

Red Cross Officials Require Many More Nurses' Aide Uniforms

Scarcity of materials has caused an urgent need for nurses aide uniforms and Red Cross officials ask that any former nurses aides who are willing to sell their uniforms contact the Red Cross office.

Nurses aides are needed to work at University hospital from 1 to 5 p. m. Although the present training class is the largest ever held in Iowa City, it will not be completed until late in the spring, and former nurses aides are urged to serve again.

Nurses aides who contributed a total of 319 1/2 hours service in University hospital during February are Mrs. Chester Clark, Mrs. Orrie Couch, Berta Griffith, Mrs. Clarence Hay, Mrs. H. M. Heaber, Helen Hyde, Mrs. Henry Jameson, Hazel Koeppe, Ferne Krupp, Mrs. Everett Lindquist, Carolyn Long, Mrs. Dean Lierle, Mrs. John Russ, and Mrs. A. C. Trowbridge.

Working at Mercy hospital for a total of 53 1/2 hours were Mrs. Newton Mulford, Mrs. Paul Sager and Genevieve Lukman.

500 Art Students Expected to Enter High School Exhibit

More than 500 high school art pupils are expected to enter works in the 15th annual high school art exhibition sponsored by the University of Iowa, with all entries due by March 27, Prof. Edna Patzig has announced.

They will file their works in eight classes of entry. The exhibition is scheduled from April 1 through 15.

WITH THE RUSSIAN-JAPANESE neutrality pact coming up on April 25 for notice of its termination or continuance, speculation grows as to whether or not Russia will join with the United States and Great Britain in war on Japan. In the event of war, hostilities may commence on the borders of Soviet-dominated Outer Mongolia and Japanese-controlled Inner Mongolia and Manchukuo. There were many clashes between Red and Yellow forces from 1931, when Japan seized Manchuria, until 1939 when outbreak of the war in Europe brought a quick termination to the Russo-Jap border disputes. The map not only shows Mongolia and Manchukuo borders but—in heavy border outline, lower right.—Japanese-controlled Chinese areas where Communist resistance still continues.

Members of the discussion will be students in the debate and discussion classes under Prof. A. Craig Baird. Sally Birdsell, A3 of Waterloo, will act as chairman of the discussion.

10 Commandments Veterans' Families Get Helpful Pointers

Ten commandments for families and friends of returning World War II veterans have been set up by the University veterans service office.

Devised from experience in dealing with the first contingent of some 223 veterans to enter the university, the 10 points are of a practical and realistic nature, William D. Coder, director of the service office said yesterday.

The commandments are: 1. Have faith in him. His biggest job will be the re-establishment of his own self-confidence and the faith of at least one person will help greatly.

2. Welcome him earnestly but quietly—family reunions will defeat his desire to slip peacefully back into the world he knew before he left.

3. Avoid the top-sergeant method. Guide intelligently but unobtrusively.

4. Be a good listener, whenever necessary; avoid prying into his experiences.

5. Help him to find adequate life-motivation by establishing congenial goals and objectives; encourage recreation and hobbies.

6. Permit him time and freedom for readjustment, praise his efforts and overlook his temporary lapses.

7. Expect him to be different (so are you); make the effort and take the time for reacquaintance.

8. Face the reality of his disability and gradually assist him to face the reality, too. Remember that he must make his own fight personally—you can only assist.

9. Treat him always as a normal, competent person.

10. Enlist professional help, if necessary, in solving personal or family problems—don't try to "muddle through."

Iowa City Brothers Publish Weekly Paper In Panama Under Unusual Circumstances

S/Sergt. Arthur Goldberg and his brother, Sergt. Merrel Goldberg, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Goldberg, 125 N. Gilbert street, got out their paper, the Jungle Mudder, enlisted men's newspaper of the Panama Coast artillery command, under definitely unusual circumstances recently.

Publication of the paper became almost a "border incident" when a five-day alert restricted members of the United States armed forces to the canal zone, placing the soldier editors on the United States side of the border and the printers on Panama territory.

Hero of the hour was Alberto Hunt, 65, native Antiguan handyman on a coast artillery post, who saved the day by acting as copy-running liaison man between the United States editors and the Panama printers.

"It was the first time I ever put a paper to bed by remote control," said Art, editor of the Jungle Mudder. "Alberto was our hero. We couldn't have published without him."

Art's brother, Merrel, news editor, and Sergt. John O. Jones of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., sports editor, used drawing boards for desks as they wrote headlines, edited copy and read proof in a jeep parked on Fourth of July avenue in the canal zone, two blocks from their printing shop on Juan B. Sosa street in Panama.

As the deadline approached, a motorcycle M. P. made it a double crisis by informing the army news-men that they had parked beyond

War Fund Totals $11,700

With $2,700 collected yesterday, contributions to the Johnson County Red Cross war fund drive total $11,700. The drive opened March 1. The final quota for this area is $42,700.

Oakdale and A.S.T.P. units at the university have both surpassed their quotas. Lieut. W. J. Silverman, adjutant of the A.S.T.P. units, turned in $191.35. Their goal was $175.

Oakdale's quota was $300, but contributions totaled $448.12. Mrs. Charles Beckman and Mrs. William Spear were in charge of the Oakdale collections.

Art Goldberg, a graduate of Iowa City high school, received his B. A. degree from the school of journalism at the University of Iowa in 1940. Prior to his entrance into the service he was state editor of the Mason City Globe-Gazette, and has been stationed in the Caribbean on the public relations staff since 1942.

Merrel also attended the University of Iowa, where he served as sports editor on the Daily Iowan. He was affiliated with Phi Epsilon Pi fraternity while at the university, and has been stationed in Panama for the past two years, serving as news editor of the weekly Jungle Mudder.
