Marshall Nails Soviet Protest On Acheson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall yesterday rejected a Russian protest that Undersecretary Dean Acheson had made remarks "rudely slanderous and hostile to the Soviet Union."

MARSHALL

Marshall's reply, delivered to Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in Moscow, staunchly defended Acheson as having spoken "in line of duty" in telling the senate atomic committee that Russia's foreign policy is "aggressive and expanding."

"You are thoroughly familiar with the constitutional system of this nation," Marshall told Molotov, "including the separation of powers between the legislative and executive branches of this government."

"In accordance with our system an officer of the executive branch, called before a committee of the legislative branch, is under a duty to answer frankly relevant questions not involving a matter of public interest."

"The conduct of the undersecretary, therefore, in answering the question frankly and in accordance with his conscience can not be described as inadmissible, but was rather in line of duty."

"You characterize the content of his statement as a rude slander and hostile to the Soviet Union. Under our standards, a restrained comment on a matter of public policy is not a slander."

"Therefore, I know that on second thought you will not attribute hostility to frankness."

Marshall's letter cited the fact that Acheson made his comment in reply to questioning by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.), who had asked him:

"Now, assuming that Russia is reaching out for additions to her territory, do you not believe that if she gets this bomb discovery, she would take not only the remainder of Europe but perhaps the remainder of the world?"

In reply, Acheson said: "I am quite aware of the fact that Russian foreign policy is an aggressive and expanding one."

But, he said, the United Nations is attempting to find means for solving problems of that sort.

GOP Senators Vote $4 1/2-Billion Slash In Truman Budget

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republicans, confronted by army-navy warnings against risking the nation's military security, voted 22 to 19 yesterday to hold the proposed budget cut to $4,500,000,000, rather than $6-billion.

Chairman Knutson (R-Minn.) of the house ways and means committee said the smaller slash would throw overboard all prospects of a 20 percent tax cut, and require a smaller percentage of tax relief.

A conference of senate Republicans threw out the $6-billion figure after three of their leaders, Senators Taft of Ohio, Vandenberg of Michigan and White of Maine were reported to have declared in the closed door session that, now is not the time for America to disarm, with the peace of the world unsettled.

Under the proposed $6-billion slash, a $1,750,000,000 cut was understood to be contemplated in President Truman's request of $11,200,000,000 for the armed services.

The $4,500,000,000 slash would trim the president's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 from $37,500,000,000 down to $33-billion.

The senate begins formal debate on the budget issue today and Millikin, chairman of the finance committee, told reporters "it would seem that the $4,500,000,000 would be sure to prevail."

Meanwhile, house Democrats cried "gag rule" at a Republican move in that body to ban any amendments to the resolution calling for a $6,000,000,000 budget reduction, when that body comes to a vote on Thursday.

The $6,000,000,000 figure appeared sure to prevail in the house voting, with indications that the senate and house later might come to a compromise on a cut of about $5,000,000,000.

Knutson, in addition to appearing gloomy at the prospect of a full 20 percent tax cut, said that the delay caused by the budget battle is diminishing daily the prospect that any tax relief can be made retroactive to Jan. 1, as he had planned, and whatever relief is voted may now be effective as of July 1.

Millikin said he would offer the $4,500,000,000 figure as an amendment to the resolution by Senator Bridges (R-NH) calling for a $6,000,000,000 slash when the budget is taken up in the senate.

'Red Arrow' Jumps Rails; At Least 25 Killed

RESCUERS CARRY Sgt. Melvin Drumm, a 28-year-old soldier, from the wreckage of one of the coaches of the wrecked "Red Arrow," a Pennsylvania train which jumped the track near Altoona, Pa. (AP WIREPHOTO)

ALTOONA, PA. (AP)—Twenty-five persons met death on a jagged Pennsylvania mountainside in the pre-dawn darkness yesterday and 124 others were injured when a crack Pennsylvania railroad passenger train plunged over a 150-foot embankment.

Many of the injured were reported "critical" in Altoona hospital and likely to die. The bodies were brought from the death scene two miles from scenic "Horseshoe Curve" to Altoona from the time of the crash at 3:25 o'clock this morning to early evening.

The dead included 16 passengers, six railway mail clerks, and three members of the crew—an engineer and two firemen—which manned the twin locomotives in the train's hard climb over the mountains. The 14-car "Red Arrow," enroute from Detroit to New York, suddenly left the rails as it headed into Bennington Curve, two miles west of the horseshoe in the heart of the scenic Allegheny mountains.

In a matter of seconds, it was a mass of twisted steel, many of its sleeping passengers trapped in the torn and jagged wreckage. Their possessions were spilled crazily over the growth-entangled mountainside.

A railroad spokesman said the speed limit over the winding snake-like railpath was 19 miles per hour. The train was 50 minutes late. The two locomotives plunged from the rails, tore up several hundred feet of the two west-bound tracks and then dived into gum tree hollow. With the two engines went a combination coach and baggage car, one diner and three sleepers. Another coach and combination baggage car and coach toppled over on their sides along the rails while three other sleepers were derailed but remained upright. The last four cars of the train stayed on the rails.

EISLER CITED FOR CONTEMPT WASHINGTON (AP)—Gerhard Eisler, labeled the "supreme" communist authority in the United States, was cited in congress Tuesday for "willful and deliberate" contempt of the house committee on un-American activities.

Britain to Import Labor LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee announced in the house of commons yesterday that the Labor government was considering the possibility of bringing displaced persons from continental Europe to work in British coal mines and other vital industries.

Land Mine Blast Injures 3 JERUSALEM (AP)—Three British soldiers were injured last night when their truck was blasted by a land mine near Jerusalem, and at least five other explosions were reported elsewhere in the troubled Holy Land.

Vets Appeal For Iowa Bonus

DES MOINES (AP)—Three representatives of veterans' organizations appealed to the house of representatives military and veterans affairs committee yesterday to give the people of Iowa an opportunity to decide whether a bonus shall be paid veterans of World War II.

The men appeared at a committee public hearing on the proposed $90,000,000 bonus bill. Committee rules prevented the group from taking any action on the measure yesterday. Prior to the hearing, petitions listing the names of about 2,000 Iowans were presented to the committee asking favorable action on the bill.

The sub-committee which studied the bill previously voted 2 to 1 against it. To become effective the proposal would have to be approved by the legislature and later by vote of the people. The $90,000,000 bond issue, to be paid off in 20 years, would finance bonuses ranging from $50 to $400.

Those who spoke in favor of the bill were Larry Organ, Des Moines, legislative representative of Disabled American Veterans; George A. Hartnett, Des Moines, legislative representative of Veterans of Foreign Wars; and Clarence Churchman, Council Bluffs, legislative representative of the AMVETS.

They said the legislature should pass the bill and give the people the right to decide on the matter. "If the boys are granted a bonus it will permit them to buy the things they need to re-establish themselves in business and homes," Hartnett said. "I believe the people want to give the boys this opportunity at the polls."

Hartnett told the committee several states had provided veterans' bonuses ranging from $100 in New Hampshire to $925 in Illinois. Several other states, he added, have bonuses under consideration.

OK Bill to Let Insurance Associations Fix Rates DES MOINES (AP)—The Senate late yesterday passed legislation allowing Iowa insurance companies to form associations to fix premium rates under a system of regulation by the state insurance commissioner.

Two bills extending this authority to firms writing fire, marine, and casualty insurance policies were approved by a 35 to 12 vote and sent to the house.

Russia Submits 13 Proposals For Atomic Energy Control

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. (AP)—Soviet Russia submitted to the United Nations security council Tuesday 13 proposals intended to carry out its plan for separate international conventions to outlaw atomic weapons and to put atomic control under the security council.

The effect of the Russian action would be to throw out the report of the United Nations atomic energy commission, now before the council, the heart of the atomic control plan advocated by the United States.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate to the security council and to the atomic commission, demanded last Friday that the nations agree now on a convention outlawing the use of atomic energy for warlike purposes.

As the next step, he proposed Tuesday that an effective system of control be established by separate convention "which must be administered within the framework of the security council."

This would leave the veto right in the council undisturbed and would run against the solid United States position that no veto must apply anywhere on atomic matters.

This convention, Gromyko proposed, would establish an international control commission which would carry out the day-to-day duties involved in international control. Inspection and control organs under this commission would make decisions by majority rules and the veto power would not apply in them. Their work, however, would be subject to review by the security council.

Say Albania Committed 'Crime Against Humanity'

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. (AP)—Sir Alexander Cadogan, British delegate to the U.N. security council, charged Tuesday that Albania committed a "crime against humanity" by mining the Corfu channel where two British destroyers were damaged with a loss of 44 British sailors killed and 42 wounded last October 22. One of the destroyers was a total loss.

Cadogan read a 22-page statement and called on the council to decide:

1. "That an unnotified minefield was laid in the Corfu straits by the Albanian government or with its connivance, resulting in serious injury to his majesty's ships and loss of life and injury to their crews."
2. That Albania and Britain settle the dispute by direct negotiation or, failing in that, to call on the council for further action.
3. That the council keep watch over the case until it is settled.
4. That the council remind all countries to sweep or permit territorial waters to be swept free of mines.

Sadogan said attempts to settle the affair by direct negotiations outside the council had failed.

Most OPA Controls Will End Friday If Senate Cuts Fund

WASHINGTON (AP)—OPA Chief Max McCullough said Tuesday that all rationing and price control activities would end Friday if the senate passes a house-approved measure slashing $9,000,000 from OPA's current operating funds.

Republicans drove the bill through the house Tuesday despite Democratic protests against the cut in OPA funds.

Unless the senate reverses the house stand, McCullough told reporters, OPA will have to halt rent control, sugar rationing, and price controls on sugar, rice, and syrup as of the close of business Friday.

"Furthermore," he added, "the agency would have to halt immediately its enforcement activities, auditing of government subsidy payment claims, prosecution of court cases involving price control regulations and its enforcement of sales price limitations on homes built under last year's veterans emergency housing program."

The $9,000,000 cut was contained in a $139,360,000 deficiency appropriation bill.

Democrats in the house argued heatedly against the $9,000,000 cancellation in OPA's funds. Rep. McCormack (D-Mass.) asserted that the cut might make it necessary for OPA to abandon its rent and sugar control programs.

If rents soar and sugar prices climb to 30, 40 or 50 cents a pound, McCormack told Republicans, "The responsibility will rest with the Republican party."

Chairman Taber (R-N.Y.) of the appropriations committee insisted OPA will have enough money left—he estimated $18,000,000 "for an honest administration of this activity" between now and June 30 when the price control act expires. OPA's original allotment for this year was $75,000,000, which was augmented by a later fund of $26,000,000.

Want to Fight 'Anti-Labor' Laws First

WASHINGTON (AP)—The CIO last night accepted an invitation of the AFL to discuss merger of the two labor organizations.

CIO President Philip Murray agreed to appoint a committee of five headed by himself to discuss consolidation. He conditioned his acceptance by proposing cooperation first in fighting what he called anti-labor legislation.

Murray told a news conference he thought the two organizations should take "first steps first and then concern ourselves with other problems of unity of the organizations."

"If we are able to develop a common understanding upon those problems (legislation) and are able to effectuate this understanding then we may discuss other means to achieve common unity," Murray told reporters.

The amalgamation proposal was made in a letter from AFL President William Green written Jan. 31 at the Miami meeting of the federation's executive council. Green suggested that the only way to cooperate fully on the legislative front was to obtain "organic unity" by actual consolidation of the two groups.

Total membership of the proposed labor combine would exceed 13 1/2 million.

Green appointed a five-man committee consisting of himself, John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, William L. Hutchison of the Carpenters, Daniel J. Tobin of the Teamsters, and George Meany, AFL secretary-treasurer.

In addition to himself, Murray appointed on his committee Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Automobile Workers; Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the United Electrical Workers; Emil Rieve, president of the Textile Workers, and Jacob Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Both the Textile Workers and Amalgamated Clothing Workers were part of the original group within the AFL which formed the CIO as a Committee for Industrial Organization under Lewis' leadership. This led to the great division of labor over the principle of craft vs. industrial unionization.

Palestine Question May Not Reach UN Before September

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin announced yesterday that Britain probably would not refer the Palestine question to the United Nations until September, that she would make no recommendations as to the solution, and that Palestine immigration would remain for the time being at 1,500 Jews a month.

His disclosures evoked an immediate reply from Winston Churchill, who accused Bevin of "protraction and delay" in disposing of the bloody troubles of the Holy Land.

Bevin told the house that Britain had decided to turn the matter over to the United Nations because the League of Nations mandate had proved "unworkable" and the demands of Jews and Arabs "irreconcilable."

"We see great difficulty in having this matter considered by the United Nations before the regular session of the General Assembly in September."

Hickenlooper Raps McKellar's Conduct at Lillenthal Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—In a sharp voice, Chairman Hickenlooper (R, Iowa) of the senate atomic energy committee told Senator McKellar (D, Tenn.) late yesterday that his statements to a witness in the Lillenthal confirmation hearings were "completely and utterly inaccurate."

Hickenlooper told McKellar that "I resent the insinuation" that the five-man atomic energy commission, of which David E. Lillenthal has been nominated chairman, could turn over any atomic secrets to foreign nations without the consent of congress.

Obviously irked by McKellar's questioning of Harry Winne, a General Electric vice-president, Hickenlooper broke in with his declaration after the committee had been in continuous session almost four hours.

Earlier Senator McMahon (D, Conn.) had burst out that he had "listened to a lot of rag-tag and bob-tail that the senator from Tennessee had produced." He also said he resented McKellar's assertions that he (McMahon) had come into the hearing "with my mind made up."

Earlier, a letter purporting to discuss communist activities in the Tennessee Valley Authority during Lillenthal's chairmanship was denounced as a "fraud" by the man supposed to have written it.

Henry C. Hart, who admitted to some 18 months membership in the Communist party while working for TVA, told the senate atomic energy committee that the letter is "a fabrication out of the whole cloth. He declared it 'tragic that the great issues before this committee should be confused by a fraudulent document.'"

Hart was the only witness at the morning session. Through the alleged letter which bore his name, McKellar has been attempting to show that Communists were boring into the valley authority, and that Lillenthal should have known of their activities.

One floor above the committee room where Hart testified, Sen. Scott Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic whip, called the campaign to block Lillenthal's confirmation "a crude effort by reactionary forces to discredit a first-class public servant, and, indirectly, to discredit the Democratic administration he served so well."

"The substance of the charges against him is that his political philosophy is the same as the political philosophy of a man who so enjoyed the confidence of the American people that they chose him to be their president four times," Lucas said.

The Real Issue at Stake

The more we think about the current controversy over the confirmation of David Lilienthal as head of the Atomic Energy commission, the more we become convinced that there is only one real issue at stake—whether atomic energy development in this country will be controlled by the government or by private interests.

Charges of Communist and New Dealer are only a screen, we feel, for the true feelings of Lilienthal's opponents. Republican Senators Moore and Kem, for instance, attacked Lilienthal's advocacy of public power during his administration of TVA and contended that control of atomic energy should be left to the "American system of private initiative and free enterprise."

Lilienthal's opponents, it would therefore seem, are actually attacking the atomic energy control act itself—particularly the sections which provide that the public through the commission, is to be the owner of all fissionable material capable of producing atomic energy; and that patent rights for new methods of atomic power production are to be licensed by the commission and no one shall have such rights if the commission decides that the new method is "affected with the public interest."

The reactionary bloc of senators who have come out against Lilienthal are apparently concerned about the potential competition which atomic energy would give present power producing industries. The use of atomic energy as a source of power seemed a long way off when the control act was passed last summer, but great strides in this direction have been made in recent months.

Since the atomic energy commission has complete authority over what phases of atomic development will be turned over to private operators and to whom it will be given, a chairman who is friendly to private power development would make it easy for private companies to get virtual control of atomic development.

Lilienthal is not that type. He has always been a strong advocate of public power and he feels, as is right for the chairman of the commission to feel, that atomic energy is the property of public rather than private interest.

How could any sound, thinking American feel otherwise?

In the first place the atom, with its great power to destroy, should never be put into the hands of private interests for reasons which any soldier who was bombed by a Japanese air plane manufacturer from American scrap iron could give.

Secondly, public control of atomic energy, which means development in the public interest, is necessary if this powerful force is to provide the most good for the greatest numbers of people.

Thirdly, effective domestic control of atomic energy is prerequisite to the policy of international control through the United Nations to which this country is committed.

Perhaps it is time that many of our senators were taken aside and reminded that atomic energy is no ordinary material to be bought and sold for profit. The power of life and death which it holds over our civilization gentlemen, makes it a bit extraordinary.

Another item—the congressional atomic energy hearings. Over the week end I found myself becoming increasingly impatient with the disgraceful manner in which certain Republican senators have encouraged Kenneth McKellar, the patronage-minded Tennessee Democrat, in his campaign to block confirmation of David Lilienthal as chairman of the United States atomic energy commission.

We might well ask whether these GOP leaders—Bridges of New Hampshire, Wherry of Nebraska, Brickner of Ohio and White of Maine, to name but a few—have been conducting themselves recently as responsible public officials; whether, in fact, the public statements which they have issued in support of McKellar's anti-Lilienthal campaign actually represent the opinions of those voters who elected them to the nation's highest legislative office.

And what about that bit of Lincoln Day oratory delivered by Senator Taft, one of the chief Republican policy-makers in the eightieth congress? In advocating a "remodeling" of the reciprocal tariff act, which would, in effect, be the first step backward toward U.S. economic isolation, did Ohio's chief 1948 presidential hopeful truly speak for the rank and file of Republican voters throughout the country?

It would be unfair to charge that our political leadership is bankrupt. There are men of vision and courage and ability in both major parties. But their plans seem to be lost in the cloak of confusion and befuddlement which the little men of Washington, 1947, have drawn about our national destiny.

Top U.S. Political Leadership Proves To Be Disappointing

By LAWRENCE DENNIS
Daily Iowan Columnist

I wonder if you have felt, as I have these past few weeks, a growing sense of disappointment in our present national political leadership, both in the legislative and executive branches of government?

Look at President Truman, for instance. As a result of his handling of the John Lewis coal strike incident and the appointment of General Marshall as secretary of state, the President's Gallup Poll rating took a sharp upswing. His feelings thus soothed, after a rather hectic autumn, he has retired to the White House, seemingly content to let the Republican-southwestern Democratic coalition have things pretty much its own way and trusting, apparently, that a few ill-timed GOP bobbles and a prosperous 1948 is all he needs for re-election twenty months hence.

If the administration, under the President's direction, has a clearly-defined, well-formed policy for China, for Indonesia, for the Near East, for Spain or for Germany, it is certainly being kept well under wraps.

At a time when the Big Four foreign ministers are reading themselves for the Moscow conference on the vital German-Austrian peace treaties and the peoples of the world are crying out for American leadership in international affairs, President Truman appears to radiate, with disarming consistency, a naive lack of concern, an attitude that "everything's going to work out o.k."

With China in ferment, with French imperialism in Indo China being paralleled by British tactics in Greece and Palestine, with Russian power playing cat-and-mouse with Anglo-American oil interests in Iran, one can only hope—and pray—that the president has not allowed internal Republican wrangling and a good Gallup rating to cloud his vision with political star dust.

The irregularities in our economic system might give him an opportunity to coast in, as it were, in 1948; but no such luck can be expected to replenish the American "reservoir of good will" in Europe and Asia which, I'm convinced, is rapidly running out.

TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

I am addressing this letter to your column for the benefit of all students who reside in Quadrangle cottages particularly. While the condition may not exist in every cottage, it exists in enough to warrant some action.

The administration, dormitory proctors, bureau of guidance and the office of student affairs should give this immediate attention.

The problem of foremost interest is the fact that it is impossible to do any creative or constructive academic work in the cottages because of the incessant noise caused by useless chatter and radios. The occupants should try to be as quiet as possible during certain specific hours. No radios should be played between 9-12, 1-5 and 7-11 during the day.

These rules can be instituted successfully and effectively only by the action of the committees concerned and the whole-hearted cooperation of the residents of the cottages.

Moreover, it will help a great deal if some better lighting for study were provided. If the general appearance, which includes neatly made beds, properly kept study tables and cleanly swept floors, were improved, the cottages which we consider a much needed blessing would be more conducive to study.

All of these needs are urgent, but restriction of talking loudly and playing radios is of primary necessity.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT European Rightists Seek Crises

By SAMUEL GRAFTON
New York Post Syndicate

PARIS — This city remained rather warm during at least the first stages of the British blizzard so there was not the same atmosphere of crisis here as in England. Children played in the Tuileries while the news came down from London of how the British had closed factories and had cut off electricity for daily periods to save coal and were shopping by candlelight. But the news was not without significance in Paris for both here and in London there are Left governments and the Left uneasily feels that the Right is waiting and watching for some crisis which might lead to a shift of power.

The French left claims that the Conservatives need a crisis. Whether they do or not it is true that the right in Western Europe is much more pessimistic than the Left. British Conservatives fulfilled the pattern of pessimism in London by rising in the house of commons during the blizzard and the resulting power shutdown to warn the country that matters were going to become even worse unless the people rose in their wrath and did you know what the Labor government.

One is sure the Tories do not like blizzards and do not want them but they do seem to have a certain admiration for the cold spell which has dealt British socialism a greater blow than they could. Some of them are wondering audibly if it isn't time to see whether a coalition government couldn't make the weather change.

The Right denies vigorously that it is fighting politics and one can accept these declarations without, at the same time, closing one's eyes to the fact that the crisis has made conservatism seem ten years younger and has filled it with ginger.

In France, where there is a meat shortage, men of the Right will tell you gloomily that no meat is coming into Paris, while it is the men of the Left who happily recite statistics on how many head of cattle and sheep enter the city every morning. The French Left fears crisis of any kind.

The Communists, for example, control many of the labor unions, and are pressing for a higher minimum wage, but while there have been half hour strikes and slowdowns, there has been nothing like a major outbreak, which could lead to a critical situation.

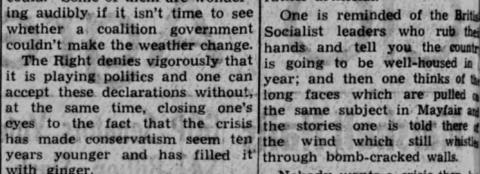

It is the Left then, with its new political power in Western Europe which is condemned to optimism, while it is the Right which generally takes the sadder view.

In a cafe a French Left leader declares pensively that things are getting better; look at the number of cars in the streets, he says. He feels that if there is a crisis it will be a monetary one and rather artificial.

One is reminded of the British Socialist leaders who rub their hands and tell you the country is going to be well-looked in year; and then one thinks of the long faces which are pulled on the same subject in Mayfair and the stories one is told there of the wind which still whistles through bomb-cracked walls.

Nobody wants a crisis then, but if one comes, the Right can make better use of it than the Left. The point has some application in America, because if the tough conditions of our loan to Britain, a failure on our part to help the French get seed wheat, leads to a crisis in either country, we shall then be playing a direct part in domestic European politics, whether we know it or not.

We can make it snow in Europe whenever we want, and bad weather is good for the Right. It is in this frame that the Leftist governments of Britain and France must operate, which may explain why they sometimes seem to exclude an optimism perhaps not wholly based on fact.

WHITE PRIMARY BILL PASSES

ATLANTA, (AP)—The Georgia senate passed Herman Talmadge's white primary bill yesterday and sent it back to the house for action on amendments.

The Crisis in Iowa Education

(From an editorial in MIDLAND SCHOOLS, official publication of the Iowa State Education association.)

Everyone who reads the newspapers and listens to the radio knows that there is a great anxiety throughout the country about the plight of our schools. Boards of Education are troubled because they are unable to secure trained teachers. Parents are concerned by the rising trend of juvenile delinquency resulting from lowered standards in the schools. Veteran teachers are desperate because of inadequate salaries and the invasion of their ranks by unqualified instructors. Statesmen who view our future position in world affairs are alarmed by the threat of an educationally-unprepared people entering the atomic age.

Educators and forward-looking laymen in Iowa have seen this crisis coming. A group of Iowa's leading citizens, apparently representing a majority segment of public opinion, have favored corrective measures in an active way in recent sessions of the legislature. A powerful minority group has influenced opinion to the contrary.

Because of the public lethargy on this subject in recent years, school people have used strong statements to awaken people to the real situation. They have appealed to state pride by comparing Iowa with other states in matters of state support, certification, retirement laws, and the extraordinary exodus of teachers from our schools. They had the temerity to do this even in Iowa's centennial year when it was much more popular to sing Iowa's praises. Many people have been moved by these appeals because they realize that there is no real progress to be made in this state by publicizing only the things for which Iowa is great.

We take pride, as does every other Iowa citizen, in reading brochures, viewing colored movies, and listening to stirring radio tributes about Iowa's first position in countless activities. But many of these "firsts" were handed to us. The Grade A land was here when our fathers came. The corn and hogs followed easily after that. Literacy itself is largely a result of our large native population and stable mode of living. Nevertheless, we are happy and proud that we live in a state where we can boast leadership in so many good things.

But are we really going to grow if we publicize nothing but that in which we lead?

Now Iowa has a good school system. Educators are proud to proclaim that fact, and, if by certain standards, we can be shown to rank high in educational accomplishment, we are more than proud to publicize those claims.

But let's not allow this justifiable pride to blind us into making unjustifiable errors of omission. Let's remember that we have a future to build for, and that it will be nothing short of criminal if we do not insure an adequate education for the next generation. The real question is WHAT ARE WE PROVIDING FOR TOMORROW?

We are entering an atomic age. Our very lives depend upon this nation's leadership in developing this new-found energy for peacetime use. The best insurance that this leadership will be maintained is a strong public school system.

If organizations dominated by selfish people are allowed to dictate the state's policy, we are going to reap exactly the kind of crop we sow. But if the fair-thinking majority is going to have its rightful voice in government, we need have no fear for the future.

Let's agree that Iowa has had much good education in the past.

Let's agree that our emergency teachers have done more than could rightfully be expected of them.

Let's agree that property taxpayers in Iowa have made a remarkable effort in supporting our schools.

Let's agree that one-room schools have produced some of our finest people and that there is still a place for many such schools in Iowa.

But—

Let's admit that property tax can no longer support the kind of school program we should have.

Let's admit that many rural school districts are weak and inefficient and ineffective.

Let's admit that the future is endangered by further delay in putting our house in order.

If we suddenly got word that a thousand atomic bombs were to be dropped on Iowa tomorrow there would be small satisfaction in telling the dying state once more that we lead the world in corn and hogs and eggs and Grade A land.

In other words if we plan to die in the atomic age, let's be complacent and rest on our laurels. But if we plan to live, there is no better way to prepare for life than to make our educational system as strong as it can possibly be made. —W. H. G.

World Force Is Key To Atomic Control, Porter Believes

An old American principle of law was offered yesterday as the key to international control of atomic energy.

Prof. Kirk H. Porter of the political science department told the University club that if United Nations authority can be applied directly to individuals, effective control of the production and use of atomic weapons may be possible.

Illustrating how the American constitution is enforceable with regard to individual citizens but is ineffectual in state disputes, Porter suggested that the same thing on an international level could bring violators to justice.

He recommended "a bit of international law concerning just atomic energy—clear and simple, maybe written on just one page—dealing with that one subject alone."

It would give international police agents authority to go anywhere in the world, to arrest and punish violators wherever found.

Two additional considerations would be necessary, he added:

(1) Countries would have to agree not to violate the law themselves—"as if Iowa should practice counterfeiting," and

(2) They must agree to let world agents have a free rein and go anywhere in making investigations.

Russians Can Hear Our Side Now

On Monday, at 9 p.m. Moscow time, citizens of the U.S.S.R. tuned in their short wave radios and heard the "Voice of America" for the first time. With two 85 thousand watt transmitters in Munich giving them a powerful relay boost, American news, information and entertainment were beamed into the Soviet Union.

At no time in the history of the world has it been more important for one people to understand another. The peace of the world hinges on the mutual trust and respect of the United States and the Soviet Union. Mutual trust and respect between nations, as between individuals, can be built upon understanding only. Understanding can arise only from the fair and accurate presentation of the facts.

Career man Charles W. Thayer, who is in charge of the state department project says, "The purpose of these broadcasts is to present an accurate, objective and impartial picture of conditions and events in the United States or affecting the United States' interests." More than this, the broadcasts possess the long-range potential of giving ordinary citizens of the Soviet Union sound material upon which to base their comprehension of United States activity on the world scene.

The undertaking is being handled realistically. The programs are designed to conform with Russian tastes, being solidly informational. They will feature a five minute round-up of world news at the start and close of each nightly hour. Ten minutes more will be devoted to a detailed presentation of domestic events with sufficient background filled in to insure that they will be understood in true perspective to the entire national scene. As leaving, 15 minutes of representative American music will be included.

The key point of each broadcast will be two feature interludes designed to tell in plain terms just what America is. This section of the broadcast pattern will cover such things as informative talks on the workings of government projects like the TVA; the usage of pre-fabricated housing; recent discoveries in industry; talks by representatives of labor, industry and science, and even short synopses of current stage hits.

Because they will be dealing in a language which is essentially unlike their own, the staff of authors, editors and announcers bear the added burden of eternal care to make certain that they do not offend or misinterpret through incorrect language usage. Translation from one highly idiomatic language to another is a ticklish affair.

The "Voice of America," which will reach the Soviet Union each evening for one hour, is the only direct channel to Russian public opinion that our government has.

With several hundred thousand short wave receivers in the U.S.S.R. and no "iron curtain" effective against them, the state department must view this not only as a unique advantage, but as a grave responsibility. It cannot be abused with so much at stake.

Compulsory Voting Fails

(From The Milwaukee Journal)

Now and then, when discussing the failure of many Americans to vote in elections, someone will advocate compulsory voting laws, with penalties for violators.

The recent elections in Brazil seem to indicate that this is no answer.

Brazil has obligatory balloting, and stay-at-homes are subject to fines of from $5 to $15. The Brazil election was most important. Yet some 1,750,000 qualified voters subjected themselves to the fines by staying away from the polls.

No doubt, the results would be similar if the United States had such a law.

After all, people who have to be forced to exercise their democratic rights are certainly not interested in the way their government is run. It is unlikely that their votes would be intelligent. Citizens in a democracy should want to vote; they should feel that it is a precious right and privilege.

Rather than try to force all citizens to vote, the endeavor should be to get more people to want to vote. That is an educational process.

Religious Census Shows 92 Percent Attend Church, Lists Denominational Preferences

Results of the religious census taken in Iowa City and Coralville by 600 volunteer church workers were announced yesterday at a meeting of the pastors of Iowa City churches.

Of the 14,455 individuals contacted during the census, only 1,101 failed to express church membership or preference. Church members numbered 11,599, and those with church preferences, 1,239 for Coralville, 516 expressed either church membership or preference.

The Rev. Fred W. Putnam, rector of the Trinity Episcopal church and co-chairman of the census committee, stated that the national figure for church membership is about 58 percent, while that in Iowa City is over 92 percent, showing it to be a "highly selective and very stable community."

Since conservative estimates place the present population at approximately 25,000, the census is believed to have reached a large enough percentage to be accurately indicative.

One result disclosed by the census was that of the 1,708 children in the 6,975 families interviewed, only 240 are not attending Sunday school or church, Father Putnam said.

Those adults and young people claiming active regular church attendance in Iowa City or Coralville number 6,848.

The survey tabulations, compiled by Mrs. Jessie Gordon and Mrs. Glenn Eves, included the number of years families had resided in Iowa City, and individual ages.

Those who had lived in Iowa City over 26 years numbered 1,844 for the largest group of church members, while those who had been here one year or less provided the second largest group, 1,216. Married students included in the survey are believed to account for this difference.

Other denominational memberships and preferences follow:

Church	Members	Preference
Baptist	397	117
Catholic	112	100
St. Mary's	1,146	9
St. Patrick's	1,346	9

The census was begun on Jan. 19, and was conducted by representatives of all but two Iowa City churches. A committee of 13, with Emil Trott and the Rev. Mr. Putnam as co-chairmen, organized the survey.

By Bob Collins

The usual procedure is for a college football team to have a couple of bad years, for the alumni to get unduly excited and for said team's coach to be given his walking papers. But in the last few weeks the mentors in the Big Nine have taken the offensive and left several of our Western conference schools holding the bag by resigning to take other jobs in the game.

Paul Bixler left Ohio State on his own accord, Cecil Isbell left Purdue to take over the Baltimore pro team, Lynn Waldorf left Northwestern to become California's golden haired boy and Fritz Crisler scared the daylight out of Michigan by entertaining one of the better offers sent his way. All of this is a blow to the mid-west's pride in the Big Nine.

Most of us have always felt that the best coaching jobs in the nation were with the Big Nine schools. Now we find that the men behind the scene think other positions around the country are more attractive. Attractive is a handy word which in this case means more comfortable. Certainly other schools don't pay much better than the Big Nine but they do provide a bit more comfort in that the average schedule doesn't have these wrecking-crew elevens lined up Saturday after Saturday. Also the pressure to win is somewhat less than that applied in the Western conference.

According to Jack Smiley, ace Illini Guard, keeping check of Murray Wier is a tougher job than guarding famed Bob Cook of Wisconsin. The Illini defensive star admitted that Wier was fast and that holding him down was plenty of work. Pete Elliot of Michigan turned in the next best job on Murray last Saturday night.

If Wier could play against Minnesota or Wisconsin every game he'd set a new league scoring record. He nicked the Badgers for an even 50 points in two games and the Gophers for 44. His 30-point performance at Minnesota was nothing short of spectacular.

One of the biggest, if not the best, centers to appear on the Iowa court this year was Lee Knorek of Detroit. In 15 games this season big Lee potted 180 points for the Titans and small wonder that officials of the Detroit school were loud in their protests after the New York Knickerbockers signed Knorek to a pro contract in mid-season. The boss-man of the Knickerbockers, Ned Irish, is a gent well known for his promotions along a different line. Irish ignored the protests and went on the offensive by charging that the Titans have violated collegiate rules by using a boy who had played six years of college basketball and who signed the pro contract last August.

The Northwestern wrestling team went back to Evanston after their 28-0 whitewashing by Iowa and told the folks that the Hawkeyes are one tough bunch of cookies. The Wildcat's coach, Wes Brown, named Joe Scarpello, Hawk 175-pound ace, as one of the best in his class in the country. Wildcat heavyweight Dick Eggers who was pinned by Bob Geigel of Iowa in 5:16 minutes lost more than a match. He also came up with a pulled muscle which will keep him out of action for awhile.

SCANLAN WINS BY KO

Jack Scanlan, Iowa City heavyweight, scored a first round knockout over Ken Bailey of Ottumwa last night in the opening session of the Cedar Rapids Golden Gloves tournament.

Two other Iowa City fighters Lyle Seydel and Bob Berens, moved into the second round of the tournament on a bye and forfeit.

Iowa Matmen Await Minnesota Invasion

Idle last weekend, Iowa's potent wrestling team is planning to roll out its heaviest guns for the invasion of Minnesota's Gophers here Saturday.

It will be the last home dual-meet of the season for Mike Howard's undefeated matmen who have raced over Bradley, Wisconsin, and Northwestern in previous contests.

The Gophers in-and-out record this year gives them the underdog role Saturday, but Coach Dave Bartelma's outfit has the busiest mat schedule in the conference and his, inexperienced men are rapidly rounding into veteran performers.

Leading the visitor's is football star Vern Gagne, pre-war conference titlist and a plenty tough opponent on the canvas. Iowa's Bob Geigel draws the toughest assignment in attempting to upset Gagne, who recently stopped Nebraska star Mike DiBiase's 56 consecutive win record. This heavy-weight battle looms up as the star attraction Saturday afternoon.

The buzz of the mosquito is made by its flapping wings-not its voice.

Ramblers, Shamrocks Clash Tonight

Contest Rated Tossup Battle

Another tossup game is predicted for tonight when the Ramblers of St. Mary's and the Shamrocks of St. Pat's clash in their second intra-city cage classic of the year. Game time is 8:15 o'clock at the City high gym.

Back on Jan. 22 the two teams met in an intra-city battle with the Shamrocks squeezing out a 28-26 margin after trailing most of the game.

Since that defeat the Ramblers have strung together six straight victories in regular season competition. Their latest conquest was a 43-42 win over a strong Loras five.

St. Pat's in that span of time has won two of five games. Both victories were chalked up against teams from Illinois. St. Mary's of Moline went down 45-13 and St. Joseph of Rock Island was derailed 50-39.

Leading the Shamrock offense tonight will be "Jersey" Megan who is the top scoring high school cager in Iowa City. Megan has totaled 164 points in 17 games to average almost 10 points a contest.

The main scoring threat for St. Mary's is pivot man Danny Maher who became eligible for competition at the beginning of the second semester. Since he broke into the lineup Maher has averaged 15 points and has done a great job of holding down opposing centers.

Teaming up with Maher will be "Buzz" Mottet and Johnny Sueppel at forwards with 155 and 90 points respectively. The backcourt will be manned by Capt. Eddie Rocca with 111 markers and Paul Flannery, sophomore star, who has 110.

Bill Seemuth of St. Patrick's will draw the assignment of stopping Maher. The rugged Shamrock center has garnered 128 points. His defensive work leaves little to be desired. In two games with Oxford, Johnson county champions, Seemuth held high scoring Dick Schmidt to a total of 20 points.

"Wild" Bill McMahon will team up with Megan in the Irish front court. He has picked up 100 points with his hook shots.

The Shamrocks, like the Ramblers, also boast a sophomore star at one of the guard positions. Diminutive Bob Grady has turned consistently good defensive games and has also scored 81 points. . . . 28 of them in the last three games. The other guard post will be handled by Mert Herdlika, ace rebounder, who has 64 points.

The annual series has been a close one with St. Patrick's having won 26 games and St. Mary's 25.

INGWERSEN OFFERED POST CHAMPAIGN, ILL., (AP)—Burt Ingwersen, Illinois football line coach, said today that he was considering an offer from Lynn Waldorf to become his assistant at the University of California at Berkeley.

By DON SULHOFF

Harlan, leader in the Southwest part of the state in the Associated Press' pole to determine the states four best prep basketball teams, nose dived from its undefeated perch last week-end at Carroll to further throw the district into confusion with the tournaments just around the corner.

Out of the four districts in the state the Southwest has produced the most hotly contested race for first place week by week. Two weeks ago Harlan replaced Dowling of Des Moines by two points in the No. 1 spot and retained its advantage last week.

Abraham Lincoln of Council Bluffs shot out of fifth place into third ahead of Atlantic by four points. The Lynx have won nine avenged. Harlan's loss to Carroll, 35-32, in which Rob Marget scored 10 points for the winners, should throw the district into even a tighter race. Dowling smacked Diagonal, a strong class B quintet which was resting in sixth place, and the impetus should throw the Irish back into first place.

In the other three districts Ames, Ottumwa, and West Waterloo kept its head above the pack with a 39-36 victory over Boone while Danbury squeaked by Holstein in the last three minutes, 31-29. Ottumwa didn't let its South-east backers down when it smothered Ft. Madison 53-35 and Iowa City high, the defending state champion and the No. 2 club, kept in the race with a narrow 35-32 win over Wilson.

Muscantine, which dropped out of first place in the district two weeks ago, may move up the scale this week after blasting Washington 45-36.

West Waterloo is out in front in the Northeast with Waverly 28 points behind the winners. West found the range against its city rival—East—Friday night, 42-24, to retain its advantage in the district.

Ricker Was Mentally Ill, Doctors Testify

Three doctors from Psychopathic hospital testified yesterday there was no doubt that Maurice Ricker, who is being tried for assault with intent to murder, was suffering from very severe mental illness when he was examined by them in September, 1945.

Ricker was taken to Psychopathic hospital after he was indicted for assault with intent to murder Mrs. Irene Venzke Aug. 18, 1945, and from there he was committed to the state hospital for insane at Mt. Pleasant.

Last December the Iowa supreme court ordered Ricker tried on the indictment, when the case was appealed after Judge James P. Gaffney refused to grant a motion for continuance of the trial made by County Attorney Jack C. White.

In their testimony yesterday, Dr. W. R. Miller, head of Psychopathic hospital, and Dr. J. S. Gottlieb and Dr. Paul Huston, staff members, agreed that Ricker was probably suffering from the same mental illness at the time a shooting occurred at the Venzke home in Frytown.

The doctors were put on the stand by the defense which has entered a plea of "not guilty because of insanity." Defense Attorney Edward L. O'Connor said Monday that they were "not making any claims" about Ricker's condition now, but would attempt to prove Ricker was insane at the time a shooting occurred in Frytown in August, 1945.

Yesterday morning Mr. and Mrs. Albert Venzke, prosecution witnesses, told the jury they were awakened early Aug. 18, 1945, by someone shouting outside their home, and that Mrs. Venzke was hit in the elbow by one of ten shots fired into the house.

Venzke, who testified he had known Ricker since childhood, said he "knew by the voice that Ricker was the man outside."

Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy related that when he arrived at the Venzke home he found Mrs. Venzke and Donald "quite bloody." He returned to Iowa City when the ambulance came for them and went to Frytown again later in the morning.

Murphy said he and Leo Greazel, brother of Mrs. Venzke, found Ricker in a church nearby armed with two guns, two cartridge belts

SUI Band Presents Final Concert Here Before State Tour

Tickets are still available at Iowa Union desk today for tonight's performance by the 80-piece university band. The concert will begin at 8 p. m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union.

Band members and directors from at least five eastern Iowa towns will be the university's guests at the concert, which will be the band's last performance before it undertakes its statewide tour in March.

Featured on tonight's program will be Iowa City's first performance by piano of the Grieg piano concerto. Norma Cross will be pianist in the concerto, which was recently transcribed for band by Prof. C. B. Righter, director of the band.

An instructor in the music department, Miss Cross has frequently been heard as soloist with the university symphony orchestra—her latest appearance was at the orchestra concert two weeks ago.

Tonight's program will also include first Iowa City performances of works by Goldmark, Holst, Coleridge-Taylor and Morton Gould, as well as a new Righter transcription of a Bach prelude and fugue.

Rifle Team Scores 988 In First Phase of Firing

Scores were announced yesterday on the first phase of the fifth army's intercollegiate match of the university varsity rifle team. A total of 988 points of a possible 1,000 were scored.

Individual scores for the match were as follows: Kay Staller, 100; William Voelckers, 98; Charles A. Rogler, 99; Gerald W. Eckhardt, 99; Dene A. Carney, 98; Bill Olson, 98, and Kenneth W. Gray, 98.

and a hunting knife. After the weapons were identified by Murphy and also by former sheriff Preston Koser, they were admitted as evidence for the prosecution.

Murphy also testified that he asked Ricker if he did the shooting at the Venzke home and Ricker's answer was "yes."

"We told him two people were hit and he said he was sorry," Murphy said.

The defense will continue witness examination today at 9:30 a.m.

World-Minded Economy Key To Prosperity, Forum Finds

Continued prosperity in the United States depends in a large measure upon the attitude of the American people toward breaking away from a strictly nationalistic economy and adopting one that favors world-wide recovery and prosperity.

This was the consensus formed by a panel of commerce faculty members at a forum sponsored last night by the American Veterans Committee.

Discussing the likelihood of another depression, the forum members found these factors pointing toward depression:

(1) Uncertainty of mind of American business men on the policy-making level.
(2) Over-production in heavy industries resulting from lack of markets for goods.

Richards to Head Election Committee

Allan Richards, C4 of Whiting, was appointed to head a proposed election committee at a student council meeting last night.

The committee would be composed of representatives from all campus organizations participating in the all-campus elections to be held this spring. A letter requesting appointment of representatives was sent to each organization concerned.

Measures were considered to promote active campaigning of candidates for councilmen at large. The council also recommended that student identification cards be issued to student nurses, by option, at the prevailing standard price.

Secretary Kathryn Larson, chairman of the student musical show, said plans for the show are progressing satisfactorily. The cast, to be directed by Dan Schuffman, A4 of Iowa City, has not been definitely selected as yet. Performances will commence March 20.

Two amendments to the constitution were proposed. The first would provide that no member can be absent from more than three meetings during the year without sending an alternate. In case of failure to comply, the council would appoint a new member.

The second would provide for the appointment of an additional member to represent married students' temporary housing units.

(3) Spot unemployment, notably in such industries.
(4) Decline in the physical volume of retail sales.
(5) Incomplete or interrupted recovery from the last depression.
(6) Decline in purchasing power of wages.
(7) Concentration of savings and income at the higher income levels which may outrun investment opportunities.

Factors they considered favorable to continued prosperity are:
(1) Present boom conditions.
(2) Lessons we have learned concerning causation of the last depression.
(3) Some backlog of purchasing power, especially in high income groups.
(4) New investment opportunities at home and abroad which can result in more income and purchasing power for the low income groups.
(5) Our large productive capacity and the possibility of marketing the products of that capacity at home and abroad which can result from freer international trade.

Prof. Paul R. Olson, Prof. C. Addison Hickman and Associate Leo Sweeney composed the forum panel with Prof. Wendell Smith appearing in the capacity of moderator.

Wallace chapter of American Youth for Democracy last night went on record as approving confirmation of David E. Lillenthal as chairman of the atomic energy commission.

The resolution supporting Lillenthal provided that a letter be written to Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper notifying him of AYD's stand on the matter.

AYD officers elected for the semester were Elaine Glasser, A4 of Brooklyn, president; Brockman Schumacher, A2 of St. Louis, vice-president; Gita Miller, A1 of Pottstown, Pa., secretary, and Raymond Max, E1 of Sayvorties, N. Y., treasurer.

Committee chairmen elected were Albert Kritzbeg, A1 of Jersey City, political action; Clifford Smith, A1 of Waterloo, social, and Bernard Yodoff, A2 of The Bronx, N. Y., educational committee.

AYD Elects Officers, Endorses Lillenthal For Atomic Energy Post

Son of Hit-and-Run Victims Aids Police In Arrest of 2 Men

University student Frank Nash was instrumental in the quick apprehension and arrest of a Washington, Iowa, "hit-and-run" truck driver who injured Nash's parents as they waited for him in their parked car in front of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house Monday night.

When Nash saw the wreck of the car and realized his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Nash, 504 Grand avenue, had been injured, he and a friend jumped into a car and followed the truck.

Although Nash and his friend overtook the truck the drivers refused to stop; so Nash stopped at a farmhouse on the road to Cedar Rapids to call the Cedar Rapids police, who in turn notified the highway patrol to set up a road block to stop the truck.

Both truck drivers were returned to Iowa City Monday night.

One of the drivers, Clarence Collet, 19, was bound over to the grand jury yesterday after he pleaded guilty in police court to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and failing to give aid to injured. He was released on $500 bond.

Police Judge John Knox also fined Collet a total of $130 for reckless driving and failure to possess a chauffeur's license.

John Nash was reported in "satisfactory" condition at Mercy hospital last night. He suffered facial cuts and bruises. Mrs. Nash suffered minor cuts and bruises and was not hospitalized.

The Nash car received an estimated $500 damages. The truck, owned by Lyle P. Brinton, Washington, and loaded with seven tons of hogs, was only slightly damaged.

There are more than 20,000 employees in the U. S. railway mail service.

Barnes Says Industry Needs Trained Personnel; Demand to Last 5 Years

Industry is clamoring for trained personnel, Prof. Ralph Barnes told chemical engineering students last night. He predicted that this demand by industry would last another five years.

"But don't sit back and wait for the company to come to you," he went on. "Examine what you have for sale; then examine the employment market to see where you can best fit in. If you wait for companies to come to you, those that come may not present exactly what you want."

Prof. Barnes advised students against taking a job after graduation with the intention of returning to school later to get advanced degrees before continuing in industry.

Barnes is director of the college of engineering placement bureau. He addressed a meeting of the student affiliate of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.
