New Military Training Plan Made Public

Patterson Discloses Program to Provide Million Men Yearly

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Secretary of War Robert Patterson disclosed before the American Legion yesterday a new universal military training plan and Gen. Omar N. Bradley took the legion's commander sharply to task for his criticism of the veterans administration.

Patterson said the universal military training plan was essential to keep the nation a respected power in peace and observed "in these days it is the unarmed transport plane, not the Flying Fortress, that gets shot down."

Respectable military strength "will give pause to any power overseas," he said after his implied reference to the shooting down of a plane over Yugoslavia which cost five American lives and drew an apology from Marshal Tito.

ATLANTA (AP) — The Atlanta Constitution said last night in a copyrighted story that Japan developed and successfully tested an atomic bomb three days before the war ended and that "Japanese scientists who developed the bomb are now in Moscow, prisoners of the Russians."

The story was written by David Snell, former Constitution reporter recently returned from service with the twenty-fourth criminal investigation detachment operating in Korea. He gave as the basis of his story an interview with a Japanese officer who said he was in charge of counter-espionage at the atomic developing project in Korea.

Sees Danger To Atomic Energy Talks

Alleged Misstatements Of Former Secretary Listed in 5 Categories

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. (AP) — Bernard M. Baruch, United States delegate to the United Nations atomic energy commission, announced last night he had sent a telegram to Henry A. Wallace expressing sore disappointment at what he said was Wallace's failure to correct errors in his recent foreign policy letter regarding the United States' plan to control atomic energy.

Saying that those errors stood uncorrected by Wallace, Baruch stated in his telegram:

"They are gravely dangerous to the delegate negotiations now under way. They create confusion and division among our people. Your's is a responsibility for impairing the support of the American proposals which you frankly approved once your misunderstandings had been corrected. You have disappointed me sorely."

Baruch released what he said was the direct authorization of President Truman a memorandum dated Sept. 24 in which Baruch replied to statements made by former Secretary Wallace in his letter of July 23 on foreign policy.

Baruch said in the memorandum that the "misstatements" in Wallace's July letter may be summarized under these five headings:

"1. The method of determining the stages of transition to the ultimate control plan.

"2. The content and sequence of these transition stages.

"3. The proposed limitation on the great power veto.

"4. The nature of the Soviet proposal.

"5. The refusal by the United States to depart from the principles of its plan."

Baruch said that he could not yet tell what effect the Wallace letter had on other delegations, adding: "I'll tell you this: it didn't do us any good. I think we will be able to correct it." He said that a statement admitting errors of fact had been worked out between his representatives and Wallace's representatives but that Wallace had not signed that statement.

Baruch said that "in view of the mis information that has been spread and continuously spread and in view of the fact that Wallace admitted he was in error and despite my continued efforts to have him do so, he has refused to correct the errors, which he said were caused by the fact he was not fully informed, I was forced to put out the statement."

Baruch released a telegram which he sent yesterday afternoon to Wallace in Washington after, he said, attempting until late in the day to have Wallace agree to sign the statement prepared in New York.

In the telegram, Baruch said: "When you left me Friday afternoon, after three hours of discussion, you said that you had regretted your failure to have talked with the American delegation to the atomic energy commission before composing your letter to the president, which you wrote on July 23. You also volunteered your approval of the course we have been following on each of the points covered in my memorandum to the president."

"After our discussion, you instructed your associate, Mr. Philip Hauser (former deputy chief of the census bureau and later assistant to the secretary of commerce) to get together with Mr. Herbert Swope, one of my associates, to draw up a statement indicating the mistakes in your letter and showing your approval of our position based on your full understanding of the facts. After several hours they succeeded in drafting a proposed statement for your signature. It was wholly agreeable to your representative and accepted by me and my group. I assured my colleagues of my conviction that you would carry out what was regarded as a fair expression of your attitude as

Peace Committee Okays Trieste Statute

PARIS, Thursday (AP)—A peace conference commission adopted today the broad principles of a statute for the free territory of Trieste.

The voting came after Yugoslavia charged the United States and Britain with betraying the Big Four agreement on Trieste in order to establish a British-American military base on the Adriatic.

After approving the French proposal the delegates also approved a Polish-French amendment which requested the four-power council of foreign ministers to consult with representatives of Yugoslavia and Italy when they draft the final statute of the free zone.

Although the commission's vote gave the French proposal the necessary two-thirds majority to make it a full recommendation, there were still two hurdles to be negotiated—the peace conference plenary session and the council of foreign ministers which will do the final drafting.

Twenty-five separate votes were necessary to cover the two-page stated to me on Friday morning. I now find I was quit wrong.

"We were unable to reach you Friday night, Saturday or Sunday and it wasn't until late Monday that I heard from you. In the proposed statement which you telephoned me on Monday afternoon, you failed to say you had not been fully informed nor did you express approval of the course I have been following on the points originally criticized by you. Instead, you proceeded to discuss other questions that had no bearing upon the misstatements regarding atomic energy contained in your letter to the president."

"Since Monday we have made further efforts to bring you back to the position which you took following our talk last Friday, when you were willing to make public the correction of errors which you freely admitted to us in private. These efforts have not succeeded . . .

"You have no monopoly of the desire for peace. I have given 30 years of my life to the search for peace and there are many others whose aims have been the same."

The statement which Baruch said Wallace did not sign said at one point:

"As a result of our discussion (Sept. 27 in New York) I (Wallace) have concluded that at the time I wrote my letter to the president, I was not fully posted on some aspects of the position of the U. S. representative. In the light of developments subsequent to the writing of my letter, I am in full agreement with the principles pursued by Mr. Baruch, as outlined in his memorandum to the president. In the interest of world peace I endorse those principles wholeheartedly."

Baruch also released what he said was an alternate statement proposed by Wallace in a telephone conversation Sept. 30. Baruch said no errors were admitted in that statement, which he rejected. In this statement, Wallace said at one point, according to Baruch:

"There still remains in the central issue for which my letter was directed, but which received no mention in Mr. Baruch's memorandum (Sept. 24 to the president). The present impasse of the negotations for atomic energy arises from two basic points of disagreement. The first and most important one relates to the question of whether the United States should continue its production of stockpiling of atomic bombs during the period of transition before international control. The second relates to the Russian refusal to agree to an international system of inspection to control atomic energy production so as to assure peaceful use. The serious points of disagreement on which to work are that the United States atomic energy commission has been deadlocked for some time and serve to demonstrate the major thesis of my letter to the president—the absence of an attitude of mutual trust and confidence between the United States and Russia."

"Complete Misunderstanding"
The memorandum to President Truman charged Wallace with "complete misunderstanding of the U. S. position on the method of determining the transition stages" of atomic control and said the United States has not asked other nations to refrain from research on the military use of atomic energy "and would not ask this unless we were prepared to cease such research ourselves."

The memorandum said the United States delegation "cannot consider modifications in those fundamental principles of its plans which, in our judgment, must be maintained to meet the mandate given the commission by the United Nations general assembly last January."

We'd Sure Like to Say, 'Thanks'

The boys with the ready promise and the eager handshake are home again. The politicians are back mending political fences in preparation for this fall's elections. The problems encountered by our congressmen during the recently ended session were numerous and difficult. Much was accomplished, both negatively and positively, during the 79th. And much was left undone.

Wouldn't it be wonderful to live in a district where we could say to our homecoming representative, "Nice work, old boy. Welcome home!"

It would give us a considerable degree of satisfaction if we could compliment our congressmen on his vote in support of a workable OPA, for example. We'd like very much to be able to walk up to him and thank him for voting against the insidious Wobey amendment to the price control bill—an amendment that would have guaranteed inflation. We'd enjoy thanking him for his sturdy fight against all the hamstringing amendments tacked onto the OPA bill in the house.

And there's the British loan. We'd be proud to think that no isolationist diard was representing our district during the last session. Besides, we're farmers back here in Iowa and we'd like to think that our representative has kept our interests in mind by approving a loan to our best foreign customer.

We'd like to be able to thank him for his vote in support of President Truman's veto of the tidelands oil resolution. This bill which was strongly supported by the petroleum interests was designed to establish state jurisdiction over the oil-rich tidelands bordering the country. If only in the interests of national defense, we think it proper that control of these vast oil reserves should rest with the national government. And had our congressman voted to sustain the president's veto of this resolution, we'd give him a pat on the back.

There's so many things for which we'd like to be able to express our appreciation to our member of the house of representatives. There's the anti-poll tax bill—we'd especially enjoy thanking him for an affirmative vote on this measure because we think such a vote is a vote for democracy.

Thanks, too, would be forthcoming for a negative vote on the Dirksen amendment to the U. S. Employment bill which proposed to return the employment offices back to the states on June 30, 1946. And we'd like to be able to express approval of his position in favor of the extension of the reciprocal trade agreements act.

The first time we see our representative on the street, we'd like to be able to welcome him home with an expression of appreciation for his farsighted statesmanship as evidenced by his voting record in the 79th congress.

But, unfortunately, since our returning representative is Thomas E. Martin, all these pleasures of appreciation are denied us here in the first congressional district of Iowa.

If Our University Is to Be Great

A meeting of the Iowa State college chapter of the American Association of University Professors last Monday in Ames threw light on a problem which is currently affecting all three of Iowa's educational institutions.

The Iowa State group took steps to recommend general pay increases for faculty members in view of the rising cost of living. The action was taken following a report on a survey which revealed that 7 of 16 midwestern colleges and universities had given substantial increases in salaries to their staffs.

Leader among these was the University of Wisconsin which has authorized a general increase for all staff members amounting to as much as 20 percent in some cases. The total increase at Wisconsin is expected to cost about $383,000 for 1946 and 1947.

Other schools revealed to be in the substantial increase bracket include the University of Minnesota, the University of Indiana, the University of Michigan, Kansas State college, South Dakota State college and the University of North Dakota.

Of the institutions surveyed, four have made adjustments which are very general if not of a blanket type. They include the University of Illinois, the University of Nebraska, the University of South Dakota and Purdue university.

At Illinois, according to the survey, no overall increase was authorized. Two years ago there was a flat ten percent increase for all staff members receiving under $3,000 per year. In 1945 there was an adjustment of 15 percent for the non-academic personnel. Members of the academic staff receive their raises as a result of recommendations by the heads of departments. In 1945, academic raises at Illinois were fairly general but varied widely from $100 to $1,000 or more.

Of the five remaining schools contacted in the survey, pay increases have been very limited. These schools are the University of Chicago, the University of Missouri, Northwestern, University of Kansas and North Dakota State college.

As far as this newspaper has knowledge, no action for faculty pay increases has been taken by the University of Iowa chapter of the American Association of University Professors. Such action by the local organization, we believe, would certainly be in order at this time.

The rising cost of living and the corresponding decrease in the value of the dollar is, in itself, adequate justification for faculty pay boosts. But there is another, more important reason.

It becomes more obvious each day that if the University of Iowa is to be a great university, it will have to meet the competition of other similar institutions. Increases have been granted at many universities and are under consideration at others.

If we are to acquire and retain the type of faculty men required to make this university great, then we must offer salaries which are high enough to enable SUI to maintain a staff of top notch instructors and administrators.

During the past year, the University of Iowa lost many competent faculty men to other institutions. It is true that higher salaries were not always responsible for the transfer. It is also true that many very capable men were added to the staff during the past year.

But the question is: How long will the university be able to maintain a competent staff in the face of ever increasing competition from other institutions? Not for long, we fear.

SUI Student Tells How—

He Covered Nuernberg Trials

Covering the Nuernberg war crimes trial as an official photographer for the army signal corps is a vivid memory to Raymond G. Sievers, now a pre-dental student at the University of Iowa.

Sievers took the pictures at the trial from its opening session in November, 1945, to March, 1946.

"The trial was exactly the right thing for the United Nations to have done," said Sievers. "We had to show the German people that we were fair—not only that those guilty of the crimes against humanity would be punished, but that those proven innocent would be freed."

Commenting on the current criticism of the length of the trial, Sievers stated that it was necessary in the light of the mass of evidence that had to be presented.

"I suppose that the total amount of energy expended by everyone from the judges on the bench to the lonely soldiers who had to stand guard in the Nuernberg snow, amounts to a tremendous sum, but if the trial achieves its purpose of impressing upon the world that waging war is a crime it is well worth it," Sievers declared.

The judges allowed every bit of evidence that might have even minute bearing on the proceedings to be presented in court. Nothing that might possibly reflect favorably on the defendants was overlooked, he explained.

The German press was well represented and accorded the same freedoms allowed the allied newspaper representatives.

The most exciting day of the entire assignment for Sievers was the opening session. Each government and national press was allowed one photographer in the courtroom, and Sievers was chosen after drawing lots to represent the signal corps.

This was the first time that the press saw the defendants and the whole courtroom was charged with excitement, he related. "The flash bulbs seemed never to stop popping."

Taking pictures of the defendants every day, Sievers was able to observe their behavior closely, even though it was forbidden to converse with them. He found that most of them did not look the fierce roles they played in history.

"Goering looked like he wouldn't harm a fly," Sievers recalled. "He gave the impression of being a very jovial fellow. He was by far the most magnetic personality there."

The only defendant who showed the strain throughout the trial was Ribbentrop. He aged visibly during the time that Sievers was in Nuernberg.

"Hess behaved like a crackpot," said Sievers. "He read a book all during the early sessions in an attempt to make people believe he was insane."

Hess impressed Sievers as being a die-hard fanatic. He was the only one of the prisoners who goose-stepped in and out of the courtroom.

"His military boots accentuated the matchstick straightness of his legs," Sievers said. During the early weeks of the trial, Sievers observed that the defendants accepted Goering as their leader. Unable to converse with each other in the courtroom they clustered about him for support and advice.

Contrary to other reports, Sievers found that Goering did not appear dissipated and unkempt in the courtroom. He was always neat and alert, if not always cooperative, Sievers remarked.

Having nothing but facial expressions to judge by, Sievers found that most of the other defendants were colorless.

"Spier looked as unexciting as a shoe clerk," Sievers said, "and Kittel looked like what he was—a military man." Earlier in the war, Sievers covered the foreign ministers' conference in London and V-J day celebration in Picadilly.

While stationed in London, Sievers met Iris Walker, an English girl working as a photo retoucher for the U. S. Army Signal corps.

Three months ago, after a plane trip to the United States, Iris became Mrs. Raymond G. Sievers in Piquette, Iowa, Sievers' home town.

Sievers, a sophomore in the university, hopes to enter the college of dentistry next year.

RAYMOND SIEVERS and his English bride, Iris, look through some of the photographs he took of the Nuernberg trials. Sievers spent five months in the Nuernberg courtroom taking documentary pictures for the signal corps. These photographs now form part of the official historical record of the war crimes trials kept in Washington.

SUI Student Claims India Not Backward

By Graham Hovey, Associated Press Staff Writer

Recent unofficial demands in Britain for "A new approach" to Russia have caused wide speculation among Washington diplomats on these questions:

1. Is a revision of British foreign policy—as it concerns relations with the United States and Russia—in the offing?

2. Will Britain soon attempt to assume the role of "mediator" between this country and the Soviet Union?

The situation came about in this way: Anthony Eden, Britain's wartime foreign secretary, urged adoption of "a new spirit and a new approach" toward Russia in a speech September 23.

The next day Prime Minister Stalin dropped a hint that he would welcome such a new approach. He wrote a British correspondent that he was confident friendly relations between Russia and Britain were possible.

Then a section of the British press took up the demand for a "new approach." Many papers harshly criticized the present "tough" American attitude toward Russia. Some said Secretary of State Byrnes had gone too far.

What was needed, the Times said, was "an active body of opinion desirous of promoting compromise solutions" between Washington and Moscow.

Despite this pressure British officials in Washington say emphatically that no change in foreign policy is contemplated.

In particular they scoff at the idea that Britain might move closer to Russia now in the belief that the views of Henry A. Wallace may soon become established of Iowa City—especially the campus—and I wasn't too lost when I arrived."

Remarking that she was amazed to find the professors and students so friendly with each other, Miss Minakshi added that seeing the students driving their own cars and so casually smoking in classes also surprised her.

She said she plans to wear her colorful sari costume throughout the time she is in the United States, "because I am used to it."

Miss Minakshi explained that six other young women who sailed to America on the same ship she did are attending colleges on the east coast, including Yale and Cambridge.

Although she and her friends spent four days sight-seeing after their boat landed at San Francisco, she hasn't had much time for sight-seeing since she arrived in the midwest. She particularly wants to visit an Iowa farm before she goes home. Before she returns to India she plans to visit the east coast.

When asked if she thinks she will like the snow and cold weather everyone has warned her to expect in Iowa City, Miss Minakshi observed that she wasn't sure, but hopes the snow isn't so deep she can't walk around on the campus.

She was sent to a convent at the age of three, and went to school later in the city of Madras, 400 miles from her home.

Explaining that she began to learn English at the age of three, Miss Minakshi said that even our slang does not confuse her. The American soldiers, she said, taught her to use slang and to sing American songs through their radio programs.

"I like everything about the university," she commented. "Before I left home I studied a map

American policy toward the Soviet.

Most officials agree that Britain is more directly interested than the United States in all of those touchy subjects.

Some diplomats believe Britain might become a mediator on tactics, if not issues. Many British officials are said to be convinced that the "firm policy toward Russian demands will be more successful if accompanied with a friendly approach than if pounded with bluster and bombast."

And that, they say, is probably what Eden and the London newspapers are driving at anyway.

Immediately before World War Judd returned to America for a short time and traveled throughout the United States lecturing on the American foreign policy and interests of the Pacific.

At a time he appealed for a cessation of American munitions shipments to Japan and advocated the use of Japanese goods.

Because of ill health, Dr. Judd returned to his missionary work and to America in 1942 to practice as a physician and in Minneapolis. The next year he successfully ran for Congress as a representative from the state of Minnesota and is seeking his third term.

He is scheduled to appear here earlier in the summer lecture series, Dr. Judd was forced to cancel the series because of duties in con-

Cugat Concert Ticket Sales Top Goal Set by Sponsors

Advance ticket sales on the Xavier Cugat concert went over the top last night, when the $3,500 goal was exceeded by receipts totalling $4,577.60, including tax.

Sales Chairman Dick Yoakum, of Pittsburgh, Pa., said that a wire will be sent today to the Music Corporation of America, covering the guarantee made to the corporation by the Student Council, Sponsors of the concert.

A total of 3,201 general admission and 148 reserved seat tickets had been sold when advance sales closed yesterday. The sale of reserve seats may be closed soon because the demand for reserve seats has been heavier than anticipated, Yoakum said. Reserve seats are priced at $3.60, including tax.

Tickets will be sold by the council members until the day of the concert, Nov. 4, and a ticket booth will be set up in a downtown store, which will be announced later. The evening of the concert, tickets may be purchased at the fieldhouse, after 7 p. m. Price of general admission tickets is now $1.50, plus 30 cents tax.

The student council will now project plans for arranging the fieldhouse for the concert so that everyone attending will have a good view of the stage show.

"The council is very well satisfied with the results of the advance sale," Herb Olson, A4 of Winfield, council president, stated last night. "We appreciate the hard work and cooperation of everyone helping with the sale."

Help Shortage To Tighten, Kline Warns

The present shortage of construction workers in Johnson county will probably become more acute in the next few months, according to E. E. Kline, head of the United States Employment service office in Iowa City.

Kline said there is a need for 30 construction laborers and 115 carpenters on various projects in Johnson county. Since there is a national shortage of carpenters and construction workers, there is little hope of recruiting labor from outside areas, Kline said.

Because the shortage is so acute, Iowa City employers have been forced to accept part-time help.

The help situation for university eating facilities is also a problem with many openings for cooks, kitchen helpers and waitresses, Kline reported. The Quadrangle cafeteria is particularly in need of help.

The only noticeable surplus during the past month was 10 clerical workers for whom jobs have not been found.

Labor applications on file at the USES office decreased during the month by more than 100, according to Kline. The Sept. 1 total was 188 and by Oct. 1 the number had decreased to 71.

I.C. Plans 'Jobs for Disabled' Week

★ ★ ★ Mayor Asks Local Aid in National Drive

Iowa City will observe national "Employ the Physically Handicapped" week from Oct. 6 to 12, Mayor Wilbur J. Teeters said yesterday.

Mayor Teeters has issued a proclamation calling upon local officials, employers, civic organizations and citizens to assist disabled veterans and civilians in obtaining employment.

The mayor pointed out that all these persons deserve self-supporting, respectable positions. In this manner they can make "useful contributions to our community," he said.

Chance to Show Values

Disabled veterans and civilians may be given an increased chance to demonstrate their individual values if all employers place their job orders with E. E. Kline at the United States Employment service office, the mayor said.

Kline revealed that President Truman initially proclaimed the week for the disabled. The president's proclamation asks governors, state and city officials, government agencies and civic leaders to participate.

Work done by disabled personnel compares favorably with able-bodied employees, Kline said.

Statistics from USES reveal low turn-over, absenteeism and accident rates, but a high efficiency standing for the physically handicapped.

What They Have

"What we go on is not what they've lost, but what they've got left," Kline said.

The drive is being sponsored on a nationwide basis by the United States department of labor.

A fifteen-minute film short, "No Help Wanted" will be shown at the Englert theater next week.

The film, sponsored by the American legion, shows how effective the disabled worker becomes when given correct job placement.

Non-Residents Need Fish, Game Permits

University students who are not residents of Iowa must obtain non-resident hunting and fishing permits from the recorder's office in the courthouse before they can hunt or fish in Iowa, R. J. Jones, county recorder, said yesterday.

Prices of the permits range from $5 to $30, depending on the home state of the student. A non-resident here pays a sum equal to the non-resident hunting and fishing in his home state.

Hunting season is open for squirrels and rabbits now. A date for the opening of the pheasant and duck hunting seasons will be set by the state conservation commission soon, Jones said.

Hunting and fishing licenses totaling $655 were issued during the month of September, he reported. They included 20 resident fishing licenses, 500 resident hunting licenses, 80 combined resident hunting-and-fishing licenses and 10 six-day non-resident fishing licenses.

Red Cross Announces Xmas Mailing Dates On Overseas Packages

It will be easier this year than last to send Christmas cards and packages to servicemen overseas, according to Mrs. Loran Mathes, executive secretary of the Johnson County Red Cross.

Packages to men in the army may be mailed between Oct. 15 and Nov. 15 without a "request slip."

The Nov. 15 deadline will not apply to the navy, marines or coast guard, but the sooner packages are mailed the better chance the servicemen will have of receiving them on time, Mrs. Mathes said.

Information on how to mail packages to army personnel sent overseas near the time of the deadline may be obtained at the post office, she said.

Christmas packages to the Pacific area should be in the mails by Nov. 1. Postal regulations specify that all packages must be addressed to the serviceman's army or navy postoffice number.

Addresses Kiwanis

Prof. Harold B. Eversole of the college of commerce, addressed the Cedar Rapids Kiwanis club yesterday noon. The subject of his address was "Price Control."

WHY NO FRANCHISE UNTIL 1948! WHY A FRANCHISE NOW!

1. So returning GI's and others will have to wait for water service.
 2. So pipe and materials ordered in 1948 won't arrive until? . . . ?
 3. So the Water Company will be bogged down in preparing for 500 or 600 new homes and the Veterans Hospital.
 4. So the Company can't borrow the money to meet the biggest construction program since the last war.
 5. So a waterworks geared for a city of 17,000, tries to meet the needs of a city of 25,000.
 6. So it will be forced to twiddle its thumbs until 1948.
 7. So its "Post War Planning" will be pigeonholed.
 8. So fire protection and other protective measures can not be extended to meet the growing demand of Iowa City.
 9. So the Company can not keep up with the University and City growth and progress.
 10. So the latest equipment can't be ordered until 1948.
 11. So Research in the latest methods of Water Treatment will be delayed.
 12. So the Long Range Maintenance and Improvement Program will be held up.
1. Sure, GI or Mr. Newcomer—the Water Co. will be ready to give Water Service to your new house, because we can go ahead with extensions of mains.
 2. Yes Sir! We will have the pipe and materials because they were ordered in time.
 3. So the Company can meet its responsibility to take care of the most important projects in Iowa City for years — New homes and the U. S. Veterans Hospital.
 4. So the Company can make the necessary financial arrangements now — money is not readily loaned to Companies without a franchise.
 5. So the Company can be ready with the necessary men and equipment to get the job done — lay new mains — more fire hydrants, etc.
 6. The Company and Public need those two years to do REAL WORK — not to waste.
 7. "Post War Planning" is now a real thing — the Company wants to go ahead with it. Each and every plan is to give better service — provide more homes with water and fire protection.
 8. The Company now is "rated and graded good in the number of hydrants, location of hydrants and in the job of supplying plenty of water" according to Mr. Harry J. Cochrane, Chief of the Iowa Insurance Service Bureau after a recent survey in Iowa City. THE COMPANY WANTS TO MAINTAIN THAT RECORD.
 9. The Company, like all progressive businesses in Iowa City can and will keep pace with the splendid progress made thus far by the State University.
 10. During the War it was not possible to get the equipment needed to meet the present demands. Trucks, tools, ditchers, pumps, chlorinators, and many other pieces of equipment will be needed.
 11. The Company is proud of its record with the State Board of Health — A. L. Bennett, State Health Engineer, says, "Iowa Water Service Company has complied with and greatly exceeded the requirements of this Department with respect to the minimum number of water samples which should be submitted to the Laboratory. The trained personnel at the Iowa Water Service Co. Treatment Plant at all times in the past have been able to provide satisfactory treatment to the raw water so that a pure, safe and potable water has been supplied to Iowa City. The Company has been very eager to make every improvement possible to their plant and equipment to improve both the physical and bacteriological quality of the treated water." THE COMPANY WANTS TO MAINTAIN THAT RECORD!
 12. Included in this program is an additional river crossing — more mains and hydrants for fire protection as the City grows — larger pumps, engines, filters, etc. Since 1936 the Company has spent $206,145 for Construction, Maintenance, and Improvements to its system.

U-High Meets West Liberty

Barnhart Team Ready As Conference Race Opens Friday Night

U-High's formidable, undefeated Bluehaws will open their quest for the Eastern Iowa Conference crown this Friday when they travel to West Liberty for a tilt under the lights.

The Bluehaws showed a balanced attack in their first two non-conference games with Gus "one man gang" Helm at the quarterback slot in defeating the Marion Indians, 20-0, and up-setting the ransy Bloomfield Maroons, 35-20.

U-High's line outchaged the heavier Maroon forwards, enabling the Bluehawk backs to scamper into paydirt for a four touchdown lead at the half. In both games U-High has played heads-up ball. In the Marion contest Chuck Lenzie, right tackle, recovered an Indian fumble on the Indian 17 yard line which set the stage for a U-High score.

In the Maroon tilt the Bluehawk scrappy right guard, Darrell Hansen, recovered a fumble which they paid off promptly for another six points.

Friday night's opponent, West Liberty, has a similar record to the Bluehaws in that they humbled two non-conference foes — Lone Tree and Wapello—in warm-up contests.

In preparation for Friday's game, Coach Don Barnhart has been concentrating on offense and polishing up the Bluehawk passing attack. Junior Ewalt has taken over the fullback spot, but the remainder of the Bluehawk starters will remain the same. Gus Helm will again be at quarter and will handle the punting, and part of the passing.

At left half will be Craig Harper, break away runner who scored against the Maroons on 51 and 39 yard jaunts.

Bob Ojeman, who scored two touchdowns against Marion, will start at right half. Nick Anderson and Dave Barber will start at end while the tackles will be manned by Lombard Sayre and Lenzie. Eugene Jennings is slated for the pivot slot and he will be flanked by John Carson and Darrell Hansen at the guards.

A second string might consist of Vince Harney and Red Aiken at the tackles, Canney and Tom Hulme at the guards with Allen Morgan at center and Duke Schnoebelen at an end. Other backs include Jake Schnoebelen, Doug Dieks, Dick Lawew and Bob Crumb.

Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Legion Golf Tourney Opens Here Saturday

Entry lists are nearing completion for the American Legion sponsored autumn golf tournament, scheduled for Saturday and Sunday on the Iowa City country club course.

The 27-hole medal play tournament, sponsored by the Roy L. Chopek Post No. 17, is open to all members of any American Legion post.

Tournament officials, expecting a large entry list, have made plans to award prizes by flights.

City High, Dubuque Clash Friday Feature

Swinging into the fourth week of Mississippi Valley competition, the feature grid battles of the week are the Iowa City-Dubuque clash and a pair of inter-city games in Cedar Rapids.

Iowa City is leading the conference with two wins to their credit and no losses. By virtue of their 7-0 win over Davenport, the Little Hawks are favored to capture the crown. West Waterloo, Dubuque and Franklin of Cedar Rapids also have perfect records in league play with one apiece.

This week the Hawklets tangle with the Dubuque Rams at Dubuque in a game that may go a long way in deciding the conference title. Last Friday the Rams knocked off the powerful East Waterloo eleven, 6-0, to establish themselves as a major threat to the Hawklets' supremacy.

At Cedar Rapids the city championship will very likely be the prize for the winner of the Franklin-Wilson encounter tonight at Hill Park. Not since the days Tom Farmer was starring for Wilson and all-state Al Eddy was sparking the Thunderbolts in 1939 has there been so much interest in this contest.

The Ramblers are the defending city champs but the odds are expected to be even at game time because of Franklin's fine showing last week when they upset favored Clinton, 14-0. Wilson dropped their first game to East Waterloo but roared back to trounce McKinley, 33-7, and defeat Roosevelt, 6-0.

Tomorrow night McKinley and Roosevelt tangle in the second city series tilt in as many days. The Roughriders surprised many observers in the Wilson clash last week, after absorbing a 32-0 shellacking at the hands of West Waterloo. McKinley's Golden Bears were run over by the Wilson Express in their only Valley start.

The other conference schools are meeting non-league opponents this weekend. Clinton is playing host to St. Ambrose of Davenport. Davenport meets a rejuvenated Moline eleven in a quad city encounter. East Waterloo plays East Des Moines in a Little Seven tilt. West Waterloo journeys to Fort Dodge. Last week the Old Rose slipped a 14-0 defeat on the Mason City Mohawks.

Home Town Tourney Lands Nelson, Hogan

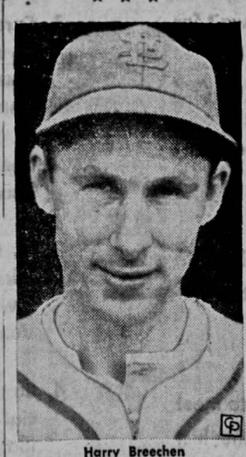

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Playing the course they learned by every weary yard as caddies, we Ben Hogan and tall Byron Nelson start today as favorites in the second annual $10,000 Fort Worth Open golf tournament.

Hogan, winner of twelve tournaments this year while amassing $37,877 as the game's top money-winner, comes here fresh from victory in the Dallas open last week-end.

Nelson, the Denton, Tex., farmer, who hasn't played in a tournament since the National PGA some six weeks ago, having quit the regular tournament trail, has been practicing on the par 37-34—71 6,350-yard Glen Garden course and shading regulation figures easily.

Nelson pronounced himself fit and ready. He won the tournament last year.

League Stars Edge Red Sox

BOSTON (AP)—Scoring once in the second, twice in the sixth and again in the seventh an American league All Star team yesterday defeated the pennant winning Red Sox 4-2 to even their three game exhibition series at one victory apiece.

The last of the three games, arranged in a hurry to keep the Sox sharp for the world series will end today.

Extremely chilly weather, for the second day in a row, kept the paid attendance down to 1,805.

A Hank Greenberg single, a fielders choice, a hit by Stan Spence and another fielding choice gave the Stars the first run of the game in the second inning.

They added two in the sixth on a Snuffy Stirnweis base hit, a hit-run single by Luke Appling, a flyout to center by Joe Grace and Greenberg's double off the left field wall.

The Sox came up with two in the sixth on Johnny Pesky's hit into right field, a walk, a lusty center field single by Tom Meade and a bad throw by Joe DiMaggio.

The final Stars' run was pushed across by Snuffy Stirnweis' triple in the seventh.

Brooklyn to Play Host in 2nd Game Of Flag Showdown

By GAYLE TALBOT
BROOKLYN (AP)—A chastened but still combative bunch of Brooklyn Dodgers rolled back to their home park yesterday for their date with destiny and the St. Louis Cardinals at 12:30 p.m. (CST) today.

Walloped 4 to 2 in the opening tussle of their epic best of three playoff for the National league pennant, the "ferocious gentlemen" of Flatbush face sudden extinction unless they can come back and square the set at Ebbets field.

The Cardinals, hot and rolling and feeling their collective oats after smacking five Dodger hurlers for a dozen hits in Tuesday's fray, need only to repeat the dose to win the flag they virtually were conceded at the season's beginning.

Both clubs reached here at mid-afternoon after making the long overnight ride from the banks of the Mississippi. Perhaps significantly, the Cardinal special was a little in the lead all the way.

Although the Dodgers engaged in no whooping and hollering in the aisles, they were not as gloomy as a set of young men as might have seemed justified by the jolting they received from Howie Pollet and the rest of the Cards in the opener. Whatever else might be said about them, they still have remarkable faith in their abilities.

"What's the use in moaning?" asked Leo Durocher, the old dugout philosopher. "We've felt like this before, but things always turned out to be better the next day. Things will look a lot different tonight."

Leo claimed yesterday he was undecided whether to throw his veteran ace, Kirby Higbe, or the rookie left hander, Joe Hatten, at the Red Birds today.

But in the evening, Durocher declared he had made up his mind and said that "Hatten will pitch."

After what happened Tuesday to 20-year old Ralph Branca, it did not seem likely at first that the Dodger pilot would take another chance on youth. Higbe, who won 17 while losing 10 during the season, appeared to be the logical choice. He pitched to only five men after he relieved Branca in the third inning Tuesday, allowing one hit before he was pulled for a pinch-hitter, and so will be rested and strong.

But Durocher has been gambling all season in his choice of pitchers and with considerable success, and his wing to the Rookie portside came as no surprise.

Although manager Eddie Dyer of the Cards was supposed to be wavering between Murrey Dickson, a right hander, and Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, a portside, as the man to go out today and pitch his club into the world series, the Dodgers, themselves, fully expected to face Brecheen.

They pointed out that Dickson, who was Dyer's original choice to hurl the second game, worked long and hard in the bull pen today while Pollet wavered and wobbled through inning after inning. Also that Dickson is weighted down with a fresh cold.

Brecheen, on the other hand, hasn't worked a lick since last Saturday night, when he pitched a brilliant victory over the Chicago Cubs to keep the Cards tied for the lead.

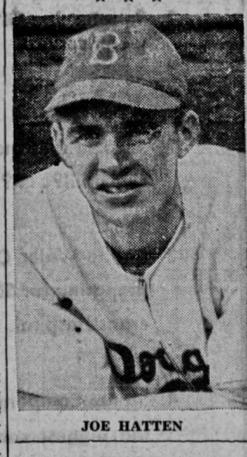

Most of yesterday's second-guessing concerned Durocher's choice of the college kid, Branca, to pitch the opener. The critics felt he put the youngster in too hot a spot, even though he had not shot out the Cards the last previous time he faced them.

Livingstone Rejoins Notre Dame Eleven

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Right tackle George Sullivan of Notre Dame will miss the Irish football game with Pittsburgh here Saturday, but halfback Bob Livingstone, Hammond, Ind., has recovered from a charley horse and will be ready.

Sullivan, of East Walpole, Mass., is out with a torn ligament in his left leg. Bob McBride of Lancaster, Ohio, who played right guard against Illinois, has been moved to right tackle. Livingstone had been ailing since the Illinois game. Coach Frank Leahy sent the Irish through a long pass defense drill yesterday.

Summed up, the general all-around improvement in the class of play this year over last was not as great as expected, and this may be attributed to the fact that most of the returning stars of whom much was expected found it takes time to shake off the effects of service in the armed forces. A full season, at least,

World Series Opens Sunday

CINCINNATI (AP)—The world series will open in the National league entry's ballpark on Sunday, Oct. 6, weather permitting, the office of baseball commissioner A. B. Chandler announced yesterday.

Walter W. Mulbry, secretary-treasurer of baseball, said the commissioner decided on the opening date after the St. Louis-Brooklyn deadlock for the pennant made the two-out-of-three playoff series necessary. The series was originally scheduled to open Oct. 1.

If St. Louis wins the National league pennant, Mulbry said, there will be a day off allowed for travel to Boston following the first two games at Sportsmans park. If a sixth game is necessary, another day off will be allowed for travel back to St. Louis.

Should Brooklyn win, Mulbry continued, the first six games will be played on consecutive days.

Regardless of which National league team wins the pennant, there will be a day's rest between the sixth and seventh game if the series goes the limit.

The commissioner's office pointed out, however, that the Sunday opening of the world series was contingent on the completion of the St. Louis-Brooklyn playoff on or before Friday. Should that weather extend the Card-odger contests into Saturday or later, another series opening date would have to be selected, Mulbry said.

Williams Recovering; Will Play in Series

BOSTON (AP)—Manager Joe Cronin of the champion Boston Red Sox yesterday called for the limiting of any major league pennant race play-offs in the future to one game.

Cronin, who is having headaches trying to keep his Red Sox keyed up for the world series, said a lesson could be learned from the injury to Ted Williams in an exhibition game with American league all stars Tuesday, which the Sox won 2-0.

Williams, who suffered a bruised right elbow after being hit by a pitched ball, was reported recovering sufficiently so that he would be ready for the blue-ribbon classic.

But, Cronin asserted, Williams probably would never have been hurt if the Dodgers-Cardinal play-off had been held to one game.

"If Brooklyn and St. Louis were not going through this best-of-three play-off this week we wouldn't have had to play any exhibition games to keep in trim," the square-jawed Boston manager argued. "And, if there had been no exhibition games, Ted would not have been hurt needlessly."

Cronin declared it was time the club owners did something about devising some uniform play-off system and suggested one game would be enough to decide ties. The slugger's wife, Doris, said he suffered considerable pain during the night but insisted on going shopping yesterday.

Light Wolverines Ignore Hawks

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—Accent type of the past two years when they out-weighted only one opponent in 1944 and 1945.

Emerging from the avalanche of 46 players Crisler threw into last week's game against Indiana, a good guess at the Wolverine varsity would place Ed McNeill, 185, and Elmer Madar, 167, at the ends. Tackles would be former end Bruce Hilkene, 192, and Bill Pritula, 190, with Dom Tomasi, 180, and George Kraeger, 192, at the guards and 174 pound Harold Wats at center.

The leading backfield combination will probably be 182-pound Paul White, 1943 captain, at right half with 175 pound Gene Derricotte at left half and Jack Weisenburger at fullback. Weisenburger at 178 and Howard Yerges, 172 pound quarterback veteran, would round out this combination.

There are a number of bigger players on the squad at each position but to date, at least, a lack of speed has proven a definite handicap to most of them. However, among the backs, 205-pound Dan Dworsky of last year's 17-year olds, has shown improvement at fullback and Bob Wiese's punting ability from the same spot has shown no depreciation from his 42-yard average form of two years ago.

Quarterback Pete Elliott and Ralph Chubb, right halfback of two years ago, could add some weight to the backfield, both tipping the scales at 190.

Name 3-Man Staff To Coach Rockets

CHICAGO (AP)—John L. Keeshin, president of the Chicago Rockets, said late yesterday that his All-America league football club would be coached for the remainder of the season by three players who took over last week when Coach Richard E. Diek Hanley and the Rockets severed relations.

Keeshin said in a statement that his decision followed a 29 to one vote by members of the squad in favor of keeping the three player-coaches rather than hiring a new head coach.

The three are "Wee Willie" Wilkin, Bob Dove and Ned Mathews. Wilkin and Mathews are veterans of pro ball in the National league, but Dove, former Notre Dame end, is in his first season with the pro circuit.

Keeshin, who Tuesday filed a $250,000 libel suit against George Halas, owner-coach of the rival Chicago Bears in the National league, asserted he was "standing behind" his unique coaching triumvirate.

Four Boilermakers On Injured List

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—A defensive drill highlighted Purdue's workout yesterday as the Boilermakers set their sights for Buddy Young when they meet Illinois at Champaign Saturday.

The injured backfield quartet of Bill Canfield, Bob Pfohl, Bill Barnard and George Papach has been ruled out definitely, but hope was expressed that Bob Heck, veteran left end who suffered an injured rib against Iowa, may be able to play part of the game.

Loss of Iek Woodard, the line-backing center, for this game and probably for Nebraska, has bothered the coaches. However, the point out, iDck Laster is coming fast at the position.

Disappointed With '46 Baseball

NEW YORK (AP)—Well, while the Dodgers and Cardinals are staying after school because they both flunked last Sunday's test and remained in a tie as the regular National season ended, let's see what happened to some of the other teams of both major leagues in 1946.

In the case of the Philadelphia Athletics, it's easy. Nothing happened, except that they lost seven more games than they did in 1945, so if they were a better team than they were a year ago the rest of the league must be very much better.

The one team of both leagues which probably showed the class of ball the fans generally expected in the first full post-war season was the Boston Red Sox, who made a travesty of the American league race.

Neither the Cardinals nor the Dodgers, still battling it out in the National league, are considered great teams by any means. Just good teams, and the very fact the Dodgers, with a crazy-quilt assortment of ball players in and out of the lineup all season, are where they are is an indication that the league strength still is below pre-war quality.

The 1945 champion Chicago Cubs didn't improve their team too much for this year, yet were good enough to finish third, another indication there was not too much difference in the all-around class of play after the pros returned, as they say.

Aside from Brooklyn, offhand we would say that the Boston Braves provided the big surprise of the National league in finishing within a game of a tie for third place, and we attribute this improvement to the managerial ability of Billy Southworth and his astute choice of players to bolster the club.

The Phils were expected to show marked improvement, and they did, climbing from last place to fifth. A new spirit under Ben Chapman was a big factor. Cincinnati did as well, maybe a little better, than expected in finishing sixth with a team that was forced to rely almost entirely on tight pitching.

Pittsburgh also finished about as expected, but few considered the New York Giants a last-place club. Feeble pitching, injuries to Walker Cooper and Johnny Mize and a genius for losing games in the most peculiar ways all contributed to the downfall.

Detroit was not a too greatly improved team over 1945, but it finished second in the American league, indicating the remainder of the league was still below pre-war quality.

In the case of the Yankees, picked as pennant winners in the pre-season poll, it was a case of name players returning and not playing as they were expected to play. Joe DiMaggio, Phil Rizzuto, Joe Gordon and others just couldn't get that pre-war touch, and the Yankees became just another ball club.

Washington slipped from second place to fourth, but that was not unexpected as the Senators were known to lack plate power. The White Sox, Indians, Browns and Athletics were generally picked as the second division clubs, although not necessarily in that order, so their finish in the lower four is not surprising.

Summed up, the general all-around improvement in the class of play this year over last was not as great as expected, and this may be attributed to the fact that most of the returning stars of whom much was expected found it takes time to shake off the effects of service in the armed forces. Water Franchise Renewal Topic of Hot Debate

Company, Citizens' Committee Air Views in Contract Dispute

Water Rates Criticized as More Than 500 Attend Discussion of Oct. 8 Election Issue

The question of whether to vote "yes" or "no" on the renewal of the Iowa Water Service company franchise at the special election Oct. 8 became a hotly debated topic last night as a partisan crowd of more than 500 persons took part in an open forum following a debate between representatives of the company and members of the citizens' committee formed in opposition to the franchise.

The meeting, held in the Community building, was sponsored by the Iowa City League of Women Voters under the direction of their president, Maude McBroom.

Most vigorously contested issue concerning the proposed franchise was the matter of water rates charged in Iowa City.

Prof. Herman H. Trachsel, speaker for the citizens' committee, pointed out that water rates here are two and one-half times as great as those charged in Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa.

Several speakers for the company, notably Dan C. Dutcher, attorney for the company, countered with the claim that rates in other cities, whose plants differ from Iowa City plant in source of supply, method of purification, etc., cannot be fairly compared with Iowa City rates.

He was supported by a speaker from the floor, Lawrence Crawford, who declared that Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa water plants service large industrial users, thereby gaining greater revenue, which makes it possible to lower rates to domestic users.

Mrs. F. A. Stromsten, member of the citizens' committee who gathered the information concerning rates from 15 other first-class cities in Iowa, declared that water company managers in Cedar Rapids and Ottumwa had assured her that the comparison was fair.

The figures list Iowa City's water rate as $1.28 for 300 cubic feet, Cedar Rapids, 48 1/2 cents and Ottumwa, 51 cents. They indicate that Iowa City's rate is the highest in Iowa for first-class cities.

Dwight W. Edwards, manager of the company, pointed out that the company has only 4,500 customers in Iowa City, since the University of Iowa "saw fit several years ago to establish its own water plant," thereby cutting down the total revenue of the company.

He listed plans for expansion of water service including a $40,000 river crossing, extension of mains to cost about $90,000 and general improvements to the plant at $30,000, and pointed out that $14,354 in improvements have been completed this year.

"The company can't borrow money if it doesn't have a franchise, and it takes money to make these improvements. It's just as simple as that—that's why the company is asking renewal of the franchise now," Dean F. M. Dawson, member of the company's board of directors, declared.

Attacking the citizens' committee's claim that the franchise ordinance had been "rushed through" the city council without proper notice to Iowa Citizens, Dutcher pointed out that the bill had been read three times at council meetings without meeting opposition.

Trachsel, speaking for the opposition, declared that although the franchise and state law provide that the city council shall have the right to set water rates, the council is not provided with sufficient facts concerning the financial operations of the company to intelligently regulate rates.

Trachsel estimated the value of the company at $400,000. The company's balance sheet statement for 1945 lists the total value at $1,071,770.94. Trachsel pointed out that the practice of setting a fixed valuation in franchises is being practiced in several other states.

"The valuation should be worth the investment made, less depreciation, with all additions to the company specifically listed in the accounts accessible to the city council," he explained.

Trachsel struck again at the appraisal system for the city to buy the water company, since it takes agreement of at least one of the company's two representatives on the 5-man appraisal board to set the price.

"As it stands, the franchise is a contract that we as a group should certainly not agree to accept," he declared.

Prof. Walter L. Daykin of the college of commerce, introduced the speakers and served as moderator for the forum.

Administrators Named

Atomic Demonstration Listed for Wednesday

Audible Atom Splitting Exhibition to Launch Educational Program

"Operation MacBride," a series of lectures, forums and meetings to be sponsored by the Atomic Energy Control committee, will be launched Wednesday with the presentation of "Test Able," a demonstration of atomic energy.

Plans for the program were made last night at the first post-vacation meeting of the committee. The programs will be designed to stimulate adult interest in atomic energy and its implications.

To Hear Atom Splitting
Those attending Test Able, scheduled for Macbride auditorium at 8 p.m. next Wednesday, will hear the actual splitting of an atom, made audible by the use of special physical and amplifying equipment and a loud speaker.

"It will be a demonstration of atoms breaking up," Prof. C. J. Lapp of the physics department, a member of the committee, explained. "We will split the atom, although we will not produce fission, which is the dividing of the atom nucleus into two equal parts."

Test Able Equipment
Equipment to be used in Test Able will pick up a particle emitted by radioactive material and record it, through the use of amplifying apparatus, as a noise. Decomposition of the atoms in radioactive material will produce a continuous roar, comparable, except in volume, to the sound of an atomic bomb explosion.

The committee, composed of representatives from the Iowa City League of Women Voters, the World Affairs forum, the Association of Eastern Iowa Scientists and

PROF. WALTER L. DAYKIN of the commerce department, moderator last night at the public forum on the water franchise vote question explains rules for conduct of the meeting. Speeches made by representatives of the Iowa Water Service Co. and members of the citizens' committee opposing the franchise were followed by an open discussion period. In the front row (l. to r.) are Dwight W. Edwards,

Appraisal Jurors Investigate Farms

A six-man appraisal jury started yesterday to judge the amount of damage which may be caused by the construction of an electric powerline across 21 Johnson county farms.

Thirteen of the farms were visited by the jurors yesterday and the remaining eight will be appraised today, according to Sheriff Preston Koser, who appointed the jury.

The farms being appraised are part of a total of 94 Johnson county farms over which the state commerce commission gave the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric company the right to erect a powerline.

Farmers who voluntarily agreed to the use of their land for the powerline were paid approximately $25 an acre by the company. The appraisal jury will decide what price each of the 21 farmers will receive for his land that has been condemned.
