Ramblers Romp, 39-23

Rally Routs Muscatine

By JOHN C. McINTOSH
After playing lackadaisical ball for three quarters, St. Mary's Ramblers caught fire in the final period last night and moved to their third straight victory of the season, winning over St. Mary's of Muscatine, 39-23.

The Ramblers moved out fast in the first period and it looked like another rout. However, led by the beautiful all-court defensive work of Lewig, the Rambler offense ground to a halt in the second quarter and they held only a scant 16-8 lead at the half.

During the third quarter Muscatine narrowed the gap, and it seemed as if they might come back in the fourth stanza to annex a victory. They matched the Ramblers shot for shot until the score stood 25-18 with only six minutes to go.

Suddenly the Rambler's offense started clicking, Suplee and Boyd connecting for two quick buckets. Boyd hit again and the rout was on. It was Iowa City's ball game, and they were well pulling away as the game ended with them in command, 39-23.

This was by far the poorest game of the season for Coach Suplee's boys. Their passing was sloppy throughout the game, and it wasn't until late in the fourth period that they managed to find their shooting eyes.

Muscatine, however, never was able to find the basket, but their alert ball-hawking kept them in the game.

For St. Mary's it was the stellar play of Suplee that was outstanding. He netted 17 points from the field, and was continually in on offensive and defensive rebounds. Flannery played a good floor game but was impotent in hitting the basket.

'Chattin' with Chad

By CHAD BROOKS

Tonight starting about 5:30 the University of Iowa's board in control of athletics will decide whether or not Dr. Eddie Anderson will remain as head football coach at the Hawkeye school.

There have been thousands of words written and spoken on both sides of the "Anderson situation" in the past week—a few of them fact, a great many of them distorted and a great many of them over sentimentalized.

But of far greater importance than the name of Iowa's 1948 football coach is the way this man will fit into Athletic Director Paul Brechler's new program for improving the Iowa athletic program.

One of the most encouraging developments on the Iowa sports front in modern history, Brechler's four point program has been almost completely overlooked in the recent confusion over Anderson's resignation.

- Brechler called for:
1. Enlargement of the Iowa football coaching staff.
 2. Organization of a junior varsity squad with its own coaching staff.
 3. Development of closer relationships between the university and Iowa high schools.
 4. Strengthening of the alumni organizations.

That a very definite improvement is needed was pointed up well early in the week by Cedar Rapids Gazette sports editor Pat Harmon. A veteran sports writer from Illinois, Harmon said, "After watching football in the Big Nine for 13 years, it is not hard to see a great difference in the way Iowa and other schools operate."

"Compared to the way certain other schools handle the situation, Iowa is putting on a second-class operation. As long as it operates in a second-class manner, it will have a second-division football team."

There is little doubt that Harmon's summary of the Iowa situation is basically correct. There is no doubt that Brechler's new program can go a long way toward solving the difficulties.

Earlier in the fall we asked Business Manager of Athletics Frank Havlicek if lack of money kept Iowa from having an "enlarged football coaching staff" (point number 1 on the Brechler program). Frank said no, that Anderson did not want more assistants.

We checked with Anderson. No, he didn't want an enlarged staff. He couldn't find the right men to trust as his assistants.

In the past we have also asked Anderson why Iowa didn't have freshmen and junior varsity teams with schedules of their own (point number 2)—and got the same answer. He didn't want it.

Anderson submitted his resignation last Friday night because of "loose talk." The "loose talk" phrase involves criticism of Anderson's relationship with high school athletic officials, alumni, the student body and players (points 3 and 4).

In announcing the new program Brechler said that Anderson was in complete agreement with it, an agreement as important as whether Anderson is serious about the resignation.

Watson, Rice Center, Lineman of the Week; Kay, Shoeners Listed

NEW YORK, (AP)—For the third time this season, a center has been selected in The Associated Press poll as football's lineman of the week.

The honor goes this time to Joe Watson of Rice institute at Houston, Tex., who is being called by many the best center seen in the Southwest conference since Ki Aldrich played for Texas Christian a decade ago.

Another 60-minute player Saturday was Bill Kay, Iowa tackle, who was a standout in the upset of Minnesota.

Linemen nominated this week include: Ends—Hal and Herb Shoener, Iowa; Tackles—Bill Kay, Iowa; George Connor, Notre Dame.

Guards—Joe Steffy, Army; Quentin Sickles, Michigan.

Centers—Alex Sarkiskian, Northwestern; Bob Wilson, Wisconsin.

Jaycees Will Sponsor Golden Gloves Here

The Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce unanimously approved plans Tuesday night to sponsor a Golden Gloves tournament here. This will be the third annual tournament sponsored by the Jaycees.

Luther Burket, the Junior Chamber's sports chairman, announced that the event is tentatively set for early February.

SAE Wins Grid Crown

Tips Phi Psi's In Final Game

Anderson Situation—Mum's the Word

SAE whipped Phi Kappa Psi, 14-0, yesterday to win the Social fraternity intramural touch football championship. Hillcrest captured the Hillcrest league championship by outscoring Hillcrest E, 20-13.

The SAE's scored the first time they got the ball on a long pass from Wally Ris to Roy Stevens. Ris drop-kicked the extra point to put them out in front, 7-0.

A few plays later Bob Peterson fumbled in the Phi Psi's end zone, and Dick Witte recovered for a SAE safety and two points for a 9-0 half time lead.

In the second half Witte fumbled another Phi Psi to fumble for two more SAE points, and later, Ris kicked a field goal to round out the scoring.

Phi Psi's biggest threat came at the end of the first half when Tom Vaughan pitched passes to Dick Ford and Evan Smith, putting the ball on the SAE three yard stripe.

Vaughan then hit Smith for a Phi Psi touchdown but the referee ruled that Vaughan was touched before he threw the pass.

Vaughan again tossed to Smith for a touchdown, but that was called back on a holding penalty.

In the Hillcrest game, Hillcrest C broke a 13-13 tie with a minute left in the game, when Devere Pentony lobbed a pass to Jack Hartle, who skipped 50 yards down the side lines to win the ball game and the championship.

Pentony passed to George Mathwig and Bert Fulton for the other Hillcrest C touchdowns, and hit Dan Cohoe for one extra point.

Hillcrest E tallied on passes from Bill Metcalf to Ernie Steck, and from John Wherry to Dick Hennissius. Wherry tossed to Kenny Moll for an extra point.

Thatcher will play Spencer for the Town league championship tomorrow at 4 o'clock.

The athletic board's decision on the future of Dr. Edward Anderson as head football coach was a matter of hours away yesterday and the press of the midwest almost unanimously refused to comment as the dead-line approached.

John Carmichael, sports editor of the Chicago Daily News, was an exception when he pointed out, "The Hawkeyes didn't do so well this season and Iowa alumni have decided that as a grid mentor, Anderson is a fine physician."

It was Tuesday when Waterloo Courier Sports Editor Al Ney said in his column, "Meanwhile, Tuesday morning rumors and 'loose talk' were pointing out that Anderson's resignation would bring a showdown with Paul Brechler, the young athletic director, who theoretically became Anderson's athletic department superior, when Brechler was appointed to succeed Dad Schroeder.

"Brechler generally is regarded as serious in his promise to improve the Iowa athletic standing. Outwardly, Brechler has been on the best of terms with Anderson and won't admit inter-department troubles, but rumors of a split over authority have popped up."

And from John O'Donnell, sports editor of the Davenport Democrat, came "Thoughts about THAT situation at Iowa university."

Says O'Donnell, "If Eddie decides his resignation will stick, Iowa, no doubt, will go after another BIG NAME in football."

"The BIG NAME will lay down his own terms because BIG NAMES do things like that in order that their systems will work. (See ANDERSON, page 3)

Betty Jo Phelan Tells Of France's Misery

Quits Scholarship After Two Months

Her eyes turned from smiles to tears as former student Betty Jo Phelan told the story of her two-month stay in France.

Smiles came as she talked about good times in Paris—tears welled up as she tried to find words to describe the miserable plight of the French people.

Betty Jo went to France early in September with a scholarship from the French Institute of International Education to study political science.

"I came back because I went broke," she said quite seriously. "I simply didn't have enough money to make ends meet. Prices in France are terrific."

No doubt about it—it was love at first sight when she saw France. "The people were wonderful to me; the University of Paris was fine—but it just isn't the place for anybody right now."

"Life is grim and desolate in France," she said. "I almost don't like to talk about it."

The root of France's trouble, she said, is ruinous inflation. The black market which the French choose to call "gray" is the pivot around which everybody's living revolves.

Betty Jo could appreciate their position since she received her scholarship money in francs. The official exchange when she left was 120 francs to an American dollar.

"But every time I walked down the street—obviously looking like an American—I was approached to sell dollars for francs," she said. Americans studying in France under the GI bill, she stated, are able to make ends meet by selling their dollars on the black market—300 francs to a dollar.

What do the French think of our Friendship Train?

"I was almost ashamed to talk about it with them," she commented. "If Americans realized what a small drop in the bucket their Friendship Train will be, they'd be as embarrassed as I was to talk about it to the French."

She said they kept asking her if the train was "just a symbol" of what America would really do to help France.

The French are not greedy, nor are they ungrateful, she added. They're helping themselves as much as they can, but the thought of a hard winter ahead is almost too much to bear.

"No child, rich or poor, gets milk to drink if he is more than four years old. And you can tell the difference the poor diet is making in their bodies," she said. "Undoubtedly," she said, "our aid to France will be a factor in keeping them from communism. But that ought not to be our only reason for helping."

"If the BIG NAME demands that he be both athletic director and head football coach, that will mean the very presentable young man, Paul Brechler, will have to step down.

"The BIG NAME might be interested in having a friend of his be the business manager of athletics.

"That would mean the likable young fellow, Frank Havlicek, would be out of a job.

"The BIG NAME, of course, would name his own staff—maybe from top to bottom.

"So Frank Carideo, Jack Meagher, Maury Kent, Pat Boland and Bob Otto would have to look elsewhere for employment.

"Maybe the BIG NAME will have his own ideas about publicity and will want to pick the director.

"That, of course, would affect Eric Wilson."

O'Donnell didn't say anything about President Hancher.

Atomic Energy Class To See A-Bomb Film

"A Tale of Two Cities," a film of the atom bomb destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, will be shown in this area for the first time at 8 o'clock tonight in Macbride auditorium.

The film will supplement a discussion by physics Professor Arthur Roberts on "The Secret of the Atom Bomb." Roberts' lecture will be eighth in a series in the university atomic energy course.

Prof. J. I. Routh, director of the course, described the film as "a dramatic account of death and destruction at Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

Roberts will discuss what the "secret" of the atom bomb is and whether it can be kept a secret. His remarks will be made in light of recent reports that Russia has been testing atom bombs in Siberia.

Roberts came to the university in 1946 as professor of nuclear physics. He was formerly research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Campus Chest Goal Is Set At $10,000

A $10,000 goal has been set for the Campus Chest drive Dec. 1-5, Chairman Ray Tierney announced last night.

Tierney told the Chest executive committee that a minimum of one dollar per student would make this goal possible.

The publicity campaign was outlined by Publicity Chairman Bud Booton.

Tentative plans include a poster contest, photo exhibits, a movie and a tea dance.

Buttons will be given to donors and at least one collection booth will be set up on campus.

Members of Alpha Delta Sigma, men's advertising fraternity, will work with Booton on the publicity campaign.

Joy Bowers, A2, general solicitations chairman, announced new appointments to the Chest committee: Dorothy Hertel, A2, and Mary Dunlap, A2, co-chairmen of solicitors for Town Women; Bob Crumley, C3, chairman, and Bill Gibb, C4, and Waldimer Leiding, A2, members of the committee for Town Men.

Organizations which will receive Campus Chest funds are World Student Service fund, 45 percent; United Negro College fund, 20 percent; Cancer foundation, 10 percent; Infantile Paralysis fund, 10 percent; Nile Kinnick scholarship fund, 7 1/2 percent; and emergency fund, 7 1/2 percent.

First year's dues, $369, for the National Student association will be taken from the proceeds before division among the organizations.

Students can earmark their contributions to any of the above organizations if they wish, Tierney said.

Rent Control Board's Recommendation

After the first session of the 80th congress, the real estate lobby could boast that it had gotten plenty out of Washington in the form of "loopholes" in the present rent control law.

Perhaps that is sufficient reason for the Johnson county advisory rent control board yesterday to decline to make a recommendation on need for extension of the present law in the area.

Members of the board complained that there is actually little or no control on most rentals. The question is: would they support a law which brought more rooms, apartments and houses under control?

This is important because, with a flourish of trumpets, the National Association of Real Estate Boards has issued a solemn pronouncement calling for a complete end to rent control.

Just let rents soar where they will, says the association, and the housing shortage will be licked. City parks may be crowded, of course, and families now doubled up may have to triple or quadruple up, but the housing shortage will be licked.

Obviously the lobby has every right to go to Washington and spread this gospel where it will. Just as obviously, however, congressmen ought to spoon it up warily.

They would do well to remember the days when the National Association of Manufacturers was peddling this same line on prices. Just kick the lid off prices, said the NAM. For a trifling matter of weeks the cost of living may head upward, but it will quickly settle down. Butchers can now use that prophecy as a wrapping for dollar steaks.

When congress wrote the present loophole rent control law, real estate spokesmen hailed the weakening of controls as a guarantee that more rental dwellings would be constructed.

Persons desperately seeking decent living quarters can hardly take time out to laugh that one off.

There is no reason for allowing the real estate lobby to renege their boast after the next session of congress.

Among Those Who Will Be Absent

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are in the U.S. and so will miss today's big ceremonies when the duke's niece, the Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, is married.

The duke announced he and his wife had not been invited to the wedding.

Undoubtedly the royal family would be glad to have the duke by himself, but he has invariably taken the position that on official occasions it has to be both or none. Even after 13 years the royal family simply will not recognize that woman.

The exclusion of the duke and duchess will be unpopular with a large section of the British public, willing to let bygones be bygones. But any resentment on this account hasn't carried over to the present Labor government.

If this government, already on shaky ground, had tried to force invitation of the Duchess of Windsor to the wedding of her husband's niece, the British public might have considered that the government was interfering in what was none of its business.

Of the Many Bolsheviki

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Many of the Bolsheviki who have been hailed before the Thomas committee on un-American activities have been more or less implicated in the Communist front known as the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee committee.

Among them was Howard Fast, a mediocre writer who has enjoyed, however, by reason of his political color, the professional promotion of clandestine Communist fronts.

Fast wrote a distortion of history called "Citizen Tom Paine," the hearty reviews and endorsements of which in most cases established the political inclinations of those who wrote them. While the war was still in process, he tossed off a long pamphlet on the Croatian killer, Joseph Broz, now known as Tito, the marshal and dictator of Yugoslavia, in the status of Joseph Stalin's deputy.

Soldiers of the United States, including thousands of young fliers, but recently taken from the Yugoslavia campuses of high school and college, cleared the Nazis out of Yugoslavia and handed this land over to Tito, who then slaughtered General Mikhailovich, Mikhailovitch, a patriot, had fought the Nazis but, at the same time, had tried to save his country from the treachery of native, Russian and American Communists.

Fast and all the Hollywood traitors, of course, sat it out safely. The United States did not cite them, but Stalin might. In those days, General Mikhailovitch was our friend and the leader of the resistance against Hitler in the Balkans. The Communist, Tito, had vanished after some activity on the Communist side in Spain. But after the war was won and Roosevelt had handed over Yugoslavia to Stalin, the United States abandoned Mikhailovitch and he was shot by a firing squad after a mock trial. He was accused of treason to the country he had tried to save from Tito.

Now when Americans are called to Washington and merely asked by a committee of congress to say whether they are Communists or not, the Hollywood fifth column vilifies the committee and congress as a body. In most of these cases, the committee was ready to prove that these witnesses were traitors had they denied it.

As for Fast, he refused information about the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee committee and got three months and a small fine for contempt of congress.

But was the committee a front? He answered that in his pamphlet on Tito, where he wrote: "An agent of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee committee contacted Tito and the committee provided funds for Tito's return to Yugoslavia. Tito was a Communist. He made no secret of that."

Some covert Communists and some credulous optimists still insist that those who take seriously the scheming and association of Fast and the Hollywood traitors are easily alarmed and exaggerate their importance.

No distinction is made between the various isotopes of an element in the uses of nature. Therein lies the value of isotopes in research, said Burris.

Radioactive isotopes, made plentiful through the Atomic Energy commission, can be traced with a sensitive receiver, such as a "Geiger counter," he said.

This new knowledge, said Burris, has forced revision of many theories—and has led to many new ones.

"Isotopic tracers certainly are a powerful tool in the work of research," he concluded.

insufficient. This is one of the fundamental tenets of Communism. It is coupled with another—that deviation and compromise with general objectives is quite proper according to the needs of the moment, and that actual cooperation with the enemy is permissible for longer or shorter periods so long as the main goal is always kept in view. This means that no slackening of Communist pressure can ever mean more than a breathing spell.

In this light, it is hard to see how even the restoration of Europe can greatly lessen the tension between Russia and the United States, as Marshall says he hopes. A victory in the economic battle might result in a sufficient display of power to make Russia accept a truce so far as her geographical aspirations are concerned. Even that is doubtful, I think. But beyond that there seems to be no hope whatever. The conflict must go on until the Bolsheviki cease trying to export their ideologies or until the destruction of totalitarianism or freedom, one or the other.

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Secretary Marshall, saying twice in his Chicago speech that he is unable to find any explanation for Russia's course of conduct, apparently is subjecting us to a little reverse English.

It is quite true that Russian tactics seem at times to have no meaning, even from their own standpoint, but there is little obscurity surrounding their strategy. One takes the liberty of assuming that the widely experienced general really meant that there is no peaceful, acceptable explanation.

Some people have professed to see in Russia's open propaganda war a sign that there will be no physical breach of the peace. Otherwise, they ask, why should the Bolsheviki go out of their way to keep us alarmed and alert?

The Right to Criticize Football Coaches

(From Des Moines Register)

It happens nearly every football season. The team loses a few games and the fans begin to complain about the coach.

Eddie Anderson escaped this typical fate of the big university coach for a number of years—possibly because his first season at Iowa was so startlingly successful, possibly because he was away from coaching during the war.

But this year the Hawkeyes slumped in a few games, so the wizards of the grandstands began to explain these failures by something the coach did or did not do. As Eddie Anderson said at Edgerton, Wis., the other night, "If a player scores a touchdown or makes a right move, the credit goes to the player. But if the player fumbles or is thrown for a loss, it becomes the fault of the coach."

We don't have any solution for this. We're simply emphasizing the hazards of football coaching.

Everybody is a football expert in his own mind. He may have played second string guard for Podunk high school back in '07, but he still knows exactly what play the coach should have taught his men to use on the 30-yard line in the fourth quarter, with the wind from the south, the score tied, and the star halfback out with a broken wrist.

Furthermore, if some spoiled kid who thinks he hasn't been given a fair break by the coach loafs on the job, it isn't the kid who gets the howling—it's the coach.

But of course it is this same avid interest that makes crowds of 50,000 on Saturday, that helps the coach round up good players to come to college, that results in big salaries for football coaches.

Just how you could have bigtime football without violent criticism of the coach is something nobody has yet figured out.

Even Notre Dame has its troubles. Frank Leahy is criticized for turning out teams that are too good! His teams are so powerful, goes the argument, that nobody wants to play Notre Dame!

You just can't please 'em. Personally, we think the coach should have the ends guard for Podunk high school back in '07, but he still knows Totalitarianism or Freedom?

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

The answer to that, of course, is that Russia would like very much to fight and decide the war along the present lines, without having to resort to military measures. In this, propaganda is an important weapon.

If she cannot do it this way, only time and the conditions of the future can tell to what lengths she may be willing to go. Only one thing is sure, and that is that ancient Russian aspirations combined with the modern Communist crusading spirit comprise a dynamic force which will die if its forward momentum is checked.

That is why the Bolsheviki leaders have preached for years that, eventually, the revolution must be brought to the world and made to stick by force—that mere policy of the world domination through legally and peacefully acquired power is insufficient. This is one of the fundamental tenets of Communism. It is coupled with another—that deviation and compromise with general objectives is quite proper according to the needs of the moment, and that actual cooperation with the enemy is permissible for longer or shorter periods so long as the main goal is always kept in view. This means that no slackening of Communist pressure can ever mean more than a breathing spell.

In this light, it is hard to see how even the restoration of Europe can greatly lessen the tension between Russia and the United States, as Marshall says he hopes. A victory in the economic battle might result in a sufficient display of power to make Russia accept a truce so far as her geographical aspirations are concerned. Even that is doubtful, I think. But beyond that there seems to be no hope whatever. The conflict must go on until the Bolsheviki cease trying to export their ideologies or until the destruction of totalitarianism or freedom, one or the other.

With the many media we Americans have developed for shouting into each other's ears, a prolonged Marshall plan debate can do a certain distorting job on the American consciousness. During such a period I wouldn't give two nickels for our chances of getting rid of water pollution, unless you could link it in some way with the Communist Menace. We shall, during that time, be living in one world, but a narrow one.

One may well fear that during such a period we might come to be infected by a certain touch of unreality. Without ever saying it,

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Beware the Defensive Posture

By SAMUEL GRAFTON

New York Post Syndicate

One danger in a prolonged, four-or-five-months debate on the Marshall plan is that the country will come to believe during such a period that Russia is its only problem. Repetition, etc. With the debaters debating, the publicists publicizing, and the senators sentencing, the period of debate is likely to become something like a long, narrow tunnel, at the end of which can be seen only the face of Stalin.

But it is not true that all our problems are Russian, unless we are willing to talk about inflation and housingski.

With the many media we Americans have developed for shouting into each other's ears, a prolonged Marshall plan debate can do a certain distorting job on the American consciousness. During such a period I wouldn't give two nickels for our chances of getting rid of water pollution, unless you could link it in some way with the Communist Menace. We shall, during that time, be living in one world, but a narrow one.

One may well fear that during such a period we might come to be infected by a certain touch of unreality. Without ever saying it, in so many words, we might build the folk belief, deep down, that only Russia stands between us and earthly paradise.

There are already some who seem to believe that our only domestic problem is to get rid of Communists at home, and our only foreign problem is to get rid of Communists abroad. It is not yet obsessional, in a national sense, but it might become so. We have seen what happens to nations which become swept by single, simple ideas, and how in the end they do things, with utter conviction, which seem remarkable, not to say bizarre, to the outside world.

I have always resisted taking courses in better concentration, because of the wonderful things in the world about me I might miss while losing myself in the single, chosen object. The hell with it. I want to see everything.

I do not deny that Russia presents sharp problems. But it is so easy to consider that she presents the only problem. And that's the danger, for there is an escapist element involved, as in the reading of historical novels about women in thin drapes.

It takes seven years at college to become a doctor, almost as much to become a dentist, four years to be an architect, but you can go into the anti-Russian profession in one minute. All it takes is the simple, declarative

Blame-Shifters' Shame TO THE DAILY IOWAN

If our student newspaper has courage to "ponder its thoughts" for the record, and can face so nobly the unjust criticism as a consequence, I believe I can come to its defense on behalf of some 6,667 University of Iowa students who share somewhat similar views to those of my own.

It is extremely disgusting to read the columns of sport-writers for some leading newspapers about the state, witnessing their obvious efforts to cover up their own so-called "loose talk" by suddenly disclaiming any responsibility and shifting the blame to The Daily Iowan. I remember reading in certain newspapers, and not in The Iowan, choice little gems like the following:

"Football fans in northeast Iowa have compared unfavorably the university team's running of plays from the 'T' with the performance of certain high schools in that area..."

"The Hawks tackling and blocking at Madison was atrocious and half-hearted, to say the least, and demonstrated an utter lack of mastery of the fundamentals of football..."

I am amazed by the lack of understanding displayed by these same self-righteous scribes who are now attempting to sell their readers the story that our coaching crisis was prompted by two or three articles in The Daily Iowan.

Any University of Iowa student knows that open criticism of the coaching staff began following the 1946 Illinois game. Among the student body and the townspeople of Iowa City, in particular, this sharp criticism has become increasingly prevalent and bitter.

It has not grown from the fact that the team lost the games it did, but rather, I am sure, from the manner in which they lost them.

May I ask, is it not one of the important functions of a student newspaper to reflect student opinion?

Is not training for citizenship within a democracy facilitated through free expression by the students and their editors, without fear that some faculty member cannot accept subdued criticism?

We know that the organized press of this country fights right down to the wire for these and similar privileges, but a university paper—"Oh, No! that's different!"

The complaint has been made that everyone wants to quarterback these days. About that, I feel exactly as the local fan does who said recently, "By golly, I pay three dollars to see each of those games, and I'm going to quarterback if I want to!"

Students, this is our football team, our coach, and our newspaper. Despite the fact that I don't pay three dollars admission price, when I think my team isn't trying to play ball, or when I think the coach or any player may be at fault, I'm going to say what I think about it.

If a large majority of the students are critical to the point that the school spirit is affected, I expect my student paper to recognize this discontent and bring it to the attention of those in authority, as well as to others away from the university who seem to be so oblivious to what is happening.

And if those who are the object of the criticism cannot accept it in the spirit given, perhaps they should give thought to whether or not they are in the profession for which their personalities are best suited.

Why the Hullabaloo? TO THE DAILY IOWAN

Why all this headlined hullabaloo about Eddie Anderson and football worries? Why not more attention to the fumbling for real values in the face of a war-threatened world crisis? After all, football has no more to do with education than bull-fighting has to do with agriculture!

Confusing Arithmetic TO THE DAILY IOWAN

The editorial "Snood or Haircut?" printed Wednesday presents a very illuminating example of the use of statistics with malice aforethought.

Now let us examine the confusing arithmetic presented by The Daily Iowan.

I will accept your figure that 15,129 Iowa Citizens and students are potential barbershop customers. For the sake of argument I will also agree that the above-mentioned get haircuts every 17 days. Hence every 30 days this group will need 26,698 haircuts—not 27,017, as was printed. However, this last point is minor.

My real gripe is this: At the reported 18 minutes a haircut, 26 2/3 men get clipped in an eight-hour day by one barber. Twenty-three barbers working a 30-day month (which they do not) can cut only 18,400 heads of hair per month!

Now, what happens to the other 8,298 hair growers?

Do the barbers handle them by working 11.6 hours a day? Or do they work eight hours a day, 43.5 days a month? Or are there 10.3 barbers in Iowa City that The Daily Iowan overlooked?

Or do we really get haircuts every 24.7 days rather than every 17 days?

This letter is not to be construed as an argument for or against the barbers. That is another question entirely. This is intended solely as a criticism of the sloppy and inaccurate display of facts and figures by The Daily Iowan.

By implying that we should swallow your arithmetic mumbo-jumbo you have insulted the intelligence of your readers. I feel that an apology should be forthcoming.

STAN OLDS
B-88 Quadrangle

(No apology is necessary if Reader Olds will remember, as was stated in the editorial, that "this survey is subject to error but gives an index.")

Furthermore, some shops hire extra barbers on Saturdays, some are open nine and one-half hours per day, and there is a natural tendency to speed up when many customers are waiting.

Each individual factor is a variable and not subject to demonstrable proof. When unknowns are multiplied, results are bound to reflect an accumulation of "margins of error."

This was realized in the editorial, and no attempt was made to have all the unknown factors come out mathematically even, as this would be statistically impossible—The Editor.)

Then, too, there is the question of just what you mean by loyalty. Just think what the courts might do with that innocent little word! What you mean by loyalty might not be my understanding of it. There are times when you cannot be loyal to all groups at the same time—especially if they are at cross-purposes.

Our country hasn't developed through the people who accept and acquiesce. If we are really heirs "to the glory of pioneer days" as our college songs say, we must keep our freedom of the press.

It is not always easy to "fit out the righteous from the wrong"—but even a college newspaper deserves the right to try.

My hat is off to the best Daily Iowan in many years. HENRIETTA RATE HOWELL, 505 River street

(The writer, Mrs. Howell, is a sister of Atty. Edward F. Rate who charged yesterday in rate to The Daily Iowan that the Iowan and the student body are "disloyal"—The Editor.)

Lasansky Wins Prize Prof. Mauricio Lasansky of the art department was awarded Treasurer's prize for one of his two prints at a New York exhibition sponsored by the American Society of Etchers, Engravers, Lithographers and Woodcutters, it was announced yesterday.

The show, which started Nov. 12, will continue until Dec. 5.

Community Life Taught Parents by Girl Scouts

Mrs. Hugh Carson, executive secretary of the Iowa City Girl Scouts, told members of the Lions club yesterday "not only are Girl Scouts learning to participate in Iowa City community life, but so are the fathers and mothers."
 "The parents," Mrs. Carson said, "are learning through their daughters."
 Mrs. Carson said there are 39 troops in Iowa City with a membership of 464. Within a week she hopes membership will rise to 500.

Christmas Seal Sales Begin Soon

The 41st annual Christmas Seal Sale, to raise funds for the tuberculosis control program of the Johnson County Tuberculosis association, will begin soon with the mail delivery of seals to residents throughout the county.

The association, assisted by the Girl Scouts, plans to mail about 18,000 letters.

Of the money raised in this county, approximately 75 percent will be used within the county to fight tuberculosis. An additional 20 percent will be used on a state level, James H. Schmidt, Christmas Seal chairman, explained. The remaining five percent will help finance services on a national level.

The seals will be sold for $1 per sheet of one hundred. Proceeds of the sale are used for education, research and treatment of tuberculosis patients.

Iowa City Fliers Hear 211th Squadron May Start Operations Soon

Planes and equipment are available for the 211th composite squadron and flying operations are

"under consideration" by the Air Defense command, according to Capt. John Bush, operations officer from Offutt field, Neb.

At the meeting held last night by the Iowa City detachment of the squadron, Bush told members they would be informed of the time and place for physical examinations.

Bush will be an instructor for the squadron, which will have headquarters in Waterloo when flying operations are started.

M/Sgt. Glenn Van Horn of the ROTC department explained classification, filing and publication of military correspondence as part of the bi-monthly ground lecture series.

New Improvements on Postoffice Completed

Painters completed painting the interior and exterior of the Iowa City postoffice yesterday. Postmaster Walter J. Barrow announced.

Other renovation work included repairing the roof, resetting some of the front steps and pouring a new sidewalk.

The work was done by the Johnson - Seseman Maintenance company of Chicago under a contract with the federal works administration. No costs were announced.

Grocers See 'Turkeyless' Thanksgiving

Claim Cost of Birds Prohibits Traditional Meal in Many Homes

A "turkeyless" Thanksgiving appears assured in many Iowa City homes this year.

Word from local grocers yesterday indicated the majority of Iowa City citizens are substituting other types of fowl for turkey on their holiday menu.

Reasons given for this change were:

1. High cost of living
 2. Scarcity of small turkeys
- Three grocers yesterday reported "normal pre-holiday turkey orders." The majority, however, said chickens, ducks and geese were high on the list.

"The pocketbook, not tradition will govern this year's Thanksgiving meal," a local poultry man stated.

The average price of chicken yesterday was 40c a pound, ducks, geese and turkeys were retailing for about 55c a pound. Better grades of turkey were priced at 89c a pound.

Many grocers said they felt customers were waiting for a decline in turkey prices before ordering for Thanksgiving. "A drop in prices won't come," one storekeeper said.

Turkeys under 15 pounds will be hard to find, reported most grocers. "Families of four or five are just out of luck," according to one poultryman.

However, local wholesalers claimed they were selling normal amounts of turkey. "Regardless of price people will eat turkey," a wholesaler stated, "it's just tradition."

Married Students Cooperative grocery reported yesterday four turkeys, five ducks, one goose and two chickens were ordered for the holiday.

"Most of the married students

Concert Program Termed 'First Rate'

By JOHN L. HARVEY

Under the baton of Philip Greeley Clapp, the University Symphony coped nobly last night with a formidable program. The concert, held at Iowa Union, included selections by Handel, Schubert and Brahms.

The "Water Music" suite of Handel, as arranged by Harty, was handled deftly and effectively, despite some false intonation from the very prominent French horns, and an excessively quick tempo in the "Air."

Outstanding was Han Koebel's playing of Schubert's "Arpeggione" sonata, as arranged for cello and orchestra by Cassado. I will never understand why the arranger bloated Schubert's modest piano accompaniment to orchestral proportions, though I can understand why he changed the arpeggione part into a cello solo, since the original instrument is as obsolete as dinosaurs. At any rate, Koebel's playing was suave, serene and thoroughly effective. For an encore, he played three Schubert minuets.

One must admire the orchestra's courage for tackling Brahms' "Third Symphony." For that matter, one must admire more than their courage, for as semi-amateur programs go, this was an outstanding performance. The string section could not meet all of Brahms' demands, and there was too much brass. However, the performance was well-paced and secure.

By far the best number was a thrilling version of Brahms' "Academic Festival" overture, which was done with an intensity and relish which reminds some of us of the fabled version by Willem Mengelberg. This was first-rate by any standards, amateur or professional.

"I won't eat turkey," the clerk explained. "Their ovens aren't large enough for that size bird."

Rent Curbs—

sulted in a rent of $40 per month or less for very desirable furnished four or five room apartments, while a veteran student reports that he was required to pay $65 per month a year in advance for two small, poorly furnished rooms, one of which had no windows.

Miss Gallaher thought a law of administrative system which permits "such inequalities" does not protect all equally and "certainly is unjust to the landlords who are and have been offering decent accommodations to tenants."

A fourth member, Atty. H. W. Vestermark, emphasized the board made no attempt "to avoid an issue."

"If we knew what congress is going to do (Feb. 29), then we could make a recommendation one way or the other. But this is an empty proposition which delves into guesswork."

Stephen G. Darling, the remaining board member, agreed with opinions of the others. Last night, The Daily Iowan contacted several persons who spoke at the board-sponsored public hearing.

Attorney William H. Bartley, president of the Johnson county Young Democrats, said:

"This puts the entire question of rent control up to congress where it belongs. The job now for those who believe in an adequate system of control is to write or talk to Senators Wilson, Hickenlooper, or Representative Martin."

"The Young Democrats club hopes congress will follow President Truman's suggestions not only on price control but also on rent control." (Truman has asked for extensions of price and rent controls.)

Bartley opposed decontrol at the hearing because "it will hurt the working man."

Also at the hearing, Russell M. Ross, a tenant, asked and received a negative answer to the question: "Are there any tenants on the board?"

Last night, Ross said he had talked to Swisher and would "rather not comment."

Sam Shulman, spokesman for the Veterans' Organization council which is composed of Iowa City veteran group leaders, said he was "gratified that the board at least did not recommend decontrol."

Cliff Richards, president of the Johnson county chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America, asserted "they obviously are straddling the fence, except, of course, controls will probably be left on for the 90 days."

Charles Morganstern, local realtor, believed "honestly the board will be fair to any landlord suffering a hardship. I think it was a wise decision and I respect the judgment of the board."

In winding up the week-long series of events, Swisher, speaking for the board, said:

"On behalf of the advisory rent control board of Johnson county, may we take this opportunity to extend our thanks to the many individuals and organizations that have participated in the recent discussion of the rent control problem in Iowa City."

He said the Press Citizen, local chain newspaper, radio station WSUI, various veterans' groups, civic organizations, citizen-students, faculty members of the university, townspeople and The Daily Iowan "have entered into the discussion in a most friendly and cooperative manner. For this we are grateful."

"We believe that most of our citizens — landlords and tenants alike want to be reasonable and fair. If the spirit of helpful cooperation and fairness could be extended to include all, most of our rent control problems would vanish."

Auto Crash Causes $125 in Damages

Damage of $125 resulted early yesterday morning when cars driven by the Rev. Donovan G. Hart, 117 N. Lucas street, and Delmar H. Butterbaugh, 219 S. Capitol street, collided at the intersection of College and Gilbert streets.

According to accident reports filed by both drivers, the rear view mirror of the car driven by Butterbaugh, a Limited Cab company car, obstructed the view, and parked cars hindered vision of both drivers.

Estimated damage to the cab was $75, and to the Reverend Mr. Hart's car $50. No one was reported injured.

Cars driven by Charles M. Schaffer, C3, 363 N. Riverside drive, and Mrs. Elaine Sweeney, 137 Riverside park also collided Monday evening on Riverside drive, causing estimated damage of $30 to both cars.

The accident report stated Schaffer was driving south on Riverside drive and attempted to pass the Sweeney car. When the cars were parallel, Mrs. Sweeney turned into a one-way dirt road without signaling.

No one was injured.

$4,509 Judgment Suit Filed in District Court

John and Margaret Nash, 504 Grand street, yesterday filed a $4,509 judgment suit at the Johnson county courthouse against Clarence O. Collett and Lyle Brinton of Washington county.

The petition charged that a semi-trailer, driven by Collett, collided Feb. 17, 1947, on Duquesne street with a parked car in which Mr. and Mrs. Nash were sitting.

They asked $4,509 for damages and personal injuries. Messer, Hamilton and Cahill are attorneys for the plaintiffs.
