Soviets Drive on Stettin, Smash Beyond Breslau

Blast Nazis Along Oder

Berlin Reports Reds 35 Miles East Of German Capital

LONDON (AP)—Russian troops drove to within 29 miles of Berlin's Baltic port of Stettin yesterday and surrounded the East Prussian harbor city of Elbing, while the Germans announced a great new Red army southern offensive that outflanked Breslau by rolling 25 miles west of that Silesian capital on the upper Oder river.

On the Berlin front the Russians were disclosed by the enemy to have crossed the Oder and established a bridgehead at Lebus, 35 miles east of the Reich capital, cutting the direct north-south communications between besieged Frankfurt and Kuestrin, twin strongholds barring the route to Berlin.

Moscow dispatches said Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army was laying down one of the heaviest artillery barrages of the war on German lines between the Oder and Berlin. The Soviet communique, however, did not mention this sector where the Germans say the Russians have multiple bridgeheads across the river 30 to 43 miles from the capital.

The Russians gained up to 11 miles in their swift move to reach Stettin and seal off thousands of German troops in Pomerania in a movement similar to their recent encirclement of 20 to 25 Nazi divisions in East Prussia.

Moscow dispatches said there was a possibility of catching a similar number of divisions in Pomerania.

The Germans said the Russians were only six miles from Stargard—within artillery range—and only 22 miles from Stettin, Pomeranian capital.

Moscow's communique said that Arnswalde, key road junction nine miles southeast of captured Bralentin, had been surrounded.

At the northeastern end of the Russian front, moving toward the Baltic, Soviet units captured Glimbeck in a five-mile advance northeast of Reetz, taken Thursday, and at the southwestern end other forces seized Ploenzig in a seven-mile advance northwest of Bernstein.

Whale Quota Set As Shortage Looms; Blame Jap Fishermen

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the first time since Jonah took his ride, there is a shortage of whales, and an annual-catch quota has been placed on whaling in the Antarctic.

A big part of the blame for the dwindling number of these mammal dreadnaughts is laid at the door of the Japanese.

The long-loving sons of Nippon have been harpooning every whale in sight for their oils and fats.

The upshot is that the whaling situation now is very critical, according to Dr. H. J. Deason, fish and wildlife specialist, and will remain critical for years to come.

Deason's disclosure was made before the house wildlife resources conservation committee.

Up to that point, it is a whale of a free-for-all... with the best whaler winning... all the while remembering that a baby whale comes along only once every two years.

Iowa Senate, House Recess for Weekend

DES MOINES (AP)—The spring-like weather yesterday encouraged many Iowa legislators to go home for the weekend, and by early afternoon the senate and house were almost deserted.

There were no committee meetings yesterday afternoon, and various members took advantage of it to have talks with their constituents. Until the bright weather of yesterday, the indications were most of the legislators would stay in town because of their hectic experiences of returning early last Monday morning over the ice-glazed highways.

British Bishop Urges Easy Peace Terms

Suggests Friendliness Toward Germans To Avert New Wars

LONDON (AP)—The Bishop of Birmingham advocated "a new friendliness" toward Germany and abandonment of harsh peace terms yesterday, while the World Trade union conference received proposals for economic subjugation of the Reich and wholesale transfer of workers and industries elsewhere.

Dr. Ernest William Barnes, 70-year-old Church of England scholar who has been Bishop of Birmingham since 1924, told the national peace council that a peace based on maintenance of military force would fail and that he believed hard surrender terms would only hasten a new war.

The Bishop of Gloucester, Dr. Arthur C. Headlam, reporting to his church assembly, said Latvia and Estonia had suffered cruelty and oppression from both Germans and Russians. He called on friends of Russia to "tell that country what a slur they cast on the allied name by an attempt to destroy these peoples and churches—for that is what is going on."

Another Spring Day For Iowa Citizens

Today will be another warm, sloppy day in Iowa City with maybe more clouds in the sky than yesterday. At 3:30 yesterday afternoon the mercury hit 42 tying the record high for the year set on Jan. 18. The low was 22 and at 9:30 last night it was a balmy 38.

Exactly 3.2 inches of snow disappeared yesterday's thaw. Thursday the airport officials reported 6 inches of snow on the field; they are now reporting 2.8 inches. Just where all the beautiful snow went is no mystery as any puddle-jumping Iowa Citizen will testify.

College Presidents Disagree On Compulsory Training

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leading educators of the nation exhibited yesterday a sharp cleavage of opinion over peacetime military training.

Fourteen college heads wrote to President Roosevelt that universal service should be adopted now because there will be a tendency to "forget it" once the war is over.

Their views were just the opposite of those of 12 college presidents who sent a letter to the White House recently. This group protested that a nation at war is not at its best judgment, that this highly controversial subject

In Cedar Rapids—Price Violation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Price Administrator Chester Bowles' assertion that price violations "continue serious and dangerous" in Cedar Rapids and other specified areas is based on a "confidential government report," OPA said yesterday.

A spokesman for the agency said that a survey in Cedar Rapids showed there were charges over price ceilings on approximately 20 percent of the food items checked in stores there.

This, the spokesman said, compares with a national average of 10 percent.

He added that the confidential report could not be identified further, even as to whether it had been made by OPA. He said, however, that data submitted by local price panels to the OPA district office at Des Moines "will substantiate the report."

Sinatra Awaits News—Crooning or K. P.

NEW YORK (AP)—A fidgety Frank Sinatra awaited yesterday the medical report which will determine whether he's a $50 a month buck private or a $1,000-a-year (less deductions) singer.

From the hotel room in which he locked himself with a few close friends and—his agent said—some good books, the 118-pound Sinatra issued this single statement: "I'm just waiting to see whether Uncle Sam says to me, 'go in or go home.'"

Uncle Sam's deputies, army doctors, couldn't decide Thursday whether the punctured eardrum that disqualified Sinatra a year ago still was cause for deferment. They said they'd let him know in a few days.

China Plans New Offense

CHUNGKING (AP)—Successful Chinese counterattacks in three provinces were reported by the high command last night in preparations for a Chinese-allied offensive against the Japanese were announced by Maj. Gen. Kung Chi-Kuang.

Chinese forces struck back at the invading Japanese in Hunan, Kiangs and Kwantung provinces.

They were reported to have recaptured Chihing, 30 miles east of Japanese-occupied Kukong, which lies on the Canton-Hankow railroad in Kwantung.

Recapture of Chihing severed a supply line to Japanese forces which threatened the important wolfgram mining center of Tsuyu in Kiangs province after pushing past Chihing to take a United States 14th airforce base at Nanyung.

Yank Bombers Face New Aerial Blows By Nazi Jet Planes

Puzzled Gunners Fail To Down 'Jetties'; Mustangs Bag Five

LONDON (AP)—A mighty force of 1,300 American heavy bombers—guarded by almost 900 fighters—faced the greatest challenge of German jet planes yesterday and escaped with a loss of 19 bombers and three fighters.

The Germans, using new tactics to forestall the American aerial blows, sent up jet-propelled Messerschmitt 262's which flashed in and out of the bomber formations, literally flying rings around the heavy craft.

Jets Puzzle Gunners Baffled gunners aboard the Flying Fortress and Liberators failed to shoot down any of these attackers, flying at a speed of ten miles a minute, but escorting Mustang pilots knocked down five of the jets.

Eighteen ordinary-type Messerschmitt and Focke Wulf fighters also were blasted from the sky and 41 German planes were destroyed on the ground.

Effectiveness of the new German procedure was not indicated, but one witness told of a Flying Fortress crippled and forced to hide in clouds after a 15-minute attack by the "jetties" had left the Fortress gunners dizzy.

Describe Attack Bomber crews said the jet planes attacked singly or in pairs, with ME-109's hovering in the distance to guard against American fighter interference.

A spokesman at United States air headquarters said this was the first time the jet planes had proved through the American defenses and attacked the bombers, which usually plod along in formation at about 150 miles an hour.

The bombers' principal target was Lutzendorf, where a 174-acre synthetic oil plant was bombed visually in clear weather. It was the tenth time American heavies from Britain had raided the plant, which was put out of production for two long periods in 1944 but has been patched up since last November.

14 Die in Storm

BOSTON (AP)—With a death toll of 14 and damage mounting into the millions, New England last night was digging itself out of its worst blizzard since the Valentine's day storm of 1940.

A record fall of snow, ranging up to 17 inches in Boston, clamped shut stores and schools and left most war plants limping on sparse manpower.

Big Three Plans For Occupying Reich

Specialized Forces Ready To Take Over When Germany Falls

LONDON (AP)—The Big Three, realizing the possibility of a sudden collapse of military and civilian resistance in huge areas of Germany under the pressure of the joint allied offensive, are believed whipping plans into shape for occupying the Reich at a moment's notice.

Well-informed quarters here suggested yesterday that President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin possibly are preparing two occupation plans, under the first of which specialized forces are being alerted now for emergency duty. The second plan would provide forces for long-term assignment.

There are indications that specialized troops already are being concentrated on the fringes of Germany to take over quickly when all or part of the country collapses. This force includes civil affairs experts and "teams" of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration.

Germany already has been reduced to the heartland between the Rhine and the Oder rivers by the Anglo-American and Russian offensives. Roughly one-fifth of the so-called German Reich will have been occupied when the Russians reach the Oder line on its full length. The enemy already is feeling the loss of highly-productive areas.

Planes Blast Verona, Nazi Supply Center

ROME (AP)—Railyards at Verona, the crossroads of all-important lines supplying German armies in northern Italy, smoldered yesterday after a massive overnight attack by RAF heavy bombers.

Swarms of American medium bombers and fighterbombers had spent Thursday blasting new gaps in the battered communications which the Nazis must keep open for supplies or for eventual escape from Italy.

Verona, site of the RAF's follow-up assault, is at the intersection of the Brenner Pass route northward through the Alps to Germany and the main east-west line across northern Italy from Milan to Austria and Yugoslavia.

Nazis Justify Brutality

LONDON (AP)—A German propaganda broadcast in English to allied troops who are pressing forward along the western front, declared last night that brutal acts like those which shocked the world at the outset of the Ardennes breakthrough were justified by the German urge of self-preservation.

Japs Resist In Last Stand Manila Fight

MANILA, Saturday (AP)—Manila's trapped Japanese defenders are being eliminated in fierce house-to-house and street fighting as 37th infantry and 11th airborne division Yanks drive through the southern half of the fire-blacked capital toward the prized dock area and Nichols airfield.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communique yesterday that "fighting is of the fiercest." He described the enemy's resistance as a "final stand."

(Blue network correspondent Arthur Feldman reported from Manila that "until we clean out this nest of fanatical Japanese, Manila will not be ours." Feldman said Manila's civilian food shortage was critical.)

In bitter fighting on Bataan, 38th division troops reached the town of Moron in a 10-mile advance from the captured Olongapo naval base on Subic bay.

American warplanes made widespread raids, sweeping the China coast and bombing Formosa again. Many fires and explosions were set off at the Heito airdrome on Formosa.

Jail-Breakers Still Free

MISSOURI VALLEY (AP)—The seven-state trail of John Giles and Edgar Cook led back to western Iowa yesterday when two men identified as the jail-breaking pair overpowered Missouri Valley police officers early yesterday morning after their arrest for an attempt to rob a theater here.

Police Chief H. W. Conaway said he and Night Marshal Charles Huff captured the pair at the back of the theater, searched them and started for the jail in a police car.

Chiang's Adviser—Liberated at Manila

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—W. H. Donald, famous adviser to China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, has been liberated from a Manila internment camp after a three-year masquerade during which the Japanese vainly sought him so they could kill him, it was disclosed here yesterday.

Donald, an Australian, went to China in 1904 as a correspondent for the old New York Herald. Then he became secretary to Dr. Sun Yat-Sen, first president of the Chinese republic, and finally the most trusted foreign confidant and counselor of Chiang.

The Japanese long had dubbed him "the evil spirit of China," from their point of view, and had offered rewards for his capture, dead or alive. Once they almost got him by accident when his plane was attacked over China, but he escaped in clouds.

Finally in 1942 the Japanese caught him in the Philippines as he was en route back to China from a visit to New Zealand, but they did not know they had the man they sought so long.

Allied censorship, in what seemed a futile effort to save his life, forbade any mention of the fact that he was a prisoner, and his relatives in Sydney kept silent and did not try to communicate with him.

Big Offensive Sweeps Ahead

Furious Assault On 200-Mile Front Toward Ruhr Valley

PARIS (AP)—The Canadian army broadened the front of its big new offensive to almost 10 miles yesterday after sweeping up 14 towns in gains of nearly five miles, and drove to within four miles of flaming Kleve, imperiled northern fortress of western Germany's defenses.

The fury of the assault from the west mounted on a 200-mile front as Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian and British forces battered eastward between the Rhine and Maas rivers 27 miles from Wesel, at the northwest corner of the Ruhr valley—last great source of the enemy's war potential.

The United States First army 85 miles to the south outflanked the giant Schwammenauel dam, whose pent-up waters could be unloosed to crush any British and American drive on the Ruhr from their springboard positions north and east of Aachen.

Striking behind one of the heaviest barrages ever laid down by First army guns, the Americans seized Haselgen, less than a mile east of the dam, and brought the structure itself within range of machineguns.

Hammer Mountain Farther south, the United States Third army was hammering at the German defenders of the Eifel mountain stronghold of Puren from positions three-quarters of a mile northwest of the city. The enemy fought furiously to hold the important communication center.

This valley of death was one their own shells and guns had created—a scene of devastation marked by flaming houses, trees and vehicles, shattered gun positions, and flattened earthworks.

A front dispatch, emphasizing that for security reasons the extent of the eastward push could not be disclosed, declared that it was difficult to see how the enemy could hold back the crushing weight of men and armor which had been thrown into the assault.

Pound Enemy Four hundred British bombers and fighterbombers pounded enemy positions ahead of the ground troops, while nearly 1,200 other warplanes bombed communication lines in an attempt to seal off the front from enemy reinforcements trying to come up.

The strongest resistance was coming from the Reichswald, but even these naturally strong positions were gradually being neutralized by assaults from the north, west and southwest.

It was possible that at some point the attack had carried through the first of three defense belts which make up the westwall on this front.

A front dispatch timed at 5 p. m., reporting the broadening of the assault lines, said the prisoner count had risen to 1,800.

Anti-Wallace Group Halts Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP)—An anti-Wallace coalition seized control in the house rules committee today and succeeded in temporarily bottling up legislation in which a cabinet post for the former vice-president is bound.

The resulting turmoil left Democratic leaders weighing extraordinary measures to bring the senate-passed George bill to the floor without rules committee blessing.

The committee in effect held up action until next Wednesday by adjourning to that date without decision.

The measure would divorce the multi-billion dollar Reconstruction Finance corporation from the commerce secretaryship to which President Roosevelt has appointed Wallace.

Tempers flared during a committee public hearing, Representative Cox, (D., Ga.), shouting that there has been a "horse trade" between the senate and president, whereby the senate would not pass on confirmation until RFC is separated from the commerce department.

St. Vith—Victim of the War—

By Lewis Hawkins

ST. VITH, Belgium, Feb. 7.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Steam shovels were digging out St. Vith's dead today, six weeks after the war plowed them under, and no one knows how many bodies will be found or can say what is ahead for this once pretty little market city.

Capriciously the war thrice passed through St. Vith, leaving it almost unharmed, and then ironically crushed it with a finality seldom seen even in this era of destruction.

Here is what happened to St. Vith, which had 3,500 inhabitants and the misfortune to be the hub of six major highways:

The Germans overran it easily in 1940 and the city suffered little damage. When the Americans liberated it in 1944, the war passed once again without destructive fighting, although the population was reduced to about 3,000 as collaborators fled into Germany.

When the Germans recaptured the town Dec. 22 the Americans were not strong enough to make a real battle and the war again touched lightly, although the population shrank still more as officials and others who had been helpful to the allies fled westward.

The first warning of doom came on Dec. 24 when medium bombers of the United States Ninth air force poured about 350 tons of bombs on the town's 350 to 400 buildings.

On Christmas the Eighth air force's Flying Fortresses and Liberators, striking at the heart of that road net, dumped in another 80 tons and the following day the RAF cascaded 1,130 tons in an assault which, comparatively, was more than twice as heavy as the worst blow ever given London.

The clincher came Jan. 2 when Eighth air force heavy bombers dropped 130 tons into the ruins—making about 1,700 tons of explosives loosed on the little town in 10 days.

Most of the inhabitants fled after the relatively light attacks on Christmas eve and Christmas day, but some hundreds remained. Estimates of the number killed vary from 300 to 700.

The first 24 hours of digging yielded only 50 bodies, but there were many blocks yet to be churned over.

So thorough was the destruction that only nine houses remained habitable. About 80 per cent of the remainder were leveled or completely smashed.

There are townspeople left, however, most of them scattered in the neighboring rural area. Here is the way Capt. James W. Green of Chatham, Va., explained the immediate problem:

"Some food is now coming in through the Belgian government and the Belgian Red Cross, but most of St. Vith's survivors are living off surplus potatoes, cattle and grain of this agricultural area."

"In a month that will be gone and the farmers as well as the refugees will have to be fed. "We don't know how many were killed here, but I doubt if it was nearly as high as the survivors fear. Those who lived through the bombings still are dazed and lost and many of them are unable to speak coherently."

"We've heard no resentment expressed against the allies for what was done to St. Vith. Its people say merely that they were victims of the war, although it is particularly bitter to have been crushed like this after the war apparently had come and gone."

Dewey and the Next Election—

WASHINGTON (AP)—Capitol Republicans concluded yesterday that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is busting his suspenders to run for president again.

That was the consensus that grew out of Dewey's first post-campaign speech here Thursday night and subsequent hotel room conferences he held with party leaders.

Some of those who talked with the New York governor said they came away with the idea that Dewey is concentrating most of his efforts now on cleaning up the party machinery in New York state in preparation for a race for reelection in 1946. He lost New York in the ordinarily strong GOP upstate sector.

If he wins reelection as governor, most politicians here think Dewey will be back in there pitching for the 1948 presidential nomination. He will be backed then by experience gained in the last campaign.

Some of that experience already has cropped out in his dealings with members of congress.

For instance, he has told Republican senators and house members that he doesn't intend to attempt to dictate the party's policies in congress. He tried tentatively to offer a generalized program at a conference earlier, but quickly tossed it overboard when he felt the temper of the meeting.

Dewey also assured legislators that he doesn't plan to make a lot of speeches, but will talk once in a while on major questions.

The New York governor's speech here Thursday night produced conflicting reactions among the GOP congressmen and senators, who with their wives, made up the major share of the audience.

As an example, Senator Brewster (R., Me.) said he thought he had drawn an excellent GOP document, "Putting President Roosevelt on the spot" by his demand for continuous American participation in the political decisions which are reshaping the world to come.

"But two-thirds of his audience here didn't like it," Brewster said. "They wanted to hear the kind of speech Joe Martin made when he took Henry Wallace apart. Dewey's speech wasn't 'p' to them."

But Senator Austin (R., Vt.) thought the Dewey talk was "sound as a nut—good Republican doctrine."

The New York governor had done very well with a difficult assignment, said Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.). He pointed out that Dewey was talking Republican policy matters to congressmen who would resent his telling them how to run their business.

Democrats made out as if they were vastly unimpressed by the whole business. Senator George (D., Ga.) thought the speech "sounded like a college declamation." Senator Tydings (D., Md.) felt it lacked "oomph."

U. S. Watches For Fleeing Nazi War Criminals

WASHINGTON (AP)—American observers in Spain and Portugal are keeping a sharp lookout these days for fleeing Nazi war criminals, acting Secretary of State Grew disclosed yesterday.

At the same time he called indirectly for definite assurances from neutral countries that they will not harbor Axis ring leaders who escape from Germany.

The subject came up for a thorough airing at Grew's news conference, in connection with reports that Britain and Argentina made a secret agreement last summer by which the Argentines pledged themselves to shut their doors against Hitler and his ilk.

Opinion on and off the Campus—

Will Northwestern Defeat Ohio State Tonight?

Tom Lenaghan, A1 of Clinton: "It is a toss-up as far as I am concerned. Northwestern has a chance, but I wouldn't make any prediction on the outcome."

Maynard Whitebook, high school senior: "No, Ohio State will win, because it has the better team. The game will be close, though, because I believe it is being played on the Northwestern court."

Rolley Bateman, A4 of Chicago: "I think that Ohio State will win, because, like Iowa, it has a well-balanced team of experienced players."

M. Fowler, barber: "There is always the chance that they might win, but I wouldn't want to commit myself. I am interested mainly in Iowa's winning its two week-end games."

Gregory Bright, high school student: "No, I don't think that Northwestern will win. Ohio State is at the top of the Big Ten now, and the team will try its best to stay there."

Bob Opheim, D4 of Livermore: "Ohio State is sure to win over Northwestern Saturday night."

Curtis Barnum, C4 of Boone: "Ohio State will beat Northwestern. They have an all-around better team and too much height for the Wildcats. Don Grate will lead Ohio State to victory."

Father Fred W. Putnam, 212 S. Johnson street: "If I were a betting man I'd put my money on Ohio State. Ohio State is very much favored to win because of its better record."

Betty Mauer, C4 of Le Mars: "I don't think Northwestern can beat Ohio State. Ohio State has one of the top teams in the Big Ten now and should win easily."

Patience Anderson, A1 of Bellevue: "It is very doubtful, since Ohio State and Iowa are tied for first place in the conference, and Northwestern has won only two of its seven conference games. It would, however, be a major upset in the Big Ten if Northwestern should win."

Jim Smith, A1 of Geneseo, Ill.: "I hope they do."

Bill Ruxlow, A1 of Kansas City, Mo.: "No. Ohio should beat them by 25 points."

Bob Smith, A2 of Grinnell: "The Big Ten's high scorer is on Northwestern's team. The game will be played on Northwestern's floor—so Northwestern will undoubtedly beat Ohio State."

Dan Dorn, A2 of Fort Madison: "Ohio State will beat Northwestern Saturday night, Ohio is tied with Iowa for the Big Ten title."

Twylla Gettert, A3 of Davenport: "It is just a gamble, but I think Northwestern will beat by a small margin because the game is there."

Kirke Simpson Interprets the War News

The British reinforced Canadian army drive into Nazi permanent Siegfried line defenses stirred hope that General Eisenhower is ready to resume the winter allied offensive partially checkmated by the German counter surge in December.

It is still too early, however, for even German staff experts to be certain that either the Canadian thrust, off to a good start in the north, or the combined operations of the American First and Third armies, working their way to the headwaters of the Roer and Urft rivers to the south, constitutes the main front of the allied drive.

Both could be preliminaries for greater blows in the center where the American Ninth army and the British Second army lie along the west banks of the Roer and the Maas, already deep within the fortifications of the Siegfried defense wall.

If the Canadian drive is a part of a diversionary attack to draw German reserves northward, it is already achieving that purpose to some extent. Allied air scouts report heavy enemy troop movements behind the lines to the Kleve sector in which the Canadians are attacking. A staggering toll of wrecked Nazi motorized equipment and rail vehicles. Allied air power was thrown into coverage action on the Canadian front to supplement and extend the rolling field gun barrage blasting out a route of advance for ground troops.

It seems obvious in view of well confirmed reports of heavy German withdrawals on the west front to back up the Oder line in the east, tottering under Russian blows, that only by thinning out reserves on the Roer and the Maas could troops be found quickly enough to prevent a decisive Canadian breakthrough. It is also highly significant that the Canadians went into action just as American forces well to the south were closing in on the last and biggest Roer reservoir and its dam.

As long as any of the major dams impounding flood waters at the head of the Roer or the Urft remain in enemy hands, they offer a grave threat to attempts farther north by the Ninth army or British Second army to cross the Roer or the Maas in force.

Floods released by blown dams could wash out allied attacks in the center of the line in a twinkling, preventing their renewal until the run-off was over at least. The crests would reach Roermond, where the Roer enters the Maas, only a few hours after the dam went down.

On the Canadian front southeast of Nijmegen in the Rhine bend corner of Holland, such floods offer no serious obstacle. Flood waters would have lost much of their menace and be largely dissipated via Dutch canal systems by the time they reached so far north. That fact made the German hold on the Roer dams immaterial and probably accounted for the fact that the Canadians were selected to make the second but probably not the final move in the deadly chess game Eisenhower has opened against the last German defenses guarding the Rhine.

Lochner's Assignment: Go Back to Berlin

(Louis Lochner has just returned to Germany, the same Germany where he spent 21 years as correspondent and chief of the Berlin bureau of The Associated Press, the same Germany that held him in an internment camp for 18 months. He has not yet reached Berlin but here he tells some of the things he'll be looking for there, and along the way.)

By Louis P. Lochner

What does a newsman want to do when he is told "go back to your old stamping ground, Germany, with Berlin as your ultimate objective?"

I have no illusions concerning the complexity of the assignment, fascinating though it is for one who, like myself, has known the Germany of imperial days, of the Weimar republic, and the Germany of Adolf Hitler.

The first and foremost duty of an American correspondent returning to Germany, as I see it, is to go with an open mind. Preconceived notions and wishful thinking should never be in a foreign correspondent's travel kit; least of all when he goes into a country which, by the time Berlin is occupied, will have suffered the most extensive physical wreckage of any modern state.

Take a city like Berlin. I got to know it intimately during 21 years' residence there. The Berliner is a type as distinct as the New Yorker. In his native city every shade of political opinion was to be found.

It will be fascinating to explore the extent to which Nazi propaganda has obliterated the moderate liberalism of former Socialists and the proletarian internationalism of the former Communists in the Reich's capital.

I don't know the answer now. I am to find out.

Above all, I want to try to look into the soul of the post-war German. I want to know whether the stereotyped replies given by German prisoners of war mean that individual thinking has ceased in the Reich or whether the prisoners answer as they do because they still are in fear of Gestapo, which has had its agents active even in American camps.

The correct, unbiased answer to this question may prove an important factor in determining our plans for post-war Germany. Democracy is something that must come from within. It can be suggested and guided from without, but in the end it can become a way of life only if a nation of its own accord embraces it. If any democrats are left in Germany, they naturally will be a valuable nucleus around which to build.

It will further be helpful to an understanding of the German problems to learn by personal investigation to what extent the terrible facts of war have remolded German thinking.

The inquiring reporter from America will have to try to find out as scientifically as possible what conclusions the German people have drawn from defeat and disruption. If disaster stimulates a desire for revenge, that will be one important factor. If it results in a yearning for that democracy which, for instance, Germany's great Hanseatic cities long possessed and which the fathers of the Weimar constitution tried to foster, that fact may dispel many fears about the future of Germany.

My search for replies to these questions will bring me face to face with the further question: How far have the Hitlerites gone in "purging" the country of personalities upon whom the United Nations may be counting to pioneer the regeneration of Germany? Reports on this point are conflicting; opinion as to the reliability of these reports is divided even among the Germans in exile who know their mother country well.

'ABSENCE MAKES THE HEART GRO W FONDER,' VALENTINES REVEAL

VALENTINE GREETINGS THIS YEAR, pictured above, prove that the trend away from too much military atmosphere is more and more popular as we enter our fourth year of war. Designs for Feb. 14 cards recall the happy past and the verses speak of the happy future when the war is won. Fewer humorous Valentines will be mailed in 1945 for, as the old adage states, "absence makes the heart grow fonder," and sweethearts, separated by war, want to send their love to each other... not a wisecrack.

Book, Basket Club—Half Century

When Lillian Russell was the current queen and the Gay Nineties were in full swing, five plumed ladies met in the home of Mrs. G. T. W. Patrick, 784 N. Duquesne street, to form the present Book and Basket club. Organized during the fall of 1895, it was the first neighborhood club in town.

The initial organization was called the North East Book and Basket club because the boundary for membership eligibility was "north of Fairchild street; west of Gilbert street and east of the Iowa river." It was organized solely for those within its neighborhood boundary who might be cut off from a sufficient social life, and for the promotion of happiness and future development of its members.

"Once a member, always a member," was the slogan adopted by the group at the suggestion of Mrs. J. A. McKinley a few years ago.

Meeting every other week on Monday, the organization was appropriately captioned by Mrs. Joseph Rich. At each meeting a short story was read or current events discussed, and during the afternoon, members worked on their personal sewing or mending which they brought in baskets.

"Bring your work and otherwise leave your burdens at home, and let your light shine," was the theme. A $5 fine was charged if refreshments were served by the hostess.

Most apparent among the changes in activities which have taken place during the 50 years of the club's existence, is the making of shelter quilts, children's quilts for bundles for Britain, and the contributions to the Red Cross, the war relief and cancer control.

Also today the hostesses for the meetings serve refreshments and the present 34 members hold a mid-winter and May picnic.

The organization which is now more than six times its original size, was founded by Mrs. Samuel Hayes, Mrs. Patrick, Mrs. Frank Fox, Mrs. Will Hotz and Mrs. Wilcox. Of the two living charter members, Mrs. Patrick now makes her home in California and Mrs. Hayes in Massachusetts.

Present officers of the Book and Basket club are Mrs. H. L. Hegland, president; Mrs. A. G. Satinforth, vice-president, and Mrs. R. R. Sherman, secretary-treasurer.

Dorothy Bonn, A3 of Highland Park, Ill., is general chairman of the open house and Marian Olson, A1 of Mason City, is the skating rink manager. June Macabee, A2 of Decatur, Ill., will assist as rink manager.

To Keep Your Iron on Duty

- ★ Be careful not to drop it.
- ★ Disconnect it before leaving ironing board or door bell.
- ★ When disconnecting, grasp plug—not cord.
- ★ Avoid ironing over buttons, hooks, zippers or other hard articles.

GIVE YOUR IRON THE CARE IT DESERVES

The number of new electric irons now available is very limited and will continue so for some time to come. In the meanwhile your present iron will have to continue filling its important wartime assignment. To make sure that it doesn't fail you, heed the tips listed above. Better care means longer wear—less repair.

Phelps Resigns As OPA Head

Co-Chairmen Prefer To Quit Quietly After Three Years

After more than three years of service on the Johnson county war price and rationing board, R. J. Phelps and C. R. McCann, chairman and co-chairman, respectively, have resigned.

McCann also has resigned as a member of the tire panel. Although no successors have been named for the posts, Iowa City Chamber of Commerce officials here are contemplating the recommendation of two persons to fill the vacancies.

Phelps said yesterday that he preferred to resign quietly and wished no recurrence of the trouble aroused a year ago when McCann was removed from the rationing program by regional OPA Director Walter A. Kline of Des Moines. Phelps, concurring with McCann, at that time resigned his position as director.

Later, they were reinstated as members of the board.

Both of the men now say they are resigning because they feel they have done their part since they have been with the OPA price control and rationing board since its organization here Jan. 5, 1942.

When they announced their resignation they made a statement in appreciation of the help and co-operation of members of war price and rationing panels and persons who have directed the panels during the three-year period.

YANKS RACE TO CLEAR ALL JAPS FROM MANILA

WHILE THE NORTHERN half of Manila was entirely in American hands within a short time after the Stars and Stripes returned to the Philippine capital, a race to trap large numbers of Japs south of the Pasig river followed consolidation of American divisions in area (A) on map. Arrows point to directions taken by the U. S. First Cavalry and the 37th Division in entering Manila. The Palace (1) was soon taken over and internees at Santo Tomas concentration camp (2) were freed. One of the sections to which the Japs fled for a stand was (3) the Intramuros. House to house fighting is still in progress, as the liberators attempt to secure the great city. (International)

Judges Name Chi Omega Miss Valentine

Blonde Jo Anne Huss, A3 of Burlington, representing the Chi Omega sorority, was named Miss Valentine of 1945 at Campus Night in Iowa Union last night. Judging was on the basis of originality and cleverness of costume and explanation.

Commentary for the winning pantomime was read by Gloria Weiser, J4 of Burlington.

Jo Anne appeared as an old-fashioned girl, Sue Heart, who was "a real old sad tomato," a busted valentine, in a long black skirt and waist with a hat of flowers. In keeping with the narrative describing Sue's purchase of a new heart hat, with the $18.75 she had saved for a war bond, she threw her clothes one by one, to the clothes for Russians barrel and emerged in a costume of red, be-decked with hearts, black hose and gloves and heart studded shoes—a Valentine pin-up girl. Appropriate music was played by Ruth Kohl, A1 of Cedar Rapids.

Other contestants were: Marilyn Henningsen, A3 of Atlantic, Gamma Phi Beta; Nancy Schmidt, A3 of Davenport, Pi Beta Phi; Helen Oltman, A3 of Oak Park, Ill., Alpha Chi Omega; Betty Jean Baldwin, C3 of Tiffin, Alpha Delta Pi; Louise Smith, A3 of Elkader, Currier Hall; Louise Slotsky, A1 of Sioux City, Sigma Delta Tau, and Janice Larson, A1 of Davenport, Delta Gamma.

Mary Jane Neville, A4 of Emmetsburg, introduced each entry, and presented Miss Huss with a box of candy.

Bob Rasley—

Mayor-for-a-Day

Long-time workers at the city hall won't be surprised at anything they see today. If His Honor, Mayor Rasley, suddenly closes up his desk and invites the chief of police to step outside for a rousing snow ball fight or a bike ride to the store for a chocolate soda, they'll think nothing of it.

Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Rasley, was elected last Monday by his fellow scouts to reign as mayor for Citizens' day today.

Friendly Personality
His Honor, unpretentious and likeable, has a warm, friendly personality. While he has fun with the boys, he's no cut-up. He can put a friendly restraining hand on scouts who get too obstreperous, without being resented.

Bob's dad is the distinguished looking university cashier who hands out checks and collects student tuition. Mr. and Mrs. Rasley and Bob live at 406 Magowan avenue. Bob's big brother, 19-year-old Jim, is in the navy now and his address is "somewhere in the south Pacific."

Wants to Coach
Acting as part-time mayor is just a sideline for Bob. What His Honor really wants to be is a football and basketball coach. In the summertime Bob puffs up and down hill caddying at the golf course.

The 24-hour mayor is in the ninth grade at University high school where he's a member of a club of male cooks, The Dough-boys. Mayor Rasley is also on the U-high student council and the victory council.

Plays Basketball
In line with his ambition to coach someday, Bob spends his spare time—and it really is spare with Mayor Rasley—playing basketball, a favorite game.

With 21 merit badges to his credit, Bob is an Eagle Scout. He received that honor Dec. 10 of last year. The mayor has been a scout now for two years.

For the perfect ending to his one day as mayor, His Honor can think of nothing he'd like better than a big, juicy T-bone steak with french fries.

Legion to Meet
The regular Legion meeting for the month will be held Monday evening, Feb. 12, at 8 p. m. in the American Legion quarters of the Community building, according to Frank Lee, commander of the local post.
