

Asks 'No Veto' On Jap Pact

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States challenged Russia and the other great powers yesterday to give up their veto rights in drafting a peace treaty for Japan. It also suggested that a conference to begin work on the treaty be held here or in San Francisco beginning Aug. 19.

The proposal for the conference was announced by the state department. In addition to changing the voting procedure from that followed by the great powers in working on the German, Austrian and European satellite treaties, the American proposal would put original treaty drafting in the hands of 11 nations instead of simply the big powers.

Diplomatic authorities predicted that France and China would accept the American suggestion. However, there was considerable uncertainty whether Russia would go along.

In the commission each of the "Big Four" of the Far East—America, Britain, China and Russia—has a veto power over decisions.

American opposition to the veto is based on official feeling here that it has been used by Russia in European treaty making to delay progress.

Major Fight Looms in UN

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—Delegates to the United Nations economic and social council began assembling last night for the council's fifth session which many expected to develop into a major fight between Russia and the western powers over the Marshall plan.

Preliminary discussions will begin this morning. Today's economic discussions will begin as the Security council resumes debate on the Balkan question in which the United States is pressing for a showdown with Russia.

Authoritative sources said some U.N. delegations were considering the possibility of setting up a Greek border watch outside the world organization if Russia blocked action on the Balkans.

Delegates to the economic and social council were generally agreed that their forthcoming session would be the most critical in U.N. history.

The Russians, headed by Prof. Alexander P. Morozov, were silent about their plans, but there appeared to be little doubt that they would carry to the council their fight against the British-French plans to implement the Marshall program.

Morozov already has indicated he would propose to outlaw international loans for military purposes.

Worker Aids Friend As Flying Girder Maims Detrouer

DETROIT (AP)—A quick thinking workman came to the aid of a comrade whose leg was cut off by a flying girder yesterday as they toiled 50 feet above Detroit's financial district.

Frank Ryan, 48, father of two children, lost his leg when a girder on a building they were razing pinned him against a wall.

As he wavered in agony on the edge of a platform, Alfred Finck, working with him, reached his side and held him with one hand. With the other Finck ripped up his own shirt and applied a makeshift tourniquet. Firemen eventually rescued the maimed man.

The senate unanimously approved a house measure incorporating Amvets and sent it on to President Truman.

Wins, Loses, Wins—Wonders

AHOSKIE, N.C. (AP)—Harvey Jones, young Negro war veteran, had the promise of a new $3,200 Cadillac yesterday but he pondered how to get it to his small, backwoods home.

Notified that the Ahoskie Kiwanis club, spurred on by a mounting wave of protests, had decided to provide another Cadillac to replace the one he won—and lost—in the club's raffle last week when Negroes were barred from the drawing, Jones took the news calmly, saying:

"I am sure glad they decided to give me something."

Jones, a veteran of 18 months navy service, lives with his wife and baby on his father's small farm. The house adjoins a rough narrow lane which is about a quarter-mile from the nearest highway.

Asked how he planned to travel the heavily wooded lane with a four-door sedan, the young farmer replied thoughtfully, "A Cadillac is too big for the lane. It could not be driven up there."

He then said he would take "cash if possible" instead of the car.

Wallis Denies Theft of Atom Plans

CHICAGO (AP)—Ernest D. Wallis, 34-year-old Chicago photographer charged by the government with removing top secret records from the Los Alamos, N.M., atom bomb project, declared today he was "sure that ultimately I will be completely vindicated" and said he intended to resume his business of operating a photographic studio.

Wallis, charged with removing photographs and photographic negatives, said in a statement released by his attorney that he "made thousands of photographs at the direction of my superiors, but I did not take or steal any negatives from anyone or anyplace."

He added that "the various governmental agencies, with whom I cooperated fully, knew that I am not guilty of wrongfully extracting records from public files, yet I am being prosecuted for that very crime of which I am completely innocent."

At Pittsburgh, Alexander von der Luft, 23, of Mt. Lebanon, Pa., was free on bond after being charged with taking handwritten notes and other documents from the atom bomb projects.

Truman Seeks Flood Check

WASHINGTON (AP)—A quick start on a 10-year program to check floods in the entire Mississippi basin and put the mighty waters to productive uses was urged yesterday by President Truman in a special message to congress.

He asked $250,000,000 to get the work started.

Citing the long history of mid-west flood tragedies, the Chief Executive declared that flood control is a problem of "desperate urgency."

His message emphasized that "this congress," which has only nine days left before its scheduled July 28 adjournment goal, should undertake the huge long-range task.

For many years, he continued, the flood-swollen waters of the Mississippi and its great tributaries—the Missouri, Ohio, Arkansas and Red rivers—have dealt the nation's economy a series of blows, both in lives and property, which "call strongly for the prompt use of more effective counter-measures."

He said that most of the necessary projects have already been authorized by congress.

'Go' Sign for Vote Probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate rules committee yesterday unanimously authorized a "full and complete" investigation into alleged frauds in the 1946 election of Senator Kilgore, Democrat of West Virginia.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) of the subcommittee which recommended the investigation after a spot check in two West Virginia counties, told reporters after a closed session of the rules committee that the latter also unanimously approved a resolution asking the senate for $75,000 additional funds for the probe.

Thomas Sweeney, a Republican, is contesting Kilgore's election.

The rules committee found that "it appears" from preliminary investigation that "vote frauds, election irregularities and the purchase of votes were prevalent" in the election.

Police Purge Raids Mean 'Death Blow'

BUCHAREST (AP)—Purge raids by Romanian police indicated last night the leftist government of Premier Petru Groza might be preparing to deal a death blow to its principal opposition as arrests of members of the National Peasant party were reported unofficially to have reached the 100 mark.

The exact number of Peasant party members arrested by government police could not be determined. Widespread police action, began Monday when 14 national peasant leaders were arrested allegedly while trying to flee "to another country."

A Communist newspaper said the opposition leaders arrested Monday had planned to escape to Turkey. It added that the luggage of the 14, who included national peasant Vice-President Ion Mihalache and Secretary-General Nicholae Penescu, contained large amounts of foreign currency, arms and ammunition when they were seized at Tamadau airport.

Some sources said three other planes bearing opposition leaders left the country successfully before Mihalache's group was seized.

Greeks Chase Guerrillas

ATHENS (AP)—Supported by planes and heavy gunfire, the Greek army launched a full-scale attack late yesterday on approximately 2,500 guerrillas in the hills north of Ioannina, near the Albanian frontier, military sources reported.

Three hundred irregulars were reported wiped out in one engagement. The main guerrilla force was believed withdrawing eastward in an attempt to make a junction with other leftist fighting in the Grammos mountain range.

Military sources said the army and strafing planes were in hot pursuit, and that infantrymen were eliminating rear-guard forces left behind to cover the withdrawal.

The attack was launched following a heavy bombardment and strafing.

Voting Law 'Defeats' Hungarian Opposition

BUDAPEST (AP)—A new Hungarian election law, which provides no restrictions on how many times one person may vote, was presented to a parliamentary committee yesterday.

The bill will reach the floor of the parliament next week, possibly Monday.

A Hungarian legal expert, who translated and explained the law for American correspondents, said it "will assure the victory of the Communist-dominated coalition government" which includes the now thoroughly weakened Smallholders party. He said it will "make equally certain" the defeat of opposition parties, principally the outspoken anti-Communist Szabadsag (Freedom) party led by Dezso Sulyok, who apparently is disqualified as a candidate.

Meanwhile, Hungarian informants said Sulyok's much-molested party was attacked again last night at two separate meetings "by persons shouting Communist slogans."

In setting out voting procedure, the law specifies that any qualified voter may cast his ballot anywhere in Hungary he happens to be on election day. It provides also that qualified voters, wherever they may be living abroad, may cast their votes with their local Hungarian representatives who will forward the results to Budapest.

The law makes no provision for ascertaining whether a person votes only once and provides no penalty for voting more than once.

Cubs, A-26 in World Flights

NEW YORK (AP)—Preparations for three world circling flights—two of them in Cub planes—were being made yesterday. Two will start from New York, and the third, an attempt at a solo speed record, from Chicago.

One flight, in a single engine Cub plane, is to be non-stop.

Ted Thompson, 35, of Belle Glade, Fla., wartime ferry pilot, and Hunter C. Moody, 35, Decatur, Ill., former co-holder of the world's flight endurance record, plan to take off from New York about August 15.

Refueling would be accomplished in the air by picking up five-gallon plastic cans of fuel, 100 gallons at a time, with a special device they patented.

Their 20,762 mile route will be via Gander, Newfoundland; Shannon, Eire; Athens, Karachi, Hongkong, the Aleutians, and Alaska, and would take about 10 days.

Boston Ace Runs Scoreless Innings Hurlled to 25 in Row

BOSTON, (AP)—Lefty Warren Spahn last night pitched his 13th victory and his fourth shutout of the season as the Boston Braves defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-0 before a paid attendance of 28,651, which made the Boston home attendance 700,410 for 45 games on 38 dates.

The first Boston run was scored in the opening inning by Tommy Holmes, who was safe when Marty (Slats) Marion fooled the Boston outfielder's grounder.

The game ended on a great play by Shortstop Nanny Fernandez, who went far to his left to snare a Ducky Medwick grounder and then flip the ball while falling on his face to Second Sacker Connie Ryan for a forceout.

Spahn now has pitched 25 scoreless innings in a row.

Not one of the Cardinals reached third base as the slight southpaw pitched sharply. In one stretch, after Whitey Kurowski walked to open the fourth frame, Spahn retired 14 batters consecutively.

Spahn received good support afield with a pair of double plays snuffing Cardinal threats. Despite his fine performance, the Boston southpaw struck out only one batter.

The Braves slammed Starter Murray Dickson for 10 hits and all their runs in the seven innings he worked. Ken Burkhart relieved Dickson in the eighth and was tagged for one hit.

Dickson was continually in trouble but left 11 Boston runners stranded on the basepaths. He issued three passes while Spahn gave up two.

Brave clean-up man Bob Elliott led the hitters with a pair of doubles. Spahn aided his own cause by driving in one of the Boston tallies.

Americans Set Pace In Canadian Tourney

TORONTO (AP)—A par-walloping contingent of Americans and Canadians took apart Scarborough's tough course yesterday and an even two dozen bettered regulation figures in the first 18 holes of play for the $10,000 Canadian Open golf championship. Thirteen more of the field of 159 came through in even par.

Out in front in the first quarter of the 72-hole chase was 27-year-old Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C., who dropped five birdies on the back nine and finished with a 66, five strokes under par.

Two American pros and a transplanted Canadian amateur romped in behind Palmer with 67s. They were Clayton Haefner of Charlotte, N.C., Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles, former United States Davis Cup tennis player, and Nick Wisnock, club of the Detroit Meadowbrook club who started his golfing career at the Scarborough club and still retains his amateur status.

Despite Palmer's par-wrecking exhibition, almost alone around the course, the public centered its attention on a hot threesome led by Bobby Locke of South Africa, called by many to walk off with top prize money.

Locke put together two 34s for a 68, three under par, and tied for third-low score with Ed (Porky) Oliver of Wilmington, Del.

Right behind the Rock Island power-man, in the second-seeded position, will be Allen Richardson who comes to Iowa City for the meet from St. Louis, Mo. Richardson, top man on the University of Miami's squad, walked off with the singles crown in this year's AAA tourney at St. Louis.

Wayne Anderson, letter man with the University of Iowa from Shenandoah, Iowa, will be third-seeded with Bob A. Nelson of Rock Island and Bob E. Nelson of Silvis, Ill., rated four and five, respectively. The two Nelsons were doubles finalists here last year and Bob A. was defeated in the finals for the singles crown.

Other seeded players in the men's event will be Ken Donelson, Bloomington, Ill., and Ken Cline and John Ebert, both of Iowa City. Donelson was a two-letter man with Iowa State college and has participated in several tournaments in the state.

In the juniors' singles, Don Lewis of Fort Madison, who won the singles crown in the Iowa Open at Cedar Rapids last week, will be top-seeded.

Doren Russler, the Moline youth who was defeated in the semifinals of last year's Eastern Iowa tourney, is rated No. 2. Russler played this spring with the Augustana college varsity squad.

Third-seeded in this event is Ed Gould, Minneapolis, runnerup in the Iowa Open. Burke Daley lost to Gould in a tight quarter-final match in the Cedar Rapids meet this spring.

Top-seeded player in the women's singles will be Janet Tillotson of Des Moines, last year's winner in the Eastern Iowa match. Joanne Dunn Gibson, also of Des Moines, will be rated No. 2. Mrs. Gibson has in recent years won Missouri Valley and Iowa Open crowns.

All seeded players in men's singles drew byes for today's matches and no women's singles will be played until tomorrow.

Iowa City players who will see action today include Dr. Clark Millikan, Stan Levine, Bob Dahlin, Jim Briggs and Joe Sheehan. Ali Nairy Esfandiary, one-time

Williams teamed up with Dennie Galehouse to earn the Boston Red Sox a 7-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox before 6,213 persons yesterday.

Williams got three hits, his 16th home run and two singles, driving in three runs to pace Boston's 11 hit attack.

Galehouse's contribution was an eight hit performance in blanking the White Sox until the ninth inning. Then three straight Chicago hits plus Thurman Tucker's fly accounted for two runs.

It was Galehouse's fourth victory since he moved from St. Louis to Boston June 21. The defeat was charged to Red Ruffing who yielded eight hits in seven innings. Earl Harrist and Gordon Maltzberger finished for Chicago.

Ruffing, who has been bothered by a knee injury, was making his second start for the White Sox. He pitched one inning May 4 before being forced to retire with recurrence of a knee injury and was placed on the inactive list. The knee was injured last year when hit by a line drive, and was banged again this year during the spring training season.

The 43-year-old Ruffing, who has won 271 games during his major league career, was restored to the active list after the All-Star game. Ruffing signed with the White Sox for this season after being released by the New York Yankees.

Yes, Louis is Some Artist

Joe Specializes in Putting Things on Canvas; Maybe He'll Turn to Painting, Too

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—The story is that Joe Louis was told early in life by one of these vocational guidance experts that he should do something with his hands, and he's been putting things on canvas ever since. Mostly 200 pound hunks of blubber.

Now as far as we know Louis has shown no inclination to take up painting as an avocation. He might think about it, though. Other fighters seem to be doing right well at it.

We knew about Mickey Walker's dabbling in oils, and recently Georgie Abrams exhibited his canvases in the museum atmosphere of Mike Jacobs' 20th Century Sporting club, where an artist is a guy who can draw a $100,000 gate. Georgie himself was on canvas a few nights later, but it wasn't a self portrait. Steve Belloise put him there.

We had a vague impression that there was another fighter who went in for art! And this was confirmed in reading Will Connolly's article on Ruben Shank in the San Francisco Chronicle. Shank also was defeated after the article appeared. If these fighter-painters don't do better they'll set art back 100 years.

Shank, we learn, isn't just a one-art man, either. He is fascinated by rug making, too, and is taking that up in his spare time. From rugs to riches, you might say, but he hasn't reached the point in that art where he can cash in.

Somehow we can't bet over the incongruity of a fellow whose means of livelihood calls for the mashing up of another human being until his best friends wouldn't know him having such a yearning for the beautiful things in life.

Come to think of it, maybe there is a connection between the skill of the hands as used by an artist and the skill of the hands necessary in boxing.

Maybe more fighters would prove adept at painting or some other art requiring skillful use of the hands. If they don't stay in the ring too long and wind up cutting paper dolls they might find a suitable post-ring career in the finer arts.

Nats Give Newhouser Rough Time But Lose, 9-8, Win 2nd, 10-1

DETROIT (AP)—The Washington Senators jumped on Hal Newhouser yesterday for five runs in the first two innings, but the Detroit Tigers came back to save the game 9 to 8 with a four-run eighth inning rally that enabled them to split a doubleheader. Washington took the nightcap 10 to 1 back of Marino Pieretti's five-hit pitching.

Detroit's four-run spurge in the opener came at the expense of relief pitcher Tom Ferrick, who relieved Walt Masterson with the Nats leading 7-5 and tossed away the margin when four of the six men who faced him hit safely. Johnny Gosa, who hurled one inning for Detroit, was the winner.

The Senators got 14 hits off four Detroit pitchers while losing that one but came back with 16 blows in the nightcap to breeze in back of Pieretti's effective twirling.

Stan Spence led Washington's 30-hit assault in the two games with six hits while Buddy Lewis and Tom McBride each collected five.

Stranahan, Ward Pass Tests

DES MOINES (AP)—Defending Champion Frankie Stranahan and Medalist Marvin (Bud) Ward survived the opening round of match play in the Western Amateur golf tournament yesterday, but not until they had received warning that the championship road is going to be rocky all the way.

Stranahan, the muscular shot-maker from Toledo, O., had to go twenty-two holes for a 1-up victory over slim Milton (Mickey) Beal, Clinton, Iowa.

Ward, of Spokane, Wash., two-time National and Western Amateur titlist and now amateur in the recent U. S. Open, sweated out a 2 and 1 decision over Husky David Dixon of New Orleans.

Beal and Dixon made the qualifying class in a playoff Tuesday with four others who posted 36-hole totals of 161.

Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., the 1932 Western champion, had an even more difficult task than Stranahan in outlasting James McAlvin, Lake Forest, Ill., 1 up in a rugged 23-hole battle.

Johnny Jacobs of Cedar Rapids four-time Iowa State champion, won five of the last six holes to defeat Harry Pailer of St. Louis 2 up. Jacobs shot a two under par 70 and Pailer had even par.

James English, Omaha, Neb., Creighton university player, came through with the first real upset of the day, besting Ted Richards of Long Beach, Calif., Pacific Coast Intercollegiate champ, 3 and 1. English went out in 35, one under par, to Richards 40 and had a three up advantage at the turn.

Beal, a frail, 6-foot, 3-inch, sandy haired lad who served 33 months in the South Pacific as a captain in Uncle Sam's fighting forces, outstroked Stranahan in the first nine.

Stranahan failed to narrow the gap until the 17th, and on that stretch needed a bit of luck to stay in the match.

Beal Makes Frankie Go 22-Holes For Win

By SKIPPER PATRICK

DES MOINES (AP)—Defending Champion Frankie Stranahan and Medalist Marvin (Bud) Ward survived the opening round of match play in the Western Amateur golf tournament yesterday, but not until they had received warning that the championship road is going to be rocky all the way.

Stranahan, the muscular shot-maker from Toledo, O., had to go twenty-two holes for a 1-up victory over slim Milton (Mickey) Beal, Clinton, Iowa.

Ward, of Spokane, Wash., two-time National and Western Amateur titlist and now amateur in the recent U. S. Open, sweated out a 2 and 1 decision over Husky David Dixon of New Orleans.

Beal and Dixon made the qualifying class in a playoff Tuesday with four others who posted 36-hole totals of 161.

Gus Moreland of Peoria, Ill., the 1932 Western champion, had an even more difficult task than Stranahan in outlasting James McAlvin, Lake Forest, Ill., 1 up in a rugged 23-hole battle.

Johnny Jacobs of Cedar Rapids four-time Iowa State champion, won five of the last six holes to defeat Harry Pailer of St. Louis 2 up. Jacobs shot a two under par 70 and Pailer had even par.

James English, Omaha, Neb., Creighton university player, came through with the first real upset of the day, besting Ted Richards of Long Beach, Calif., Pacific Coast Intercollegiate champ, 3 and 1. English went out in 35, one under par, to Richards 40 and had a three up advantage at the turn.

Beal, a frail, 6-foot, 3-inch, sandy haired lad who served 33 months in the South Pacific as a captain in Uncle Sam's fighting forces, outstroked Stranahan in the first nine.

Stranahan failed to narrow the gap until the 17th, and on that stretch needed a bit of luck to stay in the match.

Stranahan outdrove his foe to the 18th green and sank a 14-footer for a birdie 3, his only sub-par hole of the long match, while Beal two-putted the green for a 4.

Turning on the pressure from that point, Stranahan played his wood shots well and Beal had to make remarkable recoveries to keep in the match.

Beal had two shots from the rough in reaching the fringe of the 22nd green, while Stranahan was a foot off the bunker on his second shot. He pitched within six feet of the pin and sank his putt. Beals chip skidded past the cup and the match was over.

Ward, 1-up at the end of nine holes after leading 3 up at the seventh, had to play sub-par golf to win his match with Dixon on the 17th green with a halve 3. Dixon pulled several fine putts before dropping out. He sank a 25-footer on the ninth to win that hole and took the 13th with a 12-footer.

Jack Donohue of Sioux City, former Eastern Intercollegiate champion at Georgetown university, eliminated the Veteran Bob Cochran of St. Louis 1 up. Donohue won with a birdie 3 on the 18th and finished with a 72 medal score.

The victory sent him into a second round match with his brother, Phil, who stopped Glenn Cooper of Marshalltown, Iowa, 1 up in 19 holes.

Richard Irwin of Omaha, Omaha university star, sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the 19th green to eliminate Fred Gordon, the Iowa Amateur champion from Belmond 1-up. Gordon played a steady game, but couldn't match the Nebraskan's shots on the last stretch.

Sports Shots

By Bob Collins

There's going to be some top notch tennis played in Iowa City today through Sunday with the Iowa City Tennis club host to the Eastern Iowa tournament. For a few days we were afraid that the tourney would be a one-man show with Iowa's Dick Hainline taking the bunting without working up a lather.

But the application of Allen Richardson, St. Louis, who starred for the University of Miami makes it look like an interesting time for all including Mr. Hainline.

Dick is a dental student at Iowa and coming along fine. But we can't but wish that for sports' sake he had devoted his attention to the game and made it a career. Hainline has everything it takes, according to those who saw him swoop easily to championships in the Hawkeye Holiday tourney at Des Moines and the Iowa Open meet last week at Cedar Rapids.

The railbirds are in agreement that, if Hainline had been in his present condition at the time of the Big Nine championship tournament, he wouldn't have had much trouble. As it was he was knocked out early and surprised all concerned in a negative sort of way.

In Cedar Rapids, Hainline showed talent and form which was championship in capital letters. Dick has one of the best working backhands in the Midwest and his forehand is deceptively fast. Against Straight Clark, a California boy who is gaining tournament experience working the circuit, he really gave the crowd a show.

Clark had a thundering forehand and was built like the book says a top tennis player should be—with a lanky frame, long arm, big boned and nimble. His big weakness was his backhand and Hainline set him up time and time again for a blistering drive that cracked his game wide open.

Besides a good basic game, Hainline has the know-how that comes with tournament experience. In Cedar Rapids he was playing on a "slippery" surface of fine gravel. When he maneuvered for a shot he would set his feet and slide into the ball with perfect timing. Clark learned a lot about the court as he slipped his way to defeat on the tricky surface. The California boy could and wanted to volley but Hainline forced him away from the net and cut him down leisurely.

So it is that we're glad to have Hainline back in the Iowa City tournament and hope that the competition will force him to play his best game. In any case, the mere idea of having a tennis tournament here which attracts so many entrants is stimulating.

Such sports programs are what Iowa City needs more of—next to a municipal swimming pool, that is. The Elks' tournament set for Aug. 22-24 is a step in the right direction and it is hoped that another Iowa City Open golf tournament will be held before the snow flies. The opening of Kelley field and the first class softball games planned will help live up the rest of the summer providing the publicity snafu gets straightened out so that people know what's going on.

Everything's higher now days, even the price for knothole tickets for the grade and high school kids who want to watch the Hawkeye gridders in action. Athletic Director Paul Brecher has announced that Iowa will have to conform to the Big Nine ruling and charge $1 for tickets instead of the usual 50 cents.

Membership cards, which are secured in advance by school principals or superintendents, will be honored at the North Dakota State opener, Sept. 20, the Illinois and the Indiana games. The Minnesota game is the only one the kids will have to hear by radio or read about in the newspapers.

From personal experience we remember that the knothole club is about the best one piece of advertising that the university has. Those kids flock into the games by the thousands and the loyalty to the school that is built up pays off handsomely in new students. The GI rush isn't going to last forever and there'll come a day when new students will be so welcome at Iowa that they'll even offer them housing or something.

Coaches Dave Armbruster and Otto Vogel won't be on vacation for the rest of the summer. Armbruster has been named on the NCAA diving rules committee and will attend a joint session of the NCAA and Amateur Athletic Union groups in that connection while Vogel will attend baseball coaching schools in Iowa and New York.

Armbruster's group is attempting to change the diving rules so that they will be in conformity for both NCAA and AAU affairs. The group will meet in Tyler, Tex., Aug. 1-3 and watch the national AAU men's outdoor championships.

Vogel will teach baseball technique at the Iowa High School Athletic association school at Spirit Lake, Aug. 18-19 and then go to Ithaca, N.Y., for the school sponsored by the New York State High School Athletic association.

Other Hawkeye swimmers may enter the AAU meet, but it is certain at least that Wally Ris, Iowa student who holds the AAU indoor 100-yard title, will be on hand. Ris, who is training in Detroit by working out daily with Bill Smith of Ohio State, will swim as an unattached athlete.

Investigator Raps Kentucky Athletics

FRANKFORT, Ky., (AP)—The University of Kentucky, whose basketball team ranks with the nation's best and whose football plans are aimed at bowl-game bids, has been coldly advised to put its sports program on an amateur standing.

In an almost heartless report to Gov. Simeon Willis, Griffenhagen & Associates, independent Chicago fault-finders in public administration and finance, declared athletics at Kentucky, "as in other universities, has become professionalized, though it is still considered amateur."

Graziano Comes Back to TKO Zale in 6th Round

Game 'Rocky' Becomes New Middle Champ

By SID FEDER
CHICAGO STADIUM (AP)—Rock-a-bye Rocky Graziano, the tough kid off lower Manhattan's street corners—the kid they said wasn't game enough to take the kind of punishment Tony Zale handed out—won the world middleweight championship last night by doing just that.

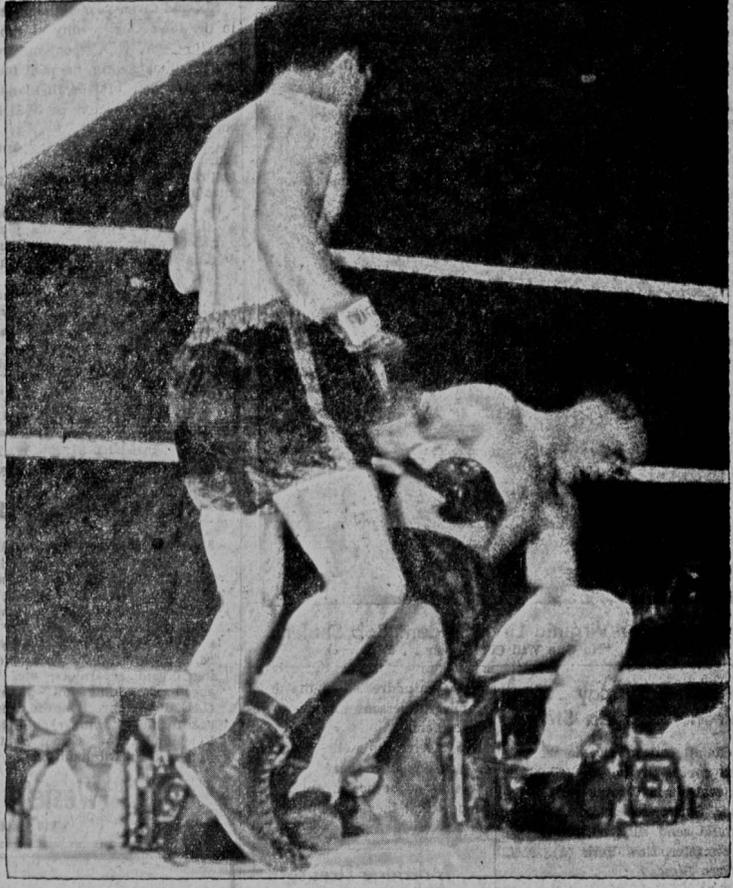

In a fierce flailing exhibition of blood-and-thunder brawling that had the crowd of 18,547 more than half hysterical most of the way, the rock-a-bye kid came on to stop the magnificent Tony Zale in the sixth round in this sweltering arena after absorbing all of Zale's Sunday shots himself, and still asking for more through the four heats. He's been floored once himself—in the third—and his left eye had been gashed open and his right all but shut up as tight as a sealed envelope through the third and fourth.

Then he started to come. He found the range and his terrific time-bombs were right on the target as Tony weakened notably. Through the last part of the fifth he staggered Zale with murderous blows from both hands that drew loud "ooohs" from the steaming spectators. Through the early part of the sixth he took complete charge and all but tore Tony apart. He drove him from rope to rope, from corner to corner, as Zale, as game as they ever come, tried to fight back, just as he did a year ago in their sensational pier-six brawl that produced this return bout as a "natural."

Rocky wouldn't let him make it, however, finally, after absorbing even more than any normal body could stand, Tony had to fall. He collapsed over the center rope, half in and half out of the ring.

Rocky started for a neutral corner, just as both had been instructed to this morning by state athletic commission Chairman Sheldon Clark who had warned Graziano, for some reason, that "a clean fight is most important to you, Rocky, because this commission is a member of the National Boxing association and any suspension we hand out stands all over the United States." By the time the count reached three Tony was already on the way to his feet, badly hurt, but still ready to go until he couldn't go any more.

But Referee Johnny Behr, coach of the American Olympic team in 1936, wouldn't let him. He stepped in and stopped it at 2:10 of the sixth. He may have been right and he may have been wrong to write it off the first time Tony was on the deck, because the ex-steel mill hand from Gary, Indiana, had come off the floor in the rip-snorter a year ago to make it—had, in fact, come back from the very edge of dreamland to score his spectacular knockout. But Behr had the full say in there—and Behr said so. And there was no hiding the fact that Tony was hurt, and hurt badly.

It was a sudden, flash finish to a fight that was billed as the fight of the year and lived up to its billing like a government bond.

Ever since they'd fought a year ago, and had the customers practically standing on their ears, this one was going to be "it," and it was.

The customers knew that these two specialists in caving the roof in weren't going to fool with any 15-rounds—to decision pantywaist stuff. Neither is built that way.

So the customers responded with cash on the barrel head. They made the cash registers jingle to such a merry tune that they not only wrote a new all-time indoor fight gate record of $415,126.56 into the books but actually more than doubled the old mark of $201,485 chucked up by Jim Maloney and Jack Delaney back in 1927 in Madison Square garden, New York.

Thus, they gave Chicago both the indoor and the outdoor fight record gates, for there still is nothing in the books even close to the $2,658,660 that Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney lured into soldier field in 1927. And both the Manassa Mauler and the Shakespearean student were among those at the ringside last night. So were a lot more name folks who came to see the re-run of last year's brawl and made this the kind of extravaganza built up only for heavy-weight title tussles.

Thomson Stars As Giants Top Hapless Cubs

NEW YORK (AP)—Bob Thomson, rookie outfield star of the New York Giants, drove in four runs on a homer and double yesterday to spark the Giants to a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Thomson parked his 15th four-bagger deep into the leftfield seats with one on in the fourth inning and then highlighted a four run eighth inning rally by smashing a bases loaded double.

The Cubs, who were blanked by Dave Koslo Tuesday night, were held scoreless by Monty Kennedy until the ninth when they erupted and scored all of their runs, driving Kennedy from the hill.

Ken Trunkle relieved Kennedy with three runs in, one on and two out but after Ed Waitkus singled, and Phil Cavarretta walked, Trinkle gave way to Joe Beggs who induced pinch-hitter Stan Hack to ground out and end the game.

Hank Borowy started for the Cubs and was relieved in the eighth after Thomson unloaded his two-run double. Bob Chipman took over for Borowy and Home Run King Johnny Mize greeted the southpaw with a single driving home Bill Rigney and Thomson with the Giants' final two runs.

on the second round schedule. Should the Cards win tonight the win will give them a second round tie with the Knights of Columbus who have already completed play. The Knights have a record of four wins and one loss while the Cards have three wins against one loss.

The best the Cubs could do with a victory tonight would be to gain a fourth place tie with the Vets.

Iowa City Cards Clip Davenport, 5-1

Iowa City Cards, shut out for seven innings, exploded for five runs in the eighth to down the Davenport Eagles 5-1 at Kelley field last night. Paul Reberry, hurling for the Cards, struck out 18 men and gave up only four hits.

The Eagles scored their lone run in the third on two walks and a pair of passed balls. Fats Bennett started off the inning with a free pass and moved to second on a passed ball. After two were out, Bennett tallied on another passed ball.

Elmer Frandsen, Eagles' hurler, held the Cards in check with only three hits until the eighth inning. In that frame, Bailey opened with a walk and stole second. Jack Kelso followed with a single and moved all the way around to score after Bailey when the center fielder juggled the ball.

Tom Stahlte then blasted an in-the-park homer for the third run. A walk to Bob Oldis and singles by Ed Colbert and Vic Rodenberg brought across the final tallies.

Reberry was in trouble in the fifth inning when he hit the first batter, Warren Porter, and the next man reached second on an error. Porter, however, took too long a lead off third and was retired, catcher to shortstop. Reberry then struck out the next two hitters to end the inning.

Tonight the Cardinals will meet the Hills nine at Hills.

Temporary Building Program To Be Complete by Sept. 15

By Sept. 15, the university's temporary housing project, representing 683 buildings and costing more than $2,600,000 will be complete.

University Architect George L. Horner disclosed yesterday that the project will be ready in time for the fall semester, but added, "It should have been done last semester, but we had too much labor and material trouble."

He said the 683 structures are potentially capable of housing about 4,750 persons. Included in this total number of units are 25 metal huts for "classrooms, offices and laboratories;" two former officer barracks to be used as library annexes; another barracks unit to be used as a chemical laboratory; a temporary dining hall, capable of handling 400 persons, which will be located east of Hillcrest.

Horner said the federal government provided about $2,000,000 of the total construction cost. "I'd hate to say how much we (the university) put into them," he said, "I'd estimate about $600,000."

Horner broke down the housing units into types, saying that 250 are trailers of different kinds. Another 25 are duplex Quonset huts, and 315 are duplex metal structures. There are 28 metal huts which house 14 women each and 65 similar buildings which accommodate 16 men each.

The project was started in July, 1946. Horner believes that all these buildings will be utilized for some time to come, "at least until enrollment gets back to normal." After that, he said, they aren't good for much more than scrap and salvage.

The married couples' units were constructed under authority of the federal public housing authority. Most of the other buildings came under the authority of the federal works authority.

Chicago-Bound Plane Forced to Land Here

An unexpected visitor dropped in at the Iowa City airport yesterday.

The visitor, a twin-engine passenger plane, landed here because of a reported low-ceiling in Chicago, its destination. B. D. McWilliams, station manager of United Airlines here, stated.

The only other field the big ship could have used was Moline, Ill. Because of heavy air traffic there it was directed to Iowa City.

Shortly after the plane landed the Chicago radio reported clear weather and the silver ship raced down the runway and soared off.

Correction

The Daily Iowan on July 15 stated that Delma Roskup had filed suit for divorce from Joseph Roskup. This was incorrect.

The suit was filed by Joseph Roskup against his wife, Roskup's attorneys are Swisher and Swisher. The Daily Iowan regrets this error.

Summer Perfumes Change Your Outlook For The Best

When the thermometer registers in the 90's homemakers, career girls and co-eds have a common problem—how to keep cool!

It may seem impossible to feel cool when your home, office or classroom isn't air conditioned. But you can have that "air-conditioned" feeling by applying your favorite brand of eau de cologne or perfume.

Just as women in Iowa City have stored their fur coats and winter suits for summer months, so they have laid aside stronger perfumes and colognes.

Although delicately scented, flowery colognes are most popular at beauty bars and perfume counters here, according to Iowa City saleswomen, the subtle, spicy scents are still a perennial favorite for summer wear.

Among the newer, refreshing colognes is one that smells of menthol when the bottle is opened. Applied to the crook of the arm or behind the ear, the effect is an icy coolness and a noticeably long-lasting fragrance.

Although use of cologne every now and then revives your own spirit and those of people about you, for complete daintiness many women use their favorite brand after dusting with a similarly scented talcum powder. The result is a sparkling fresh feeling which naturally makes for that cool look.

Fresh Air at Last Engineering 'Chamber' Gets Remodeled

Students need no longer fear the "lethal chamber" lecture room in the mechanical engineering building.

The "chamber" formerly put aspiring engineers to sleep because of its poor ventilation. The classroom has been completely remodeled so that it now resembles a small auditorium.

Raised seats, fluorescent lights, sound-proof walls and a projection room make it possible now to convert the classroom into a small movie theater.

Student engineers think the best feature of the remodeled room is

Czechs Welcome U.S. Men of Science

Authorization to invite American professors and scientists to Czechoslovakia was received here yesterday by Dr. Miroslav Jiraneck, assistant professor from Technical university, Prague.

Dr. Jiraneck, who is studying hydraulic engineering on the campus, said he received a letter from the Czech Academy of Science and Art to extend invitations to American professors and scientists to lecture and visit in Czechoslovakia.

"The invitations are more proof to me," he said, "that the Czech people's loyalties and feelings of friendship for the U.S. have not changed, despite the recent withdrawal from the Paris conference."

In reference to the conference, he added we should be careful to "distinguish between politics and politicians on one hand and the Czech people on the other."

The War Was Never Like This

Music-minded university veterans find that piano study involves a lot of hard work, and sometimes a little embarrassment too.

Ex-Airman George Zimmerman, a beginning piano student last year, found the words accompanying pieces in his first book a bit disturbing.

He said that the war was plenty bad but he was "never really nauseated" until he had to read such verses as "Sing, Sing, Oh What Fun, Music Lessons Have Begun."

Other beginning veterans have been chided by friends about one-handed renditions of such pieces as "Little Bo Peep" or "All the Birds Have Come Again."

But the chiding doesn't bother the students who report faithfully to the music building for a daily one-hour practice workout.

Genuinely interested in learning piano techniques, they want to be prepared for the two one-half hour lessons given weekly by members of the university piano staff.

According to Virginia Linn, one of the piano instructors, some of the veterans progress faster than students majoring in music.

She admires them for their nerve in starting something difficult and keeping at it. During the past school year, about 25 veterans began lessons—only two or three dropped out.

"The veterans are capable of learning much faster than children," Miss Linn said, "but they're slower mechanically."

"Gripes," she said, range from dislike of counting out loud to mental frustration when fingers won't hit the right keys.

In spite of such difficulties one of the veterans managed to progress from a know-nothing stage to playing sonatas in one and a half years.

Another student, Bob Shuler not yet past the right-hand stage, hopes to play Chopin someday. So far he's had no trouble practicing more than an hour daily because "no one will come near me when I'm playing."

Most of the veterans are taking piano lessons because they "always wanted to," or to increase their "understanding of music."

'Buenos Dias'

WSUI Set to 'Teach' Six-Year-Olds

Six-and seven-year-old children in the Iowa City vicinity may be greeting you with "bonjour" or "buenos dias" within the next few months if plans of John Highlander, program director of WSUI, come true.

Highlander plans to expand Story Hour, a regular 5 o'clock feature over WSUI, to include an introduction to foreign words.

He feels the project would be worthwhile — "even if it's just a drop of water in an ocean" — in helping acquaint the American people with foreign languages.

According to Highlander the same type story would be read over the program as now but three or four key words would be given in a foreign language. These words would be repeated daily and a few more added to the children's vocabulary.

At the end of the week, Highlander suggested, a contest might be sponsored in which children could combine the words of the particular language used that week into a few sentences.

Six and seven-year-old children "are in the stage of imitation," said Highlander. Thus, it would be simple for them to learn basic foreign words.

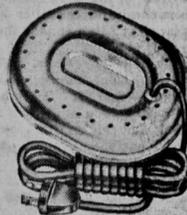

While in India, Highlander met children with only six years schooling who could carry on a conversation in English.

"There is no reason why we can't try to achieve the same thing in the United States," he added.

Bolling Boosts Committee for Survival

AVC Leader Eyes Group—Calls It 'Good'

By JACK O'BRIEN

"This is precisely the sort of thing that has to be done—not only in Iowa City but every place," and with that, the newly organized local Committee for Survival got a healthy vote of confidence yesterday from Richard Bolling.

Bolling, national vice-chairman of AVC, breezed into town on his way to the meeting of the National Planning board in Chicago and, in his wake, brought some more of the air of liberalism and international thinking to dovetail with the ideas expressed by Norman Cousins last week—ideas which procreated the Committee for Survival.

"It's good," he said, "for we must influence the community before the country." "It's part of the 'rumble of the people' necessary to liberalize Congress, the way Bolling sees it. 'The present Congress has a less progressive point of view than the state department and the rest of the country' and he feels it's up to the people to equalize the equation."

We must be taught that "with atomic energy on the loose, no one will win the next war in anything but a negative sense" and the war after that, he says, will be fought "with pitchforks." But he said it as if he didn't really think there'd be anyone around to fight—or just anyone around.

The young and good-looking chairman has a gift for speaking for his organization without losing any of his own identity and personality. Bolling restrained his natural bent toward humor to become serious about the issue of military training. In its popular conception, he feels, it's "ridiculous."

"UMT (Universal Military Training) is inadequate. It would only give us a Maginot Line complex." In an atomic war you can't get protection from training all those from 12 years up to "anyone who can still walk around." In addition, it demands decentralization of industry, and national, state and local governments.

Granting that it is no "black and white issue," Bolling, who recently returned from testifying against UMT before a government committee in Washington, added that, of course, the "issue of UMT improving health has no meaning whatsoever."

Education is again the secret, and Bolling (he got his M.A. at Sewanee and taught before the war) says, in order to inform people on the effect of the atom, "We must educate (them) in specific areas . . . dramatize the effect of the bomb." It can't be done just by educating young people in "hut, tup, thrip." (He went into the army and overseas in 1941, was a lieutenant colonel on MacArthur's staff and was discharged in 1945 after "spending many, too many, years over there.")

When confronted with the suggested possibility of AVC becoming a "labor front organization," Bolling responded readily that AVC is "opposed to becoming a front for any special interest group." Complete independence and representation for all liberal elements is what the group is striving for and, he says, "our so-called pro-labor policy, we consider to be just pro-U.S."

When presented with the issue of racial discrimination and its local manifestations, Bolling said that the group, acting not as an interracial group but as a veterans' organization, hopes to get all veterans their rights under the G.I. bill. "There are, we know, discriminatory measures against Negroes."

When, in certain sections of the south, only six percent have filed for their terminal leave pay and "Jim Crowed" VA measures confront many who apply for their $20 unemployment subsistence, Bolling feels both a personal and an organizational responsibility in getting them a "fair deal."

When Bolling was asked for a definition of the term "liberal" he revealed his integration with his organization by producing a copy of its constitution. ("To preserve the Constitution of the United States; to insure the rights of free speech, free press, free worship . . . to provide thorough social and economic security to all . . .")

On his own, he referred to the "old saw" liberalism that is part of our tradition, represented by a series of presidents—Jefferson, Lincoln, Roosevelt—"believing in no preconceived attitudes and an unwillingness to limit civil liberties in the interest of economic securities."

Committee for Survival Acts By Telegram

Iowa City's newly formed Committee for Survival yesterday sent telegrams to Iowa Senators Hickenlooper and Wilson, Representative Thomas Martin, and Secretary of State Marshall. This was the first action taken by the new organization formed Tuesday night to avert war by demanding a revision of the United Nations charter.

Mrs. R.W. Iversen, member of the planning committee of the Committee for Survival, said the following telegram had been sent to the four statesmen:

"Deteriorating world situation caused representatives of all clubs and organizations of Iowa City to form a permanent, over-all organization which took the name 'Committee for Survival.' "This non-partisan, non-sectarian, all-inclusive organization urges your support of immediate consideration and passage of the Ferguson resolution to strengthen the United Nations."

When civic leaders and representatives of all city organizations formed the Committee for Survival at a meeting in the Community building Tuesday night, it was voted that passage of the Ferguson resolution was the first step needed to save a "world speeding towards its doom."

(The Ferguson resolution is a joint congressional resolution demanding action to revise the UN charter to prevent war and maintain peace.)

Next meeting of the Committee for Survival is scheduled for next Tuesday night at the Community building. Permanent officers will be elected and plans discussed for further action to be taken by the committee in its efforts to get congress to act in strengthening the UN.

In 1946 there were $27,600,000,000 in demand deposits in personal accounts in U. S. banks and $44,900,000,000 in business accounts.

Youth Guidance Vital, Boy Scout Official Says

The guidance of American youth is one of the most important duties of the citizens of this country, George R. Gragg, Boy Scout executive of the Iowa River Valley council, told Lions club members at their weekly luncheon yesterday.

Discussing the benefits of scouting, Gragg said, "A boy with an objective does not have time for delinquencies. He may not even have time for the playground. He may find his best recreation is preparing himself for the future."

In its attempt to teach resourcefulness and service, Gragg said the Boy Scouts need the help of men in the community. "They need boy-man contact," the scout leader said. They need to be taught self-reliance.

"We can't take them like seeds and throw them out on the side of the road and hope they might grow," said Gragg. "Let's not take that chance. Let's plant that seed. It needs help."

Three Respond to Call For Movie Operators

Life in children's hospital can be dull without a movie once in a while.

That is why an urgent call was sent out Tuesday afternoon for a volunteer to run the movie projector there.

Three men responded.

They are Dean Brown, graduate student living at 942 Iowa avenue, Marvin Jones, senior in commerce, living at Hillcrest, and Willard Merrill, commerce junior, also living at Hillcrest.

Brown and Jones will run the projector until August 4, and Merrill will take over this fall and next year.

Mrs. Norman Petersen, recreational director at the hospital, who sent out the request, has been running the projector with her husband since the summer session started.

Movies are scheduled for each Monday night, and some 60 children attend.

Clapp's Concert . . .

Summertime Success

By DICK DAVIS

Conductor Philip Greeley Clapp can take a deep breath and rest in the knowledge that last night's concert of the summer symphony orchestra held in the main lounge of Iowa Union was a success.

Despite the fact that his orchestra lacked sufficient practice on certain numbers, a day as inclemently balanced with the heavy weight in the brass section, Clapp swept the group through von Weber's overture to the opera "Euryanthe," "Variations on a Theme by Haydn," by Johannes Brahms, and Gustav Mahler's Symphony No. 1 in D major.

The first selection played, overture to the opera, "Euryanthe," started out at room temperature, which was cool. The entire orchestra seemed diffident. The playing was rough and questionable.

Although the program described the overture as being "spirited with a mysterious middle episode," it was difficult to locate much mystery and certainly very little "middle episode."

There could be little question following the performance of Brahms' "Variations on a Theme by Haydn," that Professor Clapp is certainly a student and authority on music by Brahms.

He directed the Brahms number with a vigor and certainty that made one forget the mediocrity displayed in the overture.

The transition of moods and themes of the Brahms selection were well handled, especially by the understrength string section.

As someone said during the intermission, "The Brahms was magnificent." There could be little doubt in the minds of most people that it was.

Following the intermission, Clapp paced the orchestra through the difficult Mahler Symphony

No. 1 in D major. Professor Clapp, is certainly an enthusiastic admirer of Gustav Mahler.

The music was descriptive, gay at times, sorrowful at others. With every change of emotion, the orchestra projected the feeling with a force that held the audience captivated.

Both the second and third movements were very well played. However, it was the second movement with its pleasant melodies and delightful lyrical themes that rated as the best performed of the evening.

In the fourth movement there could be little doubt that it was the brass section and the percussion that held the stage. They leaped on the first note with an impact that remained in the crowd's mind throughout the fourth and final movement.

When Professor Clapp selected Mahler and Brahms for his summer session concert, he chose two works that, if played well, would make the summer a success; if poorly produced, would spell failure. Both the orchestra and Professor Clapp can assure themselves that it has been a successful summer.

Gwynne, 52, Dies Of Heart Attack After Stopping Car

James T. Gwynne, 52, auditor for the state tax commission, died of a heart attack yesterday afternoon after stopping his car on E Burlington street and avoiding a possible accident.

With William Ferris of Waterloo, a business associate, following in another car, Gwynne had started for his home at 437 Garden street when he became ill.

Gwynne stopped suddenly, according to Ferris, and signaled him to stop also. Although Gwynne said that he would be "all right," Ferris called for an ambulance. Gwynne died before it arrived.

Coroner Frank L. Love said Gwynne died of a heart attack. There will be no inquest, Love said.

Gwynne was born March 19, 1895, in Brooklyn, Iowa.

The son of Thomas and Catherine Gwynne, he graduated from City high school and attended Iowa State college, Ames.

He married Lillian Tesar in Iowa City Feb. 25, 1923.

He was a charter member of VFW post 3949 here and was post quartermaster at the time of his death.

Surviving are his wife and two sisters, Mrs. Roy McGinnis and Mrs. Paul Chambers, both of Iowa City, and a brother, John Gwynne, representative from the third congressional district, Waterloo.

The body is at the McGovern funeral home. Services are to be announced later.

'Zippy' is a Jailbird

AT LEAST TWO children will play with "Zippy" even though he's been in jail. His playmates here are Julian Boulton, 3, 1031 E. College street, and Patricia Kadlec, 4, 1103 E. College. "Zippy's" master is nine-year-old Eddy Paulus, son of Dr. and Mrs. E.W. Paulus, 1039 E. College.

"Don't play with 'Zippy'." "Why not?" "He's been in jail."

That's the word the youngsters on the east side of town are spreading. It all started when "Zippy" was frightened by the firecrackers the boys in the neighborhood were shooting off July 4. "Zippy" is a five-year-old terrier belonging to Eddy Paulus, 9, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. W. Paulus, 1039 E. College street.

"Zippy" wasn't around home when Eddy called him the evening of July 4. Instead, he was sulking around the stores on Washington street. Police noticed the furtive character and brought him in for further investigation.

The next morning Eddy called police headquarters for information about his dog. Informed that the dog was there, he went down to get him. Another officer was on duty when Eddy arrived and told him there wasn't any dog there. Several phone calls located the right officer and Zippy was found in Cell 9.

"Zippy" feels hurt about being shunned and mutters to himself, "It shouldn't happen to a dog."

Will Greece Be a Repetition of Spain?

Less than a week after Norman Cousins warned that war could come within six months, the front pages carry news that large-scale fighting is in progress in Greece.

It is the familiar battle of the rightists versus the guerillas. The west is pouring arms and money into Greece on the royalist side. Greek guerillas, men and women who have been fighting since Germany moved into the country, are being aided by the east.

One key to the situation is the Greek guerilla. He desires a representative government. That he is not getting. Seemingly, the United States is doing everything possible to keep him from getting it.

During the war, guerillas fought against the Nazis. When the royalists returned to power, their first acts were to deprive these persons their rights of representation in the national parliament. In fact, the royalists drove the guerillas to the hills.

Now that the guerillas are in the hills, they constantly gain followers from other Greeks desiring political freedom. This so threatens King George's government that a virtual death penalty has been placed on persons joining the partisans.

The country thus is torn by persons seeking minority rights and the rights of free thought and expression, and persons seeking to deny this right and stop communism.

The whole thing puts the United States in an awkward position. The symbol of free thought upholds a despotic government. The land of the free turns against men desiring freedom, both political and economic.

At the same time we fear Russia, especially in Greece. We have a real right to fear her there. Russia offers communism with the sugar-coated illusion of rights such as we ourselves enjoy. And the guerillas are grasping for straw.

We have the feeling that if the United States wanted to, she could insist on a truly democratic government in Greece.

The United States cannot escape the fact that we are arming the rightists. In effect, that makes us responsible for their kind of regime. The kind of regime now holding power in Greece does not do credit to the United States. It makes us share the guilt for the tyranny of the right.

We think a clear-cut policy statement on the Greek situation, with the insistence that civil liberties be restored, might help to clear up the situation.

Otherwise, a re-reading of the pages of history on the conflagrations in Spain and China might well be outmoded.

A repeat edition of what happened there could easily be the next day's headline.

Number of Vets in College Declines

Few persons have quarreled with educational benefits of the G.I. bill since the program actually got under way. The veterans have proved good, earnest students, and their work has justified the government expenditures made on their behalf.

During the past year nearly 12 percent of America's young men and women of college age have been enrolled in the country's universities and colleges. Such a rise in the educational level augurs well for the future.

But the Veteran's Administration has announced that, as of May 31, the number of students has decreased 133,000 from the April 30 high of 1,825,000.

Thus, for the first time since the end of the war, veteran enrollment in colleges has declined.

This decline in the educational level of this country is a matter of concern. It is foolish to say that a college education necessarily makes a better citizen. But, on the average, the man or woman with a college education is better prepared to understand the world he lives in, and is better prepared to take his place in it.

The figures from the Veteran's Administration are worrisome. The decline in enrollments must not become a permanent one. In this day of troubled world affairs we are more than ever in need of men and women who see clearly, and understand the issues at stake.

The U.S. Is Returning to "Normal"

For awhile when flying saucers were thicker than bald heads at a burlesque show, we thought maybe the old U.S. was getting back to "normal."

The "normal" we mean is really the special brand of abnormality characteristic of the thirties. In those days the fantastic was sensational and the sensational made the news.

The last remark we heard on the flying saucers fantasy reminded us of that spirit of pre-war America. A Cedar Rapids man said he saw a whole flock of flying saucers just outside his hotel window. The last three, he reports, had big green letters on the outside edge, reading: "You are seeing things. Don't drink any more Scotch."

That tale will never eclipse the one told and lived by one Douglas Corrigan. His masterful understatement, "I guess I must have gone the wrong way", is a classic of all time.

"Wrong-Way" Doug was not the only one. How about the man who got up on Devil's Tower in South Dakota and couldn't get down? Or Clem Sohn flying through the air without even the trapeze?

Breathlessly we used to await the paper to check on the progress of the two boys who were driving across the country in reverse. Each edition of the news carried reports on the globe-circlers or the stratosphere explorers or a new Beebe deep-sea expedition.

We remember the headlines about Willie Post and Harold Gatty, about the death of Post and Will Rogers and about Amelia Earhart's flights and final disappearance. In those days the spectacular monopolized the front page.

We held waltzathons, waltzathons, danceathons, runathons, swimathons, jumpathons—every marathon contest we had heard of and a few we invented ourselves.

We assess no moral judgment to the period. It is dead and almost forgotten. May it rest in peace.

But there are little signs that the spirit returns once in a while. The flag-pole sitter came back this spring. Last year a man set out to push a wheelbarrow around the world. The roadside restaurants are serving foot-long hot dogs again.

And who hasn't seen a flying disc?

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

Says AFL Advocates New Brand of Economic Socialism

By PAUL MALLON (King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
WASHINGTON—Union big man John Lewis' new economic program for another bigger round of prices and wage increases seems to have some economic relation to a new brand of socialism advocated by the AFL economic survey for July.

The survey shows in its headline: "High prices threaten workers' jobs and living standards." Then at the end it furnishes what it calls "the way out."

The way out, says the AFL, is "consumer cooperation" and it adds: "Consumer cooperation means cooperative ownership of a business. Every member is a part-owner . . . We must start at once to organize as consumers . . . We cannot afford to wait . . . Write the federation for information on cooperatives and credit unions and names of official representatives of these two movements to advise you."

Now let's see. Let's understand this. Consumer cooperation is cooperative ownership of a business, eh? That, of course, is socialism. Moreover it is a different advanced type of socialism than that which the British unions have imposed on Britain.

The British government bought the business there with government bonds, and as is the normal case when the government owns anything, no one owns it. A union member would find this out if he tried to get his share of the business.

This new AFL socialism is not state socialism but union ownership. The unions start factories for shoes, clothing or even automobiles, maybe.

Immediately this breaks its own union monopoly of the work in the privately owned shoe, clothing or automobile factory.

In work and price then, AFL would compete with its own members, for the purpose of underselling them and making their business unprofitable.

If AFL were successful, their members would lose the private ownership jobs they now have.

The high prices of which they complain are certainly too high. But one reason they are high is because AFL has forced greater wage increases on the management (really the public) every year for the last few years.

Every wage increase they got forced another price increase. They have discovered that due to the high prices they have caused, the union worker frequently is really no better off economically than before wage increases.

and prices again by an inestimable hundreds of millions of dollars a year with his latest jump of 45 cents an hour, plus a private union tax of 10 cents on every ton of coal, and many more privileges.

If Lewis succeeds in making the coal business unprofitable, he could really buy it cheap, because no one would want it.

But instead of the mmmers getting more money, then they would get much less because their business made no money.

When the union government got the businesses in England, the first thing they did was to up wages again. This increased prices again.

But still they could not get production. Socialist England had to borrow money from us and now is trying to borrow more to buy from us things she should be producing for herself.

One such thing is coal. She has plenty underground but her socialism will not produce it at the low prices which the Socialists are always promising but never get.

AFL does not want this. AFL knows this clearly would cause reduction in wages and working conditions from our high level economic.

But AFL wants to start her own socialism by starting cooperative factories to compete with their own high wage scale both in work and cheaper prices.

If anyone else did this, AFL would strike, picket and outlaw them, realizing they would ruin the union monopoly of work.

But she wants to do this herself, break the price she has largely caused and thus also the work, which she monopolizes.

Is this the way out? Or the way in, deeper and deeper.

Senate concurrent resolution No. 23, introduced July 9, 1947:

Be it resolved by the senate, the house of representatives concurring, that it is the sense of the congress of the United States that permanent world peace can and will be achieved through the United Nations, and to that purpose we believe that action should be taken under the provisions of the charter of the United Nations to propose and adopt amendments and revisions that will strengthen the United Nations as an instrument to prevent war and maintain world peace.

Senate concurrent resolution No. 24, introduced July 9, 1947:

WHEREAS all the world deeply desires durable peace, and

WHEREAS the United Nations was created as an instrument to preserve the peace of the world, and

WHEREAS experience increasingly indicates that the United Nations, in its present structure, is not fully adequate for this task, and

WHEREAS the United Nations charter in its article 109 provides a procedure whereby the charter of the United Nations may be revised and amended,

NOW THEREFORE, Be it resolved by the senate, the house of representatives concurring, that it is the sense of the congress that the President of the United States should immediately take the initiative in calling a general conference of the United Nations pursuant to article 109 for the purpose of making the United Nations capable of enacting, interpreting and enforcing world law to prevent war.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

'48 Race to be Dull

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The 1948 presidential campaign may turn out to be one of the duller in the memory of man. It hardly looks, right now, as if either side is going to get up a good holler against the other.

And a listless campaign represents a great danger to the Democrats, for dull political weather is good Republican weather.

Listening actually is as great a danger to the Democrats as a third party movement would be. It is, in fact, a phenomenon of the same kind; as a state of being bored with the Democrats, it is a way station on the road to a third party.

I remember the California elections last year, when so many liberal and independent Democrats stayed home that the Republicans swept both primaries.

California liberals could hardly have hurt the Democrats more by forming a third party. Listlessness is, in its own futile and negative way, the most deadly kind of third party movement, for it needs no leader and no organization, and fighting it is like fighting a bale of cotton.

Yet it is hard to see how the 1948 campaign can be much more than a campaign of mild sneers and debaters points, rather than those solid blows on the conk that bring the voters out.

With both parties fairly well agreed on foreign policy, at least verbally, and with both studiously ignoring the housing issue, it is unlikely that Dewey and Truman, or Vandenberg and Truman, can do much more than play ping-pong.

The Republicans may claim the Democrats still harbor too many Communists, but Mr. Truman need only quote from the Daily Worker's support of a third party in refutation.

Or the Republicans may do the one about how the Democrats spend too much money, to which the Democrats can answer that the Republicans have been in charge of congress, which means in charge of spending. The danger is that the populace may doze off while the two sides hurl these bean bags at each other.

Mr. Truman has two fine points, in the Taft-Hartley labor bill and the Republican campaign against price control.

But prices may recede by 1948, washing out that controversy; and so many Democrats voted for the Taft-Hartley bill that it is going to be easier to make local rather than party-wide use of the issue.

The Republicans may make big mention of their fight for tax reduction, but it is going to seem a little sad for that to be the chief issue in the first presidential campaign after the biggest war in history.

In this situation, perhaps the best thing to do is to sweep everything off the table, and reset it. If the Democrats were wise, they would detail some attractive figure to make a whopping national campaign for more housing, and then run him for vice-president.

Or the Republicans could pick the issue up. There it lies, smoking, in the street, yet utterly disregarded, while the two parties fling their tired spitballs at each other.

Otherwise, the next campaign will be so exquisitely technical that the public is going to be too bored to follow it.

County committeemen will, of course, roll on the floor with delight at the points their candidates will make, but the general public will wonder what the joke is. It will be like stamp-collecting, which can arouse a certain number of persons to fever pitch, while leaving the rest of the community cold.

It is not the third party which menaces the Democrats, but that state of dullness which comes before a third party, and which gives listless warning as it stifles a yawn.

Transients Create 'Special Problems,' Red Cross Reports

Transients visiting the local Red Cross office have many wants and demands that do not come within limitations of Red Cross assistance, said Dr. Andrew Woods, executive committee member, at a meeting of that organization Tuesday night.

The problem may be solved by a plan proposing coordination with other agencies to handle such cases.

At the same meeting, chapter officers officially confirmed selection of two Iowa City firemen, Edwin Knoedle and Vernal Shimon, as their representatives to the national aquatic school at Brimson, Minn.

Knoedle and Shimon were approved as representatives by the city council Tuesday and are scheduled to attend the school August 17 to 27.

Mrs. William D. Paul will conduct a class in home nursing for Oxford women beginning in September, according to plans announced by Stella Scott, chairman of the home nursing committee.

The new executive committee presented consists of Dr. W. J. Teeters, chairman; Prof. Walter Daykin, vice-chairman; Mrs. Lorraine Smith, secretary; Elwin Jolliffe, treasurer, and Dr. Rubin Flocks, Prof. Harold Saunders, Dr. Andrew H. Woods, Mrs. C. W. Keyser, Mrs. P. C. Jeans, Mrs. A. O. Kelley and Mrs. M. E. Taylor.

As chairman of the personnel committee, Daykin has as his assistants Mrs. C. J. Whipple, Frances Camp, Mrs. M. E. Taylor and Dr. Saunders.

The finance committee is composed of Ellis Crawford, chairman, Jolliffe and A. O. Kelley.

'Discs' Back Via Letter

The almost forgotten "flying saucer" stories are back again in Iowa City. This time they came in the form of a letter received recently at the physics department.

The letter, a mimeographed sheet labeled "A Memorandum of Importance," is addressed to "scientists of distinction, important aeronautical and military authorities, public officials and a few publications." It was mailed to Prof. Louis A. Turner of the physics department.

Warning all aircraft not to attack the mysterious "saucers," the writer claimed to have obtained data by "supernormal means" proving the saucers to be piloted by "human-like crews from another world."

He says these inhabitants of the saucers are, though human-like much larger in size than people on earth and contemplate settling here. "Their mission is peaceful," he wrote.

The letter was signed by "N. Meade Layne" of San Diego, Calif., who claims to have "several university degrees" and to have formerly been head of an unnamed department in an unnamed university. On this point he was very vague.

A check in the American Physical society membership book, revealed that Layne's name was not listed.

He wrote that he feels it is his "public duty to make the information available, no matter how fantastic and unintelligible it may seem."

Explaining the rapid appearance and disappearance of the rumored discs, Layne claims to know that the "bodies of the visitors and their craft only materialize on entering the vibratory rate of our dense matter." He thinks earth people may be able to signal them by radar but not by radio.

Professors in the physics department said they completely disregarded the letter and believe it the work of a crank or jokester.

One professor here said Layne obviously would not have written the letter if he were a physicist.

Plan New Program For Iowa's Cripples

Iowa's crippled children and disabled adults will be given an opportunity to live more self-sufficient and happier lives under a new program announced by the Iowa Society for Crippled Children and the Disabled.

The society is planning to secure a site for a camp where children can stay for entire summers. For the past six years crippled children were taken to YMCA and YWCA camps near Boone. With a new camp the society hopes to give each child individual help in meeting his problems.

Harriet Lingo, member of the society, said, "Summer camps give crippled children self-confidence and relieve the mother at home for a short period. Children are often inspired to attempt things they wouldn't otherwise accomplish."

The society is planning an active, all-year recreational program for shut-ins, both children and adults. Society workers will encourage them in developing hobbies.

Anyone wishing help for disabled children can write to Clyde Carter, director of recreation, Iowa Society for Crippled Children and the Disabled, 400 Plymouth building, Des Moines.

Those Fords Look Too Much Alike!

A case of mistaken identity—of cars—resulted in a missing-car report to police at 1:40 p.m. yesterday.

Frank H. Bates, 40 Olive court, reported his 1934 Ford was missing. He said the car had been parked in the 100 block on E. Washington street.

Two hours later police found two youths on Jefferson street wondering what to do with Bates' car which they had mistaken for the one they had been driving.

The two cars—alike except for license plates—were parked on E. Washington street. The boys drove off in the wrong auto.

The boys had been using a car belonging to a relative, police said.

After straightening out whose car belonged to whom, the boys had to pay an overparking ticket. While riding in the wrong car, their own had been parked too long.

Another car reported missing at 7:05 a.m. yesterday was still missing last night, police said.

Harlan Colson, 210 1/2 E. Davenport, told police his green, 5-passenger, 1947 Dodge disappeared from in front of his home Tuesday night. The license number is 52-8359.

To Select Best Holsteins

Iowans will see the top Holsteins in the state when eight district black and white shows are held July 21.

The district dairy shows of the Iowa State Dairy association will select the champion Holsteins within the districts. The winners will enter the animal shows at the All-Iowa fair at Cedar Rapids, August 10 to 17.

The district show nearest Iowa City will be held at Wellman. Special 4-H and Future Farmers of America awards will be given during the show.

Iowa Dairyman Claims 'No Farm Recession'

There is no immediate danger of a farm recession or a let-up in rural spending, according to S. R. Estel, manager of the dairy cattle congress at Waterloo. He says that industrialists are confident of a large farm market for some time to come.

"Manufacturers are grabbing up exhibition space at 1947 fairs and expositions," Estel said. He believes that this shows they are more eager to fill contracts than ever before.

Many Iowa fairs have leased industrial space long before the fairs will be held, according to Estel. He thinks the unusual interest shown by manufacturers and industrialists indicates that they see no danger of a farm recession in the near future.
