President's Speech Means We Have Failed at Peace

The president of the United States told the world Wednesday that communism and democracy cannot live together on the same planet. Stop and think what this means.

It means that from here on our government shall consider communism and democracy as mutually exclusive. It means a complete denial of any common ground between the two systems. It means an end to any hope of cooperation.

It means that our government now regards the ideological incompatibility as so serious that even the United Nations cannot resolve it.

It means — and this we must all realize — that the final solution of the conflict may be completely final — all-out atomic warfare.

This full-fledged anticommunist crusade, made official U.S. policy in President Truman's statement, has been developing slowly since World War I. Up until now the struggle has been mostly one of ideas, with both communism and democracy trying to win the in-between peoples to its way of thinking. In this phase of the battle we used as

Soviet News Agency Censures Truman's Action

GOP to Seek Fast Decision On Aid Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican chiefs signalled yesterday for a speedy decision on President Truman's proposal to bolster Greece and Turkey against communism. They will seek action by March 31, when the British plan to retrench.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), chairman of the GOP policy committee, told reporters March 31 is "a firm date" by which the administration wants congress to complete action, although the president mentioned no deadline Wednesday in his message. That date is the end of the British fiscal year.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), chairman of the foreign relations committee, also set March 31 for a deadline in announcing plans for his group to hold public hearings. He suggested that the house foreign affairs committee hold hearings as well.

The plan is for the house to act first, however, on the proposals — providing $400,000,000 cash and authorizing indirect military help. What the house does, therefore, will largely determine whether the deadline is met, despite the plans laid by the senate leaders.

Taft, without expressing his own views on the president's proposal, said the policy group agreed to lay before a conference of the 51 Republican senators this morning a program which would allot the last week in March to its consideration.

Truman's Proposal Brings War Closer, Says Henry Wallace

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry Wallace said last night President Truman's proposed loans to Greece and Turkey "will bring the world nearer to war."

The former vice-president asserted in a radio address that "it is not a Greek crisis that we face, it is an American crisis."

"As one American citizen I say: No loan to undemocratic and well-fed Turkey. No loan to Greece until a representative Greek government is formed and can assure America that our funds will be used for the welfare of the Greek people."

Wallace said he believed the program outlined Wednesday by the President would worsen seriously American relations with the Soviet Union, and he declared both the present Greek and Turkish governments were undemocratic.

"How can we wage a war of nerves against Russia and expect her to take in good faith our proposals to the United Nations on atomic energy?" he asked.

"When President Truman proclaims the worldwide conflict between east and west, he is telling the Soviet leaders that we are preparing for eventual war."

"They will reply by measures to strengthen their position in the event of war. Then the task of keeping the world at peace will pass beyond the power of the common people everywhere who want peace."

Wallace, who was ousted as secretary of commerce by Mr. Truman last September after he had differed with Secretary of State James Byrnes over American policy vis-a-vis Russia, declared: "To authorize the loans proposed by President Truman will bring the world nearer to war."

Wallace, now editor of the New Republic, declared that "in proposing this reckless adventure Truman is betraying the great tradition of America and the leadership of the great American who preceded him."

Front-Page Editorial Rips 'Interference'

BULLETIN
MOSCOW, FRIDAY (AP) — Foreign delegates to the council of foreign ministers read in Izvestia today a front-page editorial attack on President Truman's speech, in which the United States was accused of "new interference in the business of other states."

Claims of the United States for leadership in international affairs, said the government newspaper's editorial, "Grow in keeping with the appetites of interested American circles."

"However," it continued, "American leaders, acting on a new historical situation, do not take into consideration that the hard-headed politicians have already outlived this century and old methods of colonizers and are doomed to failure. In this is the principal weakness of Truman's speech."

Izvestia said "Truman did not take into consideration either the international situation or the sovereignty of Greece."

American Plan Would Bolster Turkish Army

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH
LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y. (AP)—President Truman's program to hold the line on communism in the eastern Mediterranean, as outlined by American experts yesterday, would provide American military training and equipment for 100,000 Greek soldiers to combat roving leftist bands officially estimated at more than 9,000 in the mountains of northern Greece.

The plan would also bolster a much more able Turkish military establishment to a point where, in the event Turkey's position on the Dardanelles should become fatefully jeopardized, the country would not fall overnight, these informants said.

Furthermore, economic boosters would be applied to both Greece and Turkey under close American supervision of expenditures on a scale which would amount to substantial aid to Greece for an indefinite time and graduated diminishing program of help for Turkey.

These bold outlines for procedure were given by American officials at a conference called to provide newsmen with the background of the long step taken by Mr. Truman Wednesday.

Only one phase of official American thought on the Greek and Turkish crises was authorized at the conference as a statement that could be attributed to the state department.

A spokesman said in effect that most of the $400,000,000 asked of congress by Mr. Truman became necessary because Greece could not go to the international bank for reconstruction and development in her present state of economic chaos and offer any substantial collateral for a loan.

French Scientist Calls U.S. Atomic Policy 'Iron Curtain'

NEW YORK (AP)—Frederic Joliot-Curie, French high commissioner of atomic energy, yesterday attacked what he called the United States "iron curtain" on atomic affairs.

Joliot-Curie, writing in the magazine United Nations World, which is designed to cover United Nations affairs, declared that the principle of the atomic bomb is simple but that France is directing extensive atomic research toward "new means of enriching life."

Citing the casualties in the atomic bomb blast at Hiroshima, Joliot-Curie said "The menace of sudden death, the terrifying possibility of having to burrow like ants beneath the soil and build cities in the caves of the earth, at present overshadow in the popular mind the benign potentialities of our new knowledge."

He continued that "the sense of danger is not relieved by the decision of the United States that it must hide its technical and scientific advances in nuclear physics behind an American 'iron curtain.'"

Joliot-Curie said in the article that in 1939 French scientists had calculated in Paris the "critical mass" which is to say the "smallest amount" of the target material in which a chain reaction could be touched off.

"The principle of the bomb now becomes simple," he said.

Joliot-Curie's estimate of the possible weight of the two pieces of uranium he said figured in the bomb is the first from a high nuclear physicist.

American information on the amount of uranium needed, given in the Smyth report, placed it at between two pounds and 200 pounds.

In his article, the French scientist, Nobel prize winner and son-in-law of the Curies of radium fame, said the principle of the bomb could be along this line:

"Imagine a sphere of uranium 235 large enough to be susceptible to explosive chain reaction.

"Now divide it into two hemispheres each below 'critical mass' (the point at which they are dangerous).

"Place these hemispheres weighing, say, 30 kilos (66 lbs.) apiece, at the two ends of a cylindrical tube. One hemisphere is fixed, the other mobile, so that an explosive charge placed behind it can cause it to slide swiftly into contact with the other half.

"Between the two, a source of emission of rapid neutrons constantly bombards with neutrons the plane surface of the fixed hemisphere. Such a source would be a small amount of polonium, whose alpha rays act upon a sufficient quantity of plutonium. When the two hemispheres come together, the conditions for explosive chain reaction are fulfilled."

Cannot Spare Troops For Greece—McNarney

FRANKFURT (AP)—American armed forces in Germany are spread too thin to permit any diversion to Greece if U. S. soldiers are ordered there as a result of President Truman's plea to Congress for aid to Greece and Turkey, Gen. Joseph T. McNarney said yesterday.

In response to a query as to whether he could supply troops for the Balkan kingdom, the retiring American commander in Germany told a news conference:

"We can furnish none. Our authorized troop strength is only what is considered essential for this area."

Rooms Needed

Approximately 150 sleeping rooms are still needed for state high school basketball tournament visitors, according to the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Most hotel facilities and university sleeping quarters are already filled. Anyone with a spare room for rent for two or three nights is requested to dial 2571 or contact any member of the Junior Chamber.

Wholesale Prices Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices jumped an average of 1.6 percent in the week ended March 8, the bureau of labor statistics said yesterday.

Russia Asks Big 4 Ministers For Informal Talks on China

By WES GALLAGHER
MOSCOW (AP) — Russia sent notes to the American and British foreign secretaries last night asking for a discussion of the Chinese situation, and authoritative sources said early yesterday that the United States would engage in such informal discussions if the Chinese government likewise participates.

It was believed that British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin also would agree to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's note. Official word from the British was lacking, however.

According to informants, U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall had not yet formally replied to Molotov's note up to an early hour today.

The somewhat vague wording of the Russian note left in some doubt exactly when the meeting would be held, and it was not clear whether the Chinese government had yet been invited.

The Chinese embassy said that no invitation had been received by China.

The visiting foreign ministers engaged with Molotov yesterday in a series of exchanges in which they sought to pluck dirty Nazi linen out of one another's closets for a public washing.

Marshall told Molotov that he had been disturbed by "frequent reports" that active Nazis in the Soviet zone of Germany were given a clean bill of health if they would join the Pro-Russian Social Unity party.

Assuming the initiative on the question of denazification in Germany, Marshall read a three-page statement citing progress in the American zone and raising the question of the entry of active Nazis in the Soviet-sponsored party.

"My government opposes the use of denazification in favor of any political party," he declared.

Marshall then proposed that a directive be issued to the Allied control council to make denazification policies uniform throughout Germany. Molotov said he thought the proposal was acceptable in principle, but wanted time to think it over.

Molotov denied the reports cited by Marshall, saying he knew of no case where a Nazi had been permitted to join the Socialist Unity party, which is a coalition of Communists and Social Democrats in the Soviet zone.

School Board Studies Criticism of President At Iowa State College

DES MOINES (AP)—The state board of education said yesterday it was studying complaints made about administrative procedures used by President Charles E. Friley of Iowa State college at Ames.

Henry C. Shull of Sioux City, president of the board, said the complaints had been presented both by students and officials of the College Alumni association.

"We have been giving the problem serious study the past month," Shull said. "No action has been taken."

C. Coykendall of Ames, alumni association president, confirmed that the complaints involved the question whether President Friley's administrative methods had contributed to the loss of faculty members or had been a factor in the scarcity of available replacements.

Coykendall said in reply to a question that the association had not asked for President Friley's resignation.

Board members indicated they believed a solution could be found which would not involve Friley's dismissal.

President Friley said at Ames that he was aware of the board's current study of the Iowa State college situation but said "any comment from me would be inappropriate at this time."

Indirect reports state that the alumni association asked the board to investigate whether President Friley had disregarded the wishes of department heads on numerous matters and had created a personal regime at the school.

Coykendall, expressing regret that the controversy had "broken out into the open," would say only that "some facts concerning problems at Iowa State college were submitted and for the present the association is content to let the board investigate these matters on their merits."

Truman 'Gratified' By U.S. Reaction

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — President Truman was represented last night as "gratified" by American reaction to his message to congress Wednesday calling for a halt to the world march of communism.

His press secretary, Charles G. Ross, told reporters that Mr. Truman had received upwards of 40 telegrams here from individuals praising his stand and that he was "naturally gratified" by their reaction, as well as the reception it received from the newspapers.

U. of California's Enrollment of 50,109 Tops U.S. Schools

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of California, with 40,800 fulltime students and an overall of 50,109, continues to have the largest enrollment of any school in the country, a report by Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati showed yesterday.

Dr. Walters, a statistician on higher education, said yesterday's report supplemented the one he makes annually of college-university enrollments for the educational weekly "School and Society."

The University of Illinois is second in fulltime enrollment with 27,276 and fifth in the overall bracket with 29,984; the University of Minnesota is third in fulltime with 27,103 and fourth in the other group with 31,337.

Columbia university dropped from second to fifth in fulltime enrollment, with 21,590 and from second to third in the grand total with 39,344.

Ohio State university is fourth in fulltime with 23,344 and New York university is sixth with 20,047.

New York university, however, is second in combined fulltime and part time students with 45,209.

Civil Liberties Union Means What It Says

Strange as it may seem the American Civil Liberties Union is going to bat for Westbrook Pegler, the acid-penned columnist for the Hearst syndicate. The civil liberties group is sticking to its principles no matter how distasteful it may be.

They have obtained permission to file a brief in the U. S. circuit court of appeals in behalf of Pegler who is being sued for libel by A. N. Spanel, president of the International Latex corporation. Spanel claims that the columnist libeled him by calling him a Communist.

The Illinois circuit court has already given a decision on the case, holding that in that state it is libelous to "write of a man or a corporation that they are communists or Communist sympathizers."

The court ruled: "The label of Communist today in the mind of many average and respectable persons places the accused beyond the pale of respectability and makes him a symbol of public hatred."

The Civil Liberties union, in coming to Pegler's support, has been careful that its action will not be considered an endorsement of the columnist's alleged statement about Spanel. Chances are the group disagrees quite wholeheartedly with Pegler's position.

But the union does feel that it is its duty to defend Pegler's right to say what he did. It has taken the stand that the lower court's ruling restricts Pegler's right to "free discussion" of current issues. It contends that to call a person a Communist is nothing more than the exercise of its right.

The union understands that any limitation of Pegler's freedom of expression by either judicial ruling or statute could also result in the limitation of expression of those who really have something to say.

It is pretty obvious that indiscriminate use of the Communist tag frequently does harm an individual's or a group's reputation. And it also may be stretching a point to argue that such loose nomenclature with the attendant damages falls within the realm of "free discussion."

The Civil Liberties union is undoubtedly aware of all this. Yet its stand on the Pegler-Spanel case is so closely aligned with the traditional concept of free speech that it is more to be commended than censured.

Truman's Words Were Words of War

By Larry Dennis

My initial reaction to the president's speech Wednesday noon was one of deep foreboding. As he discussed the gravity of the eastern Mediterranean crisis, I closed my eyes with a sudden sense of dread and impending disaster.

What would it be like this time, I wondered. Would there be more Corregidors and Aachens and Salmos and Midways? One of the soldiers in "A Walk in the Sun" kept saying that it would never end until the Battle of Tibet—would there be Tibets? Or just Hiroshimas and Nagasakis?

Would there be amphibious operations and paratroopers and lieutenant-commanders and orientation programs? Even in fear, I had to smile: there are always lieutenant-commanders and orientation programs.

And then, while President Truman was still speaking, the fright and apprehension gave way to anger and indignation.

Somebody had sold Harry a bill of goods. That was it—those buzzards in the war department and the un-American activities committee had finally convinced the old man that we've got to go to war against Russia and the Communists. He listened to the wrong people and now we were heading straight down the road to chaos with the power boys in the saddle. I got mad—at the administration, the congress, the system, the Russians, everything.

What a mess. For a moment I thought of Adolph Hitler and of how the nation-states of our world, 1947, are behaving exactly according to his vicious plan. Why not wrap it up in one neat package, statesmen, and deliver it prepaid to A. Schickelgruber, c/o Postmaster, Hades?

The president was finishing his address: "I am confident that the congress will face these responsibilities squarely." Eric Sevareid, the CBS commentator, began an analysis of the speech and I remembered Sevareid's remarkable book and the quotation from which its title was taken: "Post proofs that brotherhood is not so wild a dream as those who profit by postponing it pretend."

That was it. My thoughts cleared. The anger and disgust subsided. Dreading tomorrow and blaming the war department for today would certainly get us nowhere. The job is peace—and brotherhood. If our government appears to be botching the job, it is our fault, not the administration's.

If the United States foreign policy seems to us to be "postponing" brotherhood and peace, then it is up to us to examine that policy scientifically and discover its inadequacies. We cannot expect our elected representatives to "post proofs" until we ourselves fully understand the magnitude and complexities of the task confronting peoples everywhere.

There can be no doubt but that President Truman's message to the joint session of congress Wednesday was the most important public statement made by an American official since Dec. 8, 1941. The course which the chief executive recommended this nation follow in its foreign policy—not only in the eastern Mediterranean, but elsewhere along the Soviet periphery—is fraught with danger and it is to the president's credit that he faced that fact squarely.

From now on, if congress and

DENNIS

One of the consequences of our new Greek policy, for which we had better watch out, is that it puts any weak nation anywhere near the Russian fringe in the position of being able to blackmail us. All it needs to do is holler that it feels faint, and that the Reds are coming, and we shall be bound, by policy and precedent, to begin writing checks. It should not be forgotten that Hitler used this fainting-spell technique many times, and extorted all manner of concessions from the western democracies by means of it, including the tacitly conceded right to build an army.

That is only the beginning; any reactionary government in Europe or the Near East can also use our new policy to make us support it against its own people. Let it but announce that domestic opposition is Communist (when, in point of fact, it may not be Communist at all, but only vegetarian, or anti-vivisectionist) and we shall come running again, slapping and tripping in our haste to get there in time to save civilization. Our policy inevitably lines us up with the extreme right wing in Europe, with people who are not really our kind of people at all.

If I were the right wing leader of a small state near Russia, I would consider that the new American policy could be used to keep my budget balanced for the next 50 years, and also to keep oppositionists in the home circle from unseating me for approximately the same length of time.

I would feel I had an insurance policy, issued on terms so liberal that any act of oppression or stupidity on my part must necessarily be condoned and forgiven. When, ever aid from America threatened to stop, I would either throw a faint and say the Reds were coming, or I would make a few friendly gestures toward Russia, enough to scare the Americans and to start the dollars flowing again.

All this is a natural consequence of that easy division of the world into American and Russian spheres, which we so glibly talk about, and so casually accept. That division gives certain countries between Russia and America a new kind of bargaining power, almost a power of extortion; they become, in a strange way, freer than we are, because we dare not say no when they present their requests.

We start with one or two southeastern European and Near Eastern states; but after a time we may reach a stage at which to leave any nation near Russia out of it when we give the money away may come to seem a conspicuous exception, almost an indication that that particular country. What we now give as a gift may be demanded of us as a right within half a dozen years.

It will be said that even if all this is so, we are without alternative; we must prevent the absorption of Greece by Russia and run whatever dangers are involved, including the danger of making this a ridiculous and unliveable world.

It seems to me there is an alternative, and that is to make the matter a United Nations matter at the earliest possible moment. If there is real fear of Russian absorption of Greece, direct or concealed, let that be made the basis of a formal charge, and let it be proved, or disproved; let us oppose Russia with law, not with dollars. If military installations are needed in the Near East, let us ask that these be United Nations installations. Let us understand that every millimetre we retreat from the formal and correct United Nations way is going to look like a mile when we try to win it back.

Nothing that has happened in the last ten years is so truly frightening as the casualness with which the American people are accepting a formula for an unworkable world, walking into it, as if it were a summer stroll under a clear blue sky.

E. B. White—

Calls Secrecy in Fraternities 'Dangerous'

By E. B. WHITE

Editorial writer for New Yorker Magazine and author of "Wild Flag."

I awoke at five and lay thinking about Homer Loomis Jr., who wore the bolt of lightning on his sleeve and who was sentenced to 12 months for inciting to riot. His crime is the gravest there is, and the punishment relatively slight. Our laws are inadequate to deal with organizers of hate; for the most part, the haters are permitted to go about their business, and are arrested only when they hit somebody or plant a stick of dynamite. A citizen can get a longer jail term for trying to set fire to a backhouse than for trying to set fire to the world. The Columbian group closely follows the Hitler pattern and evidences the same sickness. Here, in a few youths who like arm patches and who hate Negroes and Jews, is incipient aggression, in ever so much handier form than the full-blown aggression the United Nations is charged with stopping. Here, too, is incipient genocide—the grub stage, before the mature, winged the American people authorize the president to grant the loan of $400,000,000 to the governments of Greece and Turkey (including the detail of civilian and military personnel to those countries); it is to be the primary aim of U.S. foreign policy to stop the spread of totalitarianism wherever the warning signals appear. Thus in Greece, says the president, "Communist-led" bands of terrorists threaten to upset the status-quo.

If carried to fruition, such a policy could conceivably mean that—within an alarmingly short time—American guns and American dollars will almost completely encircle the Soviet Union: in Korea, Japan, China, Southeast Asia and the Middle East (if Britain's economy continues to weaken), the eastern Mediterranean, Austria, Germany and Scandinavia.

As long as the United States controls the balance of power—which is atomic energy "know-how"—it is unlikely that this policy of "containment" will provoke the Russian government into open warfare. But once Soviet scientists and industrialists master the production of atomic weapons of mass destruction, which, as American scientists have informed us, will be a matter of only two to ten years, the Russian government may suddenly decide to cross one of the lines that the U.S. has so arbitrarily drawn. That means World War III.

The president has proposed that the action with reference to Greece and Turkey be taken unilaterally. He holds that "the United Nations and its related organizations are not in a position to extend help of the kind that is required." If the United Nations organization, as now equipped, is flabby and weak, it is only because its strongest member—the United States—has taken every opportunity during the past 18 months to circumvent the international structure wherever possible. Our UN representatives have sidestepped their responsibilities with regard to China, Spain, Palestine, Indo-China, Iran and Indonesia.

The blanket assumption that the peoples of the eastern Mediterranean and Asia want our ideology has to offer and do not want what the Russians have to offer—a belief which seemed to undercurrent the president's speech—is certainly not valid when objectively analyzed. If the democracy which America is extending to other nations of the world means capitalism and free enterprise as manifested in this country, then we had best get our own house in order. For "freedom" has little meaning to the Greek or the Korean if it means freedom to starve and freedom to discriminate because of race or creed.

What the troubled peoples of the world are seeking is a system which attempts to synthesize the economic and ethnic ideals of Russian communism with the political ideals of American democratic-capitalism. The United States is not helping them in their search.

We cannot compete successfully with a spreading ideology, however distasteful it may be to us, by bolstering Greek and Turkish troops along the Yugoslavian and Russian borders. Included in our "arsenal of democracy" must be a formidable, healthy, dynamic ideology which strikes hard at poverty, inequality and injustice.

The fiery cross, we'll probably have to go to the source: insist on complete disclosure, names of members, names of backers, and what the money is spent for—a true accounting. Such accounting could, I think, be federal procedure—a routine condition of tax exemption.

I think colleges should discourage secrecy in fraternities, not because it is dangerous but because it is silly. I lay in bed thinking about the meetings I used to attend in a fraternity house, the shades drawn, the brothers smelling musty in their robes—airless occasions and foolish ones. And I recalled disliking such ceremony and being glad when the shades were thrown up again and the outside world again permitted to associate with me and my fine brothers. There certainly was nothing in any of these meetings calculated to undermine the republic, but there was plenty designed to amuse and fortify any fellow who might have a leaning toward special privilege (as who hasn't?) and who might graduate from the small darkness of organized fellowship into the big darkness of racism.

You know, Bill, I'm gettin' kind of disgusted with the way things are going in this country these days. Always someone trying to horn in on your pleasure.

Why, just the other day, I turn on the radio to hear my favorite musical. Good live, you know. Well, as usual, I sit down to the table while the radio is warming up. I like good music with my lunch, and what d'ya know, the program is canceled and we're getting a political spiel instead.

Me wasting my time with that kind of stuff! I got enough troubles as it is. Well, this happens to be the President and he's talkin' about Greece and communism and a lot of other heavy stuff which generally bores me. He's really hot, too, and sounds like Joe Stalin is tryin' to sneak into the White House. Well, I got interested in the program. You know, usually, I don't care for this heavy stuff. It makes my head hurt. But, he was pretty good, so I listened to him.

Well, no sooner had I got settled down when somebody starts ringing the bell so I have to go answer the door. When I open the door—Kee-rist—what a shock I get. Standing there—big as you please is the worst looking mess I ever seen.

Well, he's about so tall and he looks somethin' like a combination of Frankenstein and the Angel, only a hell of a lot worse, and he looks like he'd been rolling around in a mud-hole for a week.

Anyway, one look at this goon makes me feel pretty sick, and I go to shut the door in his face. But, it's a funny thing. Somehow, the door won't shut. There I am—sweatin', tryin' to shut the door and that character lookin' at me awful funny.

Then, I think. Maybe if I give this tramp a meal, he'll go away. He looks like he hasn't eaten in a month. So I open the door and let him in, but not gettin' too close to him, and ask him to have a bite.

Well, he never says a word—not one, mind you—and sits down to the table very careful like he expects something to break if he moves too fast.

And, it's a funny thing. Instead of gobbling down the chow, like I expected, he kinda doodles with it and listens to the radio. Well, I'm still pretty scared, but he don't look like he's gonna try to start nothin'.

I'm racking my brain to try to think of somethin' to say, and finally I remark, "Kinda dry, ain't it?"

"Yes, in a way," he says. "People have too many troubles of their own to want to have to think about things like this."

Well, I agree with that sentiment. Politics is for politicians, I always say. I got my own problems, they got theirs. So I agree with him on that one.

But pretty soon the president starts talking about the United Nations and the goon looks like he's gettin' agitated. Well, I figure I'll soothe him down a little, so I say, "Too bad ain't it. But like the boss told me the other day, them organizations just don't prove out. Them Russians just won't listen to reason."

Well, he looks at me a little funny and says, "I guess so, only it's a funny thing—a lot of guys went down the road on that point."

They thought an organization like that would prove out. They kind of thought they had cleared up the mess and it wouldn't have to happen again. And before that, I remember, a lot of guys went out to save the world for democracy. Funny, I can't help wonderin', 'whose democracy'?

"Ours, of course," I'm thinkin'. "Who the hell else has got a democracy, anyway?" And pretty soon, the president backs me up, saying as how we have to act alone to make the United Nations work.

"That's the spirit," I remarks. "But the guy looks at me kinda hard, and says, 'I wonder whether the United Nations is an American organization and has to follow an American line. I remember one man who said: 'All government, indeed every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act, is founded on compromise and barter.' If a nation is determined to act unilaterally in an international organization, does not that action of itself destroy the organization? Doesn't that act make for a condition favorable to war? Isn't it an admission that irreconcilable conflicts exist, and don't such conflicts lead inevitably to war?'"

By now, this guy is talking way over my head. I can't figure out, for the life of me, what he's drivin' at. I can see that he knows what he's talking about. But how a guy who knows that much could get in such a mess, I can't figure out. Maybe, he's one of these geniuses gone wrong, I think. I musta been looking kinda blank at him, 'cause he starts explainin'.

"You know," he says, "a lot of people went out and got shot at—and some of them got killed—because they thought that, if they went to war, the people that were left would be able to win the peace. They believed the politicians and the statesmen when they talked about The Brave New World. They thought they were fighting for peace and a better life for their families and their kids, and they got kinda sick when they saw starvin' youngsters carrying dirty pails, crowdin' up around the chow trucks to get the slop the soldiers wouldn't eat. They got kinda sick—but they said to themselves, maybe after this is over, it won't ever have to happen again."

"Well, the war is over now. Most of the dead have been buried, and people are beginning to forget. During the war, they were all talking about one world; now they call them tyrants and oppressors. The war is over, yes—but there are still a lot of people left who hope to make a profit out of blood and terror. Well, mister, a lot of people are dead now—a lot of people who fought for peace. It begins to look like they were a bunch of suckers."

And with that, he pounds the table and gets up and walks out the door. I'm so amazed that I can't think of a word to say and when I look outside, he's gone. Well, I couldn't figure that one out, and you know, after I got to looking around, I found he hadn't eaten a bite of food—and I thought he was half starved.

And you know, one other thing. Ever since that character was here, there's been the funniest stink around the house. For the life of me, I can't figure out what it is. But it sure is awful.

You know, the only time I ever smelled anything like it was once when I got stuck in a foxhole for two days with a dead man. That was—Holy Jesus!!!

In a statement, Premier Recep Peker of Turkey hailed the president's "realistic and fully humanitarian" speech as the end of American isolationism.

The Rome independent newspaper Il Messaggero said the speech was the most important American pronouncement since promulgation of the Monroe doctrine in 1823.

The Madrid newspaper ABC said the speech had the effect of a diplomatic bomb and the foreign ministers hardly had any reason now for meeting in Moscow.

"Had a similar address been made 10 years ago the world war would not have broken out," ABC declared.

The Dublin Irish Independent said the speech stated clearly the role of the United States as "protector of democratic freedoms in every part of the world."

In London, Leslie Hore-Belisha former British war minister, said "this is the most constructive step that could be taken" and suggested that the United States might also consider taking over "our responsibilities" in Egypt and India.

Atomic Control, Stronger U. N. Necessary for Peace—Miller

Unless Americans can prove to the world that people can both eat and be free to say what's on their minds, civilization is through, finished and done.

Merle Miller, journalist, author and former university student, issued that warning yesterday in the season's final Information First lecture before a capacity audience in the senate chamber of the Capitol.

Bluntly discussing Russian and American war preparations, stressing the unprecedented deadlines of any future war and urging undelayed adoption of atomic control measures, Miller said the present United Nations organization is inadequate.

"Peace will not be achieved by plus plitudes," he asserted, explaining that only through a stronger U. N. can peace be kept. With everybody agreed that a world government on a world level is necessary, Miller said, opinion prevails that it's all "fine and idealistic but the world isn't ready for it."

"The world isn't ever ready for anything," he countered, "until people with an idea prepare the world for that idea."

The former editor of Yank magazine offered four specific things for U. N. improvement:

- (1) Make it impossible for any nation ever to withdraw.
- (2) Let the U. N. have compulsory jurisdiction over all disputes.
- (3) Give it power over individual persons as well as over nations.
- (4) Give the organization more power than that of any single nation or grouping of nations.

"Then you'll have an organization that can possibly keep the peace," he said.

Terminating America's Baruch plan "the only plan that can control atomic energy," Miller maintained that Russian proposals to "out-law atomic energy" are "preposterous."

If Russia refuses to support an atomic development authority, Miller continued, America "must join with other nations and have an ADA without Russia."

Concerning the prospects for another war, Miller's opinion was that the world situation now is comparable to that of 1937 or 1938.

"When we talk about war we know very well what we mean," he said. "We're talking about war between Russia and her satellites, and the United States and its allies. Let's not kid ourselves."

"Russia, either through wish of aggression or for self-protection—I think the latter—is preparing for war."

He cited American bids for exclusive trusteeship of Pacific bases, and America's Antarctic expedition as our own preparations for conflict. He declared that disarmament after World War I was a "mistake and a waste of time," and offered two preventive procedures:

"Either arm and prepare for war or create conditions under which war cannot occur."

"If you want to continue lying," Miller remarked, "—if you want to continue civilization as we know it—spend your time, your energy, your thought on amending the United Nations charter to make it work."

Today's problem involves a choice between two ideas, he pointed out—the idea that people can have freedom and food at once and the idea that they can have food only with totalitarianism.

"Millions in Europe are choosing food," he remarked, "and are saying 'freedom be damned.'" Without proof from America that the two are compatible, civilization is doomed, he said.

Turning to President Truman's proposal for aid to Greece and Turkey, Miller declared:

"The Greek government is not now and never has been a democratic government. The United States will be making a serious mistake if it keeps in power a dead, evil agency. If we're going to send $250,000,000 to Greece, we must be sure it gets to the people and not to the Greek government."

Young GOP Splits, New Officers Elected

Dissension in the ranks of the Young Republican league last night resulted in the election of a new group of temporary officers. This dissension first appeared when James Goodwin, A1 of Port Madison, expressed dissatisfaction with the old governing body. He charged that the former group had not been elected by league members.

Dean Lierle Jr., former chairman, maintained the body was acting only until a regular election could be held the first week in May, as provided by the constitution.

"This dissension was expressed largely by members who were present at a meeting of the Young Republican league for the first time," Lierle stated last night after the meeting.

Those elected were Robert Lorch, A1 of Ames, chairman; Goodwin, vice-chairman; John Loughlin, A2 of Cherokee, secretary; and Donald Dill, C3 of Mt. Vernon, treasurer.

These men are also members of Americans for Democratic Action. Lorch said the next official duty of the league will be to revise the constitution.

Students 'Go Dutch' For All-Campus Fling

Intermission entertainment at the dance will be in keeping with the Dutch theme. This year the annual spring semi-formal dance is open to all students, and tickets are available at the Methodist student center. Dance tickets also may be obtained at the door Saturday night.

Dinner will be served at 7 p. m., and dancing will begin at 8:30. George Coffey, of Detroit, is general chairman of the dance committee. Assisting him are Ruth Elliott, A2 of Dubuque, Phil Cady, A2 of Des Moines, and Marilyn Loock, A1 of Independence.

N. Y. Warehouse Burns

NEW YORK (AP)—A warehouse packed with chemicals and war surplus good destined for overseas shipment caught fire on the lower East Side waterfront yesterday and burned furiously for two hours causing a loss estimated by fire Commissioner Frank J. Quaye at between $500,000 and $1,000,000.

Two firemen were injured slightly.

State Aid to Dorms Out, AYD Revises Rent-Raise Petition

Discovering that state subsidization of the dormitory system conflicts with the Iowa code, the executive committee of American Youth for Democracy offered two alternatives to an original petition.

Educational Chairman Bernard Yaddoff said last night. The revised petition addressed to the state legislature requests either:

- 1. That the legislature suspend board and room increases pending public hearings on the question, or
- 2. That President Virgil M. Hancher release the figures supporting the rises.

The original petition requesting state aid to enable lowering of rents was revised in the light of the Iowa code which states that "No funds shall be loaned or used for this purpose (subsidizing of the system)."

President Hancher had declined Wednesday to give a detailed financial account of cost increases on the grounds that it would "lead to endless controversy."

The AYD petition will be circulated next week, AYD President Elaine Glasser said Wednesday.

Contracts Awarded For Construction Of Veterans Hospital

Architect-engineer contracts for the 500-bed veterans hospital here have been awarded, according to Commander Sam Cohen of Hanford post No. 5, American Legion of Cedar Rapids.

Cohen said last night that a statement of the contract award had been made in a letter to Rep. Tom Martin from Gen. Paul R. Hawley, chief medical director of the veterans administration.

"Everything possible is being done to expedite construction of the hospital," Cohen said, quoting Hawley's letter.

Iowa City recently was decided on as site of the hospital in preference to the proposal to reopen the Shick hospital in Clinton.

Arabs Underdogs In Palestine Row, Arab Student Says

Although once members of the same family, Jews and Arabs are meeting on unequal terms in Palestine today, declared Emil Salti, Arabian graduate student speaking to Zionist foundation at the Hillel club last night.

"All the Arabs want is fair play," Salti said, but added that the Arabs fear the Jews will use their powerful advantages in capital, and in industrial and technical experience to exploit the Arabs and to expand into other Arabian territory.

The Arabs are coming out of 400 years of darkness, Salti said, and they have not yet had a chance to develop their own economy.

"Stopping immigration is the first step toward fair play," Salti declared. Characterizing the Jews as the "big boys", Salti asked: "If peace is what they seek, how can they inflict pain and insecurity on others? It is up to the Jew to decide whether he wants to cooperate on a human basis or no."

Salti, who has been in the United States for six months, asked the audience to accept these two assumptions: "First, I do not have anything personally against the Jews who are interested in Palestine. Second, although I don't like to be thought of as a foreigner, still I may have different concepts and scales of values."

Ramblers Play Keystone Five In 'B' Game

Tonight's the night that Davenport must put it on the line against Franklin of Cedar Rapids and St. Mary's of Iowa City must ditto against Keystone if the two favorites in the sub-state are to move into the finals which will be held in the fieldhouse next week.

The class B battle featuring the Ramblers will probably be the closest of the evening with Keystone given an almost even chance to produce a victory.

Davenport is a top-heavy favorite to whip the Bolts with Skip Green, Fred Ruck and Paul Strathman leading the way. However, a real ball game is expected if the Cedar Rapids team can hit enough long shots to drive Davenport out of its tight zone defense.

If this occurs it will probably be the sharpshooting of Ivan Dorman, late comer who dropped in four nice ones against Manchester, or the left handed pitching of Bob Hoff that will turn the trick.

Franklin's big Center Phelan will have to prove his worth because undoubtedly Ruck, one of the best defensive performers in the state, will be the man guarding him.

St. Mary's is up against a club that has posted a 26-1 record this season and has a center in Charles Franzenberg that is the equal of Danny Maher whose 17 points paced St. Mary's first round win over Wellman.

The first game gets underway at 7:30 with the class A tussle scheduled for 8:45.

Lippy's at It Again; Exchanges Verbal Blasts With MacPhail

CRISTOBAL, C. Z. (AP)—Larry MacPhail and Leo Durocher, the Damon and Pythias of baseball when they both worked for the same club, tossed verbal brickbats back and forth yesterday in the wake of a new incident involving the president of the Yankees and the manager of the Dodgers.

Informed that his old boss had registered a complaint with commissioner A. B. Chandler over the insinuations of Brooklyn officials that MacPhail had two known gamblers as his guests at a baseball game, the voluble Durocher lipped:

"What does he mean by conduct detrimental to baseball?"

While saying he would await official notification from Chandler that charges had been filed before commenting, Durocher wined "I might have something to say behind the commissioner's closed doors."

MacPhail said last night at St. Petersburg, Fla., that he had named Durocher, Branch Rickey, president of the Dodgers, and

Money In The Bank

JOHNNY ANTONELLI, 16-year-old southpaw pitcher, who attends Jefferson high school, Rochester, N.Y., may receive a record baseball bonus when he graduates in June, 1948. ## 'Faster Than Feller'—Majors Eye Prep Hurler

—$100,000 Bonus Likely

ST. PETERSBURG, FLA. (AP)—pressed by a look at the kid's record while vacationing here before Cleveland started training in Arizona.

The book offers enthusiastic proof of Johnny's pitching prowess although it doesn't say he can throw as hard as Feller. Last summer he won 27 games and lost two, pitching for Jefferson high school and the Flower City Post of the American legion. In 129 innings he struck out 278 batters, an average of better than two an inning. Over one stretch he allowed a total of only four hits in six games and he had a no-hitter in school.

Just to round out the picture, he hit .293, played quarterback on the football team, and starred on the basketball five. And he still has a senior year coming up.

As Johnny won't be 17 until April 12, he still is eligible for legion ball where he probably will play this summer. However, that isn't definite.

First to line up on Johnny's trail were the St. Louis Cardinals who operate a farm in Rochester. The New York Giants saw him pitch for the New York state legion all-stars against the Connecticut stars at the Polo Grounds last summer. He went two hitless innings.

Antonelli says Paul Krichell of the New York Yankees took a look at him and Brooklyn popped in with nine representatives of the Olean, N. Y., Oilers, a class D farm club in the Pony league.

George Toporcer, head of the Boston Red Sox farms, is reportedly interested as is Joe Reardon, chief of the Phillies minor league organization. Wish Egan, chief Detroit scout will investigate personally this summer. Papa Antonelli has been delaying his return home to have a conference with Larry MacPhail of the yanks.

"I want Johnny to do what he wants," his dad explains, "whether it's baseball or college. I think he wants to play ball. I'm out to get the best offer and what's best for the kid."

Five Hawkey Tankers Leave For AAU Meet

Five of Iowa's ace swimmers will leave for Kenosha, Wisconsin, this morning to partake in the Wisconsin Invitational AAU swimming meet Sunday. The five are Wally Ris, Bob Matters, Dick Maine, Irv Straub, and Dave Brockway.

The five tankers will drive to Chicago with Coach Frank Havlicek today where Ris will enter in the Central AAU meet tonight. They will continue on to Kenosha Saturday. The preliminaries at Kenosha will be Sunday afternoon and the finals Sunday night.

The probable entrants for the Hawk team will be Ris in the 60, 100, and 220-yard free style events; Matters in the 100-yard breast stroke; Maine in the 100-yard back stroke; Straub in the 60 and 100-yard free styles; and Brockway in the diving, Maine, Matters, and Straub also comprise a 300-yard medley relay team.

Hawks Enter Illini Tech Relays

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—The mid-west's top track talent will assemble for the Illinois Tech relays, billed as the nation's largest indoor collegiate meet with 900 entries from 13 universities and 48 colleges, at the University of Chicago fieldhouse tomorrow.

More than a dozen records are expected to topple in the 16th renewal of the Tech carnival which is being revived after a three-year wartime lapse.

The field includes every individual champion from the recent Big Nine meet, eight central collegiate meet title-holders, five Big Six conference champions, and all winners from the Midwest invitational meet last week end.

Big Nine championship Illinois, bringing five conference champions, tops the university bracket which also includes Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Purdue, Wisconsin, and Northwestern from that league.

Other university class contenders will be championship Missouri and Kansas State of the Big Six, Marquette and Michigan State, Notre Dame and Drake which finished 1-2-3 in the Central Collegiate meet at East Lansing, Mich., Saturday.

In the university division, only Chuck Fenske's mile record of 4:08.9 set in the 1938 relays seems safe. High record of 4:08.9 set in the 1938 relays seems safe. High jumper Dwight Eddleman of Illinois is favored to better his own record of 6 feet, 6 1/2 inches. At least seven sprinters appear capable of improving the 70-yard dash mark of :07.1, while George Walker of Illinois and Bill Porter of Northwestern threaten the meet low and high hurdles records of :07.9 and 08.5 respectively.

Herb McKenly of Illinois already has established a new American indoor 440 record of 48 seconds flat and should lower the relays standard of 49.3, while Herd Baren of Michigan may shatter the 1:55.5 half mile mark after equalling the Big Nine record of 1:53.9 last Saturday.

Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace, National Collegiate and A.A.U. high and low hurdles champion, probably will menace records in both events in the college division, including his own high timber mark of :08.8 which he shares with Charles Hlad of Michigan Normal and Allan Tolmich of Wayne.

1,300 Leave Work in C.R. Oats Strike

Nearly 1,300 persons went on strike yesterday at the Quaker Oats plant in Cedar Rapids. The strike climaxes a long labor-management controversy over keeping 15 minute rest periods in a new contract, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Arthur Poe, industrial manager of the plant, told Iowa City Rotarians yesterday that Quaker Oats is "not going to give in" to union demands that are now "delaying settlement of an emergency contract dispute."

He maintained that "business is committing an economic crime if it doesn't make a profit and very few businesses can operate unless a surplus is built up." He stated that unions want a share in management authority without any acceptance of responsibility. Today there are "few places where management is supreme," he said.

Poe listed benefits granted employees before the union organized in the Cedar Rapids plant in 1941 as vacation with pay, severance pay and a pension plan. He said unions wouldn't give up wartime gains regardless of conditions.

The 15-minute morning and 10-minute afternoon rest periods came into being at Quaker Oats during the war. With a return to the 40-hour-week, the union still "will accept no compromise," he claimed.

Louis Jedlicka, union business manager at the plant, told The Daily Iowan last night: "The workers know the company is not playing fair on this. "The company wants to stagger the rest periods over a long time (two and one-half hours) which means some workers get their rest periods right before noon. That defeats the purpose of rest periods. "We once told the company we'd listen to an hour and one-half stretch, but they took a stubborn attitude that they were going to have their way or else. Now, the workers have decided they will have the 15-minute rest period for everyone at once," he said.

Jedlicka called Poe's statement that unions want management authority without accepting responsibility "a downright lie."

"We do think of the company and their responsibilities," he said. "The company says they lose 3.2 percent production per day on rest periods.

"We told them we'd increase production within three months up to whatever was lost from rest periods and we'd probably go over that.

"But management doesn't have that much faith in their workers," Jedlicka charged.

He said the company made over $7,000,000 after taxes were taken out last year.

"Originally, there were nine points we differed on." (They have reached an agreement on the other eight.) "Your guess is as good as mine as to when the strike will end," Jedlicka concluded.

Education Professor Granted 60-Day Leave

Prof. Everet F. Lindquist of the college of education announced yesterday he has been given a 60-day leave of absence from the university to advise the civil affairs division of the American military government on German elementary and second day schools.

He will be chiefly concerned with "advising AMG on how to put American educational achievement testing methods in practice in the German schools."

Lindquist will leave Iowa City March 24 for Washington, D. C. There he will be thoroughly briefed for his mission and flown to Berlin about March 28. Approximately a week will be spent there receiving further instructions from the AMG command.

"I am hoping to put a bit of time into sight-seeing, but I cannot say whether that will be possible as little detail has been given me concerning my work in Germany," he said.

Lindquist added he knows other American educational advisers of various fields will be making the same trip at the same time, but their names are unknown to him.

Mrs. Lindquist will remain in New York City while her husband is away.
