, in 1942 and 1943.

Iowa, Missouri Universities to Debate At Columbia Tuesday

The University of Iowa will take the affirmative in a debate with the University of Missouri at Columbia scheduled for 8 o'clock Tuesday, Nov. 28. The subject of the debate is: "Resolved that students should be admitted to state universities without restrictions concerning race or color."

As announced by Prof. A. Craig Baird of the speech department, Iowa's representatives to the debate will be Gordon Christensen, A3 of Iowa City, and William Arnold, A4 of Marion, Ind. Both delegates are experienced debaters and ranked high in the intercollegiate debate and discussion tournament held at SUI Nov. 14-15. Both are members of Delta Sigma Rho, intercollegiate honorary debate fraternity.

Gordon Christensen is president of the intercollegiate debate board, Gavel club and Delta Sigma Rho; he was also chairman of the student political rallies held during the recent election campaign.

This debate will be recorded and printed in the H. W. Wilson publication, "University Debaters Annual, 1944-45." Last year Sally Birdsall, A3 of Waterloo, and Gordon Christensen debated on the affirmative side with the University of Missouri on the question of whether 18-year-olds should be allowed to vote or not. This will be the third annual series of debates between the two universities.

SUI Veterans Plan Dance

Navy Man Found Not Guilty on Charge Of Reckless Driving

Robert Ned Harris, who is stationed at the navy pre-flight school here, was found not guilty of a reckless driving charge in police court yesterday. Harris was arrested early Sunday morning by Patrolman D. O. Braden of the state highway patrol.

Braden said he followed Harris for 24 miles on highway 218 never driving under 70 miles an hour; he arrested Harris after he had entered Iowa City. Braden contended that Harris was driving beyond the distance of his headlights.

Police Judge Jack C. White decided that Harris' speeding was not sufficient proof that he was driving in such a way as to show intentional or wanton disregard for the safety of others. That Harris stopped at a railroad crossing, Judge White declared, showed that he was not maliciously or wantonly negligent to justify a conviction on reckless driving.

Ten Dietitian's Aides Awarded Certificates

Certificates of dietitian's aide were awarded Tuesday to ten Johnson county women who completed the Red Cross course by the chairman, Dr. Andrew H. Woods.

The course for dietitian's aide follows the 20-hour standard nutritional course and consists of 20 hours of lectures, 20 hours of supervised practice and 150 hours as a nutrition aide in the hospital.

Dr. Woods emphasizes the place of good nutrition in medicine. He says that many people think medicine cures, but actually all medicine can do is help the body remove undesirable constituents and condition the body for the rebuilding of normal healthy tissue. This can be done only by nutritional food, and the preparation of good food, well cooked and attractively served, shares equally with medicine in the healing of disease.

Those graduating Tuesday night were: Mrs. E. B. Olsen, Mrs. J. E. Negus, Eda A. Zwingli, Elizabeth Hunter, Mrs. V. W. Bales, Mrs. E. T. Peterson, Lulu Smith, Mrs. Jacob Van der Zee, Mrs. H. K. Newburn and Mrs. A. Craig Baird. These women also have taken the canteen course and have served lunches to inductees and men at the USO.

Vice-Admiral Mitscher Calls Japs 'Poorest Specimen of Man'

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Voicing his "utter contempt of the Japanese as a race," Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, task force 58 commander and experienced observer, yesterday said "they are the poorest specimen of man on this earth today, and I have had an opportunity to compare them with the so-called head hunters of the Solomon."

"I find them," he told a Chamber of Commerce luncheon here, "a vicious, savage, ignorant people, completely without morals or instincts that will permit them to fight fairly under the generally accepted rules of war. There may be some fair minded Japanese in the world today, but it has not been my privilege to meet them in this war."

AS MOSELLE RIVER GOES AWOL IN FRANCE

MEN OF A QUARTERMASTER laundry unit of the U. S. Seventh army look dolefully at the dampness with which they are surrounded as the Moselle river in the Epinal area puffs itself up beyond bank-strength. Shortly after the photo was made, the laundry moved to higher ground.

To the People of this Community

When our men marched down those narrow English roads between the hedges and went aboard their boats on the night before D-Day last June, they carried with them everything they needed to live and fight. Each man had on his person food and ammunition for twenty-four hours. Each unit was backed up by supplies and material to last through two weeks of fighting. In the second wave came other supplies, other guns, ammunition, medical units, food and field kitchens to carry the invasion still farther. So far as military planners could determine in advance there wasn't a single missing item. This goes for everything from bulldozers to blood plasma. Our men not only had enough weapons, but the best weapons ever made.

You made and paid for the more than one million different kinds of equipment which is writing this to the Nazis. Magnificent as your support has been in Europe your job is just beginning. The enemy is still there. In Japan he awaits you, your relatives and friends. Your purchase of at least one extra $100 War Bond in the Sixth War Loan will help to put the Japs where the other five war loans put the Nazis. THE EDITOR.

Christmas Seals to Be Delivered in Johnson County Monday

County Goal Set at $7,948

About 15,000 Families, University Students To Receive Packets

Christmas seals for approximately 15,000 families in Johnson county and university students will be delivered Monday, the opening day of the 38th annual campaign, Harold W. Vestermark, Christmas seal chairman, said yesterday.

The county goal is $7,948.32. Last year the average per capita contribution was 24 cents and Johnson county was the second highest county in the state on a per capita contribution basis, exceeded only by Clayton county. "This year we hope to break that record and beat Clayton county," Vestermark stated.

Sale Held Annually
The seal sale, held annually by the Johnson County Tuberculosis association in conjunction with the nation-wide campaign, is the only appeal made throughout the year for funds to support the work of tuberculosis control and prevention, the chairman explained.

The Christmas seal committee asks recipients to purchase the seals for the health protection of the community as well as for their practical holiday use. If a person cannot buy all of the seals, he is asked to return the portion of unpurchased seals with his money.

Return Envelope
Each packet contains a return envelope addressed to the local committee. This envelope with money or seals should either be mailed or left at any bank in the county.

"We hope that every family in Johnson county and every university student will join in the fight against tuberculosis by buying Christmas seals," Vestermark said. "Last year nearly 60,000 Americans died of tuberculosis. No community is free of the disease. But everyone who buys Christmas seals is helping to stamp it out."

Restaurant Problem Owners Face Help, Point Shortages

"One big headache after another" is the general comment made by many of Iowa City's cafe owners today due to wartime restrictions and help shortages.

Some restaurant owners faced with the problem of serving 1,000 meals a day put in between 10 and 14 hours each day doing jobs ranging from cook and dishwasher to cashier and janitor. All owners must spend about 30 hours a week getting records up to date which are sent to the government every 60 days. When local cafes close their doors at night the work for the proprietor is just beginning. It is his job to go over each individual check for the day and specify whether it comes under the heading of a meal of a snack.

The big headache is that of ration points. All ration books are kept in one of the Iowa City banks where points are allotted to the cafes every 60 days. Each week owners must go to the bank and draw out stamps for the coming seven days of operation. The planning of meals adds more complications. With only 690 blue points allowed for each day, meals must be planned that do not involve the use of too much canned foods. A luxury such as catsup is scarce because it takes 372 points for one gallon.

Such commodities as ice cream are being given to each restaurant according to its 1942 allotment. The cigarette shortage is probably the only thing cafe owners do not worry over since it does not contribute to their food output.

The help situation is another problem confronting the proprietor today. The greater share of waitresses and other cafe employees are young and inexperienced, but owners agree that the customer today is reasonable and patient when his order doesn't come as fast as in pre-war days. Where cafes formerly considered only people with experience, they are now happy to see a man, woman, girl or boy willing to take a job.

Although turkeys for Thanksgiving day dinners were available in sufficient quantities, most people dined at home this year, as in other years, and Thanksgiving was "slow" in most Iowa City restaurants.

If you first soak dried fruits, beans and certain cereals, it will take less time and less fuel to cook them.

Dr. Dunnington Asks Churches to Support Christmas Seal Sale

Support of all Iowa City churches in the 38th annual Christmas seal sale opening Monday is asked by Dr. L. L. Dunnington, chairman of Health Sunday for the Johnson County Tuberculosis association.

"This Christmas season when our hearts hold warm thoughts of peace, let us not forget a battle against disease is still to be won right here at home," Dr. Dunnington said. "Here is a battle we can help win by giving."

"Tuberculosis is destroying or crippling thousands of American lives each year. The Christmas seal stands as a symbol of hope in man's struggle against this disease."

Dr. Dunnington stated that the clergy of the city have expressed willingness to observe the day by reminding their congregations of what the seals represent in health protection.

Special programs carrying a Christmas seal message will be used by several churches.

Lieut. Lyle Fuller Earns Distinguished Flying Cross

"The knowledge that although you are traveling some 200 feet a second, a sliver of steel can come up from the guns four miles below and find you; that a tenth of a second might make the difference between a hit and a miss; that the position you're sitting in might determine whether you lived or died . . ." All these thoughts crossed Lieut. Lyle E. Fuller's mind as he flew his missions over Germany which earned for him the distinguished flying cross.

Awarded the cross for "extraordinary achievement" while participating in many aerial blows against Nazi industrial installations, the Cedar Rapids navigator could recall many near-accidents on recent missions and in the now historic England-Africa shuttle bombing of Messerschmitt aircraft plants at Regensburg, Germany, for which the president gave special praise.

"On one occasion," Lieutenant Fuller remembered, "flak came very close to putting me on the inactive list. A piece of it splintered the windshield in front of me and as I drew back, it came across my face and skinned the bridge of my nose."

A member of the 452nd bomb group with the Eighth air force, Lieutenant Fuller has also received the air medal with three oak leaf clusters. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Fuller of Cedar Rapids, he was enrolled in the college of engineering at the University of Iowa before entering the army air force in October, 1942.

University Graduate Tells of Battle With Japs on Saipan

Convalescing in Letterman general hospital, San Francisco, of injuries received on Saipan last July, Lieut. Henry Scheer of Anamosa revealed the details of that grim day in a recent interview.

Lieutenant Scheer, who received his B.S. in commerce at the University of Iowa Dec. 12, 1942, was a member of one of the 27th infantry division battalions which bore the brunt of the desperate counterattack launched by 3,000 frozen Japs who, trapped and beaten, elected to die rather than surrender.

As a forward observer for a heavy weapons company, the 27-year-old officer was in the front line when the suicidal Japanese rush came. He was twice wounded, once in the thigh by mortar shell fragments and again in the lower right leg by a Japanese rifleman's .303 caliber bullet.

Jap Counterattack
"The Japanese counterattack began just at dawn," he said. "We knew it was coming. We could hear their officers preparing the men and the shouts of 'banzai, banzai!'"

"As the sky began to lighten, they started surging toward our positions, bayonets fixed, firing wildly as they came, well aware that they were advancing toward certain death. Supporting the counterattack, the Jap mortar sections were expending all of their remaining ammunition.

"I started firing my carbine just before 6 o'clock in the morning. By noon, when I was hit the first time, I had fired well over 100 rounds at very close range, and at targets I just couldn't miss. I couldn't hazard a guess as to how many I killed, but certainly I didn't waste any ammunition.

Jap Mortar Shell
"Almost exactly at noon a Jap mortar shell hit very close to me, not more than a yard or two away, and the concussion knocked me out. When I regained consciousness . . . I made a tourniquet of my belt and a strip of cloth torn from my shirt. Just as I had finished applying it, a Japanese rifleman, who saw that I had been wounded, sought to finish me off. When one of his bullets hit me in the right leg I passed out again."

Some time later, when Lieutenant Scheer again became conscious, he made his way to the beach where he found other wounded infantrymen. They were well behind the Jap lines at this time, the momentum of the counterattack having carried the enemy forward a considerable distance, and they organized a defense perimeter, creating a little "island" of resistance there in the middle of the Japs.

Evacuated by Water
"We managed to keep firing often enough to hold the Japs at a safe distance," continued the lieutenant, "and late in the afternoon word of our plight got back to battalion headquarters. At dusk, infantrymen in amphibious tractors made a daring trip up the beach to evacuate us by water."

Lieutenant Scheer, who wears the Purple Heart, was commissioned in April, 1943, at the infantry officer candidate school at Ft. Benning, Ga. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. August Scheer of Anamosa.

IT TAKES PLENTY OF WAR BONDS TO BUILD B-29s

THE WAR in the Pacific is the most costly war America has ever engaged in. It's simple arithmetic. A mountain of special, costly equipment is needed. A B-29 Superfortress used in the bombing of Japan costs $600,000 in War Bonds. And this is just one of the many extra costly implements of war needed to achieve final victory in the Pacific.

That's why the 6th War Loan Drive is so important. That's why you must back it as generously as you have every other war loan drive. Invest in the next raid on Japan...
