By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
LONDON, (AP)—Informed Socialist sources said Prime Minister Attlee told labor legislators yesterday Britain will slash her armed forces in Germany, completely withdraw troops from Italy and Greece, scale down her standard of living and call for longer working hours in key industries in a "do or die" bid to save the nation's faltering economy.

PORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., (AP)—An army general court martial yesterday sentenced three Negro prisoners to life imprisonment and acquitted a fourth defendant, accused of beating to death a white inmate during a race riot May 6 at the U.S. disciplinary barracks here.

BERLIN, (AP)—American officials said yesterday Czechoslovakia, which declined to join in the Marshall proposal to aid Europe, had signed a trade agreement with the British and American occupation zones of Germany.

AMES, (AP)—Dean Emeritus Charles F. Curtiss of Iowa State college died here yesterday afternoon.

FORT MADISON, (AP)—A widespread search continued last night for George Matheson, 68-year-old convicted murderer who walked away from the state prison farm near Montrose early yesterday.

BOSTON, (AP)—Douglas Chandler, 38, Chicago-born writer, yesterday was sentenced to life imprisonment and fined $10,000 for treason after he defiantly told the court he had not changed the opinions he spouted for the nazis over the German raid during the war.

YOKOHAMA, (AP)—Seven Japanese civilians who guarded prisoners at Hiroshima during the war pleaded innocent to charges of beating and abusing Allied servicemen when arraigned before an Eighth army commission.

BATAVIA, Java, (AP)—The Netherlands government today set up as autonomous territories in the projected United States of Indonesia the major tin producing islands of Bangka and Billiton and the strategic Riuw archipelago, Singapore's southern guardian and an important world source of bauxite.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., (AP)—Wearry firefighters, exhausted by a seven hour battle in 90-degree heat of about 30,000, successfully contained yesterday to save the business district of this Wisconsin city from the blaze to one major business block which was destroyed at a loss of at least $500,000.

UN Rushes Hearing On Indonesian War

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—Dr. Oscar Lange of Poland, president of the United Nations security council, last night ordered an immediate hearing on the Indonesian question which was laid before the council this afternoon by Australia and India.

Lange put the case on the council's provisional agenda for this afternoon's meeting, previously scheduled on the Balkan question. The council itself will decide which issue gets priority.

The Australian and Indian delegations, acting almost simultaneously, told the council the strife between Dutch and Indonesian forces threatened world peace but a Dutch spokesman in Washington said the U.N. had no jurisdiction.

Besides the Indonesian and Balkan cases, the council is committed to take up Egypt's complaint against Britain next Tuesday.

The Netherlands was expected to be represented by Dr. Eelco Van Kleffens, former member of the security council, who is now ambassador to Washington.

Russ Threatens Veto On UN Applications

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—Russia said yesterday she would use the big power veto again to blackball United Nations membership applications from Ireland, Portugal and Trans-Jordan.

Soviet deputy delegate Alexei N. Krasnikov calmly told the security council's membership committee that none of the three had diplomatic relations with Moscow and therefore could not qualify.

Krasnikov then moved to block consideration of applications from Austria, Italy, Romania and Hungary on the grounds that the peace treaties had not been ratified. This step drew an immediate objection from the United States, which insisted on full discussion.

All the major powers except Russia have ratified the treaties with Italy, Hungary and Romania. Russia already has cast the veto 11 times in the U.N.'s short history, three of the earlier ones being on the original applications by Ireland, Portugal and Trans-Jordan and the latest coming Tuesday on the American proposal for a Balkan border watch.

Protests Seizure Of Axis Assets In Balkan Countries

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States protested to Russia yesterday against Soviet seizure of German and Italian assets in the Balkans in apparent violation of peace treaties.

The action was announced by Undersecretary of State Lovett at a news conference as state department officials began conferences to decide what the United States should do as a result of Russia's veto of an American proposal to create a United Nations commission on the Greek border.

Bricker Gives Unconditional OK to Taft

Expects Taft Control Of Ohio, As Dewey Says, 'I'm Surprised'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A presidential boom for Republican Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio got under way yesterday when Senator John W. Bricker gave an unconditional endorsement of his senior colleague for the GOP presidential nomination in 1948.

Taft would not comment immediately and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, now in Michigan, was at first silent on the Bricker announcement.

Then later last night he limited himself to an "I'm surprised" when newsmen confronted him with Bricker's endorsement of Taft.

The campaign for Taft, chairman of the senate's Republican policy committee and co-author of the Taft-Hartley labor relations act, was launched a day ahead of schedule.

The state Republican committee had been expected to fire the first signal at a noon meeting today, with a unanimous endorsement, followed by a big Ohio "recognition dinner" tonight to hear Taft speak on the accomplishments of the congress session just closed.

But Bricker stole a march on the party organization. He called reporters into his law office suite yesterday and got off his chest what he said he had been thinking about for seven months.

"I have urged the state committee to put on a united campaign for Taft for the Ohio delegation to the next convention, which I am sure they are anxious to do," said Bricker, the GOP vice-presidential nominee in 1944.

"Is this an unqualified endorsement?" he was asked.

"Oh sure," he replied, adding he expects—and "certainly hopes"—Taft will be nominated. Taft last ran for the nomination in 1940 and was a strong second to Thomas E. Dewey until both were overtaken by the late Wendell L. Willkie who won on the sixth ballot.

"Does this completely remove you from the picture in 1948?" Bricker was asked.

"It doesn't remove me because I've never been in," he replied. "I've never had any idea of being a candidate."

Asked if he would decline the nomination if the convention deadlocked over Taft and Gov. Dewey of New York and a draft pointed his way, the white-haired Bricker reported quickly:

"No man who loves his country, believes in representative government and believes in the principles of his party would do that unless he had personal reasons. I don't anticipate anything like that ever happening."

Bricker said he told Taft even before congress met last January that he did not anticipate being a candidate for Ohio's 53-man delegation to the 1948 convention and that he would be glad to support his colleague.

British Soldiers' Bodies Missing

Find Body In Basement

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (AP)—The body of a black-haired woman, found today in a shallow grave in the dingy basement of a house where a man hanged himself Sunday night in a strange "triangle" shooting, last night tentatively was identified by Sheriff Otto Tannehill as that of Mrs. Rose Schwartz Harvey, formerly of Salinas, Calif.

She was the former wife of Tony Harvey, 40, who was engaged in a gun duel and then hanged himself.

The sheriff, who announced the grisly discovery, said the woman, about five feet 10 inches and fully clothed, had been dead about four months. The corpse was covered with about six inches of earth and the ground was soft.

The basement, about 15 by 20 feet, was under a house which police said had been occupied by Tony Harvey, 40, and Mrs. Louise Harvey, 41, who officers also identified as Kay O'Brien.

The house was the scene of a gun fight last Sunday night. Sheriff Tannehill said Harvey had returned home unexpectedly from Stockton, Calif., to find Louis D. Barton, 35, a former New York motor car company technician, seated on a couch in the living room. Mrs. Louise Harvey was in the kitchen preparing dinner.

Tannehill said the two men pulled their weapons and fired almost simultaneously.

Dutch Gain, 'Regret' Plane Incident

BATAVIA, Java (AP)—The Netherlands army, referring to Indonesian charges that two Dutch fighters had shot down a mercy transport plane carrying medical supplies to the Republic, said today that the identity of the aircraft had not been clearly established.

It would be a cause of "great regret," the army declared, should it develop that the plane was an unarmed transport carrying medical supplies from India.

The Dutch communiqué was issued as the Indonesians gave a state military funeral in the Republic capital of Jogjakarta to the nine persons—three British, five Indonesians and one Indian—who were killed yesterday when the two-engine airplane went down.

The Dutch said the plane presumed to be a Japanese type bomber, took evasive action coming down to tree-top level from 5,000 feet. The two fighter pilots said they fired warning bursts but that these shots could not have hit the larger plane. The twin-engine aircraft struck the trees and crashed, they said.

Dr. S. H. Algmuid, Indonesian Red Cross representative, told Indonesian Red Cross and that the Dutch knew it was flying to Jogjakarta with two tons of medical supplies.

Involve FDR In Hughes Deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate war investigating committee summoned Howard Hughes this morning to tell in public about his $40,000,000 wartime contracts for planes that did not get into the war.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jesse H. Jones told senators yesterday the late President Roosevelt overrode cancellation of a $20,000,000 flying boat project assigned to Howard Hughes and ordered construction continued.

Jones, former secretary of commerce and onetime head of the reconstruction finance corporation, appeared before the senate war investigating committee.

He testified Mr. Roosevelt decided in 1944 that the "experience to be gained" from completing one 200-ton cargo plane—which has yet to take to the air—would be too great to throw away.

Jones said the contract was cancelled by RFC early in 1944, and that at a cabinet meeting in February of that year, Mr. Roosevelt ordered it renewed.

At that time, the flying boat already had cost the government about $13,500,000, the big Texan testified. Jones said he signed the original contract not knowing it was opposed by the army and navy but because he was directed to by the war production board.

The senate committee is investigating $40,000,000 worth of wartime plane contracts let to Hughes, millionaire Hollywood aircraft producer and motion picture executive.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich), committee chairman, has instructed Hughes to be ready to testify either today or Friday morning.

Hughes Tells Meyer To Return to U.S.

PARIS (AP)—John Meyer, publicity man for Howard Hughes' film and air craft enterprises, said last night he had been ordered by the California millionaire to return to the United States and hoped to fly from Paris today.

"I know nothing at all about what's going on in Washington," Meyer said. "I left the states a week ago and nobody told me anything about what was coming. If I'd known, I wouldn't have wasted the money coming to Europe."

Dancer Says Man Told Her Not to Testify

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Judy Cook, blonde dancer-swimmer under subpoena by a senate war contracts investigating committee, said yesterday a man with "a British accent" warned her not to testify in the Howard Hughes' inquiry.

Miss Cook said the telephonic warning came Tuesday at midnight, after she had received a wire from the committee, directing her not to come to Washington pending further instructions.

Guards, Police Comb Woods

TEL AVIV, Palestine (AP)—A voice claiming to be that of a representative of Irgun Zvai Leumi declared over the telephone yesterday that two British sergeants, held as hostages for three executed Jewish underground members, had been executed by hanging.

But grenadier guardsmen, Palestine police and an Associated Press representative who received one of the purported Irgun messages searched sand dunes and citrus groves of the central Palestine coastal plain almost inch by inch without finding a clue to the whereabouts or fate of the two sergeants.

The telephone voice said Clifford Martin and Mervyn Paice were executed "because they were convicted of being enemies" and not as a reprisal for the execution yesterday of three Irgun men for taking part in the May 4 Acre prison raid.

The anonymous caller said the "sergeants were hanged to a tree in the government forest preserve a few miles south of Natanya before dawn."

The searchers went carefully through the eucalyptus forests, citrus groves, cypress woods and ankle deep sand where the voice said the men would be found hanging in their nooses without finding a trace.

The two sergeants were taken captive in front of Natanya coffee house July 12 as hostages for Meir Nakar, Yacoub Weiss and Absalom Habib, who were executed at Acre prison Tuesday despite Irgun threats to "bathe the Holy Land in blood."

SEEK UNDERSTANDING

DES MOINES (AP)—Ways of promoting public understanding of school problems were discussed yesterday at a conference of educators here.

public relations department." He said there had been a mistake in the treasury figures; that the cash balance should be $3,032,722,185.59 instead of $3,032,794,863.59.

Some news organizations sent out corrections on the basis of the telephone call, but Gardner L. Bridge, an Associated Press editor, decided to check up. He called Charles Molony, AP staff man assigned to the treasury.

Molony was informed by treasury officials that there was no division in the public relations division with the name the mysterious caller used.

The attempt was the first of its kind officials could recall. However, Secretary Snyder several times has had letters asking that a certain figure come out a certain way on a designated date.

Aquarium Official Retires—'Peachy' Fish Mourn Him

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Fred Orsinger retires today as director of the commerce department's aquarium, and fun-loving fish from coast to coast are sad.

For Orsinger, very quick to gig a gag, has done for fish what Harvey has done for fellow rabbits.

Finding nature sometimes excessively humdrum, Orsinger has taken fish out and dressed them up with a peachy personality.

He has also dressed them up in fur jackets.

A couple of Russian ichthyologists are said to have taken a few nibbles before someone dragged them aside and whispered, "It's a joke, comrade."

(Gilmore later repented, and went straight. When last seen he was in Moscow—a fur bearing (AP) correspondent).

Orsinger also got national publicity when he modestly announced he had discovered an amazing method of cleaning stopped-up drains.

He pointed out that alligators, which come in three handy household sizes, are just the thing. He said to turn them loose at one end of the drain, and wait for nature and the alligators to take their course.

"You know," he said thoughtfully to a reporter yesterday, "I never have learned whether an alligator can go backwards."

Lesnevich Decisions Mauriello

By SID FEDER
BROOKLYN, N. Y. (AP)—Light-heavyweight Champion Gus Lesnevich, the exception to the rule that the armed forces "took something" out of all fighters, banged out a decisive 10-round upset victory over Tami Mauriello, the round man from the Bronx, in Ebbets field last night. Lesnevich weighed 178½; Mauriello 197.

The blond belter from Cliffside, N. J., kept away from Mauriello's famed right hand and took the play away from his larger opponent. Twice he staggered Mauriello—once in the second with right hands that forced Tami to back up and again in the sixth with a series of sharp hooks—and in the seventh he buckled Tami's knees with a vicious right cross that all but floored the Bronx belter.

The decision was a popular one and unanimous in Lesnevich's favor. The Associated Press score card gave ex-sailor Gus six rounds and Mauriello four, with Gus in the lead from the first heat on.

The crowd almost matched pre-fight expectations with 24,000 going through the turnstiles. It contributed to a gross fare of $102,955 which makes the match the biggest local outdoor show of the fight season. The two boxers received about 60 percent of the take with the remainder going to the Dammor Runyon Memorial Cancer fund.

The fight wasn't the knock-down brawl that some expected with both fighters acting as if they didn't want anybody to think they wanted a chance at Champion Joe Louis's title. Tami especially made it a point to go on record as desiring nothing more with the king of the heavies with his knockout at Joe's hands still fresh in his memory.

Lesnevich, who has run out of boxers in his weight, expects to line up some future bouts, with other heavyweights who may be lurking along the sidelines.

Giants Snap Blackwell's String

CINCINNATI (AP)—Lady Luck ran out on Ewell Blackwell yesterday as the New York Giants downed the Cincinnati Reds, 5-4, in 10 innings to end the lanky righthander's winning streak at 16 games—just three short of Rube Marquard's all-time major league mark set while pitching for the Giants in 1912.

Blackwell, who hurled his 17th consecutive complete game, had some narrow squeaks while compiling the longest winning streak since Carl Hubbell won 16 in a row for the 1936 Giants. Included in Black-well's sensational skein which began May 10, were two victories over the Giants and a no-hit, no run triumph over the Boston Braves.

The rangy Californian appeared headed for his 17th straight conquest as he entered the ninth with a 4-3 lead but Willard Marshall belted his 27th homer of the season with one out to send the game into overtime.

In the following frame, Buddy Blattner led off with a walk and moved to second on relief Pitcher Monte Kennedy's sacrifice. Blackwell disposed of Bill Rigney on a grounder to Grady Hatton but Ruddy Kerr lined a single to center to score Blattner from second with the winning run.

The 24-year-old star was mowing along with a 2-0 lead, pitching no-hit ball until the fifth when Walker Cooper slammed his 23rd home run with one out.

A crowd of 13,084 fans saw the Reds move out in front in the third at the expense of starter Clint Hartung on a walk, sacrifice, and a double by Hatton and a single by former Giant Babe Young.

After Cooper's drive, the Giants took the lead by scoring twice in the sixth on Hartung's single, a sacrifice, Kerr's double and Johnny Mize's triple.

The Reds came back with two runs in their half of the sixth, to go in front for the last time.

Young tied the score by clouting his 11th homer of the year. After Bert Haas fouled out, Augie Galan walked and Ray Lamarr singled to drive Hartung from the box. Eddie Miller greeted Relief-er Ken Trinkle with a single to score Galan and shove the Reds ahead, 4-3.

"Blackie" retired the Giants in order in the seventh and eighth before Marshall unloaded with one down in the ninth to tie the count and pave the way for the Giants' winning rally in the first overtime frame.

The only pitchers in the game's history who have won more than 16 consecutive games in a single season in addition to Marquard, were Tim Keefe, 19, for the 1888 Giants; Charles Radbourne, 18, for Providence 1884, and Mickey Welch of New York and J. P. Luby of Chicago who won 17 each in 1883 and 1890 respectively.

The American league mark of 16 straight wins is shared by Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and Schoolboy Rowe.

Dodgers Survive Cards' Rally, 11-10

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Harold Reese singled Gene Hermanski across the plate with the winning run in the top of the 10th to give the Brooklyn Dodgers their 12th consecutive victory—11 to 10—last night after the St. Louis Cardinals had done the almost impossible trick of sending the game into extra innings after trailing at one time 10 to 0.

Hermanski got to second base on a double in the final frame after Carl Furillo had popped out. Bruce Edwards looked at a third strike then Reese came up with his game winning blow.

The Redbirds had their first rally in the sixth, picking up four runs, three of them on Whitey Kurowski's home run. They then marked time until the last of the ninth when they let go with everything possible.

Del Rice opened the inning with a single, the next two men went out, then the fireworks were let loose with six singles and a walk for the Redbirds. Joe Garagiola, pinch batting for Card Hurler Ted Wilks grounded out on his second trip to the plate to end the frame.

The game took three hours, 43 minutes and saw the Cardinals use six pitchers and the Dodgers use four. Starting pitcher Branca lasted six and two-thirds innings for Brooklyn while Harry Brecheen lasted only three frames for the Cards.

Hearn was charged for the loss after pitching the fateful 10th inning while King received credit for the win after blanking the Cards in the last half of the inning.

Scooter Scores As Tiger Trias

CATCHER HAL WAGNER of the Detroit Tigers stretches full length on the ground after a vain attempt to tag Phil Rizzuto, New York Yankees' shortstop, who skids past home plate to score in the sixth inning of the Tiger-Yankee game at Yankee Stadium yesterday. Outstretched arms of Umpire Hal Weaver indicate the Scooter is safe. Rizzuto scored from second on a single to left field by teammate George Stinweiss. The Yankees won, 8-5.

Ebner Iowa Baseball Captain

With Dooley Bailey scoring twice on passed balls, the Iowa City Cardinals blanked the Cedar Street Inn club of Davenport, 2-0, last night at Kelley field.

Paul Reberry was in his usual form on the mound for the Cards fanning 16 of the Davenport batters. He allowed only three hits over the nine innings. Bob Oldis did Reberry's catching.

Bailey, Card rightfielder, opened the last of the third inning with a long triple to deep centerfield. Chuck Lucas, Davenport catcher, then let one of Elmer Frandsen's offerings get past him, Bailey scooting home from third for the tally.

The game continued as a tight pitchers' duel with both Reberry and Frandsen hurling good ball. Not until the last of the eighth did the Cards score their second and last run of the ball game.

Bailey again opened the inning, ripping a sharp single to center. Ralph Tucker followed with a line double down the left field line, Bailey holding at third. Two straight pop-ups to the third baseman by Tom Stahl and Jack Kelso still left the runners anchored at second and third.

Catcher Bob Oldis stepped in and with the count at one ball and one strike, Lucas again lost one of Frandsen's pitches, Bailey sliding home with the final run. Oldis then popped to the shortstop for the last out.

Next game at Kelley field is scheduled for Friday night. Sunday night the Cards will meet an all-star team from Newton in a doubleheader starting at 8 p.m.

Hawk Players Pick Slugging Backstop Leader For 1948

Lyle Ebner, Davenport, hard-hitting catcher on the University of Iowa baseball team for three seasons, has been elected captain of the '48 Hawkeyes. Coach Otto Vogel announced yesterday.

Ebner was the popular choice of squad members who were polled by mail ballot this summer.

The new leader won the major "I" in 1943, then left for service in the marine corps. He distinguished himself in combat in the South Pacific and earned the Purple Heart in the battle for Okinawa. After discharge from the Marines, Ebner returned to the university and was regular catcher on the '46 and '47 teams.

A 190-pound slugger, Ebner topped Iowa batters in 1946 with a .354 average. He is taking the physical education course and expects to enter the coaching profession upon graduation next June.

This summer Ebner is playing for the Davenport VFW team which is one of the better outfits in the tri-cities. He is clouting a lusty .350 and leading the loop in extra base blows and runs-batted-in.

Morris Upsets Brown In Junior Golf Meet

PEORIA, ILL. (AP)—John Morris of Atlanta, Ga., advanced to the third round of the National Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament at Peoria's Mount Hawley country club yesterday by upsetting co-medalist Wesley Brown of Chattanooga, Tenn., 2 and 1.

Earlier Morris had ousted Bob Hinson of Lakeland, Fla., by winning a 19-hole thriller, 1 up.

Brown had a tougher fight on his hand in his first round match when Dick Pogue of Watertown, Minn., carried him to the 20th hole before succumbing, 1 up.

Among the favorites to advance to the third round was defending Champion Al Mengert of Spokane, Wash., who yesterday eliminated two lads from Madison, Wis.

In his first match Mengert downed Doug Campbell, 3 and 2. In the inaugural round, advanced with a second round 4 and 2 triumph over Chick Battey of Lincoln, Neb. In his first round match Beeber downed Walker Inman of Augusta, Ga., 1 up.

Gene May, a tournament dark horse from Spokane, Wash., also advanced to the third round with double victories. In his opening match he eliminated Donald Nelson of Detroit, 3 and 2. He had a more difficult task with Marv Worsham of Bethesda, Md., brother of National Open titlist Lew Worsham, in the matinee round, but May finally birdied the 19th hole to card a 1 up decision.

In the longest match of the afternoon Dick Estey of Portland, Ore., and Jack Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., battled to the 23rd hole before Estey won a 1 up verdict. At the 23rd Estey put his second shot a foot-and-a-half from the cup and dropped his putt for a birdie 3.

Co-medalist Bob Peters of Kansas City, Kans., advanced with victories over Rufus Hughes, Paducah, Ky., 3 and 1, and Bernard Riviere, Houston, Tex., 5 and 4.

Tribe Drops Bosox, 13-7

BOSTON (AP)—Scoring six times in the opening inning and rolling to seven more runs in the sixth, the Cleveland Indians last night whipped the Boston Red Sox 13-7.

The defeat, second in two days administered by the Indians, dropped the second place Sox 11½ games in back of the American league leading New York Yankees who beat the Detroit Tigers 8-5.

Among the blows in the six-run first was a long, high home run by Joe Gordon, the ball bounding off a light tower above the fence and screen in left field.

Gordon's round tripper also scored Ken Keltner, who had doubled, and was hit off Gordon's former team mate on the New York Yankees, Grandma Johnny Murphy, second of five Boston pitchers.

An error by Sam Dente on a play at third base, which would have meant the second out had he held the ball while tagging the sliding Dale Mitchell, put Cleveland runners on second and third. Ed Robinson then doubled for the first two runs.

Pat Seerey followed with a single and he and Robinson scored on Keltner's two bagger. In all 10 men batted in the first frame and 12 batted in the sixth when six hits, and an error, accounted for the other seven runs.

Yanks Defeat Tigers On Berra's Blow, 8-5

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi Berra and Fireman Joe Page teamed up on Detroit yesterday to give the New York Yankees a second straight win over the Tigers, 8-5.

Berra's grand slam homer in the third gave the home club a comfortable early lead and Page came on to protect it when Allie Reynolds wilted in the fourth inning.

The weak-hitting Tigers were off running when Dick Wakefield banged his seventh homer, a 450-foot drive into the Yankee ball pen in right field, in the first inning. Two more came home in the second on two walks and Dizzy Trout's double to deep center.

Berra then took matters in hand in the Yankee third. Successful singles by Phil Rizzuto, Reynolds

Reese Ruins Redbird Bid

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Harold Reese singled Gene Hermanski across the plate with the winning run in the top of the 10th to give the Brooklyn Dodgers their 12th consecutive victory—11 to 10—last night after the St. Louis Cardinals had done the almost impossible trick of sending the game into extra innings after trailing at one time 10 to 0.

Hermanski got to second base on a double in the final frame after Carl Furillo had popped out. Bruce Edwards looked at a third strike then Reese came up with his game winning blow.

The Redbirds had their first rally in the sixth, picking up four runs, three of them on Whitey Kurowski's home run. They then marked time until the last of the ninth when they let go with everything possible.

Del Rice opened the inning with a single, the next two men went out, then the fireworks were let loose with six singles and a walk for the Redbirds. Joe Garagiola, pinch batting for Card Hurler Ted Wilks grounded out on his second trip to the plate to end the frame.

The game took three hours, 43 minutes and saw the Cardinals use six pitchers and the Dodgers use four. Starting pitcher Branca lasted six and two-thirds innings for Brooklyn while Harry Brecheen lasted only three frames for the Cards.

Hearn was charged for the loss after pitching the fateful 10th inning while King received credit for the win after blanking the Cards in the last half of the inning.

CHICAGO (AP)—The Philadelphia Phillies won 9-2 from the Chicago Cubs yesterday, combining three Chicago pitchers for 11 hits and their second triumph in 15 appearances against the Bruins.

Johnny Wyrostek's three-run homer in the first inning gave Philadelphia a lead which Blix Donnelly preserved by scattering 10 Cub hits.

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—Mrs. H. R. Staats, former state champion from Davenport, stepped into the role of favorite for the Iowa Women's golf crown yesterday by eliminating tourney Medalist Ann Casey of Mason City 3 and 2 in a quarterfinals upset.

Miss Penn reached the semifinals by defeating Ottumwa's Corkey Major, 4 and 2 with a round of 40-40-80.

Mrs. Bonnella's semi-finals opponent today is Mary Louise Cordingley of Des Moines who won her yesterday's match by a 3 and 1 margin from Mrs. Ray Mansfield, a fellow townsman.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Smashing out four home runs, the Boston Braves bounced back to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-5, in the second game of a twin bill yesterday. The Bucs, aided by Billy Cox's eighth circuit clout of the season, took the opener 5-3.

After Kirby Higbe had thrown back Boston with five hits in the opener, the Braves shelled four Buc pitchers for 13 safeties in the second contest. Their four circuit clouts came from the bats of Danny Litwhiler, Connie Ryan, Tommy Holmes, and Mike McCormick.

SUI Buys 2 Oil Paintings

University purchase of two oil paintings from the Iowa summer art show was announced yesterday by Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts.

"Rock Forms and Sky" by Joseph De Martini was purchased from MacBeth gallery, New York City. Mitchell Siporin's "Endless Voyage" was bought from New York City's Downtown gallery.

De Martini's landscape painting is now hanging in the art gallery. Siporin's work, an artistic commentary on the Jewish refugee problem, is on display in Iowa Union lounge.

Members of the art department and Harper picked these two from 12 American paintings which were selected previously for possible purchase by a three-man committee.

De Martini's painting was priced at $1,200, and Siporin's at $1,500, but the actual purchase price paid by the special university fund was not announced.

The other paintings which have been on display this summer will be returned to the galleries which lent them for the summer art exhibition.

Same Degree, Same Robes—Son to Follow Dad's Path to Ph.D.

Wearing the same hood and gown that his father wore 26 years ago when he received a Ph.D. degree in history from the University of Iowa, Vergil S. Fogdall will get the same degree here at Commencement next Wednesday.

Fogdall, a 1933 graduate from Iowa, has been appointed assistant dean of men at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore.

"If I were in some other field than history, I wouldn't be able to wear the same hood and gown since there are various colors for the different hoods," Fogdall said. "Father was a professor of history at Drake university in Des Moines," he continued. He died June 13 this year.

The elder Fogdall was dean of the junior college at Burlington from 1940-46. Last year he served as dean of men at the University of Montana, Havre, Mont.

THE MAYOR OF COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., signs the University of Iowa Highlanders' drumhead as they paused in his city enroute to San Francisco and the International Lions convention. After Mayor McCulla led them in a parade through Colorado Springs, the bagpipers and drummers went on to take first prize of $250 in the convention's Juvenile drum and bugle corps contest at San Francisco. The tour includes a 7,000 mile jaunt through the west for the Highlanders.

Library Fines Hit $4,477, But Bring No Profits to SUI

Going to college can be expensive if you're a book worm with a bad memory. Undergraduates last year paid $4,477 in library fines. With an enrollment close to 10,000 last year it could mean that each student kept one book sitting home on the desk two extra days each month.

According to University Controller E. T. Jolliffe, the university would much rather have the books than the cash.

Fines were first assessed on late books in November, 1922, when the stateboard of education decided it was the only way to keep books in circulation. "It is no source of revenue for the university," Jolliffe stressed.

If you feel that you're making your contribution toward the collection of new books because of the fines you're paying—you are being misled. All fines collected by the library are put in the university general fund, Jolliffe explained. Money for new books comes from the library budget.

According to Irene Steidl, head librarian, this is the time of the semester when the libraries collect the greatest amount of cash. "Term papers are due now and overdue library books seem to stack up at home," she explained.

She said students should try to return books on time in order to keep them in circulation.

Clements Still Missing

Still listed as missing today is 15-year-old Eugene Clements, according to County Attorney Jack C. White.

Chips of Chocolate Make Square Cookies A Tasty Snack

Visitors arriving at the home of Mrs. George Reichardt on an August afternoon will find that her chocolate chip square cookies make a delightful snack.

Mrs. Reichardt, who lives in Coralville, "just recently learned the recipe. These cookies are very easy to bake," she adds.

The ingredients for chocolate chip squares are:

- 1 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup white sugar
- 1 1/2 cups brown sugar
- 2 eggs separated

- 1 tsp. cold water
 - 1 tsp. vanilla extract
 - 1 tsp. soda
 - 1 pkg. semi-sweet chocolate chips
 - 1 cup salted jumbo peanuts.
- Cream the shortening until light, then add the white sugar and 3/4 cups of the brown sugar. Mix in the egg yolks and one tablespoon of cold water. Beat this mixture until it is thoroughly creamed. Sift together the flour, salt and soda. Then stir these ingredients into the batter. Grease an oblong 9 X 11 inch baking pan. Spread the dough evenly into the pan. Sprinkle and press the chocolate chips into the mixture. Next, beat the egg yolks until they become stiff. Add the remaining 3/4 cups brown sugar to

THURSDAY, JULY 31, 1947

Senator Brewster's Huffing and Puffing

So he huffed and he puffed and he blew the plane down! That might be the postscript to Senator Ralph Brewster's investigation of the wartime plane contract awards to Howard Hughes.

While plenty of big names have appeared before the congressional committee, few of the promised sensational charges have materialized. All we can surmise from the maze of testimony is that one of the common wartime inter-department feuds centered around building of the huge cargo plane.

Some divisions of the WPB opposed letting the contract. Apparently Adm. William D. Leahy approved, along with Donald Nelson, chairman of the WPB. Jesse Jones, former secretary of commerce, testified he signed the original contract on direct instructions from the WPB and without knowing the project was opposed by the army and navy.

So far, the committee has turned up no evidence of fraud, chicanery or political influence. And there is still no evidence of those promised glamour girls who were supposed to have wormed a few million dollars of the taxpayers' money out of susceptible bureaucrats.

Hughes, however, has raised another interesting theory which he says explains all of Senator Brewster's huffing and puffing. And Hughes nails down to a specific reason why Brewster wants to blow his plane out of the air.

Hughes claims that the investigation is an attempt to coerce him into agreeing to a merger of Trans-World airlines with Juan Trippe's Pan-American airways. Hughes owns a controlling interest in TWA.

Hughes declared that Senator Brewster once offered to call off the investigation if Hughes would agree to the merger.

Brewster's only reply is: "Look in the Bible under chapter six of the Book of Nehemiah." The chapter recounts the efforts to divert Nehemiah from the work of building a wall for the defense of Jerusalem.

These backstage whispers about airlines competition are interesting, and may furnish a clue to the tenor of the whole investigation.

The whispers revolve around the "chosen instrument doctrine" which Pan Am supports and which all other domestic airlines oppose. Interestingly enough, Senator Brewster has supported the "chosen instrument doctrine"—as a matter of principle.

The "chosen instrument doctrine" would give one airline exclusive rights to an international route—a monopoly. Pan Am has supported this theory as necessary to prevent duplication and unnecessary waste.

This "chosen instrument doctrine" was aired at the International Civil Aviation conference in Chicago in 1944. A. A. Berle, then assistant secretary of state, proposed that the theory be abandoned, and that impediments to world air travel be removed.

A permanent body was established, which now functions out of Montreal, Canada. This organization has proposed the "five freedoms" of international air travel.

President Roosevelt was instrumental in calling the Chicago conference. At that conference, Brewster opposed Berle's and Roosevelt's proposals.

Pan Am argued at the conference that it had pioneered overseas air commerce and had a fine organization well equipped for the job.

But during the war, the government found it necessary to sign "carrier contracts" with other commercial airlines than Pan Am.

United flew to Hawaii, Transcontinental and Western, now Trans World, and American airlines flew to Europe and the Mediterranean. Northwest flew to Alaska and the Orient. Eastern flew to South America.

When the war ended, the big question was whether these routes would be continued. They could be—if the U.S. didn't adopt the "chosen instrument doctrine" and instead inaugurated a competitive system.

Most of the lines bid for international air routes. Pan Am argued that it ought to be granted special consideration because it pioneered the routes.

TWA, however, got the rights to fly to Europe down to the Mediterranean—along the best traffic centers.

Pan Am had argued that if TWA could fly overseas, it ought to be allowed to fly across the United States. This matter is still being thrashed out by the CAA.

Then came a proposal for Pan Am to buy out TWA. When the TWA president, Jack Frye, resigned it was rumored that it was because Hughes objected to overseas flights. Hughes denied this, saying he wanted a vast expansion of overseas flights for his company.

At any rate, the competition between TWA and Pan Am is a life and death struggle to the two companies concerned. So it's easy to see why some people regard the background of the present Washington "investigation" not as a fight over the "flying boat" or the lavish parties of lobbyists, but rather as a fight over world air rights.

The 'No' Philosophy in the UN

Russia's veto of UN efforts to set up a Balkan watch commission makes us wonder how much longer the UN can last—in its present form, at least.

Under article 34, chapter six, of the UN charter, the security council is authorized to "investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to any international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether its continuance is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security."

That chapter is the real force behind the U.N. Investigations will never stop disputes, even little ones, which may grow into world wars.

The question bothering us is how we can ever expect force to be used to keep peace if mere investigations are blocked by a single vote.

We do not particularly blame the Russians. America would do the same if it were proposed to investigate say Alaska.

The very nature of the veto presumes diametrically opposed interests which each nation must be prepared to defend, if necessary, by its solitary action. The veto presumes that no nation can trust the majority of the others.

Since the veto lies at the heart of the UN, and the veto is the child of fear and mistrust, we wonder how long the UN can last with a "no" philosophy.

Another chapter of the UN charter, chapter seven, gives the security council the right to "take such action by air, sea or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security."

Is This the Main Show?

Can Dewey's Trips Make Tongues Wag on the Campus?

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

One way of previewing next year's presidential election is to speculate on how it will look to twenty-one-year-olds, to young men and women casting their first votes.

It may look a little dull to them. Dewey, for example, may still seem young and vital to voters who are no longer good insurance risks. But he has been governor of New York twice, and that deftly takes him out of the boy class.

The first voter of next year has not really lived through Dewey's rackets prosecutions of 10 years or so ago; to him, it is just something he has read about, like the Spanish Armada.

He may not even remember any other governor of New York, since Mr. Dewey took office when the coming first voter was about fifteen.

Dewey will have to find other ways to appeal to youth, but one doubts that his careful, strategic cross-country trips can start tongues wagging joyously in the drug stores and on the campuses.

There is a chance, of course, that Vandenberg might be the candidate. He is a fairly interesting figure, a man who started life as a sort of isolationist, then came to the mourners' bench, and changed over.

That kind of dramatic to those Americans who take it a little easy, these days, climbing steps.

But one wonders if to the first voters the whole isolation-intervention argument doesn't feel almost as ancient as the controversy which attended the initial publication of Upton Sinclair's "The Jungle." Most of the debate about isolation occurred in 1939-40, when the first voter was thirteen years old. Gad! Can that be possible? Then there is Mr. Truman, who is perhaps really their president to the younger people, in a way in which he can't quite be for us older boys, who think of him as Roosevelt's inheritor.

But it may not be good for Mr. Truman that the young people don't remember Roosevelt too clearly. They may not have our own man, elderly hope of keeping the Roosevelt spirit alive; and the young ones may either not vote at all, or they may tend to conform more easily to family voting patterns.

How to bring a dull election alive is perhaps, then, even more of a problem for the Democrats than for the Republicans.

The question is how to give it that touch that brings a play alive, or a piece of fiction, or a speech, that wonderful something which makes a direct bid to the generous heart and the sound imagination. Perhaps housing could do it, or a really massive implementation of the Marshall plan. One isn't sure.

It must be strange to be a first voter at this time, without even that capital of hope which we older ones have been spending, we who can remember the excitement about making this into one world, and a better one. It isn't a bad guide to policy, to try to see it in terms of what can bring the first voter to life. If the way isn't found, it will be a dreary gratification we shall go through next year.

The young may still vote, but without remembering 1948, especially, as the year in which they cast their first ballots; they will recall it, instead, as the year in which the convertible was bought, and in which dad either made or lost some money.

That will be a petty way to fix in memory the year of the first presidential election after the biggest of wars.

But even more important than Mr. Mallon's direct propaganda for war, there was expressed a certain confusion which is not, unfortunately, confined to the mind of the writer alone.

This peculiar and potentially devastating inconsistency in the thinking of many of us (which stems from such "information" as Mr. Mallon disseminates) has led us to believe that it is the Soviet nation which is the threat to world peace—but we who are actually mongering possible plans for aggression and talking of five-year time limits for survival. (For whose survival?)

We are threatened with a war we do not want, but the threat is rooted in our own confused thinking, to which Mr. Mallon and others like him have so valiantly contributed.

Mr. Mallon appears to take it for granted there must be another war shortly. Are there two sides to the question of our wanting world peace, Mr. Editor?

If we agree that there cannot be, then Mr. Mallon's dangerous influence should be curtailed at once.

Calls Mallon's Column Dangerous

Readers are invited to express their opinions in Letters to the Editor. All letters must be signed, and once received become the property of The Daily Iowan. The right to edit or withhold letters is reserved and, of course, the opinions expressed do not necessarily represent those of The Daily Iowan.

TO THE DAILY IOWAN: "News Behind the News," Mr. Mallon's Tuesday column, was particularly provocative.

Mr. Mallon's hostility toward the U.S.S.R., his assumptions concerning the attitude of the Asiatic peoples and our encouragement of them against the Soviet Union, his reference to the economic use that could be made of a global armed force in attacking Russia, his comment on "the one mistake Hitler made"—these are obvious points for controversy.

Cohen's 'Resignation'

By PAUL MALLON (King Features Syndicate, Inc.) WASHINGTON — The "resignation" of Ben Cohen was hardly that.

The departure of the old Roosevelt brain-truster from his position as counselor of the state department was given out to the public somewhat enigmatically, as if anyone was permitted to attach his own interpretation with no flights of imagination barred.

In fact, on one paper I read it on the society page although it was not presented as a social note, but as a small news item which apparently did not fit elsewhere.

Nearly all the authentic inside stories agree on one explanation for the "resignation," namely this: Cohen made a speech on the west coast saying Europe should get $5 to $6 billions more a year from us for three to four years. This scared the decimal points out of the treasury people, including Treasury Secretary Snyder who knows Mr. Truman better than Cohen.

But it may have been an even greater surprise to the Europeans because a few weeks later all London anonymously asked for was $3 billions a year for three years, or rather that was the first figure to come out of their anonymous "experts examining requirements of the continent in the light of the Marshall proposal."

The newswriters here say privately Cohen may not have obtained an even break in justice on his speech.

But do not deduce from this set of inner circumstances that Cohen became angry and quit. His resignation is supposed to have been on President Truman's desk since Jimmy Byrnes resigned as state secretary.

Cohen was a Byrnes man. He had aided the former secretary with economic advice when Byrnes earlier had been national stabilizer. An insider, authoritative on this subject, has suggested Mr. Truman himself took up the resignation at this time in a polite way.

The announcement of the resignation was made after Marshall had been called to the White House by Mr. Truman. The natural implication that Marshall had something to do with the resignation directly may not be entirely warranted.

Marshall was consulted about a successor mostly, and he selected his own man to be his state department counselor in Cohen's place.

Marshall chose Charles E. (Chip) Bohlen, who has been functioning as counselor for a long time on the primary foreign policy, namely in fact, most state authorities agree Bohlen has been the real working level authority behind the development of the Russian and American policies.

The Russians were said (at the time the change was made), to be all set to circulate in this country a story that some relative of Bohlen's at some time was in the Krupp munitions works, and to make a big ado about Bohlen descending from the Von Bohlens who were "munitions barons."

No one thought enough of the story even to ask Bohlen about it, because it had nothing to do with the case. In ideological experience, Bohlen appears to have a background as possibly something of a Bill Bullitt man.

At any rate he went to Moscow first with Bullitt, when Bullitt was a sympathizer with communism, not knowing much about it.

After he (Bullitt) saw it in operation in Moscow, he withdrew and the book of his reconversion to normality was a best seller last year.

Bohlen is a career diplomat who learned by first hand experience, being stationed variously in Moscow as first secretary as late as 1943-44, and lately on the Russian desk in the state department.

He is a master of languages and one of the few top diplomats who knows Russian. He attended practically all the world conferences, and presumably met Marshall closely during them.

The Russians will have a hard time trying to deceive him, or anyone else concerning him.

He's Unreadjusted, Too. PEEKSKILL, N.Y. (AP)—Tige, a Boxer dog honorably discharged from the army K-9 corps, has been sentenced to confinement for life at home, under penalty of death if he is found unconfined, because the residents of his neighborhood felt the dog was a nuisance.

The dog's owner, Miss Charlotte Mishkind, protested yesterday that the sentence was unfair. She said the dog was as gentle as ever.

"He hasn't a pretty face and might be taken as mean," she said.

Tax Cut Unlikely Next Year, Too WASHINGTON—Legislative experts see that if the GOP tax reduction bill is revised next fall or spring, it will not have much chance of ever being enacted.

The crystal-ball gazers on Capitol Hill agree the four-billion dollar tax relief measure, which would cut personal income taxes 10.5 to 30 percent, reached the crest of its congressional strength on its second round through the mill and would poll less support next year.

There is a possibility the next session of congress will vote some reduction in taxes in an overall tax adjustment bill. Next year will be a presidential election year, and both Democrats and Republicans would like to throw the voters a little something.

However, with rivalry between the United States and Russia becoming more intense, and with government costs sure to rise, any out-and-out tax cut bill is almost certain to have tougher sledding in the coming months.

Flight Training for Veterans FLYING DOLLARS—The flying saucers which had the nation's eyeballs popping apparently are mythical, but the aviation industry is seeing flying dollars—the real thing, that is.

The recent increase in congressional appropriations for navy and army plane construction means rapid progress in the production of new transonic-type aircraft, and "Brick Bradford" planes more sensational than the famed flying saucers.

Airplane factories are all set to produce flying machines with low aspect ratio wings, swept wings and tails, and jet propulsion refinements.

Jet engine manufacturers are going all-out in anticipation of large orders from the army and navy. They are determined to outstrip the Russians, who are said to have accomplished wonders with the ME-262, a German twin-jet fighter.

Republic aircraft is grooming its P-84 for an assault on the world speed record of 623 miles per hour now held by the Lockheed P-80-R. Look for the Republic plane to attempt the record flight at Muroc Dry Lake, Calif., within the next six weeks.

More Trouble in Coalmines MINE FOREMEN IRKED—You can look for trouble among the coal mine foremen soon. John L. Lewis' new contract didn't take very good care of supervisory workers and they are resentful. One foreman's local already has voted to withdraw from the UMW.

Lewis could not do much on the foremen's issue this time because of the Taft-Hartley law's provision eliminating supervisors from coverage of the Wagner act.

Lewis did get an agreement, however, with the operators to screen out certain supervisors as eligible for UMW membership, but it may take weeks to get anywhere. In the meantime, the foremen are sore.

In the long run, however, all parties know full well the operators will not deal with a supervisors' union not affiliated with the UMW and the miners won't work with one. So the foremen ultimately will have to trail along with John L.

Schedule French Play Reading Today
 Marshall A. Flaum, A3, will read Jean-Paul Sartre's play "The Flies" in the auditorium of University theater at 4:10 this afternoon.

Flaum, who is majoring in speech and dramatic art, has appeared in recent productions at the University theater.

"The Flies" is a new telling of the ancient Greek story concerning Orestes' revenge for his father's murder. Sartre, a French playwright, uses this theme to expound his theories on existentialism.

Student Sports Shorts For Hot Weather Relief
 Bruce Weiser, A2, Ames, is one student who doesn't mind being the first to start a new fashion.

To combat the rising mercury and increasing humidity, Weiser came forth this morning attired in less-than-knee-length trousers, and he says they are really cool.

Weiser admitted that he had been the subject of many whistles and cat-calls and added, "It doesn't bother me one bit as long as I have relief from the heat."

Weiser also stated that his present garb is part of an equal-rights-for-men movement and hopes that others will discover the comfort of such clothing and follow suit.

Washington Man Fined For Drunken Driving
 William J. Wilson, Washington, Iowa, yesterday pleaded guilty in district court to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Arraigned on an information filed by County Attorney Jack C. White, Wilson was fined $300 and costs and had his driver's license revoked for 60 days.

Judge James P. Gaffney suspended half the fine and paroled Wilson to the sheriff for six months.

Under a new law which went into effect July 4, a person convicted of drunken driving automatically loses his permit to buy liquor, if he has one.

In pronouncing judgment yesterday, Judge Gaffney ordered that Wilson not be allowed to buy a liquor permit without consent of the court.

Wilson's attorneys were Swisher and Swisher.

Cut, Saw 24 Inch Tree in 3 Minutes

It took about three minutes to cut down a tree, 24 inches in diameter, and saw it into logs in a demonstration at the Virgil Bowers sawmill in Coralville yesterday afternoon.

The demonstration was part of a sawmill conference sponsored by the extension division of Iowa State college, Ames, in cooperation with Emmett C. Gardner, county extension director.

Representatives of Henry Dission & Sons, Chicago, and the Alan Supply company, Cedar Rapids, used a chain-saw to fell and saw the tree. This type saw is run by a motor and operated by two men, explained Campbell, Iowa State representative. It works much faster than the old cross-saw.

The purpose of the conference was "to aid in improving the quality of the lumber the sawmill producers send to the wood-using industries," said Campbell.

Call the Police? Not Needed for this Accident

O. A. White, 307 College court, said he "sorta" balanced things up on the boss's car" when he had an accident yesterday.

White, driving a 1947 car owned by G. P. Thomas, White's part-time employer, collided with another '47 model car driven by Jake Siler, West Branch. White said Thomas' car, carrying a damaged left front fender from a collision Tuesday, received damage to the right rear fender yesterday.

White said he was parking on College street 150 feet west of Linn street. Siler was pulling away from the curb.

White said Siler wanted to let the cars stay in position until a policeman arrived.

"That won't be necessary," White said.

He is a member of the Iowa City police force.

'Eyes, Eyes, Eyes—Measuring, Studying You Like a Tree'

Student Model Tells Sensations of Posing for University Artists

By FRANCIS CORRAL

How does an artist's model feel the first few days of work? The answer, "Self-conscious!" came from Dean Mayberry, journalism senior, on his second day of modeling in the university art department.

"Eyes, eyes, eyes—measuring, studying you. You feel like a rock or a tree being studied."

It is especially bad when the student-artists start "sighting" with their pencils. "Under ordinary circumstances," Mayberry declared, "when a person is self-conscious he can chew on some gum, light a cigarette, or move about. In modeling all this is out. You just sit and bear it."

With a tone of resignation he said: "But I'm getting used to it."

Perhaps the $1.40 an hour he is getting for modeling in bathing trunks is sufficient reward. Work (posing) is divided into periods of 25 minutes, with a rest period of 5 minutes in between. For tough poses (like when the weight of the body rests on one arm), he relaxes often to relieve the tension. Mayberry has three poses each morning, approximately two 25-minute sittings on each pose.

"After I have been sitting there for a while I begin wondering how they have portrayed me," Mayberry said. "You know, like when someone shoots a picture, you want to see it."

It is during the rest period that he looks at the drawings to determine how others see him, Mayberry said. A source of interest to the model is that "having the same model and using the same medium, the artists express themselves in such different ways," Mayberry added, "It makes me want to find out more about their personalities."

Time seems endless, when posing, he admitted. But also, it is a good lesson in self-discipline and control.

"When your arms feel like it's ready to break, sweat trickles down your spine, your nose begins to itch and you can't move—that discipline!" he said with a chuckle.

Many thoughts ramble through his mind while modeling. Do the artists notice the tenseness in his body? What time is it getting to be? Wouldn't it be nice to lie down under a shade tree? How did I do on that test?

But soon the artists put away their brushes and their paints and pack up their easels and go away. Then Mayberry can call it a day—until the following morning.

Tells Sports Project Aims

Helping parents meet medical expenses, and studying the causes of injuries received by students in high school athletics is the twofold purpose of an athletic insurance project discussed last night by Lyle Quinn, executive secretary of the Iowa High School association.

Quinn spoke in the senate chamber of Old Capitol before a group of men majoring in physical education. He explained that in such games as basketball and football, rules have been revised to insure the safety of the player. The new

Cool Drink Business Brings Cool Responses, But Gun-Funds Grow

"Sometimes people say 'no' and sometimes they say, 'no, thank you'."

That was yesterday's report on the sidewalk Kool-Aid business of Raymond Floerchinger, 9, and Haywood Belle, 8. The boys can be found any day now selling Kool-Aid and cookies in the shade of a huge black oil tank on the corner of South Madison and Burlington streets.

The boys are assisted by two small "barkers" — Marjorie Bell and Barbara Chapman. When a prospective customer approaches, one girl yells "Kool-Aid!" and the other yells "Cookies!"

With Kool-Aid selling for five cents and cookies for two cents, the boys netted "8c" the first afternoon. By noon yesterday they had taken in 65c. The boys plan to keep on in the business until they have $8—enough for two B-B guns!

As for the passers-by, "Sometimes they say 'No' and sometimes they say 'No, thank you,' Raymond reported. He added, "And sometimes they just walk on. You've been the longest customer of all!" he told the reporter.

rules are the result of research conducted by the athletic insurance project.

According to new basketball rules explained by Quinn, the ball is dead when the player goes down on one knee. Under the old rule, the player was allowed to continue in the game until he made a "four point landing." If this rule still existed, he explained, the possibility that the player might be injured would be greater.

Rent Decontrol Form Deadline Is Tonight

Three Iowa City hotels and seven tourist accommodation units had filed applications for rent decontrol when the rent office closed last night. A large number of establishments effected by the new housing and rent act have not yet filed the applications which must be in by midnight tonight.

Rent ceilings are removed for all hotels, motor courts and tourist homes if the proper forms are filed, Waldo F. Geiger of the Iowa City rent office said yesterday.

However, he pointed out that if the landlord does not file the application for decontrol, his rental accommodations remain under control.

Geiger said that blanks are available at the rent office. He added that applications postmarked before midnight tonight will be accepted.

SUI Testing Materials Used Throughout World

More than a million commercial standardized test materials have been distributed by the University of Iowa bureau of educational research during the past year.

The bureau, under the direction of Prof. Harry A. Greene, has distributed materials throughout the United States and to some dozen foreign countries for the year ending June 30.

Last spring the bureau distributed tests to 142 Iowa high schools in a senior survey during which 3,982 senior pupils were tested.

The tests, according to Prof. Greene, enable teachers to find out in which fields the pupils have difficulty and need additional study.

At Summer Concert

Premier of 'Envoy' a Success

By DICK DAVIS

Last night was the first performance of "Envoy" by William G. Blanchard.

In the cool main lounge of the Iowa Union the summer session chorus, directed by Herald I. Stark and assisted by the symphony orchestra, did great justice to a slightly tardy war-time selection. "Envoy" is a stirring number with a deep, combant, martial air. Combined, unfortunately, with a luke-warm text by Lieut. Theodore C. Agins which contained such nationalistic lines as, "We are the sons and daughters of America in uniform," the selection could have easily captured great public attention if placed on the market three years ago.

There was a deep and sincere feeling in the music that excited applause from an appreciative audience. Both the chorus and orchestra conducted ably by Stark performed the selection with all the feeling and emotion that is needed to carry a selection of this type. However, the fact remains that Blanchard, who came from Pomona, Calif. to hear his work, could easily rewrite the score to fit a Hollywood production. And with good effect.

If in the selection, "A Chant of Darkness" there were shades of Gustav Mahler's music, it can of "Darkness", Professor Clapp conlong a student of Mahler, used Mahler's style with utmost discretion and exciting results.

With the composer of "A Chant of Darkness", Prof. Clapp conducting his own work, there can be little question that the interpretation could be anything but what the composer wanted. At times the chorus was forced into obscurity by an over-zealous orchestra, but never did the chorus fail to carry the many intricate themes or give full value to the pulsating rhythms.

'Envoy' Premier Important to Composer

By OLIVE VAN HOUTEN

William Blanchard, musician, fireman and machinist, came to Iowa City Tuesday "by milk train" to be on hand for last night's premier performance of his own composition, "Envoy."

It is his first visit here and the orchestra-chorus performance of "Envoy" is "extremely important" to him.

"It's the first work for chorus and full symphony orchestra I've done," Blanchard explained.

He temporarily left his duties as head of the organ department at Pomona college, Claremont, Calif., and arranged for the care of his three young children, so he and his wife could make the special trip.

"We call it our anniversary trip," he said and explained that his 15th wedding anniversary was July 7.

Blanchard, who likes Iowa City because "it's typical of college towns," but who calls himself a "confirmed Californian," leaves for Claremont tomorrow.

Blanchard likes to drive the fire truck of his hometown volunteer fire department. One evening he raced to a fire in his tuxedo after hastily leaving a concert he was attending.

When not driving to fires he putters around in his home workshop completely equipped with power tools, or plays on the remodeled church organ set up in his living room.

Blanchard's interest in modern dance music stems from the days

Auto-Motorcycle Collision

William Novotny, 214 S. Clinton street, suffered minor cuts and bruises when the motorcycle on which he was riding collided last night with a car driven by Earl Gough, 315 N. Van Buren.

The accident occurred at the corner of College and Clinton streets at about 11:30 p.m.

Legion Auxiliary Gives $50 For Playgrounds

Fifty dollars for each of 20 playgrounds for children of married students will be donated by the Iowa department of the American Legion auxiliary.

Mrs. Lloyd Spencer announced yesterday that it was the state department of the Legion auxiliary that was donating the money, and not solely the Iowa City chapter.

Fences for the playgrounds in the housing areas have been ordered and the playground committee intends to have the playgrounds finished by the fall semester. The playgrounds will furnish supervised recreation for approximately 1,000 children of student couples at the university.
