

EL PASO, Texas (AP)—A big 4-motored American airlines flagship flipped over on its back momentarily while flying near El Paso yesterday, tumbling 48 frightened passengers to the ceiling of the plane before it was righted. Baggage and passengers scrambled back into their seats after the pilot, Capt. Charles Siston, righted the craft from the unexplained maneuver. No passengers were hurt seriously.

Safira Enacts Yacht Killing In Cuba Trial

Says Mee Beat Her, Threatened Murder During Love Quarrel

HAVANA, Cuba (AP)—Patricia Schmidt paled and appeared about to faint yesterday as she re-enacted before a Cuban court the fatal shooting of her lover, John Lester Mee, aboard his yacht Safira in Havana harbor last April.

At the request of Chief Judge Cristobal More she re-enacted the actual shooting, using the .22 calibre pistol with which she fired the fatal shot.

She admitted she had been intimate with Mee aboard the yacht, but said it was only after he had promised to marry her. The yacht was christened Safira, the name under which the exotic dancer appeared in Caribbean night spots.

She said she went aboard Mee's yacht in January, and did not learn until six weeks later that the former torpedo boat commander in the Pacific was already married. With that disclosure, she said, "our love began to break up."

She charged that Mee held her a "virtual prisoner" for six weeks aboard the Safira, and that in the quarrel which ended in the fatal shooting Mee had asserted "I am going to kill you" and had ordered her to leave the yacht.

Miss Schmidt's voice rose and she gestured in giving this account of events leading up to the shooting.

"I tried to get away. He hit me over the head, knocked me to the deck and kicked me."

"He told me to take my clothes and get off the boat. I began opening closets, throwing clothes together to take with me. Jack was furious. He said I could not take my dancing costume. I told him I had no money, must work, and must have costumes."

"Jack said he was going to sell my clothes. He said, 'I have changed my mind. I am going to kill you. You know too much about me.'"

"He started toward me. He reached for something, repeating he was going to kill me. I looked around and spied the pistol in the drawer. I picked up the gun. He started to get up from the bunk. I said, 'Jack, let me out of this room.'"

It was then the judge ordered the pistol brought into the court room, and asked Miss Schmidt to reenact the shooting.

Under questioning by the prosecutor she said she was first intimate with Mee "after we met in Havana" in January.

"My friendship with Jack Mee was not intimate until after he promised to marry me, and wrote me many love letters," she added. "He cabled me in Trinidad asking that I meet him in Havana."

DAVID DOWNEY and MOTHER

Downey's Wife Died From Strangulation, Trial Testimony Says

COLORADO SPRINGS (AP)—Dr. Henry W. Maly, El Paso county coroner testified yesterday that a 24-year-old war bride died of strangulation but conceded under cross examination that it might have been impossible for her to breathe while under shock from other injuries.

He made the statement as the state began presentation of evidence which Deputy District Attorney Roy Foard said would show that David A. Downey, 27, former University of Iowa student, killed his Czechoslovakian bride on a lonely mountain road. Downey, San Francisco accountant and air force veteran, is on trial on a charge of murder. A jury of 11 men and one woman was chosen yesterday.

Maly said Mrs. Downey's body bore superficial scratches and bruises, a wound on the back of the head not deep enough to cause death, and marks of discoloration on the wrists and throat. An autopsy disclosed pressure had been exerted on the larynx, he added.

Dr. Lawrence O. Haney, a former coroner, testified that "her death was an asphyxial death."

Distillers Discuss Two-Month Layoff

WASHINGTON (AP)—Chairman Charles Luckman of the citizens food committee last night forecast a nationwide 60-day shutdown of whiskey-making although a large segment of the distilling industry has not yet agreed to the proposal.

After a two-and-a-half-hour conference with representatives of 39 companies, Luckman announced that 18 had approved closing down, while the other 21 asked for time to consult their stockholders. He said he did not know what percentage of the national distilling industry was represented but that all the large companies had men present.

Luckman pointed out there were no dissents to the shutdown request made by the committee and the President.

Frisky Wheel Causes Fear, Fire, Wreck

A semi-trailer truck driven by Sanford Lisle, 311 Iowa ave., and loaded with 5,000 gallons of gasoline was cruising along U. S. Highway 6 near Davenport today when:

1. Unbeknown to Lisle, one-half of a double wheel parted company with the vehicle.

2. The wheel rolled a quarter of a mile before entering the open door of Chet's radiator shop, knocking over two 100-pound butane tanks and smashing fixtures.

3. "Duke," a dog owned by proprietor Chester Denkiau, howled like mad and dashed out, his tail between his legs. Denkiau quickly shut off the flow to the butane tanks when he saw them leaking.

4. W. H. Edwards, Dewitt, Ia., truck driver, eyeing the run-away wheel, slowed down. A car behind him, pulling a trailer, smashed into his vehicle and both vehicles went into a ditch. (No one was hurt, but the car, containing Roy and John Harvey of Wixom, Mich., and a small girl, was badly damaged.)

5. Lisle, still unaware of the commotion he had caused, went his merry way until the tire mate to the run-away wheel blew out.

6. While Lisle was telephoning for help, somebody shouted that the gasoline-laden truck was on fire. A bunch of people pooled their efforts to put it out. Damage was slight.

Iowa Historian Dies

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP)—Bartholomew L. Wick, 83, of Cedar Rapids, a Norwegian immigrant who became a prominent lawyer and historian, died in a Cedar Rapids hospital yesterday.

A graduate of the University of Iowa, he was president of the University of Iowa Alumni Association in 1899, and taught here two years before taking up the practice of law in Cedar Rapids in 1894.

Labor Leader Dies During AFL Convention

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Joseph A. Padway, general council of the American Federation of Labor, died of a stroke last night a few hours after collapsing during an address before the AFL's international convention.

The 56-year-old labor lawyer had just begun a speech attacking the Taft-Hartley law when the stroke occurred. He had been in ill health for about a year.

Files Paternity Charge

BLOND PATRICIA MILES has brought paternity action against John W. Meyer, party-riving press agent for Howard Hughes. She is shown as a cigarette girl at a New York City night club. Meyer, arrested early yesterday, was accused by Miss Miles as being the father of her eight-month-old son. After a brief visit to the Tombs prison, Meyer was freed on $500 bail. (AP WIREPHOTO)

North Liberty Man Kills Self

Willis Stutsman, 47, North Liberty farmer, about to lose his farm, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a 410-gauge shotgun yesterday afternoon, according to Dr. Frank L. Love, county coroner.

Neighbors found his body at 2:05 p.m. in the hayloft of the Stutsman farm about one mile east of North Liberty near the road to Lake Macbride. Mrs. Stutsman missed her husband at noon when he failed to come to lunch.

The coroner estimated that Stutsman had been dead about an hour when found. "Death was instantaneous," Love said.

"Stutsman has been depressed lately because he had to leave his farm and was worried about finding another one," Love stated. "He didn't leave any note that we've been able to find so far."

Stutsman is survived by his widow and a 12-year-old daughter. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Sees Hope for Europe

Farmer Says Grain Needed

Lady Astor is quite a gal. Queen Wilhelmina looked tired. Europe is ill, but Germany is the worst. That's an Iowan's view of Europe today.

William B. Davidson, one of a group of 22 Iowa farmers who flew to Europe Sept. 1, on an inspection tour landed at the Iowa City airport Tuesday night and reported, "The trip was enlightening, but too fast."

The Stanwood, Iowa, farmer has several suggestions as to what needs to be done in Europe. He has many impressions of the condition of Europe.

"Cut down U.S. livestock consumption of grain and send the grain to Europe," he said. Davidson is an extensive cattle feeder.

"The Marshall plan is sound and has got to work. We have to keep those people alive this winter so they can help themselves next year and from then on," he declared.

"Holland is trying and Belgium has everything on her shelves—for a price. The German people do not seem to know where to start to help themselves," he said.

The Dutch, Davidson stated, have cleaned up their country and are doing "their level best." Shortly after his visit with the "tired" Dutch queen, Wilhelmina announced she was turning over the government to younger hands.

Davidson contrasted the appearance of German miners and office girls. He described the latter as "listless" because of their slim diet. Of the miners, he said simply, "They eat!" Rations for the latter group are above that of other civilians.

However, there is much fresh meat on the farmers' tables in (See REPORT, page 7)

Western Drama in Windy City Leaves Cowpoke Very Dead

CHICAGO (AP)—In an action scene that could have been lifted from any movie "western," a cowboy was stabbed to death early yesterday, two of his partners were cut up and a knife-wielding Indian "went thataway."

The setting was the Roylton Hotel on Chicago's west side, near the Chicago Stadium. The boys were bunked up there for the Roy Rogers rodeo and nine of the troupe gathered in a room for a game of cards.

Detectives Tom McGuire and James Healy who do the shuffling in that section of town reviewed the action thus:

"The game was going along nicely until somebody said the pot was 'wrong.' Western tempers flared. Indian blood began to boil. Out of nowhere Okanogan Paul, 26, an Indian from Browning, Mont., flashed a knife.

There was a scramble but it was too late. The knife plunged into the heart of A. J. Greening, a trick rider from Mooringsport, La. Greening expended his strength in a race down a flight of stairs after the Indian.

At the next landing he collapsed against a wall and fell dead—with his boots on.

Two of Greening's pals, J. D. McKenna, 25, of Sheridan, Wyo., and Bill Lawrence, 19, of Boulder, Colo., went down fighting to cut off the Indian's flight. McKenna was cut in the abdomen and Lawrence on the right forearm.

Indian Paul, however, made good his getaway. His description—five feet ten, dark skin, dundagars, tan jacket, and of course boots.

UN Approves Border Watch For Balkans

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—The political committee of the United Nations assembly overrode bitter Russian objections late yesterday and approved a United States demand for a special U.N. Balkan border watch committee.

The vote on the special committee was 34 to 6. The Russian bloc voted solidly against it. Nine nations, including the Arab group and Sweden, Norway and Denmark, abstained.

The delegates put off temporarily a decision on the hottest part of the U.S. resolution—a section finding Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria responsible for helping Greek guerrillas.

The committee also approved a U. S. proposal that the assembly call on Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania to cooperate with the special committee. The vote on this section was 39 to 6, with 8 abstentions.

The balloting climaxed committee debate on the Greek-Balkan case which began Sept. 25. It came after Russian Chief Delegate Andrei V. Vishinsky charged that the U.S. was presenting an "ultimatum" to Bulgaria, Albania and Yugoslavia in the Balkans quarrel. He accused the U.S. of "cowardice" on this phase.

Earlier, a top American state department official was reported authoritatively yesterday to have told a United Nations delegate that the U.S. will favor a plan for partitioning Palestine "with perhaps a few modifications."

The delegate, who would not permit use of his name, said he was not informed on the nature of the modifications. He said his report on the U.S. position on Palestine was based on talks with officials in Washington.

An informed source said the United States might speak Friday or Saturday.

Quarterback Stassen Shifts Attack; Taft Sticks to Old Power

By R. BRUCE HUGHES Editor

DES MOINES—All the familiar antics of big time football were transferred to the speakers table here yesterday as Harold E. Stassen and Sen. Robert A. Taft shared the spotlight at a Republican rally.

Each rose and acknowledged the songs of their native states. Stassen boomed forth the words of "Minnesota, Hats Off to Thee."

Taft winced as the band stumbled badly through "Beautiful Ohio." But he didn't sing.

Even the referee was there in the person of Iowa Supreme Court Justice Norman A. Hays, who stepped to the middle of the political gridiron for the toss of the coin. This insured impartiality as to who spoke first.

It was tails and Taft kicked off on a sustained drive to garner Iowa supporters for his as yet unannounced presidential candidacy.

His attack wasn't very deceptive. He used good old sound Republican fundamentals—charging that the Democrats were controlled by the CIO and were bent on imposing bureaucratic regulations on the whole economy.

Stassen used a political "trick" information, mixing up his offense from the previous night's single-wing insistence on saving the country from socialism. This time on the passoff from the quarterback position he ran the ball for a "liberal, forward looking, humanitarian and worldwide viewpoint."

"Some people seem to be asking what all this means," Stassen said. "They do not seem to recognize that it means simply this: you are willing to hear us and we are willing to discuss the issues."

Taft said his recent Western trip convinced him that the "Republican trend is growing stronger every day and that the people are coming back from their wanderings in the primrose path of New Dealism."

The last congress, Taft said, accomplished (See TAFT, page 6)

Two Ex-Army Photographers Held in N. M.

FBI Arrests Now Total Five in Theft Of Atomic Secrets

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP)—Two former servicemen accused of stealing atomic secrets from the Los Alamos atomic project were arrested in New Mexico yesterday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Albuquerque field office of the FBI identified the men as Ernest Lawrence Paporello, 30, Albuquerque, and George Wellington Thompson, 38, Riverside, N. M., both former army photographers.

Paporello, described as an itinerant photographer, was taken into custody at an Albuquerque studio where the federal agents said he was employed prior to his arrest.

Thompson was arrested at his photographer's shop in Espanola, a community near Riverside.

Taken to Santa Fe, Thompson pleaded innocent to a charge which accused him of taking pictures on May 17, 1946, and pleading guilty to removing classified 35-millimeter negatives plus some unclassified photos from Los Alamos on Oct. 31, 1945.

In Albuquerque, Paporello's hearing was continued to next Monday to permit him to obtain counsel.

Paporello was accused in one count of taking six photographs containing classified information from Los Alamos on Aug. 12, 1945. A second count charged him with concealing them.

Both men were ordered held under $10,000 bond.

The arrests bring to five the number of persons who have been taken into custody in connection with the removal of documents relating to the atom bomb and atom experiments.

The FBI said Thompson was in charge of the photographic laboratory at Los Alamos until Sept. 10, 1945, when he received an honorable discharge.

FBI director J. Edgar Hoover said Paporello was employed at the Los Alamos project during most of a three-year service with the army and was honorably discharged March 7, 1946, with the rank of staff sergeant.

"Both men were attached to the photographic laboratory during the period he first atomic bomb was developed and subsequently detonated at Alamogordo, N. M.," the FBI said.

The justice department said Paporello had been arraigned before a United States commissioner at Albuquerque, and that his case had been continued until Oct. 13. Thompson was scheduled for arraignment before a U. S. commissioner at Los Alamos yesterday.

Headington Back, Set for Duty

Hawks Shift Backfield for Hoosier Game

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull

So the football season's over, huh? Your team has played three games but now there's no use fighting anymore—heck, they weren't as good as they were supposed to be anyway, you say.

They were red-hot in their first game. It was going to be a great season... possible Rose Bowl bid. Aw, that UCLA game was pretty bad but just wait until Illinois gets here. The Illini came and left... then the Monday morning quarterbacks began to shout their wrath.

To walk across campus and hear anyone talking about football is the exception rather than the rule. "Is the Iowa football team still practicing?" you ask. "I don't know what for."

But, you know it's strange. The Iowa football team is still practicing and they don't have any inclination of quitting as so many of their buddies have. And if they're still working and sweating, there is no reason why the student body shouldn't be behind them. They're representing your school.

For two successive weekends they battled against two of the finest units in the country, the two teams that played in the 1947 Rose Bowl game. And it's common consensus that the Illinois football team this fall is better than they were last year.

True, Indiana will be the favorite this Saturday. But the Western conference plays no favorites—if they did, Dr. Eddie would call Coach Bo McMillan and say, "Well, Bo, you're listed as the winner Saturday, 28-12. So there's no use bringing your team to Iowa City."

Letting your team down now could mean a collapse for the rest of the season—a collapse which isn't necessary just because they lost to last year's Big Nine champions: Iowa still has a better than average chance in the rest of their conference games.

McMillan will bring a good Indiana team into Hawkeyeland, there is no doubt about that. They proved their mettle against Nebraska and their tie score against Wisconsin hardly tells the story.

The Hoosiers had a tremendous edge of 21-4 in first downs against the Badgers and outrushed them 404 yards to 174. Other than that, Indiana controlled the ball on 78 occasions as compared to 39 for Wisconsin.

When a sports scribe remarked to Wisconsin Coach Harry Stuhldreher after their Hoosier tilt that the "Badgers were still unbeaten and unbowed," the Badger mentor immediately replied... "but not unscared."

SIDELINE SIDELIGHTS

Dr. Eddie's teams lead Bo McMillan's teams 4-1 in their series so far... The one Hoosier win came in 1940 at Bloomington, 10-6... Iowa ranks fourteenth in the nation and second among conference teams in forward passing offense this year... In 52 attempts the Hawks have completed 25 for 431 yards...

Eight radio stations will broadcast the game Saturday... Included among the stations are WTOM and WSUA, both of Bloomington...

With the basketball court finally in shape and the new glass backboards—regulation for the conference this year—finally on the hook, Coach Pops Harrison gave his hawkie cagers their first real workout yesterday afternoon... Basketball news also comes from New York City... Ned Irish has already booked and announced a schedule of 29 shows for Madison Square garden—and hardly any public sale for them... All are doubleheaders except Notre Dame-NYU March 1.

East Waterloo At Valley Top

After four weeks of Mississippi Valley conference play, East Waterloo is still at the top of the loop with three wins and no losses.

West Waterloo and Clinton, the only other undefeated teams in the conference, are tied for second in the conference race, each with two victories and no defeats. Iowa City high's Little Hawks, who are in third place with three loop wins and only one defeat, have a chance to gain a firmer grip on the third place position when they tangle with Dubuque high on Sharder field Friday night.

Two other conference affairs are on the docket this week. McKinley high and their city rivals Roosevelt high clash at Cedar Rapids, and Davenport's Blue Devils entertain Clinton's River Kings at Davenport Friday evening.

The standings:

East Waterloo	3	0
West Waterloo	2	0
Clinton	2	0
Iowa City	3	1
Dubuque	2	1
Davenport	1	2
Wilson	1	2
Rosewell	0	3
Franklin	0	3
McKinley	0	3

Last week's results:
Iowa City 12, McKinley 0
Dubuque 13, Mason City 13
Clinton 7, St. Ambrose 6
West Waterloo 14, Ft. Dodge 0
East Waterloo 19, East Des Moines 7
East Moline 13, Davenport 12
Wilson 6, Franklin 0

NEW YORK (AP)—Notre Dame, Michigan and Texas are the big three in college football at this early stage of the 1947 campaign in the opinion of more than a hundred sports writers who voted yesterday in the first Associated Press poll of the season to select the top ten teams.

Although both Michigan and Texas sport more impressive records than Notre Dame, the experts placed Coach Frank Leahy's Fighting Irish at the top of the list on the strength of their 40-6 triumph over Pittsburgh in their only performance to date.

Notre Dame also held the No. 1 position in the final poll of 1946, breaking Army's two-year grip on that distinction, and the writers demonstrated their faith in Leahy's ability to build another national champion by reserving the top spot for his South Bend club.

Fifty-two of the 103 writers participating in the first of the season's weekly polls gave Notre Dame their first-place votes and 24 others ranked it second. The Irish were listed on every ballot except one and were no lower than sixth on any of them.

Standings of the first ten (first-place votes in parentheses):

Team	Points
1-Notre Dame (52)	883
2-Michigan (29)	857
3-Texas (15)	790
4-Georgia Tech (3)	542
5-Army (1)	533

Ron Headington, recently returned from his honeymoon in Chicago, will probably move into the first string fullback position when the Hawkeyes step on the line against Indiana in the 36th annual Homecoming Saturday.

Rumors in regards to Headington's whereabouts were stopped late Tuesday when the Decorah lefty returned from Chicago and announced that he had been on his honeymoon. He had been married four hours before the Iowa game with Illinois last Saturday.

With Headington in a first string job, Fullback Bob Smith will shift over to the vacated right halfback spot left by a corps of injury-riddled players. Rounding out the first string will be Lou King at quarterback and Em Tunnell at left half.

One other possibility in the starting backfield would see Johnny Tedore, converted left half, change to right halfback with Smith staying at full.

Two other backs who should see more than a little duty against the Fighting Hoosiers are left half Bob Longley and Fullback Bob Reynolds. The two injured right halfbacks, Bud Kaisershot and Duke Curran, are doubtful even as reserves.

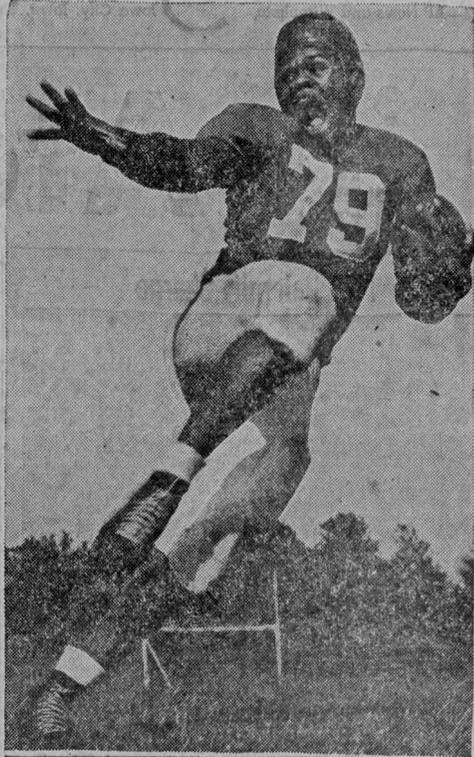

The line will be the same as started against Illinois with the possible exception of Herb Shoener gaining a first string right end spot from Tony Guzowski.

George Connor Ready For Irish-Purdue Tilt

SOUTH BEND, IND., (AP)—George Connor, left tackle and captain of the Notre Dame football team, resumed contact work yesterday for the first time since he injured his ankle two weeks ago and was expected to be ready to start against Purdue Saturday.

Trainer Hugh Burns said that barring further injuries this week the squad would be in top condition for Purdue.

The freshmen ran Purdue plays against the varsity yesterday as coach Frank Leahy worked on a defense against the passes of Bob DeMoss, Purdue pitching ace.

GEORGE TALIAFERRO, shown in a typical pitching mood, is Indiana's chief threat to Iowa's Hawkeyes in the Homecoming meeting of the two teams in the Iowa stadium Saturday afternoon.

Taliaferro Comes to Town

Hoosiers Bring One of Big Nine's Best—And Two Star Pass-Catchers Along With Him

There's a rumor floating around the middle west this week—a rumor about the weaknesses to be found in the pass defense of Iowa's football Hawkeyes.

And there's another rumor that a fine old gent named Bob McMillin is planning to take full advantage of this alleged fault in the Iowa defensive armour.

Mr. McMillin, who happens to be head football coach of Indiana's Hoosiers, will bring three experts at the passing profession into Iowa City this Saturday for a scheduled gridiron date with the local Hawkeyes.

Top on the Hoosier passing parade is young George Taliaferro, freshman sensation of 1945. George, who was in the service last fall, was more noted for his fancy ball carrying than his pitching ability in '45, but with the famed Hurling Hoosier, Ben Raimondi, now out of Indiana's gridiron picture, Taliferro has taken over the front line pitching duties.

In 1945 Taliferro completed 10 of 19 tosses as the Hoosiers dashed to a Big Nine championship. And this fall he's expected to keep up the same .500-plus pitching average with a greatly increased number of tosses.

The other two pass experts are a pair of ends with very sticky fingers, Bob Ravensberg and Lou Mihajlovich.

Ravensberg, another star of the '45 Hoosiers who was absent from the Indiana campus last fall, is one of the country's greatest ends. He was the leader, the "heart and spirit" of the championship team.

And in '45 Mr. Ravensberg caught 12 passes for 128 yards and

Frosh Grid Squad Cut in Half; Future Hawk Stars Sighted

By JOE NOBLE
The rapidly diminishing freshman squad nursed early-season bumps and bruises following Monday's 30-minute scrimmage. Approximately half of the original group of over a hundred remain as the competition increases.

Coach Pat Boland saw hopes for future Hawk material among the five teams participating in the frosh brawl and promising linemen were revealed. This in itself is encouraging because it seemed that the first week's turnout consisted of 97 potential ball-carriers and one lone center.

Glenn Hope Jr., Iowa City, and Richard Green, Quincy, Ill., performed well at center positions. Lester Happ of Northbrook, Ill., manned one tackle post and the big boy was a defensive standout. Delbert Perrin played his last football five years ago, but the chunky guard from Cherokee roughed up plenty of plays before a rib injury forced him to the sidelines.

Ottumwa's Jerry Long lived up to his pre-SUI record and commanded attention with his offensive and defensive abilities. The rangy end who received high school football and basketball has the speed and power necessary for Big Nine competition.

Backfield runners sparkled throughout the contest and none stood out more than Brooklyn's Jerry Faske. The speedy New Yorker proved his all-American high school rating with several runs of the long variety, and he included some completed south-paw heaves in his right halfback demonstration. Al Hollingsworth of East Waterloo ran the ends ragged, scooted through openings in the line, and, when threatened, unloosed passes that found their targets.

Jim Sangster, Iowa City; Glenn Drahn, Monona, and Tom Pherston, Minneapolis, rose above the rest of the quarterbacks and took turns directing the attacks. Davenport's Joe Paulsen remains the No. 1 fullback, and his battering tactics haven't changed.

According to Boland, conditioning still leaves something to be desired. As he viewed the depleted ranks of his outfit yesterday he remarked that "every shoulder bruise turns out to be a separation, and every body bump becomes a broken rib."

Hoosier Chick Jagade Confined to Hospital

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., (AP)—Chick Jagade, first string fullback on Indiana's football team, went to the university infirmary with an attack of tonsillitis last night.

Loss of Jagade would leave Indiana virtually without experienced line backers, as Quarterback Rex Grossman has an ankle injury and a stiff neck and may not even make the trip to Iowa City for the Iowa game Saturday.

the starting lineup this weekend, but will very definitely see plenty of action at right halfback. And all that he did in a pass catching way a year ago was to grab off 19 tosses for an amazing 232 yards.

In their last two games the Hawks have yielded 20 pass completions in 40 of their opponents attempts and a total of 251 yards. All of which promises a very full afternoon for Taliaferro and company.

Tailfeathers Seek Badge Sales Record

Hotel Accommodations By Reservation Only; Waiting Lists Long

Get out that old thin dime and have it ready because there are seventy-five wild and woolly Tailfeathers members waiting outside your door ready to pounce on you.

Today is the first Homecoming badge sales day. Starting at 7:30 this morning it isn't going to be safe to walk the streets without a homecoming badge pinned to your jacket or sweater, pep club members promise.

In fact it has become so dangerous that Prof. Louis C. Zopf, chairman of the Homecoming committee, reports he has received many requests for the badges from alumni who have learned the hard way.

Tailfeathers, split into two competing teams, the "blacks", led by Alvis Stevenson, and the "golds", by Porter Burrets, are out to tag every man and woman who dares to walk about without a replica of the dome of Old Capitol pinned to his chest.

They're out to set a sales record before sales end game time Saturday.

Meanwhile, as badges begin to appear in the city and on the campus, both townspeople and the university continue preparations for the coming weekend highlighted by the Iowa-Indiana Homecoming football game.

A check of seven Iowa City hotels revealed "no vacancies." The Burkley said it had a reserved list in case of cancellation "as long as from here to the city hall," while the Jefferson said it hasn't had an unreserved room for the weekend for several months.

Police Chief Ed Ruppert said that at least 14 highway patrolmen will be on hand to handle the expected record crowd of returning alumni, students and friends who will begin streaming into the city Friday. The officers' main job will be to direct traffic before and after the game, he added.

Tenor To Sing for Woman's Club Tea

Robert Raven, C3, will be the featured tenor soloist at the autumn tea sponsored by the music department of the Iowa City Woman's club this afternoon.

The tea will be held at 2:30 in the club rooms of the community building.

Raven appeared as the tenor soloist with the university chorus when it presented Handel's "Messiah" last December.

He will present a program of Russian and English music including: "A Spirit Flower," by Campbell-Tipton; "A Brown Bird Singing," by Haydn-Wood; "Ah, Moon of My Delight," by Liza Lehmann; "Bird Songs at Eventide," by Eric Coates; "Think on Me," by Alicia Ann Scott; "Twenty-Third Psalm," by Malotte; "Were You There," by Burleigh; "There is a Ladye," by Bury; "None but the Lonely Heart," by Tchaikovsky; and "O Dry Those Tears," by Del Riego.

Mrs. G. W. Buxton will accompany Mr. Raven.

A talk on "English and Russian Music" will be presented by Mrs. W. T. Goodwin. Hostesses for the afternoon are Mrs. Charles Beckman, Mrs. Merton Tudor, Mrs. Karl Kringle, and Mrs. P. J. Donnelly.

Pickers Needed To Harvest Apple Crop

Pickers are needed immediately to harvest a 1,800-bushel apple crop in an Iowa City orchard, Mrs. J. H. Verdin, acting manager of the Iowa state employment service, said yesterday.

Mrs. Verdin said an indefinite number of both full and part-time workers can be used.

In other Iowa City businesses, waitresses, taxi-drivers and cooks are needed. Both University and Mercy hospitals are asking for nurses in a field. The month-old shortage of construction laborers continues.

Although many students are looking for work, the majority cannot work the evening hours which both waitresses and nurse-maid jobs demand, Mrs. Verdin said.

Mrs. Verdin, interviewer with the employment office for several years, was appointed this week as acting manager of the office until a permanent manager is named. E. E. Kline, former manager, left last week for a position in the social security office in Des Moines.

Religious Emphasis Week Plans Started

Planning for Religious Emphasis week, an annual event sponsored by the University Student Christian council, is under way. Bob Braschares, A4, chairman of the week, and Marilyn Wate, Danforth graduate fellow, acting executive secretary are directing the work.

They have presented plans to the advisory board, a group of university pastors and denominational student workers.

Each student church group will sponsor a speaker here for public addresses and informal seminars during Religious Emphasis week, which is scheduled for February 8-13.

M. Willard Lampe, head of the school of religion, said that the university vesper committee will sponsor a speaker at the opening convocation Feb. 8.

Students To Battle Grads at Hockey

The traditional alumni-student Homecoming hockey game will be played at 9:30 Saturday morning on the women's athletic field, Elizabeth Halsey, women's athletic director, announced yesterday.

Jean Bontz, president of the Alumni association will lead her group against the girl's hockey club under Lavonne Stock, president.

After the game the annual business meeting of the alumni organization will take place in the social room of the women's gymnasium, Miss Halsey said.

Under the law of Great Britain, the "queen consort" is a subject of her husband.

Reversing the Fashion Trend

COEDS, TAKE HEED! If you'd like a look of approval like this one by James (Buzzie) Ryerson better take a lesson from 2½-year-old Nancy Botkin. Buzzie, like so many males 20 years his senior, obviously finds Nancy's plaid skirt more to his liking than the downward trend fashion designers have given her older sisters in fashion. Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Botkin and Buzzie, the son of the Frank Ryerson's. Both live in Hawkeye Village.

Prof. Van Zwoll To Attend Iowa And Ohio Parleys

Prof. J. A. Van Zwoll of the college of education will attend three Iowa and one Ohio educational conferences this month. He will speak at two of these meetings.

As the only Iowa representative, he will attend the national council on schoolhouse construction in Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 10-13. Educators from the entire country will discuss the future of education in America with special emphasis upon school building planning.

New developments in heating and lighting will be given as present standards for schoolhouse construction are examined.

An address on accounting for public school funds will be given by Van Zwoll at the School Secretaries association meeting in Des Moines, Oct. 16. The meeting will be state-wide.

At another meeting in Des Moines, Oct. 16-17, he will be one of the sectional chairmen for the Iowa Association of School Boards and School Administrators. Panel discussion on planning and construction of school buildings will be conducted by Van Zwoll.

"School Buildings, Grounds and Equipment," will be the topic of Van Zwoll's address at the Iowa Community Development workshop. He will represent the educational division of the group as it correlates with the community, and will be consultant on a panel discussion of school buildings. The meeting will be Oct. 20-21 in Des Moines.

Van Zwoll has taken over school consultation duties formerly held by Dean E. T. Peterson.

To Hold Open House In Journalism Offices

Newspapermen and radio men throughout the state will be guests Saturday from 10 a. m. until game time at an open house in the journalism offices of East Hall.

Hosts will be the school of journalism faculty and Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi, honorary fraternities for men and women in journalism.

The function will include "doughnuts, coffee and conversation" according to Prof. Leslie Moeller, director of the school. The newsmen will be conducted on a tour of The Daily Iowan newsroom and photography dark-rooms.

trip committee will be returned to the University of Iowa athletic department for sale, according to Heckt.

It's Murder With a Laugh—

Hangs "The Bat" From Its Heels

By JACK O'BRIEN

Well, let's face it—even a false charm can produce its own quaint charm.

Marian Galloway unleashed "The Bat" on an unsuspecting University theater audience last night and all hell broke loose—both on stage and in the audience.

In a production that would have made any high school dramatic department green with envy, a play that was so bad it should have been horrible turned out to be the most hilarious thing to occur on this campus in many a season.

"The Bat" must be, unquestionably, one of the worst plays that has ever been written. It has every stock character, every production cliché and some of the most incredible dialogue to ever disgrace any stage in any day.

Here in one play of three fantastic acts you will find:

1. The eccentric but likable old lady trying desperately hard to be shocking while saying nothing that wouldn't sound saccharine in the mouth of Aunt Harriet's 3-year-old imbecilic niece.
2. The cigar smoking detective who bungles.
3. The Japanese house servant who grins.
4. The hysterical, stupid maid who screams.
5. The lovely blonde ingenue and her pure but poor lover. (He didn't really steal the money, etc., etc.) They're all there but the suspicious butler and he'd be there too only he quit the night before, which proves he was as sane as he would have been suspicious.

In addition, you will be chilled and fascinated by such radical devices as static—y thunder, blinding lightning flashes and the inevitable note wrapped around the inevitable stone thrown through the inevitable French windows.

I was a little shocked by the novelty of a blue-print hidden in a dinner roll and a brilliantly moonlit third scene when the thunder was still rumbling incessantly (I finally decided the lightning effect just got stuck), but you may have run across these before.

It struck your reviewer that most of the dialogue had almost nothing to do with the action it accompanied, but this must have occurred to the wary writers also because they kept repeating every phrase into deathless recollection. I counted at least 13 references to a hidden room, and "She knows more than she's telling" was repeated so frequently it sounded like number one on the Hit Parade.

As for the rest of the dialogue, here are some representative samples (believe me):

"If you're going to find The Bat you'll have to stop combing the underground and look higher."

"You're a pretty good actor, Bat, for such a bad actor."

"I may be dazed but my mind's all right."

And, following a deafening knock: "Someone's at the door!"

When someone first mentions a hidden room, the ingenue looks anxiously about and says . . .

"Where?" And when someone else says, "People have been trying to break in all week," the detective queries anxiously: "What sort of people?"

There's also a reference to existentialism that was obviously dragged in by the heels but then—so was the corpse.

To give all this hysteria just the pace it needed, Miss Galloway maintained the same breakneck, speedway style of direction which she has used previously, but to less advantage.

This cast didn't rehearse, IT TRAINED. The women all wear skirts slit to the knee to keep from cracking a clavicle and the men all wear sneakers—or should. Right on stage of our little theater lies the answer to Dr. Anderson's quest for a speedy backfield. Too say this play is fast paced is a masterpiece of understatement. I would like to mention members of the cast specifically because all of them keep a straight face and none show signs of fatigue, they all rate cheers.

This comedy should answer once and for all the age-old question of which is funnier—intentional or unintentional humor. The lines that Miss Rinehart designed to be funny fall like corpses—all over the place. But the unintentional double entendres, situations and slip-ups are side-splitting.

As for who the murderer is (if anyone cares), I won't tell, but . . . keep your eyes on the guy with the Groucho Marx crouch. Only you'll have to be fast.

The average American uses more than eight pencils a year.

Second Atom Series Talk By Glockler

Prof. George Glockler, head of the university chemistry department, will give the second in the atomic energy lecture series tonight when he speaks on "Some Basic Concepts of Atom Structure."

The lectures tonight and a week from tonight, both by Glockler, will attempt to explain some fundamentals of atomic energy "so everyone is able to understand them," said Prof. J. I. Routh, associate professor in biochemistry and organizer of the course.

Routh said, "that this atom energy series is aimed for the average thinking adult." It should not be mistaken for a highly scientific course in atomic theory, he added.

He added that Glockler's lecture will be accompanied by illustrations—slides and samples—and will be followed by a discussion period open to questions from the audience.

Routh pointed out that Glockler's extensive work in research on atomic structure and experience in electron bombardment makes him a good choice to lecture on fundamental atomic concepts.

The first meeting in the atomic energy lecture series last Thursday drew an audience of more than 400 for the showing of the movie "Operation Crossroads" which depicted the Bikini atom bomb tests.

Tonight's talk on the primary scientific considerations of atomic energy will mark the beginning of weekly discussions of the scientific, social and economic aspects of atomic power.

The series, consisting of one-hour meetings on Thursday evenings throughout the semester, will feature speakers from the university departments of science, sociology and economics.

Election Called for Co-op Store Heads

An election for a new board of directors for the married student's cooperative store will be held at 7:30 p. m., next Monday, in conference room 2, Iowa Union, Robert Riggs, president, announced yesterday.

All shareholders are asked to be present. General business of the cooperative will be discussed, Riggs said.

3 Professors To Teach Retailers' Short Course

Three university faculty members will conduct classes for an eight-week retailers' short course at Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Oct. 13 to Dec. 1.

Professor Carl B. Strand and Wendell R. Smith of the college of commerce, and Prof. Philip W. Burton of the school of journalism and college of commerce will lecture retail employees from Cedar Rapids and Iowa City.

Purpose of the course, sponsored jointly by the Cedar Rapids Chamber of Commerce and Coe college, is to aid retail salespeople in becoming better employees.

Anyone interested in attending the short course should contact Robert L. Gage, secretary of the Iowa City chamber of commerce.

'Afternoon Relaxers' Slated By Wesley

The first of a series of "afternoon relaxers" is scheduled by Wesley foundation, Methodist student group, for today at 3:30 p. m.

"Communism" will be discussed at the open meeting.

Tonight the Wesley players will meet at 7:30 to discuss a program of study and presentation. Players President Carrol Houser, A2, will preside at the open meeting. At the same time, an open house for all other students is scheduled at the Methodist church.

Methodist students will have supper at the student center after the Iowa-Indiana game Saturday. Reservations may be made for their families and friends by calling 3753.

The production of a pound of beef requires directly or indirectly between 15 and 30 tons of water.

Governor, Lawmakers To Attend Homecoming

Governor Robert D. Blue will head the list of state officials attending the University of Iowa Homecoming festivities in Iowa City this weekend.

Congressmen who plan to attend are James I. Dolliver of Fort Dodge, Paul Cunningham of Des Moines, Karl M. Le Compte of Corydon, John W. Gwynne of Waterloo, Henry O. Talle of Decorah, and Thomas E. Martin of Iowa City.

Other visiting state officials will include senators and representatives to the state legislature, members of the board of control, and supreme court judges.

Iowa Citizens To Attend 4-State Women's Parley

Five Iowa Citizens will attend a four-state regional conference of the League of Women voters in Minneapolis today and tomorrow.

International trade problems will be discussed at the session, according to Joyce Nienstedt, local league publicity director. The conference is sponsored by the national league headquarters.

Representatives from Iowa City are Mrs. E. L. DeGowin, president of the state league; Elizabeth Halsey, president of the local chapter; Mrs. William Porter, Mrs. John Bradbury and Mrs. R. W. Iverson.

 —"Skitch" Henderson's Newest Disc for Capitol

It's obvious "Skitch" has had plenty of experience in tickling those ivories, and he follows that experience rule in smoking too. "I smoked many different brands and compared," says "Skitch." "My choice from experience is Camel."

Try Camels. Compare. Let your own experience tell you why more people are smoking Camels than ever before!

How to Lose a Vacation

If a special session of congress is called to legislate on the needs of Europe, it will be because congress itself made this action necessary at the session ended in July.

New legislation which could conceivably be asked by President Truman falls into two categories: foreign and domestic.

Foreign legislation would concern direct aid to Europe. The domestic aspect would involve controls at home—over production, inventories, allocations, perhaps prices.

In each, congressmen at the last session tied the President's hands on the principle that changes in the American system of government made necessary by war should be ended with the coming of peace.

If it weren't for the action taken by congress in its first session this year, additional funds for Europe could well have been extended through the export-import bank, or the reconstruction finance corporation, or both.

An act of July 31, 1946, increased the lending authority of the export-import bank for reconstruction loans from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000.

By March 31 this year, foreign commitments of the bank had reached $2,689,000,000. On June 9—when export-import's commitments had come still closer to the limit—congress extended the bank's life to 1953, but denied it any increase in lending authority.

Congress knew the new international bank was expected to begin functioning in the 1948 fiscal year. But the international bank is empowered to make only loans in the category of good risks.

Also, the part of the international bank's total funds which is available for loans is undoubtedly far inadequate for Europe's present economic needs.

On March 31, 1947, the reconstruction finance corporation had foreign loans and commitments of $298,000,000.

In extending its life until June 30, 1948, congress this year directed the RFC to liquidate its outstanding loans and security holdings as quickly as possible, to limit its new commitments to a total of $2,000,000,000, and to make no new loans to any foreign government.

The administration asked congress for $725,000,000 for military government and civilian relief costs in the American occupation zones.

This sum was not expected to suffice for the whole fiscal year; supplementary appropriations would be asked later. Congress appropriated $600,000,000.

This sum was not expected to suffice for the whole fiscal year; supplementary appropriations would be asked later. Congress appropriated $600,000,000.

The army now wants assurance from congress that an additional grant will be made for the occupation zones—especially inasmuch as the United States will evidently soon have to take over much or most of the British occupation zone costs.

The administration asked congress also for $350,000,000 for direct relief for foreign countries. Congress first authorized the full amount—later appropriated $332,000,000.

The second war powers act gave the President wide powers to allocate materials and facilities.

President Truman asked that this power be in general continued, but in two decontrol acts of 1947, congress continued the Presidential allocation power only over freight cars and certain commodities valuable for export under the nation's foreign policy.

Congress ignored the President's request that he be given authority to re-establish the lapsed controls in event of "a national emergency that we do not now foresee."

Thus, congress made itself the only group capable of meeting the crises drawing closer daily, and at the same time may have cheated itself out of some needed vacation.

Taft, Stassen Play Gridiron Politics

Completed four major things.

"We ended the war by eliminating all the war-born government regulations except a few that had to be retained; such as rent control and export control.

"We cut down government expense by about $3,000,000,000 a year.

"We went all out to reduce taxes but the President vetoed the two bills we passed.

"We restored freedom and equality in labor regulations, basing our whole plan upon a system of free collective bargaining."

Taft, who was co-author of the Taft-Hartley Labor act, said it was significant that the Republicans in congress, despite differences of opinion, had been able to function as a party unit on fundamental questions.

Stassen reported that his recent trips across the country convinced him "there is a rising tide of public opinion" toward a Republican victory in November, 1948.

He said his views appeared to be more liberal than Taft's on domestic and world policies but he counted it as an "honor to share the platform with him."

He declared the blending of "liberal positions with conservative attitudes" was "one of the great strengths" of the Republican party and that this had been exhibited in the final shaping of the new labor law which he predicted would result in fewer strikes and less loss of production.

Stassen said the Republican national convention next year should oppose any further restrictions on labor not contained in the Taft-Hartley act, should be vigorous in its opposition to monopoly, should oppose centralized agriculture and should present sound proposals on health and housing.

He said that would still leave

$2 billion available for reduction of the national debt.

"I believe that the very existence of the present tax burden is a serious threat to the continuation of our system," he explained.

Taft declared that the tax burden, if high enough, must lead directly to socialism.

"When congress returns to Washington, tax reduction should be one of its first considerations.

Before the speech yesterday morning, Taft and Stassen breakfasted as guests in the hotel suite of W. H. Brenton, president of the Iowa Bankers association.

"Happy to see you looking so well," Stassen greeted Taft.

"Very glad to see you," Taft replied, as the two men sat down to breakfast.

The two Republicans showed signs of friendly rivalry. Stassen commented on Taft's recent trip and Taft told how long he had been on the road.

Afterwards, they look up the job of meeting various delegations in their respective attempts to win Iowa delegates.

Then Taft held a press conference in which he indicated at least partial difference with one of Stassen's earlier press statements.

Stassen told his press conference Tuesday morning that he was progressing very favorably in getting second choice votes among Taft delegates.

When asked about that, Taft replied, with a grin:

"I haven't any delegates."

About that time the conversation veered from politics and international relations to the length of women's shirts.

A young girl reporter from a Des Moines high school asked Taft if he had any views as to

AS PEGLER SEES IT

Morals Lose to Money

By WESTBROOK PEGLER (King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NEW YORK—At the end of the first big war there was so little territory left in the United States in which prize-fighting and racing were permitted that one could say that these old, disorderly pleasures had been reduced to little pockets of resistance.

Prize-fighting had been illegal even in Chicago, which always has been a tough town, ever since 1906 or thereabouts.

I am not a buck ingenue, myself. As a scrawny little sprout in Excelsior, Minn., I had goggled at the scratchy, flickering movies of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight taken in Carson City, Nev., in 1897.

Incidentally, this fight had been chivally all over the wild and woolly west of that day because the hardy frontiersmen regarded it as an obscene proceeding, and a retreat toward the twilight of the dawn of civilization.

It finally landed in Carson City when the governor of Nevada gave it refuge for the sake of the money it would attract, but with something of the air of the minister who buried the actor from the little church around the corner.

George Siler, the referee, whose name appeared over the story of the fight in the Chicago Tribune, said with a note of taunting pride, that many persons of wealth and distinction were seen at the ringside.

Reading this piece about the time of the second of the Tunney-Dempsey spectacles in Chicago, in 1927, I was impressed by the excellence of Mr. Siler's journalism and nicely surprised, too, because I had never regarded him as a man implicated in beautiful letters.

But Jack Curley, a versatile voluptuary and a kind man, told me that, actually, he had written this article and others by Mr. Siler and much more about that quaint event in the desert frontier which is simply lost now because nobody ever took the trouble to put it down.

The ringside seats were $50, a spectacular price and never to be equalled, I believe, until Jess Willard won or by other process acquired the heavyweight championship from Jack Johnson in Havana in 1915.

Mr. Curley promoted that offense against our continental culture.

These were old films of Corbett-Fitzsimmons which toured the little circuit of fire-trap town halls and they were very advanced entertainment.

The programs otherwise were magic-lantern shows. My acquaintance with the fight picture came about the winters of 1902 and 1903.

The emulsion was flaking off by then and the gladiators under the desert sun looked as though they were fighting in a paradoxical blizzard.

By the time we moved to Chicago in 1904, I had been seriously corrupted by this experience and, even at the age of 10, sniffed the air in vain for the tang of the resin box and the reek of rub stuff.

There was a sallow elevator boy in the oscillating cage at the old Chicago American on Madison street who called himself Chicken Duffy.

He came from the Irish country back of the yards and used to fight "in private" as the phrase went on the sport pages, which meant in the palm-rooms behind saloons and in a barn near Aurora where the sheriff appears to have been not exactly priggish.

Tad Dorgan, the sport page cartoonist, came barnstorming to Chicago once and covered a fight in this barn around 1904, and drew pictures of an amazing bantam-weight named Young Izzo, who knocked out a lightweight.

He predicted that Young Izzo would have a fine future but I never heard of him again.

My details will be faulted because most of such memoirs are matters of unverifiable recollection but I believe the police had stopped prizefighting in Chicago because of some mockery enacted by Joe Gans for the enhancement of Terry McGovern in a hall on Wabash avenue called Tattersalls.

Gans quit and a city which walked up to its eyes in sin, with two reservations frankly and almost legally devoted to carnality and with gambling houses right up stairs along Madison and Clark streets, was so indignant that the incorrigible sport was forbidden—forever.

Chicago actually was a frontier town, although we would have resented any such opinion, have more so from a New Yorker.

We had an elevated railway which was a marvel to thousands of rubes from the plains and the Masonic temple was 21 stories high with a heavy metal screen across the lobby to protect the innocent from suicides.

Racing had been forbidden long ago. I am not sure I ever learned the railroad station or at the hotel.

Taft's arrival in Des Moines was as quiet as his arrival in west coast cities while on tour had been noisy.

He still wore a bandage on his left hand, as a result of an accident in which his hand was caught in an automobile door.

Mrs. Taft did not accompany her husband from Cincinnati.

Stassen brought the larger "travelling squad" with him. More than a half dozen Minnesotans had come to Des Moines and it was obvious that they had a more than passing interest in Iowa's votes at the next Republican convention.

The Taft party, on the other hand, consisted only of himself, his secretary and a press representative.

One Year Sentence For Manslaughter

FORT MADISON (P)—Jackson E. Lockhart, 35, convicted of manslaughter in the death of James H. Paschal, 70-year-old hotel night clerk, was sentenced to one year in the county jail yesterday by District Judge J. R. Leahy.

Lockhart, a railroad employe, was convicted of manslaughter after being tried on a charge of murder.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Another Misplaced Slap

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The communique issued by the "new Comintern" is not a very brilliant document. There have been Communist papers in the past that were written with eloquence and passion, but this seedy script is not one of them.

One has a curious feeling, reading this pronouncement, that European Communists don't really know how to abuse American and Englishmen.

They have acquired a certain fairly effective vocabulary in dealing with the kind of people they are used to, and have lived among—decried—Polish pans, aging relics of Hungarian feudalism, Romanian Iron Guards, the French Cagoulards, etc.

But when they turn the same verbiage, dully and monotonously, against America and England, the effect is grotesque.

Americans will be fascinated to learn that European Communists believe we fought in order to eliminate "competition on the world market" by Germany and Japan.

Nothing could be further from the truth. The fact is that American capitalism has had a very minor interest in world trade.

The promotion of world trade has, during the last decade, been a leftwing idea in America, a New Deal idea, and one which, for periods, had had the hot support of the Communists themselves.

The most conservative elements of American capitalism have been quite content with high tariffs and a minimum of world trade.

Furthermore, American capitalists are often accused today of plotting to rebuild German and Japanese industry. But if their war aim was the destruction of that industry, why have they switched over insanely to a peace aim of restoring it? It doesn't add up.

If the picture of a greedy, cunning, avaricious America presented in this vacuous document is correct, then a still greater puzzle is raised, namely: Why didn't we go to war against Russia?

If we are like Nazi Germany, as this paper hints, why was it Nazi Germany that we fought? Why didn't we join it, instead? It is a point which Cominterns, new and old, find curiously difficult to explain.

There are many such holes and gaps in the tirade issued by the Communist functionaries in Poland. The Marshall plan is pictured as the current spearhead of American capitalist aggression.

But there is no effort to explain why so much (perhaps most) of American capitalism opposes it, including the official publication of the national association of manufacturers.

Europe's Communists are a sure of where America's capitalists stand, that they aren't even looking to check.

You tap this diatribe, and it is hollow, you look inside it, and it is empty.

The representatives of Communist Europe have concluded a obscure devotional exercise, somewhere in Poland; as part of the ceremonies they have constructed a clumsily mechanical monster, labeled it "America."

Its jointed limbs and chromed claws do not very much resemble a people who put 12 million of their best into uniform (to wipe out German competition in world markets, was it?) and who were swept by tidal waves of hope for One World.

It is the Balkan baron treatment we are getting, and its wild inappropriateness gives one a funny, twilight kind of feeling, as if European communism, too, has reached the end of a certain road, and does not quite know what to do, or what, really, to say next.

To Honor Rev. Putnam

A farewell for the Rev. and Mrs. Fred W. Putnam will be held at the parish house of Trinity Episcopal church tonight from 7 to 10. The Rev. Mr. Putnam has accepted a call to the rectory of St. Matthew's Episcopal church, Evanston, Ill. He will leave Nov. 1.

Germany and Holland right now, he said. Farmers don't have the feed to keep all their cows alive, he explained. Because there are no refrigeration or canning facilities, the meat must be eaten immediately.

Asked about Communism, he said there wasn't much of it in evidence. If we will feed the people there until they can get on their feet, they will not be taken over by Communism, "but when people are that hungry for very long, it is hard to tell what will happen," he said.

In regard to voluntary food rationing, Davidson pointed out "meatless and breadless days will serve only to make people conscious of the fact there is trouble somewhere. Cutting down on brewery-grain is only a token application of saving," he said.

After all, Davidson asserted, the livestock are the greatest consumers of grain in America. Farmers should stop feeding so much grain to fatten livestock, and that grain should be shipped to Europe, he repeated.

Iowa Liquor Supply Good For 60 Days

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa state liquor store system has about two months supply of whisky on hand, Liquor Chairman Dick R. Lane reported yesterday while discussing the forthcoming "distillers holiday."

Distillers are expected to quit making whisky and other hard liquor for 60 days in order to save grain for shipment to Europe.

Lane said the state stores sell between 56,000 and 60,000 cases of whisky a month and that the system has about 120,000 cases on hand. He said he anticipates no difficulty in continuing operations at the present rate unless the holiday is continued well beyond the 60-day plan.

"This is bound to result in some shortage," he said. "There is plenty of whisky in the country but the industry is short on spirits for blending. But a 60-day stop would be nothing like the 4-year holiday we had during the war."

Corn plants transpire about 5,000 pounds of moisture while producing a bushel of grain.

Proposed Dam Could Banish Flood Danger

'We Have Everything To Gain,' Prof. Howe Assures Lions Club

"Iowa City has everything to gain from the Coralville flood control reservoir. Once it is in operation the flood danger will be forever gone."

These were the words of Prof. J.W. Howe, engineer at the university hydraulics laboratory, who addressed the weekly meeting of the Lions club yesterday noon.

"All floods start with a storm," Howe stated, giving as an extreme example the downpour which fell in the Bonaparte, Iowa, area in June, 1905. On this occasion a total of 12 and one-half inches fell in a two-day period, this amount is one-third of the average annual rainfall.

"Should such a deluge occur here," he stated, "the result would be disastrous."

"Unless changed by man," he went on, "a river takes care of its increased burden by first filling its banks, then its valley gradually extending to the bluffs. This means flooding of hundreds and even thousands of acres."

"What the flood control reservoir means," he continued, "is that instead of shallow water over a very large area, the reservoir will have very deep water over a comparatively small area."

"The proposed site at Coralville is the most ideal of any in the state. The reservoir could be built for the least cost and with the least inconvenience to the people of this area."

"A 90-foot earth dam would be built on Turkey creek above Lake Macbride," he declared, "that would be high enough to handle the greatest amount of water ever recorded in this area which was in 1913."

"The reservoir is not a lake, as many people believe, and only in the worst of floods would it be full."

Many people also believe that a power dam could be constructed to make use of this vast store of water in generating power. This would require that there always be water behind such a dam in order that it operate continuously," he said.

"A reservoir must be emptied as quickly as possible to take care of any additional water which might come. Otherwise," he said, "it would be like building a parking lot and then filling it with old cars."

L.C. Crawford of the hydraulics laboratory revealed that more water passed through Iowa City during the June floods of this year than in any year since the first recordings in 1903.

"There are many other things to be considered other than the technical planning," he stated. "We can look for some high pressure on congress in the next session because this is a hot topic."

The Grand Canyon of the Colorado River is 278 miles long, at one place is 13 miles wide and nearly 6,000 feet deep.

Pair of Solicitors Complete Community Chest Drive Efforts; $2,172 Collected

With two solicitors having already completed their lists, the Community Chest fund reached $2,172 of the $17,952 goal following the third day of the drive, Emil G. Trott, chairman, announced yesterday.

First solicitor to turn in a completed list was Mrs. W. R. Kern, residential division, who handed in her materials early Tuesday morning, Trott said.

Richard Sidwell, business and professional division solicitor, came in second, turning in his list Tuesday afternoon.

Money obtained in the campaign will be divided among six agencies, Trott said. Most of the funds will benefit Iowa City youth, he added.

The Boy Scouts of America are slated to receive $8,510.64, the largest amount.

Girl Scouts are allotted $5,638.30 of the funds.

The Parent-Teachers association and the city's school nurse use their part of the money to aid under-privileged grade-school children.

The PTA share of the chest funds is $851.06.

The community rest room in the City hall is maintained with $771.27 of chest funds. This money pays the salary of a matron on duty daily, and provides for furnishing the room.

The "Y-Teens," a high school girls' organization formerly known as the Girl Reserves, is on the Chest budget for the first time this year. They will receive $531.91 if the Chest quota is met.

Campaign and administration expenses account for $648.94 of the chest budget. These expenses include postage, stationery, printing, telephone and a secretary's salary.

It is necessary to employ Mrs. J. L. Records, chest secretary, on a year-round basis, Trott explained, because some pledges are made on a quarterly or monthly basis and someone must keep track of the accounts.

UWF Elects 2 Student Delegates to National Parley in November

The university chapter of United World Federalists last night elected Harlan Hockenbery, A2, and Virginia Anderson, A4, as its delegates to the national UWF in St. Louis, Mo.

Alternates are Harry Watts, A4, and Bob Blair, A2.

Unless local and student chapters recommend otherwise, the convention will be held Nov. 1 and 2.

David M. Stanley, A2, president of the UWF of Iowa, Inc., explained to members that the organization's purpose is to transform the United Nations into a strong federal world government by offering basic amendments to the UN charter.

Stanley and Henry Griffiths, Des Moines lawyers, will be the state organization's delegates to the national convention.

Enright Fined $11.50 For Traffic Violation

Leo J. Enright, Box 497, Durant, was fined $10 and $1.50 costs in the police court yesterday afternoon for following another vehicle at less than the required 300 feet.

Appearing before Judge Emil G. Trott were Edwin R. McCormick, Box 104, Letta, fined $10; and $1.50 costs for improper passing, and Everd L. Ihrig, route three, Iowa City, fined $17.50 for speeding.

Also recorded yesterday on the police court docket was a stop light violation. Dell F. Powers, route seven, Iowa City, was fined $4.50 for passing through the stop light.

To Increase City School Insurance

Insurance approximately $230,000 will be purchased in the Iowa City school district in order to cover the 19 percent increase in insurable value of school buildings in the system.

The report given by Iver A. Opstad, superintendent of schools, was made at the semi-monthly meeting of the school board last night following completion of a recent appraisal.

Schools are expected to carry insurance covering 80 percent of the appraised value of their buildings.

The motion was made and passed that the insurance be purchased in five separate policies ranging from one to five years to stagger the expense load.

Expenses on the construction of a lighting system at Shrader football field were reported by Verne Miller as $12,007.82. This increase over the estimated $9,000 for construction was attributed to higher costs.

Alva Oathout was nominated as school district representative to an examining board which certifies those qualified for city assessor and deputies. The board will be made up of W. L. Hart, representing the city council, and R. P. White, representing the county board of supervisors.

The appointment is for six years. After certification of qualified persons is made, final selections will be voted upon by city council, county supervisors and the school board.

A committee consisting of John P. Kelly, Glenn D. Devine and Earl Y. Sangster will consider location and construction costs for a permanent garage for the newly purchased City high school bus.

Resignations of E. A. Odegaard, coach at Junior high school, and Dean Shannon, custodian at Longfellow grade school were accepted. Victor E. Lowman, assistant to Odegaard, was elected to fill the position as coach and Charles Yansky as custodian.

The request of the Civic Music association to use the high school auditorium during their concert season was granted by the board.

Barracks Council Elects 8 Members

One woman and seven men were elected to the university barracks council yesterday by the residents of their areas.

No election was held at Riverside.

Two representatives from this council will be sent to the University Married Students organization.

According to polling results announced by Bob Brose, council chairman, the following will serve on the council: Mrs. Alice Mahoney, Central park; Robert Mahoney, South Westlawn; Ernest Montague, North park; Robert Van Horne, Templin park; Larry Ely, Newton park; Bill Hartman, Stadium park; Bill Shannon, Finkbine park and Howard Cook, West Westlawn.

The Riverside election will be run at the first council meeting next week, Brose said.

Balloting in the areas has been conducted for the past week by members of the election committee.

The National Recreation Association reports archery is "rapidly increasing in popularity" in the United States.

Lee Speaks Before ROTC Instructors Unit

Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee yesterday addressed officer and non-commissioned officer instructors of the university ROTC department during a visit to the unit.

Lee returned to Iowa City Sunday after being cleared by military investigation of charges made by Scripps-Howard columnist Robert C. Ruark of maladministration in Lee's Mediterranean command.

HAY RACK RIDE —

Take advantage of these beautiful Indian Summer evenings by going on an old fashioned hay rack ride.

Start out from the home farm about 9 p.m. and have 1 1/2 to 2 hours over the moonlit Johnson County hills and dales.

I can furnish from 1 to 5 racks. Each limited to not over 15 couples. $10 per night per rack. Phone at once for your date. It will take not over 7 minutes to reach this farm from any House in Iowa City.

Old Fashioned? Yes, but more fun than any other outdoor fall entertainment. And not an expensive evening either.
