GOOD MORNING, IOWA CITY!

Partly cloudy today with the high about 70 and the low tonight between 50 and 55.

Release Tentative Outline for Course On Atomic Energy

The Association of Eastern Iowa Scientists released yesterday a tentative outline for a course on the implications of atomic energy. The outline was drawn up at the request of Dean Earl J. McGrath of the college of liberal arts. The course, as proposed, discussed and revised for the first time at a meeting of the association Monday night, would be given as a series of 15 or 16 lectures one evening a week starting with the fall semester. Students would be able to take it as a one-hour course for credit or without credit. The lectures would be open to townspeople. McGrath had requested Prof. J. I. Routh, president of the association to submit an outline for the course by early June so that the course could be listed, if desired, in the university catalogue for the next school year.

The tentative course outline:

Lectures 1 and 2: General introduction and elementary lecture on structure of the atom, to be given for persons with no knowledge of physics.

Lecture 3: The production of plutonium, the engineering problems involved in that production and as much as we know and may tell about the atomic bomb.

Lectures 4, 5 and 6: The effect and use of the atomic bomb, shown with the help of three moving pictures: "One World or None," "Operation Crossroads" and "Tale Of Two Cities."

Lecture 7: The biological effects of atomic energy.

Lecture 8: The sociological aspects of atomic energy.

Lecture 9: The philosophical aspects of atomic energy.

Lecture 10: The psychological aspects of atomic energy.

Lecture 11: The peacetime uses of atomic energy, including discussion of atomic power plants, the costs of atomic power and comparison between atomic and other power sources.

Lecture 12: Atomic energy in research.

Lectures 13, 14 and 15: The political aspects of atomic energy, including the national and international aspects and international control. Possibly a panel discussion with audience participation would be utilized for one of these lectures.

Lecture 16: General summary. The lectures might be given in Macbride auditorium, Routh suggested.

Those students who wished to take the course for credit might be required to read specified books and articles, such as "One World or None" and John Hersey's "Hiroshima." There would probably be one examination given, covering the required reading and the lectures.

A committee to further investigate the possibilities of the course and develop a more detailed outline consists of Professors George Glockler and Routh of the chemistry department, Professors L. A. Turner and Arthur Roberts of the physics department and Prof. L. A. Ware of the electrical engineering department. Routh indicated the probability that two non-science advisors will be added to the committee.

Plans for the general program and broadcasting policies of the new station await delivery of the equipment, Menzer said. No immediate changes in the operation or programming of WSUI are anticipated.

Learn Latin, Get Better Coffee— At Last We Have a Solution

WASHINGTON (AP)—Has everything failed? Is the world going to pot? Will nothing save us? Don't abandon hope, friends. Congress has just been told of a couple of ways to aid this nation in its difficulties.

Every citizen should:

1. Have a better cup of coffee each morning.
2. Learn Latin

The Latin suggestion came directly from Rep. Mathews (R-NJ). A knowledge of Latin enables one to read ancient history in the raw, and hence better understand present problems.

As Mathews so eloquently told a startled house: "Quidquid id est, timeo danaos et dona ferentes." It's mighty hard to refute an argument like that.

Mathews said this meant: "Whatever it is, I fear the Greeks even bearing gifts."

He said the situation is exactly reversed today, and the Greeks may utter: "Whatever it is, I fear the Americans even bearing gifts."

Let us now turn to a good cup of coffee, which is what Calvin Lieberman of Toledo says we are no longer getting.

He wrote his congressman, Rep. Ramey (R-Ohio), and Ramey put the complaint in The Congressional Record.

"We don't mind paying higher prices for coffee," wrote Lieberman. "But when this doubling in price is coupled with the sale of such a wretched, adulterated, foul smelling product, I believe our patience is exhausted."

"You know, from vast experience, that Mr. Average Citizen will stand for quite a lot; taxes, rationing, restrictions and so forth. Therefore I sincerely believe you will be remembered best for your stay in Washington if you could secure once again a good cup of coffee."

"Bolstered by the return of such nectar, we could face conditions with renewed vigor."

WASHINGTON (AP)—The agriculture department yesterday allocated 1,407,000 long tons of grain and grain products for export to shortage areas during July. This is equivalent to about 54,500,000 bushels. Allocations for June totaled 1,179,000 long tons or about 46,000,000 bushels. The increase will be largely wheat, supplies of which will be augmented by harvest of the new crop. The allocations beyond June 30 will be effective only if congress extends presidential war powers granting the government authority to control exports of scarce commodities. In event such powers are not extended foreign buyers will be free to buy any quantity they may desire irrespective of allocations. The July allocation included 456,000 tons for the American-British zone of Germany and 29,000 for the French zone in Germany. This compared with about 400,000 tons allocated these German zones for June.

Truman Searching For Man to Handle Greek-Turkish Aid

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman got the authority for his $400,000,000 aid program for Greece and Turkey from congress yesterday but reported trouble in getting an administrator for it. He remarked that in such times as these, able public officials are just as important to the welfare of the country as they are during a shooting war, as he phrased it, but he finds able men reluctant to take hard jobs in the government. The president disclosed his difficulties to his news conference when asked when the appointment would be announced. The answer was, as quickly as he can get the man he has in mind to take the post.

The chief executive also was asked whether the Greek-Turkish program, aimed at halting the spread of communism, would give rise to similar American moves in other areas. He replied that any such a situation would be met should it arise. Mr. Truman earlier in the day renewed his request for $350,000,000 for foreign relief as congress pushed on with this and three other matters in the international field.

1. The senate foreign relations committee, formally reporting the Italian treaty to the senate and urging speedy ratification, said that delay or rejection would endanger prospects for satisfactory German and Austrian settlements. It also urged quick ratification of the treaties for Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary.

2. A senate-house committee got to work on a final version of the relief authorization. The senate voted the full $350,000,000 requested but the house allowed only $200,000,000. Other differences, too, remained to be adjusted.

3. The house passed the state department's appropriation for the fiscal year beginning July 1 minus the $31,381,320 the administration asked for the foreign information and broadcast program.

4. The house foreign affairs committee considered the president's recommendation for authorization for the United States to participate in the United Nations international refugee organization. Assistant Secretary of State John H. Hilldring told the committee the state department will submit to the White House within a few days a proposed figure for the admission of European refugees to this country.

Mr. Truman asked again for the full $350,000,000 relief fund, to "finish what UNRRA has so well begun," in a letter transmitting to congress the tenth quarterly UNRRA report. The international relief agency wound up its work March 31. The report showed that 75 percent of 1,813,192 tons of supplies shipped by UNRRA up to Dec. 31 came from the United States. On a money basis, they were valued at $182,732,000, of which 72 percent came from this country. The Greece-Turkey measure as finally passed contains a preamble by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) specifying that it conforms with the United Nations charter, a provision by which the United Nations could call a halt to the American program if it acts itself, and requirements that the administrator of the program must be confirmed by the senate and the members of the aid mission checked for loyalty.

Prevent Depression By 'Common Sense' Is Truman Advice

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman declared yesterday there is no need ever to have a depression and presented this formula to prevent it: just use common sense, and don't let the greedy people get control of the country. He again expressed belief that prices are too high.

The President's views were sought at his news conference in connection with a report by Chester Bowles, former price administrator. Bowles made his report as head of an economic stability committee of Americans for Democratic Action, a new political organization. It declared a business drop is "imminent" but can be minimized if:

1. Prices are rolled back on an average of 10 percent through a presidentially appointed "price adjustment board."
2. The 15-cent hourly "package" wage increase is adopted generally by industry and by federal and local governments.
3. Congress scraps the 10-to-30 percent income tax bill and adopts, in its stead, a simple increase in individual exemptions from $500 to $700.

Wallace Asks Labor to Lead Movement to 'Abolish War'

DETROIT (AP)—Henry A. Wallace appealed last night to organized labor for leadership in setting up "an over-all program to abolish war."

The former vice president declared: "Such a program includes disarmament, agreement on enforceable world control of atomic energy, the internationalization of strategic areas, the eradication of fascism. . . ."

"We need also some agreement on the cessation of economic and ideological warfare among nations. Continuation of the spiritual warfare backed up by the Truman doctrine can never bring peace."

Wallace charged that instead of acting on legislation to help the people congress now was "working against the people by pushing anti-labor bills; tax reduction bills to spare the rich; appropriations of 24 million dollars to pry into the lives of every man . . . who dares to work for the government; appropriations of 400 million dollars to help arm the Turkish army and fight the ragged bands of Greek guerrillas."

Wallace continued: "I have no ambition for myself; I have great ambitions for the idea for one world, and a New Deal for the world."

In a noon address at Ann Arbor, Wallace told 5,000 University of Michigan students he believed Russia was "afraid to tie up with United Nations sub-organizations because Russians believe the United States is going to have a great depression."

"I believe a depression can be prevented," Wallace said, "but I full $350,000,000 relief fund to believe another one will develop in the next decade if United States money is spent for military purposes in Greece and Turkey."

Bigger Grain Crops Expected In Russia

MOSCOW (AP)—Reports from all over the Soviet Union gave the first solid indication yesterday of good prospects both for an early harvest which already had started and spring planting which is practically completed — news of importance not only to Russia but the world.

If the U.S.S.R., biggest agricultural land in the world, can produce a bumper grain crop a great step will have been taken toward a solution of the food problem everywhere, and several countries may benefit directly.

The country had more snow last winter than it has had for years, providing the moisture for crops. Russia will have more land under cultivation this year than at any time since before the war, although it still will be short of pre-war areas of cultivation.

Russia is expending one of the greatest agricultural efforts in her history. City people are planting kitchen gardens as never before. Thousands of persons from Moscow and other cities go out into the nearby fields every afternoon after work. They are planting potatoes and cabbage to do with as they wish.

Should the indications of a good harvest materialize from all these efforts the U.S.S.R. may be able to have enough grain to sell or trade to Britain and other nations, and participate more directly in an international solution of the world food problem.

BERLIN (AP)—British officials said yesterday a fleet of almost 50 ships will be pressed into service from now until the end of the month to speed 392,000 tons of foodstuffs from America to Germany's hungry millions. They said the ships will pour wheat, barley, flour, oats and corn into German ports to help relieve the grave food crisis in the British-American zones.

The Religion of an Educated Man

By CARL E. SEASHORE
Dean Emeritus of the Graduate College
(Reprinted by permission of the author from the Journal of Higher Education.)

The uneducated person, like the child, gives voice and action to his religious impulses within an area limited by his experience, as is often easily observable; whereas the educated person becomes reserved, judicious, and undemonstrative, and acquires religious poise and balance. He does not react eruptively in traditional patterns. His theology tends to be expressed in terms of logical, social, ethical and aesthetic values, wisdom in behavior, and a scientific and philosophical view of the universe as a whole, reflecting his entire mental development and personal experience. Education, of course, includes self-education, a rare development of common sense and imitative acceptance of learned points of view in and from the religious environment. Limiting himself to those educated persons who regard themselves as religious and have had a favorable development in religious life, the student of mental phenomena may observe certain outstanding characteristics from the point of view of natural history.

sent in early childhood, it will sprout and grow, and change from day to day as freely as knowledge of world events, scientific progress and the appreciation of art change under favorable conditions of growth. This growth consists largely in the refinement of the religious emotions and attitudes to keep them in step with his growing knowledge and enrichment of experience of experience and responsibilities. This growth consists in progressive development of an attitude toward God which results in a progressive realization of truth, goodness and beauty in life.

of heaven and the holder of the keys thereto; a shifting Santa Claus fantasy, but always more or less concrete. Then comes the realization that God is a spirit. Strange to say, that spirit is thought of in a materialistic way. Later, with the realization that in certain respects God is in us on this earth, it takes certain abstract forms, such as God is love, God is wisdom, God is a father God, God is power, God is the supreme reality. Next comes the debatable question of whether God is a person, and we often hear it said that instead of man's being made in the image of God, man makes God in his own image; that is, he thinks of God in terms of human wisdom, goodness, love and power, unlimited as to time or form in the material world, as well as in the spiritual world. Thus arises the realization that in this sense we are a part of God. As theologians have emphasized from many angles, there is divinity in man: man shares with God in the realization of law and order in the universe as well as in the direction of his own life. He even co-operates with God in the development of the unfinished world, as in the development of an environment controlled by religion. He even utilizes the most trying crises, such as the present, for making a better world.

cent tends to think that he has arrived; indeed, this tendency toward a static view is characteristic of all stages from childhood up through maturity.

The ability to make revisions is one of the finest achievements of a balanced personality. If the educated person does not have that, he will be left holding a discredited doctrine which he can not possibly believe, and his religion will fade out or become stagnant.

The religious views of the educated person rest largely upon history and knowledge of the rise to man. They are based upon the history of all religions, tracing their origin, the determining factors in their development, their authority, and their effect upon the individual and society. This is a most illuminating history, in which thousands of volumes have been written. They also rest upon the knowledge of the rise of man as revealed in religious anthropology, which traces fundamental concepts of religion as we know it today back to their taproots. Take for example, the concepts of revelation, of immortality, of the nature of God, of heaven, of hell, of sin, of prayer, of confession, of consecration, of sacrifice of redemption, of surrender to higher powers, of faith, of punishment, of fellowship. Every concept of this kind has gone through a process of evolution from the most primitive forms of religious response of the individual and the group through all levels of culture.

this was in accordance with prevalent theology, and the welfare of the soul was a different problem from what it is today. On the other hand, when psychology adopted the principle of evolution for a description of the development of the human mind, the theory of the nature and the welfare of the soul underwent a radical change. As a student of psychology at Yale University fifty years ago, I went through the throes of readjusting my non-evolutionary religion to the incoming evolutionary psychology. When psychology in modern times began to recognize the unity and integration of body and mind, religion changed profoundly both in theory and practice. Even within the lifetime of an individual like myself, psychology has changed radically on all of these issues, with the result that I have had to revise my religious concepts from time to time just as I have had to revise my concepts of material science in the effort to keep it up to date.

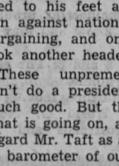

ing to many people, but the fact is that all of us who think seriously and persistently, even in terms of common sense, are more or less philosophical. In the words of George Patrick, one of the greatest and most beloved teachers of philosophy that this country has had, "philosophy is the greatest thoughts of the greatest men throughout the ages." I would add, "brought up to date." A philosophical view of religion, then, is one which is based upon progressive evolution of thought by the greatest thinkers who have been interested in religion and have tried to lead the religious life. Philosophy itself is a growth; it changes constantly by taking more and more ascertainable views into account. Philosophical points of view and scientific facts come to be regarded as common sense when they are sufficiently simplified to become useful in the daily conduct of the common man. From this point of view, philosophy is not a substitute for religion, but it gives color and form to the educated man's religious views and fits them into a rational way of life.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT Drift to the Right Is Coming to an End

By SAMUEL GRAFTON
New York Post Syndicate

The rightward drift is coming to its end. One of the clearest pieces of evidence is that the Ohio boys, Taft and Bricker, are out of the running for the Republican presidential nomination. It seems like only yesterday that the two were reported to be holding conferences on which should have first place on the ticket. Each for a moment thought he had the presidency in his pocket, but the pocket is so empty now you could put four decks of cards and a pound of cheese in it without crowding.

Another sign that the rightward drift is ending is the fact that Mr. Taft has been so spectacularly off balance lately, politically speaking. He tore into Mr. Lillenthal early this year with the air of a man looking to the populace to carry him on its shoulders. The expected support didn't show up, and Mr. Taft ended sprawled on the floor, so to speak, as if he had leaned against something that wasn't there. He crumbled to his feet and proposed a ban against nationwide collective bargaining, and on this issue he took another header.

country moves a foot, we may assume that a rather sharp change is taking place.

The rise in Mr. Truman's popularity is a better indication, and shows that if a man will only get to his desk early each morning, keep his shoes shined, and try to prevent profiteers from gouging the people through high prices, the people, in the end, will notice, and will say how nice of him.

If Mr. Truman's popularity were to drop ten points, Taft and Bricker would be back in the running at once, for that is the way this unequal seesaw operates, a great arc outside the Republican party producing its miniature disturbance within.

Another indication that the rightward movement is ending is that the Republicans are so unhappy. They feel that the country's press is unfair to them, even the Republican papers; they mutter nonsense about some sort of conspiracy to discredit their control of congress. It is like a child's complaint against the weather, like a child's search for a personal villain to blame for all inconvenient and untoward developments. The Republicans cannot understand why they are not as popular as they were last year, when everybody was rich and careless.

The rightward movement has probably reached its limit, and is receding; it has touched its high water mark. The successor to King Canute, who ordered the tide to retreat, is perhaps Mr. Taft, who would like to order the tide to stay in. But no pair of hands can hold the waters; they run through our fingers, as they pile now, in their resistless sweep, toward another shore.

Congress Makes Economy an End in Itself

Congress continues merrily along its way in a dream of dollar signs, swinging its axe like a frantic woodsman.

It doesn't seem to care which trees it fells, slashing appropriations, hacking budgets, knowing only that it is saving money and taking a strangely naive delight in that knowledge.

Latest of the money-saving proposals is a bill, now in committee, which would cut the navy's 1948 budget by $350,000,000, 10 percent of the current figure.

Add this to the list of other economy measures the dollar-delirious gentlemen in Washington have set up and you get some idea of the extremes which they are bent upon following to save John Q. Public a buck or two.

There's the state department budget. General Marshall returned from the Big Four ministers conference in Moscow, his ears ringing with praise from senate and house members. The legislators expressed admiration with the firm manner in which he laid Russian proposals before them.

It is for all these things—but it is against sin; and the greatest sin it knows is spending money to support these things.

It's Time to Talk of Korea Again

One safe prediction that can be made about the forthcoming second meeting of the Soviet-American commission on setting up a provisional government for Korea is that it will accomplish at least as much as did the first meeting. The last time the commission met—about a year ago—it didn't get anywhere.

There is little hope that resumption of discussions on the Korean problem Tuesday will be very successful. If anything, Russia and the United States are more firmly entrenched in their mutually exclusive positions than they were a year ago.

At that time, the U.S. contended that all democratic parties in Korea should be invited to help in forming the provisional government. Russia thought the groups should be limited to those approving the American-Soviet provisional agreement on Korea

OF CABBAGES AND KINGS

But when the little matter of state department funds arose, that was the end. We are economizing, explained the gentlemen on Capitol Hill, and cannot afford the sum you requested.

Apparently makes little difference that without enough money, Secretary Marshall may not be able to press his program for world peace, a program with which these very men say they are in accord.

But this is only the beginning. Cuts have also been proposed for the departments of labor, commerce and interior.

Yet congress says it is earnest about solving the labor situation, it is interested in good business, would like to make possible the reclamation of natural resources which were neglected during the war, and it will help Secretary Marshall further his plan for world peace.

Aiken Exposes Anti-Union Lobby

By LAWRENCE E. DENNIS
Daily Iowan Columnist

Labor debate footnote: It took Senator George Aiken, the liberal-minded Vermont Republican, to get the evasive facts about the powerful anti-union lobby out into the open.

During the final stages of the senate debate on the labor bill last Monday, Aiken—who fought the restrictive Ball-Taft amendments straight down the line—took the floor to call his colleagues' attention to the vast sums of money being spent by various groups seeking to curtail or destroy union activities. In a well-documented statement, the Vermont legislator singled out the United States chamber of commerce, the National Association of Manufacturers and the Committee for Constitutional Government, Inc., as the principals whose anti-labor propaganda campaign during recent months "has cost well into the millions of dollars."

Aiken estimated that the total amount spent by various pressure groups in support of harsh labor legislation, such as the measure passed by the house, was at least $100,000,000. "The single March advertising campaign in the newspapers against labor by the N.A.M. cost $20,000,000," said Aiken. "This propaganda campaign has been conducted through letters to the press; it has been conducted through radio commentators whose services have been for hire by various organizations. It has been conducted through speakers sent everywhere in the United States where they could get an opportunity to expound the anti-labor doctrine."

The GOP senator, a senior member of the labor committee which drew up the compromise bill then being considered in the upper house, called attention, first of all, to circulars sent out by the U.S. chamber of commerce "in an obvious effort to get members of the various chambers of commerce throughout the United States to favor a destructive labor law." While the circulars appeared to carry a comparison of the house labor bill and the senate labor bill, it failed to mention many of the provisions of the senate bill, giving the inference that the senate measure did nothing at all about jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts.

Aiken put the charge bluntly: "The chamber of commerce did not place the truth before its members."

However, while the NAM and chamber campaigns for restrictive labor legislation made some pre-

DENNIS

What we should do is to repeal all federal labor laws on wages, hours of labor, collective bargaining, minimum wages, etc., and abolish all boards, bureaus, and commissions that result from these laws. There should be no laws which would recognize strikes as legitimate and lawful. It would probably be desirable to make it illegal for an employer to grant a wage increase to any employee who had been on strike during a preceding period. Some day it may dawn on the majority of our citizens that the abuse to be eliminated is collective bargaining itself.

Senator Aiken pointed out that it was becoming increasingly clear that "if such activities are carried far enough, the final result will be the destruction of democracy in the United States and the prohibition of the right to organize on the part of any group. Under such a program, there is no doubt that workmen will come first and farmers will come next."

He finished his hard-hitting address by saying that President Truman "would be fully justified" in vetoing the type of legislation being called for in the propaganda campaigns of the NAM, the chamber of commerce and the Committee for Constitutional Government, Inc.

And Senators Taft and Ball? They just looked straight ahead.

Help us project Scoville's penetrating analysis of the menace of labor monopolies," says the C.C.G.L. letter, "to 1,000,000 thought leaders who must guide our nation in this critical period."

If anyone tells you that fascism is no longer a threat to American democracy, just listen to this excerpt from the Scoville book, copies of which were sent to all members of congress by the C. C. G. L.

The Committee for Constitutional Government, Inc., advocates that the anti-labor forces throughout the country "use the best educational tool at your command... the little book, 'Labor Monopolies—Or Freedom,' by John W. Scoville."

In a letter widely distributed by the C.C.G.L., the senate labor committee members were said to "shrink from facing the hard fact that swollen union powers must be curbed," while the house labor committee was termed "a much stronger group... nearer the people" whose leaders "have built into their hearings a shocking record of labor-union abuses, but the record has not been given the publicity it deserves."

Summer Fashions Sweet, Fresh

Style Show Previews New Pastel Cottons

By LORELLA PETREHN
Society Staff Writer

Styles sweet as a violet, fresh as a daisy and full of the heady enchantment of orange blossom time will be worn by Mamselle this summer if fashion previews are any indication.

All the romantic aura and colorful charm of an old-fashioned flower garden was seen in the softly shaded new summer apparel modeled in the River room of Iowa Union yesterday. The occasion was the annual YWCA style show sponsored by Major in Marriage.

Dawn-to-dark ensembles in the day of a trim and practical business woman of 1947 were the theme of the first act, "Violets to You," in honor of the white-collar girl who lives closely by the clock. Designed to make "rising at 6" more cheerful and bright was the gay fuchsia pajama suit modeled by Barbara Berg. The three-quarter-length jacket was trimmed with white applique pockets.

Planned to make any working girl's afternoon off at the beach more exciting was the dazzling, provocative three-piece swim ensemble worn by Shirley Davis. Her Catalina latex bathing suit with matching shortie coat were in dashing yellow with fascinating black tiger trim.

"Daisies Won't Tell" what goes on in a debutante's head when spring arrives, but the second act gave a stunning glimpse of what she chooses to wear for her frolicsome summer.

A combination of chic and fine detail was the two-piece princess style black jacket dress shown by Ginny Hazen. Perfect for cocktail dates or afternoon teas, the dress featured a unique one-shoulder capelet, baby mother of pearl buttons and was accented by a red cartwheel hat of peanut straw.

The answer to making any deb's dreams come true was the soft yellow Egyptian print gown modeled by Kathie McCormick. Styled by Connie Carter, in fine mesh with sequin trim, the dress was appropriately accented with black accessories including an off-the-face hair braid hat from Switzerland.

To top off the debutante's wardrobe with a dramatic flourish, was the American Beauty moire taffeta formal worn by Nancy Hole. A cameo-styled dress, with a three-tier peplum, slit skirt and matching evening bag, the gown was contrasted by black sling pumps.

June, a white wedding, soft music and a lovely bride were touchingly portrayed in "Orange-Blossom Time"; an elegant finale to a beautiful show. Capi Flynn looked sweet and beguiling in a sheer negligee styled by Tula for the honeymoon trousseau. Fashioned of white cefanese crepe with wide lace trim, the gown was matched by a butcher boy robe.

Unmatched for simple beauty and exquisite lines was the white marquisette bridal gown modeled by Roma Willcoxen. Leg-of-mutton sleeves, a ruffled peplum and sweetheart neckline added to the gown's simplicity.

Clothes modeled at the show were through the courtesy of Strub's Yetter's and Towner's department stores.

Parents to Learn About Children

Child Development Meeting June 18, 19

Iowa parents will bend their ears to experts from many fields of child welfare when they come to Iowa City June 18 and 19 for the 20th annual conference on Child Development and Parent Education.

Among the notables on the program will be Dr. Clyde Kluckhohn, department of social relations, Harvard university; Dr. Jean MacFarlane, department of psychology, University of California; Dr. Thomas Munro, curator, Cleveland museum of art, and Dr. Paul Witte, college of education, Northwestern university.

Joint Sponsorship

The conference, under the joint sponsorship of the Iowa State Council on Child Development and Parent Education, the Iowa Child Welfare Research Station and the extension divisions of the University of Iowa, Iowa State College and Iowa State Teachers' college, will be held in the senate chamber of Old Capitol, with a dinner meeting Wednesday, June 18, in the River room of Iowa Union.

Child welfare experts from all parts of Iowa will participate in the panel discussions which will follow the morning and afternoon programs.

Presiding at the opening session will be Prof. Robert R. Sears, director, Iowa child welfare research station. President Virgil M. Hancher will welcome conference guests, after which Dr. Witte will talk on "The Parents' Role in Fostering a Balanced Reading Program." Several outstanding Iowa educators will participate in the round table discussion which will follow Dr. Witte's talk.

Afternoon Program

Featured on the afternoon program will be Dr. Kluckhohn, whose topic will be "What Modern Parents Can Learn from Navajos." Dr. Kluckhohn, a professor of anthropology, long has been a student of this Indian tribe, and his book, "The Navajo," published last fall, was widely publicized. Prof. Harold Saunders of the department of sociology will preside at this conference session.

After-dinner speaker at the banquet in the River room Wednesday evening will be Dr. Witte, talking on "Unfinished Business in Education." Dean Bruce Mahan of the extension division will preside, and Dr. Sears will give greetings.

Thursday Sessions

Mrs. Lloyd S. Mumford of Council Bluffs, president, Iowa Congress of Parents and Teachers, will preside at the Thursday morning meeting in the senate chamber. Dr. MacFarlane will discuss "Factors Important to Personality Development," after which Dr. Munro will talk on "Art Experience for Children: What Can the Community Do?" During the afternoon there will be roundtable discussions of both talks in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Besides parents, large numbers of teachers, social workers, ministers, and others concerned with child welfare are expected to attend the conference. Inquiries for room reservations may be directed to the Iowa child welfare research station, and those in charge suggest early arrangements, since the supply of rooms is limited.

Wesley Concert Profits To Aid Destitute Families

Wesley foundation's benefit concert Sunday by Soprano Fumi Saito took in more than $326, according to Gordon Lundy, treasurer.

The net profit, estimated at about $160, will go to Miss Saito's brother-in-law, a Methodist minister in Tokyo, who is housing 50 destitute families in the basement of his church.

The success of the concert was in part made possible by the contributions by Iowa City merchants which paid for the printing of programs and poster announcements.

Roosevelt School Toddlers Go Back to The Land in 4 x 10 Plot

By OLIVE VAN HOUTEN
Roosevelt school's "kinder-gardeners" make up with enthusiasm what they lack in space.

This spring the class of 31 five-year-olds has taken to the soil. Although their garden measures only 4 by 10 feet, little more than one square foot per student, every child has had a hand in the plot.

Under the direction of Mrs. Scott Reger, kindergarten teacher, everyone personally planted three or four seeds, working in groups of three.

The garden was planned in the classroom, where value of earthworms and loosening the soil was learned. Onions, radishes and lettuce are thriving in the plot which is located at the edge of the school playground.

"These are radishes," said one little girl pointing enthusiastically to the lettuce, just peeking above the ground. She was immediately challenged by those in a more advanced stage of vegetable recognition.

Using school-owned hoes and spades, the pupils did all the work but the initial digging.

They are rabid diggers; in fact, some of the vegetables won't be up this year. The others will disappear with sandwiches and milk at a garden picnic the last week of school.

Burford Gets Rosenwald Fellowship

Byron L. Burford, graduate assistant in the art department, yesterday received a $2,000 fellowship from the Julius Rosenwald fund, institution for the betterment of racial relationships.

Burford received his award by entering to the fund his plan for a field trip throughout the south in which he would sketch, then later paint, the southern Negro and his environment.

He recently painted a mural depicting the history of the American theater for Iowa City high school. Burford plans to begin his field trip of the South soon after receiving his M.F.A. next month.

The 26-year-old painter's canvases have won him first place in the 1946 Iowa State Fair art exhibit and 1946 Mississippi art exhibit. His paintings have been seen all over the nation.

A native of Jackson, Miss., Burford received his B.F.A. from the university in 1942. During the war, he served with the army air forces, and, upon his discharge, returned to his studies at the university.

Julius Rosenwald fund awarded 40 fellowships in all yesterday. The fellowships average $2,000 each, and were presented to 23 negroes and 17 white southerners, according to The Associated Press.

Five colors only are used to form the international Color Alphabet flags used on the high seas; red, yellow, blue black and white.

Question of the Year— What's Wrong With the Cards?

By WHITNEY MARTIN
NEW YORK (AP)—It's pretty bad, but nobody has suggested yet that the slump of the St. Louis Cardinals might last all year, as the Phillies' slumps used to do. Only the Phillies slumps lasted all year, year after year.

The more you think about it the more amazing and incomprehensible is the slump of Eddie Dyer's team. You couldn't call it a Dyer slump, as he's playing the same alert bench game he played last year. But it most certainly is a dire slump.

When we saw the Cardinals down south they looked, played and acted like champions. They were casual, happy and care-free and with that air of confidence that the old Yankees used to have.

The Cardinals were champions. They knew it, and defied anyone to prove otherwise. On the field the players were as loose as dry sand. They didn't go up to the plate hoping to hit the ball. They went to the plate with only the length of the hit question. What happened to this confident, cocky crew has everyone baffled. They got off on the wrong foot and can't seem to get switched around. We've seen it happen to teams and individuals in nearly every sport.

We've seen fine football teams with acknowledged superiority have things go wrong the first couple of times they got the ball, and thereafter have a heck of a time getting started. We've seen fine basketball teams miss their shots for some unaccountable reason, and lose to inferior teams.

The Cardinal situation is just a prolongation of these one-game slumps in which a team gets a little panicky when things don't go just right, with the result it gets fearful it can't make things go right. And in that mental condition nothing does go right. The confidence and physical looseness are replaced by uncertainty and tightness.

If you toss a glass into the air and don't care too much whether you catch it or not, you'll catch it easily. If you know you must catch it at all costs your hands and fingers stiffen, and you're liable to drop it. It's the same with baseball players fielding or trying to hit a ball.

We think Roy Stockton of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, who knows the Cards better than they know themselves, has a good idea when he advises them to go out there and play like schoolkids, get a little fun out of the game.

Maybe Dyer should bench the whole first team for a couple of days. The reserves might lose their games, but the first team does anyway. Let the first stringers go fishing. They might come back ready to prove they are the team they thought they were.

UNDERDOGS BY SIX POINTS Captain Dick Woodard (left) and Hal Shoener, left end, show off the Gold team's mascot "Mister" who will be on the sideline Saturday giving the favored Blacks the "evil-eye." Mister has put in a daily appearance on the practice field this week to give his adopted team an inspiration to upset the Blacks. Kickoff time is 2:15 and officials for the game will be Pops Harrison, referee; John Wilson, umpire; Waldo Geiger, field judge; and Buzz Graham, head linesman.

Iowa Clips Luther; Hits Gophers Today

Mikolajczak Stops Norse On 4-Hitter

DECORAH (AP)—University of Iowa baseball coach Otto Vogel reached deep into his bag of pitchers and pulled out another surprise here this afternoon. It was Bob Mikolajczak starting his second game, and the Hawkeye lefty threw a four-hitter in winning an 8-0, seven inning battle from Luther.

Vogel pulled the same thing last Tuesday when Bill Martin recorded a 10-3 victory over Louisiana Tech, a team that beat Iowa three times previously.

Iowa got 11 hits off Norse hurler Red Mellom and scored two runs in the first, two in the second, one each in the third and sixth and two in the seventh.

Luther threatened in the second by filling the bases but Mikolajczak bore down and got the next three men in a row.

Today and tomorrow Iowa will be in Minneapolis where they will try to break their 4-4 Western conference rating with a pair of wins over the Gophers. Current ratings place the Hawks fifth in the conference while Minnesota is holding down the cellar.

Right off the whistle, however, Iowa may run into trouble, or to be specific, the big right arm of Minnesota's Oje Henning. Henning was masterful last week-end but lost a 2-1 decision to the league's best chucker, Marv Roblatt, the Illinois fireballer.

Big Oje out threw Roblatt by allowing only four hits but the Gophers weakness at the plate cost him a victory. In addition Oje himself laid down the perfect bunt that scored a man on a squeeze play for Minnesota.

On the mound for the Hawks will be Moose Faber, an expert in his own right, and Iowa hitting should provide Faber with his third conference victory of the season.

Hustling A's Push Detroit 14-Innings In Losing 4-2 Game

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The American league-leading Detroit Tigers had to go 14 innings yesterday to whip the Philadelphia Athletics, 4-2. A pinch single by Veteran Roger (DOC) Cramer and a long fly by Pitcher Paul (Dizzy) Trout provided the scoring punch.

The A's were never out of the ball game until the last putout—a weak popup by third baseman Hank Majeski. In their half of the 14th, Connie Mack's Athletics loaded the bases but relief hurler Al Benton squelched the rally. Trout got credit for the win, his fourth against a single defeat. Dick Fowler was the loser.

The Tigers grabbed a 2-0 lead in the second inning as rightfielder Pat Mullin slammed a homer over the right field wall with Dick Wakefield aboard.

Browns End Boston Winning Streak, 2-1

BOSTON (AP)—Curveballing Bob Muncief and his St. Louis Brownie team mates, aided by two Boston errors, yesterday snapped a Red Sox winning streak at four games, beating the American league champions 2-1 before 11,140 fans.

The unearned run which proved to be the margin of victory was scored by Bob Dillinger in the third. With one out Dillinger singled to left, stole second and kept on to third when Catcher Hal Wagner erred on his throw to second.

After Paul Lehner walked, Jerry White grounded to short and the fleet Dillinger crossed the plate as Eddie Pellagrini missed White's grounder.

The Sox tied it in the sixth on Ted Williams' double off the left field score board and Rudy York's right field base hit.

The Browns added their second run on successive seventh inning singles by Muncief, Dillinger and Lehner.

The Sox missed a golden opportunity in the seventh when they loaded the bases with one out only to have both Pellagrini and Johnny Pesky pop out.

The first scheduled football game isn't until next September but you'd never guess it from the attitude on the Hawkeye practice field this week. The drive and hustle continues under the hot sun as if Notre Dame were on the outskirts of Iowa City intent on taking up where they left off last year.

The top exponents of Iowa gridiron talent have shaken off the spring fever epidemic long enough to undergo the best of conditioning in preparation for Saturday's inter-squad game.

The spirit is the best in years and the coaches have reason to be pleased with the showing of the entire group. Competition has been fierce and the veteran holdovers have found themselves pressed to hold their places under the bids of some new kids with lots of what it takes. Everybody's putting out with the thought of how good it'd be to wallop U.C.L.A. next fall in the first major intersectional game of the year.

The prospects are plenty good although few would concur at the moment with the idea expressed in one survey of the Big Nine this spring which said Iowa was all set and waiting for the conference title to fall into its lap. Everybody around here knows that it will take work and more work to produce the desired results. Which are, in case you haven't heard, the Big Nine title and the Rose Bowl bid.

Stories from around the loop concerning spring drills have given the impression that the schools are loaded with talent but short on spirit. That's what Iowa has always had most of—even when the signs read "Minnesota 52, Iowa fights."

Saturday's game is going to be a good one. Some of the fellows on opposing teams aren't even speaking to each other's girl friends which is the ultimate in self restraint. When the squad was split for the Saturday tussle, the kids took to the idea like we would to a cold glass of refreshment about now.

We too hear the call of the approaching finals, but it would take the draft board to keep us out of the Iowa stadium for this one. Whether you like your football rare, medium or done, you'll get your ID card's worth when the Black and Gold mingle on the green.

Howard Moffitt Named Hawket Athletic Head

Howard Moffitt, Iowa City high school track coach, for the past year was chosen director of athletics at the April meeting of the school district's board of directors. He succeeds Herb Cormack who resigned to accept a post on the coaching staff at Iowa State college.

The position of football coach remains unfilled.

Moffitt, who won nine letters in three major sports while a student at city high, has coached at Waukon, Vinton, East Waterloo in addition to Iowa City.

Kiner's Two Homers Defeats Dodgers, 7-3

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Ralph Kiner, who led the National league in home runs last year with 23, found the range yesterday with two that dropped into "Greenberg Gardens" and as a result the Pittsburgh Pirates gave Brooklyn its third straight road loss, 7 to 3.

In the fourth, after Hank Greenberg had walked and Frank Gustine had singled, Kiner lifted one of Vic Lombardi's pitches over the left field bull pen fence which had been shortened when the Pirates acquired Greenberg from Detroit. He dropped another in the same place in the eighth with the bases empty and Ed Chandler pitching.

Iowa, Hoosier Golfers Meel

Iowa's undefeated golf team will place its laurels on the block tomorrow against the Indiana linksmen in a Big Nine dual meet here on Finkbine field.

The Indiana bout will be a six man team affair with each Hawkeye brassie welder playing 36 holes in competition. Three team foursome matches will constitute the morning's play beginning at 8:30. Two Hawkeye golfers will match cards with two of the Indiana boys in each of the three foursomes.

Last night Coach Kennett named five of the six varsity starters against Indiana. They are: Charles Updegraff of Boone; Robert Graham of Kewanee, Ill.; James Rasley of Iowa City; John Campbell of Oskaloosa, and Dan Sheehan of Council Bluffs.

deeds or creeds, but is personally engrossed in leading a good life here and now. He is sympathetic to forms of cultivation and recognition of goodness and beauty in organized religion, but his devotion is to the beautiful in relation to the highest ends of life. He is historically interested in the stults of doctrinal confessions, of the personality of the spiritual world, of the personality of God, and the authority of Jesus, but his devotion is to the spiritual life as exhibited logically, ethically, and aesthetically. He aims at all costs to maintain honesty in the search for truth, unselfishness in right living, and devotion to beauty in his own life and in the world in which he lives.

It may well be said that these goals can be, and are, reached by many without the profession of religion and without religious sanctions. Many persons outside the church lead such lives. I have been writing of the person who regards himself as religious; that is, the person whose life is governed by the conviction that beyond current science, morality, and philosophy, there is something more comprehensive and more permanent, which we may think of as the spiritual world—a world to which man is ultimately responsible and in which he finds the satisfaction of fellowship. The specific forms of faith, of prayer, and of worship are but the glimmerings of a mystic craving for, and faith in, the existence and role of God, however conceived. This is manifestly a mystic attitude; it may be an attitude of philosophical skepticism. It may or may not concern itself about speculations with reference to the positive assurances of the future life or the countless varieties of predication in regard to its nature and reality. There is a vast scope of interest in the psychology of belief as it functions in observable man. But the way of the realities underlying such beliefs does not fall within the scope of this article. Communication with God through prayer and praise and fellowship with him and his followers is not limited to the stipulations of a future life, although intimately associated with them.

In brief, in the normal development of the emotional life of the individual, the progress of religious development parallels the progress of learning. Witness the change that comes over a man who passes from adolescent stargazing, deeply impressed with the sublimity of the starlit heavens of which he has no knowledge, to the knowledge of the astronomer who actually sees in the heavens above countless worlds, suns, planets, universes outside of our universe, resulting in the highest type of feeling of awe, dependence, reverence, and the need of fellowship.

Bids Accepted for Installation Of Utilities in Housing Project

Bids totaling $99,573 for services to be installed in university temporary housing projects were accepted from Davenport and Ackley contractors yesterday, according to University Architect George Horner.

Approval was given the bid of $89,089 by Carston Bros., Ackley, for plumbing and heating. Also approved was the bid by Olds Electric company, Davenport, of $10,484 for electrical equipment.

The services will be installed in 25 temporary dormitories being erected by M. D. McCreedy, Iowa City contractor; 25 barracks-classes being built by the FWA, and additional construction to house a chemical laboratory, botanical laboratory and cafeteria.

In addition, Horner said his office would receive bids until 2 p. m., May 29, for construction of: 1. Twenty temporary dormitory-barracks to be built south of University hospital.

2. A heating tunnel extension to lead to a new botanical laboratory to be located south and west of the Bloomington-N. Madison street intersection.

This laboratory will replace the old botanical lab which will be torn down to make room for the VA hospital to be built here.

3. Interior remodeling of the South Quadrangle. This remodeling would mean division of about 25 large student rooms into smaller rooms. It would also include construction of additional toilet and shower facilities.

Airport Hangar Bids Made to Civic Group

M. D. McCreedy and Ralph Wildman submitted bids yesterday for the T-type hangar and repair shop tentatively proposed for the Iowa City airport. The bids were for concrete block construction with alternate bids for tile buildings.

For concrete block buildings, M. D. McCreedy, local building contractor, bid $20,565 for the repair shop and $10,774 for the hangar. The other bid of $19,750 for the shop and $10,462 for the hangar was made by Ralph Wildman, general contractor of Iowa City.

For tile block buildings, McCreedy bid $22,750 for the shop and $12,460 for the hangar, while Wildman bid $22,065 for the shop and $12,083 for the hangar.

No action was taken on the bids yesterday by the airport commission.

Along with earlier emergency supplies of American wheat and flour, the corn is calculated to enable Premier Ramadier's government to avoid any further reduction in the ration.

Urge Conversion Of Land to Industry

The city planning commission yesterday voted to recommend approval by the city council of a petition for re-zoning nine acres in southeast Iowa City from residential to industrial territory.

The petition, presented to the city council Wednesday night by Ruth F. Dunlap and Hugh A. Dunlap, requested the change on property they own along Muscatine road near the east end of Kirkwood avenue. Council action is expected at its May 26 meeting.

According to the petition, an industry "international in scope" is considering Iowa City for a plant at the site specified. The concern reportedly is a paper processing company.

Members of the planning commission who attended yesterday's meeting were Mrs. F. A. Stromsten, A. O. Kelley, L. C. Crawford, Carl Redenbaugh, Lyle S. Duncan and Dr. Andrew H. Woods.

Novel, But Not Profound—

'Joan of Lorraine'

By JACK O'BRIEN

Maxwell Anderson's "Joan of Lorraine," which opened at the University theater last night is the theater's latest interpretation of an old and oft-told theme—that of history's most famous soldier turned saint, Joan of Arc.

It is novel, if not very profound, and it's the most interesting thing the university group has tackled in some time. It's good Anderson, not another "Winterset" or "High Tor," but probably the best thing he's done since then.

Anderson has involved himself in two plays or, rather, a play within a play. One is a realistic glimpse of a group of contemporary actors in the midst of a rehearsal. The other is a series of scenes from their play—a play about Joan which, in all probability, and despite the calibre of its performance is not going to be very good.

There is good reason for the director deciding to play it for laughs and there is certainly ample reason for the actress who plays Joan to be concerned over the author's interpretation.

The illusion of reality is essential in effective theater, and in achieving reality on the one level, Anderson has created a costly atmosphere of artificiality on another level. His play about Joan says nothing that Shaw and others haven't said before and said better.

Tickets for "Joan of Lorraine," current University theater production, are available for every performance except tonight and tomorrow night.

Students may obtain reservations by bringing identification cards to room 8A, Schaeffer hall.

But Anderson has a wily way with dialogue, he is an excellent polished, less affected and less handsome.

Herb Kanzell, Preston Magruder and Arvella Free (she was especially good when just lying in bed with her back to the audience) deserve special mention in a cast that was good on both levels of presentation.

The set pieces by Robert Burroughs were attractive and effective to the action. The lighting was neat and Arnold Gillette, who is usually represented by his fine settings, did a commendatory job in his new-found task as director.

Incidentally, Mary was right (as was Anderson)—the off-stage "voices" were pretty obvious.

City Milk Passes Rigid Government Tests; Diarrhea Possibilities Out, Says Inspector

Milk in Iowa City is sanitary, and should not be accused of causing infant diarrhea, Clarence J. Ruppert, city milk inspector, said yesterday.

Ruppert made frequent inspections and tests of the city milk supply recently and found it to meet rigid government standards. Milk in an Iowa City dairy is not exposed from the time it is dumped into the receiving room until you take off the cap, he said.

Bacterial counts of milk have been favorable also, said Ruppert. The Federal standard requires a count of 30,000 or less for pasteurized and 50,000 or less for raw milk. The latest test of Iowa City gave a count of 21,000.

The mere fact of bacteria in milk is nothing to worry about, according to Ruppert. Milk could have a high bacterial count and not have a single harmful bacterium. On the other hand, a low count could contain some that are harmful. The importance of the bacterial count is that it shows how carefully the milk is handled, and these tests show Iowa City milk to be well cared for, according to Ruppert.

Improvement can be made, however, Ruppert said, by the use of a cap protecting the mouth of the
