Greetings, Gate—Let's Incarcerate

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—Two city detectives couldn't find a quarry all morning—for a very good reason. They found him when they returned to police headquarters. He had heard he was sought, and was waiting for them in the first floor corridor.

Vandenberg Urges Quick European Aid

Bridges Warns U. S. That Meager Rations May Result At Home

WASHINGTON (AP)—Quick emergency aid to thwart "Communist aggression" in western Europe was urged by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) yesterday as another Republican, Senator Bridges of New Hampshire declared that "meager rations" at home might result.

Opening senate debate on the administration proposal to send Italy, France and Austria up to $597,000,000 in stopgap food and other supplies, Vandenberg said speedy action was necessary because "a new type of communism"—with terror and sabotage for weapons—"is on the march."

Bridges, chairman of the appropriations committee, said his group was conducting hearings on the question of raising funds for interim relief with "unprecedented" speed.

In suggesting a "strong probability" of food shortages at home, however, he said the committee would grant "no blank check requests."

If the U.S. ships food to the full extent contemplated by the state department, and if next year's domestic crops are poor, Bridges said "the American people will be subjected not only to rationing but possibly to meager rations."

Asserting that the international unity which won the war has "fallen apart," and that those responsible for breaking it would "dissipate the victory, lose the peace and hazard their own destiny," the Michigan senator said.

Propose Removal Of 6 Million From Income Tax Rolls

WASHINGTON (AP)—The fuse of an explosive tax battle was lighted yesterday by separate proposals for removal of about 6,000,000 low-income persons from the tax rolls, and for tax exemption of the $25,000 of net income of all corporations.

Rep. Ploeser (R-Mo), chairman of the house small business committee, presented the corporate exemption suggestion to the house ways and means committee, to settle "the nation-wide controversy over the tax exempt privilege of co-ops."

Simultaneously, though unrelated to Ploeser's proposal, a movement of undetermined strength was astir to put into the next tax-cutting bill a provision for an increase in personal exemptions—probably from the present $500, to $600.

This would remove from income taxation millions of the lowest income group.

But on tax relief for individuals, Ways and Means Chairman Knutson (R-Minn) stuck by his idea for percentage cuts for all the 48,500,000 taxpayers. Bills embodying this principle were killed twice by presidential vetoes earlier in the year.

Knutson said his new $4,000,000,000 tax slashing measure, to be introduced in mid-December, probably will include no provision for increased individual exemptions.

69 Prisoners Strike

WAUPUN, Wis. (Tuesday) (AP)—Sixty-nine prisoners held four unarmed guards as hostages in the barricaded laundry of the state prison early today, 8 hours after they started a sit-down strike.

The national guard has been ordered to stand by for possible action and sheriffs deputies from surrounding counties have been sent to the scene.

French May Boost Strikers' Pay

Premier Schuman Meets with Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—The ranks of striking French workers, already estimated at a million strong, swelled steadily last night as Premier Robert Schuman met for the first time with his new government to take steps for meeting the threat to the French economy.

Government informants said Schuman had decided on "very energetic" measures to prevent more strikes, coupled with possible concessions to the workers already off their jobs.

The informants did not elaborate on what measures would be taken. Asked if the government would requisition railroads and other strike-bound industries, they replied, "It might."

Since French railways are nationalized, this would mean in their case and that of other state-owned industries that eligible employees would be mobilized into the army and required to work under army discipline.

There was no hint of such action last night at the meeting of Schuman's cabinet. Government sources said the ministers discussed offering the strikers a 1,500-franc ($12.50) provisional monthly wage increase pending settlement of the issue, which would raise the basic minimum monthly wage to 8,500 francs ($70.50).

The informants predicted that demands of the Communist-led General Labor Confederation (CGT) for an immediate 25 percent wage increase pending negotiations for revision of minimums in all brackets would be refused.

Line after line of the French railroad system was blocked as the CGT switched its tactics to take strike votes in individual stations throughout the nation.

Meanwhile, an intimate of Gen. De Gaulle said the general had canceled a speech scheduled for delivery in Paris Thursday to avoid embarrassing the new government in its struggle with the CGT.

Yugoslavs Arrest 6 GI's Near Trieste

TRIESTE (AP)—A six-man United States army border patrol was taken into Yugoslav custody yesterday morning between two outposts about 15 miles from Trieste, U. S. army headquarters said early today.

The Yugoslavs have acknowledged that they are holding the six Americans soldiers, an army public relations officer said.

The U. S. army public relations office in Trieste said that in accordance with a new policy, the names of the men would not be revealed until 48 hours after their capture, but that as far as was known, the soldiers were in good condition.

The patrol, which consisted of a non-commissioned officer and five privates, was afoot and "evidently got out of bounds," the public relations office said.

When the Yugoslavs admitted having the six in custody, the office said, the U. S. army immediately requested their return and was informed that the Yugoslavs would "have to put through higher headquarters."

An investigation of the men's whereabouts began when they failed to return from patrol.

Printers Walk Out At Chicago Papers Over Wage Demands

CHICAGO (AP)—Union printers struck last night in Chicago's six daily newspapers.

Members of AFL Chicago typographical union local No. 16 voted to strike by a ballot which officials announced was 2,330 to 61.

J. Loy Maloney, managing editor of The Chicago Tribune, said The Tribune would publish by means of typewritten copy reproduced by a photo-engraving process. The Chicago Sun and The Chicago Times previously have published such editions during what they declared were "slowdown" tactics by union members during the long dispute.

The strike followed a five-month dispute between the union and the Chicago Newspaper Publishers association, representing the six daily newspapers.

The union delivered a wage demand for $100 a week to the publishers Sunday. The publishers in a statement declared wages were not the issue, and that the only issue was "the union's no-contract policy."

John J. Pilch, local union president, said "token picket lines" would be established and added that "we'll be docile."

The Tribune, The Sun and The Chicago Journal of Commerce, the three morning newspapers, already had published early Tuesday morning editions before the printers walked out.

Union pressmen are not involved in the walkout.

The three afternoon newspapers involved are The Chicago Daily News, The Chicago Daily Times and The Chicago Herald-American. They said they planned to publish photo-engraved editions today.

It was uncertain immediately what action, if any, the Chicago Mailers' union, affiliated with the striking printers, would take in the strike. Its members handle papers for distribution.

Dewey Says U. S. Should Help China

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared last night the American government is "bankrupt so far as Chinese policy is concerned" and said that, unless aid is sent China, "the 450 million free people" of the country may well fall into Communist hands.

The United States and "all other nations which resist totalitarian dictatorship are being attacked by all means short of war," Dewey said, "but the program of Communist world conquest of the remaining free nations is further advanced in China, the largest nation of all."

Dr. Van Epps Gives SUI 41 Paintings Valued at $10,000

Forty-one paintings valued at $10,000 have been given to the university by Dr. Clarence Van Epps of Iowa City.

Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the art department, recently selected the paintings from the Van Epps collection.

The paintings in the gift include work by present and former faculty members of the art department. Max Ballinger, Stuart Edie, Emil Ganso, Philip Guston, Mauricio Lasansky, James Lechay, Fletcher Martin and Grant Wood are represented.

The collection also contains paintings and sketches by many prominent students who have studied at Iowa, such as Lee Allen, Byron Burford, Ernest Freed, Stephen Greene, James McConnell, David Mitchell and Joyce Wahl.

A formal exhibition and presentation of the collection is planned for Dec. 7, according to Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts.

Van Epps purchased the paintings while he was head of the department of neurology. He is now professor emeritus in the neurology department.

According to Harper, Van Epps is regarded as one of Iowa's foremost art patrons.

Federal Board Asks Time-Buying Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal reserve board yesterday asked congress for authority to regulate installment buying permanently.

Last night the government's bank supervisory authorities asked the nation's 15,000 banks to curtail "all loans for speculation in real estate, commodities or securities."

There have been no statutory restrictions on installment buying since Nov. 1.

Charges Them With Contempt Of Congress

Supports Committee On Un-American Acts By 346 to 17 Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—In rapid-fire order, the house yesterday, voted contempt citations against 10 Hollywood script writers, directors and producers who refused to say "yes" or "no" when asked whether they were Communists.

By sending the citations to the U. S. district attorney for prosecution, the house by a 346 to 17 vote backed its committee on un-American activities, which had questioned the men in its investigation of alleged communism in Hollywood.

Maximum punishment for contempt of congress is a year in jail and $1,000 fine.

The 10 contend that by inquiring into their political beliefs, the committee was violating the constitution.

Rep. Thomas (R-N. J.), committee chairman, told the house the 10 were subpoenaed "because our investigation had disclosed that they were Communists or had long records of Communist affiliation and activities."

Fifteen Democrats, one Republican and the lone American-Laborite member opposed the citation of Albert Maltz, the only case in which there was a roll-call vote. Favoring it were 209 Republicans and 137 Democrats.

In Hollywood last night the 10 screen personalities issued a joint statement expressing the opinion that "the Thomas-Rankin committee succeeded today in having the congress cite the bill of rights for contempt."

Others cited were Alvah Bessie, Herbert Biberman, Lester Cole, Edward Dmytryk, Ring Lardner Jr., John Howard Lawson, Samuel Ornitz, Adrian Scott, and Dalton Trumbo.

Marshall Is Urged To Seek Showdown On German Unity

LONDON (AP)—Top American advisers urged Secretary of State Marshall on the eve of the foreign ministers conference to seek a quick showdown with Russia on the issues of Austrian independence and German unity, responsible sources said last night.

In the event of a complete deadlock on these subjects Marshall should move to adjourn the conference for a long period, since such an impasse would doom the

Two stories on hopes and prospects of the foreign ministers conference appear on page 6.

Big Four meeting in any event, the advisers were reported to have told him.

Many observers believe the conference, which will open at 9:30 a. m. CST today, may be the last four-power attempt to reach unified peace settlements with Germany and Austria.

The foreign ministers are expected to devote tomorrow's session to discussion of an agenda—a matter on which their deputies were unable to agree in preliminary talks.

Marshall conferred yesterday with all his top advisers thrashing out some problems at a 3-hour luncheon given by Ambassador Lewis Douglas. Included were Republican Advisor John Foster Dulles, Ambassador Robert Murphy and General Lucius D. Clay, American commander in Germany.

Informants said Marshall's advisers fear a prolonged, acrimonious debate on Austrian independence and German unity might result not only in a breakup of the council of foreign ministers but collapse of the Allied control council. This would leave no machinery to mend the split in Germany.

Plane Lands Safely

DETROIT, (Tuesday) (AP)—A Northwest airlines DC-4, en route here from New York with 12 passengers, landed safely at Willow Run airport at 12:05 a. m. today after its pilot had radioed that one of his four engines was acting up and that there was some danger of fire.

Stassen Launches Campaign With Mixed 8-Point Program

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Harold E. Stassen formally launched his campaign for the Republican presidential nomination last night with a plan to blend "liberal, forward looking proposals" with conservative attitudes.

The former Minnesota governor offered an eight-point domestic and international program to overcome "boom or bust tendencies."

Stassen gave top priority to housing and what he termed "lack of adequate health service" in outlining his program.

"Everyone on social security should be covered by an insurance that will pay duly verified and reasonable bills which are incurred for medical and hospital expenses in excess of $250 in any one year," he said.

"Through this means the economic catastrophe that comes with major illness or accident is removed, but the entire independence of the medical profession and the personal responsibility of the individual citizen for his ordinary expense is retained."

Development of huge projects "of as many as 25,000 units" on contract by private builders, with furnished dwellings sold to owner occupiers and investors would alleviate the housing shortage, Stassen maintained.

Stassen listed six other policies which he said must be inaugurated to prevent the boom and bust tendencies of our "free economy."

They included: Reduction in taxes to specifically give a break to small new businesses. Maintenance of consumer credit control.

Insistence that agriculture never be permitted to be distressed. A labor policy "that is fair and just and maintains a balance between individually managed capital and free organized labor."

Affirmative backing of the United Nations, making clear "we would never follow a policy of appeasement toward anyone."

Elimination of Communist infiltration in America.

Says Russ Hoard Gold

NEW YORK (AP)—The Soviet Union has a hoard of gold, to combat the Marshall plan, Economist Charles Prince writes in the December issue of The United Nations World.

Ralph Massey on a draft card, Raphael Mazy on an employment card from Todd shipyards, Brooklyn.

In New York, a woman identifying herself as Mrs. Ralph Massey, said her husband was unemployed, had never been arrested, never was in trouble.

"He had no friends and stayed quietly at home," she added. "And he never complained of heart trouble."

The latter was given tentatively as the cause of death, but further investigation was ordered. Another puzzle, police said, was the fact that two expensive suits—one made by a London tailor—were found in a second suitcase, but neither would fit Massey.

Police claimed to have taken 32 ounces of pure heroin from the man's luggage, and experts valued it at $220,000 or more, depending on how extensively it was cut. Normally, they said, it would be retailed mixed with sugar and milk in a 10-1 ratio, at upward of $7 a grain.

Several points contributed to the general confusion. William J. Craig, agent in charge of the treasury department's Southern California bureau of narcotics, said the man, apparently victim of a heart attack, had been identified as Ralph Marcel, 45, Brooklyn, who was convicted in New York in 1928 and 1932 of dope smuggling. Craig said other names found in the victim's effects were Ralph Massey, on a social security card,

THERE WAS NEVER ANY "IMPROPRIETY" in her relations with Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, said Mrs. B. H. LaMarre, pictured with her husband, in a copyrighted interview published yesterday by The Dayton, Ohio, Journal. "His statements are all lies," declared Mrs. LaMarre, a former college beauty queen. "I have gone no further than any other wife goes in an effort to see her husband get ahead with his boss." (AP WIREPHOTO)

Meyers Faces Court-Martial

WASHINGTON (AP)—The army and the justice department joined forces last night in a crushing crackdown on Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, retired air force purchasing officer. His private wartime activities were denounced by Air Secretary Symington as "one of the most shocking scandals ever exposed in the history of our government."

In addition, the officer faced a probable lawsuit brought by Pretty Mrs. Mildred LaMarre, who flatly denied Meyers' testimony to senate war investigators that she was his "girl friend." "A suit for slander seems the only answer," she told reporters.

Acting only two days after the senate committee heard final testimony that Meyers made $150,000 from a secretly owned war subcontracting plant while he was active in purchasing for the air force, Symington announced:

1. The $461 monthly pension which Meyers has been receiving since he retired from the army in 1945 on disability grounds—be lieved to be a "girl friend" of Meyers, said she was his "girl friend."

2. Steps are being taken to strip the florid, fast-talking general of his military decorations—the distinguished Service medal and the Legion of Merit.

3. Meyers will be tried by an air force court-martial.

Immediately afterwards, the justice department announced it would go before a federal grand jury here today and seek indictments against Meyers.

Symington said there was "no indication whatever that Meyers' irregularities were known by any of his superiors, or that there was reason why they should have been known."

Barbers, Long-Hairs Stalled

Two Iowa City barber representatives and a seven-man Long-Hair committee failed to agree yesterday in a discussion of the local barber's recent 25-cent haircut price increase. The group met in an Iowa Union conference room.

Sam Bishop, A2, Churdan, Long-Hair chairman, said society members still will not get haircuts in Iowa City, but that picketing will be discontinued until members vote at a special meeting at 4:30 p.m. today in the Union.

A plane will drop leaflets on the Iowa City business district this afternoon suggesting that all local men get the "new look," according to Long-Hair Dave Taylor, A2, Derby.

Frank Spratt, president of the Iowa City Master Barbers association, represented shop owners at the meeting, and Paul Frazier, employe at Carl's barbershop, spoke for local journeymen.

"The journeymen in my shop are making from $45 to $54 per week," Spratt said. "That's about the average pay for a barber working 55 to 60 hours a week. No man can maintain a family on less than that today."

Bishop told the barbers that, at the current price, students will not get haircuts.

"They're just going to have to let it grow," Spratt answered. "We can't do anything about it."

"Could you say that local barbers give an average of three haircuts per hour?" Paul Opstad, A2, Iowa City, asked Spratt.

"I wish they did," Spratt replied.

"You're losing money now because of the haircut price increase?" Don Newbrough, A2, Eagle Grove, asked Frazier.

"That may be true," Frazier said.

Newbrough added that most students will not get haircuts as long as the price remains high.

"When they reduce the cost of living, we will be glad to reduce the cost of haircuts," Spratt declared. "It's a nation-wide problem."

In addition to Bishop, Opstad, Taylor, and Newbrough, other Long-Hair committee members were Tom Dorsey, A2, Keokuk; Robert Van Nostrand, A2, West Branch, and Fred Kelly, A3, Sioux City.

Chappuis, Elliott, Yerges All Gain Backfield Berths

CHICAGO (AP)—Title-winning Michigan placed four players, sweeping three backfield berths, to dominate the all-Big Nine football team selected for the Associated Press yesterday by conference coaches.

Dethroned Illinois was awarded three positions and one each went to Indiana, Wisconsin, Purdue and Minnesota.

The balloting failed to produce a single unanimous choice, although Bob Chappuis, the sole repeater from last year's honor team, and Chalmers (Bump) Elliott, Michigan's great halfbacking duo, and Guard Leo Nomellini of Minnesota each missed only one first team vote for 16 out of 18 possible points.

Iowa, Ohio State and Northwestern all missed getting a call on either the first or second teams.

Howard Yerges, unsung signal-calling strategist of Michigan's bewildering attack, was named quarterback and hard-hitting Russ Steger of Illinois won the No. 1 fullback post.

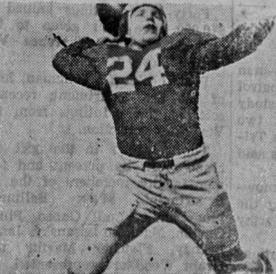

Nomellini, at 238 pounds, was the biggest man selected in the line. End Bob Mann of Michigan was the lightest man selected. The great pass receiver weighs a scant 168 pounds.

Ike Owens of Illinois, the other selection at end, was also named most valuable player on the Illinois team for the Chicago Tribune's award given to the most valuable player in the conference. The Negro star, who is 27 years old, is the oldest man on the team. Robert Wilson, Wisconsin center, is a mere 18 years old.

Four Iowa players received honorable mention in the balloting. They were Hal Shoener, end; Bill Kay, tackle; Joe Grothus, guard and Bob Smith, back.

Dolphins Pick 11 Men For Florida Trip

Eleven Iowa university swimmers will travel to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., during Christmas vacation to attend the National Collegiate Athletic association's swimming conference.

The squad, led by Coach David Ambruster, will leave Iowa City by car Dec. 20. They will arrive in Fort Lauderdale three days later for the opening conference meeting. Dolphin President Donald Holmwood announced.

Numerous discussions and swimming demonstrations will be held during the week long session. In the past these sessions have been of considerable value to the Hawks, Holmwood said.

The meet will be climaxed New Year's day with an East-West swimming meet comprised of the top swimmers at the conference.

The trip is financed by the proceeds from the Dolphins aquatic show held Homecoming weekend. Those who will make the trip are: Wally Ris, Chicago, Ill.; Bill McDonald, Chicago, Ill.; Dick Lake, Rockford, Ill.; O. Larry Larrimore, Des Moines; Duane Draves, Los Angeles, Calif.; Ervin Straub, St. Louis, Mo.; Paul Huting, St. Louis, Mo.; Penfield Mower, Rockford, Ill.; Dick Maine, Des Moines; Dave Brookaway, Marshalltown, and Vito Lopin, Buffalo, N. Y.

Intramural Swimming, Basketball Dates Set

With all intramural touch football games out of the way except for a few professional fraternity contests, basketball and swimming are slated to start Dec. 2.

The university pool will be open week for practice, the intramural from 7 to 9 p. m. every night this office announced.

In basketball each housing unit or section is allowed heavy or lightweight teams with the line of division this year set down to 150 pounds.

Volleyball games for today: 7:30 p.m.—Delta Sigma Delta vs. Phi Delta Kappa; North Grand vs. South Grand; 8:15 p.m.—Alpha Chi Sigma vs. winner of Delta Sigma Delta game.

Defeat St. Peter's Of Keokuk, 40-29

By JOHN C. MCINTOSH
St. Mary's Ramblers had to break out the long range artillery in the second half last night to overcome a two point half time deficit and gain a victory over St. Peter's Hilltoppers of Keokuk, 40-29.

It was the fourth straight win for Coach Frank Suelpell's boys, and the first defeat for the Hilltoppers in five starts.

In the first quarter the Hilltoppers weren't able to find the basket until 7 minutes and 37 seconds had elapsed. The second quarter was just the reverse, as the Ramblers didn't hit for a single goal, and St. Peter's led at the half, 14-12.

Led by the long shots of Flannery, the Ramblers pulled into 24-20 third quarter lead.
The final period was all St. Mary's, as they poured in 16 points, while holding the Hilltoppers to five.

The final outcome was made possible by the Ramblers forcing

Notre Dame Regains Top Spot

No Superstition on Hawkeye Cage Team; Jersey Nos. Changed

It is generally conceded that athletes are a superstitious lot. But Iowa's cagers aren't falling in line with such a generalization this year.

That conclusion can be drawn from the almost wholesale change of jersey numbers among the Hawkeye court stars.

In the past that sort of thing just hasn't happened, according to Publicity Director Eric Wilson, who has been writing about the Hawks for 23 years. For example, Herb Wilkinson insisted on wearing number 28 when he came here, the number he wore on Utah's NCAA championship team. And he wore that number at Iowa for three years.

Of this year's team members, only Stan Straatsma will be wearing his old jersey number 9. Other team members will be sporting new numbers. Murray Wier, who has worn number 3 for three seasons, explained his change to number 17 by saying simply, "the other jersey is too small."

The only flashes of superstition shown were provided by Jack Spencer and "Bucky" Harris. Spencer will sport number 7, Dick Ives' old jersey, and Harris will wear number 28, the Wilkinson standby. Both hope to carry on in the manner of their all-American predecessors.

Boudreau Signs Contract

CLEVELAND (AP)—Lou Boudreau yesterday signed "what virtually amounts to a two-year contract to manage the Cleveland Indians," Tribe President Bill Veeck announced last night.

Irish Edge Wolverines For Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Notre Dame's resounding 59-6 rout of Tulane sent the fighting Irish back into the No. 1 spot in the weekly Associated Press poll of football writers in a close finish with the powerful Michigan Wolverines.

Of the 192 participating this week, 97 put Notre Dame in first place and 81 voted for Michigan with southern Methodist drawing six firsts, Southern California and North Carolina, three each, and Penn State and Columbia, each one.

Notre Dame's margin in the total point column, compiled on the basis of 10 points for a first place vote and so on down to 1 for a 10th place ballot, was even closer. The Irish had 1798 points to 1768 for Michigan which led last week with 140 of 246 votes.

Just as Michigan had moved out front a week ago by its comfortable triumph over Wisconsin while Notre Dame was squeezing past Northwestern, so the Wolverines dropped supporters, apparently on the basis of comparative scores.

Southern Methodist held tight to third position by its 10-0 win over Baylor and Southern California, which clinched the Pacific coast crown by a 6-0 decision over UCLA continued in fourth position. Penn State remained fifth after its closing 29-0 conquest of Pittsburgh that finished out its first all-winning season since 1912.

The total vote with points figured on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis (first place votes in parentheses)

1. Notre Dame (97)	1798
2. Michigan (81)	1768
3. Southern Methodist (60)	1562

St. Pat's Ready for Cage Opener Tonight

A small but speedy St. Patrick's basketball team will take the court tonight for its season opener. The Shamrocks, under the direction of their new coach, Father R. J. Pacha, will meet Cosgrove here. In the forecourt Father Pacha will probably start Roy Duffy and Bobby Grady. Both are lettermen from last year's team.

Vince Dalton will get the nod at the center spot. Dalton, another letterman, stands six feet, two inches and is the only man on the 12-man squad above the six-foot mark.

At guards Father Pacha will start Mert Herdliska and Bernard O'Connor. Herdliska is a two-year veteran while O'Connor is a newcomer to the team.

Joseph Budreau should see considerable action at guard and Tommy Falls may be used at either a center or forward spot. Earl Cooney, Alvin Streb, Leo Sorenson, Clayton Michael and William Emanuel, all sophomores, will probably see action.

The exact strength of the Cosgrove five is not known here. Last

Chairman Luther Burket drew up a tentative list of committees to lay ground work for the show. Dads and Jaycees will contact club members this week to set on finance, publicity, bleacher and chair, ring and lighting and ticket committees.

The organization committee is also looking for judges and a timer for the bouts.

Trainer McNally will start getting the boxers into condition in a few weeks, Burket said. Survivors of the local show will compete in the sectional go at Cedar Rapids Feb. 10th, 11th and 12th.

The boxers will work out Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights for five weeks. Extra Saturday and Sunday sessions will be held the last two weeks.

The committee allowed five days between the Iowa City bouts and the sectional show so the boys would have plenty of rest between fights.

week they suffered a one-point loss at the hands of Parnell in their opener.

Father Pacha said yesterday that the Cosgrove quintet will undoubtedly be big and rugged. But he indicated that he was not too worried about the outcome if his charges could stand the rugged play.

Vocational Conference Slated In March for SUI Women

Vocational conferences, sponsored annually by the University Women's association, will be held March 5 and 6, Jean Strong, chairman, announced yesterday.

The conferences are designed to give students definite information on vocational opportunities and on the preparation necessary for entrance and advancement in the various occupations, Miss Strong explained.

Speakers will be men and women engaged in the fields, she said.

The conferences, planned for Friday and Saturday morning, will cover the fields of commerce, dress design, journalism, radio, social work, organization work, hospital occupations and opportunities in teaching.

The last three conferences will be panels, with organization work including church, YWCA, girl scouts and campfire girls; hospital occupations including occupational therapy, physical therapy and nursing and pre-school, physical education, speech pathology and home economics covered in teaching.

According to present plans, representatives from Iowa colleges and junior colleges will be invited to the conferences, Miss Strong said.

Margaret Foster, Cedar Rapids; Joan Perry, Ottumwa, and Carol Shuttleworth, New York, N. Y., were named as freshman members of the central planning committee.

Weather to Blame In Many Weekend Automobile Wrecks

Bad weather figured in most of six accidents here over the weekend, according to Iowa City police reports.

Mrs. Norman E. Pederson, West Branch, received minor bruises when the car driven by her husband ran into the back of a parked mail truck Saturday evening on Melrose avenue. The truck was driven by Byron A. Schottelius, A2, 613 N. Gilbert street.

Pederson said the car was on the back of the truck covered the rear lights, making the truck invisible. Damage to the Pederson car was estimated at $400.

Early Sunday morning Edwin L. Krause, G, Quad Cottage No. 25, hit an improperly parked car at the intersection of Washington and Gilbert streets, causing $200 damage to the front end of his automobile.

The report did not list the owner of the parked car, but the right rear fender and rear bumper were damaged. No one was injured.

Cars driven by James L. Cooper, A2, 702 N. Dubuque street, and Francis Lehman, 532 S. Dubuque street, collided in west Iowa City on Highway 6 Saturday morning, causing $70 damage to both cars.

The accident report said Cooper's car was stalled and not parked completely off the highway. An approaching vehicle made it impossible for Lehman, traveling in the same direction as Cooper, to avoid the collision. No one was injured.

A three-car collision Sunday morning at the Prentiss and Dubuque street intersection involved a car driven by Donald D. Paul, L1, Law Commons; a Swann Dairy truck driven by Wilbur J. Phelps, 1128 E. Washington street, and an unidentified parked car.

Both rear fenders and the rear bumper of the Paul car were damaged, and the left front fender and front bumper were damaged on the truck, according to the report. Damage to the parked car was not given. No one was injured.

Saturday night a truck driven by Raymond F. Kennedy, 110 E. Benton street, collided with a car driven by Charles M. Edgett, Omaha, near Tiffin. Damage to the truck was $150 and to the Edgett car, $50.

According to the accident report, Edgett suddenly turned at an intersection as the truck was attempting to pass. No signaling was given as the cause of the accident.

Damage estimated at $142 resulted Sunday morning when cars driven by Aaron Stoddard, C4, Cedar Rapids, and Elmer Stock Jr., route 4, collided at the intersection of Lucas and Burlington streets.

Both drivers gave icy roads as the cause of the accident. No one was injured, but damage to the Stoddard car was $72, and to the Stock automobile, $60.

Swimmers have crossed the English channel 25 times, ten women and 14 men having made the crossing, one man twice.

Seven IC Teachers Get Red Cross Certificates

Seven Iowa City teachers are among Johnson county teachers who have Junior Accident Prevention instructor's certificates, according to Harold Parker, local Red Cross accident prevention chairman.

The teachers completed six hours of training for the certificates last month at a course conducted by Edmond Haapenniemi, field representative from St. Louis, Mo.

Iowa City teachers qualifying for the certificates were Elizabeth J. Countryman and Irene C. Fousek, Horace Mann school; Charlotte Davis, Esther Garwick and Lillian Harbison, junior high; and Avis P. Reynolds and Donald L. Seavy, Longfellow.

Wild turkeys, in the old days of American colonization, used to sell at 6 to 25 cents each.

Campus Chest Plans Form

An attempt will be made to contact every student during the Campus Chest Drive Dec. 1-5, according to Joy Bowers, general solicitations chairman.

Final plans for the drive will be discussed by the student council tonight at 7:30 in Old Capitol. The council will also consider a long-range program for sending cheerleaders to out-of-town football games next year.

Members of the Chest executive committee not previously announced include Aaron Jones, A2, entertainment chairman, and Cliff Richards, A4, general secretary.

Groups representing Hillcrest, the Quadrangle, South Quad, Madison court, Currier and Town Men met yesterday to discuss procedures for soliciting one dollar from every student on campus.

Test Pain-Killing Drug at SUJ

8 Students Serve as Human Guinea Pigs

Among the latest drugs developed as possible replacements for morphine are two being tested at University hospital.

Dr. E. G. Gross of the pharmacology department is running a series of experiments to learn how well the drugs—whose names are so long they are called by number—will kill pain.

Previous experiments with animals by Gross and the Hoffman-LaRoche company indicate the new drugs may kill pain without forming drug habits as morphine does.

Gross is working under a grant from the company that developed the drugs.

His pre-clinical subjects are eight medical students. They are taking the drugs in a series of "pain threshold" tests.

In the pain tests, a light is directed to a spot on the subject's forehead. The light is gradually increased in intensity. When it reaches a certain brightness, it produces pain. The brightness of the light at this point is recorded.

By giving the light test without the drug and then with varying amounts of it, Gross can determine its usefulness in relieving pain.

While Gross works with his healthy subjects, Dr. Elizabeth Smith is testing the drugs with real patients who have pain.

One of the drugs has been used with some success by Dr. Smith in child-birth cases.

In spite of early success with dogs, rats and the eight human guinea pigs, Gross warns that the new compounds may not be all he hopes they are.

But if they do turn out well, doctors hope to have a pain killer they can give a suffering patient without danger of developing the drug habit.

Buys Land for VA Hospital

The veterans administration has agreed to pay $133,045.21 for 13 acres of state-owned land in Iowa City, on which to build a veterans hospital, the state board of education announced yesterday.

Director of the VA real estate service division William Z. Bowie wrote Dave Dancer, secretary of the board, accepting the state's offer for the land, according to The Associated Press.

The project reportedly will cost about $8,000,000 and have a 500-bed capacity. The site on which the VA plans to build is north of University hospital and west of Psychopathic hospital on the west side of the campus.

Observers here believe Bowie's acceptance will assure transfer of the land to the federal government. The government previously objected to certain restrictions attached to transfer of the land.

University officials met last month in Des Moines with members of the executive council, the state board of education and M. B. Wilson, head of the condemnation and purchasing section of the veterans administration. Restrictions on the land were removed at that time.

The contract will be transferred to the department of justice to check its legality, Bowie said in his letter of acceptance.

Mosse Hits Probes by Thomas Group

"The Thomas committee on un-American activities conflicts with the aim of the writers of the constitution which was to safeguard the liberty of conscience," according to Dr. George Mosse of the history department.

Mosse spoke last night before 50 members of the Johnson County chapter of the Progressive Citizens of America in the council chamber of City hall.

Because it has no concept of communism, the Thomas committee assumes that everyone who disagrees with its personal views is out of tune with the fundamental concepts of the American constitution, Mosse said. Those matters which the founding fathers wanted to safe guard are openly encroached upon.

Mosse added he doesn't think the Thomas committee will hurt civil liberties as much as the loyalty check rule which was recently enacted. This is a much greater menace and totally divorced from constitutional law, he said.

"By the one sided concept of fundamental liberties as equating it with the denial of any social action, a government committed by force to a static concept of society, will, of course, force discontent into radical channels.

"Thus the middle ground will be whittled away and with it those guarantees which the constitution has been set up to preserve.

"The danger of the Thomas committee, much more real than the danger of communism lies in the invasion of this fundamental concept.

"In destroying its effectiveness, and thus in opening the door to arbitrary government of every kind . . . none of us will exist as 'free men,' . . . but only as slaves, if at all," Mosse declared.

Confine Opinion to Editorial Columns, SUI Forum Agrees

Majority opinion on WSUP's international radio forum last night agreed that opinions of the press should be confined to editorial pages.

Ranjana Sidhanta, G. Lucknow, India, advocated government ownership to make the press responsible, maintaining that in a democracy the state represents the common interests of its people. She said that a responsible press is more important than a free press.

Ali Esfandiari, Iran, on the other hand, said he would rather have a free, unrestricted press than a responsible press, if there had to be that choice.

Eric Raestad, Norway, thought the only way people can judge the press is to see both sides. He explained that people in Norway read papers edited by both Laborites and Conservatives.

One member of the forum said

SUI Pet Owners To Meet Hancher

Story Behind Pet Ruling Is Reviewed

By CARL BERGER

Here's the story behind the squabble about the "no pets" ruling that will come under discussion today when pet owners in SUI housing units meet with university President Virgil M. Hancher.

Back in the autumn of 1946, when Hawkeye village was just emerging from the mud, numerous complaints about pets and strays led the village council to request housing officials to put a "no pet" clause into the leases. This was done.

According to Bob Brose, former University Married Students organization committeeman and a member of the barracks-apartment council, the most common complaint stemmed from unsanitary conditions created by the pets in those areas where children played.

Almost at every meeting of the barracks-apartment council, Brose said, the question of pets came up. But university and housing officials were "so darn busy" getting the veterans into trailers and barracks and organizing the areas that the matter of pets was set aside, Brose said.

According to R. J. Cotter, manager of married student housing, "We considered housing more important than chasing dogs."

The situation remained officially quiet until mid-summer, 1947, when "numerous" complaints led Cotter and R. E. Sweitzer, manager of off-campus housing, to approach the UMISO interim committee for aid in enforcing the ban against pets.

The council answered, according to Brose, that the committee was not an enforcing body and was not the leaseholder. It was up to the university, the council thought, to enforce the clause in the lease.

Then on July 1, 1947, a letter was sent to all chairmen of the individual housing councils urging each council to "rigidly" enforce the provision of the contract banning pets. The letter was signed by Dr. M. E. Barnes, director of the university hospital's department of hygiene and preventive medicine. It was based on a report made by Barnes, June 30, in which he recommended that no pets be housed in temporary housing areas "due to the danger of disease."

Acting upon this letter, several of the councils conducted polls to determine how their residents felt about the issue of pets.

The results of the poll in Riverdale were:

Do not enforce ban ..... 84 residents.

Enforce ban ..... 54 residents.

No not enforce (with reservations) ..... 8 residents.

Martin Dimbat, former chairman of Riverdale council, wrote the results in a letter addressed to the university department of housing. In the letter he pointed out that the council was elected by a majority and could be recalled by the majority.

Since the majority favored keeping the pets, Dimbat argued, the council felt it could not enforce the ban. Dimbat took copies of this letter (dated July 9) to Cotter and Sweitzer.

According to Sweitzer, Dimbat, after presenting the letter, was told the university could "do nothing just then without the support of the council."

"But we made it clear," Sweitzer said, "that our action was no guarantee the clause wouldn't be enforced in the future."

Dimbat agreed with this. "I came away," he said, "with the impression they were not going to enforce the rule, but also that they wouldn't guarantee not enforcing it at some future date."

Cotter also emphasized he never told anyone they could keep pets. "I told them the clause in their lease prohibits pets," Cotter asserted. "I said to date we haven't enforced it, but that was no promise we wouldn't enforce it in the future."

The matter was then brought before the attention of all housing officials who "thoroughly" considered the problem, T. M. Rehder, director of dormitories, said. The decision, after long consideration, was to enforce the ruling.

But by this time September had rolled around and new students flocked to the campus.

One of these was R. P. Stephenson, who drove up in his own trailer with Mrs. Stephenson, his young son and his dog.

Here's the story according to Stephenson. "I went up to sign my housing contract and discovered the clause about the pets. I told them I wasn't moving in because I wasn't going to give up my dog."

"They told me to go to the housing office and see them there. I did and the girl in the office said, 'Go ahead and move in. They aren't enforcing the clause.'"

According to Rehder, the girl in the office was given instructions to say the following: "They aren't enforcing the clause at the present time, but it's in the lease and can be enforced at any time."

However, the impression grew among student-residents that they could have pets and several bought dogs after moving into the temporary housing areas.

Again, after the semester started, complaints and incidents involving the pets (such as chasing the iceman and dirtying the areas) were brought to the attention of university officials.

On Nov. 5 an announcement issued from Cotter's office to all temporary housing residents stated the "no pet" clause would be enforced on Dec. 29, because of health reasons and complaints.

The pet owners refused to comply. They charged the university with "administrative ineptness" and pointed to their financial and moral interests in the pets.

Organized to fight enforcement of the ban, the pet owners last Wednesday announced they would retain a lawyer to investigate the legal aspects of their leases.

The university appears determined to enforce the ban and hopes the situation does not become so uncompromising that evictions become necessary.

Waygoose Gazette Sells-Out; Scribes Hear Bergeson 'Talk Back' at Banquet

The Waygoose Gazette is a sell-out, according to Bill Miller, president of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity.

Over 1,500 copies of the burlesque "scandal sheet" were sold before 1:30 p.m. yesterday by members of Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism fraternity for women. Sales were under the direction of Phyllis Smith, A4, Daventry.

Publication of the Gazette came as the climax of the Waygoose banquet, traditional journalism party, held Sunday night at Melody Mill.

At the banquet, students, faculty members and guests heard Rollo Bergeson, Iowa's secretary of state, "talk back" to journalists.

Bergeson declared he suspected that he had been invited to speak because of his reported technique of "throwing raw rhubarb in the faces of people who were expecting warm massages of soft soap and honey."

However, he said he would rather aid in aligning journalists and politicians in the common job—establishing peace, appeasing hunger and restoring good will in the world.

Bergeson pointed out that politicians and journalists are much alike. A candidate for office can compromise himself so far that his ideals will suffer; and the journalist "while his eyes are watching that elusive bird of verity barks his shins on such mundane obstacles as operating costs."

"You can't promote truth with one hand and quackery with another," he warned. "You can't promote equilibrium and justice on your editorial page, and extravagance and self-indulgence on your society page."

There is no substitute for integrity, Bergeson asserted, and the journalist whose gods are money and circulation is as much a pagan as the politician who lusts for position or power.

Bergeson was introduced by Harry Boyd, editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette.

Before the banquet, 15 students were initiated into Sigma Delta Chi in ceremonies at the home of Les Moeller, faculty adviser and director of the school of journalism. They were

Carl Arp, Wayne Schakel, Philip Miller, John Carey, Jack O'Brien, John Mattill, Leonard Stevens, Gilbert Terrill, James Becker, John McDonough, William Zima, Arthur Heusinkveld, Joseph Shouquist, Donald Harrer and Paul Puckett.

The following will be invited to pledge Sigma Delta Chi:

Five 17th Century Paintings Exhibited At SUI Art Building

Five 17th century paintings owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Somers of Riverdale are now on exhibition in the main gallery of the art building, it was announced yesterday.

Also shown are 44 prints made in 17th and 18th century France from the George Binet gallery in New York City.

The Somers' paintings, lent to the art department until spring, were a wedding present from Mrs. Somers' father, a stage designer and painter.

Two of the paintings are water-front landscape scenes by a Venetian master. A Spanish madonna and child, Austrian adoration of the magi, and a German painting are also in the collection.

The French prints shown were made during the reign of Louis XV, when the leadership of portrait engraving passed from the Flemish-Dutch school to French masters.

A gallery tour and lecture by art department Profs. Mauricio Lasansky and William S. Heckscher will be sponsored for the general public by the student art guild tonight at 8 p.m.

The exhibition will end Dec. 1.

McIntosh New President At Idaho State College

Dr. Carl W. McIntosh, an alumnus of the University of Iowa, has been appointed president of Idaho State college at Pocatello, Idaho, according to an announcement by the college.

McIntosh received his master of arts degree and doctorate at the university in 1937 and 1939 respectively. His wife was granted an M.A. degree from the university in 1939.

Africa was a virtual monopoly on diamond production.

Grant Wood Residence Described in New Book

The two story, red brick residence in Iowa City of the late artist Grant Wood is one of 87 distinguished old midwest homes described in a newly-published book by John Drury, a Chicago newspaperman.

Built in 1858, the house at 1142 E. Court street, is now occupied by E. C. Miltner, a local business man, his wife and Dr. Pauline Moore, an Iowa City physician. They acquired the house after Wood's death in 1942.

Drury said the dwelling "has most of the ornamental details of a typical, mid-nineteenth century residence."

Deadline Announced For Army Commissions

Army reserve officers who wish to enter the one-year competitive tour of active duty for regular army commissions must file applications by Nov. 30, M/Sgt. O. A. McClung, army recruiting sergeant, announced today.

Applicants must be reserve officers with two years of formal college or attain a passing score on the armed forces institute test on general education. Age limits vary from 20 to 34 years of age, depending on the branch of service.

The active tour will begin Jan. 15, 1948, McClung said. Applications should be sent to adjutant-general, Washington, 25, D. C.

Young Republicans Attending Rally

Six representatives of the university chapter of the Young Republican league are attending a "Stassen for President" rally in Milwaukee today, according to Walter F. Johnson, A3, executive secretary.

The delegation includes Johnson; George A. Williams, A3; Richard H. Crandall, A2; John D. Loughlin, A3; James G. Schneider, A4, and John R. Elliott, A3.

In addition to the Iowa delegation, representatives from Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota are attending.

Before departing yesterday, Johnson said he would attempt to schedule Stassen for a speech here at the university. Stassen indicated earlier this fall at Des Moines that he would be willing to address University of Iowa students.

Where Cooperation Has Worked

In the midst of dissension and disunion over everything from dogs to football, any example of cooperation between students, university administration and townspeople is likely to be overlooked.

But one particular example of cooperation stands out in an effort to solve the problem of play space for children. One thousand energetic children are housed in the university's eleven temporary housing communities.

The play area is confined to the limits of a trailer or at best a barracks apartment, with limited outside facilities.

Harrassed mothers help on days when the baby sitter can't come; others look for some way to do part-time jobs in order to bring the family income nearer expenses.

There are, of course, some facilities available for the younger-than-school-age child. The university preschools provide excellent training and care for 100 children, at a nominal tuition charge. But the preschools have a capacity enrollment.

A second, more informal play school is held in the Congregational church basement. Here the normal capacity is 50 children, and facilities have been expanded so that ten more children can attend. There's a waiting list for that play school.

There were facilities available—for 160 out of 1,000 children. That was the situation until the American Legion auxiliary, the United Married Students organization, and the university combined their efforts and did something about it.

The Legion auxiliary gave $50 each to twenty different areas in the temporary housing communities to buy lumber for playground equipment. The married students and the university are sharing expenses on a 50-50 basis in buying fences for the playgrounds. Some of the fences are already up; some of the lumber has been delivered. The student fathers will build the equipment, and when the playgrounds are in operation, mothers will share the responsibility of supervising the children.

Now that's a simple solution, isn't it? No one faction has had to do much to make the playground possible. All it took was a little cooperation between the three parties involved. And 1,000 children will have a place to play because of that little bit of cooperation.

Weakness of 'Labeling' the Opposition

Persons who through misunderstanding lump all liberals, dissenters, nonconformists, Socialists and New Dealers into the Communist camp ought to take note of the current French crisis.

There it appears that a deliberate Communist tactic is to promote the crippling strikes with the hope of spreading disorder and chaos. That is Communist technique tried and true.

But it's interesting to note the bitter opposition the Communist move has stirred up in Socialist ranks. Socialists traditionally have differed fundamentally with Communists.

The Socialists want their program instituted through peaceful persuasion. The Communists insist on violent direct action with the hope that in the midst of an economic crisis they can seize power.

The Socialist newspaper El Populaire declared in its Sunday edition that "in application of orders received in Warsaw and carrying out an orchestrated plan from Belgrade the Communist party is taking note of the current French crisis."

That ought to give caution to persons who tend to think in terms of labels. There's a real difference in the many shades of political thinking. Some of those who pride themselves on being "liberals" resent the easy way their opponents dismiss them as "Communists."

And yet these same persons will in the next breath characterize all their opponents as "Fascists." That's the easy way out. When the going gets rough, the easiest thing is to make some particular person or institution the scapegoat.

But it's a dangerous weakness—born out of a cowardly unwillingness to know exactly what one's opponents do stand for.

Not Getting the Spanking Hurt

Newspapermen who expected to get "raked over the coals" by Rollo Bergeson in his address at the Sigma Delta Chi banquet Sunday were disappointed.

Bergeson's reputation as the politician who talks back has been built on several speeches sharply critical of groups he addressed. The newspapermen hoped for some of the same, but didn't get it.

Newspapermen themselves know there's plenty they can be criticized for, and most honest journalists are more than anxious for candid criticism.

Bergeson faintly touched on a few sore spots, such as papers more anxious for the advertising dollar than the news story which would enable its readers to know the truth.

But mostly he fell victim to the politician's chief refuge—platitudes fit for a king and generalities broad enough to skate on. He was about as specific as a national political platform.

It reminded us of the reprimands we knew mother would instruct dad to give us when he came home from the office. We expected them to be rough, and when they weren't—it still hurt. We were disappointed.

Russia's Battle for Time

By RELMAN MORINE
The Russian seldom looks where he's really aiming. And so, as Mr. Molotov sits in London at this moment, he may be talking about one thing but he is thinking about another. Apparently, he is striving to reach an agreement on Germany, but very probably his only real interest in such an agreement is to see that it is not achieved.

His real objective lies elsewhere. What he must get, in this meeting of the foreign ministers, is exactly what he had to get, and did, in all the other meetings—time, lots of time, an indefinite delay on all vital decisions.

Why? Because, without a peace treaty, Germany cannot recover, and without Germany, Europe cannot recover. The industrial resources of that vast and dynamic nation are absolutely vital to the rest of the continent. Until German coal and steel and heavy industry, in quantity, begin to reappear over

'D RATHER BE RIGHT Oh, What a Wonderful Feeling

By SAMUEL GRAFTON
New York Post Syndicate

Harry did not regard himself as unduly sensitive, but he was annoyed whenever the boss sent him on an errand. The errand boy stuff hurt his feelings; it made his work in the office seem unimportant.

Today the summons had come at three thirty; he was to go uptown and get somebody to sign something. It had gone well. The client hadn't kicked or screamed or objected, and at four ten Harry had the executed paper in his pocket.

Then suddenly it hit him, what he called his feeling mood. Sometimes he could save it by having a long, peaceful drink in a quiet bar, or by buying a new hat. It was the desire to have something perfect and good in his kind.

The mood was likely to cost him a few dollars whenever it struck, and he was, by now, wary of that. He was on the upper East Side, and he became aware of a neighborhood movie house churning quietly away across the street. That could be it. The boss would hardly expect him to come racing back for five o'clock closing. He could see the film, an old Hitchcock, and still make it home in time for early dinner. Two pleasant hours in the dark, with something going on that was exciting and not important. Cheaper than a drink.

He crossed over to the theatre, and examined the posters. Someone came out of an eat shoppe next door to the theatre and stood beside him. "Hello, Harry," said the man. He was wearing an usher's or ticket taker's suit.

It took Harry a couple of blinks. "Phil!" he said. "Still in uniform, huh?" Phil pointed to the theatre. "Work in there," he said. "Best I could get."

Very slowly, like a fluid mounting in a vessel, a strange feeling started down near Harry's stomach, and climbed up. He hated Phil. They had never gotten along in the Army. One of those silly, bitter rivalry things, and it had lasted through training and across France.

"Not much money," said Phil, "but the hours are long." His shoes weren't good. Nothing looks worse than a shabby uniform. Harry began to remember something about a weekend leave for Paris that hadn't come off for him. Phil had drawn one, all right. Phil always did; a great little nagler.

It had been a desolate weekend in camp, after he had seen Phil go off to Paris. Harry remembered dimly, now, that he had been struck by the same strange but familiar luxury mood during that weekend, long ago. He had bought a pair of binoculars, he didn't need, for twenty dollars, and had spent the whole weekend admiring them. They hadn't been as good as Paris, and later they had grown distasteful to him.

"Going in to see the 'show'?" asked Phil. "No," said Harry abruptly. "Oh, no. Have to get back to the office."

He hurried off to the downtown subway, and surprised himself on the way by laughing. It wasn't much of a trip, he could make it in fifteen minutes.

Here in America more and more men will say... that war with Russia is inevitable... To me their attitude is a symptom of grave danger because, once the American people close their minds on this subject war, in fact, will have become inevitable.

I do not mean to say that the United States may start a preventive war against Russia within the next six months; what I mean to say is that if the present trend continues for six months, a fateful change might take root in the minds of the American people and the situation would then be beyond remedy.

Behind Scenes at Big-4 Meeting France Faces 'Last Chance'

PARIS (AP)—France is entering what her foreign minister terms the "last chance" meeting of the foreign ministers of the Big Four. She is hopeful of a common four-power agreement with the United States, Russia and Great Britain on the future of Germany and Austria but is prepared to break off toward the west if necessary. The French believe this may be necessary, although in public statements, French spokesmen maintain a hopeful front.

Foreign Minister Georges Bidault will be sitting down at the foreign ministers' meeting in London today at a time of political uncertainty at home. Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier has just resigned, and Robert Schuman has taken his place.

Schuman belongs to Bidault's popular republican movement (MRP). This party, once the strongest opposition in France to the Communists, lost ground in last month's municipal elections to the new rally of the French people (RPF), headed by Gen. Charles De Gaulle. In addition, the Communists, who voted against Schuman when the French parliament confirmed his nomination, have been encouraging widespread strikes, and they belong to the nine-nation Communist international information organization.

This won't be the first time the dapper little Bidault has represented his country at an international meeting while political changes were under way in France. Once, during the 1946 peace conference in Paris, he even accepted the premier's job himself and was helping write a constitution for France while he headed a delegation helping write treaties with Italy, Finland, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

Bidault has been foreign minister in every cabinet since liberation. When he walks into the conference chamber with his portfolio under his arm, he carries the fairly solid support of all the centrist and fighting groups.

While he has maintained the position of the Socialists and Republicans on international politics, Bidault also has played a careful game, guarding the Communists' interests as well. For instance, he never has allowed France to join her occupation zone in Germany to the economically merged British and American zones on the ground that economic unity must be accomplished through agreement of all four occupying powers—Russia included.

In London, France probably will urge political unification of Germany under a loose federation of German states with four main provisions: 1. Germany must be so supervised that she never again can become a threat to France. The French say three invasions within the span of a lifetime, in 1870, 1914 and 1940, entitle them to this guarantee.

2. France must be assured of a sufficient supply of coal from the Ruhr so that she can achieve reconstruction ahead of Germany. A sliding scale agreement with Great Britain and the United States last spring during the Moscow conference of foreign ministers has gone a long way toward satisfying France on this point.

3. The Saar valley, site of important coal mines, must be incorporated within French economy. France has already established a customs inspection along the Saar-German border with France and has substituted francs for the old Saar marks.

4. The Ruhr valley, mainpring of German industrial power, and the west bank of the Rhine must be detached from Germany and the Ruhr must be internationalized. The French say the Rhine-Ruhr should be occupied by Allied armies and directed to form itself into a separate "nation."

Open 'Letter to Stalin'

(Following are excerpts from an open "Letter to Stalin" written by Dr. Leo Szilard which appears in the December issue of the Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists, released to the news stands today. Szilard played a leading role in the development of the atomic bomb. He released the letter for publication, he said, after failing to get permission from the U. S. attorney general to transmit it directly to Stalin.—The Editor.)

I take the step of writing this "letter" because I am deeply concerned about the deterioration of Russian-American relations, and also because I believe that the general sentiment which moves me to this action is shared by the majority of the atomic scientists who take an active interest in matters of public policy.

Here in America more and more men will say... that war with Russia is inevitable... To me their attitude is a symptom of grave danger because, once the American people close their minds on this subject war, in fact, will have become inevitable.

I do not mean to say that the United States may start a preventive war against Russia within the next six months; what I mean to say is that if the present trend continues for six months, a fateful change might take root in the minds of the American people and the situation would then be beyond remedy.

The main reason for the present trend is the fact that two years have passed since the end of the war and no appreciable progress has been made toward a settlement. Russia and the United States have reached a deadlock.

It is within your power to resolve the deadlock and thereby permit a change in the course of United States foreign policy, but you can do this only if you decide to throw off the self-imposed shackles of the old-fashioned forms of diplomacy.

What I am suggesting in this "letter" are a series of interconnected steps which are within your power to take.

My first specific suggestion is that you speak directly and personally to the American people.

That you would be heard by the American people is certain; but how your speeches would affect them would depend both upon the substance and the tenor of these speeches.

What I suggest... is that in your speeches you present to the American people a clear picture of the difficulties which stand in the way of achieving this or even a reasonable substitute thereof are obvious. But in view of their special responsibility it is perhaps not unnatural that atomic scientists should wish to assist in the implementation of some significant endeavor aimed at the permanent establishment of peace.

The English channel was first crossed by air in 1785 when a French balloonist went from England to France.

While he has maintained the position of the Socialists and Republicans on international politics, Bidault also has played a careful game, guarding the Communists' interests as well. For instance, he never has allowed France to join her occupation zone in Germany to the economically merged British and American zones on the ground that economic unity must be accomplished through agreement of all four occupying powers—Russia included.

In London, France probably will urge political unification of Germany under a loose federation of German states with four main provisions: 1. Germany must be so supervised that she never again can become a threat to France. The French say three invasions within the span of a lifetime, in 1870, 1914 and 1940, entitle them to this guarantee.

2. France must be assured of a sufficient supply of coal from the Ruhr so that she can achieve reconstruction ahead of Germany. A sliding scale agreement with Great Britain and the United States last spring during the Moscow conference of foreign ministers has gone a long way toward satisfying France on this point.

3. The Saar valley, site of important coal mines, must be incorporated within French economy. France has already established a customs inspection along the Saar-German border with France and has substituted francs for the old Saar marks.

4. The Ruhr valley, mainpring of German industrial power, and the west bank of the Rhine must be detached from Germany and the Ruhr must be internationalized. The French say the Rhine-Ruhr should be occupied by Allied armies and directed to form itself into a separate "nation."

Secretary of State Marshall, who arrived here Friday, is going into the sessions with what his associates call an "open mind." He has said publicly that he is not pessimistic. What he wants to find out is whether the Russians are now prepared to make any concessions on Germany and whether they will at least agree to an Austrian settlement.

The lineup of the western powers in opposition to Russian demands for $10-billion in German reparations and for a highly centralized German government is now more solid than ever. This may influence the policies of Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in the forthcoming conference. He apparently must decide whether he wants to see a further isolation of Russia from the west.

The Russians' violent opposition to the Marshall plan for European recovery has strengthened rather than hurt the chances for success of that plan. They may find the western powers ready to go ahead in Germany without them.

If the London conference fails, as expected, to make any real progress in solving the German problem all signs indicate that the western powers will begin early next year to form as complete a German government as they can without Russia. This too, Molotov will have to take into account.

On the other hand responsible diplomatic authorities see little chance of going ahead any time in the near future with a so-called "separate peace" with Germany. They say it would be impossible to make a peace which would effectively include eastern Germany as long as Russia occupies that area.

There are 46,000,000 Germans in the western zones and 31,000,000 in the Soviet zone. They cannot be put on ice until next summer while the statesmen argue.

The need for German production as seen by British and American statesmen is inseparably linked with the broader problem of European recovery. But it is only one part of that problem. More immediate issues are Italy and France and the economic well-being of Britain; in short, the overall economic and political health of western Europe.

At the moment the position of America and the other western powers appears strong. East of the "Iron curtain" the Soviets have had to adopt harsh and unpopular measures to liquidate opposition political leaders and tighten the Communist hold on the satellite countries.

West of the Soviet zone of influence they have been losing ground steadily. But what has been a trend since early this year can only become a permanent fact if recovery in the west is accomplished—if the Marshall plan succeeds.

A failure of the recovery program would almost certainly encourage the Soviets to try to grab what they want through direct Communist political action.

Taxpayers To Learn Where Their Money Goes

Voters' Guide Has Answers

By SAM GOTTESFELD
A 50-page Johnson county voters handbook will be distributed free to every family in the county beginning next Monday, the local League of Women Voters announced yesterday.

Entitled "That's Where Our Money Goes," the booklet describes the organization and operation of Iowa City and Johnson county government. Voters who read it can find out where their tax money goes, what they are getting for it and how they can get more for it.

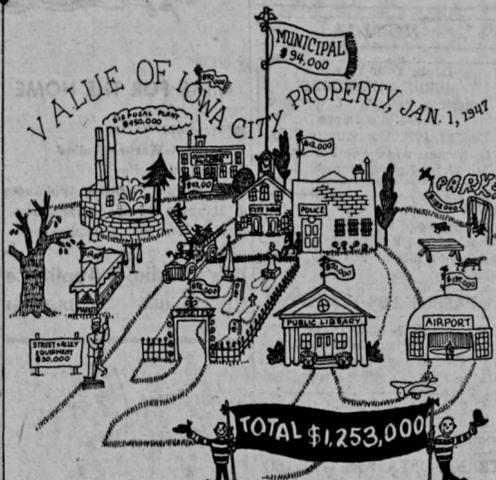

The list of citizens who volunteered their services to produce the handbook reads like a local Who's Who.

Mrs. Leslie Moeller, wife of the director of the university's school of journalism, did the writing. Carroll Coleman of the typography laboratory designed the book. Eleanor Pownall Simmons provided illustrations that help make the handbook not just another dull political text but an interesting and informative survey for every citizen.

The following members of the advisory committee checked the manuscript and made suggestions before the presses began to roll:

University President Virgil M. Hancher, Dean E. T. Peterson of the graduate college, former Mayor W. J. Teeters, Superintendent Iver A. Opstadt of the city schools, Superintendent Fred J. Snyder of the county schools.

Judges James P. Gaffney and Harold D. Evans, Democratic Chairman W. J. Jackson, Republican Chairman F. J. Johnson, W. T. Hageboeck, publisher of the Iowa City Press-Citizen, Emmett

THE VALUE OF IOWA CITY municipal property is illustrated in "That's Where Our Money Goes," the new voter's handbook to be distributed by the local League of Women Voters next Monday. The drawing is by Eleanor Pownall Simmons.

C. Gardner of the Farm Bureau, and D. C. Nolan, former head of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce.

Immediately following a league "launching luncheon" next Monday, some 200 local women will make house-to-house deliveries of the handbook, Mrs. Carlyle Jacobsen, general chairman of the handbook committee, said yesterday. Mrs. George Martin is in charge of Iowa City distribution.

Students who are registered Johnson county voters will receive handbooks free. Copies will also be available at the city hall and public library, according to Mrs. Jacobsen.

Some 15,000 booklets have been printed by the league with the aid of financial contributions from leading citizens, fraternal organizations and business concerns.

Outside Iowa City, about 4,500 copies of the political guide book will be given away, according to Mrs. J. J. Runner, head of county distribution. She said some 1,600 farm families will receive their booklets by mail. In six small towns, Oxford, Tiffin, Solon, North Liberty, Swisher and Lone Tree, local school and community groups will handle distribution.

What began as a League of Women Voters project in the summer of 1946 has blossomed into a community effort. Over $4,000 was collected by a financial committee headed by Mrs. Kenneth MacDonald.

Part of this sum helped the state League of Women Voters publish a handbook dealing with state and national government. This publication will be available

Set IC Quota At $1,800 for Youth Fund

A quota of $1,800 has been set for Iowa City in the financial campaign being conducted by the Iowa Children's Home society, according to Mrs. William Holland, chairman.

Founded in 1888, the Iowa Children's Home society is the official state organization for placing adopted children into permanent homes. Since the depression, the organization has also worked with delinquent children and assisted in the care of problem and dependent children in Iowa.

Mrs. Holland said this is the first year solicitations have been made. Insufficient donations forced the organization to ask for contributions, she said. The campaign will last until Dec. 1.

Three committees, divided into districts, are conducting the Iowa City campaign. Mrs. William Holland is chairman of the business district. Mrs. W. R. Horrabin is in charge of contacting local organizations and Mrs. Byron Coghlan, North Liberty, is contacting organizations immediately outside Iowa City.

Others assisting on the committee are Mrs. Edward Lucas, Mrs. Carl Gillies, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Vincent Harsha, Mrs. Marvin Webster, Mrs. T. M. Rehder, Mrs. F. M. Pownall, Mrs. D. M. Lierle and Mrs. W. W. Mercer.

Anyone not contacted who wishes to contribute is urged to send donations addressed to the Iowa Children's Home society, 222 Savings & Loan building, Iowa City.

Hold Funeral Services Today for S. K. Clark

Samuel K. Clark, 64, Coralville, died Sunday morning at University hospital after a lingering illness.

He was an employee of the Cedar Rapids and Iowa City railway company for 23 years. He was born Feb. 10, 1883.

Surviving besides his widow are two daughters, Virginia Pfister, Chicago, and Florence Dow, Minneapolis, one son, Clyde, Shenandoah, and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. today at the Hohenschuh mortuary with the Rev. Donavan G. Hart in charge. Burial will be in the Coralville cemetery.

Diamonds are believed to have been formed in volcanic eruptions ages ago.

Announce Rules for Registering Guns

All non-standard firearms should be registered with the federal, not the county government, Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy said yesterday.

Numerous inquiries, he said, have been received at his office concerning registration of captured machine pistols and other weapons which are not standard. These weapons, he explained, should be registered with the federal office in Des Moines.

Application blanks can be secured by writing B. F. Wilson, 202 Home Federal Building, Des Moines.

Under the National Firearms act, the following firearms must be registered:

1. All machine guns or machine gun pistols—that is, any weapon capable of firing more than one shot with a single pull of the trigger.
2. Rifles or shotguns, with a barrel less than 18 inches in length, except rifles of .22 caliber or smaller, whose barrel is 16 inches or more in length.
3. Pistol type weapons that are equipped with a shoulder stock attachment.
4. A silencer or muffler for any firearm.

Standard rifles, shotguns, or pistols do not require federal registration.

License 8 To Wed

Marriage licenses yesterday were issued at the Johnson county courthouse to Melvin D. Detweiler, 629 E. Market street, and Evelyn Greazel, 7 W. Burlington street; Leonard T. Cooney, Riverside, and Dorothy M. Greazel, 1125 Rochester avenue; Joseph E. Gorman, Cedar Rapids, and Nellie C. Shertic, Cedar Rapids; Donald Ellsworth Andrews, Cedar Rapids, and Joyce Darlene Fuller, Solon.

Return Two War Dead

Bodies of two servicemen from this area who died in Belgium during the Battle of the Bulge are being returned to their families.

Corwin C. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Clark, 121 E. Burlington street, and Charles L. Ketchum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ketchum of West Branch, are among the war dead due to arrive in New York today aboard the transport Robert Burns.

Pvt. Clark was 27 when he was killed in action as a paratrooper with the 517th airborne division in Belgium on Jan. 5, 1945. His funeral will be held at Knoxville, where he was born and where the family lived before moving to Iowa City. Iowa City VFW post No. 3949 will be in charge of military rites at the ceremony.

Ketchum, an infantryman, was also killed in action in Belgium during January, 1945. The West Branch American Legion post will conduct military rites at his funeral.

City and county public and parochial schools plan to use both handbooks as texts in government and civics classes, Mrs. Jacobsen stated.

The following women collected facts for the booklet directly from such sources as city and county government and school officials, the municipal code and the Code of Iowa:

Taxes, Mrs. O. E. Sikora; education, Mrs. Ray Vanderhoef; county government, Mrs. Evans Worthley; city government, Mrs. Owen T. Edwards and elections, Mrs. John Bradbury.

Mrs. Vincent Nowlis checked the data. Mrs. Robert Sears was general advisor.

Two Men Pay Fines On Speeding Charges

Clair W. Marshall, A4, 507 Kimball road, paid $22.50 and Kenneth R. Lacina, route 2, West Branch, forfeited $25 when they were fined for speeding by Judge Emil G. Trott in police court yesterday. It was Lacina's second offense on this charge.

Harold G. Schwarm, A3, Fairmont, W. Va., paid $4.50 for walking diagonally across an intersection.

Fine West Liberty Man

LeRoy W. Van Zandt, West Liberty, was fined $12.50 by Judge Emil G. Trott yesterday in police court for driving his automobile with defective equipment.
