U. S. Army Arrests 21 German Bankers As War Criminals

Seek 20 Others For Financing Nazi Aggression

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—Twenty-one directors of Germany's six greatest banks have been arrested on charges that they worked hand-in-glove with the Nazi party "in a conspiracy to dominate the world," financing Hitler's armies and helping exploit conquered nations, U. S. Army authorities announced yesterday.

Twenty other tycoons of the powerful banks are sought. "It seems pretty sure that we will recommend trial of these men as war criminals," declared R. A. Nixon, deputy director of the military government division investigating cartels.

Nixon said the directors of the "big six" banks began pouring money into German rearmament as early as 1935, and during the war "served as virtual spies in the economic and political fields."

He declared German banking and German industry were so interlocked that it was impossible to separate them, and that the concentration of economic power by the "big six" was "of a scope and dominance far beyond anything that has ever existed in the United States."

He listed the six banks as the Deutsche bank, the Dresdener bank, the Commerz bank, the bank der Deutschen-Arbeit, the Reichs Kredit-Gesellschaft and the Berliner Handels Gesellschaft.

"There is a strong presumption, based on our preliminary investigation, that these six big German banks have been guilty of such war crimes as employment of slave labor in the industries they controlled, the imposition of excessive occupation costs and plunder and spoliation of public and private property," Nixon said. "Without any doubt they contributed substantially to the preparation and waging of aggressive warfare."

Service Halted On Six Lines

Strike May Spread If Wage Demands Are Not Met Soon

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Possible expansion of the Greyhound bus strike to cripple service throughout the country was forecast yesterday by an AFL union official.

Already the one-day strike has halted service on six lines operating between the Mississippi river and the Atlantic seaboard. Four thousand Greyhound employees left their jobs after a breakdown of negotiation on wage demands.

"If a settlement is not reached soon, the strike may spread throughout the country," said George E. Siff, president of local 1202, Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employees.

Other major labor developments included: 1. Conciliators tried to end the AFL-CIO machinists' strike in the San Francisco bay area as the number off the job because of the dispute climbed to 55,000.

2. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine workers, visited the White House for the first time in four years, in preparation for Monday's labor-management conference.

3. The number of workers on strike or indirectly inactive dropped to 243,000, about 6,000 fewer than on Wednesday.

The six Greyhound companies affected by the bus strike were Central, New England, Pennsylvania, Canadian, Illinois and Eastern. There was no estimate of the number of travelers inconvenienced but spokesmen said the September daily average for Central and Pennsylvania Greyhound ranged between 40,000 and 50,000.

The drivers want 5.75 cents a mile and maintenance men a 30 percent raise. The drivers now receive 5 cents a mile in the east and 4.85 cents in the west, the union said. The lines offered 5.4 cents for eastern drivers, 5.3 for western and a 10 percent raise for maintenance men. The company said the men sought raises of three-quarters to one cent a mile.

Conciliators sought to settle a strike of AFL and CIO machinists that has kept 55,000 workers off the job in about 200 plants in the San Francisco bay area.

Without authorization The machinists, without authorization of their parent unions, struck to obtain a 30 percent wage increase. Although the strike cut off production of paper milk cartons, milk was available in most San Francisco stores and hospital milk supplies were not endangered.

For the first time since Dec. 17, 1941, Lewis called at the White House as a delegate to the labor-management conference which will meet in the capital Monday. The conference, called by President Truman, hopes to work out means of settling labor disputes after the war labor board goes out of business.

The United Mine workers chief had absented himself from the White House because of his break with the late President Roosevelt prior to the 1940 election.

The last traces of the recent six-state soft coal strike of United Mine workers that tied up half of the nation's bituminous output were removed as 15,000 furloughed Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation workers were all recalled to work. The men were laid off in Pennsylvania plants of United States steel's biggest subsidiary when coal shortages forced closing of some operations.

Reconversion Resumed Reconversion from aircraft to automobile manufacture was resumed at the Linden, N. J., plant of General Motors corporation. AFL building tradesmen involved in a jurisdictional dispute voted to arbitrate. About 600 workers, including some CIO members, were kept from work by the dispute which started Oct. 27.

Attlee Takes Over British Airlines, Radio

LONDON (AP)—Britain's labor government last night reached out for control of all British civilian airlines and a communication network operating throughout the empire in a sweeping expansion of its nationalization program.

Prime Minister Attlee's government also announced plans to control rents of both houses and apartments.

Government spokesmen declared legislation would be introduced quickly to achieve these objectives, and enactment appeared certain in view of the labor party's overwhelming majority in commons.

'No Classes Saturday' President Announces

Saturday morning, Nov. 3, has been declared a holiday and all classes in the university will be suspended for that period, it was announced by the office of the president.

The holiday cut-rule will be in force on all classes during the 24 hours preceding and following this holiday.

Russia to Withdraw Manchurian Troops

CHUNGKING (AP)—Russians will begin their large-scale withdrawal from Manchuria today and will be out by Dec. 1, a semi-official dispatch from Tientsin said yesterday. Squarely across the path Chinese government troops would take to relieve them, however, are massed forces of fighting Chinese Communists.

Nevertheless, government soldiers will move north this month in strength, and will take over from the Russians by Dec. 3, a Chinese dispatch from Changchun insisted. Government sources here acknowledged that:

1. Communists now control most of Shantung province, virtually isolating the United States Marine-held port of Tsingtao from which central China hoped to get coal.

2. Both central government and Shansi provincial forces which encountered Chinese Communist troops in the north have "taken a beating."

Communists claimed possession of Peitaiho station on the Peiping-Mukden railroad, only 10 miles from the port of Chinwangtao, now held by United States Marines. But other reports indicated coal from inland mines was moving smoothly into Chinwangtao for shipment southward.

Communist spokesmen in Chungking reiterated their official attitude: that they seek only a peaceful settlement, of their differences with Generalissimo Chiang's government.

Hirohito's Fortune To Be Confiscated For Jap Reparations

TOKYO (AP)—A startled Japan learned yesterday that America may require Emperor Hirohito himself to pay part of the defeated nation's untold reparations bill.

A welfare ministry announcement brought still sharper realization of the cost of the war: it is disclosed that American air raids had destroyed or burned nearly 2,500,000 buildings in Japan.

Whether Hirohito's personal fortune of $106,000,000 could be considered more than a drop in the reparations bucket was a minor matter in Tokyo. Far more important to Japanese was the sudden thought that Washington's decision indirectly labels their emperor as a war criminal.

Heretofore his fortune had been considered inviolate. Even the recent Allied demands for the imperial bankbooks stirred silent resentment.

Another political shock to Japanese was the abrupt announcement by Allied headquarters today that it had not designated Prince Fumimaro Konoye to revise the Japanese constitution—a task he already had assumed. The announcement bedimmed his prestige on the eve of his evidently planned new political career as a commoner and liberal leader.

Allied authorities continued their hunt for records of the billions expended by Japan's army and navy during the war, and for vanished military goods and funds.

Searchers dug up one unexplained oddity: among two tons of secret Japanese military maps was a set of civil war maps of the battle of Gettysburg.

Expert Driving Saves Passengers

MISSOURI VALLEY (AP) — The expert driving of George Clay, Greyhound bus driver, probably saved his passengers from possible serious injury or death tonight when the bus struck a cow on highway 75, two miles north of here.

Clay steered his bus across the pavement and into the ditch, avoiding a south-bound gasoline transport truck.

Today's Weather to Be Just About the Same

After a brief consultation with the most reliable authorities on the subject, we are confident that it won't be such a bad day in Iowa City today, at least not as far as the weather is concerned. It won't be exactly warm but there's not much chance that it will rain. As a matter of fact, the powers that control the weather have been pretty nice to our mercury lately; yesterday it was sent up as far as 67 and it didn't get shoved down any lower than 40. It'll be just about like that today.

Editorials:

We Need Unity, As Well As Cooperation, in the Services

Wars always create lessons, for the armed forces and for the civilians, and one of the lessons most harshly thrust upon us in this war was that our army and navy lacked unity.

The lessons we learn should be the basis for avoiding similar mistakes in the future, and in this instance we should take steps now to shape greater unity between the army and navy for any future eventuality.

It was made clearer in this war than in any other that wars are not won by any single branch of the service. We need an army, with its foot soldiers, artillery men, etc. We need a navy with its transport and cargo ships and warships to protect them. And we need an airforce for bombings, transportation, etc.

But in this war we have seen that the mere presence of the three branches doesn't always mean that each can fulfill its appointed part of the job. We have seen orders misunderstood, strategy plans wrangled over and disputes that have had to be taken clear up to the president for settlement.

Returned servicemen have told stories of the airforces bombing the wrong beaches at Tarawa, and the navy pulling out of a beach before its job was done.

Much of the confusion that naturally would result from having separate branches in our armed forces was prevented by the joint chiefs of staff. Through the chiefs of staff, the services obtained greater cooperation than they probably ever had in any of our other wars.

But even the chiefs of staff couldn't settle all the disagreements which arose. Some of them had to be laid on the desk of the president, a civilian untrained in military affairs.

Why not turn the cooperation of this war into unity for the next by merging the armed forces?

The joint chiefs of staff would still function as it does now, but the disputes could be resolved by a head who could give the matters his full time attention, instead of only part time as the president is forced to do.

That unity could be developed under the plan suggested by the army. A single cabinet secretary would head up the armed forces, with the joint chiefs of staff and chief of staff for the armed forces handling such things as strategy and assistant secretaries handling research, equipment procurement and intelligence.

Thus there would be neither duplication nor dispute in strategy, armament, mobilization, etc. Such things as finances and purchasing could be handled in a single agency, avoiding friction of priorities and seeing that the most needful branch is the first taken care of.

This merging need not, and should not, extend too far down into each branch. We certainly want the army, navy and airforces to keep their traditional distinctions in the levels below grand strategy and overall direction.

To merge the armed forces all along the line would be unwise even if it only weakened the morale of men who are proud that they "belong" to the traditions of one of the branches.

Merger only at the top is all that we need. Then we can be sure that our strategy is always coordinated and that the army isn't receiving guns that might be more badly needed by the navy.

As the Christian Science Monitor, whose editor, Edwin D. Cahham, was here yesterday, points out:

"National defense is not a problem of the sea, the land, or the air, but an individual total of the three. It needs to be looked at as one problem, both by the fighting forces and by the public. The approach and the administration require not only coordination, but unification on a level below that of the office of the president."

If the next war progresses as far in becoming an exacting science as the last one did, even momentary disunity between our armed forces could be disastrous. Certainly we can not permit the kind of disunity that existed at Pearl Harbor if we are to protect ourselves against the atomic bomb.

are marching. The band probably will remain "co-educational."

Director C. B. Righter maps out the band's formations painstakingly, and then spends long hours with the band in drills. The things he has been able to do with his bands on the football field at halftime are widely reputed.

The band and the Highlanders are among the few prewar traditions that have remained through the war years. And because they were among the few, they were in great glory. None of that glory will diminish tomorrow.

Covering The Capital

(Second of a Series) WASHINGTON—Soybeans, as a crop grown by American farmers, are older than your great-grandmother but it wasn't until World War II that they really came of age.

They made a valuable contribution to agriculture and science in World War I, but outside a few small scientific circles nobody knew anything about it. In those days, this country was producing about 2,500,000 bushels of soybeans. Last year (the figures for this year aren't in yet but they will be much larger) the crop was close to 200,000,000 bushels, and that didn't include the acres used purely for forage or soil improvement.

For this year's planting, more than 100 varieties of soybean seeds are commercially available and the department of agriculture is experimenting with 2,500 varieties.

The department now lists more than 100 soybeans oil crushing mills and more than 200 firms making soybean food products. Yet, in 1943 less than half the country's crop was harvested as beans. Last year the soybean business was rated as a half-billion dollar industry.

Next year, it could be twice that because World War II has made soybeans a major United States crop.

In the United States and Europe, they are used for margarine and vegetable shortening; in soap, paints, cereal, bread, soups, candy, beverages, varnish, adhesives, rubber substitutes, and several plastics.

Soya—as the flour and grits are generally referred to—has been found to have around 50 percent protein quality. Thus, it goes into sauces and gravy and as a mixed with meat, eggs, cheese and vegetables.

From now on soybeans will be almost as important in your daily living as corn, wheat, rice, potatoes and meat.

The four leading soybean states today, producing about 80 percent of the total crop, are Illinois, Iowa, Indiana and Ohio, but soybeans are grown in 30 of the 48 states.

The agricultural research administration has a soybean story all its own. Just 27 years ago the soybean made its contribution to "a fundamental law of nature." At the Arlington agricultural experimental station, scientists W. W. Garner and H. A. Allard puzzled over the fact that soybeans planted at different times always bore seeds at the same time. They put some soybean plants into what looked like a small, dark chicken house.

Between 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 9 o'clock the next morning, the scientists closed all light away from the plants (three tobacco plants also were used in the experiment).

Out of that experiment, Garner and Allard discovered that many plants can flower and produce seed only when they have the right length of day. That discovery may have been the soybean's greatest contribution to science. (Tomorrow: The Irish Potato Is No Longer Irish.)

SUI Student Novelists Offered Fellowships

Two $1,000 fellowships will be awarded to University of Iowa student novelists by the Thomas Y. Crowell Publishing company of New York. The Crowell-Iowa fiction fellowships are unique in that they are offered by the publishing firm solely to University of Iowa students.

Deadline for submission of manuscripts is April 1, 1946. The applicant must submit either the first 10,000 words or the first four chapters of an original fiction novel to Prof. Paul Engle of the English department, who will send the manuscripts to New York.

The writers of the two manuscripts chosen by the publishers will each be given $500 as an outright prize. If the novels, when completed, are considered worthy of publication, the publishers will sign contracts with the authors and grant each $500 as advance royalties.

Any university student now enrolled or who plans to enroll in Professor Engle's writers' workshop class is eligible. The only restriction is that a winner not already enrolled in the writers' class must enroll and complete his novel under the guidance of Professor Engle.

Negotiations for the Crowell-Iowa fellowships were conducted by Professor Engle and Archer Wang, fiction editor of the Crowell Publishing company.

'Future Educational Systems Must Develop Adaptable Men'

"We must make our educational system realistically adapted to the fact that we have not reached the end of the world," was the warning of President Samuel Stevenson of Cornell college to members of the Iowa City Rotary club yesterday noon.

"We face the future with the assurance that our educational program is good, but not good enough; adequate, but not to the needs of the future." In regard to this statement Stevenson enumerated four challenges to the development of postwar education.

First of the challenges is that people with ability have not been encouraged or given privilege of adequate training. President Stevenson pointed out that one of the services of our military groups has been the development of literacy.

WHAT'S WRONG? There is something wrong here fellows. It's just not right at all. All about this team of ours, And the way we play football.

It can't be the kids' and coaches' fault And board of athletics, too. But something has got to be done. It's up to you and you.

We've got big corn fed boys here In this good "ole" state. Brother! we better do something Before it's too darn late.

Bawling don't seem to do it. So don't stand around and cry. Tell these kids about Iowa And good "ole" S.U.I.

We have a splendid school here As any other in the Big Ten. Get these boys back at Iowa And Victory will be ours again. Ray Wagner

Marching Color

Despite wartime curtailments, especially of manpower, the University of Iowa's famed Scottish Highlanders and the marching band, one of the foremost in the country, have remained two of the most colorful features of Iowa's football games.

Hundreds of alumni, who will be here tomorrow for their first Homecoming since wartime travel restrictions were imposed, will find the Highlanders and the band as flashy as ever, but with a greater number of women in the ranks.

Before the war, for instance, the Highlanders was composed of men, with women participating only as the Scottish dancers. The war came, and the men left. But women donned the kilts and shouldered the bagpipes, and the Highlanders remained the world's largest and most completely and correctly equipped organization of its kind.

The women have filled the ranks so capably that it may be difficult for Pipe Major Bill Adamson to decide whether he should use men again. Tradition here and in other similar groups, however, is that outfit be composed of men.

The band also has had an increased membership of women although some men still

For and About WOMEN

By Marni Clayton

SUI Women Don New Frocks for Dance

Tonight's "the night university women will don a new dress for the annual informal Homecoming dance from 9 to 12 p. m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union and dance to the blues of Jack Teagarden and his orchestra.

Nancy Noble, A2 of Princeton, Ill., has chosen a two piece black bengaline ensemble styled with a long jacket and straight skirt. The jacket features a V-neckline and blue pearl buttons down the front to waistline and cap sleeves lined with light blue. Nancy will wear black accessories to complete her outfit and Bob Van de Zee, A2 of Iowa City is her escort.

To dance the night away, Dorothea Davidson, A2 of Kirkwood, Mo., has selected an ensemble featuring a chartreuse jersey blouse with wing sleeves, coupled with a striped taffeta skirt. She will wear black accessories and her escort will be Bob Brown.

Jean Clark, A3 of Ft. Dodge, is wearing a two piece wool crepe dress styled with a Russian neckline and dolman sleeves. The blouse of the dress is chartreuse and the black drape skirt, which ties in the middle of the waistline, adds further accent. Bill Hubbard, A3 of Iowa City, is Jean's escort to the Homecoming dance.

Stepping out in a new dress of moss green crepe, will be Betty Ford, A3 of Cedar Rapids. The dress features a square neckline with a bow of matching green crepe on either side of the shoulder.

derline and three-quarter length sleeves. Highlighting the dress are the brown rhinestone studded buttons down the front and Betty will wear brown accessories to complete her outfit. Chuck Lamb, G of Tama, will be her escort for the evening.

Patty Miller, A4 of Long Island, N. Y., has selected a brown crepe dress fashioned with a round neckline and wing sleeves. An added feature of the dress is the peplum in back at the waistline and Patty will wear brown accessories. John Stichnoth, A4 of Sioux City, will be her escort.

Something unusual in the line of a black dress is the one Marjorie Van Hoesen, A4 of Des Moines, has chosen. The dress is a two piece black crepe, the jacket being relieved with two panels of light pink. Marjorie will also wear black accessories and Lt. George Christensen, formerly of the University of Wisconsin, will be her escort.

An Ex-GI's Lament—

Comeback in Civvies

If the service wives elsewhere in the country are anything like the gals around here, a lot of husbands are in for that dead let-down feeling the first time they haul off khaki or blue in favor of a pinstripe or herringbone.

The scene develops about like this: you get home, dive into the back of the closet, emerge in a storm of paper bags and mothballs and skin on the old double-breasted standby.

Then you walk out in front of your wife in the living room. She looks and then in a somewhat strained voice says, "Try on the grey flannel."

You do, and her face drops more than it did the first time.

"What's the matter, dear?" you manage.

"Brass buttons certainly did something for you," she murmurs.

Stove Concern Offers Prize for New Design

Housewives with a flair for designing combined with some concrete ideas on how the job of cooking might be made more convenient and enjoyable through the introduction of new features in the kitchen gas range will be interested in an $18,000 Magic Chef design contest just announced by the American Stove company.

The competition, sponsored by Architectural Forum, is based on a design for the "Gas Range of Tomorrow." Contestants will be allowed wide latitude in the designs they submit. They should, in brief, cover a stove embodying style and beauty, which will readily fit into the general scheme of the home of tomorrow, as well as new innovations to facilitate the task of preparing meals.

Sixteen prizes are offered, as follows: First prize, $5,000; second prize, $3,000; third prize, $2,000; three prizes of $1,000 each, and 10 prizes of $500 each.

A comprehensive booklet outlining all rules involved in the contest, and including the basic technical information needed in the preparation of designs, may be had free of charge by addressing a postal card to George Nelson, professional advisor, A.I.A., c/o The Architectural Forum, Dept. P-5, Empire State Building, 350 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, New York, mentioning the Magic Chef design contest.

She has been attending the University of Iowa this semester. Child May Learn Care—

Small Fry Hair-Dos

—Enter Coiffure Race—

Small fry will squeal with delight and pride if taught one of the new little girl hair-dos that are smart enough to give mom and older sister a race for coiffure honors.

It's possible daughter is too young to manipulate her own locks but that's where mom comes in. It may cut into a bridge game to teach her youngster how to fashion a braid or a junior-pouf, but it will be worth it when she sees her child relinquish the candy or cookie jar for the hairbrush and comb routine.

Mom can keep her youngster in the social swim at school by using her own or her hairdresser's ingenuity to create a new pretty hair-do for daughter.

Neat Hair for Mites
It is the neat hair-do for mites that are in the news. There is no excuse for a little girl having stringy locks when straight hair responds so beautifully to braids. Ribbon can be run through before plaiting or used to tie the end of the plaits. When brushed out for party or Sunday school, braids on a straight haired lass may appear fluffy and wavy.

If daughter's hair is fairly long and has a little curl on the ends, try parting it from hairline in front to the nape of the neck in back, separating it into two sections. Comb each section toward the ear and make loops of them by tying the ends close to the head with a bright ribbon at a point just behind the ear. The ends will form a little curl above the bow.

Marni's Memos

Cheers and cowbells will usher our team from the football field tomorrow afternoon. And then, you turn to thoughts of food. A steaming dish of savory veal risotto is just the thing, I'm sure, to satisfy ravenous football fans. You'll need four thin veal cutlets and one-quarter pound bulk pork sausage. From your stock of staples will come one onion, two tablespoons lard, two cups rice, one cup cooked tomatoes, one cup meat stock, two tablespoons grated sharp cheese and two tablespoons chopped parsley. Sauté the onion in hot lard, add sausage and cook five minutes. Add rice, tomatoes and meat stock. Simmer gently until the rice is cooked, about twenty minutes, then add the cheese. Beat well to form a creamy risotto.

Meanwhile, roll veal cutlets in seasoned flour and brown in hot fat. Add one-fourth cup water to the pan, cover, and cook twenty minutes. Pile hot rice mixture in the center of a platter and surround with veal cutlets which have been topped with pan gravy and sprinkled with chopped parsley. A good looking and a grand tasting dish for your Homecoming supper!

Good news for the sewing circles! One large company says its sewing machines will be ready for distribution in sizable quantities by the end of this month.

Expose the hairline at the temple if you want to minimize facial lines. These lines are drawn into importance when hair hangs straight down the side of your face. And if you're on the mature side, try putting your hair up all around. The "swing up" at sides and back lifts facial lines.

Footlight headliners — one of the season's new hit plays on Broadway contains a nightly preview of next Easter's hat styles. The "boaters" and "bustle-back" bonnets designed for "Therese" are sure bets for the 1946 spring style parade.

Frankfurters take on quite elegant ways at times and can be presented as fancy dinner main dishes. This time it's crown roast of frankfurters with your choice of stuffings. Arrange 20 frankfurters side by side with curved side up. Sew through all the frankfurters, one-half inch from the bottom and one-half inch from the top. Tie the ends of the top string together, also the bottom, bringing the first and last frankfurters of the row together. Stand the frankfurters on end to form a crown. Fill the crown with a stuffing of creamed cauliflower, parsley potato balls, sauerkraut, or hot potato salad. Bake the filled crown at 375 F. for about 20 minutes. Serves ten.

Chinese sauce is not for chop suey alone! Here's the wonderful sauce the whole family will enjoy with roast pork, shrimp, broiled steak, or liver. Combine equal parts catsup and soy sauce. Heat and pour over hot meat before serving.

If you put in Du Pont anti-freeze
You'll never have to worry,
'Cause freeze-ups will not bust your car—
But, man, you'd better hurry

Du Pont warns all car owners to get anti-freeze protection before it's too late. This year a freeze-up can be more than an inconvenience. It may be the "death" of your car. Engine blocks, radiators, and cylinder heads are still hard to get and always expensive.

Have your dealer check the cooling system thoroughly. It pays to stop leaks, replace rotted hose connections, clean a clogged radiator or repair other defects before they cause trouble. Avoid a last-minute rush. Give your dealer time to perform this needed cooling system service.

$2.65 a gal. A limited supply of "Zerex," Du Pont's non-evaporating anti-freeze, is now available. "Zerex" won't boil out. One filling lasts all winter. Nothing to worry about. Gives complete protection against rust and corrosion—won't form sludge or clog radiators.

Daily Iowan Prognosticator Remembers 1942 Homecoming—

Fisteris Predicts Iowa Triumph

"What the hell you doing up in that tree, Fisteras," calmly asked the sports editor as he shifted the position of the heavy trench mortar he was hiding behind him.

"Predicting the first Iowa Big Ten victory since 1942," the famous prognosticator replied just as calmly, and he continued his sawing upon the branch he was sitting on.

That hit the usually suave sports writer like an atomic bomb burst. Recovering after a moment of paralysis, he quickly swung his deadly weapon into position and prepared to exterminate one of the most celebrated and inebriated lives of our time.

Gracious Zeus, man," cried the ed. as he relaxed his squeeze on the trigger, "that bathtub fermentation that you've been mixing with your regular beer salary has permanently deranged you. It's a good thing that I am destroying you now before you heap more ridicule on the foretellers of football fortune. What wild talk is this of an Iowa victory?"

"Just that," returned Judas without looking up from his sawing.

"And don't you realize that you're sawing that limb off behind you? When you get it sawed off where will you be?"

"That's a good question," Judas answered thoughtfully, "but where'll I be Saturday night if the Hawk gets beat and shaw this prediction limb off behind me?"

"What made you dream such a thing?"

"Well, it'sh thish way. The last time I wash shober was in 1942 at Iowa Homecoming. And I shaw the Hawkysh upshet Wisconsin. I been to lotsh of gamesh shinh then but I haven't shewn one becashe I've been too blind."

"And then lasht night I had only

The sports editor quickly thrust the trench mortar into a coat pocket, muttered something about "at 10 to 1 odds I make $5,630" and headed toward the local parlor.

"Hey, shucker, what about thesh other predikshuns?" Fisteras called after him.

"Suit yourself," came over the sport ed's shoulder, "but fer your own sake do better than that .766 average you hit last week."

So as long as you've struggled through it this far, dear reader, go a little farther and see what

Iowa City's Little Hawks will be after their fourth consecutive victory and sixth of the season to-night when they tangle with the powerful Burlington Greyhound eleven which has been beaten only once in the past two seasons.

Expecting a hard battle, the Hawklets have been drilling all week for the game which will be played in the Greyhound stadium at 8 p. m. Tapering off last night, Coach Schwank's men ran signal drills and checked assignments.

Schwank reported that the Little Hawks are in top shape for the contest. Hopes for the victory rest on the shoulders of Captain Harold Eakes, veteran right end and defensive stalwart; Jimmy Sangster who will lead the aerial attack, teaming with Evan Smith, pass-snatching left end; and Chug Wilson, Bob Krall and Bill Olson who will carry the bulk of the ground attack.

The Hounds have a score to settle with Iowa City, remembering last year's unimpressive Hawklet aggregation which stopped the high-powered Purple for a 6-6 tie. Coach Schwank figures the game to be a tossup, and the teams' records seem to back him up on this. Both have lost but one game all season.

Sigma Nu Leads 1st Section of Intramurals

All leaders advanced in yesterday's intramural touch football league, despite postponement of three games because of bad weather.

In section 1, Sigma Nu went into undisputed first place as they ran over Delta Chi, 46 to 0. Phi Epsilon Pi, the other undefeated team in that section, postponed its contest with Sigma Alpha Epsilon. The Sigma Chi Alpha Tau Omega game was also postponed.

Phi Gamma Delta continued on its way to the championship of section 2 as Phi Kappa Psi fell, 13 to 0. Delta Upsilon upset Theta Xi, 24 to 7, for their second victory. The Sigma Alpha Epsilon-Beta Theta Pi tilt was called off.

The Gables proved themselves the class of the small dormitory section, as they soundly trounced Pi Kappa Alpha, 59 to 0. West Lambert nosed out Delta Tau Delta, 19 to 12, in the other contest of that section.

BLUE HAWK GUARD IN SEASON FINALE

ED DONOVAN, rugged University high guard, will be in the Blue Hawks' starting lineup this afternoon as Coach Paul Barnhart's boys seek to protect a perfect record against Tipton. Sterling line play by Donovan and other Blue forwards has contributed to the maintenance of the unbeaten record all fall.

University high's Blue Hawks will be out for their seventh straight win of the season this afternoon when they take the field against the Tipton Tigers at 3:15. The game will be played on the practice field just south of the Iowa stadium.

A long signal drill took up most of the practice session for the league leaders yesterday afternoon in preparation for this final game of the year. The Rivermen, with four straight conference victories, are a full game ahead of all contestants.

The Tigers, who feature the fine backfield play of Ray Ailey, halfback, "the finest back in the conference" according to Coach Don Barnhart of U high, will bring the heaviest team in the conference to Iowa City today, averaging 180 points a man.

The speed and deception of the Rivermen, plus blocking and tackling which have shown such good results all season, are expected to bring the Blue Hawks to victory.

Bill Greene and Steve Nusser, who have scored more than three-fourths of the Rivermen's points this season, are both in top shape, as is every member of the team.

Bob Ojemann will again start at right end this week, with Joe Carlstrom staying in the tackle slot in place of the injured John Carson, who hasn't been in uniform since the Mt. Vernon game.

Snappy Drill Pleases Coaches; Golden Shifted to Left Half

If the results of Iowa's last two practices are a barometer, Wisconsin will have to go all out tomorrow afternoon to keep from being the first Hawkeye Big Ten victim since 1942. The Badgers were the last team Iowa defeated, 15 conference games ago, at another Homecoming in Iowa stadium.

For the second night, Coach Clem Crowe appeared downright cheerful as his downtrodden Hawks rebounded in practice with a great show of spirit. Plays never seem to work better. The players didn't look like the same men who have been through four straight Saturday afternoon disasters.

"Last night and tonight have been the best practices of the entire fall," Crowe commented as the spirited two-hour drill ended.

And the first big lineup shift of the week appeared to be the changing of Paul Golden, former Seahawk ball-toter from right to left halfback. The coaches made this change to provide a replacement for Oborn Simons if the swift little Negro halfback is unable to start tomorrow.

However, Simons reported for drills with his leg taped and ran through a few formations with the varsity. Team doctors said he would be able to play tomorrow. Whether Crowe will start him at left half had not been indicated.

It seemed that the long-awaited return of Nelson Smith, the Iowa crowd's favorite back, might come off tomorrow. The much-taped Smith looked good in offensive drills.

Jerry Niles and big Art Johnson will riddle out the backfield. This week's practices saw Niles performing as a runner in addition to his passing and punting roles. Last night his passes seemed to click with perfect precision.

Two new tackles appear destined to start their first home game in the stadium. Leon George and Bob Knowlton replaced Kay and Hammond in the starting lineup against Notre Dame and retained the posts in drills this week.

Bob Gustafson and Danny Sheehan alternated at right end opposite Harry Loehelein. Game Captain Paul Fagerlind and tough little Louis Ginsberg were at guards as usual, and both Ira Lund and T. Hand worked at center.

Like Iowa, Wisconsin is without a conference win this season and two of its three 1943, and 1944 victories were over the Hawks. Both teams were beaten by Purdue and Ohio State, although Wisconsin held the scores down far better than Iowa did.

Novikoff, Demaree Get Ball Draft Nod

CHICAGO (AP)—Two major league castoffs, outfielders Lou Novikoff and Frank Demaree, topped a slim list of nine minor league players grabbed in the annual baseball draft yesterday.

Only seven of the 16 major league clubs, gambling a total of $62,500, sifted a selection of more than 5,000 minor leaguers at an eight-minute meeting overseered by Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler. Of the nine selected, four are in military service.

Tigers, Cubs Divide World Series Money

CHICAGO (AP)—The generosity of the Detroit Tigers and Chicago Cubs in dividing the lush world series spoils prevented any chance for new records in individual player splits.

Leslie M. O'Connor, special assistant to Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler, announced yesterday that the Tigers received $199,743 and the Cubs $133,162 as shares from the receipts of $1,592,454.

The Bengals sliced their melon into 26 full shares of $6,443.34 each and the Cubs split their take into 31 full chunks of $3,930.21.

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Coach Harry Stuhldreher yesterday named a squad of 36 for the Wisconsin football team's trip to Iowa City for the clash with the Hawks tomorrow. The Badgers are still seeking their first western conference victory.

Stuhldreher said the squad would stop at Cedar Rapids early tomorrow for a light workout.

Niles Third Among Passers in Country

DALLAS (AP)—The California Comet—Glenn Davis of mighty Army—is traveling at the fastest pigskin packing pace in modern football history.

National collegiate athletic bureau statistics throughout yesterday by Director Homer F. Cooke Jr., who is at Camp Swift, Tex., show Davis has netted 606 yards in four contests although carrying the ball only 42 times, which is an average of 14.4 yards per effort. That betters the record set last year by Davis with 11.5 per try when he made 667 on 58.

The top ten in each department through games of Oct. 20 include: Forward passing—Allen Dekker, Cornell, 51 of 92; Herman Wedemeyer, St. Mary's, 40 of 66; Jerry Niles, Iowa, 31 of 78.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Given a few breaks, Nebraska football Coach George (Potsy) Clark said yesterday, the Cornhuskers may smash their losing streak in Saturday's homecoming game with Kansas.
"The Varsity has been improving rapidly in workouts this week and should be set to give the Jay-hawkers a good argument," Clark said. The excellent performance of Cletus Fischer, St. Edward, quarterback, is another factor on which Clark leans heavily.

It's Homecoming Prewar Decorations Return to SUI

Paper, paste, pins and paint have resulted in elaborately decorated facades of sorority and fraternity houses.

Judging of displays will occur today, preceding the mass meeting, regardless of weather conditions. Originality, ingenuity and attractiveness of decorations will be the basis of judgment. Announcement of winners will be made in tomorrow's edition of The Daily Iowan.

The Kiwanis club will award a traveling trophy for the winning fraternity display. After winning the trophy for three consecutive years, a fraternity may keep it permanently.

For the most attractive sorority decorations, the Lions club will present a prize. Prof. Paul R. Olson of the college of commerce is chairman of the judging committee for the Lions, assisted by Harold Reedquist and E. G. Neikirk.

Judges of fraternity house decorations will be Kiwanis members W. J. Jackson, Hollis Hauser and Dr. Loren Borland.

'Need Superior Men In Government Jobs' E. Canham Claims

"Our leadership, on the whole, is not worthy of the American people," Erwin D. Canham, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, told his Information First audience yesterday afternoon in discussing "Political Personalities."

"There are many fine men now in office, but the general standards are not adequate." One of the major problems we face after the war, according to Canham, is that of providing for a wiser man to fill government offices and administrative positions. Canham pointed out three gaps in our governmental system. First, we have not yet evolved a comprehensive overall national policy. Second, our civil service system has failed to draw the best men into the service and government offices. Third, we have failed to provide a practical educational system to help people realize and understand our country's needs and problems.

Canham suggested a constitutional amendment that would make all former presidents ex-officio members of the senate, thus better utilizing their experience and leadership abilities. He also suggested that the nation elect at least half a dozen senators-at-large who would be able to speak in the interest of the nation as a whole. The advice and opinions of these men would carry more weight in the senate than the appearance of cabinet members.

"The United States must awaken from its postwar binge and emotional release," Canham concluded. "The people must speak out more vigorously and demand better leadership for the solution of our problems."

Juniors Present—Exciting Play

Sliding panels, an escaped lunatic and a haunted house created atmosphere for the eerie scenes of the mystery drama "The Cat and the Canary" presented by the junior class in the City high school auditorium last night.

The action took place in Glendel Manor at the edge of a remote village in Louisiana. In the library of the manor the heirs to the West estate had assembled to read the will of the eccentric Mr. West who left his entire estate to Annabelle West, providing she was of sound mind.

The attempts of a jealous relative to destroy her sanity and gain possession of the inheritance provided a series of exciting scenes which were greeted enthusiastically by the audience.

The aura of mystery was well sustained throughout the performance by all members of the cast. Bob Willhite added comedy as the nervous heir who found himself solving the mystery and winning Annabelle in spite of her two suitors, George and Howard, well played by Franklin Knowler and Don Fryauf. The role of Annabelle West, the heiress, was ably handled by Sarah Records.

Patti Ricketts in the role of the native housekeeper intensified the air of mystery while Susan Funk supplied the needed contrast as the flighty Aunt Susan Silsby.

The supporting roles of Cecily, Dr. Patterson, and Hendricks were ably played by Joan Wray, Austin Colony and Elza Means. The entire cast and technical staff deserve credit for an effective and entertaining production.
