Underground Factories in Reich—

By Louis Lochner
HEIDELBERG, Germany (AP)—Hitler's vaunted subterranean factories are no myth if the gigantic airplane motor plant, one and three-quarter miles long and three-quarters of a mile wide, which I visited is an example. The factory was built into the side of the hilly terrain overlooking Neckar, a village on the Neckar river. Acting on a tip from Col. Henry Parkman Jr. of Boston, Mass., who heads the military government in the Sixth army group, I drove 30 miles to the factory with Lieut. William Conklin, former New York Times writer and now Sixth army group public relations officer. About half-way up the hillside—perhaps 600 feet above the Neckar valley—there was a concrete mixer. Directly under it we found the entrance. Here was an underground factory of undreamed of size. Sergt. John W. Combs of Baptist, Ky., who with men from the United States 55th ordnance, guarded the entrance, showed us a detailed map of the interior. The factory was divided into some 150 units, most of them large machine halls. The plant was evidently one for the manufacture of the Daimler Benz airplane motors. Nothing was lacking—not even pinup girls and gas masks.

Battlefront Yarns—

By Kenneth L. Dixon
IN FRANCE (AP)—Returning to the war zone after a visit home is not exactly a cause for celebration—but if you do come back it's good to return to a theater where you've worked before and are known. Especially if you're a correspondent it's helpful, because all your friends have saved up stories for you. These, then, are the collected contributions of sidekicks who thought they were worth printing in the papers back home: When two scared German soldiers surrendered to troops of the 78th division, Capt. Ralph Gero of Shrewsbury, Mass., asked them why the remainder of their surrounded unit didn't give up too. "They can't," one of the Germans replied. "Guards have been instructed to shoot anyone who tries to surrender. Most of them want to give up but they can't get past the guards." "How come you two got away?" snapped the suspicious captain. "We were the guards," the German explained simply. It was Staff Sergt. Richard Spatz of Pittsburgh, Pa., who decided that even generals can be human. He'd just lighted a big beautiful cigar when he saw a brigadier general approaching. Quickly he tossed the cigar away and snapped to attention. But the general pulled a brand new cigar out of a pocket of his battle jacket. "Sergeant," he chided gently, "we don't throw them away that big where I come from." Then he added, "Here, have one on me."

Ickes Urges Creation Of Valley Authorities

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's resources could be used best by creating a series of authorities in principal water basins, Interior Secretary Ickes said yesterday. He proposed setting up a broad "framework," under direction of the Department of the Interior, which would supervise valley authorities in the nation's watersheds after Congress approved them. Testifying before a Senate commerce subcommittee, Ickes said a measure drawn by his department, but not yet introduced, would make a Missouri valley authority the initial unit. Ickes said he approved the "underlying purpose" of the measure proposed by Sen. Murray (D-Mont.) for an MVA to develop irrigation, navigation, flood control and other water uses in the Missouri valley, but he said he opposed many details of that bill. Murray's measure, being considered by the subcommittee, would create a three-man board which could use or by-pass existing government agencies such as the army engineers and the Reclamation Bureau in carrying out the valley program. Ickes' counter proposal would have a single administrator for any valley authority. This administrator would be subject to the Interior department in effectuating policy and settling conflicts. Existing government agencies would be used. "You have done a good job of defending the idea of an authority and a good job of killing Senator Murray's measure," Sen. O'Daniel (D. Tex.) told Ickes. Harry W. Bashore, commissioner of reclamation which is under the Interior department, urged "The supervision of an authority by an established and tested department."

Franklin Roosevelt as I Knew Him— Break With Al Smith When N. Y. Governor

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON (Associated Press staff writer who knew Mr. Roosevelt for 30 years.)

Inauguration Preview
The photo shows an odd lot of toy figures, motor cars, carriages and the like along the unoccupied edge of the table. They represented a Louie Howe preview of a Roosevelt presidential inauguration parade—which Howe was convinced would come some day along historic Pennsylvania avenue in Washington. Louie had fixed kidding cards on each group of toys indicating what particular voting element it represented.

League Support
One section of the toy inauguration parade was headed to the rear. It was marked "League of Nations supporters" or something like that. At that time "the boss" either had said something or failed to say something and it had led to estrangement of some ardent League enthusiasts.

Another Souvenir
Another souvenir of that Albany session is a commission, signed by the governor of New York and bearing the great seal of the state, naming me "chief contributor." That was a reference to my confirmed habit of coming out at the small end when we settled up with the banker at the end of the hilarious, go-as-you-please poker games which were an invariable part of Cuff-Link sessions.

Franklin Roosevelt himself was the banker except in later White House years. Nobody ever got stung in those card table tilts. It was the fun of the game that made it what it was. I recall another Cuff-Link dinner at Albany, one that probably gave Mrs. Roosevelt greater delight than any other. It was in the state dining room, very formal, with all the best plate and silver.

'Dry' Drinks
It was also in the depth of prohibition times, and Mrs. Roosevelt took a fiendish delight in providing a "dry" drink with every course. More than that, she saw to it that we drank 'em. I had no idea so many vegetable juice concoctions could be devised. A swimming pool was built in the mansion yard for Mr. Roosevelt's use after he took office. One afternoon we all took to the water. None of us except "the boss" was a notable swimmer. I was reasonably at home in the water, however, and risked coming to grips with the governor, bent on a ducking operation, when he took after me. Having both arms and legs to swim with against his arms only, I figured I ought to be able to hold my own.

Powerful Swimmer
I reckoned without those big hands and powerful shoulders and arms. He came at me like a destroyer at full speed. I could no more escape than I could fly, and once he clamped his massive grip on me it was all over. On the more serious side during the Albany interval, I noted an increasing bite in the Howe skits that enlivened the dinners. Roosevelt-Al Smith relations entered into them increasingly, I thought. I recall one in which the late Tom Lynch was cast as Governor Smith. With a brown derby and cigar he looked the part to the life.

Musicians Cite Ways War Creates Interest

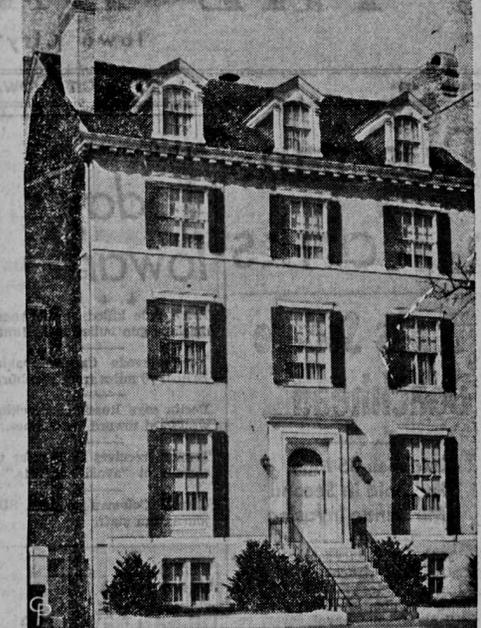

DES MOINES (AP)—William A. Mills, executive secretary of the National Association of Music Merchants, Chicago, said yesterday the war had created a greater interest in music. In shipyards and war plants, music is piped to workers from a central music unit. The same principle is used in a New York bank, he said. Music is provided for servicemen through traveling orchestras or camp bands and radios. Mills addressed Iowa, Nebraska and Illinois music dealers in a regional meeting of the Association, which will continue through today. Sales, repair and promotion techniques were discussed yesterday and today thoughts will be turned to what's ahead for the music industry after the war. The piano industry, Mills said, has been the first of the industries producing consumers' durable goods to be given the "green light" to begin production for the civilian.

Our New President— Quiet Mr. Truman Gets Things Done

By James D. White
WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's new chief executive is not exactly an amateur at management.

President Harry S. Truman's record shows he has a knack of making people like him and do what he wants them to. In the first world war he was an army lieutenant and at camp was named canteen officer. He hunted up a doughboy who was an experienced mercantile man, put him in charge of the canteen. Together they earned a profit for Uncle Sam, a promotion to sergeant for the ex-merchant and a captaincy for Lieutenant Truman.

Start Clothing Business
After the war Mr. Truman and the sergeant started a clothing business in Kansas City, but deflation caught them after a brief success. They had to go out of business like a lot of other people in the early twenties. Mr. Truman, however, refused to go into bankruptcy and it took him years to pay off his debts.

He turned to politics, made friends with Kansas City's Democratic boss Tom Pendergast and was elected to a Jackson county judgeship. In Missouri county judge isn't a judicial job but one of managing county affairs, like county commissioner in some states.

Roadbuilding Program
The state was in the midst of a roadbuilding program to "lift Missouri out of the mud," Mr. Truman had charge of spending $6,500,000 in Jackson county. "Nobody ever found anything wrong with that," he says, "and it wasn't because they didn't try hard enough." Among other things, Pendergast controlled a cement company. Mr. Truman might have played some profitable ball with it while building a new courthouse, but he finished the job with $36,000 left.

Jackson Monument
He spent it on a monument to Andrew Jackson. When Mr. Truman got to Washington as senator in 1934 he pitched in and did yeoman work on senate business, making friends by the committee roomful through his demonstrated loyalty and ability.

It was his idea that the defense program was not being managed as well as it should be. He proposed a special committee to investigate. The senate gave him $15,000 for the first year, which was not much as senate committees go. Nevertheless, Mr. Truman hired a lawyer, Hugh Fulton of New York, and went to work. They turned in a report that awoke the country shortly after Pearl Harbor to the sliphoad way some parts of the war effort were being run.

Confident in Truman
After that the senate never voted the committee less than $100,000 at a time. Confidence in it was so high that the vote was almost automatic. Mr. Truman didn't know, sometimes, that more money had been voted. The reports of the committee, numbering as many Republicans as Democrats, were based on millions of words of testimony from anybody the committee thought knew the real facts. "Our sole function is to promote the war effort," said Mr. Truman. "A political report has never come from our committee. If one ever should, it would be our last, for the committee would then have committed suicide."

Save Millions
It was estimated that the committee, by pointing out waste and poor management, saved the taxpayers many millions of dollars. It was conducted upon an unusual basis. Any member of the senate could sit in any time he felt like it. As the war effort grew, so did the committee's special staff. Its members worked hard for Mr. Truman, apparently appreciating his early arrival in the morning and the way he worked at a job with them until it was finished. One typist rose to his defense when a reporter jokingly belted her by suggesting that Mr. Truman was "an old hellion." "He is not," she replied hotly. "He's a swell guy."

President Truman hasn't had any experience at the biggest management job in the world—being president of the United States. Neither has any other living man, except Herbert Hoover. "I will need the support of the best patriotism and brains of our country," Mr. Truman said on his way to the White House the other day. "I have no doubt but that I'll get it."

School Officials Ask Blue to Veto Measure

DES MOINES (AP)—A Des Moines delegation of school and welfare officials yesterday asked Gov. Robert D. Blue to veto a legislative act which would allow boys as young as 12 years to work in bowling alleys. The measure would not permit the boys to work in alleys where beer is sold and would require them to get work permits from the school authorities. The governor took the matter under advisement. He must either sign or veto the bills on his desk within 30 days after adjournment. The legislature adjourned last Friday.

State Purchases Harvester Building
DES MOINES (AP)—The International Harvester building at the southwest corner of the state-house grounds will be withdrawn from taxation because it will be state property before the next assessment.
Henry Wichman, Secretary of the State Executive Council, yesterday reported that Bert Zuber, Des Moines city assessor had written a letter asking that the Harvester company be required to continue paying taxes after he building has been transferred to the state.
The Attorney General's office has ruled, Wichman said, that the state has no authority to require taxes be paid on state-owned property.
The company will continue to occupy the building on a rental basis.
The state is buying the structure for $155,000. The company will pay $9,300 a year rent.
Plans call for the construction of a new Harvester building in Des Moines sometime after the war. The company is given until 18 months after construction materials are available to vacate the building.

Carroll Coleman to Join SUL Journalism Staff

Gift of $5,000 To Build Type Laboratory

Coleman to Teach Typography; Design University Publications

Carroll D. Coleman, founder of the Prairie Press and one of the foremost designers and printers in the Middle West, will join the faculty of the University of Iowa School of Journalism about September 1, President Virgil M. Hancher announced last night. Coleman will teach typography, direct the typographical laboratory and serve university publications as designer.

President Hancher announced also that a gift of $5,000 from an anonymous friend of the university will make it possible for the school of journalism to begin at once to build up the typographical laboratory, with Coleman in charge. "Henceforth, no student in journalism will graduate without some acquaintance with the art of printing," said Hancher, "and talented students will have a chance to study publication design under the guidance of an expert."

Coleman, 42, has earned a wide reputation by the books and pamphlets he has published in his press at Muscatine. Among his greatest friends and admirers was the late Grant Wood, who said that he considered Coleman one of the real artists in his profession. Coleman, Wood, and Wood's best students cooperated in the planning of a number of books, some of which were the first publications of now well-known Iowa authors.

Coleman's work has appeared under the imprint of a number of eastern presses specializing in fine printing, and several of his Prairie Press publications have been included in the annual selection of the Fifty Best Printed Books of the Year.

His printing experience was gained on newspapers and magazines, in addition to his work at the Prairie Press. For several years he was editor and publisher of a magazine for middlewestern writers.

A number of special interest at this time is the Lampe arrangement called "Home Sweet Home the World Over." The number was first played by the band of the late John Phillip Sousa after a world tour.

Alumnus Wins— Drama Award

"The Glass Menagerie," winner of the New York Drama Critics' award as the best play of the 1944-45 season, was written by Thomas (Tennessee) Williams, University of Iowa graduate of 1938.

Williams, who came to the university for his senior year, is a 31-year-old Mississippi native who studied playwriting at Iowa after previous work at the University of Missouri and Washington University.

The play, a four-character study of life and disappointment in the St. Louis tenement district, now is playing in New York City featuring Laurette Taylor, Eddie Dowling and Julie Hayden. In the final balloting, it scored eight votes of the New York critics, six more than the runner-up "Harvey."

Williams' play opened in New York March 31 after playing in Chicago to capacity houses for three months. It is the second production by a former University of Iowa student to appear in New York this season, the other being "Dark of the Moon" by Howard Richardson and William Berney.

Shelley Speaks To Journalists Today at 4

Outstanding Students Will Receive Prizes, Scholarship Awards

Jack Shelley, news manager for radio station WHO in Des Moines, will be the speaker at the Journalism Honor day program this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the auditorium of the electrical engineering building. Shelley returned recently from a three-month tour of the European warfront as a foreign correspondent. During that time he went through the "battle of the bulge" in Belgium.

Shelley will make the presentation of a radio news award, the first award of this type in the journalism department. Several other journalism prize winners will be named and the editors and business managers of student publications will be announced during the program.

Prof. E. F. Mason of the school of journalism will name the new members of Kappa Tau Alpha, honorary scholastic journalism fraternity. Election to the fraternity is based on grade average. Certificates of merit will be made by Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, to journalists in the highest 10 per cent of the graduating class.

Winners of the Brewer-Torch press key and the Johnson memorial prizes will be announced by Dean Harry K. Newburn of the college of liberal arts. An annual award, the key goes to the graduating senior who ranks highest in journalistic leadership, scholarship and service. The Johnson prizes of $20, $15 and $10 are presented annually in recognition of the three best stories that have appeared in The Daily Iowan during the year.

The senior woman considered most likely to attain professional success in journalism will receive the Iowa Press Women's award of a $25 war bond. Mrs. Blanche Bailey Reed of Dysart will make the presentation.

Editors and business managers chosen by the Board of Student Publications, Inc., to edit Frivol, Hawkeye and The Daily Iowan next year will be announced by Prof. Fred Pownall, director of publications. The positions were filled yesterday after applicants had been interviewed by the board.

Shelley's talk will follow presentation of the journalism awards.

Hawkeyes Face Inexperienced Northwestern Team Saturday

Double Bill Scheduled

Wildcats Have Played Only One Contest; Opener Starts at 1:30

Another strong conference team fortified by veterans and experienced navy trainees will provide the Hawkeyes with their third Big Ten diamond test and their final home performance when they meet the Northwestern Wildcats in a double bill here Saturday.

Although no official announcement has been made, both games may be shortened to seven inning affairs, with the opener beginning at 1:30 p. m.

Serious Threat

Coached by Wesley Fry, Hawkeye football star of the mid-twenties, the Wildcats are judged to become a serious threat for the title now held by Michigan. Opening their conference play with the Iowa series, the Northwestern diamondmen have already won their first game of the season, beating Concordia college of River Forest, Ill., 3-2, Tuesday.

Bulwarks of the Wildcat lineup are three members of last year's "B" team and Jose Pagan, Puerto Rican shortstop on the 1943 team. Two players with previous college experience are Bill Tension, center fielder, who played at Notre Dame and Dewi Jones, left fielder, former Cornell university star. The leading pitchers are John Renke and Dick Bokelman, right-handers. Neither has competed in college baseball before.

Against this team, which is probably the least strong of the Hawks' foes, Coach Waddy Davis will send his seasoned Old Gold nine. With six games behind them, four of these conference contests, the Iowa men are in a good position to win one or both of the Saturday tilts if they can eliminate their most conspicuous weakness, lack of hitting power.

Despite the cold winds which have interfered with drills this week, Coach Davis has been stressing batting practice outdoors in an attempt to inject some punch into the Hawkeye attack.

Cheerful Part

The pitching department, so far the most cheering part of the team, continues to give Davis satisfaction. "Our pitchers have been lucky in not developing sore arms," he commented yesterday. "Max Smith, our ace hurler, has now recovered from his cyst operation and is in fine form."

Davis said he would start Smith in the first game of the double-header, with Gene Hoffman on the mound for the second contest. Wilmer Hokanson and George Knack will stand by as relief hurlers if necessary.

Experienced Men

With these four experienced men on the team, the Hawks have one of the strongest pitching corps in the Big Ten. Hokanson and Smith are veterans of former Hawk baseball teams, while Hoffman had a year of hurling experience for Loras college.

The revised infield, with Bill Anderson at first, Bill Ochs at second, Henry Quinn at shortstop and Leo Cabalka at third, has done well, both in workouts and in the Illinois series last weekend, and Davis announced that no changes will be made.

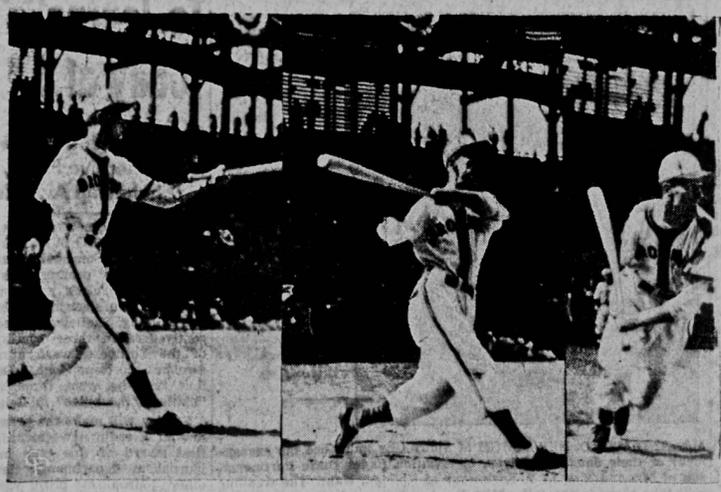

Jim Dunfrund, last year's regular third baseman, will fill the right field spot, replacing Al McCord. Dunfrund has been named for the position because he has started to hit. In the opener at Champaign, his timely single in the fifth drove in the Hawks' only runs.

The left field post will again be held by Knack, and Paul Griewe will be in center field. Jack Spencer is slated for the catching spot, with Joe Zulfur in reserve.

U-High Enters Teachers Relays

Well pleased with the showing of his University high track team at the Marion relays last Saturday, Dr. M. F. Carpenter sent his men through another strenuous workout yesterday in preparation for the Teachers college Relays to be held at Cedar Falls this week. Winning four relays, placing second in another and fourth in another, besides the first place in the broad jump garnered by Eric "Rickey" Wilson, the Rivermen stood out as one of the stronger teams entered at Marion. Two relay records were shattered by the Blue Hawks although they were competing in a high wind on a cold day definitely not made for running.

This week the U-hi mentor expects to take a fair-sized squad headed by Wilson to Cedar Falls with the hope of making an equally good showing.

Detroit Tigers—Square Series

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The Detroit Tigers squared their series with the St. Louis Browns at one game each in decisive fashion yesterday, battling five pitchers for 21 hits and an 11 to 0 victory, while Paul (Dizzy) Trout had easy sailing in setting the Champions down on seven scattered blows.

Trout, winner of 27 games against 14 losses last season, never was in trouble. Only two Browns got past second base, McQuinn on a triple in the second inning, and Kreevich on a wild pitch in the ninth.

Jack Kramer, leading 1944 pitcher for the Champions, failed to survive the second inning but none of the successors fared any better against the Tiger attack.

NORTHWESTERN WINS
CHICAGO (AP)—Northwestern won its second straight baseball game yesterday, an 18 to 4 victory over Chicago, which is not playing in the Western conference. The Wildcats collected 15 hits—all singles—off Chicago's two pitchers. Shortstop Marcus Walsh led Northwestern's hitters, getting three out of four times up.

Yanks Again Overcome Red Sox

NEW YORK (AP)—Five-hit pitching by Hank Borowy and a big five-run third inning enabled the New York Yankees to trim Boston, 6-2, yesterday for their second straight victory. President Will Harridge was one of the 7,489 fans.

Don Savage's single scored Johnny Lindell with the first run of the game in the second and the Yanks clubbed rookie Jim Wilson from the hill and continued on Yank Terry for four hits good for five scores in the next frame. George Stirnweiss, Lindell, Nick Etten, and Joe Buzas singled during the rally.

Borowy lost his shutout in the eighth on a combination of a bad throw by Stirnweiss, Ben Steiner's single and two infield outs.

Even Up—Dodgers, Phillies

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies evened their series with the Brooklyn Dodgers at one game apiece taking yesterday's game 6-2 with the aid of a five-run outburst in the fourth inning at the expense of Ben Chapman.

Rookies Granville Hamner, Bitsy Mott and Vance Dinges featured the Philly rally. The younger of the Hamner brothers singled with the bases full to drive in the first two runs and after pitcher Dick Barrett strolled, Mott singled in another. Dinges' double accounted for the final two runs of the inning.

Barrett held the Dodgers to seven scattered hits, yielding single tallies in the fifth and sixth.

Maybe So

By BOB KRAUSE
Daily Iowan Sports Editor
DIAMOND DRIPPINGS: . . . We notice that the Hawkeyes' baseball opponent of next Saturday, the Northwestern Wildcats, are making up for lost time with a good deal of gusto . . . up to last Tuesday they hadn't played a game yet . . . the last two days have resulted in two triumphs . . . the first was taken from Concordia college, 3 to 2 . . . yesterday the vents were open as the Wildcats blasted the University of Chicago, 18 to 4 . . . on second thought maybe the Maroons should stay deamphasized . . . There has been some slight wonderment on the part of slightly disinterested baseball fans as to why the big leagues don't get going more quickly on the business of picking a successor to the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis as commissioner of the national game . . . as far as we can see the reason is one of safety . . . we don't mean that the new man is going to have to live as long as the judge . . . but he is going to have to be a plenty tough customer . . . in a democratic country baseball was one profession of which a complete dictator was the ruler . . . but Landis kept the sport absolutely clean and honest with the use of the mailed fist . . . today there is no game more honest in the nation . . . baseball may have squawked at some of the judge's decisions . . . but it would have been lost without him . . . replacing such a man is not to be done with a flick of the wrist . . . the present three-man commission is in a difficult spot . . . Opening day in the major leagues is always a day of weird happenings . . . last Tuesday was no exception . . . Pittsburgh lost to Cincinnati because somebody called time out to tie his shoe . . . the Chicago White Sox pulled the moth-eaten hidden ball trick on smart Lou Boudreau of the Indians . . . but the most general trick of Fate was seen in the exhibitions put on by some of the greybeard pitchers in both circuits . . . the adage is to the effect that oldtimers don't get the rust out of the flipper until late June . . . but some of Tuesday's winners were Paul Derringer, 36; Curt Davis, 40; Thornton Lee, 38; and Sig Jakucki, 36 . . . and the ink gives out right here . . .

Cooper Case To Government

Card Stars Demand For Salary Boost May Abuse Ceiling

CHICAGO (AP)—Leslie M. O'Connor, chairman of the Major League Advisory Council, and, indirectly, the federal government yesterday moved into the salary squabble of the St. Louis Cardinals' stellar brother battery, Mor and Walker Cooper.

O'Connor announced, after an hour and a half conference with the Coopers in his office, that he would "look into the situation" and issue a ruling within a few days. The brothers are demanding salary increases from $12,000 to $15,000 annually which, O'Connor admitted, may be complicated by the attitude of the office of wage stabilization.

"This is a unique case," O'Connor told newsmen, "because it is the first baseball salary dispute in which the wage ceiling was a prime factor. I probably will confer with the local wage stabilization office to find out what adjustments are possible."

He said that if the facts warranted, he would call a hearing involving the Coopers and Cardinal club president Sam Breadon, who reportedly has offered the brothers $13,500 after giving star shortstop Martin Marion a raise from $10,000 to $13,000.

The Coopers, meanwhile, told reporters they would stay with the club until the matter is settled. After learning of Marion's raise, the brothers went on "strike" and donned uniforms for the season opener here Tuesday only at the insistence of O'Connor.

Navy Reports Heavy American Casualties In Okinawa Campaign

GUAM, Thursday (AP)—American casualties of 7,895, including 1,467 killed, were reported by the navy yesterday for the Okinawa campaign and associated strikes against Japan.
This included, for navy alone, 989 killed, 2,220 wounded and 1,491 missing. For the army and marines, the figures showed 478 killed, 2,457 wounded and 260 missing.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said the casualties were as of April 18—"the most recent reports available."
The latest reports on Japanese casualties on Okinawa, invaded April 1, were as of midnight Friday, when 9,108 had been killed and 391 made prisoner.
The heavy count of American casualties was announced in a communique reporting that marines on Okinawa had reached the northern end. In the southern sector of the island, 325 miles south of Tokyo, the Yanks were still locked in a bitter artillery duel.
Twenty-fourth corps doughboys made substantial gains on little Ie island, just off Okinawa's west coast, yesterday, third day of the

NAZIS NOW HOLD HOSTAGES IN ALPINE STRONGHOLD?

AN UNCONFIRMED REPORT suggests that the Nazis have removed their most important hostages to a prison enclosure somewhere within the Bavarian Alps to avoid possibility of their rescue. These hostages, it is said, include former French Premier Leon Blum and King Leopold of Belgium. Also sent, for safety's sake, into the mountain stronghold are believed to be Pierre Laval, arch French collaborator, and Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, head of the collapsed Vichy regime. invasion. The enemy still was offering stiff resistance from dug-in positions and from concrete pillboxes. The four-strip airdrome was captured the first day of the invasion.
On Ie island, preliminary reports showed 388 Japanese killed and one taken prisoner. The Americans lost 15 killed and 73 wounded, with five listed as missing.
It was on Ie that columnist Ernie Pyle was killed by a Japanese machine gunner yesterday morning. The casualty figures compared with American marine casualties of 4,189 dead, 15,308 wounded and 441 missing—a total of 19,938—for the conquest of Iwo Jima. That was the bloodiest of the Pacific war.
Saipan cost the Americans 3,100 killed, 13,999 wounded and 326 missing, 16,525 in all.
United States patrols on Saipan, Tinian and Guam in the Marianas killed 30 Japanese and took 88 prisoners during the week ended last Saturday, Nimitz reported.
Tokyo radio said that American forces had invaded Menna islet, about four miles south of Ie. There was no confirmation of this reported assault on Menna, which also has an airfield.

Girl Scout Members Scheduled to Collect Waste Fats Saturday

Waste kitchen fats urgently needed for war production will be collected by Iowa City Girl Scouts Saturday from 9 a. m. to 12 M. The used fats can be used to help make medicines, explosives, soaps, synthetic rubber and other war essentials.

Although meat shortages make saving fats more difficult, the government urges housewives to collect every drop possible. Grease from pans in which fish and sausages are fried can be saved and grease in stews, soups and boiling hot dogs can be skinned from the pan as they cook.

Girl Scouts collect the used fats the third Saturday of each month and sell them to a rendering works. The money is kept in a special "fat fund" which is used for new Scout equipment, registration fees and parties.

Every neighborhood will be canvassed and housewives may also take their kitchen fats to the following collection centers: Mrs. G. H. Scanlon, 220 Lexington avenue; Mrs. William Holland, 325 Melrose court; Mrs. S. B. Barker, 215 Highland drive; Mrs. George Hall, 804 Hudson avenue; Mrs. Edna Red, 325 S. Capitol street; Mrs. T. F. Slager, 748 Rundell street; Mrs. Walter Murray, 927 E. College street; Mrs. Evans Worthley, 10 S. Gilbert street; Mrs. E. E. Roeder, 725 E. Walnut street; Mrs. Frank Burger, 629 E. A HISTORIC SPOT in Iowa City is the land upon which the Homer Dill residence was built in 1908. Professor Dill was a pioneer in the West Lucas township, and recalls the days when Chataqua took place annually, and gypsies encamped on his property. The street is now named after Professor Dill.

Street Named After Homer Dill Once Scene Of Picturesque, Pioneer Events in Iowa City

By Edith Gillespie Daily Iowan Staff Writer

"It's really quite civilized around here now. We haven't seen any Indians for quite awhile," remarked Prof. Homer Dill, as he described his residence, which is located at 1129 Dill street, one of Iowa City's more remote sections.

Dill street, originally part of the Chataqua Heights area, and the Black Springs circle were once the scene of pup tents and eloquent speakers, imported for the Chataqua festivities, an annual summer event until the arrival of accelerated transportation and communication systems.

The street was named after Professor Dill, when he built the first house in the section in 1908.

"And you, know, I haven't gotten a thing out of it since," he observed in reference to his namesake.

Natural Beauty

Actually the "street" is a winding road leading into a nature lover's paradise. It received its name at the request of Mrs. Anna Rider, former owner of the land, and after whom Rider street was named. Dill street begins at Black Springs circle and extends to Rocky Shore drive, all of which was once West Lucas township.

Scenes of camps pitched by gypsies and other bands called "movers" were recollected by Professor Dill, as he drew from memory the days prior to 1918, when the township was incorporated into Iowa City. The gypsies as well as the "movers" were unwelcome but not infrequent visitors, and they showed no hesitation in asking for water and dishes from the Dills and other families who followed Professor Dill's pioneer footsteps in building homes there.

Own Water System
Although a community well was sunk for the use of the few families nearby, its service was relatively short, and the Dills now have their own artesian well, operated by electric pumps, as well as a soft water system. True pioneers are the Dills, who are not even dependent on the city for their water supply.

Dill street and its surrounding land is indeed civilized, but it has retained a natural charm and beauty which makes it one of the most picturesque spots in Iowa City.

Gardening Hints—Spring Victory Gardens

—Beautify Back Yards

By POLLY COEN Daily Iowan Staff Writer

If you're keeping up with the Joneses this year you'll have to get busy. They have a garden! In fact, a large percentage of Iowa Citizens have converted back and front yards for the fourth year and are raising vitamins by the basket.

Don't think you haven't time for a garden. One of the most typical examples of a garden that will grow just like Topsy and one that yielded food stuffs all last summer—and will again this year is that of H. B. Walters', 319 S. Johnson street.

The first time they occupied their home during garden time was last summer. The backyard was anything but encouraging. The eyes drained over the middle of the yard. The yard was poorly seeded and had to be thoroughly raked before Mr. Walters and Franklin, 16, could even begin spading.

Work After Work

Done entirely after work and school, they spaded, raked and marked off the rows. The problem drain was directed so torrents of rain water would flow off towards the drive instead of washing out seeds and plants.

Mrs. Walters helped plant the new garden during off hours when not working in a local department store. She also managed a nine-room house. The additional hoeing was anybody's job—"But mostly mine," asserted Franklin.

This year's garden will have to fare pretty much by itself, too, according to the Walters'.

The transition from an ordinary backyard with no special redeeming features to a growing vegetable store is a good job of American conversion. America has converted her mills to ammunition plants, her manufacturing facilities to armament production, her perfumeries to chemical explosive plants, and even her grassy back yards to victory gardens.

Postwar Gardens
Most of the plants will immediately switch to their original product when the war is over, but the prediction for back yards is that America will keep them in garden cultivation because during the war Mr. and Mrs. America and all the helpers have discovered digging in the dirt is fun. And eating what you planted is even more fun.

"V" stands for victory—also for vitamins and vegetables. To raise those precious minute constituents of our daily food doesn't have to be strictly an unglamorous task. Don those blue jeans and your straw hat and use your imagination.

There can be decorative informal groupings of food-giving vegetables in borders and beds, practical and at the same time just as colorful and well designed as flower displays. The combination of the practical and the esthetic can be carried into flower gardens already established by introducing vegetables among your permanent posies.

There is unique charm when a rose garden that has been in your back yard as long as you can remember is suddenly enhanced by an edging or an interplanting of Swiss chard, parsley, carrots with their pretty foliage or the pale green leaves of chicory.

Instead of flowering bulbs or annuals in your perennial border try savory cabbage, red cabbage, tomatoes on small trellises or pretty green peppers.

Don't plant everything in rigid rows like the Egyptians and everyone else since has. If you have ample space, block off your space with odd angles just to make things interesting. If you can't decide between flowers and vegetables mix them like campus casual tweeds. Try day lilies in between blue kale; next to that place Swiss chard and then more day lilies.

Plant Colors

In the center sandwich savory cabbage, and red cabbage and flank by carrots, turnips, blue petunias and beets. It's as pretty as a tossed salad, and the usual row on row of onions, radishes and wax beans can be mixed with just as many varieties. Dull gardens are past tense and what comes up could very well be a landscape addition as well as useful.

To cover lot separations and unsightly fences or to border drive ways, use sugar peas, cucumbers, string beans, and lima beans of the pole variety, tomatoes, pumpkin vines, scarlet runner beans, muskmelons, canteloupe, squashes, grapes or proboscis flowers.

Don't give up if your space is limited. Every lot in Iowa City can support a small garden if you remember:

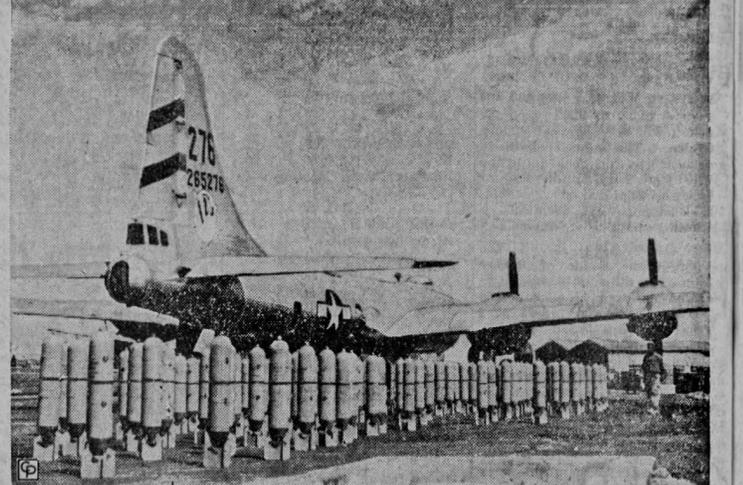

1. Garden vertically as much as possible.
2. Select dwarf varieties when you can.
3. Intercrop and plant companion crops. Sow smaller vegetables between plants of larger crops, or plant rapid maturing vegetables such as lettuce between slow maturing tomatoes.
4. Rotate early, midseason and late crops by successional sowings.
5. Grow some plants in barrels, tubs, pots and window boxes and in odd spots in your garden.

"Sense of Humus"

There is not much to remember when you plant in rich Iowa black soil. To change you from an amateur to a professional would take the fun out of your back yard botany. But before you have visions of waving sweet corn and red tomatoes, put it down on paper first. Then plant! "Become a plant scientist with muscle and a sense of humus."

No matter much space you have to utilize for vegetables, remember not to fill it all at once with plants in the early spring. Leave some space for gradual expansion and future sowings in June and July of short season crops so your favorite vegetables will last and last. If you sow two weeks apart this will insure something in your garden all summer.
