Blue Calls for Extensive State Reform in Inaugural Speech

Recommends Creating Single 4-Year Term for Governor, Abolishing Board of Control

By CHUCK MORROW
Daily Iowan Staff Writer

DES MOINES—The first governor of Iowa in its second century of statehood took office at 2:33 p.m. yesterday and launched an extensive state reform program in his inaugural address.

Gov. Robert Donald Blue, after taking the oath of office from Chief Justice Charles F. Wennerstrom, recommended a constitutional amendment creating a single four-year term for governor and the abolition of the 50-year-old board of control.

Concerning a veterans' bonus Blue declared, "I feel confident that all servicemen, as well as other citizens, would desire the legislature first to consider the essential needs of the state . . . which are of primary importance to all . . ." (A proposed state bonus bill has already been announced.)

Other reforms and additions to present governmental machinery and methods suggested by the governor were:

Merging the historical departments at Iowa City and Des Moines to avoid duplication.

Making the office of superintendent of public instruction (now elective) appointive.

Making the offices of commerce commissioners (now elective) appointive, and the possible enactment of a state utility law "to protect the state against arbitrary actions by the federal government."

Transfer of the department of public safety (now under the governor's control) to the office of attorney-general.

Granting authority to municipalities for extension of sewers and water facilities at public expense.

Supplanting the board of control with superintendents of mental hospitals, or penal and corrective institutions, and of industries. The governor further recommended that the superintendents be placed under a single commissioner of public institutions. He also urged abolition of the interim committee which, he said, has operated primarily to supervise the actions of the board of control.

Extending and strengthening authority of the state fire marshal.

Combining all state veterans' affairs under a single department.

Governor Blue urged the adoption of a larger political unit as a basis of school administration and support, and subsequently greater state aid.

The governor expressed dissatisfaction with present law enforcement machinery, pointing out that hundreds of agents or agencies are now responsible only to the people. To remedy this situation, the governor would make all such agencies responsible to the attorney-general.

Regarding proposed changes in the present liquor laws, the governor stated, "It is the duty of the legislature to initiate new legislation and to amend the old laws in such a manner as to reflect the majority sentiment of the people they represent." He did not outline a plan for accomplishing this.

The governor and Lt. Gov. Kenneth A. Evans took office in the house of representatives packed with legislators, state officers, the Republican central committee and friends. President Virgil M. Haner was seated with state officials in the well of the chamber.

London Truck Strike Ends

LONDON (AP)—Leaders of Britain's unauthorized truck strike called off the walkout amid indications of a major victory for their followers yesterday, ending on its 11th day the country's most serious domestic crisis since labor came to power.

The first of the warehousemen and other sympathizers who had swelled the total on strike to more than 50,000 here and in other major cities were expected to start back to work today. Leaders of the 15,000 striking drivers said they would be back at their wheels today.

Troops on the job since Monday probably will continue to truck food to retailers in the greater London area today.

An almost audible sigh of relief went up from the London homes where larders were bare of practically all perishable foods.

Details of the settlement approved by a delegate conference of strikers were not disclosed.

Unofficially, it was understood the employers had agreed to yield on the strikers' major demands for a 44 instead of a 48-hour week and payment for overtime after eight hours work on any day.

Use of UN Veto to Protect Aggressor Would Mean War, Says U.S. Delegate

CHICAGO (AP)—Warren R. Austin declared last night that use of the veto power in the United Nations security council to protect an aggressor nation would nullify the UN charter and that "there is only one certain answer to nullification—war in support of the law and of the union."

Austin, United States representative to the UN, in an address delivered at the general assembly of The Council of State Governments, said that the use of the veto "to protect the aggressor from the consequences of his crime would, in itself, be a violation of the charter."

"The charter does not mention veto," he said. "What is called a veto results from a failure of the unanimity rule (among the five permanent members of the security council)."

"I have heard it said that the veto legalizes aggression by a permanent member, because that member can prevent enforcement action against itself. Of course that is not true.

"Far from legalizing aggression, the use of the veto, either by an aggressor, or by another member to protect the aggressor from the consequences of the crime, would, in itself, be a violation of the charter. It would be nullification."

"Any treaty establishing international control of atomic energy, or of any other major weapon adaptable to mass destruction should include precise and unequivocal definition of what acts would constitute violation of its terms and provide for punishment appropriate to the nature of each violation," he said.

The illegal possession of an atomic bomb by any state after the establishment of a system of international control prohibiting the manufacture of atomic weapons could be regarded an armed attack upon the other signatories of the treaty, and the treaty could so declare.

Austin added "the responsibility for finding and reporting that such a violation had occurred could be vested in the operating organs as a part of their control and inspection functions, and acting by a vote to which the unanimity requirement would not apply."

French Elect Socialist To Head New Republic

PARIS (AP)—Socialist Vincent Auriol was elected first president of the new-born fourth republic at Versailles palace yesterday by an almost exclusively Communist and Socialist vote.

First task of the 62-year-old "peacemaker" of French politics is to nominate a premier to form a cabinet. Aides said his choice will probably be his close friend, the veteran socialist Leon Blum, who submitted his resignation to Auriol as president-premier of the interim government.

'Fireworks' In Georgia

ATLANTA (AP)—Ellis Arnall's contest for the Georgia governorship last night appeared certain of being prolonged at least until Monday, although the rival claimant, Herman Talmadge, held possession of the gubernatorial chambers at the capitol and the executive mansion in fashionable Ansley park.

Sources close to Lieutenant Governor-Elect M.E. Thompson said Thompson would take the oath of office at 11 a.m. Monday, thus qualifying to succeed Arnall under the latter's resignation filed with Georgia's secretary of state last week-end.

The resignation was to become effective "immediately on qualification of the lieutenant governor."

As the dual state administrations neared the close of their second business day, the capitol was thrown briefly into turmoil by the explosion of a firecracker high up in the rotunda above the spot where Arnall established his temporary "office" this morning.

Arnall's move into the rotunda yesterday followed early morning seizure of the executive chambers by Talmadge and his adherents.

Arnall described the tactics there and at the mansion where he was later denied entrance by state patrolmen as "the perfect panzer movement" which gave control to "storm troops." Talmadge declined comment on this reference to his backers.

Arnall reiterated his contention that the legislature was without authority to elect Talmadge as his successor.

Talmadge indicated yesterday he might not accept any adverse court ruling on the Arnall-sponsored suit filed yesterday to settle their squabble.

He said in a formal statement that legislative actions are "not subject to review by the courts," but declined to say specifically what he would do.

Talmadge aides won the offices during the night when locks on doors were changed and Arnall had to enter through the reception room.

The war department in Washington took cognizance of the tangled situation since Georgia's governor is commander-in-chief of the national guard.

There was a brief flurry of excitement at the executive offices early in the afternoon when a small tear gas capsule exploded in the reception room. State Patrolman G.W. Harralson said it was broken near the capitol lobby door but he had no idea how it was placed there. The office was not evacuated.

The senate yesterday backed up Talmadge's administration by confirming appointments of Griffin as adjutant-general and two lesser officials.

One Secretary to Set Policies For Separate Administration

Single Air Force to Be Established; GOP Committee Chairmen Predict Early Approval

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON—A compromise plan designed to unify the armed services while retaining their separate administration and military leadership was announced last night by President Truman with the blessing of both the army and navy.

It would create a separate air force and place a new secretary of national defense in over-all charge of it, the army and navy. Each of the three services would have secretaries, too, who may be cabinet members.

The expected unification would be achieved by vesting the secretary of national defense with authority to lay down common policies and programs for the three arms. But each department would be administered as a unit.

Moreover each service would have its own military chief, with no over-all military commander as proposed in previous merger plans.

The navy would keep its marine corps and its land-based aviation, both fighting and transport. Other concessions to the navy also are contained in the plan.

A number of congressmen of both parties immediately applauded it. The Republican chairmen of the senate and house armed forces committees predicted early passage of the necessary law.

The president had urged unification in his state of the union message as an economy measure, but he made no mention of economy in a letter to Secretary of War Patterson and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal congratulating them upon their agreement.

"I recognize that each of the services has made concessions in the effort to reach this agreement," he wrote, "and I feel that it constitutes an admirable compromise . . ."

The navy will continue its air operations, including air transport, and also will continue its own aviation development and procurement programs.

Additional details of the plan will be made available by army and navy officials at a news conference at the White House this morning.

The army itself would retain some aviation despite the creation of the separate air force, as it now operates some surface vessels.

The separate air force would include "all military aviation forces, both combat and service, not otherwise specifically assigned. It would conduct air operations in support of both land and sea fighting and furnish the air lift and support for airborne operations."

Establishment of a full-time joint staff to consist initially of not more than 100 officers to be made up of equal numbers from each of the three services. The joint staff, operating under a director, would carry out directives of the joint chiefs of staff.

Vestment of the secretary of national defense as head of the armed forces establishment, with authority, under the president, "to establish common policies and common programs for the integrated operation of the three departments."

Urge 6-Point Program

Patterson and Forrestal worked out the agreement after long conferences which they undertook at Mr. Truman's request. Their letter to him pledged that they will "support legislation in which the following points are incorporated:"

The secretaries, in their letter, agreed to support legislation incorporating the following points:

1. The establishment of a council of national defense, a national security resources board and a central intelligence agency (which already exists).

2. Organization of the armed forces under a secretary of national defense.

3. Creation of a war council consisting of the secretary of national defense, as chairman and with power of decision; the secretaries of the army, navy and the air force, and the military heads of the three services. The war council would concern itself with "matters of broad policy relating to the armed forces."

4. Establishment of a joint chiefs of staff, made up of the military heads of the three services and the chief of staff to the president. Subject to authority of the secretary of national defense, the joint chiefs of staff would provide for the strategic plans, assign logistics responsibilities to the services and integrate military requirements.

5. Establishment of a full-time joint staff to consist initially of not more than 100 officers to be made up of equal numbers from each of the three services. The joint staff, operating under a director, would carry out directives of the joint chiefs of staff.

6. Vestment of the secretary of national defense as head of the armed forces establishment, with authority, under the president, "to establish common policies and common programs for the integrated operation of the three departments."

OF CABBAGES AND KINGS—

And Travel Broadens One So

By LAWRENCE E. DENNIS
 Daily Iowan Columnist

Sooner or later, I suppose, it was bound to happen. After all, members of the state legislature are only human. They can crack suddenly under the strain of fatigue and overwork just as easily as the rest of us.

Considering the fact, though, that the current legislative session got underway in Des Moines only last Monday, the nervous breakdown on Tuesday did come as quite a shock. At least, I THINK it was a nervous breakdown, because there just doesn't seem to be any other reasonable diagnosis available for these particular symptoms.

Dykhouse's Bill

Senator J. T. Dykhouse, Republican from Rock Rapids, filed a bill in the state senate Tuesday to suspend the Iowa income tax indefinitely and boost the sales tax from two to three percent.

Dykhouse said his measure would "suspend the entire income tax indefinitely until such time as the executive council feels its collection is necessary. The addition of another one percent to the sales tax automatically would become inoperative if the income tax should be reinstated."

hard. They ought to relax for a bit and think things over.

Shortly after reading Wednesday's tax bill, I got together with our 26-month-old son, Patrick Michael, and talked things over. Since he carries a good deal of weight in Iowa's Young Republican league, I knew that any ideas he might have would be met with a warm reception by the state central committee. He looked at the outline of the suggested tax program, shook his head sadly and said: "Ga Dunk Teetum Boof, Pater!" ("Give me time to think it over, Cabbagehead").

Chiang's Strategy Bears Watching

The new Chinese constitution is being held up as a good, democratic constitution, one under which all the liberal groups in China can unite. For instance, Senator Vandenberg, as new chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, has urged that the United States shift its China policy to encourage the non-communist coalition backing the new constitution.

It's a funny thing about constitutions. What's written into them is not as important, it seems, as how they're interpreted and who does the interpreting.

The Russian constitution is a good, democratic constitution too, on paper, giving full civil rights to all Soviet citizens, and setting up a republican form of government. But in actual operation, with one party reading into or out of the constitution what it sees fit, something very different from the original document comes out.

Considering the "non-communist coalition" which is backing the new constitution, is there any assurance that the same thing will not happen in China? It looks to us like this is largely a Kuomintang coalition.

The convention which drew up the constitution was composed almost entirely of Kuomintang members—95 percent to be exact. The Communists would not participate because of Kuomintang domination, but it wasn't only the Communists who declined to sit in. The Chinese Democratic League, which includes many of the liberal and middle-of-the-road elements whose support General Marshall urged, also refused to take part in the convention.

If this kind of one party domination continues in the new government it is doubtful if the situation in China will be improved or that the government will be more democratic. With no effective opposition the party in power can interpret its constitution in any way that it sees fit.

This unusual spectacle of a liberal document created by a reactionary group might even be only a piece of strategy to gain the favor of the United States.

If the Kuomintang can convince those in charge of our foreign relations that it intends to form a new representative government, any groups refusing to enter the coalition, no matter what the reason, could be classed with the irreconcilable Communists and Chiang's party would end up controlling China with the complete support of the United States.

Remember? The story was carried on page five of Wednesday morning's Daily Iowan. If you didn't catch it then, listen (and you had best take this sitting down, Jasper—it's one of those delayed action-type misses).

Working Too Hard

A rest cure is obviously in order. Maybe it's the climate. Or, better still, perhaps it was that Republican landslide at the polls last Nov. 5. At any rate, the paragraphs quoted above would seem to indicate that some of the boys, at least, have been working too benefit, are not aware of the crying need this plan would answer.

There are several ways in which this kind of school could be provided, and personally I have no doubt that it will be done eventually," writes Dr. Studebaker. He states that he is against the most obvious method—federal government control with schools run from Washington.

Since only very large cities could afford to do the job as it should be done, the educator's alternative is "a community of communities" state-wide in scope with schools financed by state funds.

"In this country we have a strong belief that schooling should be a matter of jealously guarded local control and there is sound good sense behind that belief. Fathers and mothers have both the right and the duty to say how they think their children should be educated. Yet the children are denied even a good high school education, in a large part of the country, by the refusal of their elders to budge from the strictest interpretation of local control. I think the time has come to face realities and to emphasize the constitutional responsibility of the several state governments for education.

The community institutes or schools, according to Dr. Studebaker's idea, could be spotted around the state, in central locations. The courses they would offer would vary and would be partly determined by the major interests and activities of those sections in which they were placed. Each institute however, would also give other advanced vocational courses. One, for example, being a course for boys who wanted to become engineers—a vocational opportunity, among many others, for which our present educational system offers no preparation short of a four-year university course planned for the comparatively few who can become graduate engineers.

"Far from competing with established colleges," writes the U.S. commissioner of education, "I believe these institutes would so increase the interest of young people in education as to make the enrollment in colleges greater than at present."

Touching on the possible problems of transportation of students to these regional schools, the educator adds, "Today we fly from coast to coast or across oceans in the time it took many of our grandfathers to get to their county seats. Buses and other forms of fast surface transportation can take students dozens of miles in the time that it took those of an earlier generation to walk to a neighborhood schoolhouse." For those students whose homes are too far away to make commuting possible, he suggests supervised residential quarters, maintained by the institute at cost.

Six Year High School Education Urged

We need a new kind of school—a school to carry free public education two years beyond today's high school levels—if we are to give young Americans a fair start in life and make it possible for them to get good jobs immediately after graduation.

That's the plea of Dr. John W. Studebaker, director of the U.S. office of education, in an article, "The Missing Link in Our Schools," in the February issue of the Woman's Home Companion.

"The time may well come," writes Dr. Studebaker, "as it did in the 1930's, when the federal government will find itself faced with the problem of a lost generation unable to secure a foothold on the ladder of productive life." The commissioner thinks that we should plan now for a new kind of school to give every young American an opportunity to get both the cultural and vocational background he needs.

School people have been aware of this need for a long time, have discussed it at their conferences, have drafted reports and read recommendations to each other. But the public most concerned, the parents of the boys and girls who would benefit, are not aware of the crying need this plan would answer.

There are several ways in which this kind of school could be provided, and personally I have no doubt that it will be done eventually," writes Dr. Studebaker. He states that he is against the most obvious method—federal government control with schools run from Washington.

Since only very large cities could afford to do the job as it should be done, the educator's alternative is "a community of communities" state-wide in scope with schools financed by state funds.

For those students whose homes are too far away to make commuting possible, he suggests supervised residential quarters, maintained by the institute at cost.

"Although in our grandfathers' time, a little schooling in the three R's may have been sufficient, the commissioner thinks that in our present complex civilization boys and girls who want to be accountants, airplane mechanics, salesmen, dieticians, dentists, assistants, private secretaries, and workers in countless other fields, all should be able to get enough specialized training in public schools to fit them for beginners' jobs in their chosen fields. And he thinks that in order to do it we have got to give them six years of high school instead of only four.

The Country's Overrun With Thieves

An interesting pamphlet entitled, "So You Believe in Rent Controls?" was passed on to us the other day from the local senior chamber of commerce office.

This little booklet, published by an organization which calls itself The Foundation for Economic Education, Irvington-on-Hudson, New York, points out how dreadfully foolish it is for us to favor rent control.

The little booklet, which is very interesting, as we said before, tells us that the reason for the housing shortage is that the average American has twice as much money to spend as he did in 1940.

"As a result of the rise in incomes, while rents were held down, rent is now a smaller part of the family budget than ever before," the pamphlet says. "Housing is very cheap—in proportion to incomes—for those who can get places to rent at the legal ceiling rents.

"Tenants can afford, therefore, to pay more rent, and they have been trying to do it. They have been moving into better places, with more room, every chance they got. They have been spreading out, especially during the war, when so many men were overseas."

Then the little booklet tells us that rent control prevents people who are willing and able to pay over the ceiling prices from taking over dwellings from present tenants. The book, of course, has it all figured out what will happen to the evicted tenant: "The answer" is that he will move into a smaller space vacated by someone who wants a better place and is willing to pay for it.

"Is this bad?" the pamphlet asks innocently. "Who should have the better dwellings and more room? Let's face this problem now—squarely and head-on."

Yes, let's.

The part is the book which explains that living in another man's house is really stealing if you don't pay him what he wants for it is very convincing. According to the book, the Commandment which states, "Thou shalt not steal," means you must

Vets' Economic Plight Warrants State Bonus TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

I would like to take issue with you on this explosive problem of a bonus for World War II veterans. I have no doubt of the sincerity or of the possible truth of your belief that a monetary reward given to the veterans can never be deemed a payment for the duty he has performed. The actual sacrifice the veteran made for the American people should not be a cause for a compensation. It is his duty to perform such service.

If however as a result of his sacrifice, the veteran's economic and financial status has been endangered, a grateful American people should take steps to alleviate this situation. It is needless to point out that almost all veterans are in such a situation as a result of their war time service.

Bills, of a nature to give the veteran aid in setting up a business and to give him some measure of security in the advent of unemployment, are of a definite help to some classes of veterans. However, such specific aid bills do not in any way help all the veterans in need of economic assistance.

Would it not be better to formulate a single plan which would help all veterans? The only measure that would fulfill the job is a bonus bill. It certainly is not uncommon for the state or the national government to give help to certain minority groups, such as the blind and the unemployed, who by virtue of their position, are at a disadvantage economically.

This bonus proposal would enable a veteran to start a business, resume his education or to use it in any way that his specific need calls for. All of the veterans would then be benefited. I realize that this cannot give him the moral and spiritual readjustment that many veterans need. It can, however, go a long way in helping him face his economic problems.

Houser Retorts, Asks for Frankness TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

In replying to Mrs. Kay's letter I want to make clear I do not disagree with all she has to say. For instance, I do not begrudge financial awards to university athletes who undoubtedly earn all they get. However, she has missed the main point of my letter, which was tied up in the published statement that the Kirnick and "I" Club awards were open to all university students meeting the scholastic requirements.

Rather than implying a lack of mental ability among the athletes, my letter was intended as a weak defense of the mental ability of the non-athletes. The athletes have conclusively proved themselves to be intellectual giants by winning 100 percent of these scholarships open to all university students. It's a sad commentary on the intellectual level of the non-athletes when, despite their extra time for study, they are unable to win even one of these scholarships open to them.

Why don't we just admit the awards are for scholastic ability among university athletes and drop the pretense that such awards are open to all university students?

Further Protest Of 'Pink' Monument TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

Some facts have emerged clearly enough in the controversy about the pink monument of the Iowa City chapter of American War Dads: The War Dads are a sincere group of bereaved parents in Johnson County; the veterans of Johnson County are opposed to the "dead" quality of the monument; the War Dads' irritation because no one helped them decide on a proper monument before they made up their minds has no relation to the value of this "dead" monument to Johnson County; the people of Johnson county will have to pay for the piece of rock.

I sum these facts simply because if someone came to ask me

Network Show to Salute University's Birthday

The university's centennial will be featured on a Mutual Broadcasting system broadcast to be heard from 11:30 a.m. to noon (CST) Friday, Feb. 21.

One of MBS' "Campus Salute" series, the program will originate from WOL, Washington, D.C.

The United States Army band will provide music for the broadcast, including several University of Iowa songs. The program script has been prepared with the aid of text material secured from the university.

Kiddies Churn Butter

Kindergarten children of Roosevelt school are having a "bread and butter" party this afternoon, but it isn't the usual kind.

In an effort to avoid higher butter prices, they're using butter they churned in class yesterday. The idea came to them after a visit to Swanner's dairy Wednesday.

PH.D. FRENCH READING EXAM
 The Ph.D. French reading examination will be given Saturday, Jan. 25, from 10-12 a. m. in room 314, Schaeffer hall. Please make application to take this examination by signing your name to the list posted on the bulletin board outside room 307, Schaeffer hall. No applications will be accepted after Thursday.

STUDENT HOUSING
 The student housing bureau needs private home listings for the many new students requesting living quarters. Persons who will have rooms available for the second semester are asked to call extension 274. Rooms and apartments for married couples as well as rooms for single men and women students are in demand.

ZOOLOGY SEMINAR
 Zoology Seminar will meet today in Room 205, Zoology building, at 4:30 pm. Dr. Catharine Kollros of the department of zoology will speak on "Leadership in Flocks of Pulets."

COLLEGE TRANSFERS
 Students who intend to transfer to another college of the university at the beginning of the semester should fill out separate application, record and admission statements in the registrar's office. This pertains to students changing from liberal arts to pharmacy, engineering or the graduate college, but not to those changing to commerce.

COMMENCEMENT ANNOUNCEMENTS
 Candidates for degrees at the Feb. 1 Commencement who have placed orders for announcements may secure their announcements now by calling at the alumni office, Old Capitol, and presenting their receipts.

GRADUATE FELLOWSHIP
 There will be several Lydia C. Roberts graduate fellowships available for the year 1947-48 to graduates of an Iowa college or university for study at Columbia University. Applications should be made before Feb. 15, and addressed to the secretary of Columbia university, Mr. Philip M. Hayden, Columbia university, New York City.

Candidates are expected to submit the applications and supporting documents. Application blanks are available in the college of liberal arts, room 108, Schaeffer hall. Letters of recommendation should be mailed direct to the university by the writers.

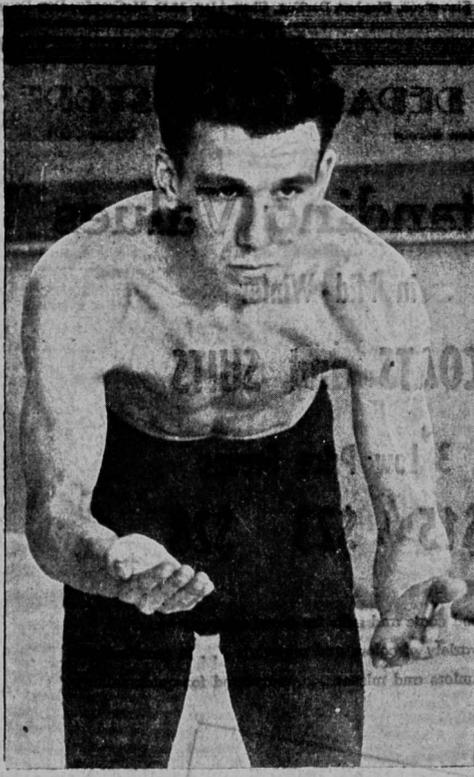

These fellowships are awarded annually to persons of the Caucasian race, either sex, born in the state of Iowa, who have been graduated from a college or university located in Iowa, and see BULLETIN, Page 6.

Macias, a Name to Remember

'Rummy' Looks to New Laurels

Ace Hawkeye Wrestler Eager for Fourth Campaign Against Best the Big Nine Can Offer

By DON PADILLA Staff Sports Writer

Along the Big Nine wrestling front there is a name that spells foreboding for conference coaches.

That name is Rometo "Rummy" Macias, and Mike Howard, coach of the University of Iowa mat team is confident of another successful season for "Rummy" as he watches his charge work out for the forthcoming campaign.

This will be Macias' fourth and last year of collegiate competition, and he will be the first Hawk to win four letters in wrestling—that is if he wins the required three matches and there doesn't seem to be much doubt about that.

In three years of trading holds with the best in the mid-west; he has never failed to have his hand raised in victory at the end of a dual meet match, and twice, in 1944 and 1945 walked off with the gold medal that signifies a Big Nine championship.

The twenty-three year old junior from Davenport, Iowa wrestles in the 128-pound class. Tall for his weight, Rummy is 5' 8", it is his terrific speed and mat saavy that has won him a reputation not open to dispute.

To go back to the beginning of a collegiate career that has carried the likeable grappler with the jet black hair to the top of Big Nine wrestling, Macias enrolled as a freshman in February, 1944. He did not get into a regular season dual meet, but warmed up for the conference meet and waded through a crowd of former titleholders to capture the 128-pound crown—according to "Rummy", the only freshman to have ever accomplished that feat!

When that meet was over, his competitors scratched their heads figuring out where this man Macias had popped out from behind the bush. Because he had not competed during the just-finished season, no one had ever heard of him. Since that time his name has spelled trouble to rival coaches.

When he isn't wrestling or meeting that favorite girl friend, "Rummy" can be found with the Hawk basketball team in his capacity as student manager.

That's all of the Macias story now, but the first paragraph of the last chapter will be written this Saturday afternoon, when the Iowa wrestling team goes to the mat with Bradley Tech university.

Chicago Cards Hook Trippi With Record Offer

Georgia Star Rejects Yanks As Cash Talks

By GAYLE TALBOT NEW YORK (AP) — Charley Trippi slipped past the clutching arms of the over-confident football Yankees yesterday, stiff-armed their baseball secondary and wound up with the Chicago Cardinals for what is known in the gridiron parlance as "pay dirt"—great, big gobs of it.

The all-America half back from Georgia university, the year's most sought-after athlete, was sought for Chicago when last seen, where he will sign a contract for just under $100,000 to play with the Cardinals of the National Professional league for the next four seasons.

He and Charley Bidwill, wealthy owner of the Cardinals, who saw everything the Yankees had to offer and, then tossed a few more blue chips on the pile, were leaving on the Twentieth Century Limited early last night for Chicago. Bidwill said the contract—highest ever offered in professional football—would be signed there either today or Saturday.

The document will leave Trippi free to deal for his baseball services, and Bidwill, who is very close to the dark, young man, said he would recommend to Charley that he accept an offer to hook up with the Chicago Cubs organization, passing up other urgent and lucrative bids from the Boston Red Sox, Boston Braves, Atlanta and Birmingham of the Southern association, and perhaps other clubs.

The Cubs, Bidwill disclosed, would give Trippi a $10,000 bonus to play with their Los Angeles team of the Pacific Coast league next season, and then, if he proved himself a big leaguer and went up to the Cubs the following year, would dig down for another $20,000. They thus would match the $30,000 cash bonus dangled before the Georgia flash by the Red Sox.

In a lengthy conference Wednesday the Yankees offered the Pittston, Pa., product a total in salary and bonuses of $105,000 to play five years of football and two years of baseball, with the stipulation that after two years he would have to choose between the sports, dropping one or the other.

So confident were the Yankees of closing the deal early yesterday that they called a press conference for noon and invited the photographers. But long before that watching hour arrived Charley had reversed his field and advised the Associated Press he would sign with Bidwill for "the biggest salary in the history of pro football—

Little Hawks Meet Roughriders Here In Conference Tilt

ROOSEVELT CARPENTER STURM EBERT VAN CLEVE WEST

With Dick Drake and game Captain Kirk Carson playing their final conference game of the season, the Iowa City high cagers try for their sixth Mississippi Valley triumph tonight as they meet the challenge of Roosevelt high of Cedar Rapids at the City high gym.

The Hawks are leading the loop standings with five wins to their credit and nary a black mark on the lost record in league play although they have lost three of their seven non-conference games. Roosevelt has a two-two record in the circuit.

Both Drake and Carson are mid-year seniors and, although they complete their league competition tonight, will be available for the Ottumwa non-conference tilt here a week from Saturday. Drake has alternated at forward and center and is presently sev-enth in the loop individual scoring race with 48 points in five games.

Carson has been in and out of the starting lineup but his timely shooting and clever ball handling has aided the Hawklet cause when the going was rough.

Gene Hettrick will start at center with the defensive stalwarts, Sonny Dean and Jim Sangster, at the guards. These two have their work cut out for them tonight for the Roosevelt scoring punch is largely concentrated in Forwards Frank Sturm and Jack Carpenter. Sturm has averaged over nine points per game while Carpenter led the Roughriders' offense in their 38-36 thriller over McKinley in a cross-town tilt.

even more than Red Grange got."

Bidwill believes that Trippi, an outstanding ball-carrier and a passer, will come very close to leading his Cardinals to the National league championship next year.

"His great defense against passes alone will be worth his salary to us," he declared. As a baseballer he hit collegiate pitching for a .475 average. He is a righthand batter and an outfielder.

St. Pat's Team In Road Game

St. Patrick's cagers hit the road again tonight to play the first game in a home and home series with St. Joseph high school of Rock Island, Ill.

Tonight's game will give St. Pat's a last chance to polish up for the first of their annual tussles with St. Mary's of Iowa City next Wednesday night. Last week the Ramblers beat the Rock Island crew 32-28. The St. Joseph crew 32-28, been a high scoring aggregation this year, but their offense is well balanced.

St. Patrick's veteran lineup will probably start the game this evening with high-scoring Jerry Megan and McMahon at forwards, Seemuth at center, with Grady and Herdlika manning the guard positions.

St. Patrick's record for the season stands at seven wins against three defeats.

A private cheering section will travel with the team tonight as a bus has been chartered to take student robes to the game.

Intramural Relays Saturday Afternoon

After a three year wartime lapse, the University of Iowa intramural relay carnival gets underway in the fieldhouse Saturday afternoon.

The 12-event meet is used as a warm-up for the varsity track squad which opens its regular schedule Feb. 1. In addition, fraternity and dormitory trackmen will compete in their own events.

The Hawk varsity members will compete in the 60-yard dash, 70-yard high and low hurdles, pole vault, high jump and shot put.

The inter-sorority relay in which four man teams represent the girls' Greek letter organizations in a 1/2 mile race, will be one of the features.

U-High Five Invades Mt. Vernon Tonight For Conference Tilt

University High Mt. Vernon Edwards Croft Fischer Koch Zinkula

Primed to retain the stride they lost in late-December, U-high's Bluehawk basketball team tonight set their sights for a second Eastern Iowa conference victory at Mt. Vernon.

The Bluehawks face a better than average Maroon quintet which started the league race off early in first place only to slide later into a third place knot. The tilt will get underway at 8:15 p. m. with the reserves opening festivities at 7 p. m.

Following their heartbreaking loss before red-hot Monticello last week, the Hawks will be gunning again for a first division berth in the loop. They dropped before the undefeated Panthers 49-48 only after a terrific fight and it took a bucket in the last 18 seconds to turn the tide.

Although Coach Louis Alley will again depend on his stars, Nick Anderson, veteran forward, and Gus Helm for a large share of the Hawk points, he also is looking forward to more balanced U-high scoring distribution.

Alley believes that added height in the front line will aid the situation and has inserted lean Fritz Harshbarger into the pivot to work along with Anderson and Helm. Bobby Ojemann and Jack Hady will probably start at guards. Harshbarger was one of the standouts in the late Hawk drive last week.

Mt. Vernon, shooting for another win on its home stamping grounds, has Jim Croft and Dave Fischer, center, to rely on for the majority of their points.

Hawkeye 15-Man Cage Squad Leaves for Indiana, Purdue

Set to prove that they can win basketball games on the road as well as at home, fifteen University of Iowa players left Iowa City today enroute to Indiana where Saturday night they will meet the Hoosiers.

After the Indiana game the Hawks move to Lafayette for a Monday game with Purdue.

The weekend battles are but a start for the Hawks who play the next five consecutive games away from home before returning to Iowa City to meet Michigan on Feb. 15.

After the Ohio State and Minnesota victories, the Hawks boast a 2-1 Big Nine record and need both the Indiana and Purdue game to stick on the trail of high-flying Wisconsin. Yesterday Coach Harrison minced no words in telling his squad of the job that was ahead of them. "Both Indiana and Purdue are rugged, fast, and smart, with fine personnel. On their home courts, they play great basketball and it will take a continuation of the drive and shooting shown in the second half of the Minnesota game to beat them." Coach Harrison said.

The Hawks and Indiana, who share second place in the Big Nine, have the same shooting percentage, .262, although Iowa has averaged 66.7 points per game to the Hoosiers' 57.7. Indiana will fall slightly short of matching Iowa's height but has four men between 6-1 and 6-4. No center, however, compares with Iowa's Noble Jorgensen who goes 6-9.

Under "Pops" Harrison's coaching, Iowa has won three of four games from the Hoosiers at Bloomington but lost the last one of the series, 45-39.

2 GOP Groups Stress Party Unity, Condemn Secret Caucus

By BOB McHUGH
Executive committees of the Republican Veterans league and the Young Republicans league met last night to pass a joint resolution stressing party unity but condemning "secret caucuses that are not representative of the entire Republican party."

In submitting the four point resolution, Chairman William Meardon Jr. emphasized that the "Republican Veterans league has absolutely no objections to any of the candidates."

"It's the secret caucus we're against," said Meardon.

Mrs. Henrietta Howell, member of the Johnson county Republican central committee and of the Republican Women's club, voiced similar sentiments last night.

Mrs. Howell, past secretary of the Republican central committee, said the present Republican slate for the city primaries should not be described as a "central committee slate."

"I certainly have no objections to any of the candidates," explained Mrs. Howell, "but I'm certain that none of the ladies of the central committee was present when these candidates were decided upon." (According to sources in the young Republican groups, eight spots in the Republican slate were determined at a meeting last Friday presided over by Fred V. Johnson, chairman of the Republican central committee.)

"As far as I know," said Mrs. Howell, "the last meeting of the entire committee was held last December in my home." She also pointed out that the women of the central committee are often called upon to do a major share of the work at election time.

The four point resolution passed by the young Republican groups called for (1) faith in the principles of the Republican party (2) support of all nominated Republican candidates in the city election, (3) greater participation in party activities for interested Republicans and (4) participation in party caucus for the Republican central committee, the Women's Republican club, the Republican Veterans league and all interested Republicans.

The only recent addition to the GOP slate was Edwin Morley, 920 Sixth avenue, who filed yesterday for fifth ward alderman. This leaves Jack commissioner and alderman for the first ward as the only unfilled positions on the slate.

Republicans Robert T. Davis and Carl E. Redenbaugh have both filed for fourth ward alderman. Since both candidates are highly regarded by the young Republican groups, it is expected that the conflict will be resolved with one of the candidates filing for another vacancy—possibly park commissioner.

A heated contest in the Democratic primary race loomed apparent last night as James Callahan firmly announced his intention to file for alderman for the first ward "before Jan. 21."

City chairman James Meade described Jule F. Kasper, who filed yesterday for the same position as "the candidate endorsed by the central committee."

Meade and Callahan had a heated argument over the Water Service company's recently defeated franchise at the Democratic caucus last Tuesday night when Meade withheld the central committee's endorsement from Callahan as a candidate.

The only other candidate to file for office yesterday was John L. Stahmer, 534 S. Lucas, who entered the primary race for fifth ward alderman.

Cooper, Thomas Win Scout Merit Badges

Iowa City's boy scouts Jack Cooper and Bill Thompson of troop 2 were named eligible last night by a district board of review to receive six merit badges each.

The review was conducted by Sgt. Willis A. Hintz, district advancement chairman, and Sgt. Glenn Van Horne, new board member.

Plans have been made to hold the review at regular 60-day intervals. The next will be March 20.

MRS. HAHN DIES HERE
Mrs. Carrie Hahn, 61, of Malard, Iowa, died yesterday in University hospital. She had been a patient there since Dec. 21. Her husband preceded her in death.

There are 45 different kinds of steel used in the manufacture of one medium-priced brand of automobile.

Local AYD Plans Petition for Higher Vets' Subsistence

The Wallace chapter of American Youth for Democracy laid plans yesterday for renewed effort to get signatures for a petition to congress seeking higher veterans' subsistence.

The petition would increase the present allotment for veterans attending school under the GI bill to $100 a month, with an additional $25 for each dependent. Originally circulated Dec. 12, the petition now has about 400 signatures, according to Secretary Elaine Glasser.

It is part of national AYD's drive for 100,000 signatures backing a subsistence increase plan to be presented to the 80th congress.

A solicitation booth will be set up in Bremer's Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, Miss Glasser said.

A tentative program of activities is to be submitted to membership next month. It is concerned with race relations and problems, labor rights against government injunctions and "the educational crisis."

"The educational crisis," discussed in a new AYD pamphlet, is concerned with "discrimination in entrance to colleges and universities because of race, creed or color, and a current shortage and inaccessibility of educational facilities."

This pamphlet, together with one outlining the aims and story of AYD, has been sent to various university officials and officers in campus clubs and organizations, Miss Glasser said.

Bach Records Reading Of New Testament

One hour's portion of the complete reading of the New Testament was recorded recently on a sensitized wire by Dr. Marcus Bach of the school of religion.

The wire recording was made of a service held at the United Presbyterian church at Washington, Iowa, in observance of Universal Bible Sunday in December. The service began at 3 a. m. and a series of selected readers went through the text without a pause, finishing at 9 p. m.

The recording will be added to a collection made by Dr. Bach among American religious groups.

Chicago Tribune Opens Annual Fashion Contest; All Americans Eligible

The Chicago Tribune's 1947 American fashions competition was announced on campus yesterday.

Prizes totaling $6,000 will be awarded in the contest, which ends May 1.

Entries in the division featuring adult women's clothing are to consist of a design for any article or ensemble of women's outer wearing apparel suitable for introduction on the American market during the fall and winter of 1947 or the spring and summer of 1948.

Teen-age girls' outer wearing apparel will be entered in a second group.

Prizes to be awarded in the adult group include a $2,000 first prize, $1,000 second prize, $500 third prize and 30 awards of $50 each.

Teen-age group prizes are a $500 first prize and ten awards of $50 each.
All American citizens interested in competing may obtain further information about the contest from Miss Helen Focht of the office of student affairs. The office is in the basement of Old Capitol.

Siam has an area of 200,000 square miles, four times that of New York state.

Phi Beta Kappa Initiation Monday

Formal initiation for the 10 new members of Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity, will be held Monday at 5 p. m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

A banquet honoring the new initiates will be held at 6:15 p. m. in the Iowa Union River Room. Dean Earl J. McGrath of the liberal arts college will be the featured speaker.

Prof. E. A. Gilmore of the law college will address the new initiates and Julie Harvey, A4 of Okoboji, will respond for the initiates.

Committee for the banquet includes Mrs. Lloyd Knowler, Prof. Gladys Scott of the women's physical education department and Miss Ruth Gallaher of the State Historical society.

Phi Beta Kappa members wishing to attend the banquet should contact Mrs. Charles Strother before tomorrow noon.

UVA Dance Tickets For Sale in Book Line

Membership cards for the University Veteran's association and tickets for a UVA-sponsored dance will be on sale in the veteran's requisition line, women's gymnasium, during registration week, president Gordon Taylor said last night.

Dance tickets will sell for $2 a couple. Cost of membership is 50 cents a semester or $1 a year.

It's Tough All Over; Punch Your Card, Joe?

There's an old adage to effect that all's fair in love and war.

A Hillcrest resident might even have believed this until he picked up a recent issue of The Daily Iowan. In it he read that his girl friend—whose picture cheered him through the war and whom he faithfully visited all summer—had become engaged.

The saying ought to be changed to include the postwar era too, the veteran believes. She's engaged to another man living in his home town.

Christian Larsen New SAE President

Christian Larsen, A4 of Des Moines, was elected president of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity Wednesday night.

Other new officers are Donald Holmwood, A3 of Buffalo, N. Y., vice-president; Walt Kling, A3 of Bettendorf, treasurer; and Roger Strand, C4 of Des Moines, secretary.

Phi Delta Theta

New officers for Iowa Beta chapter of Phi Delta Theta were elected Wednesday night.

They are Dick Horkey, A2 of Iowa City, president; Ed Luce, A2 of Sioux City, warden; John McTavish, E2 of Estherville, secretary; Jack Weidman, A2 of Sac City, treasurer; and Dick Baxter, C of Mt. Pleasant, rushing chairman.

SUI 'Religion in Life' Week to Present Ten of Nation's Top Church Leaders

Students to Discuss Racial, Social Issues in Seminar Groups

Religion In Life week, which begins Feb. 9, will bring to the campus ten nationally known leaders in the field of religion. They will speak to student and campus groups both in the churches and classrooms and lead seminar discussions throughout the week.

Beginning next week, students may sign up for the seminar groups, according to Executive Secretary Margo Larson.

After polling 200 university students by letter and through housing units, the seminar committee chose six topics for seminar discussion: inter-racial understanding, road to successful marriage, social and economic issues, fundamentals of Christian faith, inter-faith understanding, and religion and science.

Twenty-seven housing units have already invited leaders for dinner meetings in addition to scheduled seminars and talks. Special meetings, luncheons and "bull sessions" are being planned by university church groups and the YWCA. Arrangements will also be made for personal conferences during the week.

The primary objectives of Religion In Life week are to present to the university community the priority of moral and spiritual character, and to bring here leaders from outside the community to interpret that process and contribute every area of thought, Mrs. Larson explained.

The Religion In Life committee was organized last November to begin plans for Religion In Life week, and includes 13 chairmen, 21 faculty members and religious leaders as advisers, and 75 students as members. Helen Zimmerman of Waterloo is student chairman of the executive committee. The local university committee worked with the nationally organized University Christian missions and Student Christian council in setting up the program.

Issues Film Catalog

The 1946-47 catalog of visual aids for classroom use has just been issued by the extension division's visual instruction bureau.

Police Chief Testifies in Murder Trial

Tells of Questioning Patton After Knifing In Defendant's Home

By CAROL RACKER

Police Chief O. A. White's testimony yesterday concerning his questioning of William Patton concurred with parts of testimony given Wednesday by two eyewitnesses to the fatal knifing of Ernest R. Brown.

The trial went into its third day yesterday. Patton, who was indicted by the grand jury Dec. 7 for first degree murder, entered a plea of "not guilty." In the opening statement Wednesday his attorney, Clair Hamilton, said the defense would prove that Patton acted in self defense.

Wednesday afternoon Lewis Stucker and Dora Parsons had told the grand jury that Patton hadn't advanced past the kitchen door when he asked them to leave. Both said he made no threatening movements toward the trio in the living room.

Miss Parsons said she saw Brown go towards Patton and kick a knife from his hand.

Chief White told the jury that Patton, in telling later in the morning of the stabbing what happened earlier, said that Brown came at him with a knife in his hand and kicked the bayonet from his (Patton's) hand.

White said he informed Patton before questioning that anything he said would be used against him. White also said that Patton refused to sign a statement when he and County Attorney Jack C. White questioned Patton again the next day.

Patton told Chief White that he told his wife to get "those people" (Brown, Stucker and Miss Parsons) out of the house and then picked up the knives and asked them to leave.

Patton said he pushed his wife away because he "didn't want her behind him and Brown in front," Chief White reported.

"Patton said he wasn't clear what happened after Brown kicked the knife from his hand," White reported. He said Patton was in good spirits and smiled freely when questioned.

Policeman Harland Sprinkle who was with Chief White during the questioning said that in answer to questions about the butcher knife, Patton said he had sharpened it at the D and L for the purpose of cutting meat.

When Sprinkle said to Patton, "You sure did cut meat," the reply was, "I sure did." Sprinkle said that when Patton was informed Sunday noon (Nov. 24) that Brown was dead, he became sick and vomited.

Other witnesses yesterday were: Coroner Frank L. Love, who testified Brown died of hemorrhage; Mayor Wilber J. Teeters, who analyzed blood on the knives; Jack Wischmeier, apprentice mortician who drove Brown to the hospital; Harold J. Birch, who was in the ambulance with Wischmeier; Dr. George Bedell, Dr. Kenneth B. Stoelting; Dr. Michael F. Kelleher, and Dr. Carl A. Jacobs.

The four doctors testified that Brown died of hemorrhage and that he didn't respond to shock treatment, oxygen and artificial respiration and that plasma was given intravenously to no avail. Dr. Bedell described Brown as "out of his head" when he was brought to the hospital.

G. R. Hall, Bernard Hauber, Arthur A. Schnoebelen, Laurence Hamm, Emmett H. Potter and Edwin Ruppert, all members of the Iowa city police force, told their part in answering a call to the Patton residence, getting the injured men to the hospital, taking pictures of the Patton residence and the victim, Brown, and guarding Patton while he was hospitalized.

Introduced as evidence today were the three knives used by Patton and Brown, shirt and shorts belonging to Brown and pictures of the Patton home.

Introduction of pictures of Brown after he died and a copy of his hospital record were objected to by Hamilton, and Judge Harold D. Evans reserved his decision on the objections and the pictures and record were not admitted as evidence.

The courtroom was more crowded than on previous days of the trial and many people were not admitted. The room began

Vets Quitting School Should Notify VA

Veterans attending the university under the G. I. bill (public law 346) were urged yesterday to notify the veterans' administration guidance center in E-116 East hall if they plan to discontinue their education at the end of the present semester. Men attending under public law 16 are not affected by this announcement.

The proper interruption form should be completed at that office as soon as possible by those leaving school for any reason, Morgan L. Morris, training officer in charge of the center, said.

Veterans may apply at that time for unused leave accumulated while in school. This is figured at two-and-a-half days a month of training but is not available if that much time has been counted filling up at 12:30 p. m. for the 2 p. m. session. Court convenes again today at 9 a. m.

in absence from school other than vacation time.

Leave time granted is deducted from total eligibility, Morris said, and must be applied for in order to be granted.

The guidance center office is open from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday through Friday.

lected because of their scholarship, seriousness of purpose, moral character and need of financial assistance. Incumbents are eligible for reappointment. No Roberts fellows may pursue, as majors, the studies of law, medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, or theology. Each fellowship provides an annual stipend of $1100. The fellows also receive once, and once only, the cost of transportation from Iowa to New York and return. In accepting the award the holder must state his purpose to return to the state of Iowa for a period of at least two years following the completion of his studies at Columbia University.

Immediately after March 1 the colleges will be notified of the applicants from each institution and requested to furnish comparative ratings.

GERMAN PH.D. READING TEST
The German Ph.D. reading test will be given Wednesday, Jan. 22, at 4 p. m. in room 104, Schaeffer hall. Those expecting to take the test should sign up in room 101, Schaeffer hall, before Tuesday, Jan. 21.

Maybe a Bad Driver Parked a Bulldozer

One city parking meter was stolen, another torn up and thrown into the street and a third tampered with during the early morning hours yesterday.

The missing meter and the uprooted meter were found on the south side of Washington street near the Clinton street intersection. The third meter was on Capitol street in front of Strub's department store.

Police estimated damage to the uprooted meter at $5.

Riverdale Co-op Grocery Store to Open Jan. 24 in Village Lagoon Shelter House

Ford Named Manager; Prof. Hickman Chosen To Advise Directors

BILL FORD

The cooperative grocery store for faculty members in emergency housing and for all university married students is scheduled to open Friday, Jan. 24. It is now being completed in the stone shelter house at Riverdale village lagoon.

Robert Riggs, chairman of the store's board of directors, also disclosed yesterday that Bill Ford, 404 S. Linn street, has been appointed to manage the store. Prof. C. Addison Hickman of the college of commerce will act as adviser to the board of directors, Riggs said.

Meat Concession
No one has been selected to manage the meat concession at the store yet, but Riggs said the opening date will not be affected if that position has not been filled by then.

Ford is a veteran of five years' service in the army with the 113th cavalry and saw two and one-half years' duty overseas before being discharged 13 months ago. Since that time he has been employed at a local grocery store where he worked prior to entering the army.

Shelving for the store should be installed by the end of this week, according to Riggs. The shelving design was made by Harold A. Hudachek of Riverdale village. Installation work is being done by villagers in their spare time.

Insurance Coverage
Arrangements for complete insurance coverage for the store should be completed this week, Riggs said, and a check-out clerk will be chosen from four student-wife applicants.

The store now has approximately 150 members, according to Roger Barnet of the board of directors, and new members may join at any time.

Membership is $25 a share and is open to faculty members living in university emergency housing and to all university married students. Membership money is refunded when a member leaves the university or stops trading there for any other reason. Dividends will be paid periodically on the basis of business done with the store by each member.

The store was authorized for establishment on university property Nov. 23. Its charter was approved by the Iowa secretary of state last month.

A similar store for the Pinkbine golf course housing area will be considered when that project is nearer completion, according to President Virgil M. Hancher's November letter of approval for the present store.

Local Red Cross Aids Overseas Plan

The local chapter of the American Red Cross in Johnson county is participating in a nationwide Red Cross, army and club arrangement program for overseas troops.

Under this plan, now in operation in 328 Red Cross clubs in Europe and the Orient, the recreation places are staffed by Red Cross girls but most of the food and beverages is obtained and sold by the army.

General maintenance personnel and quarters for the clubs also are supplied by the army. Community chapters of the American Red Cross, now in its fourth year of supplying recreation and morale activities to members of the armed forces overseas, supplies trained personnel to manage and supervise the club programs.

Centennial Seal Pictures Old Capitol

The official centennial seal to appear on University of Iowa letterheads has recently been designed and made ready for use by a man from Illinois.

The centennial device, designed by Raymond DeBoll of Chicago, described as one of the top men in the nation in the field of lettering, pictures the dome of Old Capitol, Iowa's first territorial and state headquarters, and now the university administration building.

The seal commemorates the founding of the state university Feb. 25, 1847, to be celebrated by a birthday dinner Feb. 25.

Prof. F. G. Higbee, chairman of the centennial committee, reports that the guest list of about 600 persons for the centennial dinner has been completed. The list includes representatives of the state government, faculty, alumni, and students as well as representatives of other education institutions in Iowa.

First Postwar Military Ball Set for Tonight

Freddy Nagel and his 15 piece orchestra will play for the ROTC-sponsored Military ball tonight.

Twenty-one Scottish Highlanders will furnish music for the entry and presentation of the honorary cadet colonel, cadets and officers during the intermission. The drum dance will be given by Barbara Ginter, Joan Carter, Beverly Dahl, Mary Gillen and Mildred Pell will perform the sword dance.

The awarding of Minute Man medals, 12 of which have been won by first year ROTC students, will follow the presentation ceremonies at 10 o'clock.

WSUI will broadcast the dance music from 9:30 to 10 o'clock.

Nagel's orchestra features one of the country's largest libraries of college and fraternity songs. He was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity at Stanford university. In addition to his featured "sophisticated saxophone," Freddy Nagel can play most of the instruments in his band—trumpet, flute, violin, clarinet, guitar, drums and half a dozen Latin-American instruments.

Tickets for the ball are still available to students, faculty members and the general public at Iowa Union lobby desk.

The Party Line

Theta Xi
Theta Xi fraternity will entertain at a formal dinner-dance at Jefferson Hotel tomorrow night from 6:30 to 12 midnight. Chaperons are Mrs. Robert Glen, Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Knowler, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cambridge and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Blomgren. Fex Muller and his band will provide music.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE OF FASHION

TO RELAX THE ATTRACTIVE way, take a lesson from experts Jeanne and JoAnn Thein, A1 of Oelwein. Currier's blonde twins model their clever midriff lounging pajamas of spun rayon with sprays of colorful flowers on a white background. These outfits have gathered a generous following of girls who are looking for comfortable outfits to wear while studying for finals and writing term papers. (DAILY IOWAN PHOTO BY DOROTHY COWGER)

TO MARRY

MRS. EMMA QULL of San Diego, Calif., formerly of Cedar Rapids, announces the engagement of her daughter, Ruth Ingrid, to the Rev. Fred J. W. Weltge, son of Rev. and Mrs. Fred J. Weltge of Nashville, Ill. Miss Quill was graduated from Bismarck high school, Bismarck, N. D., and State Teachers college at Valley City, N. D. She is now a junior in the school of nursing at the University. Prior to his military service The Reverend Weltge was pastor of the Evangelical and Reformed church at Dysart.

TO WED JAN. 31

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brand of Rock Island, Ill., of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Marie, to Robert O. Baker, son of Mrs. Edith Baker of Cherokee. Miss Brand is sophomore in the college of liberal arts at the university and her fiancé is a sophomore commerce student. The wedding will take place Jan. 31 at St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Mrs. Matt Dvorsky, 133 Park street, The infant weighed 6 pounds, 5 ounces.

Phyllis Peet, A2 of Martelle, will spend the weekend at the home of her parents.

Betty Lou Newman, A4, Eastlawn, will spend the weekend in Edgewood with her husband, Dr. D.W. Newman Jr.

Sally Lu Haskell, A3 of Evanston, Ill., Delta Gamma, will spend the weekend at Northwestern university where she will attend the Alpha Delta Phi winter formal.

Jackson-McDonald Vows Exchanged

At a double ring ceremony Wednesday, Shirley Jackson became the bride of Ray V. McDonald in the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Richard Black near Iowa City.

The Rev. G.M. Ludwig performed the service before a window decorated with green smilax and bouquets of gladiola, Japanese iris, white chrysanthemums and red roses.

H.R. Jackson gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white floor length dress of satin and net, and a white net and velvet Juliet cap. Her flowers were gardenias and pink roses on a white Bible, arranged with white ribbon streamers and rose buds.

After Jan. 19 the couple will be at home at 730 E. College street.

Mrs. McDonald is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.R. Jackson of Des Moines. She is a graduate of Iowa City high school and attended the University of Iowa.

Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C.H. McDonald, route

6. He graduated from University high school in Iowa City and will enroll at the university next semester.

Three Iowa City Women To Attend State Meeting

Three Iowa City women will attend the winter board meeting of the League of Women Voters to be held in Hotel Commodore in Des Moines at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon.

Those attending are Mrs. Elmer De Gowin, state president; Mrs. Alexander Kern, state secretary and Ethel Martin, legislative chairman, who is substituting for Eliabeth Halsey, president of the local league.

Definite plans for working on the legislative program will be made at this time. The Iowa league pledged at its last convention to work on legislation for improving the state institutions under the board of control, the educational system in Iowa, and child welfare.

An act enabling communities to use federal money for low cost housing and removing the ceilings on family allowances are also on the legislative program.

Elected officers, chairmen of departments and committees from each of the local leagues in Iowa will attend the board meeting. Senator LeRoy Mercer and Representative Frank Krall, both of Iowa City, will also attend.

Boys Go Home Again—To Face Theft Charge

Three teen-age Chicago boys who have been held by police here since Tuesday will be taken to Illinois to face an auto theft charge.

Elbert W. McKinney, 14, was arrested on N. Lucas street Tuesday as he was changing a tire on a car he told police he stole in Chicago. His companions, Anthony J. Novakovich, 14, and Thomas Denning, 16, were arrested earlier Tuesday on charges of snatching a purse from Mrs. Josie C. Moon, 728 E. College street.

Police said a United States marshal probably will take the boys to Davenport, where they will be turned over to federal authorities from Illinois.

Meetings, Speeches—Town 'n' Campus

Visiting Jeanne Ann Stieglitz, A4 of Des Moines, Chi Omega, this weekend is Milton Boice Couch of Lakewood, N.J.

Maurice Orpin of Grinnell will be a guest of Joan Smith, A3 of Iowa Falls, Chi Omega, this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. W.A. Anderson, 530 Ferson avenue, will entertain Sunday afternoon at a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fippinger and Mr. and Mrs. George Moeller. Mrs. Fippinger is the former Jean Sass of Ames. Other guests will be student members of the Canterbury club, Dr. and Mrs. Charles B. Righter, Rev. and Mrs. Fred Putnom and Rebecca Davis.

Gregor Platigorsky, acclaimed the greatest living cellist, was entertained after his concert in Iowa Union Wednesday night in the apartment of Mary and Robert Iversen. A Dutch lunch was served. Five persons attended.

Guests from Milwaukee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weber, 707 River street, are Mrs. C.G. Weber and son Robert.

6 ounces was born yesterday in Mercy hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Ralston Knoregar of Hills.

Joanne Weenis and Mary Higgins of Des Moines will be weekend guests of Patricia Lounsbury, A1 of Des Moines, at Currier. Both girls are freshmen at Marycrest college in Davenport.

Vivian Allen, A2 of Dubuque, Chi Omega, will have as her guest this weekend Dick Durham of Iowa State college at Ames.

Mrs. Harold Clearman, 1209 E. Bowery, has planned a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Lester Dyke, 422 N. Clinton, who will move to Sheldon soon. The luncheon will be Tuesday noon in the private dining room of Iowa Union.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson, 629 S. Governor street, are the parents of a daughter, born Tuesday in Mercy hospital.

Mrs. C.A. Bowman, 309 Iowa avenue, has returned from Minneapolis, Minn., where she visited relatives.

Leila Hammel, A4 of Riverside, Ill., Eastlawn, will visit in Keelsburg, Ill., this weekend, attending the wedding of Imogene McCaw.

After 10 Years, SUI Physicists—

Prepare to Test Atom Smasher

By BOB THOMPSON

Workmen talk in loud and happy voices and tools clink musically against metal in an underground room just east of the physics building.

Later this month the same room may be filled with the hum of motors and electronic equipment, while the same workmen, tensely alert, bend over their instruments and touch sensitive controls.

For the university's atom smasher—a pressure type electrostatic generator housed in that room—has reached the stage of final assembly. Physics department staff members, with their fingers crossed, hope the big machine may be tested in actual operation within a month, climaxing a program of nuclear research begun here 10 years ago.

Prof. James J. Jacobs of the physics department heads the project, which currently employs four other full time technicians and four research assistants working for advanced degrees.

The whole idea, according to Jacobs, is to find out "exactly" what happens when the nuclei of two atoms are smashed together, and why it happens.

Bombard Atoms

Nature's smallest and toughest entity, the atom with all its component parts is only about one hundred-millionth of an inch in diameter. Plainly it's impossible to pick up a fistful of atoms and crush them like walnuts. Beside that, the particles that form the atom nucleus are attracted to one another so strongly it is necessary to bombard them with other particles traveling with terrific velocity.

That will be the function of the electro-static generator. It will hurl atom nuclei together at speeds up to 20,000 miles per second.

Here's the whole picture as explained by Jacobs, a remarkably youthful looking man known familiarly to his colleagues as "Jake."

"All matter is composed of atoms," he began. "An atom is composed of a nucleus and small particles called electrons. The nucleus is formed by combinations of other particles called protons and neutrons. 'Nuclear physics' is the science of the nucleus.

"By smashing these nuclei together," Jacobs continued, "it's possible to break them up or transform them to nuclei of another element." This change is called transmutation.

Scientists have probed the secret of transmutation since ancient times, but it was not until 1919 that man was able to penetrate the barrier around the atom nucleus and alter its characteristics so completely that one element was changed into another.

Nuclear research should receive a sizeable boost when the Iowa machine goes into action, since the only larger atom smashers of its type are still in the planning stages at the University of California and at Los Alamos, N. M. In the Midwest, universities in Minnesota and Wisconsin have similar, but smaller, machines.

Planned Projects

Research projects contemplated by Jacobs and his "second in command," Dr. John Richardson, are studies of how nuclei split up and observations of the reactions of the nuclei; these include products of the splitting such as alpha and beta particles, gamma radiation, and the energies released.

This type of research led to the development of the atomic bomb and has produced radioactive materials used in tracing the use of minerals in the human body.

New uses for radioactive substances are found daily. In medicine, cancer, leukemia and disorders of the thyroid gland all respond to the power of the ubiquitous atom. Central heating with atomic power may be a reality by 1950—and the field of atom power for supersonic projectiles and space ships has yet to be explored.

Problems in operation of the huge machine have cropped up continually. One of the first was the maintenance of a suitable vacuum in the 22-foot accelerator tube, which is exhausted by mechanical and oil diffusion pumps to a pressure of about one billionth of normal atmosphere.

Pumps had to be redesigned especially for use with the new generator. Four are now used to exhaust the "barrel" of the atomic cannon, each pump handling 250 litres of air a second at the pressure of the tube.

Headache number two came when the staff found the insulating columns supporting the center electrode had warped. This shifted the electrode out of alignment with the tube, but staff members discovered new textelite columns could not be obtained for six months.

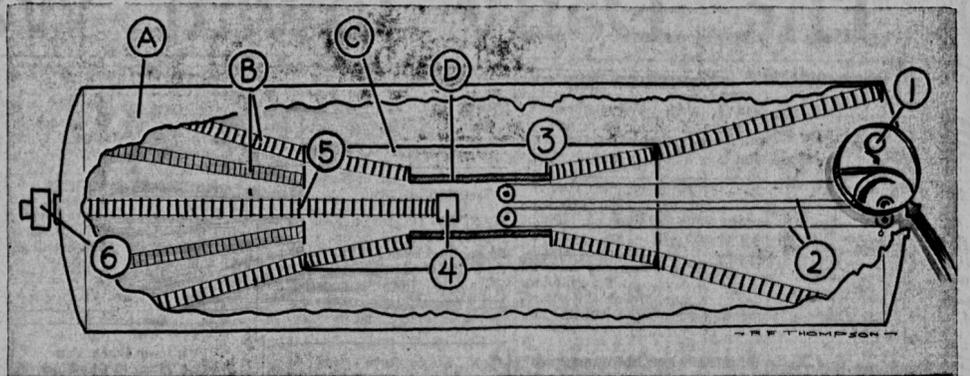

Dr. Richardson and the staff solved the problem by using one or two replacement units already on hand and interchanging and turning the other parts of the columns until the electrode was returned to the correct position.

Ion Source

Still to be selected is the "ion source" for the atom smasher, a problem which rests upon the shoulders of mild-mannered Art Youmans, a research assistant working for a master's degree.

"Ions" in most cases will be

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS

THIS SIMPLIFIED DRAWING of the electro-static generator shows (A) the 50-foot airtight steel tank; (B) textelite insulators supporting (C) the secondary tank and (D) the electrode. In operation, a charge of electricity is sprayed by a row of needles (1, right) on a pair of canvas belts (2) and is picked up by another row of needles on the electrode (3). Static electricity in the electrode may build up to six million volts. Ionized particles created in the chamber (4) are repelled by the static charge in the electrode and hurtle through the accelerator tube (5) at speeds of 20,000 miles a second to strike target atoms in the target chamber (6). Proportions of the tank have been changed in the drawing for clarity.

LOOKING FROM OUTSIDE IN

INSIDE THE ATOM SMASHER, peering through a jungle of apparatus, Charles Grimm (left) and Dr. John Richardson, staff members of the nuclear physics project, crouch in the secondary tank while making final adjustments on the long accelerator tube stretching into the foreground. Ringed columns are textelite insulators that support the secondary tank and the electrode.

To Hold Waterman Services Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Earle L. Waterman, 231 Fairview avenue, will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the Trinity Episcopal church with the Rev. Fred W. Putnam officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Waterman died Thursday night at University hospital following an extended illness.

Survivors include her husband, Prof. Earle L. Waterman, head of the civil engineering department of the college of engineering, one daughter, Anne; three sisters, Mrs. David Sternbergh of York, Pa., Constance Votey, enroute to this country from Greece where she worked for UNRRA, and Dorothy Votey of St. Augustine, Fla.

Mrs. Waterman was a member of the Trinity Episcopal church, E.O.S., Nineteenth Century club, Iowa City Craft guild, Phi Beta Kappa and Kappa Alpha Theta in which capacity she served as a member of the alumni advisory board and a trustee in the corporation.

Born in Burlington, Vt., she was graduated from the University of Vermont. She was married to Professor Waterman in 1910. They have lived in Iowa City the past 25 years.

DAV Tables Action On Shick Hospital Use

Action on the question of reopening the Shick hospital at Clinton for veterans was tabled at a meeting Tuesday night of Old Gold post 19, Disabled American Veterans.

Representatives elected to attend the DAV state committee meeting and service officers school at Ames, Jan. 26, are H. Earl Benson and William Jolly.

the nuclei of hydrogen atoms, which consist of a single proton and will be commonly used as projectiles in smashing other nuclei. In a process known as "ionization," electrons are knocked off the hydrogen atoms, leaving only the positively charged nuclei called "ions."

The ions are then passed into the evacuated accelerator tube to be hurled at the target by the repellent force of the high voltage accumulated in the electrode.

"It's mainly a problem of design," Youmans described his work matter-of-factly. The gas in the ion source is at comparatively high pressure, and not all of it can be ionized. The problem is to have a concentrated and well defined beam of ions without allowing too much gas to enter the tube.

"There are two or three common ways to produce the ions, but they have yet to be compared under similar conditions," he concluded.

Dr. Richardson pointed out that the selection of the ion source for the Iowa machine would depend on the conclusions reached by Youmans in his experiments with different sources.

Finally, when the electro-static generator is in operation, the terrific voltage accumulation causes "breakdown" or "sparkover," which means simply that lightning begins to flash inside the big tank.

To inhibit this spark jump, the pressure inside the tank is raised to 100 or 125 pounds per square inch. Pure nitrogen will be used to lessen the fire danger, and later for maximum efficiency, nitrogen will be used in combination with certain other gases.

"This means," said Dr. Richardson, "that we have to sink another tank almost as big as this one before we can get maximum voltage in the electrode."

Then there's a problem that doesn't involve technical terms or apparatus. It's just that floor of the tank room is flooded regularly by rains or thaws. A bursting fire hydrant deposited an inch of water and considerable mud on the floor only last week. The staff hopes to get this inconvenience licked this summer.

Eerie Room

The tank room is an eerie place. Reached through the fan room and a winding corridor, it has rough poured concrete walls and floor. This 50-foot tank, constructed of seven-eighths inch steel, seems sinister and grotesque as high-voltage apparatus usually does to the layman.

Unshaded electric lights illuminate the room, turning pipes and electric cables into a confusion of shadows. A winding, damp corridor connects the tankroom with another concrete cubicle from which the operation of the machine will be controlled. Deadly radiation transforms the tankroom into a lethal chamber during actual operation.

The staff members seem un-mindful of this potential danger, however, and sash cheerfully through puddles to work on the big tank. Beside Jacobs and Richardson, three other technicians—George S. Carson, Charles Grimm, and Oliver Smith—spend all their time on the project.

Other research assistants are William Nickell, John Wahl, Robert Holland, Philip Malmberg and Lloyd Herwig.

Mrs. Brodie hits the roof!

No, no, this isn't a new Atom Bomb! It's merely Mrs. Brodie, after a quiet family conference with Mr. Brodie. Mr. B. made a few sharp remarks about their family budget.

Naturally, Mrs. Brodie hit the roof! And, like the cost of living, her temper kept right on going up and UP!

On the other hand, the cost of gas and electricity, like Mr. Brodie's popularity at home, is way down.

The Brodies (and you, too, if you are an average customer of this company) receive plenty of gas and electricity for every budget dollar—approximately twice as much as 15 years ago!

This domestic bargain took plenty of practical planning and technical skill on the part of your friends and neighbors in this Company, under sound business management. You helped, too, by your increased use of these services.
