'Dreamboat' On Last Lap To Cairo

Army B-29 Clears Mediterranean Storm On 10,300-Mile Hop

CAIRO, Sunday (AP)—The United States army's Pascusan Dreamboat radioed at 3:20 a.m. Greenwich mean time, today (9:20 p.m., CST, Saturday) that it had winged its way out of a Mediterranean thunderstorm and was over Crete on the last lap of its Honolulu-to-Cairo flight, the army's air transport command said.

The B-29 had messaged when it was leaving Italy that it was nosing into a thunderstorm, with icing conditions in the clouds.

It was expected to arrive at Cairo between 6:30 and 6:50 a.m. GMT. (12:30 and 12:50 a.m., CST).

When it flew over France, the U. S. army plane reported that it was flying at 16,000 feet.

The Dreamboat was maintaining altitude between 15,000 and 25,000 feet in flying weather that at a lower level provided visibility of only about seven miles and a ceiling of 1,300 feet.

Col. C. S. Irvine and his crew of nine in taking off Friday at 4:21 p.m., Greenwich time (10:21 a.m., CST), estimated they would reach Cairo in 41 to 43 hours. The course across Arctic wastelands with their notorious weather conditions precluded much chance that the dreamboat would attempt to shatter the U. S. navy's distance record of 11,250 miles, set earlier this week by the Truculent Turtle.

Should gasoline gauges appear high when the Superfortress noses across the Egyptian desert to Cairo, it was expected that Irvine would send the ship 700 miles up the Nile to Wade Halfa, in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan south of Cairo. The route from Honolulu to Cairo was estimated to be 10,300 miles long.

The plane weighed 74 tons at takeoff but grew lighter every minute as its four hungry engines gulped the 77,352 pounds of gasoline it lifted from the Hawaiian airfield.

During much of the day, the Dreamboat flew along the south limits of the Arctic ocean, whose other shore touches the U.S.S.R.

Lt. Gen. Ennis Whitehead in Honolulu said the flight was a test for a global airforce. The test cost $3,000,000 and among other things, was undertaken to try out the latest instruments for blind flying.

28-Hour Session Ends Commission Work on Treaties

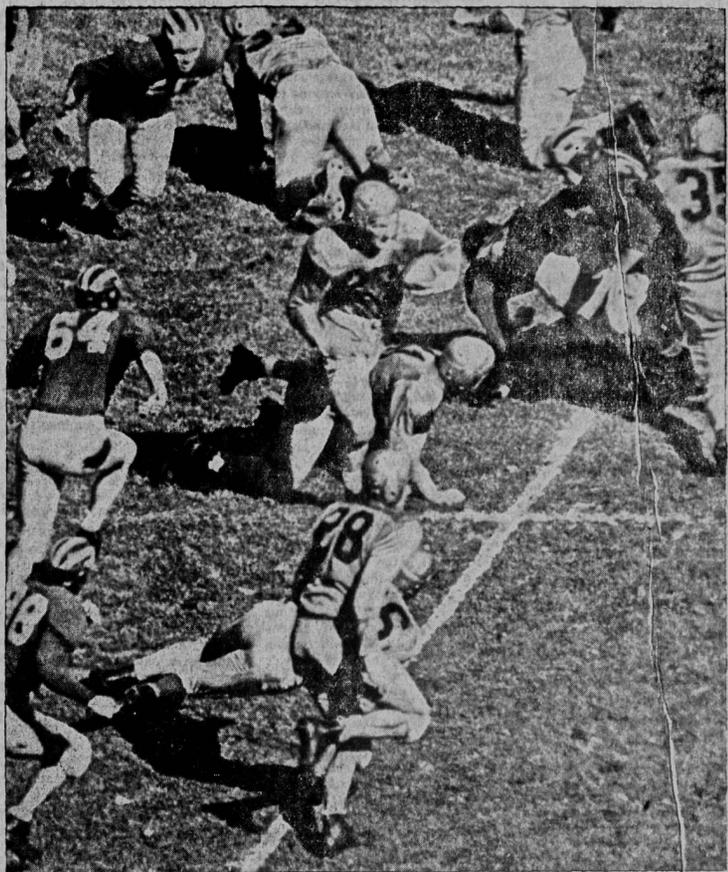

PARIS (AP)—Fourteen tired, disheveled and unshaven delegates cried "hurrah!" yesterday as the Balkan economic commission ended a 28-hour session which completed the preliminary drafting of the five peace treaties with the former satellites of Nazi Germany.

When Commission Chairman Josef Korbal banged his gavel in adjournment it meant that the commission had completed its share of the writing of a reparations bill which if approved will cost Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland $1,350,000,000 for helping Adolf Hitler set the world on fire.

Monday morning the delegates of the 21 nations to the European peace conference will meet in plenary session to begin the final stage of treaty writing that is scheduled to end on Oct. 15. Then they will turn their treaty recommendations over to the Big Four foreign ministers, who will have the final say.

A special plenary session will be held today to consider rules limiting debate and the schedule laid down by the foreign ministers' council.

Official French sources said it would be necessary to hold continuous 24-hour sessions in order to adhere to the schedule and meet the Oct. 15 deadline.

Through Drought and Discontent—

Franco's Luck Holds

MADRID (AP)—The good luck of Generalissimo Francisco Franco is fast becoming proverbial to Spaniards as dark clouds seem almost magically to turn out silver linings for the stocky, 53-year-old caudillo of the Spanish state.

Last winter, after three successive drought years, Spain's food supplies, especially grains, were at their lowest level since the civil war. Bread is truly the Spaniard's "staff of life" and any reduction in the bread ration posed a difficult step for the Franco government. Most of the world's exportable grain supplies were earmarked for war-hit Europe and Asia. There were prospects of a reduction of shipments from Argentina, Spain's usual source of wheat imports.

Franco opponents abroad were marshalling their forces. Talk of a general break in diplomatic relations with the Franco government and even economic sanctions were heard in allied capitals.

Heavy winter snows and steady spring rains broke the three year drought and assumed a bumper wheat harvest. Hidden stocks of wheat came out of hiding which, added to available imports, made a bread ration reduction unnecessary. With the harvest the workers' ration was more than doubled.

In the same months the post-war problems more and more occupied the world's diplomatic front and possibility ended any general rupture of relations with Spain. Poland's proposal to declare Franco Spain a threat to world peace and security failed to bring action in the security council of the United Nations.

"Big Four" meetings and the peace conference pushed Franco and Spain from the headlines.

While there is speculation over what would have happened had not the course of events favored the Caudillo there are none who discount his firm footing within Spain. He has the armed forces, the Catholic church, and the Falange, the support of many of the approximately 3,000,000 Spaniards in the middle and upper brackets and enjoys the full benefits of the propaganda strength of the nation's newspaper, radio, magazines, books, screen and stage. The question "How strong is Franco" brings many replies depending upon where the query is put. Official and unofficial foreign observers have various explanations for the fact that the caudillo is still in power after a year of almost continuous verbal attack from many of the world's principal capitals, opposition from a large sector of the world press and some economic pressure.

Moreover there are many who contend that Franco is more firmly entrenched today than at anytime since he received leadership of the "movement" and the state from the junta of generals at Burgos in 1936.

Veteran diplomats, whose names cannot be used, generally agree that nothing less than outright economic sanctions could unseat the caudillo. Anti-Franco groups concede they cannot change the government without foreign help. The monarchists have failed to bring back Don Juan, son of Spain's last king, who now lives in nearby Portugal.

The armed forces of Spain, which receive about one-third of the national budget, had the power to unseat Franco but informed opinion holds such disaffection highly remote.

Freedom of speech, freedom of press, freedom of assembly and the ballot box are unknown in Spain and there are no accurate yardsticks to measure public opinion.

Franco supporters claim that the generalissimo is more popular now than ever before and refer to his "triumphant" tours of Asturias and Andalucia, of the Levant and Estremadura.

Anti-Franco forces write in their clandestine publications of ten years of "terror" under Franco and the Falange. They contend that the welcoming crowds on his travels were "packed."

Some Spaniards, tolerant of the Franco regime but hopeful of a gradual change say the caudillo lost an opportunity when he failed to put some type of referendum to the people during the security council discussion of the Spanish case. They claim his popularity reached a peak then and since, has declined.

There is no indication now that the regime plans a referendum soon. There has never been an official announcement there would be a referendum.

Public reaction to the anti-Franco regime campaign abroad remains a matter of speculation.

Press an Asset Undoubtedly the Spanish press, controlled and censored, is a great asset to the regime. Besides the press, the Spanish people can get news only from foreign radio stations, information bulletins and pamphlets of the various embassies and the clandestine publications.

Until early last spring, foreign news in the Spanish press was heavily censored and all derogatory references to the Caudillo, his regime and the Falange were barred. All favorable references were played up.

Since then and through the security council discussion a gradual liberalization has been noted in the handling of foreign news.

Editorials and editorial articles vie with news for space in Spanish newspapers and usually occupy more. Throughout the security council meetings in Spain, the press daily drummed the theme that Russia was the "threat to peace" and that "the only and real enemy of Spain is communism."

In a front page editorial, the newspaper "ABC" of Madrid declared early in June that "Poland and France are the visible hands which have thrown stones at Spain and both are inspired by communistic elements which follow instructions from Moscow."

Iowans Scare Crisler's Boys With Uprising in Second Half

Wolverines Run Rough-Shod Over Hawks In First Two Quarters to Grab 14-0 Lead

By CHAD BROOKS Daily Iowan Sports Editor

ANN ARBOR, Mich.—The giants of mid-western football clashed on Ferry field yesterday afternoon, with mighty Michigan outlasting the surprise team from the cornbelt, Iowa's potent Hawkeyes, 14-7.

Coach Fritz Crisler's Wolverines, bidding for a top national ranking and boasting their best squad in history, could do no wrong in the first half, running rough-shod over the Hawkeyes, to pile up a 14-point lead that could easily have been much larger.

It was a different Iowa team after the intermission, however, as the Hawks roared back, with their giant fullback Dick Hoerner ripping the Wolves' line to shreds, to write a great, but heart-breaking finish into the records.

The Hawks, who didn't have a prayer for offense in the first two periods, scored the first time they got hold of the ball in the third quarter marching 65 yards in 12 plays.

They came back five plays later with a drive to the Michigan 41 yard line before bogging down after a holding penalty.

And, mid-way in the final quarter, they threatened to smash the Michigan bubble of national supremacy with a drive to the Wolverine 14, only to fail when Bob Smith was smothered, a big yard short, on fourth down.

The first half was a story of Fritz Crisler's two giant lines—one ripping the Hawks apart on offense and the other crushing the Iowa backs on defense and of a reserve fullback, Bob Chappuis, who looked like an all-American.

Time and again Chappuis dashed through huge holes in the Iowa forward wall and smashed his way through the Hawkeye secondary. He teamed with a pair of hard-hitting fullbacks, Bob Weise and Jack Weisenburger, to drive deep into Iowa territory four times, twice for Michigan scores. First, Chappuis climaxed a 68 yard Wolverine drive when he pounded through the left side of the Iowa line, spun away from two Hawk backs, and went seven yards for the first touchdown.

Four plays later he took over on the Michigan 21, pounded to the Iowa 20 in six straight attempts, rested while Weise picked up a first down on the Hawk 12 and once more dashed over Bill Kay in the left side of the visitors line to score behind perfect blocking.

Deep in Iowa Territory Twice more before the intermission the Wolves ranged deep into Hawk territory. Center Jim Lawrence stopped them once when he grabbed a Chappuis fumble on the Iowa three and Bob Smith ended their final threat by intercepting a pass on the Hawk four.

It was a brand new Iowa line that threw the second half scare into Crisler. Giant Jim Shoaf replaced Kay at left tackle and the Shoener twins, Herb and Hal, took over the end spots.

And it was Emlen Tunnell, a new left halfback, easily the most dangerous man on the field once again, who teamed with the line-crashing Hoerner to make the Hawk attack click.

And it was Tunnell and Herb Shoener, combining for a perfect six-yard pass that gave the Hawks their lone touchdown.

The Iowa drive started when quarterback Lou King grabbed a Derricotte pass on the Iowa 35, early in the third period.

Tunnell faked a pass and streaked around right end to the Hawkeye 45. Tunnell, again, and right half Bob Smith drove to the Michigan 45. Hoerner bulled through to the 31. Smith picked up seven and Hoerner smashed his way around the Wolves' right flank to the seven yard line.

Hoerner and Smith picked up a yard on two smashes into the Michigan line and Tunnell shot a bullet pass right down the middle to Herb Shoener in the end zone. Bob Sullivan added the extra point.

Smother Wolverines With Shoaf and Hal Shoener showing the way, the Hawkeye line smothered the Michigan attack and Iowa got their second chance when Weise punted out of bounds on the Hawk 48.

Tunnell brought the 55,000 partisan Michigan fans to the edge of their seats with a pass to Hoerner on the 41. There, however, a holding penalty caught up with the Hawks and two incomplete passes ended the threat.

As the final period got under way Weise was forced to punt again, this time to Tunnell who ran it back 11 yards to the Iowa 43.

Hoerner drove off tackle to midfield and Smith moved to the Michigan 45 on a cross buck. Smith again went off left tackle and smashed to the 35. Hoerner crashed through to the 23 and dashed through the right side of the Wolves' line to the 18. But then the Hawk luck ran out.

Tunnell ran right end for two, Hoerner plunged for one, Smith was snowed under and the Wolverines had moved another step closer to a Big Nine crown.

CHAPPUIS SCORES FOR MICHIGAN—Bob Chappuis (49), Wolverine halfback, moves through a pile-up of Michigan and Iowa players to pick up twelve yards and a touchdown for the Wolves in the second quarter of yesterday's grid battle. Hawks Think They're—

Better Than Michigan

CHICAGO, Ill.—Iowa's dejected Hawkeyes paused here last night on the second lap of their journey home after almost upsetting Michigan yesterday afternoon.

Most of the gridmen expressed the opinion that they had a better team than did the Wolverines, but "just couldn't get going in the first half."

Dr. Eddie Anderson had nothing but praise for his galant crew saying, "They pulled the greatest comeback I have ever seen," but added, "I just can't figure out what happened in the first half."

Lou King, who piloted the Hawks throughout the game, said, "We have the best team in the conference."

The Hawks also carried the praise of Michigan coach Fritz Crisler home with them. Crisler admitted to newsmen after the game that, "I'm sure glad we have Iowa out of our hair, they have worried me all season."

Especially coming in for praise was Dick Hoerner who played one of the best games of his career.

One newsmen, traveling with the Iowa squad, said that Bob Weise, Michigan back, plunked down on the locker room bench after the game and exclaimed,

Dissension Erupts in Britain Over Palestine Controversy

LONDON (AP)—Arabs and British officials openly nursed their anger at President Truman yesterday but dissent within Britain over the government's Palestine policy entered the picture.

The foreign office, confirming previous reports, said Prime Minister Attlee had sent a personal note to President Truman and went even farther than Friday in expressing resentment over the president's refusal to delay publication of his statement advocating the immediate admission of a substantial number of Jewish immigrants into the Holy Land.

Winston Churchill, former prime minister, openly criticized the government's Palestine policy in a speech to a Conservative party convention at Blackpool, declaring it was "vacillating", and an abandonment of "lavish promises" made to the Jews by the Labor party before it took office.

He added that the government was hanging on to a mandate "in which they have no vital interests." Foreign office officials have said emphatically that Britain has no intention of giving up her mandate and may ask the United Nations to confirm it.

A source close to Attlee said dissent over Palestine also was one of several matters on which former Minister of State Philip Noel-Baker had disagreed with the government. Noel-Baker was shifted to air secretary in a series of cabinet and ministerial changes announced Friday night.

In an apparent passing reference to the Wallace controversy in America, Churchill said United States policy was "firm and unchanged."

Contrasting a shrinking British empire with an expanding Russia, the 71-year-old Conservative party leader said he could not step out of public life while "the situation is so serious."

He charged the Attlee government had mishandled the Indian problem so badly "no one can measure the misery and bloodshed which will overtake these economic masses of humble, helpless millions, or under what new power their future and destiny will lie."

Neither Porter nor Ross mentioned any steps that might be taken.

Porter, in his weekly broadcast, reported in connection with the meat shortage "a dangerous public psychology that could result in nullifying all the gains that have been made" in the battle against inflation.

Calling attention to "favorable economic factors" such as mounting production and prospects of dropping unit costs, Porter said that he never had been more confident since the new OPA law was passed that the stabilization fight can be won.

Defending his price ceilings, he served new notice that "we shall maintain legal controls in the areas where shortages would produce runaway prices so long as we have the legal power to do so."

Porter also said, however, that he is "as upset as anyone" by the meat shortage "and I can assure you we are working on it."

At the White House, too, Charles G. Ross, the president's press secretary, told reporters the whole matter was discussed at a cabinet meeting Friday but "all I can say is that no angle has been overlooked."

HOME AT LAST

COTTAGE NO. 12, just south of Currier hall, became home yesterday for Rosemary Trickey, (left), C3 of Owsa, and Jean Smith, A2 of Clarion. They were the first women to move into "No. 12," the first of the reconverted metal barracks made ready for occupancy.

Ism — the All-Meaning Suffix

Ism is probably the most frequently and bitterly maligned suffix in use today. And it all seems so unfair and not a little ironical.

For instance, tack ism on the word social and you come out with socialism. What a terrible, alien thing the poor little appendage becomes. But stick it on behind the word capital and you get capitalism. Well, that's a different thing. Perhaps isms aren't so bad after all.

The degree of goodness or badness of an ism depends a great deal on the way you look at it. It seems to depend a lot on who's doing the looking and on what sort of an ism is under examination. Not infrequently someone gets so carried away with dislike for certain forms of isms that he imagines all of them are intrinsically bad.

Here's an excerpt from an address delivered by a manufacturing executive at a Kiwanis luncheon this week in Des Moines:

"There is the fanatical fringe growing every year which works tirelessly to transform our constitutional form of society into some form of 'ism.'"

We have a hunch that this gentleman doesn't really think that all forms of isms are bad in themselves. Off hand, we probably could think of two isms which he would approve—conservatism and capitalism.

There's another strange thing about this current criticism of this little word caboose. The same persons now violently attacking it are, for the most part, the same persons who were the last to recognize and the first to forget the most dangerous ism of all—fascism.

And sadly enough, fascism which really is the most alien of all isms isn't so foreign to America. Anti-semitism, fanaticism, racialism and even terrorism—all the ugly isms from which fascism is compounded—exist to certain extent in America today.

The Price Is too High

Did you know that every 50 minutes a life is lost as a result of a fire in this country? Did you know that 10,000 persons were killed by fires last year? And did you know that in the midst of the most serious housing shortage the nation has ever known, we are burning down nearly as many homes as we are building?

Somewhere in this country a home burns every other minute. Last year, 330,000 families lost their homes by fire. Last year, the national fire loss was $500,000,000. This year fire already has consumed over $6,000,000 of real estate.

These figures are especially startling because they represent a trend that has been steadily ascending for the past eight years. The United States, with a fire loss per capita last year of $4, is the biggest firetrap in the world.

And one of the saddest features of all this terrible loss of life and property is that most of it need never have happened. According to the National Fire Protection association, 90 percent of all fires in this country are caused by sheer carelessness.

Take users of gasoline, for example. How many know that a pint of it can fill a house with 200 cubic feet of air so explosive that the spark from a cat's fur will touch it off? In 1945, 200 persons died and over 1,000 were injured because they didn't know about gasoline.

Electrical appliances, usually dangerous only in the hands of the careless user, cause 70,000 electrical fires annually. The unplugged iron, the penny in the fuse box, the overloaded circuit cost us $40,000,000 last year.

But the biggest accidental firebug is the negligent smoker. Thirty percent of all our fires can be blamed on those careless in their smoking habits and in the use of matches. Up in smoke with the cigarette or match that didn't go out, goes $200,000,000 in property a year.

Fire Prevention Week begins today. Think about the above figures—especially the figure 90 percent which refers to the proportion of preventable fires. Perhaps it would be wise if each of us conducted a private fire prevention week every week in the year.

Great Trek Has Begun

Jean Smith, Rosemary Trickey First to Move From Currier Hall to Cottages

By WAYNE SCHAKEL

Home is where you find it; and Jean C. Smith, A2 of Clarion, and Rosemary Trickey, C3 of Owsa have found it after three long weeks.

Until yesterday Jean was housed in temporary quarters of the study hall at Currier, and Rosemary in the south recreation room, but from now on it's cottage No. 12, Currier hall. They were the first of 15 girls to move into No. 12—the first cottage of the Currier group to be readied for occupancy.

Only two of the cottages, each housing 15 girls and a proctor, were ready yesterday, but Lorissa Sheldon, Currier head of residence, said that five more cottages should be completed for occupancy by Wednesday. All 15 of the buildings, which will accommodate approximately 200 university women, will probably be occupied within a month, she said.

The building hardly resembled a home when pioneers Smith and Trickey first stepped inside, but the girls and their 13 roommates have rolled up their sleeves and begun to add those personal touches that will make No. 12 different from any other place on the campus.

Both girls said that they were happy to move to a home of their own after three weeks of "temporary" living at Currier, and that No. 12 will be a big improvement.

Jean spent 23 months as a storekeeper in the WAVES, mostly at Glenview naval air station just outside Chicago; so having many roommates will be nothing new to her. As far as living in the study hall was concerned, she said, "It seemed like three months," but added quickly that it was a circumstance for which no one was responsible and "just one of those things."

Undoubtedly it will be different from her first year of college at Iowa State in 1941-42, but Jean says she's happy to be a student again and is sure that cottage life will be "all right."

Rosemary transferred to the university this year after two years at Briarcliff, a girls' school in Sioux City. Briarcliff was never like this, she admits, but because she wanted to be at Iowa this year she was willing to put up with the initial inconvenience for "those three weeks."

Neither of the girls was in sympathy with the "grippers" who wrote The Daily Iowan last week about the crowded conditions in temporary quarters.

They said they would like to have a regular dormitory room next year if they can, but since they've pretty well picked their roommates in No. 12, and vice versa, they're looking forward with something of excitement to the experience of cottage living.

The girls will have to share a wardrobe locker and desk, but they'll each have a foot locker for their belongings and a patch of wall to hang the usual pictures and souvenirs.

Jean explained that they hope to find time to paint their brown double-deck bunks a brighter duty—sending 2,000,000 or so men out clothes-hunting—is causing civilian production administration officials to shake their heads.

Even before the order was issued, it was estimated there would be a shortage of 15,000,000 men's suits this year, it will be a year before there are enough shirts to fill the demand, CPA estimates, and perhaps a year and a half before suits are plentiful.

The World Watch

By STEVE PARK

The first small glimmer of agreement on the urgent matter of international control of atomic armaments has been reached by the scientists of 12 nations, including Russia.

In a report to the United Nations atomic energy commission, last week, the technical committee declared that international control of atomic energy was technologically feasible, but that the task of outlawing atomic warfare devolved upon the statesmen and politicians of the world, not upon the scientists.

While the document, prepared by the scientists, explained that international control was easily possible because of large-scale operations necessary in the early stages of mining and refining fissionable ores, its lone concrete recommendation was a plea for free exchange of information among scientists.

Thus, the scientists stepped out and left the problem of laying the spectre of atomic war to the governments of the United Nations. It is at this point that all past efforts to reach a solid and lasting international agreement on control of this dangerous force have been balked because they impinge upon the so-called absolute sovereignty of individual nations and threaten to curb the expression of national interests and ambitions.

To date, two opposing plans, one advanced by Russia, the other by the United States, have been submitted to the United Nations. Each purports to be the better solution to the problem of control; each has its fallacies.

The Gromyko plan, offered by the Soviet Union, proposes that the manufacture and use of atomic bombs be outlawed by international agreement, but that each signatory to such an agreement be responsible only to itself for strict adherence to the provisions of the pact.

In the Gromyko plan, major emphasis is placed upon the good faith of nations and the hope that fear of retaliation will prevent the use of atomic weapons in war.

Actually, it is a sort of Kellogg Pact for atomic energy, and is plagued with identical inadequacies.

The rulers of ambitious states can brush aside, as they have in the past, the provisions of treaties and use whatever means are available to them remarked not so long before World War II, "The world moves ahead, but the treaties stand still." Unfortunately the Gromyko plan is no guarantee against an atomic war.

The American plan, on the other hand, offers a better solution. It calls for an international atomic commission with power to inspect the industry laboratories and military installations of all member nations to discover whether atomic weapons are being manufactured and stocked. The plan provides for the application of sanctions and punitive action against any state found to be ignoring the regulations.

However, the American plan allows the United States to continue the manufacture and stock-piling of atomic bombs until such time as this government decides that the commission is fully able to discharge its duties.

In effect, this latter provision of the plan endows the United States with a sort of super-sovereignty and gives the control of all the nations of the world into the hands of the American government for as long a period as America, holding its own council, deems it necessary. By this provision we ask the several nations to give up their own sovereignty while we retain ours. No wonder there are objections.

Meanwhile, the United States continues to manufacture atomic bombs and to build up stock-piles of destruction, while various groups point up the Russian menace and demand ever increasing preparations for a possible war, and "to prevent further Russian aggressions," all in the name of peace.

"Prepare for war to keep the peace" seems to be an international slogan in this era of insanity. We are traveling the same road to destruction and horror that we pursued after the last world debacle. And every war is more horrible and encompasses a wider area than its predecessor.

The next war, if it comes, will be the first completely total war. No person will be exempt; no city can hope to escape. And after the final gun has roared, the victors—if there be any—will destroy the vanquished, all in accordance with a dangerous precedent set in a trial for war crimes held at Nurnberg, Germany.

Perhaps, in this day, there are those who would scoff at such predictions. Have not the leaders of the two greatest nations denied there is danger of war? Both Josef Stalin and James Byrnes, within a week, have said that there will be no war—for 20 years.

Most thinking persons agree. However, there is a dangerous trend toward war—not war tomorrow or next year—but war in 25 or 30 years. That is the war we must prevent today. Unfortunately, the old system among states is inadequate to cope with this serious problem.

To do this, the old bugaboo of sovereignty must be eliminated. Unless all the states submit to the transcending authority of a higher body, we cannot expect permanent peace.

This is, in finality, the supreme test of the adaptability of man to his environment. A new era was created when that tiny group of scientists and technicians gathered in the pre-dawn darkness on the New Mexico sands to witness the first explosion of man's deadliest weapon, the atomic bomb.

If we cannot change ourselves and our ideas to suit the conditions, which we have imposed upon ourselves, we face the same fate as the pre-historic mastodons who once roamed the steaming antiluvian swamps—a few old bones to be discovered in some unknown year by some unknown race.

If today the nations go their separate way and bring about the third world carnage, perhaps the prophesy, stated in Revelations, verses seven to nine, will come about:

"And when the 1,000 years are expired, Satan shall be loosed out of his prison, and shall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the numbers of whom is as the sand of the sea.

"And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about, and the beloved city; and fire came down from God out of the heaven, and devoured them."

The startling point of the prophesy is that the principalities, Gog and Magog, refer to the European Powers, the foremost of which Gog, is an ancient name for Russia.

"The structure of world peace cannot be the work of one man, or one party or one nation. It cannot be an American peace, or a British peace, or a Russian, or a French, or a Chinese peace. It cannot be a peace of large nations, or of small nations. It must be a peace which rests on the cooperative efforts of the whole world."

FIFTY OUTSTANDING Washington political writers have once again participated in "Periscope Preview," Newsweek's monthly forecast of the Nov. 5 congressional elections. The current issue of the magazine (dated Oct. 7) features a resume of the correspondents' answers to four important questions dealing with the possible trend and outcome of the 1946 campaign.

As has been the custom in past "Previews," each analyst was asked for his opinion on each query at the present time. Here are Newsweek's questions: "How will the new house and senate be divided along party lines? What are the chief factors in influencing the election? What will be the trend of the 80th congress, in domestic policies, and in foreign policy?"

The composite opinion of the 50 participants was as follows: Republicans will gain 29 seats in the house of representatives, giving them a seven-vote majority; Democrats will retain control of the senate by a slim margin; the new congress "will be even more stubborn than the 79th" in opposing the administration on domestic issues, but will continue to support the Truman-Byrnes team on foreign policy.

A majority in the house—however narrow—would, of course, give the Republicans the right to elect a speaker and take over the key committee chairmanships. In its summary of the election forecast, though, Newsweek pointed out that 18 of the 50 newspapermen predicted that the Democrats would not lose control of the house. A GOP senate gain of seven seats was the "average" prediction with reference to the upper chamber.

The "most frequently checked" factors which the newsmen believed might influence the outcome of the forthcoming election were: public dissatisfaction with the food, clothing, housing and materials shortages; desire for a postwar political change; the "Missouri crowd" currently dominating administration policies; apathy of left-wing voters—formerly loyal to FDR—toward President Truman; OPA policies; and "high level of employment at relatively good jobs."

Newsweek's final election forecast, along with the results of the Gallup, Denver and Fortune public opinion polls, will be available shortly before Nov. 5. Between now and then, several factors—including the final outcome of the Paris conference; U. S. effectiveness in the United Nations gen-

Army Rolls Again, 46-21

WEST POINT, N. Y. (AP)—The Big Red of Cornell saw red often enough yesterday to pile up more points against Army's footballers than any other grid outfit has done for three years, but not nearly often enough to stop the Cadets from careering to their 21st straight victory, 46 to 21.

Ohio State Drubs Trojans, 21-0

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A feather-footed, heads-up band of Buckeyes from Ohio State, paced by a hard-charging line, drubbed the Southern California Trojans, 21-0 yesterday in an inter-sectional grid battle before 80,047 in Memorial coliseum.

Texas Romps To 54-6 Win

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—The Texas powerful Longhorns led by blonde Bobby Layne overwhelmed the Cowpokes of Oklahoma A. and M. 54 to 6, before a capacity crowd of 44,000 in Memorial stadium yesterday.

Oklahoma's ace, Bob Fenimore, injured last week when the Cowpokes were tied by Arkansas, played most of the first half but did not get back into the game after an injury late in the second period.

The hard-running Fenimore scored the Oklahoma's lone touchdown. They came right back after Texas' first score. Fenimore intercepted a Layne pass on the Texas 45 and it was Layne who ran him out of bounds on the 10. Fenimore sparked the drive that followed, and carried the ball across the stubborn Longhorn line six inches on the payoff play.

Cardinals, Red Sox Open World Series in St. Louis Today

Howie Pollet, Tex Hughson Probable Starting Pitchers

By GAYLE TALBOT

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis' own Cardinals, who survived a rough trip to the finals, and the highly-favored Boston Red Sox held their last press sessions and workouts at Sportsman's park yesterday preparatory to hooking up at 1:30 (CST) this afternoon in the opening game of the 1946 World Series.

A sell out crowd of about 34,000 was assured for both of the games which will be played here before the two clubs move up to Boston to continue the struggle, made up its mind whether to pit the Cards or National league made up its mind whether to pit the Cards or Brooklyn against the wallowing American league champs.

Prospects were that a couple of Texas residents, left-handed Howie Pollet of Houston and "Tex" Hughson, a long right-hander from Kyle, would be nominated as the starting pitchers in the opener.

Pollet, who turned in 21 victories for the Cards during the season, including a vital 4-2 triumph over the Dodgers in the first play-off game, was certain to go for freshman manager Eddie Dyer if the strained shoulder muscle which has hampered him recently is not too painful when he warms up today. The slim pitcher took heat treatments yesterday and indicated he would be ready.

Although manager Joe Cronin of the Sox had not stated a definite choice among his "big three"—Hughson, Dave "Boo" Ferris and Mickey Harris—the Cards felt it was a foregone conclusion they would have to look at Hughson. The big fast-baller won 20 this year, ripping off eight of his last nine starts and generally resembling a ball of fire down the stretch.

Dyer was very anxious to toss a southpaw at Ted Williams and the other Sox sluggers in the opener at Sportsman's park, where the rightfield fence is very short.

The Boston strong boys bore a confident air when they arrived on their special train late today. One after another they said calmly: "Sure, we expect to win."

The Cards were somewhat more voluble about it. They realize all too well that the house might fall on them at any time during the next few days, but they are decidedly "up" at the moment and are grimly determined to make a real alley fight of the thing.

"Sure, they're the sort of a team that might beat you on any pitch of a game," asserted Manager Dyer while discussing his chances. "But, just the same, we can give them a hell of a raffle if we're 'right,' the way we were in that second play-off game.

"We've been a strange club all year. When we've been good we beat all the other National league teams easily. When we've been bad we couldn't beat anybody. The way the boys looked on Thursday, I think we're about to hit one of our good streaks. I sure hope so. Those Sox can be beaten."

Sports Scribes Favor Cronin's Crew to Win

ST. LOUIS (AP)—About two out of three baseball writers here for the World Series favor the Boston Red Sox to whip the St. Louis Cardinals, a poll disclosed yesterday.

The opinions are divided almost evenly as to whether the American league sluggers will turn the trick in five or six games.

Only one scribe, Henry McKenna of the Boston Herald, figures Ted Williams and company will take four straight, although George Carens of the Boston Traveler opines the Red Sox may do it "in four or five."

Bo's 'Pore Hoosiers'— Indiana Tips Gophers

By MAURICE PUTNAM
MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Indiana's defending Big Nine football champions staged a second-half demonstration of power and passing technique to outplay Minnesota for a 21 to 0 decision yesterday. It was the first victory of the 1946 season for the Hoosiers and the opening conference game for Minnesota.

Fumbles played an important part in the Gophers' ability to hold off Indiana in the early stages. They recovered five of six Indiana fumbles in the first half and managed to keep the ball well within the 20-yard lines.

But with the opening of the second half, Indiana turned on a running and passing attack that the Gophers could not stem. A pass set up the first score, Ben Raimondi heaving to Pete Pihos to put the ball on the Gopher three-yard line. Pihos plunged needed distance and Charles Armstrong kicked the point, the first of three from his toe.

A recovered fumble midway in the third period boomeranged on Minnesota and gave Indiana its next tally. Bill Bye, substitute right half, recovered a Hoosier fumble on the Minnesota three-yard line. The Gophers attempted to punt out of danger but the kick was blocked and John Goldsberry fell on it for the score.

Bo McMillin's "pore little boys" clinched the victory with the third score early in the fourth period. Howard Cowan and Harry Jagade, sub backs, teamed to move the ball from midfield to the Minnesota one-yard line from where Jagade went over.

Barry Paces Tulsa Eleven to 48-13 Win

DES MOINES (AP)—Tulsa's gridders, indicating strongly that they are trying for a New Year's Day bowl game for the sixth consecutive year rolled over Drake 48 to 13 yesterday for their second triumph in the Missouri Valley conference.

The undefeated Golden Hurricane started slowly in the first period, marking up a single touchdown, but Tulsa found its pace in the second and third quarters when it racked up four and two scores respectively.

Drake, unbeaten in two previous games divided its two touchdowns between the second and fourth quarters while the Tulsa lineup was well sprinkled with substitutes.

Paul Barry, with three scores, and Jimmy Ford, with two, paced the Tulsa offensive which was smartly directed by Clyde LeForce, cagey triple-threat quarterback. LeForce made six successful extra point conversions out of seven tries.

Lujack One Man Show in Irish Victory

By JERRY LISKA

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Notre Dame, eyeing national football laurels, brushed aside an outclassed but game Pittsburgh eleven, 33-0, as sharpshooting quarterback Lujack staged a one man show for an Irish home opener throng of 50,368.

Lujack, who completed 10 of 21 passes for a gain of 211 yards, tossed two touchdown passes and set up two other Irish tallies with his needle-threading tossing.

Halfback Terry Brennan and fullback Jim Mello scored two touchdowns each as the Irish slashed through the willing Panthers for a pair of scores each in the second and third periods and a single payoff in the fourth quarter.

In the final half, Irish manpower which last Saturday had whipped Illinois 26-6 simply overpowered the Panthers. The third Notre Dame touchdown came early in the third period when Lujack tossed a 16 yard payoff pass to Mello, who took the ball in full stride on the Pitt five and rambl-ed across.

A 99 yard march to the fourth Irish touchdown began after Notre Dame was penalized to its one yard stripe. Lujack coolly passed from behind his goal line for a 39 yard completion to Zilly. Then he worked a 23 yard screen pass to Mello which put the Irish on the Pitt 29. Then Lujack sent Mello exploding through the middle 29 yards for a touchdown and Earley again converted to give the Irish a 26-0 margin.

The fifth Irish score came within three minutes of the fourth period on a 53 yard march. After Notre Dame hammered from its 47 to the Pitt 25, Brennan ran around his right end, fought off two tacklers and squirmed over for his second touchdown. Again Earley converted for the final 33-0 count.

The Irish rolled up a net rushing gain of 287 yards to only 34 by the Panthers.

Columbia Upsets Navy

NEW YORK (AP)—Columbia made speed and alertness pay off to the tune of a 23-14 victory over a favored and apparently stronger Navy football team yesterday to gain its first triumph over the midshipmen since 1939.

Cyclones Stop Tutors

AMES (AP)—Iowa State's Cyclones pulled a story book finish here yesterday with a forward pass in the last 25 seconds to win their first home game of the season from Iowa Teachers 20-18.

Iowa State was trailing 13-18 and time was running out when the Cyclones stalled on the Iowa Teachers' 14 and the Tutors took over the ball. Fullback Dave Williams fumbled on the first play and with 50 seconds to go, end Carl Paetz recovered for Iowa State. Back Wendell Willer quickly heaved a pass to quarterback Ed Farni, good for a touchdown from the 25.

Mayor Teeters Calls for Facts On Franchise

Mayor Wilber J. Teeters yesterday issued a statement calling for the "facts, free from confusion" in the issue raised concerning whether the Iowa Water Service company franchise should be renewed by voters at the special election Tuesday.

His statement follows: "After listening to the discussion of the proposed water franchise at the public forum, the following comments, I think, should be made.

"If, as stated by an expert, the proposed franchise is one that a careful businessman would not sign, then why should the city sign? It is, or should be, a square business deal.

"The proposed franchise specifically sets the $40 charge to the city for each fire hydrant. This is out of line with the charge of other cities of the state and should be either greatly reduced or eliminated entirely.

"Modern up-to-date water companies now furnish water that has had at least part of the hardness removed.

"Soap is not an economical way to remove hardness when water can be softened enough for family use with lime for less than 5 cents per cubic feet.

"In all fairness to the water company and the people of Iowa City who pay the bills, it seems that the water company should be willing and glad to put all the cards on the table face up.

"The facts, free from confusion, should be known."
(Signed)
Wilber J. Teeters, Mayor.

Germans Ask Trial Of Acquitted Nazis

NUERNBERG (AP) — Two of the three acquitted top Nazi leaders were spirited out of jail and given final freedom yesterday by United States military authorities amid a growing uproar among Germans that the three be tried in German courts for crimes against their own people.

Hjalmar Schacht, Hitler's banker, and Hans Fritzsche, propagandist, were released from prison and installed in downtown apartments. Franz Von Papen, the diplomat, remained in jail waiting formal word on whether he could enter the British zone. A British spokesman in the zone said entry was barred to all three.

In Berlin, 5,000 persons, jamming a variety theater in the Soviet sector of the city, gave thunderous approval to a resolution that not only the three acquitted Nazis, but also the seven who received prison sentences, be delivered "to a German court here immediately."

Iowa Citizen Recalls— She Taught Hoover — In One-Room School

Mrs. Stephen Sunier of Iowa City, former SUI student (class of '80), is one of the few persons who can claim the distinction of having been the teacher of a boy who later became president of the United States.

It was 65 years ago but Mrs. Sunier can still remember Herbert Clark Hoover when he was a six-year-old who sat in the back row of her class in a little West Branch schoolhouse.

He was born in 1874 in West Branch and in 1880 he entered the first grade at Mrs. Sunier's school. She was his first teacher.

What distinguishes a little boy who rises to such heights? Can you notice that he is destined for great things?

Mrs. Sunier things you can. "Yes," she says, "Bertie's mother was a Quaker preacher and his father was a blacksmith but he was always a very aristocratic looking child. There were 48 scholars in the class and Bertie was the best pupil. The best boys were put in the back seats in the class. Bertie was always a back seat pupil."

Observant Child
"He was a very observant child. He knew everything that was going on," she says.

Mrs. Sunier, who has just celebrated her ninetieth birthday, remembers fondly that "he was a smiler. He was so pleased to be in school."

The little school had a shelf in the front of the classroom where student projects were displayed. Young Hoover invariably had a large display of shells and mineral specimens there that he had collected. Mrs. Sunier likes to think that this was what lead him to follow in this line of study later at Stanford, where he was graduated as a mining engineer.

In 1881 Hoover left Iowa. He moved quite frequently after that and Mrs. Sunier lost touch with him.

It wasn't until years later that she heard of him. He was a young married man then, traveling in Asia with his wife. Mrs. Sunier picked up the evening paper one night and there on the front page was a picture of Mr. and Mrs. Hoover.

She recognized him right away.

MRS. STEPHEN SUNIER, former President Herbert Hoover's first school teacher, sits in her garden at her home on Dubuque road perusing "The Life of Herbert Hoover" to which she contributed information. The ninety-year-old Iowa City woman is an SUI alumna (class of '80).

"I said to my daughter, 'Why there's Bertie Hoover.' I was just so pleased." She was even more pleased when her favorite pupil became president.

Mr. Hoover was in the news quite often after that. Mrs. Sunier sent him a note on his next birthday. He answered it promptly, and she has heard from him every year since then.

In 1929, Mrs. Sunier and her daughter Mary went to Washington, D. C., on a trip sponsored by the Daughters of The American Revolution. President Hoover received them at the White House. Although Mrs. Sunier didn't know it then, he appointed an aide to see that her stay in Washington was pleasant.

Attend Church Together
Mrs. Sunier went to the president's church that Sunday and while the crowd of watchers were restrained from entering, the presidential aide singled her out in the crowd and took her in to sit with the president.

"I could just hear all those peo-

Mrs. T.P. Rehder Rites To Be Held Tuesday

Mrs. Rehder was the mother of Theodore M. Rehder, manager of the University dining services. Surviving are her husband; one son, Theodore M.; and two daughters, Mrs. M. Zeller of St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Robert Gearhart of Madison Wis.

Student Vesper Service To Include Discussion

A four-speaker panel discussion on the topic "In Today's Arenas" will be held at the student vesper service at 7 o'clock tonight, according to the Rev. Victor Goff, minister to students.

Speakers will be Paul Opstad, "Personal Religious Living"; William Duff "Social Action"; Robert Payne, "The Church," and Ellen George, "Vocations."

The Wesley foundation cabinet will meet in the first parlor of the Student center at 5 p.m. Supper will be served at 6:15 p.m.

Roy L. Chopek Post Sponsors Stag Dinner

A stag dinner, sponsored by Roy L. Chopek post 17 of the American Legion, will be held at 6 p. m. tomorrow in the clubrooms at the Community building, according to Carl Redenbaugh, post commander.

Lou Clark is general chairman for the evening. Bill Hughes and Bob Smith will be in charge of the dinner.

ple whispering," Mrs. Sunier says. "Then someone said, 'That's the president's first teacher'."

After that there was no end to the clubs and civic organizations in Washington who wanted Mrs. Sunier to speak at their meetings. She recalls proudly one such meeting when she gave away all her calling cards for souvenirs and then had to autograph scraps of paper torn up on the spot by souvenir hunters.

All in all, Mrs. Sunier recalls her friendship with little "Bertie" Hoover as a very happy experience.

Packer Urges Safety Course For Teachers

Harold Packer, Iowa City, chairman of the Johnson county accident prevention committee, yesterday urged the county's rural schoolteachers to take a six-hour course in accident prevention so they can teach safety as a regular school subject.

He spoke at a meeting of the Johnson County Rural Teachers' association in the county court-house.

"In my estimation an accident prevention course for students is of equal importance with the already widely taught first aid course," Packer said, "because more emphasis on prevention would mean less need for first aid."

"If enough teachers would take the course a special instructor could be brought to Iowa City," Packer explained.

Speaking as representative of the Junior Red Cross Hazel Benson, field director from St. Louis, Mo., described the co-curricular activities of the organization that can be used in rural school programs.

Mrs. Maude Broadfoot, new Johnson county child welfare director, and Ardye Woodside, child welfare consultant from Des Moines, explained that the county office is available to teachers who have problems with retarded or delinquent children.

Mrs. Elizabeth Budreau, county nurse, gave an eye-testing demonstration and urged teachers to plan a daily health program for their students.

City Librarian Joyce Nienstedt urged teachers to "stress reading for enjoyment rather than as requirement, because well-informed adults are those that learn to read for enjoyment."

Mrs. Bertha Shoquist, 536 S. Dodge street, was elected treasurer of the association at the business meeting. Other officers elected were Mrs. Dorothy Kilbourne of Lone Tree, president; Beverly Niffenegger of Kalona, vice president, and Mrs. Eleanor Secret of Downey, secretary.
