Judge Chides Lewis for Not Halting Strike

Union Lawyers Term Delay Order Illegal

Goldsborough to Make Decision Tomorrow, On Motion to Dismiss

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first day of John L. Lewis' historic contempt of court trial ended yesterday with Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough rebuking Lewis for not flagging down the nation-wide soft coal strike pending a decision on the merits of the controversy.

With Lewis' lawyers contending that Goldsborough's anti-strike restraining order was an illegal decree calling for "involuntary servitude," Goldsborough said:

"The court thinks there is no basis for misunderstanding. To delay action for ten days would not have injured the union. But the union saw fit not to allow the maintenance of the status quo."

The judge then adjourned court until tomorrow. At that time, he announced, he will make his decision on Lewis' motion to dismiss the contempt citation, issued after Lewis ignored a restraining order designed to head off "the great strike."

Goldsborough also announced that he will decide Friday, or later, whether the Norris-LaGuardia act curbing the use of injunctions in labor disputes has any bearing on the case. Lewis' attorneys argued that the restraining order was invalid under the act.

In a brief verbal byplay, Goldsborough made a remark which some of the attorneys at first interpreted as meaning that Lewis was sure to escape a jail sentence even if adjudged contemptuous.

But examination of the official transcript which became available later showed that there was a big "if" in the remarks.

The judge, who had taken the position that even if the Norris-LaGuardia act applies to the case, Lewis should have obeyed the restraining order, said:

"I suspect that if the Norris-LaGuardia act applies . . . it might be a contempt, but I would not imagine the punishment would very seriously interfere with anybody's comfort."

This, many lawyers agreed, meant that a jail sentence was out if the judge should decide that the anti-judgment act is applicable. But if he should side with government lawyers and determine that it has nothing to do with the case, the possibility of jail as well as fines remained.

Legal Battle

The opening day of the trial was largely a battle of legal wits. With Lewis silently listening, his lawyers quoted law by the hour to prove that the United Mine Workers' chief was immune from anti-strike orders.

But Goldsborough, in obvious disagreement, declared that society was trying to protect itself "from cold and hunger and misery and economic disintegration."

Jury Selection Delayed

Selection of a jury—which Goldsborough disclosed may have full conviction-or-acquittal powers rather than be simply advisory—was delayed while counsel argued a defense motion to dismiss the contempt citation.

Led by Joseph A. Padway, gray-haired general counsel for the American Federation of Labor, Lewis' battery of counsel contended that the case should be dismissed under the Norris-LaGuardia act which forbids injunctive processes in labor disputes.

But Goldsborough remarked that he didn't think it made any difference, so far as the contempt case is involved, whether this act applies to the soft coal case or not.

Subjects Soviet Deal for Atom Weapon Check

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Nations political committee approved a world-wide census yesterday and decried repeated Russian threats to have atomic and jet weapons accounted in inventory of forces.

The committee originally put the idea of a count before the United States. But the plan which came from a tumultuous five-day 40-minute meeting, after days of debate, virtually amended "made in Britain."

The crisis came on a British motion to enlarge Russia's original list which had called only for troops on alien lands. British won, 40 to 10, with abstentions, on their move to rate domestic forces as well, and Russia voted against front reports while China, India and the United States together for the overall inventory of troops.

The final vote of the whole committee is still to be made, but the result apparently follows the lineup shown in successive roll calls yesterday.

The committee surprised the committee morning with a proposal that the central assembly recommend United Nations members have armed forces stationed on territory of other members, except areas covered by the United States charter, "withdraw them out delay."

The United States contended it had time to study this proposal.

Other decisions taken:

1. Britain won a declaration stating the belief of the committee that troop report and arms limitation, proposed separately by Soviet Russia, were part of the same question.

2. The British won on their amendment to the effect that as the "first step" in the study of disarmament, the United Nations must submit troop information specified in the resolution.

3. The committee unanimously approved sections calling for reports on troops in alien non-enemy lands, as originally proposed by Russia, and on former enemy soil, as accepted by Russia at the suggestion of the United States.

4. The committee adopted the British amendment, supported by the United States with vigorous words, for the domestic troop count also.

Close to 'Hideous Civil War'

LONDON (AP)—The grim warning that India stood on the brink of one of history's "most hideous civil wars" was sounded yesterday as the British government began a 14-day race against time to break the Hindu-Moslem deadlock over the subcontinent's independence program.

The British government's entire plan for Indian independence was disclosed to be at stake in the eleventh hour summons to Lord Wavell, the viceroy, and to Indian party leaders to London for a discussion of the impasse. An authoritative informant said if the deadlock continued it was probable the entire plan would have to be scrapped.

Soon after an official source said Britain's call to the viceroy and Indian leaders was a bid to avert "civil war," the Duke of Devonshire, former undersecretary of state for India, told a conservative party gathering that the four-months rioting in India was "the beginning of one of the most hideous civil wars in all history."

Lord Pethick-Lawrence, secretary of state for India, told the House of Lords that 6,700 violent deaths in communal rioting have taken place since the interim government took office Sept. 2.

India's "D-Day" is Dec. 9, when the constituent assembly, provided in the British plan, is scheduled to meet. The Moslem league, which first accepted then rejected the plan because it fears it would mean the eclipse of its dream of an independent Moslem state called Pakistan, brought about the present crisis by refusing to participate in the constitution-writing convention.

Already, however, the British government's efforts to eliminate all difficulties in the way of Moslem participation by calling Indian leaders together in London appeared partially defeated.

Only Moslem league President Mahomed Ali Jinnah and the league Secretary Liaquat Ali Khan will accompany Lord Wavell when he leaves New Delhi for London Saturday, New Delhi dispatches said.

The London India office confirmed New Delhi dispatches which said the congress party leaders and Sikh representatives had formally declined the invitation to come to London, because they felt their presence would serve no purpose, and apparently because they feared new negotiations might result in concessions to the Moslems.

New Delhi dispatches said the congress party, which leads the new interim government, would never participate in new negotiations, and that a mass resignation of congress ministers would follow any concessions made to Jinnah.

Chicago Kills 1, Injures 46

CHICAGO (AP)—A violent explosion in a north side warehouse showered a passing street car with bricks and other debris yesterday, killing one person, injuring 46 others and causing damage estimated between $50,000 and $100,000.

The blast flattened a one story brick building occupied by the Boxer Tobacco house at 2456 N. Ashland avenue, tore off window frames and damaged the interior of a tavern across the street and broke windows in buildings in a three-block radius. Flames swept through the wrecked warehouse and destroyed an adjoining two-story residence.

Three Hawkeye Gridders to Guard Patton

Three university football players, Roger Kane, Bob Geigel and Jack Scanlan, were made sheriff's deputies yesterday to guard William W. Patton, charged with fatally stabbing Ernest R. Brown, Kansas City, Mo., early Sunday.

The men began eight-hour shifts yesterday in the University hospital room where Patton is recovering from chest wounds witnesses said he suffered in a struggle with Brown. They relieved an Iowa City policeman who Police Chief Ollie White said couldn't be spared from regular duty.

Scanlan, a junior from Chicago, played end on the Iowa football team in 1942. Kane, junior from Mundelein, Ill., and Geigel, sophomore from Algona, were guard and tackle for the 1946 Hawkeyes.

Meanwhile, the Johnson county grand jury heard testimony of witnesses in the case yesterday and will continue the hearing Friday. County Attorney Jack C. White said he expected the jury would not make a decision until next week.

NO IOWAN TOMORROW
In order that members of the staff and employees may enjoy the Thanksgiving holiday, there will be no Daily Iowan tomorrow.

Charge Government With Hiding Errors In Occupied Zones

WASHINGTON (AP)—The four Republican members of the senate war investigating committee charged last night that the administration is "seeking desperately to conceal something wrong with the administration of occupied areas" in Germany and Austria.

They also said they were "forced" to conclude that the administration, with the aid of Democratic senators on the committee, is "seeking to destroy public confidence" in the senate investigating group "because it fears that the committee may be a valuable asset to congress after Jan. 3, 1947."

The four said they reached that conclusion as a result of the straight six to four party vote which cancelled a proposed committee investigation of conditions in the occupied zones.

The statement was signed by Senators Brewster (R., Maine), Ball (R., Minn.), Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Knowland (R., Calif.).

They complained that "leaks of confidential committee material declared that 'Senator Kilgore have appeared in the press' and (D., W. Va.) committee chairman, in a letter to committee members had made what 'appears to us an unwarranted attack on committee counsel.'"

The Republicans said the counsel, George Meader, had done "no more than he had been instructed to do; namely, to conduct a preliminary investigation of military government in Germany and Austria and report back to the committee in confidence . . ."

"Distorted versions of the testimony of executive hearings and of the contents of the confidential report have been published," they declared.

Other members of the committee, in addition to the West Virginian, are Senators Connally (D., Texas), Mead (D., N. Y.), Briggs (D., Mo.) Tunnell (D., Del.) and Mitchell (D., Wash.).

Sugar Ration

WASHINGTON (AP)—An OPA official said yesterday present plans call for continuation of current individual sugar rations during the first four months of 1947.

The Working Man's Rights Must Be Preserved

The pendulum apparently has swung the other way. After 12 years of favorable legislation and precipitant advances, the labor movement in America is seemingly about to be snubbed up close by the new congress.

With capital jealous and fearful of labor's new-found power, with the senate and house now filled with men anxious to heed the bidding of frightened industry and with the people thinking vindictively about John L. Lewis, the stage is set for a stampede of restrictive measures.

However, while there is much that congress can do of a constructive nature in establishing greater social responsibility for labor, it is doubtful that the more basic tenets of unionism can be successfully abrogated.

Such fundamental principles as the right to bargain collectively, the right to strike and the closed shop are considered by most disinterested observers to be the logical outgrowth of the self-interest motivation of the individual worker in competitive free enterprise.

To deny the laborer the devices by which he may effectively satisfy his personal economic interests would be to deny the very foundations of our capitalism. Not even the most forceful critic of labor could sell the nation the idea that the working man should be denied an opportunity to seek economic betterment. Our entire economy turns on this concept.

The development of the collective bargaining principle, for example, rests squarely on the working man's desire to improve his economic lot—a definitely American notion.

In our set-up there is a natural economic antagonism between workers and management. The worker seeks to sell his commodity—labor—at the highest possible price, while management seeks to obtain this commodity at the lowest possible figure. The individual unorganized laborer enters this competitive situation at a distinct disadvantage.

In most cases he is in no position to bargain effectively for higher pay or better working conditions because what he has to sell—one unit of labor—is of relatively small economic importance to management, as compared to the economic and social importance of the sale and its terms to the worker and his family.

Seeking remedies for this unfavorable bargaining process—as would any good business man—the employes find it advantageous to deal with their employers as a group rather than as economically impotent individuals. They band together in unions and appoint a delegate to carry on their negotiations with their employer, who naturally turns a more attentive ear to the voice of his entire labor force than he would to the voice of the single worker.

Several years after it had been officially established in England and Europe, labor's right to negotiate as a unit with its resultant equalization of bargaining power was recognized in the United States when the national labor relations act became law in 1935.

Behind the union's effectiveness as a bargaining vehicle is the strike. Just as all entrepreneurs in a free enterprise system consider inviolable the right to curtail or halt production under unsatisfactory conditions, organized workers have demanded this freedom to temporarily hold back their economic activities under conditions which they consider unfavorable.

The ultimate bargaining lever of the employe is the threatened or actual withdrawal of his unit of work. And the most powerful weapon the union negotiator possesses, is the withdrawal of a large portion or the entire working force of a particular plant or industry. Unfortunately large scale strikes, especially in the field of public utilities and fuel, frequently result in considerable short-run public hardships, but it can be pointed out that industrial reduction or cessation of output is also socially objectional in the long-run economic viewpoint.

Since there is a direct correlation between the proportion of the total laboring staff represented by the union bargainer and the potency of the strike threat, many unions have adopted the closed shop principle. Under this theory labor organizations attempt to limit employment to union members.

Generally, enlightened public opinion has crystallized in support of labor's right to bargain collectively and of its right to strike, but the public's thinking as regards the closed shop is less clear. Recently, this has been the most commonly challenged union device.

There appear to be two arguments against the closed shop first and most widely circulated criticism is that it results in undemocratic restriction on the worker's right to select his own employment.

The other but less widely circulated disapproval of the shop springs from management's understanding of the device in employer-employee relations. Experience has shown them that the bargaining agent meets them on a nearly equal basis when he is backed by 100 percent of the working force who are willing to strike if the demands are not satisfied.

It must be noted that those motivated by the desire to see the effectiveness of the union negotiator frequently adopt the "American" and "undemocratic" tags used by those who feel that the closed shop is an unjust limitation on the worker's freedom.

Reply to the charges of illiberalism, the unionist asserts the closed shop is a distinctively democratic and American institution because it requires that all who benefit by union action pay their just share of the costs. No one gets a free ride in this set-up, they say.

Students of labor problems hold that the critics are at the point in charging that the closed shop is socially unjust. They tend to the view that it is the closed union rather than the closed shop which should be eliminated.

The older craft unions—the so-called horizontal type—were predicated on the closed union principle. The skilled organizations with their high dues, long terms of apprenticeship and high level proficiency tests for admission are typical examples.

With these barriers to membership, this form of union often limits the labor supply and restricts the freedom of the worker. Such unions, critics point out, may be as equally injurious to the public welfare as the monopoly control of goods services.

The industrial or vertical unions, however, are usually on the open door theory. Admission is made easy and there is no overt attempt to curtail the available supply of workers.

Impartial students of the labor movement have given wide acceptance to the belief that the open union operating in a shop is the most successful and socially justifiable form of union organization.

They hold that the closed shop is a necessary attribute of collective bargaining technique by which the American worker seeks to improve his economic position. They feel that the nothing inherently evil or un-American in the closed shop, they raise the question whether the present attacks of it are on a genuine interest in public welfare or on a desire to see the economic force of organized labor.

The new congress would do well to proceed with caution in this area, lest in its zeal to establish labor's responsibility, it fringes on these fundamental rights. We must remember that the goal is productivity, not slavery.

THE WORLD WATCH—

The Danger of Self Interest

Not so many years ago, as time is counted in history, a man named Gibbon completed a monumental literary work which appeared publicly under the title, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

By STEVE PARK
Daily Iowan Columnist

quests, rival cliques began to contend for power within the state, weakening its basic unity, while the hardened warriors from the plains grew soft from the influence of middle eastern luxury. In the end the final defeat was inflicted by the Princes of Moscow—but this defeat would never have occurred had the state been weakened from within.

PARK

The decline of the Ottoman Empire presents another example of destructive internal weakness brought about by luxury and minority pressures. In China the fall of the Ming and Manchu dynasties can be ascribed to similar causes. Ancient Egypt, Palestine and Persia traveled the same roads, and so did the monarchy in modern Russia.

Perhaps, it is hard for us who live in this time to see contemporary parallels—to realize that the very same processes which finally destroyed Rome, and Egypt and Persia are at work within our own country. True, they have not yet worked actual destruction as yet, but they are threatening the strength of our nation nevertheless.

Now that the war is over, we are forgetting as well the pledges we made when our cause was in danger. Instead of the brave new world, we are returning to the corruption of the old one which we pledged ourselves to destroy. With the stress of war behind us, we are seeking avidly to fulfill selfish desires. We are demanding special privilege, which is inconsistent with either the objectives or the welfare of our own nation, and these special privileges inevitably weaken the whole structure of the state if they are given. Consider, if you will, the affect of the nationwide wave of strikes which engulfed the nation this year. It has been estimated that these work stoppages set back American reconversion for six months. They have also served to weaken the American position in international affairs.

At present, a landlords strike is being carried out in many parts of the nation in an attempt to stop rent control. John L. Lewis has dared to threaten the government of the United States (which is you and me) and all up and down the land special interest groups are clamoring for special privileges.

It adds up to only one thing. Groups within this country are attempting to place themselves above the power of the law (which is the instrument by which the code of the people of the United States is enforced). If the government is forced to accede to the demands of these groups, it is inevitable that government will eventually cease to represent the people, and that the basis of government will be destroyed. If the government is forced to accede to the demands of only one of these groups, the result will be equally dangerous. The door will be open for other groups to have their way, too.

Giving Thanks On Thanksgiving

WE VETERANS HAVE MUCH FOR WHICH TO BE THANKFUL. In particular, we rejoice: That the industrialists, having been adequately bribed by the U. S. government, are releasing their largess of scarce goods from their warehouses, pocketing their excessive profits, and happily dancing jigs about the mutilated remains of our meagre savings.

That labor, by such twentieth century Benedict Arnolds as John L. Lewis, is continuing to do its part in the concerted effort to prevent any return to a sound economy.

That our grateful countrymen have expressed their gratitude so concretely... the used car dealer who was happy to buy our car for half its value when we enlisted and even happier to sell us another at three times its value when we were discharged and the landlord who brightened our homecoming by charging us double the ceiling rent for our two-by-four apartment.

That, having provided educational and training opportunities for us, congress has engulfed us in an ever rising tide of inflation which renders our pre-inflation subsistence allowance life-jackets utterly useless.

Expansion of Hospital Will Stimulate Business in I.C.—Harshbarger

Proposed Mercy hospital expansion will not only improve hospital facilities, but will stimulate Iowa City business through increased employment and purchase of city supplies.

This was the statement made by Prof. H. C. Harshbarger of the speech department to Lions club members yesterday.

The program will double the number of beds at the hospital. Professor Harshbarger pointed out that there are now 2.6 hospital beds for every 1,000 persons in the area, whereas there is need for 5 beds per thousand persons.

The expansion goal is $600,000. The Sisters of Mercy, Province of Chicago, will contribute $450,000 and the remaining funds will be solicited from Johnson county.

Porter to Attend Parley Clubrooms to Close

Prof. Kirk H. Porter, head of the political science department, will attend a one-day conference of the American Society of International Law at the University of Chicago Saturday.

The parley will be concerned with methods of teaching international law, Professor Porter said.

Surgeons in the 18th and 19th centuries sometimes intoxicated their patients with alcohol or opium as an anesthetic.

Bonnie MacFarland, Hugo Otopalik Wed In Ceremony Here

Before a white floral-decorated altar at the Congregational church, Bonnie MacFarland became the bride of Hugo Brown Otopalik at 6 p. m. last night.

The Rev. James E. Waery performed the single-ring ceremony. For her marriage, the bride chose a fawn colored suit with brown accessories. She carried a white orchid on a white prayer-book. Her attendant, Mrs. Ralph A. Schepens of Evanston, Ill., wore a gold suit and brown accessories also.

Best man at the wedding was William Voelkers of Iowa City. Mrs. G. W. Buxton was the organist.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlors for intimate friends of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Otopalik are spending their honeymoon in Kansas City. They will be at home after Dec. 1 at 308 N. Linn street.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Russell MacFarland, Evanston, Ill. She graduated from Evanston high school and attended the university of Iowa where she was affiliated with Chi Omega sorority.

Her husband graduated from high school in Ames. He is now completing his dental studies at the University of Iowa. He is a member of the F.A.E. social fraternity and Delta Sigma Delta, dental fraternity.

For Distinctive Xmas Presents—

Sisters Put Rosemaler to Use

DOROTHY MAY POWNALL demonstrates how she prints her hand-cut linoleum block Christmas cards. She and her sister Ellie both make Christmas cards in their basement workshop. The bottles on the left were hand painted by Dorothy May for Christmas gifts.

If you're one of those frantic Christmas shoppers who just can't find anything more original than the traditional neckties and handkerchieves, perhaps Dorothy May and Ellis Pownall can give you a few tips.

The Pownall sisters in their basement workshop at 1602 N. Dubuque street make Christmas cards and decorate old bottles until they don't look like old bottles at all.

You say you know lots of people who do this? Of course you do—but not the way the Pownalls do it. The Pownall product is, as they say in The New Yorker, a "product of distinction."

Decorative Ability
Dorothy May's decorative ability is unique in that many of her decorated bottles are done in Rosemaler.

Just a second now. Perhaps you don't know what Rosemaler is—that's why it's distinctive.

Rosemaler is an old form of Norwegian folk art. It consists of intricate, filigreed floral designs done in vivid colors. It looks almost like the embroidered decoration that girls usually have on drindle dresses.

Rosemaler can't really be appreciated until you have seen Dorothy May transform a discarded wine bottle into a thing of beauty with a few deft strokes.

Ingenuity and Artistry
The distinctiveness of the Pownall Christmas cards depends on the individual ingenuity and artistic talent of Dorothy May and Ellie rather than on any firmly established criterion like Rosemaler.

Ellie makes hand painted cards while Dorothy May does linoleum block prints.

The two girls found a need for more room this fall when their creative activities outgrew the kitchen table stage.

Now they've converted the basement playroom-library into a full-fledged shop, complete with work bench, easels, storage shelves—and a phonograph.

Three Professors Attend Math Meeting in Ames

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

PROF. AND MRS. Charles B. Righter Jr. announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Constance Miriam, to Arthur W. Wilkinsons Give— Height And Experience

By BOB COLLINS

About the only thing better than having one of the Salt Lake City Wilkinsons on a basketball team is having two. Which is the happy situation existing on the University of Iowa squad where six foot, five inch Herbert teams up six foot, four and a half inch Clayton to make almost 13 feet of brotherly ability and basketball know-how.

In this case, good things come in large packages and nobody around Hawkeye headquarters is complaining. Especially in view of the fact that the Big Nine competition this year is going to be something close to murderous.

The fact that the Wilkinsons brothers aren't home-grown products detracts not a bit from their popularity on the Iowa campus. In fact, their past performances have been such as to make Utah a popular state hereabouts if for no other reason than having contributed Herb and Clayton to the Hawkeye cause.

A glance at the record shows that Herb Wilkinson was a national standout before he set up for basket business in the Iowa Fieldhouse. As a member of the NCAA championship quintet from Utah in 1944, he was awarded All-American honors. His play that year was climaxed by his winning basket in an overtime in the final game of the tournament.

In 1945 and 1946 Herb again was awarded All-American recognition as a key member in top-notch Iowa teams.

Fellow Hawkeye players agree to a man that Herb comes close to filling the formula for a "perfect basketball player." The man from the west does everything right and with a quiet efficiency that makes even difficult plays appear ordinary.

And so it is that even long-time observers have trouble picking out any speciality of Herb's. In offensive play, he has the knack of utilizing his height under the basket. Combined with this is an effective one-handed push shot from around the center circle and the ability to drive in hard and fast in support of the fast break.

Defensively Herb makes few mistakes and controls the rebounds more than satisfactorily. His floor game is classified as cool and steady and his sharp passing sets up scoring plays.

Brother Clayton is a star of some magnitude in his own right and appears ready for another big year with the Hawkeyes. In 1945, he entered the Iowa fold and promptly led all scorers from his center position. Clayton was named on the All-Conference team with no argument.

The older of the two Wilkinsons, Clayton operates at either center or forward and has a reputation of being a smooth operator under the baskets. His tip-in shots, resulting from perfect timing and ability to get his 185 pound frame off the floor, accounted for the majority of his points in pacing the team which won the Big Nine Championship.

Last season Clayton was slowed down with a leg ailment but his performance in practice sessions to date indicates that he is ready to take up where he left off.

Both of the Wilkinsons start going into the air where most players leave off, a fact which Coach Harrison is not ignoring in view of the fact that control of the rebounds is a large part of winning ball games.

Obviously neither Herb nor Clayton is as fast as Murray Wier, Dave Danner or Dick Ives. But they aren't labeled as clumsy and have shown the knack of being in the right place at the right time.

Pre-season ratings by the so-called experts have placed Iowa in the first 15 teams in the nation but behind three other Big Nine teams, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio State, in potentiality. However, the Wilkinsons and their fellow Hawks are out to make them change their minds. It's a big order but it happened in 1945 and history has a way of repeating itself, we hope.

Tourmalines are found on our west coast, in South Africa, the Urals, Brazil, Madagascar, and Siberia.

St. Mary's Five Defeated, 32-27

Hawkeye Basketball Team Gets Set for South Dakota State

Thanksgiving Day, 1946, and Iowa basketball fans are thankful that the current edition of the Hawkeyes has as many talented veterans as it has. With only two more practice sessions remaining before the opening game Monday at 8 p.m. against South Dakota State, the Hawks appear about ready to embark upon their stiff, 19-game schedule.

Monday's game will be the first of 10 consecutive home games which include three intersectional contests and the first three of 12 conference engagements.

Coach Harrison has been working various combinations in preparation for the season's debut. Possibly the best bet for a starting combination prediction is the quintet of Dick Ives and Murray Weir, forwards; Noble Jorgensen, center, and Herb Wilkinson and Jack Spencer, guards.

Another variation has found Dave Danner and Clayton Wilkinson, forwards; Leonard Metcalfe, center, and Floyd Magnusson and Glen Kremer, guards.

Others who are being groomed for service Monday include Stan Straatsma, Charlie Mason, Bob Lundstedt and Bob Freeman, forwards; Walt Koehnoff, center, and Jim Graham, Tony Guzowski, Bob Whelan, and Jim Grafton, guards.

The South Dakota State team also indicates a lineup with previous experience. Two of the regulars on the Jackrabbit aggregation were members of the team which last year fell before the Hawks, 71-33.

Something New in the Wind

Crying Towel Experts Moan As Tom Hamilton Predicts His Middies Will Trip Cadets

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Turkey Gobblers: Tom Hamilton of Navy faces the censure of the moaners and groaners division of college football coaches for flatly predicting the Middies will beat Army come Saturday. That's equivalent to Eddie Dyer saying, before the start of the World Series, that his Cardinals didn't belong in the same park with the Red Sox, and why not call the whole thing off?

Hamilton may be whistling through a graveyard, but Army-Navy games of the past show almost anything can happen. This year if anything happens but an Army victory, however, they'd better search the Middies for secret weapons. Even a dozen new goals trained to run interference wouldn't seem to be able to help Navy much.

Everybody is taking a guess at the salary Leo Durocher will receive for managing the Brooklyn Dodgers next year, the estimates ranging as high as $70,000.

It is an odd commentary on the American sports scene that the public feels it should know what wages an athlete or official draws. A citizen who doesn't know, or care, what his next door neighbor makes feels he is entitled to know what a sports celebrity is paid.

Maybe that's because he feels he is helping pay the salary. Anyway, it's silly to speculate on such things, anyway. Say, what do you suppose Durocher is going to get? $65,000?

Earl Blaik's statement that he will stay as coach of Army was more or less expected, as in leaving now he would be leaving himself open to the suggestion that, with most of his great team lost through graduation, he was unwilling to face loss of prestige by fielding a weaker team next year.

That Army will be weaker is certain. Fellows such as Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, both to be lost, don't bob up very often.

Personally we think Blaik has done a remarkable job even considering the high class of material with which he had to work. His job was to form the collection of stars into a smooth-functioning unit, and to bring the squad to a peak time after time to meet the threat of teams all of which were gunning for Army alone.

Were he to step out now, his successor would suffer by comparison. Blaik, succeeding himself, will do the suffering as he knows his 1947 team will not come close to matching the current eleven.

Muscatine Marians Stage Second Half Uprising For Win

By DON MALONEY
Staff Sports Writer

A tornado, in the form of five Flying Dutchmen, from St. Mary's of Muscatine, struck the local St. Mary's stronghold last night, and when the smoke had cleared away the visitors were out in front, 32-27.

The Dutchmen picked up speed as the game progressed, after being held to a 16 point tie at halftime, and they controlled the bank boards in the half and simply outplayed the Ramblers.

Chuch Mottet, Rambler forward, garnered 11 points for Iowa City, while big Bob Lewig paced the Dutchmen with 13 tallies. His running mate, Chuck Lorber poured in eleven. Maynard Brugman's work on controlling the boards for the Dutchmen was a big factor in holding down the Rambler's scoring in the final frame.

This was the Rambler's second loss in five starts, and the fourth win for the Muscatine quintet. Both sides were guilty of erratic passing in the rough and tumble game, and Iowa City had a total of 17 fouls.

Army, Notre Dame, Georgia Favored in Saturday Tilts

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK (AP)—Heading into uncertain ballot for Georgia.

Southern California vs. Notre Dame — The Irish, crowding Army for the mythical national championship, have the finest statistical record in the country, both offensive and defensive. But don't forget that the Trojan held UCLA, previously the best offensive club, to 67 yards. A confident vote for Notre Dame.

Georgia Tech vs. Georgia—Two great teams battling for a share of the top honors in the Southeastern conference and one of the more important bowl bids. Tech's hopes, of course, will be riding on its ability to trip Trippi. From this corner, it appears more likely that Trippi will trip Tech. Une

Herb Cormack Named Prep Coach of Year

Good things come in order to the Iowa City high school athletic teams.

Last March the basketball forces put on a terrific stretch run to cop the state high school title, this fall the football crew went through nine straight games without a defeat and were strong claimants to the mythical state title, and now Coach Herb Cormack has been named coach of the year by the Des Moines Register.

Cormack's first unbeaten team at City high was in 1936—the first year he took over—and currently Iowa City is supporting a 20 game winning streak under his tutelage. The wins started in 1941 after a 7-2 loss to Davenport and the only blotch on the 1942 record was a tie.

In sweeping through all opposition this fall Cormack used the T with variation on A. A. Stagg's spread formation.

Metropolitan Soprano to Present Concert At City High School Auditorium Dec. 10

Jarmila Novotna, Metropolitan opera soprano, will present the first in a series of concerts, sponsored by the Iowa City Civic Music association, Dec. 10 at 8 p. m. in City high school auditorium. Admission is by membership only and cards will be sent this week to the 973 persons who signed for the concert series during the recent membership campaign.

A Czech, Miss Novotna made her debut at the Prague National opera at the age of 17, when she played Violetta in "La Traviata."

She moved on to the Paris Grand opera, the Vienna State opera, La Scala in Milan, the Warsaw opera, and was selected by Arturo Toscanini to sing at Salzburg.

Miss Novotna first sang in Metropolitan opera in 1940. Since then she has conducted a concert schedule before and after the opera season each year. This is her seventh concert tour.

Other programs of the civic music series for 1946-47 announced yesterday are Luboshutz and Nemenoff, duo-pianists, Feb. 27, and Joseph Szigeti, violinist, April 7.

Roosevelt PTA Favors Boost in Teacher's Pay

The Roosevelt Parent-Teachers association yesterday registered approval of a recent request of the Iowa City teachers club for a $25 monthly increase in teachers' salaries.

The resolution, contained in a letter to H. H. Gibbs, president of the Iowa City school board, was passed at a meeting of the association Friday.

Guernsey Heavyweight Loses 2-Round Battle

Raymond Smalley, Johnson county AAA director, is nursing leg bruises from a two-round encounter with a 1,500 pound Guernsey bull at his farm at route 3. The AAA director's story goes like this:

Round one: Smalley tries to pat bull which he knows has always been a passive sort of animal. Bull forgets he is a passive animal and butts Smalley, trapping him against a wall.

Round two: Smalley decides that even though bull is minus horns he still has a big advantage. Smalley retreats by vaulting three-foot fence between stall and feed-way.

Final decision: Raymond Smalley, route 3, is offering one Guernsey bull for sale.

2,200 to Cast Ballots At AAA Elections

Approximately 2,200 Johnson county farmers will vote at agricultural conservation program (AAA) committee elections to be held from Dec. 2 to Dec. 7.

Raymond E. Smalley, county AAA director and committee chairman said yesterday elections in 21 townships will be staged from Dec. 2 to Dec. 6 inclusive. Each township will select three committeemen and two alternates.

Delegates also will represent each township at the county convention Dec. 7 in the county AAA office, Smalley revealed. A county committee will be elected at the convention. Frank Sullivan, route 7, Dale Anderson, route 1, and Chairman Smalley are the present committee.

All farmers who participated in the 1946 agricultural conservation program are eligible to vote in the elections, Smalley emphasized.

Rock Island to Add New Rocket Schedules

New daylight Rockets between Omaha and Chicago by way of Iowa City are scheduled to start operation shortly after Jan. 1, the Rock Island railroad announced yesterday.

Definite time schedules have not yet been received at the local depot. The Rockets will leave terminals in the morning and complete the 503-mile trip between Omaha and Chicago by evening.

FIREHOUSE SCENE OF FEATHER-STRIPPING

ROAST GOOSE FOR THANKSGIVING is the idea behind this defeathering at the fire station yesterday of what will be the main course at Thanksgiving dinner today. The busy poultry pickers are (l. to r.) Elmer Krell, W. A. Vorbich and Assistant Fire Chief Ray Morgan. The feathered, milk-fed character on the right was, strangely enough, unperturbed by the goings on—or maybe he just didn't know that he was next on the list.

Accidents Cause Police Noon Rush

Policemen George Brown and Charles Snider yesterday investigated three auto accidents in Iowa City during the noon hour—

At 11:30, they answered a call to Clinton and Market streets where cars driven by Fanny A. Smith, Woodlawn apartments, and Lt. Richard S. Welch, 215 E. Brown street, collided. Welch's car received $125 damage and the Smith car, $20.

Next, at 11:50, the officers investigated a collision involving a car driven by Charles Witosky, student, and a semi-truck driven by Gene Mitchell, West Liberty, at the intersection of Dubuque and Ronalds streets. The left side of Witosky's sedan was damaged extensively.

The rush ended with a collision of cars driven by Louis Schock, route 4, and Ralph D. Kuehl, Cedar Rapids, at the corner of Dearborn street and Center avenue. Schock's machine received $90 damage; Kuehl's, $46.

The globe's surface is 71 percent oceans, 29 percent land.

Rozanne Redding of Algona will be the week-end guest of Tommye Lynch, A2 of Algona, Alpha Delta Pi.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Brown of Chicago will spend Thanksgiving with Mrs. Stella Brooks, 447 Second avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Krichel of San Francisco will be weekend visitors in the home of Mrs. Stella Brooks, 447 Second avenue.
