GOOD MORNING, IOWA CITY!

Partly cloudy today with no decided change in temperature. Showers tonight. Sunday cloudy and considerably cooler with scattered showers.

Hawks Out to Upset Michigan's Apple-Cart

By CHAD BROOKS
Daily Iowan Sports Editor
ANN ARBOR, Mich.—The boys just haven't read the press notices. Dr. Eddie Anderson's poor, out-manned little Iowa Hawkeyes invade this football-made town this afternoon to run through the motions of a football game against those mighty Wolverines.

Naturally the Michigan powerhouse realizes that this is just a warm-up game for bigger things to come. They really aren't much interested in our insignificant little Hawkeyes. At least that's what most of the nation's top sports scribes gathered here would have us believe.

Yes, everybody is conceding this one to the Wolverines—everyone that is except the Hawks. Right down the list, the Old Gold gridders are predicting not only an Iowa victory but one by margins running up to 19 points.

When nearly everyone else foresaw a Boilermaker victory last week, the Hawks said they would beat Purdue and proceeded to do the job up right.

They smashed the Boilermakers' line, they swept around their flanks, they riddled their secondary with a brilliant passing attack—they beat them much worse than the 16-0 score would indicate.

Now they say they will beat Michigan and Iowa sports observers are inclined to think they could do the job. The same dynamite-loaded backfield will be ready to go again—two and three deep in every position.

Big Dick Woodard, the rugged line backer, will be missing from his center spot but Dick Laster, at one time an all-state high schooler, is ready to step into the vacancy, while Jim Lawrence, rated as one of the top centers in the middle west, is sufficiently recovered from a charley horse to lend any needed support.

The rest of the Iowa forward wall, an outfit that promises to be one of the best lines in the conference this fall, is eagerly waiting for a chance to prove that their showing against Purdue was no flash in the pan.

Russ Benda and Dave Day will probably start at the guard spots, with Jim Cozad and the impregnable Bill Kay at the tackles and Bob Phillips and Tony Guzowski on the flanks.

But most promising of all, these starters are backed by second and third units that are capable of matching even the vaunted Wolverine reserve strength man for man.

Bob Sullivan will probably handle the Hawks' left halfback duties for the first half, teaming with Bob Smith and Dick Hoerner to give Iowa a hard-hitting, quick beaking attack that promises to be second to none.

Then, in the second half, the Wolverines will probably be treated to a big dose of Mr. Scat himself—Emlen Tunnell, that is. And if the Michigan boys begin to weaken about that time Emlen, Iowa's own private gremlin, will treat them to an exhibition of ball-toting that could make Coach Fritz Crisler forget all about his engagement with Army a week hence.

And if it's passing the Wolves want to see, Tunnell, Sullivan, Smith and quarterback Lou King will be around again, fresh from their victory against Purdue's highly regarded Bob DeMoss.

Against this outfit Michigan will throw a line rated as the best in the loop, two sets of veteran backs and a string of press clippings that would stretch from Ann Arbor to Iowa City with ease.

The canned releases coming out of Michigan talk about a Wolverine line averaging around the 185-pound mark, a fact strongly denied by Iowa scout Matury Kent who claims that most of their 175-pounders weigh in closer to 200.

Kent also claims that its going to be one whale of a game, a fact that the Wolverines had better realize before one o'clock this afternoon rolls around.

Yesterday the Hawkeyes took their final tuneup drills consisting of a 40-minute punting and passing session on historic Stagg Field in Chicago before leaving for pre-game headquarters at Jackson, Michigan. Duke Slater and Ozzie Simmons, former Iowa gridiron greats, were on hand to greet the squad when it arrived in Chicago.

Probable starting lineups:

IOWA	POS	MICHIGAN
Phillips	LE	McNeill
Kay	LT	Hilkene
Benda	LG	Tomas
Laster	C	J. T. White
Day	RG	Sickels
Cozad	RT	Pritula
Guzowski	RE	Renner
King	QB	Yerges
Tunnell	LH	Chappuis
Smith	RH	P. White
Hoerner	FB	Weisenburger

President Demands Early Admittance Of Jews to Palestine

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON—(AP)—The United States and Britain split wide asunder on the Palestine issue yesterday, with President Truman demanding immediate admittance of "substantial" numbers of Jews to the Holy Land and Britain sharply "regretting" his move.

In London, a spokesman for Prime Minister Atlee, upon whom the president served his demand, said it would prejudice a settlement of Palestine's future.

Moreover, the British were obviously angered because, they said Mr. Truman had not complied with a British request to hold up his move pending a study by British leaders.

At No. 10 Downing street—official residence of Prime Minister Atlee—a spokesman said the Truman message was received there yesterday and that Atlee immediately cabled Mr. Truman requesting that it be delayed until Atlee and Foreign Secretary Bevin could study it.

"This request was not complied

B-29 Passes Over Alaska On Honolulu to Cairo Flight

SEATTLE (AP)—The Pacusan Dreamboat army plane made a landfall, 70 miles northeast of Sitka, Alaska, at 10 p. m. (CST) last night en route from Honolulu to Egypt. She was climbing slowly to cross the mountainous area after outracing a Gulf of Alaska storm.

The Boeing Aircraft company listening post here intercepted a voice message from the plane, which passed over Sitka, Alaska, above heavy clouds, saying "We confirm our landfall." She was flying at 7,650 feet elevation.

Col. Clarence S. Irvine, flight commander, has estimated his Cairo, Egypt, arrival time as 0600 Greenwich civil time, or 12 midnight central standard time, Saturday. Over the Pacific, 2,386 miles and approximately 12 hours to an Alaska landfall, the Dreamboat traveled at about 1,000 feet above the ocean.

On advice of a B-17 weather reconnaissance plane, the big 74-ton army plane had climbed from 1,000 to 3,000 feet altitude and was speeding at 235 miles an hour to avoid the storm.

Despite a record load, Lt. Col. Beverly Warren of Omaha, an expert on heavy takeoffs required only 7,800 feet, half of the available runway, to begin a mission

'Little Flower' Didn't Know About Birds, Bees—and Mules

WASHINGTON (AP)—F. H. LaGuardia, renowned as a big city mayor but not on such solid ground as a naturalist, had a ready explanation today of charges that Yugoslavia has been using UNRRA mules for its army.

LaGuardia, the UNRRA director-general, delivered to a news conference this theory as to how the charges arose:

The American army presented some mules to the Yugoslav army some months ago. UNRRA sent other mules there for relief and rehabilitation work. Time passed, and the Yugoslavs did a little mule-swapping among themselves—for breeding purposes, LaGuardia said.

That satisfied the questioners, temporarily. But after the conference was over and LaGuardia had departed, it dawned on at least one reporter that mules are hybrids, bred by crossing a horse with a jackass, and they do not reproduce.

The charges arose from published allegations by four unidentified UNRRA workers just back from Yugoslavia that Marshal Tito has been using mules and trucks with "U. S. A." markings to move troops and supplies up to the Trieste area.

Setbacks Suffered In Hopes for Early Strike Settlements

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hopes for early settlement of two major strikes—the nationwide shipping tieup and Pittsburgh power shutdown—suffered a setback yesterday.

In Washington, government sponsored negotiations in the maritime strike were suspended until the maritime commission decides on its next move to end the four day old shipping tieup.

AFL trolley men who became idle a week ago in Pittsburgh voted against returning to work unless an independent power union agrees to mediation or arbitration in its 11-day-old strike against the Duquesne Light company.

Meanwhile, five of Philadelphia's largest laundries were closed by a drivers' wage strike and automobile and parts manufacturers in Detroit made plans to lay off more than 26,000 employees because of a shortage of sheet steel.

In the only reported strike settlement, 43 striking Wilkes-Barre, Pa., township teachers voted to end a four day walkout that affected 950 pupils.

The maritime commission refused yesterday to force any settlement on the government-operated ships. A commission member said it would take no action until unions and operators from both coasts had reached an agreement on their own.

The labor department had asked the commission to order in effect on government-operated ships on the west coast the same union security compromise plan already agreed upon by east coast shippers.

The strike by the CIO marine engineers and the AFL masters, mates and pilots has tied up a major part of the shipping fleet on all coasts.

In New York, a spokesman for the AFL union said a general membership meeting would be called to consider asking all other AFL maritime unions to join in a general waterfront walkout.

No progress was made meanwhile in efforts to settle work stoppages affecting both rail and bus transportation in Chicago. The Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad strike, forcing 25,000 commuters to find other transportation went through its fourth day and AFL drivers of 550 city buses rejected a proposal to end their two day work stoppage.

Soviets Lose Fight To Make Italy Pay Albanian Reparations

PARIS, Saturday (AP)—Greece and Yugoslavia were voted $100,000,000 each and Ethiopia was granted $25,000,000 in Italian war reparations early today at a meeting of a European peace conference commission which defeated a proposal to pay reparations also to Albania.

The proposal to pay Italian reparations to Soviet-supported Albania was defeated by a tie vote.

Russia officially reserved the right to fight the reparations question again when the Italian peace treaty comes before the four-power foreign ministers council for final approval. The Soviets lost a 10-hour battle to obtain for Albania reparations equal to those given Ethiopia, and to have Yugoslavia paid twice as much as Greece.

The final vote on the reparations issue was 11 to 4, setting Italy's total reparations at $225,000,000, in addition to the $100,000,000 awarded to Russia. Five nations abstained from voting. The Italian economic commission's long session ended at 3 a. m.

Russia's notice that she would reopen the discussion at the foreign ministers' meeting was entered in the commission's minutes after the delegates had deadlocked in a 10-10 vote on the question of paying reparations to Albania.

Earlier in the session, A. A. Arutunian, the Russian delegate, accused Britain and the United States of violating their four-power agreements. The Yugoslavs said they were "injured" by the smallness of the proposed payments.

Dimitri Manuilsky of the Ukraine asked if America's stand, in seeking to reduce the British figure for Yugoslavia by $20,800,000, was influenced by "incidents which have arisen between the United States and Yugoslavia."

Any final decision on Italian reparations should be made, Manuilsky declared, "in the spirit that prevailed at the time of Stalin-grad, at the time the Americans landed in North Africa, when our alliance was at its full strength."

Acquitted Nazis Plead For Allied Protection From Mob Violence

NUERNBERG (AP)—Three top Nazis acquitted of war crimes were rebuffed today in their efforts to quit their jail cells and win safe escort to home where they could live without fear of the actions of their countrymen.

U.S. army headquarters announced that British authorities refused to let Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritzsche enter their zone, and the French rejected the plea of Franz von Papen to live in their zone.

An official British Army announcement issued in Herford said "the attitude of British authorities to any application from the three acquitted men to enter the British zone is 'no.'"

Two-War Veteran Heads Legion

PAUL H. GRIFFITH of Uniontown, Pa., waves to the legionnaires in San Francisco after he was elected national commander of the American Legion yesterday by acclamation. Left to right: son, Paul Jr., daughter, Nancy Lee Sweeney; Mrs. Griffith; Paul H. Griffith; father, D. A. Griffith, and retiring National Commander John Stelle.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Paul H. Griffith, 49, with service in both World wars, was elected national commander of the American Legion yesterday by acclamation. There was no opposition.

Griffith, of Uniontown, Pa., is a republic relations consultant in Washington, D. C., and executive vice president of a large marine electrical engineering corporation.

His election as national commander, succeeding John W. Stelle of McLeansboro, Ill., had been generally forecast. Griffith served in World War I as a non-commissioned infantry officer. In World War II he was a colonel. His jobs in the last war ranged from assistant administrator of the office of war mobilization and reconversion, where he was in charge of retraining and re-employment, to military aide to Louis Johnson, the president's personal representative in the middle and near east.

The legion voted on record by uproarious voice went today in favor of a single department of national security in the president's cabinet and a unified command of all military forces. A half hour battle by the legion's naval bloc against the resolution preceded the vote.

The legionnaires voted approval of universal military training but stuck by its position that the basic period should be four months rather than the six advocated by Secretary of War Robert Patterson Wednesday in an address unveiling the army's new plan.

GOP Expects to Gain 50 Congressional Seats In November Elections

CHICAGO (AP)—B. Carroll Reece, Republican national committee chairman, said yesterday he believed the GOP would "make a minimum" net gain of at least 50 seats in the house of representatives in this fall's election.

"And that does not include the possibility of a republican upheaval which appears quite likely," the national chairman added.

Reece, here for a round of meetings with Illinois party leaders, told a news conference there were indications the GOP has "a real chance of gaining control of the senate" by winning a minimum of 10 seats.

New Legal Problems Make—

Nuernberg Precedent Disturbing

(So that our readers might better understand the significance of the Nuernberg war crimes trials, we asked Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of the political science department and a recognized authority in the field of international law, to write the following article for us—The Editor.)

By Prof. KIRK H. PORTER

The trials at Nuernberg accomplished two things: (1) Justice has been meted out to the villainous defendants; and (2) A precedent has been established under which men, of whatever rank or station, may be punished for starting aggressive war. The accomplishment of the second of these purposes was fraught with new and difficult legal problems toward which the public was largely indifferent.

Many students of international law who devoutly hoped the defendants would be punished were disturbed at what seemed to be the ex post facto character of the proceedings. The phrase, ex post facto, implies that one should not be punished for having done a deed which was not legally a crime at the time he did it. This principle is deeply embedded in English constitutional law and is asserted clearly in our own constitution.

Men have planned and started aggressive war throughout the centuries and no one ever before was prosecuted, tried, convicted and executed for having done it. In ancient times leaders of the vanquished state were frequently tortured and put to death, but there was no pretense of orderly trial according to law. For many centuries the practice of putting the leaders to death has not been followed because it was thought to be barbaric.

The defendants in the present instance looked upon their trial as a hollow mockery behind which the barbaric practice was being revived. References to the Kellogg Peace pact were not convincing, for although this treaty does bind the signatories not to resort to aggressive war, no penalties are provided, and there is not the slightest implication in it that individuals would be punished if their state violated the treaty. Indeed, it has never been held that individuals are accountable if a state violates a treaty. Many peace treaties have been violated. No individuals have been held accountable.

Nevertheless, the Allied commission at Nuernberg in drawing up the indictment, asserted that starting aggressive war was a crime for which individuals could be punished. Furthermore, attorneys for the defense were explicitly denied the right even to argue the point. They were obliged to try to prove that their clients had not started aggressive war, certainly a difficult thing to do. To them it seemed they had been deprived of their best defense, and the right to call witnesses and to present evidence, and to prolong the hearings in open court were to them an empty pretense of due process of law. They believed the proceedings violated the principle "ex post facto"; and they were being judged by their conquerors.

All this was very disturbing to many British and American students of law. (The Russians appear to have accepted the situation with equanimity.) Everyone wanted the defendants to be punished. But it would be unfortunate if basic principles of British and American constitutional law were violated. Mr. Justice Jackson eloquently argued that they were not violated. Quite a number of people agreed with him. Others hoped he was right and said nothing.

However, the verdict at Nuernberg was most gratifying and renders the whole question relatively unimportant and academic. The reason is: the defendants were convicted of conspiracy, starting aggressive war, war crimes, and crimes against humanity. "War crimes" have long been well established in international law and are clearly defined. Trial procedures are clearly prescribed and well understood.

The Japanese generals, and many others, have been convicted and executed for being guilty of war crimes (chiefly mistreatment of prisoners, and civilians). No one questions the validity of international law concerning war crimes. It has been well understood and regularly applied for at least 300 years. A great many men still in custody will be tried and convicted of war crimes according to law.

Those who have been dubious about the proceedings at Nuernberg ardently wished that the defendants had been tried, convicted, and executed months ago for committing war crimes. Undoubtedly that could have been done. The cases were clear and strong against them. Goering could have been hanged ten times over. But Mr. Jackson would not have been content with hanging them for committing war crimes. He wanted to convict them of starting aggressive war, and thus establish a precedent to the effect that starting war is a crime in international law punishable by death.

The verdict does both. The defendants were convicted of committing war crimes, and could have been punished for that alone. Furthermore they had abundant opportunity to defend themselves on that charge. There was no violation of due process in that connection, and no problem of "ex post facto." So what? They die for starting aggressive war, according to Mr. Jackson. They also die, strictly according to due process of law, for committing war crimes. Take your choice.

And Mr. Jackson's great principle is established. Hereafter, at least, it will be a crime to start aggressive war.

As yet there is no orderly process for determining what is "aggressive" war. If there is another war it may be supposed the victors would not consider themselves the aggressors. It is to be hoped that adequate means can be found to prevent war. But if unhappily it does break out the leaders on both sides can contemplate the fate in store for them if they lose. They can expect to be put to death by their conquerors for having started a war.

This does not argue well for observance of the laws of war if another conflict does occur, and this makes it all the more imperative that ways be found to prevent war. It is true the old laws of war were meager, inadequate, and unsatisfactory. They were ignored and violated on every hand. Nevertheless, let it never be forgotten that great numbers of our men are back home safe and sound because the laws of war were obeyed to some extent.

Are We Sure We're Right?

Now that Navy Secretary Forrestal has announced publicly that U. S. navy maneuvers in the Mediterranean have as their sole purpose the backing up of our foreign policy in that area we can start calling a spade a spade.

It is public record now that the state department intends to pursue a firm policy in Europe supported by frequent shows of military strength. For better or worse, the U. S. government plans to have an ace in the hole—or should we say up the sleeve.

A rumor last week that the state, war and navy departments are discussing sending the United States cruiser Randolph on a "courtesy" visit to the Turkish port of Izmir lends emphasis to this new technique in our foreign policy. This is also a good indication of the serious view being taken by the higher command in Washington of the new developments in the Russo-Turkish controversy over the Dardanelles.

The recent Soviet note to Turkey demanding that the Turks negotiate the Dardanelles question only with the Kremlin could mean that the Russians intend to precipitate a Turkish crisis, a crisis which may well be more serious than the Iran controversy. In all probability the note will be followed up by moves to bring pressure on Turkey in one way or another.

It must be remembered in considering this question that the Russian desire for a warm water outlet goes back generations. The present Soviet regime, however, has shown itself bolder and more firmly resolved to achieve this end than old Tsarist regimes.

The Turks, on the other hand, are equally determined to resist any attempt at infringement of their national sovereignty such as acceptance of the Soviet demand for Dardanelles bases.

When you consider also the extreme British interest in Turkey, you get a picture somewhat like this: a big power determined to beg, borrow or steal bases from a stubborn smaller power which has support from both the British and Americans. This has all the ingredients of an international blow-up.

We can't say we approve of the navy's "good will" tours in the Mediterranean or elsewhere. By using military force to back up foreign policy the United States seems to be falling into a familiar pattern of might is right.

The U. S. is now doing in a larger way what the Soviet Union did in its dealings with Iran.

There are some who will defend this practice as a necessity; "you have to fight fire with fire," they say. Well, maybe so. We only hope that before we start too much of a blaze that we know we're right.

We can't forget that the United States backed France in Spain simply because he was opposing Communism. That's not reason enough, not when war's at stake.

They Did It!

Frankly, we didn't think they could do it. But they did.

They, the members of the Student council, were able to sell enough tickets to the Xavier Cugat concert in two weeks time to cover the all-important guarantee. If advance ticket sales had not netted enough to meet the guarantee, the money would have had to be refunded and the concert cancelled.

Since the council was unable to find an underwriter for the contract, the members took it upon themselves to conduct an advance ticket sale and thereby underwrite the contract with cash on the line. That, kiddies, was a bold step.

Failure would have meant considerable loss of prestige, and an organization as youthful as our Student council would have been long in recovering from such a set-back.

But why talk about what might have been? The fact of the matter is the concert did succeed and its members are deserving of commendation. What's more, their success in this venture reaffirmed a growing faith in our student government.

Russia-U.S. Cooperation Requisite to Loan

The United States should continue to refuse Russia a loan unless the Soviet Union ceases making economic vassals of foreign countries and cooperates in removing obstacles to free world trade and improving living standards universally, Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D) declares in a signed article in the November American magazine.

In revealing details of the pattern being pursued in America's new policy of Dollar Democracy, the senate military affairs committee chairman and foreign relations committee member cites the 15 billion dollars Uncle Sam has spent during the past year and a half "to help create an economic atmosphere abroad in which democracy can thrive" and states:

"Our policy is not anti-Russian, but it is, rather, an effort to build up conditions of prosperity and free trade throughout the world. It is only under such conditions that we, ourselves, can prosper, for long."

Congressional debate on the $3,750,000,000 credit to Britain, he says, should have "dispelled any doubt that America is using dollars to combat totalitarianism." Moreover, states the Utah senator, the loan to France was made at a time to be most effective "in causing the French people to reject the bid of their Communist party for power" in last June's election.

In contrast, President Truman blocked Russia's efforts to get a billion dollars from us by failing to ask the last congress for the additional appropriation the Export-Import Bank needed to make the loan, Senator Thomas asserts.

"It is apparent the president will ask for the money out of which a loan could be made to Russia only if the USSR indicates a change of heart with regard to cooperation," he writes.

"We should make the loan only if Russia cooperates in helping to raise the world's standard of living and in helping to lift barriers to free world trade. If Russia would join the Bretton Woods bank and fund and abandon its policy of making economic vassals of foreign countries by all-encompassing agreements with them we would be favorably disposed, I am sure to make a loan. Certainly the Russians can find no evidence of discrimination in such a foreign loan policy."

While the U. S. has been pursuing its Dollar Democracy with generous loans and credits, a DREAMER appears on the other side, which surprisingly enough isn't bad. (ONE LOVE features Frankie at his very best, singing a really interesting tune.)

Off the Record

By DICK DAVIS

Not since Rachmaninoff recorded his CONCERTO NO. 2 back in 1929 has there been an artist capable of surpassing Rachmaninoff's superb rendition of his work. That is not until Arthur Rubinstein made his recording for Victor. Rubinstein and the NBC Symphony orchestra, under the direction of Valdimir Golschmann, have on records a brilliant, lyrical interpretation of Rachmaninoff's CONCERTO NO. 2. The recording is excellent, technically.

In view of the forthcoming Xavier Cugat concert, mention of one choice album of Cugat recording may be in order. Latest, and unquestionably the best, is the album entitled, RHUMBAS. The album contains four records and is stamped by Victor. The performance is better than usual.

No one, except Frank Sinatra, wishes to sing about the things they did last summer. In the latest Columbia release, Frankie, bow tie and all, swings into a typical Sinatra slusher, THINGS WE DID LAST SUMMER. The girls at the house will love it, so will a few of the smaller children. Most men, keeping one ear on the juke box, will grow and groan. On the reverse side of Columbia's release is THE COFFEE SONG, better named, Lets All Drink Tea.

Another Sinatra injustice is SOMEWHERE IN THE NIGHT. As can be expected, its another hang-on-the-milk type that the women will undoubtedly adore. A DREAMER appears on the other side, which surprisingly enough isn't bad. (ONE LOVE features Frankie at his very best, singing a really interesting tune.)

Reconverted Frivol Out Today

By BEVERLY BENSON Daily Iowan Campus Editor

What do you know? Frivol's not frivolous anymore! In the October issue of the publication formerly referred to as the University of Iowa's "humor magazine," a small group of university students have undertaken to raise Frivol from its usual standards of campus chit-chat and gossip columns. The magazine they produced to be distributed to students today, is by no means highbrow—rather it looks and reads like what it is, the work of mature college students who recognize the merit of humor that's of the subtle rather than the slapstick variety.

Particularly outstanding are John Simmons' fiction contribution, "Huck Rents a House," and Photographer Arnold Rustin's four-page layout of Hawkeye Village infants. Simmons' story of the gesticulating Greek restaurant owner George and of his roommate Huck is the first good, or even readable, piece of fiction to appear in Frivol for a long time.

In a casual style faintly reminiscent of a New Yorker article, Simmons recalls the prewar days when he went on a fantastic midnight house-hunting spree with George of the "exclaiming whippers" and ended up by renting a three-room duplex, "complete with modern conveniences."

Rustin's photos, representative of Frivol's announced intention of reflecting postwar life on the campus, are a grand pictorial salute to the many veterans at the university who are juggling a full schedule of classes on one side of their daily calendar and family life in emergency dwellings on the other. Even without the tie-in with university students, the pictures captured enough infant charm to be worthy of print on their own merit.

A laudable move towards making Frivol an all-university publication is "The Laws," an article written about Iowa's oldest professional school by one of the law students. A little too long, perhaps, in consideration of the total page length of the magazine, "The Laws" nevertheless makes good reading, with its description of the hectic rivalry which was pre-war tradition among the professional schools.

On Dr. Eddie Worthly in motive but falling short in actual reading appeal is Jack Schroeder's article, "Doc Eddie and Co.—1946." Magazine deadline time of course made it necessary that many of the predictions about the 1946 Hawkeye team be for the most part speculation, but a personal account of Anderson the runner rather than the "Who's Who-like" description which appeared in the article would, we think, have been of more interest to Iowa students.

Good in the informational line is Bill Ruxlow's "Righter's Little Lead Bandmen," the inside story about how Prof. Charles B. Righter, director of university bands, works out plans for the halftime band performances at S.U.I. football games.

Relief from Pseudo Humor The main criticism we have for the magazine itself is that there just wasn't enough of it. After some time of reading pseudo-humor pieces in past issues of Frivol, one article like Simmons' seemed just like a good beginning.

For putting new life in a long-dead publication, credit should be given especially to Denton Yeast, chairman of the Frivol Student Production board, and to Loren Hickerson, faculty advisor to the board.

With a publication of one fine magazine behind them, we hope that the Frivol staff, making use of the talents of students from all the colleges on campus, will be able to put Frivol well up in the national standings for university magazines—and after taking another look at the October Frivol—we think they will.

Says Franchise Necessarily a Monopoly, Must Have Workable Price Arrangement

(Once received, letters to the editor become the property of this newspaper and we reserve the right to edit them or withhold them altogether. Unsigned letters will not be published. Views expressed in letters do not necessarily represent those of The Daily Iowan—The Editor.)

TO THE EDITOR: The Iowa Water Service company has proposed to the citizens a contract in which no workable arrangement as to price is set forth. In explanation, it says that is a minor detail because the city council is required by law to fix water rates. It might have comfortably disposed of that vital matter by inserting a clause, "Divine Providence will defend the consumer."

The essential feature controlling the mutual obligations of the two parties to this franchise appears to have been overlooked by the company.

THIS SERVICE IS NECESSARILY A MONOPOLY. In ordinary business deals, price limitation are not fixed in the rigid way that becomes necessary in a franchise. If the shoe merchant's price is too high, you try another store. Competition safeguards the purchaser. With a city water company, however, when it is once installed, there will be no competition. The franchise at the outset must include an agreement as to the basis for future charges.

THE FRANCHISE HAS TO BE OF THE NATURE OF A COST-PLUS CONTRACT. In the contract recently proposed, however, the city has no way to foresee either cost or plus. A far-seeing company would have allied suspicion and won confidence by including in its proposal clear cut provisions for arriving at a believable property valuation, for auditing operative expense accounts and for agreeing on a wise margin for profits.

Since the proposed franchise was published, the company in defending its reasonableness has said much about purchasing new equipment, extending water mains, taxes, helping veterans and borrowing money. That is all elementary business procedure; any shrewd businessman takes it for granted, then gets busy to win customers whose patronage will pay the bills. He does not advertise his insolvency.

One wishes the water company had devoted time and energy to assuring the people of Iowa City of a sound method by which the future water rates are to be estimated.

A question is ranking in the minds of Iowa City water consumers. It runs like this: Supposing an honest company is seeking a cost-plus contract, why should it be willing to set forth business-like methods for determining property values and auditing accounts? If those items on its books are facts, would facts ever suffer from being tested?

It is probable that most people of this city would prefer private ownership of its public utilities, provided all this business of signing blank checks had been eliminated. They desire and expect a franchise to provide for attractive profits.

Let the present water company, or any rival company, deserve and win their confidence by entering into a compact that will supply the necessary facts; let it replace the present murkiness with clear light; then a contract can be signed that will be profitable for the company and satisfying to the consumers.

The city ought to refuse the franchise now under inspection and thus give the company, or some other company, opportunity to propose one that will safeguard the valuation of physical plant and the auditing of expense accounts.

Union Board to Sponsor All-University Mixer Saturday, Oct. 12

An all-university mixer, "Off the Record Open House," will be sponsored by Union board in the Iowa Union lounge and River room, Saturday Oct. 12, from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight.

"We planned the mixer because so many students were requesting a place to go after the football games," stated Gwen Oppenheimer, A3 of Marshalltown, board member.

Board members were divided into four committees to plan the mixer.

Committees and chairmen include: Winston Lowe, L3 of Webster City, tickets and ticket distribution; Jim French, A3 of Des Moines, advertising and publicity; George Cebuhar, A2 of Centerville, records and entertainment; and Anne Peterson, P2 of Mason City, hostess.

Tickets will be available Wednesday at the Union desk from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. There will be no charge for the tickets, but each student must pick up his or her individual ticket.

Prof. Samuel B. Barker Leaves for Milwaukee To Give Demonstrations

Prof. S. B. Barker of the physiology department will leave today to demonstrate the results of his experiments with animals at the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Medical society in Milwaukee.

"Studies on thioracil" will be the subject of Dr. Barker's presentation at the three-day meeting which begins Monday. Thioracil is a sulphurous chemical compound which reduces the activity of the thyroid gland, Dr. Barker explained.

Dr. Barker has been experimenting on rats and will show rats that have been under treatment with the chemical for about three weeks.

"The experiments have been aimed at learning more about the function of the thyroid gland and the effects of the drug on the gland," Dr. Barker said. "The drug makes it possible to avoid surgery in many cases of hyperactivity to the thyroid."

Legal Fraternity Meets

Seventy-five members of Delta Gamma Phi legal fraternity attended the first of a series of semi-monthly luncheons yesterday in the River room of the Iowa Union. Dean Mason Ladd, of the college of law, was the guest speaker.

Campers Take Trip

The women's physical education camping class left early this morning on an overnight canoe camping trip to Coralville. Helen Poulsen, instructor in the physical education department, will supervise the trip.

Scheduled to reconvene this morning at 9 o'clock, the meeting of the Iowa Occupational Therapy association will end today with a tour of therapy shops in University hospitals and the children's convalescent home in Iowa City.

Sixty persons attended yesterday's session, which included a business meeting and discussions of various phases of occupational therapy by university faculty and hospital staff members.

This morning's program follows: 9 a. m.—"Importance of a Sound Medical Background in Occupational Therapy," by Dr. Frank Coburn, professor of psychiatry.

9:30 a. m.—Roundtable discussion, "Occupational Therapy in Medicine."

10:30 a. m.—Summary and Discussion Period.

11 a. m.—Shop visits to University hospitals and children's convalescent home.

Over 44,000 Students In Iowa High Schools Participate in SUI Tests

More than 44,000 students in 234 high schools in Iowa and surrounding states participated in the fifth annual fall testing program for Iowa high schools, conducted by the university during the first three weeks in September.

Results of the tests, now being scored at the university, are being returned to the high schools where they were given within two weeks after they were received here, Prof. Everet F. Lindquist of the college of education, director of the program, said yesterday. Scoring of the tests will be completed next week, Professor Lindquist said.

Mahan to Participate In National Conference

Prof. Bruce Mahan, director of the university extension division, will be in Washington, D. C., Monday and Tuesday to participate in a discussion of motion pictures in relation to juvenile delinquency.

Chairman of the visual education division of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, Prof. Mahan will meet with a group in the U. S. attorney-general's office to help prepare an agenda for the motion picture panel of the National Conference for the Prevention and Control of Juvenile Delinquency.

Prof. Elizabeth Halsey Attends Ohio Meeting

Prof. Elizabeth Halsey, head of the women's physical education department, left yesterday afternoon to attend a workshop committee meeting of the National Association for Physical Education College Women at Hiram college, Hiram, Ohio. Professor Halsey is a member of the executive board and is a past president of the association.

The basic skills requirements in physical education at the University of Iowa, will be one of the subjects discussed at the June meeting, Professor Halsey said.

Because so many hundreds of students and others have been turned away from our Sunday morning service or forced to attend the overflow service in Fellowship Halls, two services will be held Sunday mornings beginning next Sunday October 6th.

The hours will be 9:30 and 11 a. m. and the two services will be identical. The hour of the church school has also been changed from 9:15 to 9:30 a. m. to synchronize it with the first service.

We urge as many as find it convenient to do so to attend the first service to assure a proper balance.

Hawklets Tip Dubuque in Final Seconds

Special to the Daily Iowan
DUBUQUE—In one of the hottest football battles in the history of the Mississippi Valley conference Iowa City high school came from behind in the final 15 seconds to trip Dubuque 19-13 here last night.

It was quarterback Jimmy Sangster who saved the day with two perfect pitches in the dying moments to Don Fryauf.

It came about like this. Dubuque was forced to punt and Sangster ran the ball out of bounds on the Dubuque 43-yard line. He stepped back and the first strike carried to the 18-yard line and the second into the end zone with the clock showing just 15 seconds to go. Fumbleitis kept the invaders in trouble in the first half.

Dubuque took the opening kick off and in eight plays had the ball on the Iowa City 24-yard line where the Hawklets took over on downs. Six plays later Iowa City fumbled on the 50-yard line and Bob Converse recovered for Dubuque.

Dubuque was off again, this time to the five-yard line where the Hawklet line provided one of the biggest thrills of the evening. Four times Dubuque backs hurried into the line but were held for no gain but, the Iowa City rally was short lived.

Another fumble gave the ball to Dubuque on the Iowa City 15. Jim Michel crashed through to the four-yard line and then tossed to Glen Conrad for the first touchdown of the game. Bill Roberts converted.

It was at this point where City high came to life.

They took the kick off and drove to the Dubuque 17 yard line. Sangster, from his quarterback position, tried an end run which carried over the double stripe and sent the clubs to the dressing rooms with Dubuque holding a 7-6 margin.

Iowa City kept up the onslaught in the third period after the kickoff. With Chugger Wilson and Fryauf beating down the opposing forwards they drove to the two yard line from where Fryauf finally went over. The conversion try missed.

Michels put Dubuque back in the lead when he scampered 82 yards in the fourth to the Iowa City four yard line.

The Hawklet line held for two plays but then Michels threw to Roberts for the score.

Iowa City went after the winning touchdown and drove to the Dubuque seven yard line where they lost the ball on downs.

Then came the fatal punt and Sangsters game breaking passes.

U. High Beats West Liberty, 20-6

By DON MALONEY
 Daily Iowan Sports Writer

U-High's fighting Bluehaws racked up their third win and stayed in the unbeaten category by humbling a stubborn West Liberty eleven, 20-6, in an Eastern Iowa conference tilt last night.

Gus "one man gang" Helm was a bear cat on defensive for the Bluehaws again and scored U-High's first tally after a 55-yard jaunt. However, the most unusual play of the evening occurred in the third quarter when Ralph Hady, Bluehawk right end, charged into the West Liberty backfield and stole an attempted Comet lateral and galloped 28 yards for U-High's second score.

Nick Anderson kicked off for Iowa City and Chad James returned the ball to the Comet 34. West Liberty staged a drive which carried over to the Bluehawk 48 before it bogged down and they were forced to punt. U-High took over on their own 28 and the Bluehaws made a first down on sweeps by Bob Ojemann and Craig Harper.

With the ball on the 45, third and five to go, Helm swung off right tackle, cut back to the left, and raced 55 yards for the game's opening score. Helm's drop kick for extra point was low.

Anderson's kickoff sailed into the endzone, so the Comets took over on their own 20 yard marker. Chad James bucked the Iowa City line for three straight plays, but West Liberty was forced to kick.

In the second quarter the Comets came to life and racked up six first downs and a touchdown. Earl Jable, Comet right half, scored after a 27 yard sprint around his own left end. West Liberty's plunge for extra point was stopped at the line of scrimmage.

After the third quarter kickoff U-High was forced to punt, and the Comets took over on their own 34.

Don Owen, captain and left half for the Comets, picked up two yards but a five yard penalty against the Comets nullified the gain. At this point the Comets attempted a lateral but Hady literally took the ball out of the receiver's arms and dashed 28 yards to score.

In the opening minutes of the last frame, U-High had possession of the ball on the Comet 26. Helm smashed to the 16 and Harper carried the ball to the 11 on an off tackle plunge. Helm took it over from the six, and Harper plunged successfully for the extra point.

Tempers Flare in Series Ticket Lines

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A noisy, shoving throng estimated at more than 10,000 persons formed unruly lines at Sportsman's park yesterday to buy reserved seat tickets for the World Series games here—but only about half of them were successful.

An hour and a half after the sale opened, some 5,000 persons still jammed sidewalks around the park and boomed an announcement that all tickets had been sold.

Fist fights and heated quarrels broke out frequently as ticket-seekers, many with tempers shored by a sleepless night in line, lost their positions to line crashers. When the box office opened, the congestion was so great that the sale was delayed ten minutes while police restored order.

Scalpers were reported selling ticket blocks costing $37.50 for prices ranging from $75 to $100.

Receives 25 Entries For 2 Day Golf Meet

About 25 entries have been received so far for the golf tournament to be played today and tomorrow at the Iowa City country club under the sponsorship of Roy L. Chopek, post 17 of the American Legion, according to Carl Redenbaugh, post commander.

There will be prizes for the three winners in each of four flights, Redenbaugh said.

Anybody that's got a good legal method of making book on the football games should drop around and see us. Ya's see, we—the Daily Iowan's football board of experts that is—are strictly hot stuff.

In the past two weeks the "experts" have racked up a cool 100 percent in ten predictions matched against a "Mr. Average Fan." Meanwhile, our average fan opponents, Harvey Ingham and Mike Enich, have each missed on one game—an 80 percent record.

And then the experts, who are always willing to give a guy more than he asks for, have gone out on the limb on 28 other games with very satisfactory results. In the grand total of 38 predictions they have connected 31 times, missed four and had three ties—which we will toss out to make the percentage look better.

You see, we told you that we were good.

From now on, however, things are starting to get tougher. The "big games" are starting to come up and nothing contributes quite as much to a long list of upsets as a few "traditional" battles.

This week we match the experts collective heads against Jack Bourke, A-2 of Chicago, who claims his school spirit has nothing to do with his choice of Iowa over Michigan. This is one point with which the collective heads agree.

JACK BOURKE

THE PREDICTIONS:

Wisconsin over Northwestern
 Indiana over Minnesota
 Mississippi State over LSU
 Ohio State over USC
 Iowa over Michigan

The Experts
 Wisconsin
 Minnesota
 Mississippi State
 USC
 Iowa

And then for the usual swing through the other games of the day—usually very wrong that is. Illinois over Purdue, Notre Dame over Pittsburgh, Army over Cornell, Tennessee over Duke, Navy over Columbia, Arkansas over TCU, Texas Tech over SMU, Texas A and M over Oklahoma, Texas over Oklahoma A and M, Alabama over South Carolina, Tulane over Florida, Georgia over Temple, Georgia Tech over VMI, Mississippi over Vanderbilt, Michigan State over Boston College, Iowa State over Iowa State Teachers, Nebraska over Kansas State, Villanova over Marquette, Missouri over St. Louis, Tulsa over Drake, Brown over Princeton, Yale over Colgate, Dartmouth over Syracuse and Holy Cross over Detroit.

Wolves Picked Over Hawks

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK—Slipping quietly to the weekly football forecast.

Iowa vs. Michigan—Both teams shut out Western Conference opponents last week. The Wolverines are on their way to the Big Nine title and will be hard to stop. You never can tell what might happen in that league, but our guess for this one is Michigan.

Cornell vs. Army—If Doc Blanchard plays, Army can win this one going away. Without him, it might be close. In any event, his looks like No. 21 on the Cadet's victory parade. Army.

Ohio State vs. Southern California—The Trojans didn't strengthen their position as Pacific Coast favorites by squeaking past Washington State but will be favored here. However, we'll take a flier on Ohio State.

Pittsburgh vs. Notre Dame—The Irish beat Illinois by 20 points. Illinois topped Pitt by 26. That makes 46 points, which should be about the proper distance in this one. Handily, Notre Dame.

Purdue vs. Illinois—The Illini won't be playing Notre Dame again. With that to inspire them they should make short work of the Boilermakers. A strong vote for Illinois.

Wisconsin vs. Northwestern—While the Wildcats were humbling Iowa State, 41-9 last week, the Badgers were mauling California, 28-7. The nod to Wisconsin.

Swimmers to Hold Meeting Tuesday

Coach Dave Armbruster will hold a "get acquainted" session with all aspirants to the Iowa swimming team Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the River room at the Union.

Armbruster announced yesterday that any men interested are invited to attend the session which will feature movies taken by the athletic department on outstanding swimmers and refreshments.

It's "All Aboard" For Ann Arbor

THIS WAS THE SCENE yesterday morning when the Iowa football squad entrained for Ann Arbor, Michigan and their battle with the Wolverines today.

Out of Four Big Nine Games Today

Iowa Has Toughest Assignment

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—The title bids of three Western Conference "dark horses"—Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota—get a sharp test today as the Big Nine football race moves into full stride with four league games.

Iowa, off to an impressive conference start with a surprising 16-0 win over Purdue, has the toughest assignment, perhaps, in tackling Michigan at Ann Arbor. The Wolverines roared to 21-0 opening triumph over Indiana's defending champion Hoosiers and definitely rate as the team to whip in the conference.

Lightly reckoned in pre-season calculations, Wisconsin carries a pair of fat victories over Marquette and California into its opening league fray against Northwestern, a 41-9 conqueror of Iowa State, at Evanston.

Minnesota which tuned up with a 33-6 rout of Nebraska starts swinging in the conference against an Indiana team riled by successive trimmings from Cincinnati and Michigan. This grudge scrap at Minneapolis finds the Gophers itching to avenge a 49-0 humiliation by the Hoosiers last season.

The fourth league contest sends Purdue to Champaign, Ill., where Coach Ray Eliot's Illini jump into the swim still reeling from a 26-6 pasting by Notre Dame, if Buddy Young, stopped cold by Notre Dame, starts rambling against the Boilermakers, the Illini may still live up to expectations.

The ninth conference entry, Ohio State engages favored Southern California in an intersectional feature at Los Angeles. The Buckeyes, who start league play next week against Wisconsin, lost considerable prestige by settling for a 13-13 tie with Missouri.

The Michigan-Iowa battle finds the Wolverines holding a distinct advantage in reserve strength, but Coach Fritz Custer has a psychological problem. Michigan is host to powerful Army a week from today and may inadvertently pull its punches against Eddie Anderson's sturdy Hawkeyes, who will have a 15-pound per man advantage in the line.

Among the Midwestern independents, Notre Dame's polished team entertains crippled Pittsburgh at South Bend in a game which should give Irish reserves a big workout, while Michigan state gets its first real test against Boston College at East Lansing.

Girl Scouts Choose New Senior Board To Plan Activities

New members elected to the Senior Girl Scout planning board were announced Thursday by Mrs. Hugh Carson, Girl Scout secretary.

Dorothy Means will be president; Barbara Nolan, vice-president, aided by Marina Strabala, Jennie Condon, Marilyn Neuzil and Catherine Welter, who will act as representatives. Joan Wagner, who is a member of the Mississippi Valley area board, will also serve as a member of the Iowa City planning board.

Mrs. Carson also announced the organization of a new troop by the seventh grade at the junior high school under the leadership of Jean Chambliss, university student. The troop will meet Thursdays in the junior high cafeteria.

AF of L to Initiate 40 Candidates Tuesday

A class of 40 candidates will be initiated by the Iowa City branch of Local 43, A F of L at a meeting Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the AF of L office, according to Roy Skriver, business representative for the union local.

Ted Lodge, president of the Cedar Rapids' Local 43, will be in Iowa City Tuesday for the obligating ceremony.

Correction

It was erroneously reported in The Daily Iowan yesterday that the AF of L union at the University hospital in Iowa City had consolidated with the CIO union which is currently organizing at the hospital.

The Daily Iowan has been informed the University hospital local No. 197, AF of L, the union referred to in yesterday's story, has consolidated with the past year with the Iowa State University Employees, local No. 12, AF of L.
