Truman Lifts Lumber Duty; Wyatt Asks Housing Loans

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—In twin extra production of nails, a prime building bottleneck. Nail producers had pledged, he said, to boost their output nearly 25 percent by December.

The president issued a proclamation declaring an emergency and authorizing Secretary of the Treasury Snyder to permit temporarily the importation of scarce timber, lumber and lumber products duty-free for housing construction.

The waiver will apply to any such products certified by Wyatt. A national housing agency spokesman said the housing chief would send a list of specified forest products to Snyder at once.

The duty-free privilege will affect mainly imports from Canada. The flow of Canadian lumber was jeopardized in July by the revaluation of the Canadian dollar. This action cut the revenue of Dominion lumber men by 10 percent on sales to the United States, and made it likely that much of the 1,000,000,000 board feet imported by this country annually would go elsewhere.

Wyatt announced a "premium payment" subsidy of $20 a ton for

Government Revokes Order Limiting Size Of Bread Loaves; Price Effect Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government cleared the way yesterday for a return of the full-sized loaf of bread, revoking the order which reduced the size of loaves 10 percent last winter to save grain for famine relief.

The effect on prices appeared uncertain. With ceilings off now, bakers would be free to charge more for a bigger loaf if they see fit to do so.

Justice Department To Study Coal Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The justice department moved into the dispute between John L. Lewis and Secretary of the Interior Krug yesterday, ordering a study to see which is right about the coal mining contract that Lewis says may be void next Friday.

With an industry-crippling walkout implied, though not announced, the United Mine Workers president contends (A) the contract is subject to reopening for negotiation of union demands and (B) if Krug doesn't show up for talks Nov. 1 it expires.

Krug says the agreement he and Lewis made last May is still in effect and its terms continue so long as the government holds possession of the mines.

Spirit of '39 Comes Back to Iowa City

Iowa City, in a spiritual coma since the days of Nile Kinnick and his 1939 Ironmen teammates, come to life last night as students and townspeople numbering an estimated 3,000 jammed the west approach to Old Capitol for a pre-Notre Dame game pep rally that rocked the town.

Down town parking space, hotel rooms and game tickets were at a premium, accurately gauging the influx of alumni from both schools and gridiron fanatics from the far corners of the nation who are expected to jam Iowa stadium this afternoon.

The parade to Iowa City continued all night, and more—including some 150 loyal Notre Dame roots who chartered airplanes for the trip from South Bend—are anticipated today.

Six special trains from Davenport, Omaha, Chicago and St. Louis will unload fans throughout the day until game-time.

An army of Quadrangle men ignited the spirit of the evening by literally taking Currier Hall by storm. Many girls living in the dormitory were wearing little

Offer Compromise In Maritime Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Federal Conciliator Frederick Livingston said last night he had offered a compromise to settle the maritime dispute between the Masters, Mates and Pilots (AFL) and Atlantic and Gulf shipowners, and that both sides promised an answer by 9:30 a.m. (CST) today.

Livingston expressed hope that his compromise would bring a settlement in the union's 26-day-old strike.

Capt. William C. Ash, co-chairman of the union negotiating group, told a reporter:

"The union is favorably impressed by Mr. Livingston's suggestion."

Frank J. Taylor, spokesman for the shipowners, declined comment.

Ask Drivers to Park On East Side of River

With 52,000 fans expected, Police Chief O. A. White asks drivers to park on the east side of the river to relieve congestion at the stadium.

Chief White listed the following special Saturday traffic regulations for Iowa City:

1. No turns will be allowed at the traffic lights in the business district.

2. Burlington street will be closed to all traffic.

3. The Benton street bridge will be closed to all traffic.

A free parking lot on Madison street between Washington and College streets, which will accommodate 250 cars, has been provided by the university and will be open all day.

52,000 to See 'Game of Week'

By CHAD BROOKS
Daily Iowan Sports Editor

Two great gridiron machines have a date with fame in Iowa stadium this afternoon when the yet untried Irish of Notre Dame invade the lair of the power boys from Iowa, with the football fortunes of both teams riding in the balance before a sell-out crowd of 52,000 spectators and a huge listening audience.

For the Irish, a win would mean a huge stride toward the mythical national championship—Notre Dame goal ever since Coach Frank Leahy returned from the service last winter.

To date the Irish have rolled up impressive victory totals over three rather weak opponents, and, although they rank as the number two team in the nation, the football world is looking toward Iowa City today as the first real proving ground for Leahy's hopes.

But for Iowa, despised Big Nine cellar-dweller a year ago, a victory would mean complete revenge for three years of war-time humiliation, it would mean a sudden return to national gridiron prominence.

And an Iowa victory would write another chapter into one of football's most astounding stories. Three times in the past, great Notre Dame teams, all well on their way to national titles, have been smashed and broken by inspired Hawkeye elevens.

Then, if the Irish have any idea of wearing this outfit down by sheer weight of numbers, Dr. Eddie will have Bob Phillips, Jim Shoaf, Russ Benda, Dick Woodward, Dave Day, Jim Cozad and Sherman Howard in reserve. And these boys are all plenty good.

There will be two marked men in the Iowa backfield—giant, Fullback Dick Hoerner and pass master Emlen Tunnell. Hoerner will be making his greatest bid for all-American honors. If he can go against the Irish, the way he did against Michigan and Indiana, large Richard will be a cinch.

While Emlen the Gremlin will be the key man in the Hawks' newly unleashed air attack. But this isn't all. Bob Smith and Bob Sullivan, a pair of power runners should be very much in evidence and Quarterback Lou King will lend a hand with the passing assignments.

The gridiron experts seem to be pretty well agreed that the Irish will win by 14 points. Leahy thinks that his team will have to be very lucky to win, Anderson says the Hawks might "upset Notre Dame" and we think it is going to be one whale of a game.

Rugged Lines
Their lines, all three of them that is, are plenty rugged. They have an all-American at left tackle in Captain George Connors, another one at center in former Seahawk George Strohmeyer and a third at right guard in big John Mastrangelo.

And the backs include such famed football names as Johnny Lujack, Jim Mello, Emlit Sitko, Terry Brennan, Gerry Cowhig and Corny Clatt—a star-studded crew that can run or pass with equal ability.

2. Burlington street will be closed to all traffic.

3. The Benton street bridge will be closed to all traffic.

A free parking lot on Madison street between Washington and College streets, which will accommodate 250 cars, has been provided by the university and will be open all day.

These Hawk forwards have already been proven under the fire of Purdue, Michigan, Nebraska and Van Tronk said.

GOOD MORNING, IOWA CITY!

Partly cloudy and cool is the forecast for today's game. Showers are predicted for tonight. Partly cloudy and colder with showers.

Soviet Delegates Drop Fight Against Airing of Veto Issue

NEW YORK, (AP)—Soviet Russia, displaying a new spirit of agreement, abandoned yesterday a battle to prevent a complete airing of the politically-hot veto question in the United Nations assembly.

Shortly afterward, the United Kingdom, first of the great powers to speak out since the general debate began Friday, attacked Russia for her "reckless use" of the veto in the security council.

Developments in the action-packed United Nations day were:

1. Soviet Russia withdrew all opposition in the assembly's steering committee to five items proposed for the agenda, three of them affecting the veto right of the five great powers.

The members of the powerful 14-men steering committee obviously were cheered by the attitude of conciliation taken by Russia and the United States in the committee. They quickly voted to recommend that the assembly place the items affecting the veto on the agenda, which the committee is expected to submit next week at the end of the general debate.

Nevertheless the debate already was in the general discussions on the floor in which any nation can talk about any subject, regardless of agenda.

Philip Noel-Baker, British air secretary and chief delegate, delivered a broad policy declaration in his address.

Noel-Baker appealed to "our Soviet colleagues" to help examine "what has happened in the council and to agree on measures by which we can make a new and better start."

Noel-Baker joined those who favor a full discussion of the question.

India Moslems Enter Interim Government

NEW DELHI, (AP)—The Moslem League last night entered the interim government, joining with the All-India Congress party in the achieving of Indian independence. Abatement of the bitter Moslem-Hindu strife which has wracked the country may be one of the first tangible results.

Viceroy Lord Wavell announced the allotment of ministries in the 14-man coalition government, disclosing that the rival All-India Congress and Moslem League had reached a compromise on an issue which had threatened the government with dissolution.

That the Hindu-Moslem clashes were by no means over, however, was reflected in reports last night from Calcutta, where 11 persons were reported killed in new outbreaks.

Chinese Advance

NANKING (AP)—Chinese dispatches yesterday reported that government forces seeking to isolate the Chinese Communists in southern Manchuria had smashed to within 30 miles of Antung, on the Korean border, while another column captured Liaoyang, 65 miles south of Mukden.

3,000 Turn Out for Pep Rally

THE BEAUTY IN the above picture is "Lena the Hyena," introduced at last night's pep rally as "Queen of Notre Dame." Lena (alias A. J. Allenworth, A2 of Des Moines) was presented as a loyal Irish rooter from South Bend, Ind.

MORE THAN 3,000 fans turned out for the Tailfeathers-sponsored pep rally held on the west front of Old Capitol last night. Members of the famed 1921 team were introduced to the crowd by Glenn Devine, assistant football coach. Six candidates for Notre Dame "queen" and the "queen" herself were presented at the rally. E. G. (Dad) Schroeder, head of the athletic department, spoke to the crowd.

Russia—For or Against?

(Reprinted from The Daily Iowan of July 13, 1946)

Even here in Iowa where the great Republican heritage has passed to each succeeding generation since it was forged on the issue of slavery in 1860, it is difficult to find anyone who says he is against everything the Democrats ever did. Nor is it easier to find in the south, a section which has accepted Andrew Jackson's party as its birthright, anyone who has on every occasion favored the present administration, or its predecessor.

The reason is, obviously, that the voting public thinks on the basis of separate issues.

Strange to say, this admirable perspective does not carry over into international politics.

As we have observed the first participation of the Soviet Union in world affairs in its hard-won position as one of the Big Four, we have asked ourselves the question: "Russia: for or against?"

And in less than a year after the end of our active military alliance with the Soviet Union we have taken sides: for or against.

There is a historical basis for taking an early stand regarding the policies of a foreign country. Because this basis was within our lifetime, because we know now that we should have taken a stand when Japan attacked Manchuria, that we should have taken a stand when Italy subjugated Ethiopia, that we should have taken a stand when Hitler marched into Czechoslovakia, we have become stand conscious that we now find ourselves taking a militant stand with only the slightest provocation.

But we do ourselves, as citizens of the world, a great injustice. Having committed ourselves we can no longer be objective. Having taken a stand we are no longer capable of our responsibility to evaluate each issue.

When Gromyko invokes the veto we must say, "That is what he should do because the Russians do no wrong." Or, "He did wrong because he is from Russia." We cannot say, "In the light of my total knowledge on the issue, was he justified in this case?" We cannot ask ourselves this question because we have already picked a blanket answer months ago.

But the danger that grows out of this unequivocal attitude is even more pernicious than the way in which we involved ourselves in it. Facing each new issue we see only the good or only the bad (for there is certainly good and bad in each international issue), since we must see only our side to give our answer. Thus we become more deeply entrenched in the position which we too hurriedly arrived at. We say, quite sincerely, "I knew I was right in the first place."

We read that Gromyko vetoed an 8-2 decision by the security council that a previous veto of his was out of order. If we are on the for side we say, "That is his right," without recognizing the inherent danger in the extension of this precedent.

We read that Molotov suggested the return of the Dodecanese to Greece. If we are on the against side we say with deep suspicion, "He's got some trick up his sleeve," failing to note the significant relaxing of the Soviet interest in control of the Dardanelles.

Now is the time to back up and start anew on the question of Russia. It is an unthinkable that her policies could all be good or all be bad as it is that the Republicans could always be right or always be wrong.

It would avoid being witnesses to the destruction of humanity in this atomic age we must inform ourselves fully, and only then evaluate fairly.

If we would face our liability, as citizens of the world, for the survival of the world, we must wash all prejudice from our minds, and not jump at conclusions.

Airport, Community Grow Together

Because Iowa City does have such a fine airport for a city of its size, people are inclined to say that "our airport is plenty good enough" and let it go at that.

But is our airport as good as it should be?

Iowa City is a rapidly-growing community. The chamber of commerce has received many requests for information concerning business and industrial opportunities here, and expansion and enlargement is very definitely indicated. Under these circumstances, the municipal airport should be a vital concern.

Mayor Wilber J. Teeters summed it up recently when he said, "This city is going to grow and the airport is going to be a mighty big factor."

Well, the fact of the matter is Iowa City may have an even better airport in the not too distant future.

The airport today has three runways long enough to handle the largest four-engine commercial planes. The runways were completed last September under a federal airport aid plan.

Our airport today has three runways long enough to handle homing beams. The Chicago-Omaha and Minneapolis-St. Louis beams go over Iowa City, and though this is strictly a matter of coincidence, a lot of traffic is charted over this area.

Two United Air Lines flights stop at Iowa City daily. When field lights, which are due to be installed in April, are put in, at least two more flights a day will be scheduled here. In fact, R. V. Shrader, United Air Lines executive here, claims that there are flights passing over the community every night that could easily be included in the schedule if the field were equipped with night lights.

The next thing planned for installation are runway homing beams. The airport now has the advantage of having the two "H" type beams, which guide the pilot into the airport but do not provide for other than visual landing after the plane is in the immediate vicinity of the runway.

When runway homing beams are installed, pilots will be able to bring in their planes even though they can't see the runways.

No definite date has been given for the installation of the new homing beams, but federal engineers have already surveyed the field in preparation for them.

Even without the beams only 11 flights out of a total of 416 have been unable to land here because of poor visibility since last April 1.

The landing lights and the runway homing beams will go a long way toward making Iowa City's airport exceptional, but there is one more point in the airport's favor. The original plans for the local field called for parallel runways; this means that, should traffic warrant it, additional runways could be constructed parallel to the present ones.

Although most of these plans are still in the formulation stage, it seems correct to predict that Iowa City will soon have one of the finest small airports in the country. This will not only make it possible for the community to grow and expand; it will make it probable that such will be the case.

SUI Doctors Salvage Part of—

No. 2 Nazi's Record Collection

By WAYNE SCHAKEL

The mystery of Martin Bormann, who may have perished in the rubble of a Berlin bunker with his leader, Adolf Hitler, may never be solved, but two University hospital doctors have made it possible for Iowa Citians to know something about the No. 2 Nazi.

Dr. Jess T. Schwidde, resident in neurology, and Dr. James McGreevey, resident in medicine at the hospital salvaged part of the huge collection of phonograph records which Bormann had at his house in Adolf Hitler's hide-out resort at Berchtesgaden, Germany.

Dr. McGreevey was with the medical battalion of the third army division from its first action at Casablanca to the end of the war, and Dr. Schwidde joined the unit early in the Italian campaign.

At the war's end they were at Salzburg, Germany, and Dr. Schwidde made a trip to nearby Berchtesgaden to satisfy his curiosity about Hitler's "impregnable fortress."

Berchtesgaden was nothing like a medieval castle, as some have thought, but was a group of strongly fortified houses belonging to Hitler, Goering, Goebels and Bormann, situated half-way up a mountain, with barracks for several thousand troops comfortably nearby.

In the course of his inspection, Dr. Schwidde entered a tunnel connecting the houses, and in a room just off the corridor, 88 steps below the ground floor of Bormann's house, he found a 20-foot shelf stacked five rows high with albums of phonograph records.

Unlike property in any of the houses, this had been untouched by the hundreds of troops who had preceded him there.

James D. White's Interpreting The News...

(AP) — International head-scratching—and possible fire-works—can be looked for when the "forgotten kingdom" is remembered.

The "forgotten kingdom" refers to the strategic chain of islands lying between Formosa and Japan. The biggest is Okinawa.

Typhoon-swept and otherwise no great shakes except as guardians of the China sea, these islands are known as the Luchus, or Loochoos—or, as the Japanese mispronounced them, the Ryukyu.

Both their own past and the allied agreements affecting them are vague if not ambiguous. If you can figure out who they belong to, or should belong to, someone is likely to disagree. Here is why:

The Cairo declaration of 1943 said Japan was to be stripped of her aggression-won gains but did not mention the Loochoos specifically.

The Potsdam surrender terms which Japan accepted said Japan's sovereignty would be limited to the four main home islands, "and such minor islands as we (the Allies) determine."

So the question looks somewhat open, but don't confuse it with former Japanese mandates. The Loochoos never were mandated.

Twice the Japanese won them by aggression. First time was in the early 17th century when they asked the Loochoos king to help out in an invasion of Korea. He refused, possibly because he had been paying tribute to China for more than 300 years. Angered, the Japanese kidnaped him and set him free some years later only after he acknowledged Japanese suzerainty and forced over some tribute. To be on the safe side he continued paying tribute to China too.

More than 200 years later, in 1879, the Japanese came again, dethroned the king, and made a Japanese prefecture out of the "Okinawa archipelago." China objected, and at a conference refused a Japanese offer to divide the islands. China apparently has made no further formal claims to the islands since losing Formosa to Japan in the war of 1895.

Racially, the Loochoos are believed to be related to the Japanese. After 80 years in the empire they speak Japanese, anyway. There are about 600,000 of them—fishermen, farmers, sulfur miners, and lacquer workers—all now under United States military government.

The announced American policy for former Japanese mandates is to stay there until United Nations trusteeship questions are settled.

But the Loochoos were part of the Japanese empire, like Korea.

PART OF THE record collection of Martin Bormann, No. 2 Nazi, was sent back to the United States by two university hospital doctors. Here the doctors, Dr. Jame McGreevey (in white), of 8 Triangle place, and Dr. Jess T. Schwidde, 28 Highland drive, inspect some of the records with Mrs. Schwidde.

Bormann), was neatly typewritten and pasted onto each volume.

"I felt sort of awe-stricken," Dr. Schwidde recalled, "and left without bothering them."

But a few days later, he returned with Dr. McGreevey and they found that many of the records had been removed; so they gathered up a dozen albums apiece, cleared them with division intelligence, and sent them home.

Only about three records were broken in either shipment, and the doctors now have one of the few traces of the man who was reported to have Hitler's own approval as successor to the Nazi realm.

"Even the German people knew very little about the man," Dr. Schwidde reported.

However, the race principles Bormann may have felt as a Nazi was not widened in his taste in music. There were compositions by Italian, German, Russian and American composers, and a lot of German folk songs." Dr. Schwidde added. "The collection was very complete."

Among the collection were Irving Berlin's "Always," Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite," and Rudolph Friml's "Donkey Serenade" and "Sympathy."

But some German nationalistic spirit is shown in Bormann's choice of the "Old Prussian Army March," another march called "Against Britain and France" and, out of Germany's history, a folk song glorifying the war dead in "The Dead of Flanders."

They even saw the loving cup which "Master of the Hunt" Goering gave himself after a hunting expedition.

Martin Bormann loomed large in the inner circle of the Nazi party, but as far as the doctors know, the records and a rubble of once-beautiful Cape Cod-like architecture in Berchtesgaden are all that remain of the mystery man of the third Reich.

And that's all right. We hope the system hasn't changed. The Iowan is in a sense a laboratory newspaper, designed to give aspiring journalists of all shades of temperament and philosophy an opportunity to learn, by practice, how to express themselves clearly and honestly. It hardly could expect to do a good job of that if it tried to cram all its writers of opinion into a prefabricated mold. They wouldn't be worth their salt later if it did.

If any disproportionate number of student journalists are deeply impressed by the soundness of the CIO-PAC political line, we wouldn't know.

We didn't see a complete report on the Martin speech and we don't have time to follow The Iowan's editorial policies as closely as we wish we did.

According to the AP story the charge was based on the contention that The Iowan's policies "frequently follow the CIO-PAC political line." We don't know whether they do or not, but we wouldn't say that makes them unfair even if they do. Misguided or undiscerning, maybe, but hardly unfair.

An editorial policy is fair enough, in our school of journalism, if it doesn't deliberately distort facts and if it lets the readers know what the writers honestly think. We think some of the items in the CIO-PAC political line are all right and some of them are all wet. We'd hate to think we were being unfair to express our opinions on them because the CIO-PAC or anybody else happened to agree or disagree with us.

One thing we do know is that if The Daily Iowan's editorial policies follow any well-defined line at all there has been a revolutionary change in the system since the days when we were on the staff down there. In those days most of the editors were written.

We can think of one possible reason why they might. Perhaps they resent the tendency of a good many Republican politicians in Iowa to think of every newspaper as a G.O.P. house organ and to feel that it has strayed from grace or gone wacky in the noodle department if it implies that any Republican might be somewhat short of perfect. Tom Martin is too smart to indulge in any such nonsense, but there are others who aren't.

Lawrence arrangements are scored in an unusual manner when compared to the dance instrumentalities of most bands. His seven man reed section can apply five saxes, oboe, clarinets and bassoon all blending with the French horn, three trombones and three trumpets. Result: very easy-to-listen-to music and very danceable music. Hand-in-hand with the melodic arrangements, the band features the smooth vocal work of Rosalind Patton and Jack Hunter. Lawrence and his band are record for Columbia.

WSU Students in the editorial writing classes—a heterogeneous crew if you ever saw one—and the editor frequently was hard put to keep the paper on the same side of any issue from one day to the next.

Having had some newspaper experience myself on the Daily Yankton Press and Dakotan, a conservative paper, I know how much courage it takes to speak the truth against "vested interests" and "powers" that can cause you much trouble. I think the editors in the Daily Iowan are the best part of the paper.

May the editors of The Daily Iowan continue to express liberal views in a section where such a voice is sorely needed.

16-Year-Old Boy to Be Soloist At SUI Symphony Concert

Mitchell Andrews, 16-year-old piano soloist in the university symphony concert next Wednesday at 8 p.m. is the youngest soloist ever to perform with the orchestra, Prof. Philip Greeley Clapp, head of the music department, said yesterday.

Andrews will play Beethoven's fourth piano concerto in G major, as a part of the first of six concerts to be presented during the school year at Iowa Union. The remainder of the program will consist of Bach's "Suite in D" and the Glazunov fifth symphony in B-flat.

A senior at University high school, Andrews' entire musical training has been in Iowa City. The young pianist began his study with Esther Payne Muenzer, former Iowa City pianist, and for the last four years has studied piano with Prof. Addison Alspach in the university music department.

Andrews has appeared frequently before Iowa City audiences as solo pianist, accompanist, and in chamber music recitals, particularly with faculty members and advanced students of the music department.

This year he is principal contrabass player with the university symphony orchestra.

Croft to Address Missouri Meetings

Prof. H. O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department, left last night for Missouri where he will attend engineering meetings at Rolla and St. Louis.

At Rolla, the Missouri section of the American Society for Engineering Education will meet today and tomorrow at the Missouri School of Mines. Professor Croft will attend as president of the national organization and will speak before educators attending the meeting.

He will also speak at the St. Louis meeting of the National Society of Boards of Engineering Examiners, where problems of engineers will be discussed.

Pastor Dance Tickets For Nov. 15 Available To Quad Residents Only

Tickets to the Quadrangle dance may be purchased by Quadrangle men only, it was announced yesterday by Robert Carter, E2 of Yonkers, N. Y., publicity chairman.

Tony Pastor and his orchestra will play for the Thanksgiving dance, which will be held Friday, Nov. 15, from 8:30 to 12 midnight in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

A senior at University high school, Andrews' entire musical training has been in Iowa City. The young pianist began his study with Esther Payne Muenzer, former Iowa City pianist, and for the last four years has studied piano with Prof. Addison Alspach in the university music department.

Alpha Phi Omega To Hold Conclave

Omicron chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, will be host to other Iowa chapters of the fraternity at a state convention at the University of Iowa in late November or early December, Tom Neenan, A4 of Cedar Rapids, announced yesterday.

Chapters that will attend include Omega at Drake university; Xi at Iowa State college; Theta Epsilon at Iowa State Teachers' college, and a chapter now being organized at Coe college.

Pledging ceremonies of the fraternity will take place Nov. 7, it was decided at an executive council meeting Thursday night. Carroll Schneider, E4 of West, was appointed chairman of a committee to outline a program of activities for the pledge class.

Schneider's committee members are Milo Brant, G of Panora; Bob Payne, A4 of Oelwein, and Conrad Wurtz, A3 of Downers Grove, Ill.

Daily visits to university students in University hospital will be made again this year by members of the local chapter. Making the visits next week will be John Wickenkamp, E3 of Sigourney, tomorrow; Bob Sinnett, A3 of Muscatine, Tuesday; Brandt, Wednesday; Neenan, Thursday; Wesley Carr, E3 of Chicago, Friday, and Wurtz, Saturday.

Members of the commission who made the appraisal were H. Steve Hamilton, Dewey R. Swanson, M. W. Davis, Joseph C. Coufal, J. M. Zenisek and A. L. Westcott.

Eugene Leeney Charged In Hit-and-Run Case

Eugene Leeney, 19, Iowa City, yesterday was charged in police court with leaving the scene of an accident Monday night when the car he was driving sideswiped a car driven by Joe Leonard, Solon farmer, about six miles north of Iowa City on highway 261.

Police Judge John Knox took the case under advisement.

Don M. Crane, who drove Leeney's car away from the scene of the collision, will appear in police court Monday on a charge of reckless driving, Judge Knox said.

TO WED
IN DEC.

MR. AND MRS. DOREN G. VAN ZILE of Chicago, Ill., announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Polly, to Dr. Richard M. Moore, son of Mrs. Fred Moore of Des Moines. The ceremony is to be performed in the Second Presbyterian Church in Bloomington, Ill., December 21. The bride is a graduate of the University of Iowa school of nursing. The bridegroom graduated from Iowa State College at Ames where he was affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, and graduated from the University of Iowa medical school where he was a member of Nu Sigma Nu, medical fraternity. The couple will live in Des Moines, where Dr. Moore is an intern in the Iowa Methodist Hospital.

University Club Plans Supper at Iowa Union

The University club will hold a pot luck supper at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the university clubrooms at Iowa Union. Following the supper will be partner bridge.

The chairman, Mrs. Lloyd Howell, who will be assisted by Mrs. Thomas Caywood and Mrs. Randolph Petty.

Members are asked to bring sandwiches, a covered dish, and their own table service.

To Discuss Repatriation

Capt. James G. Dunton, public relations officer for the Kansas City quartermaster depot, will discuss the government's repatriation plans at the Iowa Newspaper conference to be held here Nov. 1 and 2.

A dance for students unable to obtain tickets to the Homecoming dance will be sponsored by a group of university students Friday night from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight at the Topflight ballroom.

Larry Hamre, E3 of Des Moines, representative of the students sponsoring the dance, said yesterday, "The arrangement is merely a free and private enterprise engaged in by students, and it is not in competition with the university."

He further stated that it should serve as a supplement to the university dance, "since the demand for tickets to the Homecoming dance will be greater than the accommodations at the Union can provide."

Dr. Earl E. Harper, director of Fine Arts, said the function met with his approval as a private enterprise, but it is not a university function, or in collaboration with the university in any way.

Hamre, said the dances would be held every Friday night at the Topflight ballroom and admission prices would be reduced if the first dance proved successful.

Tickets, costing 75 cents each, will go on sale at 7 o'clock Monday morning at Whetstone's Drug store and Racine's Cigar store.

Rex Muller and his 9-piece all-student orchestra will furnish music for the dance Friday night.

Students may come as couples or stag.

Industry Delegates Study Quality Control; Learn Scientific Tips for Mass Production

Representatives from 34 industries in states from Connecticut to Kansas learned the latest developments in problems of quality control by statistical methods at a training course held by the university Oct. 15 through Thursday.

"Many of the participating manufacturing firms have reported large reductions in inspection personnel and wasted materials as a result of applying techniques learned at the Iowa conferences," Dean F. M. Dawson of the college of engineering, chairman of the course program, declared yesterday.

Statistical quality control is a scientific approach to the problem of increasing the accuracy of mass-production manufacturing processes. The methods discussed at the Iowa training courses have been applied by a large number of firms using a wide variety of production methods.

Full-time instructors for the courses were Prof. Lloyd Knowler and Prof. Allen T. Craig, both of the mathematics department; Prof. John A. Henry, mechanical engineering department, University of Illinois; Prof. Mason E. Wescott, Northwestern University, and Prof. Irving W. Burr, Purdue University.

Commenting on the success of the courses, Dean Dawson said, "One of the encouraging things about them is that many of the companies that have sent representatives before continue to send them."

Explaining that the courses are used by both small and large industries, Dean Dawson pointed out that companies with as few as six employees have sent representatives.

According to Dean Dawson most emphasis was placed on inspection methods when statistical methods were first employed, but midwestern schools, particularly the University of Iowa, have stressed production, design and specifications with satisfactory results.

Quality control, as the university emphasizes it, depends primarily on controlling final production accuracy by testing statistically.

Bieglow Elected Head Of WSU Engineers At Regular Meeting

Lester Bieglow of Iowa City was elected president of the WSU Broadcast Engineers at their regular semi-monthly meeting Wednesday night.

Derik Vogel, E4 of Waterloo, was elected vice-president and Bill Hubbard, E4 of Iowa City, secretary-treasurer.

The group was formed to promote a better understanding of radio techniques and procedures through group discussion and through reports on advancement from guest speakers in the field of radio engineering.

LET'S DO IT AGAIN!

"THE ONE"

On the historic date of November 11, 1939 before 46,000 fans in the Iowa Stadium, the Iowa Ironmen, with Eddie Judd in his first year as coach, were rolling against Notre Dame. Notre Dame had a 7-game winning streak, Iowa had lost only to Michigan—a shade which reflects a similar light upon the hard-hitting Iowa team this year.

It was the famous number 24 in action that year, Nile Kinnick, inspirational leader of the Hawks who will always be remembered. With three minutes to play in the second quarter, the Irish tried to run the ball down the end zone. Steve Sitko fumbled as he was hit on the 4-yard line and Iowa recovered. Kinnick quickly switched from left halfback to right, found a hole and scored, afterwards dropping a goal to make it 7-0 at the half.

In the final period, with about 14 minutes to play, Notre Dame marched from the 50 to the 6-yard line in six plays and Milt Piepel scored the touchdown. The goal was missed by Lou Zontini and Notre Dame panted but couldn't do any damage as time ran out. Iowa's defense was aided by Kinnick's third punt to the Notre Dame 7 with two minutes to play. The rest is history.

Little Hawks Roll in Final Period for 12-6 Victory

First Add: Sports

By Chad Brooks

It's taken five weeks to do it but the football experts—those boys who sit up nights studying the form sheets—have finally edged ahead of "Mr. Average Fan" in this business of predicting football winners, but it's been one whale of a battle and the lead is still very slim.

It seems that the experts have connected 17 times in 25 attempts (with one tie), while the average fan, a man on the street selected each week, has been right 16 times. Doesn't prove an awful lot does it?

But this week we experts are really going to pull away. We disagree on four of the five games—which certainly will stretch our lead to five full games by Sunday.

The "average fan" for this week is Dick Lattin, a graduate student in the school of education, who talked as if he knew what this football game was all about.

THE PREDICTION

Lattin
Ohio State over Minnesota
Indiana over Nebraska
Southern Cal over Stanford
Washington over California
Iowa over Notre Dame

For the rest of the games—Michigan over Illinois, Northwestern over College of Pacific, Purdue over Pittsburg, Oklahoma over Iowa State, Tulsa over Kansa, Missouri over SMU, Oklahoma A and M over TCU, Arizona over Marquette, Brown over Boston, Penn State over Colgate Columbia over Dartmouth, Fordham over King's Point, Harvard over Holy Cross.

Cornell over Princeton, Syracuse over West Virginia, Army over Duke, Yale over Coast Guard, Georgia Tech over Auburn, Alabama over Kentucky, North Carolina over Florida, Georgia over Furman, LSU over Vanedrbilt, Tulane over Mississippi State, Arkansas over Mississippi.

Tennessee over Wake Forest, Colorado over New Mexico, Texas Tech over Denver, Utah over Wyoming, Texas A and M over Baylor, Texas over Rice, Oregon over Idaho, Oregon State over Washington State, UCLA over Santa Clara, Michigan State over Cincinnati and Iowa Teachers over Morningside.

Dodgers Won't Give Dressen a Release

BROOKLYN, (AP) — President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday refused to accept Charley Dressen's resignation as coach of the National team:

"Dressen and I had a conference last Sept. 16 in which we agreed that Charley was to remain as a coach for the next two years."

In a statement regarding Dressen's announcement Friday to the effect that he had severed his connection with the Dodgers, Rickey said:

"I didn't take Franklin long to tie the count. John Phelan grabbed the Iowa City kick off and ran it back 15 yards to his own 20. Then minutes later, after an 80 yard march, Phelan plunged four yards with the tying points. The conversion try went wide.

Iowa City came right back with Fryauf again the scorer on a pass from Jimmy Sangster that carried 60 yards. Fryauf ran the kickoff 30 yards to the Iowa City 40. Two passes fell incomplete but then the pay off punch occurred.

Iowa City threatened twice in the first half but a tough Franklin defense stopped both efforts short of the goal.

Chick Evans recovered a Franklin fumble after the opening kickoff on the hosts 36 yard line. Iowa City posted a first down on the 18 four plays later but here Franklin stiffened and four plays went to no avail.

In the second period the Little Hawks grabbed a desperate Franklin aerial and ran it to the Iowa City 41. Sangster connected to Fryauf on the 18 but then four passes fell incomplete and the second threat was ended.

Franklin kept out of trouble in the first half mainly on the strength of John Ferguson's punting. Twice he booted long kicks—one which was good for 65 yards—to set Iowa City back.

Fryauf was the offensive star of the tilt and his two touchdowns ran his season's point total to 72 which establishes him as the top halfback in the state.

Evans was the invaders defensive star but was overshadowed by the play of ends Bob Cohrs and Bob Hoff of Franklin. Time after time the two stopped plays that seemingly were off for pay dirt.

Pitt Meets Purdue

PITTSBURG, (AP)—Pitt's Panthers, meeting Purdue here today, will strive to end an 18-game losing streak to Big Nine football foes—but the Boilermakers are 13-point favorites to spoil the effort.

Judge Gaffney Assigns Jury To Fall Court

Judge James P. Gaffney made the second jury assignment for the September court term yesterday and set the jury appearance for 10 a.m., Nov. 7.

Two civil and two criminal cases are listed for trial. Marcelia P. Kearns is suing William A. Hannah for $1,128 damages and injuries that resulted from an automobile collision June 27. In a counter-claim Hannah asks judgment for $2,461.19.

Jeannette Tofting is asking judgment amounting to $3,375 against Ervin Jacobs and Clarence Swanson for injuries to herself and her husband and damage to their car that resulted from a collision Feb. 13.

Stanley L. Johnson will be tried on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. He was arrested by police after an automobile collision Sept. 9 on highway 21 south of Iowa City.

Dean Lantz will appear in court on a larceny charge. County Atty. Jack C. White filed information against Lantz after a reported theft of $12 from the Coryell Gas station in Iowa City Aug. 5.

Boy, 3, Injured in Fall From Moving Automobile

Charles Kilcoin, 3, Reynolds, Ill., yesterday suffered a head bruise and cut when, according to a witness, he fell out of the car in which he was riding about 10 miles east of Iowa City on high-way 6.

The injured boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kilcoin of Reynolds, took him to Mercy hospital where his condition was reported "good." X-rays will be taken to determine possible internal injuries, the hospital said.

Jobs Available

A number of jobs are available to students who wish to work at yard cleaning, window washing, fitting in storm windows and similar work, according to R. L. Ballantyne, manager of student employment at the office of student affairs. Students may contact Ballantyne at the office of student affairs or phone Ext. 274.

SUI Student Fellowship Plans Debate Tomorrow On I.C. Barber Shops

A debate on the subject: "Resolved, that legal action against racial discrimination in barber shops is justifiable" will be held by the United Student Fellowship in the parlors of the Congregational church at 7 p.m. Tuesday, according to Richard Sweitzer of that office. Thursday was the deadline for application from villagers now in residence.

Families who move into the villages hereafter may receive their rent rate on this same basis by making proper application to the office of student affairs, Sweitzer said. Students now in residence whose incomes are reduced in the future may apply at student affairs for a lowered rent rate if the decreased income is sufficient to warrant a change in rent rate.

Under FPFA provisions all rent rates must be reviewed each six months. Students who have received the present reduction will have to re-apply at the end of March of 1947.

Two Autos Sideswipe, Damaged South of Here

Two automobiles were damaged yesterday about 12:30 p.m. when they sideswiped on highway 218 south of Iowa City.

Drivers of the cars were Robert E. McGonigle of Odebolt and Carl Paintin of Oxford. Damage to the McGonigle car was estimated at $80 and to the Paintin car at $75.

Divorce Granted

Myra H. Tompkins was granted a divorce yesterday from Lamar I. Tompkins by Judge James P. Gaffney in district court. She charged desertion.

She was given alimony and custody of three children. Arthur O. Leff was her attorney.

Trailer Rent Reduced for 80

Dean C. Woody Thompson of the office of student affairs has approved 80 reductions in rent for Hawkeye and Riverdale villagers under the new FPFA rent based-on-income policy, according to Richard Sweitzer of that office. Thursday was the deadline for application from villagers now in residence.

Families who move into the villages hereafter may receive their rent rate on this same basis by making proper application to the office of student affairs, Sweitzer said. Students now in residence whose incomes are reduced in the future may apply at student affairs for a lowered rent rate if the decreased income is sufficient to warrant a change in rent rate.

Under FPFA provisions all rent rates must be reviewed each six months. Students who have received the present reduction will have to re-apply at the end of March of 1947.

Doctors to Begin Second Conference

Iowa doctors will begin the second in a series of monthly clinical conferences at University hospitals Monday, according to Dean Ewen MacEwen of the college of medicine.

Begun this fall, the conference series is a new service extended to practicing physicians in Iowa by the division of postgraduate studies and the colleges of medicine, and will be presented monthly except for December, January and February.

Clinics and roundtable discussions in such fields as surgery, obstetrics, psychiatry, orthopedics and internal medicine are scheduled for the week-long conference.
