GOOD MORNING, IOWA CITY!

PRESIDENT DENOUNCES RAIL STRIKE

Thousands of Non-Striking Iowans Idle as Industries Shutdown

Retail Store Situation Listed 'Deplorable'

Post Office Officials Set Up 'Star Routes' For First Class Mail

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thousands of non-striking Iowans were idle today as the paralyzing grip of the rail strike began its slow throttling of the state's industries.

Virtual Standstill
With the state's rail system virtually at a standstill and other means of transportation flooded in efforts to handle essential cargo, added thousands faced layoffs as industries reported imminent shutdowns if the strike continues.

Frank Zeh, secretary of the Iowa Retail Grocers and Meat Dealers association, took a spot survey in Des Moines and called the situation in retail stores "WORSE THAN DEPLORABLE."

Mail was limited to first class matter as postal officials set up "star routes" to get deliveries in

Truman Blames 2 Union Heads For Creating 'Terrible Havoc'

Chief Executive to Call on Armed Forces if Workers Not Back on Job Today; Army to Furnish Protection

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman last night called upon railroad workers to return to work and operate the nation's trains. He said that if they were not back on the job by 4 p. m. today he would call upon the armed forces to help run the railroads and furnish protection for those willing to work.

In a nation-wide radio broadcast, he accused the heads of two striking railroad brotherhoods of creating "terrible havoc."

The president declared it was "inconceivable" that the rank and file of the striking trainmen and locomotive engineers "realized the terrifying situation created by the action of these two men."

Stressing that he had "always been a consistent advocate of the rights of labor," the president said:

"I have opposed and will continue to oppose unfair restrictions."

"But in any conflict between one particular group and the country as a whole, the welfare of the country must come first."

"It is time for plain speaking," the president said in his 12-minute broadcast. "This strike vitally concerns the well being and the very life of our people."

The president referred to A. F. Whitney, head of the brotherhood of railway trainmen, and Alvanley Johnston, head of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers.

These two, he said, rejected his proposal to compromise their differences with the railroad operators when the 18 other brotherhoods accepted it.

"I assume that these two men know the terrible havoc that their decision has caused and the even more extreme suffering that will result in the future," the president declared.

The president, in appealing to the workers themselves, went over the head of their two leaders. Expressing doubt that the rank and file knew all the facts, he said he was telling them now in person.

He declared that Whitney and Johnston had refused his request that they meet with the operators and the other 18 brotherhoods "in a joint conference in the office of the president of the United States," and required the holding of three separate conferences. Explaining that 18 of the brotherhoods had accepted his own compromise recommendations, the president declared, "they placed the interest of their country first."

His Starving Abroad
The president deplored the strike's potential effects on shipment of grain abroad, where it might mean a difference "between life and death to hundreds of thousands of persons."

"If the operation of our railroads is not resumed at once thousands of persons both here and abroad will starve," he said.

The president asserted he was addressing this "stark, tragic truth" to the rank and file of the unions "so that each one of them can face his conscience and consider the SPECTRE OF STARVATION AND DEATH THAT WILL RESULT FROM THE COURSE WHICH MR. WHITNEY AND MR. JOHNSTON ARE FOLLOWING."

"The railroads must resume operation," he said "in view of the extraordinary emergency which exists, as president of the United States I call upon the men who are now out on strike to return to their jobs and to operate our railroads. To each man now out on strike I say in short and to your country goes beyond any desire for personal gain."

Appear Before Congress

The emergency is "so acute" and the issue "so vital" he said, that he will appear before a joint session of congress, at 4 p. m. today to deliver a personal message on the subject.

If sufficient workers have not returned to operate the trains by that time, he declared, "I have no alternative but to operate the trains by using every means within my power."

"I shall call upon the army to assist the office of defense transportation in operating the trains and I shall ask our armed forces to furnish protection to every man who heeds the call of his country in this hour of need."

Whitney and Johnston declined to comment on the president's speech.

The president said that while (See STRIKES Page 5)

Freight Embargo Will Not Affect Iowa City Food Supplies at Once

The embargo on freight and express shipments will not affect the supply of items on Iowa City grocery shelves for ten days to two weeks, according to retail merchants interviewed yesterday.

Retail grocers said that current stocks of staple commodities were ample for that period, but that a shortage of perishable items such as fresh fruit and vegetables could be expected earlier. Shortages in certain brands and types of merchandise may be felt within two or three days.

Groceries and meat markets were faced with a heavy volume of business throughout the first day of the embargo. Merchants likened the buying to the days when war-time rationing caused excess purchasing. In some establishments, clerks were limiting purchases to one or two items per customer.

Wholesalers were well stocked with staple goods but said fruit and vegetables from outside points would be scarce. Merchandise available within the state can be shipped by motor freight, wholesalers said.

Department stores as yet have felt little effect from the embargo. Buying had not been increased appreciably and shortages would not be apparent for a week or ten days, store officials said.

Although food buying was affected sharply, the average shipper regarded extra purchases as "just not taking any chances. You can't tell how long it will last."

OPA Returns Price Controls to Potatoes

WASHINGTON (AP)—OPA yesterday slapped price controls back on potatoes for the duration of the rail strike emergency.

The action is effective immediately. Potatoes were removed from price control early last fall.

The next day, Hofman said, "More Americans were bumped off."

Germ Warfare Fantastic—Secret Weapon Branded Rumor

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Congressional reports of a new secret weapon "more deadly than the atomic bomb" are on the wild rumor side, if the weapon is germ warfare, as unidentified congressmen are quoted.

The claims would be closer to known possibility if the weapon was a new poison gas, although they still would be in the fantastic class.

Members of the house appropriations committee, who asked that their names not be used, had said details of the weapon were disclosed to them at secret hearings on the navy appropriations bill. One member spoke of a germ spray distributed from high-flying airplanes.

"A weapon that can wipe out all form of life in a large city," is one of the anonymous congressional statements. There is no such germ or bacteria or virus. Nor is there any known aggregation of death dealing germs of different disease kinds that can wipe out all life.

This particular claim fits better the prognostications of a poison gas, and is not greatly different from claims made about the gas Lewisite, then called the "dew of death," after World War I.

Black Death (Bubonic plague) in some places killed 60 percent of the population. Whether American scientists have found a means to spread it is unknown, but the Japanese failed in China.

C. Bowles Declares Price Control Needed

Claims Farm Income Deflation Can Happen If Inflation Continues

CHICAGO (AP)—Chester Bowles, director of the office of economic stabilization, declared yesterday "Any farmer who thinks back to the wave of mortgage foreclosures, three-cent hogs, and two-bit wheat which plagued him after the last war knows he has a vital stake in price control right now."

Writing in the new issue of Prairie Farmer, bi-weekly farm paper, Bowles said in an exclusive article the average farmer's income shrank from $1,360 a year in 1919 to $460 a year in 1921.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics said farmer income averaged $2,269 in 1944 and is estimated at about $2,363 last year with a slight reduction indicated this year.

Bowles said the deflation of farm income can happen again if those who have benefitted most under free enterprise, such as the National Association of Manufacturers, continue to invite disaster by working for inflation.

"By continuing to meet production goals, the farmer can reduce the spread between supply and demand. Hasten the day when price controls and subsidies can be abandoned safely, and maintain the level of his prosperity."

Car Shortage Closing Coal Mines Rapidly

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The railroad strike swung a stupefying blow on the nation's coal mining industry today with lack of coal cars rapidly shutting down all mines and making a mockery of the coal strike truce.

Operators and officials of the solid fuels administration predicted all mining operations would be frozen by this morning when the few available empty gondolas are filled.

Lack Storage
Lack of storage facilities and loading prevent any attempt to keep mining coal to build up stockpiles against the end of the railroad strike, operators explained.

Pennsylvania had less than 10,000 of 100,000 miners working when the rail strike started, because of their reluctance to work without a contract but other states had approached, or achieved, normal production under the coal strike truce.

Affects Anthracite Fields
The rail strike laid just as heavy a hand on the anthracite fields. In the important Pennsylvania hard coal region mines started closing for lack of railroad cars with from 3,000 to 4,000 miners made idle almost at once. Officials in the United States employment office predicted that 150,000 persons in the Scranton-Wilkes-Barre area would file claims for unemployment compensation if the strike continues any length of time.

In West Virginia, the nation's top soft coal producer, mines began closing as sidings became jammed with loaded cars. In the northern part of the state, 14,000 of the 24,000 miners were laid off as a result. The state counts 104,000 miners and officials predicted all would be idle in a matter of hours.

Soviet Prosecutor Killed Accidentally

NUERNBERG (AP)—Gen. N. D. Zorya, an assistant Soviet prosecutor who presented part of Russia's war crimes case against the Nazi hierarchy, was killed accidentally Thursday while handling a gun, his chief said yesterday.

Zorya, 39, was chief prosecutor of the Red army. He became a general during the battle of Stalingrad.

Interim Committee Grants $31,726 to State Board of Education for East Hall Repairs

The State Board of Education was granted $31,726 yesterday by the Iowa Legislative interim committee to repair the damage caused by fire to East Hall May 17.

The three hour blaze destroyed the roof, attic and part of the third floor of the structure and caused extensive water damage to lower floors.

George Horner, superintendent of planning and construction at the university, said the first step in rebuilding the damaged section would be application to the Federal Housing Administration in Des Moines for a priority on construction materials.

Senate Committee Approves New Price Control Amendment

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 15-page amendment setting out the manner in which price controls shall be lifted from commodities as supply begins to balance demand was approved 12 to 5 by the senate banking committee late yesterday.

The amendment hooks onto legislation extending the price control law until June 30, 1947.

With only minor changes, it follows the general decontrol principles agreed upon by the committee Tuesday. A subcommittee worked three days drafting the legal language.

The amendment gives the secretary of agriculture overriding authority over the price administrator with regard to price controls on agricultural products. The administrator could maintain price ceilings only on times which the secretary certified to be in short supply, and the secretary could recommend adjustments—when he considered the ceiling so low as to impede necessary production.

The administrator would be instructed to lift controls by next Dec. 31 from all non-agricultural products "not important in relation to business costs or living costs."

Bankhead Collapses During Labor Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Bankhead (D., Ala.), apparently unconscious, was carried from the capitol last night in a stretcher after collapsing in a committee room a few yards from the senate chamber where debate on labor legislation was in progress.

He was rushed by ambulance to the naval hospital at nearby Bethesda, Md. Bankhead's office said the senator was suffering from a "light stroke on the left side."

Woodbine Boy Wins National Spelling Bee

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 13-year-old boy from Woodbine, smack in the middle of the corn belt, became a national champion yesterday because he knows how to spell flaccid.

John McKinney, a calm 5-foot-85-pounder, spelled down 28 other finalists to win the 19th annual spelling bee, sponsored by newspapers from coast to coast.

Churchill Raps Party Decision

LONDON (AP)—Winston Churchill yesterday assailed the labor government's decision to withdraw British troops from Egypt as cutting the empire's life-line, but Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin declared the decision was based on the "great hope" that a regional defense group under the United Nations would take their place.

In a stormy debate with Churchill in the house of commons Bevin asserted "I am prepared to trust rather than to shoot. I do not think a fuhrer mentality suits today."

Churchill declared the British efforts to find other bases to substitute for Egypt would bring complaints of imperialism "and Russia would renew and reinforce her demands for a base or bases in the Mediterranean."

Netherlands Relief

PELLA (AP)—Secretary Ralph Ver Meer of the committee for Netherlands relief here has announced that proceeds of the relief auction staged May 9 will be allotted to a postage fund for sending individual packages to Holland.

Editorials:

Will It Be More Horsemeat or More OPA?

New emphasis of the seriousness of the meat shortage could be found in a recent report from Chicago stockyards officials. They say that horse slaughtering in 1946 will reach the unprecedented peak of 150,000 animals.

Even in the worst war year, only a third of that number was slaughtered for human consumption, according to official figures. American householders may be relieved to know that half the product is scheduled for overseas shipment to meet United States food commitments in Europe, but it is certain that horsemeat filets will be showing up in the showcases at grocery stores before too long.

In a way, this may prove a good thing. It may bring an outburst of indignation from the American public. It is apparent that government charges that 80 to 90 percent of the United States meat supply is going into the hands of black marketeers did not result in any efficient public support of investigations or in the application of effective methods to destroy illegal slaughtering.

There Are Better Ways

(From the Christian Science Monitor) It is hard to credit the report that the Allies in Germany will seek to eradicate Nazi ideology by "confiscation and destruction of Nazi literature." It follows too closely the pattern of Hitler's infamous "book burning."

It is too easy to pick up the weapons of hatred, vengeance, censorship, repression—and much too easy to argue that they are being used in a good cause. Those who profess the way of freedom are required to show their faith by their works. They must have confidence enough in truth to let it prove itself against error. But apparently the Allies are afraid that democratic literature cannot win the Germans in open competition with Nazi literature.

Europe—It's Future Hangs on U. S. Political Campaign

Between the Napoleonic wars and the first World war, the continent of Europe enjoyed a century of relative peace. Small conflicts marred this 100 years—the Crimean war, the series of wars ending in the Franco-Prussian war when Germany emerged as a modern state, the wars which unified Italy, a series of Balkan wars—but the impact of these wars could not be compared to the large scale conflicts like the American Civil war and the first World war.

This period of peace was possible because Great Britain, "perfidious Albion," acted as the arbiter of power in Europe and played off nation against nation until 1914 when the system broke down. Faulty as it may have been, this juggling of power did permit peace. Under this balance of power the United States grew unhampered into a great power and not until peace was threatened by the foreshadows of the first World war was the United States called into active participation in Europe.

In 1906 the United States attended the conference at Algiers and supported Britain and France against Germany over the security of the status of Gibraltar. The United States intervened in the first World war to prevent a German victory, not alone to make the world safe for democracy. After 1900 the United States was an irrevocable member of the world community with commitments that had to be supported by more than mere words.

Habits of thought from the time when American security was so effortless persisted. Distinctly American solutions were offered to the world—the world court, the League of Nations, the Kellogg peace plan and the disarmament conferences—scraps of paper, solutions which were without force and which ignored the realities other nations could not afford to ignore.

Even after the second World war, so much more costly in material and men to the United States than the first one, many of these habits of thought are still with us. And this is a time when America can easily be the decisive factor in a peaceful Europe and a peaceful world.

Perhaps a hearty diet of horsemeat will affect the American stomach enough to cause a positive demand that federal, state and local authorities stamp out black market racketeering in essential commodities. It may arouse the public and congress to action in support of a strengthened OPA.

are afraid that democratic literature cannot win the Germans in open competition with Nazi literature. So they are going to try to exterminate the latter. We cannot believe "Mein Kampf" has any great attraction in the Reich today. But confiscation orders could give it a vogue. Nazi literature will not be completely destroyed, and what remains will have new interest and power. And the Germans will note that the Allies have endorsed Herr Goebbels' methods—by imitating them.

We trust that the leeway given zone commanders in enforcement of this order will be utilized to reduce its folly. Above all, we trust that the democracies will put their real effort into displacing Nazi notions with the positive concepts of freedom, justice, tolerance and mercy.

ern nations they have invaded. Russia was better as an immutable sphinx. Recent elections in Europe show a swing to the "right," toward moderate political programs. By granting loans to foreign nations to help them recover, by feeding the starving, by fulfilling its obligations of occupation, the United States can keep that disinterested prestige.

But by using the food and money as political bait, by returning to isolationism and self-gluttony, by withdrawing troops from Europe, the United States serves notice to the world that it is still not prepared to assume its responsibilities.

It is one of the tragedies of our age that these realities must be acted on in an election year and outmoded habits of thought can make them such an issue. The health and peace of Europe may well be crucified on the cross of the American 1946 political campaign.

Under this balance of power the United States grew unhampered into a great power and not until peace was threatened by the foreshadows of the first World war was the United States called into active participation in Europe.

In 1906 the United States attended the conference at Algiers and supported Britain and France against Germany over the security of the status of Gibraltar. The United States intervened in the first World war to prevent a German victory, not alone to make the world safe for democracy.

Fingerprints Keep Felons Out of Civil Service Jobs By BRACK CURRY WASHINGTON — A man applying for work at the Chicago post office said he had never been arrested but had been fingerprinted in Columbus, Ohio. The FBI, in searching his finger impressions, found he had been convicted of a forgery charge at Milan, Mich.

The search of another civil service applicant's fingerprints found that he had been charged at New Orleans with possessing subversive literature and inciting riot. This man had applied for a position at the Bremerton, Wash., navy yard. During the war the civil service commission sent the FBI the fingerprint card of a man applying for work at the Boston navy yard. He claimed he had never been arrested or fingerprinted. From the files of the FBI's identification division it was found that the man had been sentenced in 1918 to serve 30 years for disloyalty.

One week after Pearl Harbor the FBI received from civil service a fingerprint card for a man applying as a hospital aide at the veterans administration in New York City. He said he had never been arrested. The FBI found that he was arrested in Atlantic City in 1919 for false pretenses, served a year in Florida for issuing worthless checks, and from 1926 through 1929 served several sentences for false pretenses and violation of the drug act.

The FBI's identification division checks the fingerprints of all applicants for government jobs with the 15,339,000 criminal prints in its records. Many individuals are disqualified in this way. Of the men who applied for work at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., ordnance plant, the most vital of the atom bomb projects, one was identified by the FBI as a former convict. He has served five sentences since 1917 at San Quentin, Leavenworth and the Minnesota and Colorado state penitentiaries for embezzlement, auto theft and operating a confidence ring.

Another man applying for a job as guard at the plant was found to have been sentenced at Lexington, Ky., in 1932 for arson. In 1945 the civil service commission sent the FBI the fingerprints of a man applying for a position as rubber specialist with the war production board. The man answered "no" in the space on the card asking if he had ever been arrested.

James D. White's Interpreting the News....

The slowdown of relief shipments abroad caused by the rail strike will be accentuated many times if the maritime strike comes off June 15 as scheduled by the unions. These unions do not represent all American seamen and dockers, but they reach effectively into vital levels of shipping. A ship cannot sail if its radio operators are out on strike, or its engineers, or if a dock strike prevents loading or unloading.

What such a strike will do to a world shipping is not hard to visualize. The unions agree to sail troopships and relief ships, but in effect are reserving the right to decide when a ship is a relief ship and when it isn't. In view of recent union resolutions (one was against Franco Spain), it remains to be seen whether a ship loaded mostly with wheat for Europe could be stopped if it also had a consignment of goods for Spain on board.

Electronics Field Growing Fast

By WILLIAM GLOVER AP Newsfeature Writer NEW YORK—Industry representatives aren't going out on a limb with any statistical estimates, but if pent-up consumer demand plus the promise inherent in amazing wartime achievements mean anything, one of the country's richest fields of future employment expansion is in the ramified assortment of activities stemming from the magic word electronics. Most industrial fields considered in an Associated Press survey of job opportunities are fairly well defined as to the number and types of employment possible, but electronics sprawls across the economic horizon.

It is creating not only new ideas of potentially big employment with television, radar, facsimile transmission and telephone service for family cars but with devices like the electronic microscope and radio heating is directly affecting important development of other major industries. More Americans probably are interested directly in work opportunities in the variegated field of electronics than most others because more skills can find a place than in most other crafts. As might be expected of an industry born in a highly technological age, many of the prospective jobs entail a fairly large amount of technical training and specialized ability.

A good indication of prospects is given by David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America: "Television appeals as 'the big show of the future.' Directly and indirectly it will employ many thousands of people, including technicians and artisans, business men and industrialists. It calls for producers, cameramen, directors, musicians, film experts, scenic designers, dramatists, playwrights, actors, beauticians, stylists, engineering, advertising, merchandising and many other skills." But, Sarnoff points out, television isn't the limit of electronics expansion, for "the postwar horizon of radio is a threshold of opportunity." One publication has estimated that television alone will eventually provide four and a half million jobs. Taking a closer range view, industry representatives participating in employment discussions sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers simply declare thousands will find work in electronics. Some idea of work expansion during the next few years is contained in estimates of consumer demand for equipment. Industrialists believe there is a backlog market for twenty million radio receivers, plus a big call for new frequency modulation apparatus and for the vest-pocket radios made possible through wartime development of tiny tubes and parts. In addition, the federal communications commission has applications pending for construction of 400 frequency modulation stations and for 120 television stations. Radio telephone service for automobiles already is being tried.

Letters to the Editor: The Iowan Readers Forum...

(Editor's Note: The Daily Iowan invites letters to the editor. They must bear the name and address of the writer, but the writer's name will not be printed if so requested. No attention will be paid to unsigned letters.) TO THE EDITOR: As I listened this evening to the United Negro College Fund's All-Star program over the ABC network, I sincerely wished that every one of the United States' 140,000,000 citizens could have had his ears close to his radio receiver to enjoy the entertainment and the information which were presented. The entertainment featuring Dorothy Maynor, the Tuskegee choir, King Cole trio, Art Tatum, Maxine Sullivan and "Sugar Chile" Robinson was excellent to say the least, and I consider the fine narrating by Quentin Reynolds to have been a most important and informative item.

This program was in commemoration of an event which has never before occurred in history, namely, the unveiling of a bust of Booker T. Washington, eminent Negro educator, in New York university's "Hall of Fame" which took place May 23. There are millions in our country who have never heard of Booker T. Washington and have not the slightest conception of the great strides made in the fields of Negro education and achievement. In citing the achievements of some outstanding Negroes and in stressing the dire need for skilled and trained Negroes in America, this program performed an invaluable service to the American people as well as to the Negro race.

It has been said that you cannot truly respect or appreciate a man until you know and understand him. Such being the case, programs such as this will perform a vital service in providing a means whereby the best that the American Negro has produced in all fields of human endeavor will be presented to the public in order that it may recognize and appreciate the contribution to the American way of life which has been made by America's "Tenth Man."

Quonset Huts Go to Vets With Children

Predict Units Ready in June

Hawkeye Residents To Get Preference, Says SUI Director

Married student-veterans with two children now residing in university trailer units will be the first eligible for transfer to the 25 Quonset huts or 680 FPMA apartment units according to Mrs. Imelda Murphy, director of the university housing service.

Mrs. Murphy explained that families in trailers need not apply for the new units since they will be offered them automatically as soon as a vacancy occurs.

Married couples with two or more children not residing in trailers will be given second preference. These couples may make application for the new units beginning Monday in room 3, Old Capitol.

No other applications for the new units will be accepted at this time.

Application for Fall
Married couples without children or with one child may make application for other housing facilities for the fall semester beginning Monday in the office of student affairs. These housing facilities include university cooperative dormitories for married couples and trailer units. Couples will be notified of accommodations available later in the summer.

The university now operates two cooperative dormitories for married students. One of these, Jefferson house at 26 E. Jefferson, is occupied by seven married couples. Six married couples reside in the other cooperative dormitory at 4 E. Market.

Hawkeye Village, university trailer project west of reserve library, now has a total population of approximately 350 persons. Of the 170 units in the village, 125 are occupied.

A section of Riverdale trailer camp, north of the university theater, will be opened to veterans and their families within a few weeks.

Mrs. Murphy said the 680 units allocated recently by the FPMA to the university would be of the barracks-type, but no information has been received concerning the exact kind of barracks.

Mrs. Murphy explained the barracks would be partitioned off into apartments which would be as desirable in size, appearance and comfort as the Quonset huts.

George L. Horner, university architect, declined to predict when the 680 units would be sent here. Some university officials said they believed the units would not arrive until fall.

Horner received notification that an engineer from FPMA regional office in Chicago would arrive here last week to inspect probable sites for the units, but no word has been received from him.

In discussing the apartments, Mrs. Murphy said some probably will be furnished. No notice has been received as to the interiors of the units.

Rates Not Named
"Several things must be made clear," Mrs. Murphy said. "Only student-veterans will be allowed to occupy the units. This is a government regulation. Residents of Hawkeye Village eligible for the new units will be notified of the time they can transfer. Rates have not been determined."

Meanwhile, the Kucharo Construction Co., Des Moines, has begun erecting 25 Quonset huts to house 50 student veterans and their families. Sites for the huts are in an area at the corner of Park and Halley streets and between the east end of Halley street and the Iowa river.

Construction work on the units will be completed by June 27, according to R. H. Wise, Kucharo construction superintendent.

Goodbye Sweaters—

Hello Cool Cottons

—For Summer Fun

SUNNING IN SUMMER sport clothes are Barbara Berg, A1 of Chicago, left, and Ruth Paul, A1 of Davenport. Miss Berg is attired in a one piece blue cotton print playsuit which buttons down the front and she is wearing red ballet slippers. A matching skirt completes her ensemble. Miss Paul is wearing a two-piece light green checkered cotton dress. A wide kelly green belt adds further accent to the costume. Black ballet slippers are also worn.

Summer sport clothes are a "must" for college women at the University of Iowa when Old Sol shines. Taking over as dress for the last two weeks, replacing the traditional wool sweaters, skirts and saddle shoes, are sandals, playsuits and cotton dresses.

Shocking pink is the color of T-strap sandals worn by Carolyn Alexander, A3 of Webster City. Styled with a high three-inch heel, these cut away leather shoes expose almost the entire foot. Carolyn combines them with a lime green silk jersey dress.

Dorothy Goldapp, A3 of Council Bluffs, is cool in her new ensemble, which includes a black cotton skirt bordered with Irish lace around the hemline. She tops the skirt with a white dotted swiss blouse fashioned with an off-shoulder neckline and puffed sleeves also trimmed with matching Irish lace.

"The good old summer time is swimming time"—so has decided Carolyn Voss, A3 of Davenport. Her two-piece swimming outfit is gabardine, designed with lime green, rose and white stripes. An extra feature of the ensemble is a box styled jacket with long sleeves.

Strictly for summer lounging is the corn yellow, three-piece playsuit of Audrey Ross, A3 of Des Moines. Midriff styled, the top of the playsuit features a black fish net and yellow gabardine bodice. The pleated shorts are designed with two patch pockets trimmed with matching black fish net. A blue and black skirt also trimmed with yellow pockets can be worn over her costume.

Ballet slippers now rate a fashion "A" for Cotty Woods, A3 of Burlington. Cream colored slippers with ties are combined with a light green chambray dress for added summer comfort.

the time they can transfer. Rates have not been determined."

Meanwhile, the Kucharo Construction Co., Des Moines, has begun erecting 25 Quonset huts to house 50 student veterans and their families. Sites for the huts are in an area at the corner of Park and Halley streets and between the east end of Halley street and the Iowa river.

Construction work on the units will be completed by June 27, according to R. H. Wise, Kucharo construction superintendent.

Candidates Sent Questionnaires By League of Women Voters

5 Candidates Asked For Political Stand On Current Issues

Questionnaires have been sent to five candidates for state representative and two candidates for the Johnson county board of supervisors by the League of Women Voters, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. E. L. DeGowin, chairman of the league's committee of government.

It has been the practice of the league, Mrs. DeGowin said, to present to the public before elections a summary of the duties of the offices to be filled, a short biography of the candidates, and their views on current issues.

The three Democratic and two Republican candidates for state representative were asked in the questionnaire for their views on housing, state institutions, the state tax system and educational problems pressing in the next session of the state legislature.

The two Democratic candidates for the Johnson county board of supervisors for the term beginning Jan. 1947, were asked what they considered the most important health and social welfare problems in Johnson county and if they favored a city-county health unit.

The League, a non-partisan organization, will announce the results sometime next week.

Questionnaires will also be sent to all candidates for county and township offices before the November elections, Mrs. DeGowin announced.

The candidates sent questionnaires are: Democrats for state representative, W. H. Bartley, Frank J. Krall, Emil G. Trott; Republicans for state representative, Jacob A. Swisher, Harold W. Vestermark. The two Democratic board of supervisor candidates are Preston Koser and Robert Mahoney Sr.

Bruce Mahan Elected Visual Education Head For National P.T.A.

Prof. Bruce E. Mahan, director of the university extension division, was elected chairman of visual education for the National Congress of Parents and Teachers at the national convention recently held in Denver, Col.

Professor Mahan will serve on the board of managers of the national congress for the next three years and will supervise a nationwide program of visual education for the organization.

A state chairman in each state, the District of Columbia and the territory of Hawaii will be associated with him in this work.
