Congress Juggles Fate of Atom Bomb

Pay Boost for Congressmen, Jobless Topics of Discussion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress grabbed the atomic bomb yesterday and ran off in opposite directions.

It was also a day in which congress talked of more pay—for itself and jobless people—and of a 30-hour week.

The latest big question about the atomic bomb was this: should it be used by the United States to keep peace? Or should it be tucked away in mothballs and not used at all?

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), running off in one direction, was all for using the bomb to keep world peace. He suggested:

The United States should keep the secret of the terrible weapon. But—it should set up a fleet of atomic bombers to be used by the United Nations organization whenever necessary to stop war outbreaks.

But Senator Mead (D., N. Y.) went off in the opposite direction. He was for never using the atomic bomb again, by anyone. He suggested:

Just as the nations of the world agreed to outlaw poison gas, they should have an international agreement never to use the atomic bomb anymore.

(But the nations made poison gas in World War II—just in case.)

President Truman is going to tell congress his ideas on the bomb.

These were the other developments in the capitol where—since congress won't be in session till Monday—congressmen talked in their private offices:

Pay for congressmen—Representative Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) said he'd ask hearings next week on President Truman's suggestion that congressmen raise their own pay from $10,000 to $20,000 a year.

Jobless pay—President Truman's request for raising unemployment pay to $25 weekly for 26 weeks seemed knocked on the head. But Representative Knutson (R., Minn.) had an idea which may get some place. Let some maritime and federal workers receive unemployment pay when laid off. They don't get it now.

Preparedness—Senator Mead (he had a busy day talking to reporters) said that before the senate war investigating committee goes out of business it will lay down a plan for getting this country's fighting machinery into action quickly, in case of another war, he's chairman of the committee.

Wartime—various congressional leaders promised that wartime would be eliminated by Sept. 30, allowing the nation to set its clocks back one hour to standard time.

Pearl Harbor—Republicans want as many Republicans on the joint congressional committee—which is going to investigate the Pearl Harbor disaster—as the Democrats have. Small Chance. It probably will be three Democrats and two Republicans from the Senate, the same number from the house. At least that's what Speaker Sam Rayburn of the house indicated. The Democrats control both houses.

FEPC—the fight over creating a permanent fair employment practices committee was bitter last spring in congress. It will be bitter again. President Truman wants the permanent FEPC. It's friends in congress are starting a new drive to push it through. That will be some time yet, if ever.

Republicans—outnumbered by the Democrats now Republicans think maybe they'll be on top after the 1946 congressional elections. Already they're talking about it. The house Republicans meet next week to discuss what kind of legislation they should push to get 1946 votes.

Thirty-hour week—Senator Byrd (D., Va.) came out flat-footedly against any 30-hour week for federal workers, such as Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) has proposed. Byrd thinks it would mean a 30-hour week for industry, too. But Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) thinks a short work-week inevitable. "Maybe we should go to 36 first," he said.

Octogenarian Solos For First Time at 83

Balkan Affairs Cause Tension

Difficulty Anticipated At Foreign Ministers Conference in London

LONDON (AP)—Tension over the expected difficulties in reaching a Big Five agreement on the Balkan problems mounted last night as preparations were being completed for the foreign ministers conference opening here Tuesday.

Russian Foreign Commissioner Vyacheslav Molotov was expected to arrive last night, and it was considered likely he would hold informal talks with British Foreign Secretary Bevin as he arrived to the formal meeting.

Some 12,000 "white collar" workers of Westinghouse Electric Corp., voted to go on strike Monday. They are members of the Federation of Westinghouse Independent Salaried Unions, and are employed in 14 plants in five states.

Two new Pennsylvania work stoppages involved miners at six pits of the Pittsburgh Coal company, and typographical employees of the Reading, Pa., Times and Eagle newspapers. Some 2,100 miners took a one-day holiday in a dispute over overtime pay, but were expected to return to work tomorrow.

The French Foreign Minister, Georges Bidault, and the Chinese Foreign Minister Dr. Wang Shih-Chien were scheduled to arrive today.

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes will be the last of the Big Five ministers to reach the conference site. He is due on the Queen Elizabeth tomorrow. Because Byrnes was unable to get here sooner, the conference, which was scheduled for tomorrow, will start Tuesday at 3:30 p. m., Whitehall circles said.

Highly reliable sources said last night that Britain would back the American proposal to internationalize Europe's inland waterways and would insist on "free movement" anywhere on the continent.

The American proposal, it was understood, will call for establishing an international commission to govern the Rhine, Danube, Germany's Kiel canal, the Bosphorus and Dardanelles straits.

It was reported unofficially that the American representative in Sofia, Maynard Byrnes, was due to reach London last night or today. This was considered significant in view of the increasing problem the Balkans are presenting to the Allied government.

Bulgaria, however, is less of a trouble spot than Romania at present. The uneasy situation was heightened by the Russian government newspaper Izvestia's article yesterday charging that American and British pressure was used to force King Kirov to request a three-power consultation for the establishment of a new Romanian government.

The job estimate was made in a radio broadcast (ABC) by Thomas G. MacGowan, head of the CED's marketing committee and in charge of marketing research for Firestone Tire and Rubber company. The broadcast originated in New York.

With the facilities these buildings will provide, President Virgil M. Hancher hopes the university will be able to expand in step with an anticipated sizeable increase in enrollment.

Japs Admit Failure In Taking Advantage Of Pearl Harbor Blow

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese were "amazed" at the success of their Pearl Harbor attack, but they were caught without a plan to take immediate advantage of the blow with a landing on Hawaii, a high Nipponese naval ministry official said yesterday.

Planes from four carriers, protected by three battleships, eight cruisers and 20 destroyers hit Pearl Harbor, said Capt. Ryunosuke Imamura, secretary of the naval ministry, in an interview.

"We had expected a much greater defense at so important a base," he declared. "We were amazed. Our fleet was told to bomb and leave. We had no troops with which to make a landing. If we had, perhaps we could have taken Hawaii, but we had no plan to do so."

Imamura's report on the Japanese force agreed with that of Rear Admiral Toshitane Takata, former senior staff officer of the Nipponese Third fleet, given in an interview Friday.

Transcontinental Record

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—A Lockheed Constellation transport plane set a new east-west transcontinental flight record last Thursday in eight hours and 39 minutes between Washington, D. C., and Burbank.

The University Steps Forward—

The announcement that within a few months the university will begin construction of its long-planned building program is good news. It marks another forward movement for this institution.

The program can not be completed too soon, however. If enrollment jumps as officials believe it will, present facilities will be overtaxed.

There is no doubt that university officials recognize the need for speed. President Hancher said three weeks ago that there is DANGER THE INCREASING ENROLLMENT "MAY WELL REACH ITS PEAK... before the availability of building materials and labor will make it possible" to take care of the students.

One of the most demonstrative signs of the need for more facilities was the women's housing shortage scare experienced a few weeks ago. The situation was alleviated by letting the women overflow into housing units formerly occupied by men.

But if there is an equally large number of women students next year and the year after, the problem will be ticklish indeed. By that time the men will be back, perhaps in greater numbers than ever. The surplus will have to be absorbed by private homes, a very uncertain solution.

Laboratory and classroom space also will be crowded. Recreation facilities will be taxed. Equipment will have to be stretched.

University officials acted rightfully in starting their postwar planning as long ago as two years. Now the actual construction must be speeded. IT APPEARS THAT OFFICIALS INTEND TO GET THE WORK UNDERWAY AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE MOMENT.

President Hancher and the campus planning committee planned well. They have made provisions so that departments with similar functions can use the same equipment, classrooms and laboratories.

This will mean that operating costs can be cut to a minimum without reducing the quality of instruction.

They also have taken adage of the natural scenic beauty which the Iowa campus affords. Improvements in landscaping are planned, especially in the area around Old Capitol. IT WILL BE A RELIEF TO HAVE SOME OF THE CAMPUS' EYESORES REMOVED.

Only objection to the present plotting of the campus is the great distances which sometimes must be covered between classes. But President Hancher said this can be corrected, possibly by permitting 15 minutes instead of just 10 between classes.

There is only one danger in the building program, and we feel confident that President Hancher will do everything possible to prevent that danger from threatening to become serious.

In building our beautiful and efficient new laboratories and classrooms, we must not forget that it is only by obtaining the best available instructors that we can reap the real wealth of these improvements.

In pouring out millions for the most modern facilities, we must not lose sight of the fact that there will come a point where the money would be better invested by obtaining brilliant minds rather than new buildings.

But we are assured by this university's past performances that education at Iowa will not be a veneer of fine buildings and multi-colored textbooks.

We know that out of those buildings each day will come students whose minds bear more knowledge—NOT TO ENCUMBER THEM, BUT TO FREE THEM.

This new equipment will stimulate inquiring students. Their minds will be able to SEARCH DEEPER INTO THE MYSTERIES THEY ARE TRYING TO SOLVE because there will be better facilities to aid them.

The University of Iowa is taking a step in postwar advancement which in each succeeding year will bring more benefits to the whole world.

News Behind The News

By Paul Mallon

WASHINGTON — "The most momentous session of congress in peacetime history," is what the radio voices are saying of the quiet, uneventful, dull reconvening of the 79th, after holidays.

This sounds strange, with no outstanding reconversion program proposed, no peace treaties yet ready, no tax reduction from war in prospect, no new spectacular spending program to enliven things, as the administration is preparing to run its $60,000,000 annual postwar spending rate down in 10 months to a tidy and permanent $25,000,000,000,000 and needs no appropriations or legislation for this or lend lease, or any pending matter of corresponding importance.

Quiet Start

No one said anything momentous the first few days. Mr. Truman specifically avoided a tone of gravity or weightiness in his message. He just went whole-hog, as they would say in Missouri, for the Roosevelt program.

This could have been a shock to some people, but not to any reader of this column (see first two columns on Mr. Truman when he assumed office, saying he would do just this.)

The program was so well known, that the newsmen, who usually scurry about and get comment from congressmen on all important presidential messages, did not bother the first few hours afterward. They said they would get some later when they got around to it.

Yet I think the radio voices—for another reason—were right. The unsensational and routine facial appearance of the opening and program really represents a delayed new movement of the CIO-PAC and leftist New Deal clan to capture control of the course of government.

All CIO Backed

Every outstanding item of the congressional agenda that Mr. Truman presented or endorsed, originated in that source—without a single exception.

This session heralds the CIO moving in for the pay-off always denied to a major extent under Roosevelt chiefly by congressional resistance and a determined opposition within the administration.

It includes the full employment plan, increased unemployment insurance, increase of minimum wage from 40 cents to 60 cents an hour, "no union busting legislation" (as Mr. Truman said), expanded social security, one-man management of surplus property (Roosevelt idea), no tax reduction, continued spending, farm employment practices, anti-lynching and anti-poll tax—and nothing else except a Pearl Harbor investigation. (The Ball-Burton-Hatch labor reform bill is awaiting a belated hearing.)

Doesn't Fit Facts

The program sounds prosaic because it hardly fits the visible facts of economic life today—the crying need for employment apparent in the want-ad section of every newspaper, the current official promises of a boom for the next three to five years, and even politically, the impregnable prestige of the Truman administration—but that's the program.

Now, justifiably or not, the common opinion in congress is that Mr. Truman has decided to go that way, definitely. This conclusion is natural not alone from the program but the simultaneous appointment of Ben Cohen, an original Roosevelt brain-truster to the third ranking post in the state department (councilor) and of CIO's McKeough to the maritime commission.

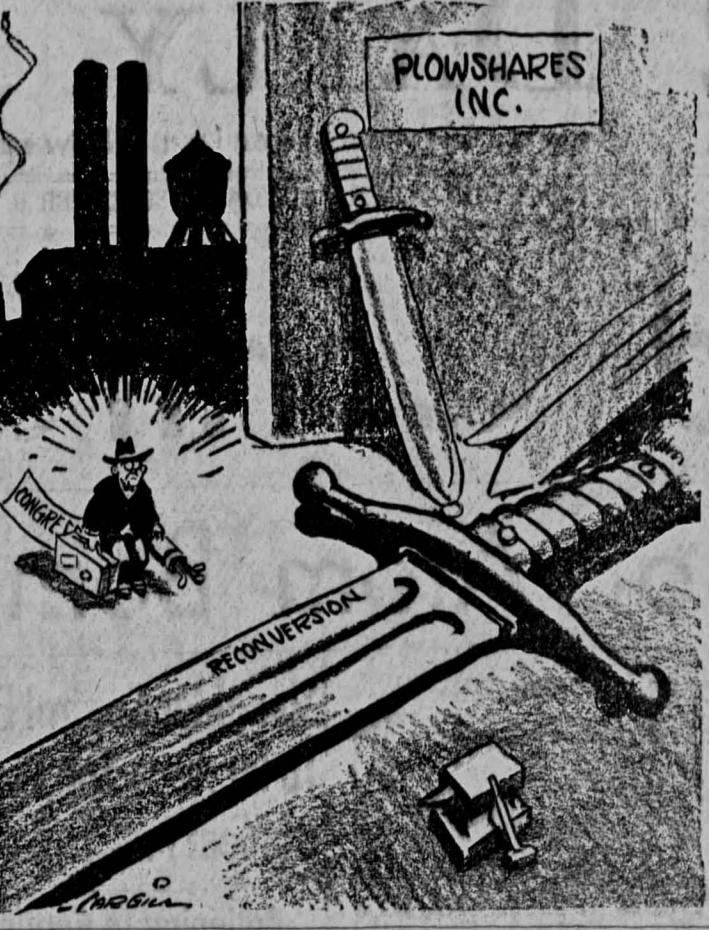

All this leaves the average congressman to make a decision whether he will stick by his guns of opposition and face a fight by the CIO-PAC against re-election next year, or join the Washington trend. Frankly, I think most of them will stick to their guns, for several reasons. The program itself is not popular now. It has no evident full body of public opinion behind it. Furthermore CIO itself is not popular or strong, except financially.

Plenty Money

It is loaded with untaxable money, but nothing it has done lately has enhanced public support in the south or west or even in industrial centers outside New York City, which seems to be its psychological stronghold.

Re-election for the average congressman therefore may be made easier by opposition than support.

True enough, the leading executive resistance to CIO has been washed out by removal of Mr. Byrnes to the state department, where his activities are confined to foreign matters, and Messrs. Ikes and Wallace, the focal heads of CIO executive representation, are to remain in the cabinet. This makes the current situation entirely

Looking Ahead

—Presidential Succession

By Washington staff of AP
WASHINGTON (AP)—The bill making the speaker of the house next in line for the presidency will be allowed to collect dust if senate leaders have their way.

It looks like they will. President Truman's message Thursday did not renew his June 19 request for legislation on this point. The bill has passed the house.

When Mr. Truman urged last June that the speaker be put next in line instead of the secretary of state, as provided by 49-year-old law, he said the presidency should be filled by an elective officer.

Secretary of State Stettinius had never been elected to public office, but Speaker Rayburn had been elected to congress and been chosen speaker by a vote of all members of the house. Since then Stettinius has been replaced by James F. Byrnes, who was elected to many years in the house and senate.

SURPLUS PROPERTY—The new fixed sale price basis for war-surplus durable goods puts Uncle Sam in the wholesale mail order business in a big way.

Instead of selling surplus on bids as heretofore, the commerce department will put a sale price on nearly everything. Dealers can thumb through a catalog and get a bill at the end of the month.

BRITISH GOODS—A likely British move after Anglo-American financial discussions get underway Monday will be to propose that the United States guarantee to buy a specific amount of British goods annually.

The argument would be that Britain must be able to judge her export trade now if she is to estimate her future needs.

HELP FOR GIRLS—Local draft boards are ready to give honorably discharged service women the same assistance as service men in getting their old jobs back.

The girls have the same redeployment rights as men under the law. They are not required to register with draft boards after discharge as men are, but selective service officials say they should feel free to call on the boards for any help they need.

Redeployment

Dissatisfaction with redeployment and the army and navy insistence that each had to be maintained practically at all-time highs to fight the one-front war against the Japanese sent the congressmen home mumbling about proposed investigations and retaliatory legislation.

Fight Inflation

OPA—office of price administration—was designated as a wartime agency, but it is authorized to work against postwar inflation and collapse such as followed World War I. So it is concentrating on trying to keep prices controlled until supply and demand are fairly well balanced. It also continues to ration scarce essential goods.

Says OPA Administrator

Chester Bowles: "I'll be more glad to get rid of regulations than anyone in the United States. But it's our duty to keep them until their removal can be safely accomplished without unfair distribution of scarce goods or the danger that prices will shoot upward as they did after World War I."

Funds are available to continue OPA until June 30, 1946. Its rationing power ends Dec. 31 unless extended by law. Some members of congress urge that OPA be abolished now.

President Truman could close it out any time. However, he recently issued an order to "hold the cost-of-living line." Moreover, sugar is likely to be rationed for another year, and there will be pressure to keep rent controls in some areas for several months.

OPA price regulations have covered almost everything the typical American family buys, eats, wears and uses. They applied to some 8,000,000 different commodities and services, from eggs and onions to shoe shines, piano tuning and funeral parlors.

It regulated at all levels the prices of goods bought and sold by some 3,000,000 establishments. It controlled rentals for some 15 million dwelling units—houses, apartments and rooms in hotels, and boarding houses—in 32 defense rental areas where some 92,000,000 persons lived.

When the war ended, OPA was administering 10 rationing programs. It handled 13 major rationing programs in all. This involved the printing and distribution of 128 to 131 million copies of each of four war ration books; of millions of gasoline and fuel oil rationing books; and hundreds of thousands of purchase certificates for autos, tires, gasoline and other items which would account for several million dollars more.

Bowles asserts that price controls during the war saved the government and the buying public billions of dollars. He says there still is a "dangerous gap between sudden victory and sound prosperity" and has asked for "cool heads and continued cooperation of business, workers, farmers and consumers to see the stabilization job through."

Congress - Military Relationships Rough During War Years

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Within 12 hours three stories made three big headlines:

"President Urges Congress to Continue Draft of Men 18 to 25."

"Army to Release 5,500,000 Men within 12 Months."

"Navy Promises Cut to 550,000 within a Year."

That the plea and the two pledges came just as congress was getting ready to convene was no coincidence. The truth is that congress was (and still may be) in the mood to flatten the army and the navy, too—with several legislative haymakers.

Saw Action Coming

The military powers that be, seconded by Commander-in-Chief Truman, saw what was coming and were doing all they could to soften up the punches.

In any war the path of true love is never smooth between the legislative and military branches. History undoubtedly will record that in World War II the relations between congress and the military were more harmonious than in any other war. History may have some conclusion, too, that this contributed to the effectiveness and efficiency of our armed forces in the field.

But all hasn't been sweetness and light. Starting with congressional wrath over the debacle at Pearl Harbor, resentment in various degrees has been piling up for four years.

More Irritations

Some of these irritations are purely personal: the welter of complaints from constituents, principally about selective service or discharges or assignments to duty; or perhaps a lack of deference, real or assumed, when members of congress were visiting military establishments or the war fronts.

(Even President Truman, as chairman of the senate war investigating committee, was given the army's brush-off when he tried to inquire into the staggering expenditures on that military secret, the atomic bomb. There's no indication that he resented it, but there's a good example of how such frictions arise.)

British Goods

A likely British move after Anglo-American financial discussions get underway Monday will be to propose that the United States guarantee to buy a specific amount of British goods annually.

The argument would be that Britain must be able to judge her export trade now if she is to estimate her future needs.

So it is concentrating on trying to keep prices controlled until supply and demand are fairly well balanced. It also continues to ration scarce essential goods.

3 Men as Head

In January, 1942, WPB delegated the responsibility for rationing to OPA.

Three men have occupied the nation's No 1 hot seat:

Burly, brusque Leon Henderson, New Deal economist.

Prestiss M. Brown, lawyer and former United States senator from Michigan.

Chester Bowles, retired New York advertising executive, still sweating it out on the reconversion front.

Henderson resigned in December, 1942, on grounds of ill health.

Brown, more soft-spoken than Henderson, took over in January, 1943.

In October, 1943, Bowles, who had been general manager of the agency, became administrator.

Bowles admitted mistakes had been made by OPA and brought more business men into some of the agency's top jobs.

Loud Complaints

When butter and meat became very scarce and ration points suddenly were cancelled early this year, consumer complaints were the loudest in OPA history. Black market operations reached a gigantic scale.

Bowles said "American housewives are paying $1,200,000 tribute yearly to operators of food black markets—a very great national disgrace."

He estimated that over-charges for clothing, tires, gasoline and other items would account for several million dollars more.

Bowles asserts that price controls during the war saved the government and the buying public billions of dollars. He says there still is a "dangerous gap between sudden victory and sound prosperity" and has asked for "cool heads and continued cooperation of business, workers, farmers and consumers to see the stabilization job through."

BUILDING—

gym will be built along Madison street opposite the Union.

New Footbridge

The footbridge across Iowa river will be just behind University high school.

Along with the construction, five buildings—old, ravaged and now in only partial use—will be torn down. The old chemistry building, now used for electrical engineering, the journalism building, old dental building, old chapel and old men's gym (now the library annex) will be removed.

President Hancher said the buildings are being located so that related departments can use the same facilities wherever possible. He said the additional dormitories are a result of "recognition that university must provide good living as well as instruction facilities."

The Hillcrest addition will accommodate 390 more men and the Currier addition 150 more women. Both additions will include more dining facilities.

President Hancher pointed out that only 62 per cent of Iowa's buildings have been erected by tax money. Eighteen per cent was from gifts and 20 per cent from selfliquidating bonds.

Notable Gifts

Most notable gift was the $2,250,000 given by the Rockefeller foundation and the general education board. An equal amount was put up by the state to build University hospital and the medical laboratories.

The dormitories all were built by selling bonds.

The expansion which will start soon is the first in 15 years, President Hancher said. However, the plans are closely geared to previous building programs. It will be possible to make further additions to all of the new buildings.

Plans for the present program actually started in September, 1943, when President Hancher asked the university's deans and directors to outline what they thought would be the educational trends of the next five years and to estimate their building and equipment needs.

The replies were referred to the ent members of that committee are Prof. Fred Higbee, head of engineering drawing, chairman; Prof. A. K. Miller of the geology department; R. E. Ellsworth, director of libraries; Fred Ambrose, business manager, and George Horner, superintendent of the physical plant.

$4,000,000 for Construction

Out of this committee came a plan for about $4,000,000 worth of construction. The legislature, however, denied the full amount asked, and plans for constructing a pharmacy building, music auditorium and music building, child welfare station and campus improvements have been postponed. These projects and several others will be started within the next 10 years. The auditorium and music building will be located just north of University theater. The child welfare station will be on the west bank of Iowa river south of Park road. The pharmacy building will be between the field house and University hospital. A law building will be erected on Temple road, north of the Commons. Additional engineering units will be built in the block bounded by Washington, College, Madison and Capitol streets.

To Enlarge Chemistry

The present chemistry building will be enlarged to cover almost the entire block. In the block north of it, another building will be enlarged to cover almost the entire block. In the block north of it, another building will be erected for a purpose not yet specified.

The navy administration building, across the street from the field house, will be the corner of another men's dormitory.

The Union addition will permit university parties and lectures to be held without disrupting the usual functions of the Union. Just north of the Union, a canoeing pavilion is planned.

Studios are to be built on either side of the fine arts building. A future building will be on the south side of Market street, between Capitol and Clinton streets.

The proposed pharmacy building will include an auditorium for use by the pharmacy, dentistry and medical colleges.

Asks for Student
Factory Help

DES MOINES (AP)—George D. Haskell, state war manpower director, reported yesterday that 10 Iowa canning factories are facing a production emergency for lack of sufficient labor because no more prisoners of war are available to help out in the plants.

Haskell urged school superintendents in the localities to cooperate with local war manpower commission officials to make high school students available for work in the plants until the pack is completed.

"While we do not ask the disruption of school curricula just as the new school year is starting, we must remember that the production of food for our armed forces, our Allies and our own civilian population is still one of our most vital assignments," Haskell declared.

He said he had instructed area directors in emergency communities to contact school superintendents at once and see if a cooperative plan can be worked out to solve the canning factory labor problem.

Plants currently confronted with labor shortages are located at Ackley, Storm Lake, Harlan, Story City, Pella, Roland, Grundy Center, Waverly, Wapello and Sac City.

CAA Rejects Bids for Work On Airport

Mayor Wilber J. Teeters received official notice yesterday from the district office of the civil aeronautics authority in Kansas City, Mo., that all bids for grading and paving work on the Iowa City municipal airport had been rejected.

The CAA has allotted $322,500 for extensions to the runways and improved lighting facilities at the local field. Although no reason was given in the official notice, it is assumed that all bids for the construction work were too high.

The bids were opened Tuesday at the Kansas City CAA office. Five contractors submitted bids, three for the paving contract, one for grading and one for both paving and grading.

"It just means that we won't be able to start work on the airport expansion program as soon as we had hoped to," Vern Bales, chairman of the airport commission, explained last night.

The CAA officials recommend that bids be re-advertised this winter with the hope that work can be started as soon as practicable in the spring.

The specifications for the airport improvements call for extensions to the three runways so that they will all be more than 4,000 feet long and better lighting facilities. It is expected that lighting alone will cost $70,000. In addition, a fence will be erected around the field and it will be seeded.

The contractors who submitted bids on the grading and paving contracts are, for paving only, Booth and Olson Inc. of Sioux City, $229,988.90; the Fred Carlson company of Decorah, $233,527.70, and the Collington Construction company of Davenport, $254,145.10.

A bid for $120,259.65 for grading was submitted by Ralph Green and W. L. Groesbeck of Des Moines.

Jesse H. Freeman of Moline, Ill., submitted a bid of $449,407 for the combined grading and paving work.

Members of the airport commission expected that bidders would be cautious in submitting their estimates because of the uncertainty of the labor situation and the possibility that work might be halted because of bad weather this fall.

The specifications for grading set a 30-day limit for the work and for paving a 40-day limit is set. Penalties of $100 and $300 a day are charged for failure to complete the work on time.

Altar decorations included white gladioli.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Livingston selected a black crepe dress trimmed in black lace, complemented with a black hat trimmed with blue ostrich feathers. The bridegroom's mother chose a pearl grey crepe ensemble and both mothers wore corsages of white gladioli.

Extra Rooms Rapidly Filled By Students

The university now has a slight surplus of rooms for men and women students, but these vacancies are rapidly being filled.

Dean C. Woody Thompson of the office of student affairs said the housing service is receiving long distance calls, telegrams and letters from women who had been unable to get a university-operated room.

The conversion of Hillcrest to a women's residence provided the university with rooms for about 390. About 204 women were on the housing service's waiting list. The extra spaces are expected to be filled.

Two fraternity houses—Delta Tau Delta and Pi Kappa Alpha—which now will be assigned to men, Dean Thompson said. The university leased the houses for a year, Fred Ambrose, business manager, reported.

Dean Thompson said he expects all men's units to be filled within a few days. University-operated men's residences include Gables, 21 N. Dubuque street; Byington house, on the hill just south of Hillcrest, and the two fraternity houses which are in the 700 block on N. Dubuque street.

Increasing Numbers Enter Vets' Hospital In Des Moines

DES MOINES (AP)—Wounded and sick World War II veterans are entering veterans hospital here in "rapidly increasing" numbers, Dr. Burton O. Clark, chief medical officer at the hospital, reported yesterday.

Some are coming direct from army hospitals and receive their discharges from service after reporting at veterans' hospital, Dr. Clark said.

"We notify military authorities that they have arrived so that they can be discharged and then keep them as long as they need treatment," he explained.

Virtually all patients at the hospital are Iowans, and they represent fighting units on every battlefield front of the recently ended war.

The hospital's list of patients numbered 375 today, of which about 30 per cent saw action in World War II, Dr. Clark said. The majority of patients fought in the first world war. A few Spanish-American veterans are receiving treatment.

Official capacity of the hospital is 393, but facilities are available for as many as 545 patients in an emergency.

The largest number treated at one time was 430 persons last winter.

"More sickness at that time of year" caused the peak hospitalization figure, the medical officer said.

At least two or three patients enter the hospital daily now, he reported.

Spraying Effective For Pest Control In Savanna Area

SAVANNA, Ill. (AP)—DDT spraying of the Savanna ordnance depot by a B-25 bomber a month ago was so effective in controlling mosquitoes, flies, and other insects that a second spraying was made to complete the experiment, officials announced yesterday.

Dr. E. M. Searles, chief entomologist in the Sixth service command, said an insect count made before the first spraying on Aug. 8 showed an average of 17 mosquitoes to each pup tent located in the area. Four days after DDT spraying of the depot and 4,200 acres of swamp-land and Mississippi backwater, there was a total absence of mosquitoes in the tents, the entomologist reported.

Other samplings showed complete destruction of small insects in the area until a week ago when a few mosquitoes started reappearing, Dr. Searles said. The second spraying is expected to destroy all insect life in the area until killing frosts control it naturally, he added.

The spraying was done from a bomber converted to the job by carrying a 200-gallon tank containing DDT solution, from which a spray swath 150 yards wide is made. The plane was based at Wright Field, Ohio, and operated from Truax Field, Madison, Wis.

W. F. C. S. Meeting To Be Wednesday

The IOWA City W.F.C.S. is scheduled to meet Wednesday, Sept. 12 at 2:30 p.m. at the Methodist church in Fellowship hall. Preceding the regular meeting, the executive board will meet at 2 o'clock in the northwest room.

Mrs. C. J. Lapp will be in charge of the program and Miss Emma Stover, Mrs. Ralph Scholla, Mrs. C. O. Parks and Mrs. Lapp will take part in a round table discussion on "A Forward Glance." Unit G will act as hostess and Mrs. P. W. Herrick as chairman.

Former SUI Student Joins National Staff Of Red Cross Hospital

Anne Shogren, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Shogren of San Mateo, Calif., has joined the national staff of the Red Cross as a hospital worker and is assigned to Torney General hospital at Palm Springs, Calif., according to Verne Simmons, Pacific area manager of the Red Cross.

Miss Shogren attended the University of Iowa school of nursing.

"V-J day in no way lessens the urgencies of the current Red Cross needs for 1,650 hospital workers beside critically needed 800 recreation workers and 750 trained social workers to meet army and navy requests for expansion of these services to our sick and wounded in hospitals at home and abroad," Simmons said.

"For many of these men, the toughest fight they will ever have is the fight back to health—is just beginning," he added.

Miss Shogren recently completed several weeks of specialized training in Washington, D. C.

In her new assignment she will assist the professional social case workers in carrying out the Red Cross program of counseling, emergency financial aid and communication with patients' families through local chapters.

Assistance is also offered the serviceman about to be discharged in filing his pension claims and in advising him regarding insurance, hospitalization and other veterans' benefits.

Fall Practice for Hawkeye Squad Begins Tomorrow

40 Men Meet With Crowe In First Drill

Defense to Get Most Attention; Jim Gilchrist Back in Line-up

By WALLY STRINGHAM
Rough and tough old football will officially get underway tomorrow afternoon, when Coach Clem Crowe meets with approximately 40 men for fall football practice.

The 57th season will start with a war-time spirit because of the small number of men and the experience they have had. However, Coach Crowe and his staff hope for several discharged veterans before the season gets too far along.

Defense will probably get the majority of attention, as most of the summer session was used up teaching the men the "T" formation and Crowe's style of play.

A bright spot from the player point of view, is that giant Jim Gilchrist, 220 pound tackle from Washington, will be set to go Monday. The big tackle broke a bone in his foot during the summer practice, and was on crutches most of the time.

Andy Novosad, another giant tackle from Chicago, is hoped by Hawkeye coaches to be in shape for at least the first game. Rated as star player on the 1942 Iowa freshman team, 230-pound Novosad has been handicapped by a weak knee after an operation.

On the darker side of the ledger is the fact that Bill Cribbs and Joe Casey will not report back for practice this fall. Casey, a made-over center quit the squad because he felt that his timing and style of play that had made him an all-state back in his high school days at City High, were gone.

Cribbs' eighteenth birthday next month means that he will be leaving for the armed forces soon.

Whether the Hawks will get a chance to show their teeth before the Ohio State Game Oct. 6, still remains to be seen. E. G. Schroeder, director of athletics, was silent Saturday on the prospects of the Hawks picking up a game to fill in the Ottumwa-Iowa game cancelled Sept. 29, because of the reduction of the personnel at the navy base.

Several games have been mentioned for the Hawks, with the Drake affair getting top attention. Drake's game with Cornell Navy was cancelled for the 28th of this month under the same circumstances as the Ottumwa-Iowa game.

Elsewhere in the Big Ten

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Indiana university's regulars entertained A. M. (Bo) McMillin and his Hoosier coaching staff with a convincing four-touchdown-to-one victory over a reserve team in a full-scale practice game yesterday.

McMillin was particularly pleased with the performances of Mutt Deal and Frank Cioli, his first-string guards, and halfbacks Bob Miller and Dick Deranek.

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Purdue's Boilermakers concluded their first week of fall football drills yesterday with a workout devoted entirely to kicking.

Coch Cecil Isbell sent Bill Horvath, Bill Canfield and freshmen Dave Shaw and Bob Whitmer through a heavy punting session. Shaw, veteran tackle Tom Hughes and Bob Heck, an end candidate, booted extra points and kickoffs.
