Tug Wilson Talks at Banquet

Addresses Local Elks, Grid Teams

Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, Western conference commissioner of athletics, was the featured speaker last night at the Iowa City Elks' club as the local Elks honored the football teams of City high and University high with a banquet.

Following a dinner with all the trimmings, Master of Ceremonies Paul Brechler, University of Iowa director of athletics, introduced Lou Alley and Frank Bates, coaches of the two Iowa City teams. The mentors in turn presented their gridders to the gathering.

Then Wilson, who was appointed Big Nine commissioner in 1945 and who is currently vice-president of the 1948 Olympic committee, gave a short talk to the group of Elks and their guests.

After telling a few of his athletic experiences of long ago, Wilson said, "But let's turn to Iowa. Iowa is destined to become great in athletics in the next few years. You have a grand coaching staff here. And you also have a grand young athletic director in Paul Brechler."

Wilson also urged the football players of the two high schools to attend their university here in Iowa City. "I am not campaigning for Iowa," the commissioner declared. "But I do think it is wonderful if athletes attend their own state university."

After the banquet, Wilson was asked if he had any comment on the Purdue freshman football situation which has been brought into the limelight the past few days.

"I'd rather make no comment at this time until I have a chance to go over the facts involved."

Reports have been made by different newspapers and wire services that Purdue has been recruiting an over-abundant number of athletes from Ohio and Illinois. The Boilermaker frosh squad this year, claimed to be one of the biggest and best in the Big Nine, included 14 players from Illinois and 11 from Ohio.

"No official charges have been made by Ohio State and Illinois against Purdue," Wilson said. "We always try to stop these troubles before they get too big. No doubt the situation will receive full investigation at our meeting later this week in Chicago."

However, Wilson said that he understands more than 800 students from Ohio are enrolled at Purdue, and it did not seem unlikely to him that among such a number there should be 11 freshman football players, especially since "the Purdue coach came from Ohio."

St. Patrick's Meet Riverside Quintet

St. Patrick's cagers, after their fourth consecutive win of the season, will meet St. Mary's of Riverside in the high school gym here tonight.

Father R. J. Pacha plans to start the same five that has performed so creditably before this season. Duffy and Grady, diminutive forwards who are pacing the Irish offensively, will be in the forefront. Vince Dalton will start at center and Herdlicka and O'Connor will hold down the guard positions.

So far this season the Riverside five has not shown too potent an attack. Their exact record is not known, but they took a 55-15 walloping from St. Patrick's cross-town rivals, St. Mary's, earlier in the season. Mottel, Riverside center, is reputedly an outstanding ball player and his performance may test the defensive play of Vince Dalton and his understudy, Tommy Falls.

The game will start at 8 p. m., with the preliminary tilt scheduled for 6:45.

Notre Dame Top Team of 1947

Michigan Second; Southern Cal Falls To Eighth Place

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
NEW YORK (AP)—Notre Dame—unbeaten, untied and virtually unchallenged—was selected as the outstanding college football team of 1947 yesterday, winning the honor for the second straight year in the final poll conducted by the Associated Press.

Coch Frank Leahy's Fighting Irish put the finishing touches to their first perfect season since 1930 by crushing Southern California, 38-7, Saturday and left little doubt of their superiority in the minds of a cross section of sports writers from coast to coast.

Among the 146 experts who participated in the last poll of the year, 107 of them placed Notre Dame at the head of the list while 25 banded first place to Michigan's all-victorious Big Nine champions and four split their ballots to call it a tie between the two midwestern powers.

As could be expected, however, Michigan polled 94 second-place votes against 32 for the Irish and received enough additional backing to finish only 121 points behind Notre Dame in the final tabulation.

On the usual basis of ten points for a first-place vote, nine for second, and so on, the South Benders wound up with a total of 1,410 points while the Rose Bowl-bound Wolverines accumulated 1,289.

The poll was extended a week beyond its usual deadline this year in order to include Saturday's important struggle between the Irish and the Trojans, who were third in the rankings a week ago.

By manhandling the Pacific Coast champions, Notre Dame not only solidified its own position at the head of the list but contributed to a rearrangement of the standings all the way from third place to the bottom among the top ten teams.

Southern California skidded from third to eighth place, enabling Southern Methodist, Penn State, Texas and Alabama to move up a notch in that order.

Seven of the remaining ten first-place votes were awarded to North Carolina while the other three were divided among Penn State, Alabama and Oklahoma.

A year ago the top ten included Notre Dame, Army, Georgia, UCLA, Illinois, Michigan, Tennessee, Louisiana State, North Carolina and Rice, in that order.

The Irish, who drew 100 first-place votes to 48 for Army and nine ties last year, landed in first place in the first 1947 poll, lost it to Michigan for a week or two, and then came back to hold a nar-

Hawk Tank Marks Established

New American long course records set by University of Iowa swimmers now have been put in the record books, Coach David Armbruster said yesterday.

The records set by Wally Ris in the 100-meter free style and by Dick Maine, Larry Larimore and Ris in the 150-yard medley relay were declared official at the national convention of the Amateur Athletic union.

Ris swam the 100-meter distance in :57.6 at Honolulu, Hawaii last September. The former record was :57.7 set in 1946 by Bill Smith of Ohio State.

The relay team swam the 150-yard event in 1:21.1 in the fieldhouse pool Oct. 10. The former record, set in 1940 by the San Francisco Olympic club, was 1:23.2.

Ris, captain of the Iowa team this year, also holds the AAU indoor record for the 100-yard free style with a time of :50.9. Maine was the ace back stroker on the Hawk tank last year. In high school at Roosevelt of Des Moines, he was named to the all-American prep swimming team. Larimore, also from the Des Moines school, came to Iowa in midyear last year and will be eligible for college competition at the start of the second semester.

Purdue Tells Of Complaint Against Frosh

LAFAYETTE, IND., (AP)—Purdue university's athletic department yesterday characterized as "a periodical complaint" a report that Ohio State and Illinois are unhappy about the interstate aspect of Purdue's beefy freshman football squad. No further comment was made.

A list of freshman players released by the Purdue sports publicity office included 14 Illinois boys and 11 from Ohio. Hugh Fullerton Jr., Associated Press columnist, said in his "sports roundup" yesterday that the Big Nine was "feuding and fusing" over Purdue's "potent freshman squad."

Coach Stuart K. Holcomb said recently he had heard that Coach Ray Elliot of Illinois was irked because John Kerestes and William Reed, standout high school players at Streator, Ill., had enrolled at Purdue.

"But a couple of Indiana boys we had counted on showed up on the Illinois freshman squad," Holcomb added, "so I figured we're even."

Holcomb is known widely in Ohio as a former Ohio State player and pre-war coach at Miami university.

Fullerton said: "The Big Nine family is feuding and fusing over football. . . . The main subject is Purdue's potent freshman squad. . . . Commissioner Tug Wilson may have been hinting at something of the sort when he recently said, without naming names, that some Big Nine schools had grown careless about recruiting."

"If the situation is as hot as we hear," Fullerton said, "there likely will be something popping at the conference meeting late this week."

Iowa Rebounds, Defense Better Saturday—Pops

Iowa's cagers held a scrimmage against a group of freshmen players yesterday in an attempt to sharpen their attack. The Hawks will be seeking their 29th consecutive non-conference victory at home when they meet North Dakota here Saturday.

Coach Pops Harrison expressed approval of the Hawks improved rebounding and defensive work against South Dakota Saturday.

"I am getting a good line on the personnel and performances under fire which is what I hoped to do in the December games," Harrison said. "We worked on rebounding and defense last week and I think the players displayed improvement."

Drills the rest of this week will emphasize offense and defense, with extra efforts to improve timing.

Little Hawks Face Muskies

City high's Little Hawk cagers will attempt to break back into the win column tonight when they meet Muscatine high's Muskies in the river city.

Muscatine, in two games this season, has won one and lost one. The Muskies opened their season by losing to Davenport, 33-23, and last Friday evening they had little trouble in defeating their Little Six conference rival, Keokuk. Coach "Lefty" Schnack's Muscatine cagers are always hard to beat and this year's five is no exception. Last year they outscored the Hawklets by quite a margin in an early season tilt.

Last Saturday night's Hawklet loss to Davenport has resulted in two first team lineup shifts by Coach Bill Wilson. The Little Hawk coach has moved Bill Reichardt, who has been playing consistent ball at a guard post, up to a forward position and shifted tall Jerry Dunham from the front line into Reichardt's vacated guard post.

Coach Wilson will probably start Reichardt and "Whitey" Diehl at the forward spots with big Gene Hettrick at center and Bob Beals and Jerry Dunham teaming at the guards.

Louis OK's Rematch; Deny Walcott Protest

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Louis said yesterday he was willing to meet Jersey Joe Walcott again in June of next summer just a few hours after the New York Athletic commission had turned thumbs down on the Camden battler's arguments for a reversal of last Friday night's verdict.

Louis, making his announcement through Sol Sports of the 20th Century Stadium club, suggested that New York's Yankee stadium would be a logical site and added that the only hitch would be the arranging of "satisfactory terms."

At a meeting of the State Athletic commission yesterday, Chairman Eddie Eagan and Commissioner Cilan B. Powell devoted about 12 minutes to hearing the claims of Walcott and his manager, Joe Webster, then issued a statement disclaiming any desire "to interfere with the discretion and judgment of competent officials."

The extraordinary hearing, Eagan pointed out, was granted only because Walcott and Webster are residents of another state and might not be familiar with New York rules.

"Ordinarily," he said, "the commission does not entertain appeals protesting decisions. The commission must depend upon the three ring officials and it is obvious that if the commission undertook to review decisions, there could be no real certainty of a decision until after a review."

Walcott's protest was based upon the scoring of Judge Frank Forbes, who scored eight rounds for Louis, six for Walcott and one even but scored a higher point total for Walcott. The other judge, Marty Monroe, also voted for Louis while referee Ruby Goldstein favored Walcott.

Walcott, who came to New York for the hearing before returning to Camden for a civic welcome and parade, mumbled "you couldn't point what I think" after hearing the decision. Webster refused to make any statement.

Raise $41,000 For Methodist Student Center

Wesley foundation and Methodist church members here have pledged a total of $41,000 toward the construction of a new Wesley foundation student center in Iowa City, according to Rev. V. V. Goff, minister at the student center.

Of the eventual goal of $175,000 set by the drive committee headed by Dr. A. E. Lowe of the Methodist church board of extension, local students and church members plan to contribute $50,000 by the end of 1949. Wesley foundation will give $15,000; church members will contribute $35,000.

The $41,000 pledged represents $12,000 promised by university students and $29,000 pledged by church members and the church administration.

The Rev. Mr. Goff explained yesterday that Methodist churches throughout the state will contribute $125,000 by the end of 1949 to add to the $50,000 collected locally.

All but approximately $2,000 of the $41,000 pledged here is still outstanding, as most contributors plan to make weekly donations during the next two years.

The Rev. L. L. Dunnington, minister of the First Methodist church, has termed student activities facilities in the two buildings presently housing Wesley foundation as "inadequate." The present centers can accommodate only 100 of approximately 2,000 Methodist students here.

Academy of Natural Sciences Pays Tribute to Dr. Pilsbry

Dr. Henry A. Pilsbry, former resident of Iowa City, was honored by the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia last night at a meeting and reception of the academy's board of trustees.

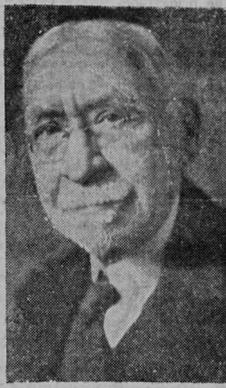

This marked Pilsbry's 85th birthday and the 60th anniversary of his association with the scientific staff of the academy, where he serves as curator of mollusks and other invertebrates.

Charles M. B. Cadwalader, president of the academy, introduced Henry S. Drinker of the board of trustees, who paid tribute to Pilsbry. An informal reception was held following Pilsbry's response.

Pilsbry was born in Iowa City in 1862. He was educated in the public schools here and attended the University of Iowa. He went to Philadelphia at the age of 25 as assistant to George W. Tryon, then in charge of the academy's shell collection. On Tryon's death the following year, Pilsbry succeeded him as head of the department and as editor of the Manual of Conchology, a monograph of the shells of the world.

Pilsbry has edited 32 volumes of the Manual, and 62 volumes of the Nautilus; a journal of conchology. He has published more than 1,000 scientific papers and is now completing a monograph, "The Land Mollusca of North America."

Pilsbry holds honorary degrees from the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University, as well as one from the University of Iowa.

TIME Interested in Long-Hairs, Barbers

The recent public relations campaign by Iowa City barbers in answer to the student Long-Hair society's protest of the haircut price increase is attracting national attention.

Paul Puckett, A4, Sterling, Ill., official barber representative, said yesterday that he had been contacted by telephone by a Time magazine correspondent concerning the barbers' campaign.

Puckett believed that a story on the barber—Long-Hair situation will appear in Time in the near future.

Adding that the barbers' public relations campaign has been discontinued, Puckett said, "We feel that the public has been informed sufficiently as to reasons behind the 25 cent haircut price increase."

Tom Dorsey, A2, Keokuk, official Long-Hair representative, said none of the society members had been contacted by the Time correspondent.

Long-Hair Chairman Sam Bishop, A2, Churdan, has called a meeting of the society today at 4:30 p.m. in Iowa Union.

A-Energy Lectures Are Well Attended, Prof. Routh Reports

Attendance at the atomic energy lectures has been "highly satisfactory" according to Prof. Joseph I. Routh, director of the series.

"We have been unlucky with inclement weather and conflicting calendar dates on the last two lectures," Routh said, "but our audiences have averaged 200 persons throughout the series."

Dr. R. L. Meier, executive secretary of the Federation of American Scientists and an early November visitor to the University of Iowa campus, said he was more than gratified by the attendance here.

Meier told of universities that sponsored atomic lectures in areas of large population. "In many cases," he said, "they began with a good attendance but dropped sharply after three or four lectures."

Four lectures by university professors remain in the local series. The last meeting of the semester, Thursday, Jan. 22, will be in the form of a round table discussion. "All of the remaining talks will be non-technical," Routh said. "We are now discussing the political and economic aspects of the atomic world, subjects that will appeal to the larger part of our audiences."

The lectures, held every Thursday evening in Macbride auditorium, will be discontinued during the Christmas vacation.

FWA Project Completed

The chemistry building addition, last Federal Works Administration project at the university, was completed yesterday according to R. D. Sharp of Metcalfe-Hamilton construction company.

The entire FWA project is expected to be accepted by the university this week.

This two-story structure will house the unit operation laboratory for chemical engineering and a physiology laboratory.

The $214,585 FWA program has also furnished the university 18 classroom barracks, and seven office barracks, the temporary Hillcrest cafeteria and the reserve library addition.

The FWA office will remain open here another two weeks, "until all paper work is cleared up," Sharp said.

SUI Accepts $9,100 Gift Of Paintings

President Virgil M. Hancher, acting in behalf of the university, accepted a gift of 42 paintings valued at $9,100 from Dr. Clarence Van Epps of Iowa City Sunday.

Approximately 500 persons attended the exhibition of the paintings which opened Sunday in the main lounge of Iowa Union. The showing will continue until Feb. 8.

Prof. Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts, presided during the ceremony. The program and exhibition were sponsored by the fine arts committee of student Union board.

In an acceptance speech, Hancher declared, "Dr. Van Epps has encouraged many young artists and encouraged art in this institution. He is a man who keeps current of the latest developments in art."

Many of the gift paintings are works by former and present students and faculty members of the art department. Such artists as Max Ballinger, Stuart Edie, Ernest Freed, Emil Ganso, Stephen Greene, Philip Guston, Mauricio Lasansky, James Lechay, Fletcher Martin, and Grant Wood are represented.

Van Epps bought many of the paintings with the intent of giving them to the university. Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the art department, selected the paintings that were to be included in the gift from Van Epp's collection.

Fine arts committee members Dorothy Cumming, Norma Utterbach, Donna Rae Olson and Martha Seitz poured coffee for visitors Sunday. Bill Grimmer, Bob Wheeler, Bud Hockenber and Herb Doden acted as guides for the guests.

The collection of paintings will be known as the Dr. Clarence Van Epps Collection of Paintings, Drawings, and Prints.

Teaching Positions Available in U. S., Foreign Countries

By FRANCES NESHEIM

A shortage of teachers for positions in the United States and foreign countries was reported yesterday by Frances Camp, director of the educational placement office.

Although the number filing for teaching positions is higher than in previous years at mid-year, the demand still exceeds the supply, Miss Camp reported.

The average beginning salary for public school teachers is $2,400. However, many teachers placed by the office are not beginners, Miss Camp emphasized. Salaries of experienced teachers who have returned to the university to receive higher degrees will vary according to experience. There are demands now for teachers in universities and colleges as well as in public school teaching and administration throughout the United States.

The office also reported a growing demand for teachers in foreign fields. The positions are in English-speaking schools, most of them through the British exchange or in South America.

The placement office keeps information on positions in foreign countries, and as the demand increases, Miss Camp said, the service will be expanded.

However, the office is not emphasizing opportunities in foreign fields because of the great demand for teachers in our own country, she said.

No Danger Of Electric Service Cut

There is no immediate danger of university electrical service being curtailed.

District Manager R. H. Lind of the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric company announced yesterday that his company's power lines were "not overloaded." The company, he said, would be able to maintain its service to the university unless "additional unanticipated service is required in Iowa City."

This follows the Saturday statement by R. J. Phillips of the physical plant that the university's power lines were overloaded and they were depending upon the Iowa-Illinois company to maintain present service.

The Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric company now helps the university supply electricity to classrooms and University hospitals. The company alone supplies electric power to all married-student temporary housing areas.

Money-Back Guarantee Is True, Student Finds

Johnny Craven, G, of Brooklyn, New York, capitalized on a money-back guarantee last week.

Last month, he bought two tubes of tooth paste at a local drug store. The manufacturer's guarantee on the package said if the customer had ever used tooth paste which tasted better than his product, the seller would cheerfully refund the purchase price, even if both tubes were empty.

Unable to use the contents of two tubes in the allotted time, Johnny farmed out one to a cottage mate. By dint of three daily brushings, they finished the tooth paste on time.

Craven sallied forth with the empty tubes and the advertised guarantee, hopeful of getting his money "cheerfully" refunded.

Didn't he like the tooth paste, the dealer enquired? Very good stuff, Craven agreed, but that particular product was not the best tasting on the market as the advertisement had claimed it was.

The druggist refunded the money. Next time, Craven plans on getting the whole cottage to go in with him on the deal. "It's one sure way to beat inflation," he added.

"Only one person has taken advantage of the money-back guarantee," the dealer said. "Wouldn't you know, he'd be from Brooklyn."

This is easier. Just send your stuff, along with your name, address, school and class, to Easy Money Department, Box B, Pepsi-Cola Co., Long Island City, N. Y. All contributions become the property of Pepsi-Cola Co. We pay only for those we print.

There's nothing to it—as you can see from the samples below. If, by coincidence, the words "Pepsi-Cola" turn up somewhere in your gag, don't worry about it. We don't mind. (Matter of fact, we kind of like it.) So start your stuff in now—for Easy Money.

GOOD DEAL ANNEX

Sharpen up those gags, gagsters! At the end of the year (if we haven't laughed ourselves to death) we're going to pick the one best item we've bought and award it a fat extra $100.00

LITTLE MORON CORNER

Our well-known moron-about-campus, Murgatroyd—now a student in the school of agriculture—has developed a new theory on sheep-feeding. He makes a daily ration of Pepsi-Cola an important part of their diet. "Dunstanusuh, of course," said Murgatroyd recently, when questioned as to his reasoning, "everybody knows that Pepsi-Cola is the drink for ewe!"

She Ubangi: Really? Why?

He Ubangi: He says that every time she drinks a Pepsi, she smacks her lips, and he can't stand the clatter.

He: Why do you call my date "Pepsi," when her name is Betty?

She: Oh, we all call her "Pepsi" because she goes with anything!

He: I never knew what real happiness was until I married you.

She: Darling!

He: Yes, and by then it was too late.

Three bucks apiece for each of these we print. Let your conscience be your guide.

Daffy Definitions

Here's a column that must have some deep underlying significance. Darned if we know what, though. All we know is that these rate a buck each—and the daffier, the better.

Frustration—having a Pepsi-Cola and no bottle-opener.

Stork—bird with a big bill.

Professor—textbook wired for sound.

Thirst—obsolete term; dates back to pre-Pepsi-Cola era.

Cooperation—one bottle of Pepsi with two straws.

Paying $1 apiece for these is like giving you a license to commit burglary. But—$1 apiece for those we buy.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1947

An Early Christmas Present

A little-known revolution has occurred on campus. It's all happened within the space of a few short months. No lives were lost, there wasn't much shouting, and strangely enough, everybody seems to be happy.

It's amazing—this transformation of the Alumni office. A lot of deals are in the fire, others are being explored, and at least one super project actually got under way last week.

We're referring to the slick new magazine, Iowa Alumni Review, which went into the mails as an early Christmas gift to SU's far-flung alumni all over the world.

Not since 1925 has the Alumni association published its own magazine. Ironically, as Editor Loren Hickerson points out, those intervening 22 years "have been the most productive in the university's 100-year history."

A two-color, slick paper job, the magazine contains well-chosen articles on a variety of campus subjects, outstanding pictures, and an important message to alumni.

That message sets forth the "cornerstone of a significant new Alumni association program. Membership in the association henceforth will be based on a subscription to the Alumni Review."

"The object of the new program is twofold: (1) to increase the flow of information about Iowa today and (2) through a growing annual membership in the association, to extend strong support to the university in the development of her institutional program."

The new magazine is but the first of several actions designed to weld Old Gold's alumni into a far stronger, more unified association.

Every person who holds the University of Iowa dear to his heart knows we desperately need that spirit of kindred association. It is the recognition that our university's progress and strength ultimately depend on the active support given by the kind of people who have gained knowledge and inspiration here.

Present day undergraduates will soon be alumni. They will want to know what is going on at the university. They will want to know of its progress. They will want to know about other alumni. Above all, they will want to feel closely identified with their university.

Every move which ties alumni closer to the university is a source of strength for a second successful 100 years. Hickerson and Managing Editor Bob Noble, as well as the whole university, can be proud of the new magazine which will strengthen those ties.

Who's Going To Blow The Bugle?

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Back in the old days of the silent movies, when the painted savages were closing in relentlessly on the burning wagon train, the producers always knew what to do next.

The scene would shift to a slightly beaten path across the prairie, and over a rise would come the U. S. flag at the head of a column of galloping cavalry men. If there was a retired bugler in town the theater would hire him to blow a charge at the psychological moment.

The spines of the audience would tingle as the sound penetrated to the ears of a rejuvenated hero through the smoke around the beleaguered pioneers, the women would lead the guns faster, and the moment of rescue would be upon the expectant but still none-too-sure patrons.

Something like that has been happening in France during the past few days, but in an atmosphere far more grim, without the fanfare of bugles, and before an audience which knew there was no all-powerful director with a sure-fire happy ending.

Ever since Saturday it has appeared that the Communists were losing ground in their effort to use strikes to force their way back into the French government, embarrass the deliberations of the foreign ministers in London and convince the U. S. congress that it would be a waste of money to try to save France.

French labor itself, supposedly under the Communist thumb, has given strong indications that it is still more French than Communist and, following a government which has been emboldened by the approach of American relief, has gradually become aware that the strikes were helping Moscow more than anyone else.

However, the inability of the Communists to put over their subway strike called for yesterday morning does not mean that the battle is won. Many strikes continue. Serious damage has already been done to the French economy, and a return to normal production and transport may take some time. Russian agents will create as much more disturbance as possible, but perhaps will transfer the major part of their attention to Italy for the moment.

One bit of profit for France did come out of the strikes. The Communists, by their tactics, have completely isolated themselves from such cooperation with other French leftist groups as they formerly enjoyed. As they fought in the chamber of deputies against the bill giving the government broadened power to halt strikes and sabotage, they mustered not

Atomic Energy Commission Works for Peace

Waymack Lists Group's Goals

(W. W. Waymack, a member of the United States Atomic Energy Commission on leave of absence from his position as editor of the Des Moines Register, delivered a speech Oct. 15, on the commission's goals before the general conference of the American Unitarian association. Excerpts from his speech are reprinted here because it is our belief that the work of the commission is of utmost importance to the lives of all Americans—The Editor.)

This is a serious audience. While a capacity for laughter is essential to those carrying responsibility in the atomic energy field, lest they be bedeviled into madness, I have discovered no aspect of atomic energy development that is not serious . . .

. . . I do not look upon this as essentially an international gathering. After one comment, which I shall make not as an official but as a citizen, I shall not talk about the international side of the atomic energy problem.

That one comment, as a citizen, is about the accusation that the United States, in its proposals for international control, has been seeking for itself an atomic energy monopoly.

That is plain nonsense . . . This country (has) proposed to lay down the weapon and dissolve its head start toward other uses, on condition only that other nations agree on a plan of international control realistic, adequate and dependable. The proposals were made through and for the purpose of strengthening the United Nations . . .

No sacrifice of "national sovereignty" has been asked of any other nation greater than our proposals would require of us . . . To picture this as a greed-motivated attempt to preserve and extend America's monopoly is beyond my understanding . . .

The people of America and indeed of the world are embarked on a Great Adventure . . . (It) is of a magnitude that can be suggested by the fact that we have

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

We're Not Poor; We're Just Economizing

By SAMUEL GRAFTON
New York Post Syndicate

Margaret looked around the kitchen. The shelves were slimmed down, not many cans, not much anything. She enjoyed economy, as a game, running the house on as little as possible.

It was impressive, what you could do. Macaroni and cheese made a dinner, and cost a clean dollar under meat.

The house was the same, cozy, and she sometimes dared to think quite pretty, and yet it had been run for a dollar less that day. No visible difference, but you saved enough for a start on another dinner.

There were enough paper napkins, she checked. She smiled, rifling them, remembering the first time she had bought a package. She had never used a paper napkin, except at a picnic, until she had married.

Today was Saturday, which called for something extra, because Harry was off, no work during the day and no classes at night.

Steak, she thought. Not very imaginative, but then, when you had steak, you didn't need imagination.

She left Harry in the apartment, studying medieval culture out of an old copy of Life, and went out to buy it.

It was a bad habit, this belated Saturday afternoon shopping, she knew. It was a hangover from the war years, when she had had too much time, and had never bought ahead because shopping helped to fill the days.

Now she enjoyed it, feeling her expertness as she descended on the stores. She even looked at the weight marks on loaves of bread now. It all helped them to come out even, with her salary, and Harry's modest student earnings, at the end of the week.

One vote outside their own ranks. France undoubtedly had chosen to side with America in the war against totalitarianism. Over the rise of the Atlantic was coming eight million pounds of food, the first of four boatloads contributed voluntarily in the United States for the "Friendship trains," and in Washington the finishing touches were being put on a far more extensive relief program. For the third time in 30 years, France redoubled her efforts as aid from the U. S. approached.

begun to tap, both for weapon use and for many other possible uses, some of them today foreseeable and some unquestionably yet to be recognized, a source of energy so much greater than any previously commanded by man as to make comparisons look fantastic. We have begun—only begun, mark you—to tap the source of energy that makes the universe tick . . .

Under a law, your law, the Atomic Energy act of 1946, the making of policies and creating of programs is changed from a wartime military mission to a peacetime undertaking under the sound principle of accountability—first to your representatives and ultimately to you, the People.

The law, in my judgment, is a good law—so good that I would call it a magnificent validation of the democratic process . . .

Now let us review hastily some of the things that under your law your public servants have the necessity of doing. Let us also be thinking of goals not alone in the sense of inescapable specific tasks, but also in the sense of real and deep objectives. Let us try to keep applying, both to specific things and also very broadly, words that I borrow from one of my colleagues, Dr. Bacher: "What is it that we are trying to achieve?"

Here are a few of the things that, under the law and because of the facts, the trustees of your atomic energy enterprise are obligated to accomplish or get in the course of accomplishment:

1. Procure raw materials. Bear in mind that, unlike many other minerals, until relatively recent years uranium has not even been of interest, that the latest published information indicates knowledge of only a few sources of rich concentration, that there has never heretofore been any need of developing processes for extracting it from low concentrations, and that obviously whole new techniques of exploration, processing and purifying have suddenly been called for.
2. Operate, improve, at points to contract and other points to expand, a huge, scattered new industry for the production of fissionable material.
3. Make, improve if possible, and make technical tests of weapons.
4. Maintain, manage and in many ways improve the condition of three sizeable federal "company towns"—strange "animals" indeed in the American scene.

5. Develop policies covering fairly and adequately, conforming with other laws but under some special limitations, the issues of labor relations in atomic energy installations.

6. Continue, encourage and expand, on bases suitable for the long term, not just for the war emergency, the participation of private industry.

7. Conduct, and see that others conduct, under conditions that make for fruitfulness, diverse and large-scale research to the end of the acquisition of much more basic scientific knowledge.

8. Create conditions within the installations and out that will stimulate the training of many more scientists and technicians.

9. Continue development and application of present basic scientific knowledge, at full steam, toward the solving of many by-passed problems that cannot now be by-passed . . .

10. Set up a system whereby the law's directions concerning patents shall be fairly applied in the interest of security and with fairness to inventors.

11. Improve techniques and widen knowledge of health and safety in dealing with the new kinds of hazards, primarily radioactivity.

12. Maintain security of both property and secret information, under conditions of peace, which are very different from those of war.

13. Disseminate scientific and technical information in order to assure progress.

14. Invent and build a kind of organization, suitable for non-war, capable of carrying forward a sense-making pattern of progress at the early pioneering stage when much is unforeseeable and flexibility is essential.

15. Make a "go" of the governmental pioneering, recognizing that this too is pioneering and that the most promising of mechanisms must be made to work by men.

That list is not complete. It ought to be enough to serve. The value of such a partial review is to help us all remember that it is a job of many parts, that each part has a relation to the other, and that no part, however vital itself, is more than a fraction of the whole . . . Such a review cannot but make clear again that, willy nilly, the Great Adventure touches on and has ultimate significance for nearly every phase of our national life . . .

Why is it vital for America to strengthen herself in basic science research?

For one thing there is today no assurance that basic science is going to be as freely international as it used to be. There is danger, if the world situation deteriorates, that a wave of alarmed nationalism will engulf, for the first time, science, too.

There may not be, to the former extent, a pool of basic knowledge into which all nations freely pour and from which all nations freely take. We may have to depend more on ourselves than heretofore.

Furthermore—and this part is not an unpleasant possibility but a cold fact—the pool of basic scientific knowledge that we and the world had eight or ten years ago has been largely exhausted. No major contribution has been made to it in about ten years.

We can proceed to the further development of things based on the old knowledge. We can bring our applications all along the line, considerably farther along. But the condition of further progress, not only in atomic energy but in many fields, is the pushing back of the frontier of basic knowledge by ardent, large-scale basic research. There is no other way.

And that requires not alone the building of government laboratories and costly research tools, it requires also the creating of opportunities and the stimulation of interest in the universities and throughout much of industry. It requires carrying the same thing effectively somehow down through the colleges including the small ones, and into the high schools—perhaps the grade schools.

You can't have more basic research without both the tools and an increased flow of your basic researchers. Up to now, in the first moments of the Atomic Age, I think it can fairly be said that seldom have so many been so dependent on so few . . .

The American public needs, I believe, to understand above all that their atomic energy enterprise is not only complex but very big in its implications and long-run significance. They should widely understand that he who "thinks little" about it cannot serve them well. They need to understand that they are embarking on the Great Adventure, and that ignoring it will not help.

Neither awe based on the destructiveness of the weapon nor a false notion that understanding of such scientific marvels is beyond them can justify shrugging it off as something beyond the reach of democracy, something for the men in government alone to concern themselves with.

Atomic energy is not magic. It is understandable by intelligent lay Americans on the basis of non-secret information. The science of it, obscured by a few new words, is no more difficult to understand than the science that once was obscured by such equally tough words as "gravitation." And the real issues as to "what it is that we want to achieve" need not be and cannot wisely be treated as inhabitants of a haunted house about which the people in general take an habitual detour . . .

What is it that we are trying to achieve?

Topmost, as for the American people, it is peace.

It is to that and that alone that our government's efforts to establish international control of atomic energy, real control, not a mere peace of paper promising to be good—are directed . . .

I hope you have noticed, threaded through the list of tasks and through everything else I have said, not only complexity and problems and technical pioneering but also something deeper still—a recognition that this is pioneering in the institutions of democracy itself . . .

It is necessary for us to be strong in weapons, as long as the world is insecure. It is necessary for us to be strong, too, in industry, technology, the application of knowledge; and that is true whether we think of perils not yet removed or whether we think of what we of free America may contribute to a world become tranquil.

Surely, too, the strength of America that we covet, and that we want our management of this new force to contribute to and by no means to weaken, it is strength in terms of courage, of understanding, of the capacity to see things whole. It is strength in terms of attachment to the principles of decency and tolerance and human rights that are "the faith by which we live."

"We must do new things, in new ways, finding new answers, against new handicaps as well as old.

Each new answer is a subordinate goal.

The real strength of America can never be in weapons and secrets alone; it is in the fundamental values of the democratic way.

The great goal of those temporarily responsible for your atomic energy enterprise must be to keep America truly strong by keeping America America.

"Almost every country," she had once lectured Harry, "has a characteristic national dish, made of a dough base, and using just a little meat or fish for flavoring. The Italians do it with spaghetti or pizza, the Mexicans with tortillas, and it's usually the best dish they have. Only Americans try to fill on meat or fish alone."

Harry was on the telephone when she came back into the apartment. She knew from the tone of his voice that he was talking to Jerry.

"Sure, prices are high," she heard Harry say, as she passed him on the way to the kitchen. "So what? So we'll give up this phone one day and I'll see you in person instead of talking over a wire. It won't be so bad. You can give up a lot, you know. We live on canned soup and macaroni and patented fish cakes, and I haven't lost any weight. Gained a little. It must be the doughy stuff. But that's the way most poor people live, and they get by."

Margaret put the steak down on the drainboard of the sink and leaned against it, shaken.

Oh, no, she wanted to say. It wasn't just economizing. We don't live like the poor. We've got a nice little apartment, and our standards.

But as she looked at the steak, she knew. It was out of key in the meager kitchen. Her economies were not special, anymore. They were regular. It was this red meat that was special. Somehow, they had slipped downward, out of their place in the world. They were like any poor family having meat once a week, on Saturday night.

She dashed past him, still on the phone. "I forgot a pie," she said, reaching for her coat. "I'll go well with the steak. Let's make it a specially good dinner."

More on Strange Bedfellows

By WESTBROOK PEGLER
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

From time to time these dispatches have disclosed and commented on a strange liaison between our journalism and the underworld and Communist fronts of the amusement industry.

That this industry in all three of its major phases, movies, radio and night clubs, is infested with police characters, socially and professionally, was disclosed last winter through

Frank Sinatra's choice of friends in Florida and Cuba, and later through the assassination of Bugsy Siegal in Beverly Hills.

Siegal was the good companion of many prosperous artists of the awkward sprawl and the noisy repartee. His most vociferous horn of rapturous personal publicity was a little Hollywood publication of the underworld for which Sinatra has been known to bespeak advertising favors from the studios.

Its editor is a semi-illiterate police character from Orange county, N.J., with a record of three entries, accompanied by the standard front and profile portraits, named James Tarantino.

Ed Sullivan, of the New York Daily News, does a column about his own great contributions to the heartiness of "our brave boys" in the hospitals and to "tolerance."

Sullivan took it upon himself to cast out of the good society all citizens who are deficient in admiration of Sinatra. This attitude, he said, bespoke the intolerant mind and a cowardly disposition to make hideous childhood's happy hour of little boys and girls born of Latin parents.

There has been strident controversy as to Sinatra's real opinion of the nasty little chits who used to loiter late into the night around night clubs, theaters and other inappropriate haunts for children, where Sinatra was earning his living or taking his ease with the Fischetti freres of the Chicago underworld and Lucky Luciano, the exiled Sicilian prostitutioneer.

Lee Mortimer called them little morons. This was outlandish flattery in the reckless tabloid manner, and Sinatra caught him when his head was turned and slugged him.

In Chicago, Ashton Stevens, a pugnacious brute of 80 years and about as many pounds, wrote about the same opinion and might have got his heading, too, but put himself away in dry-dock for his annual scraping with the Mayors in Rochester.

In a study of this matter at the time I wrote that Evans, the

Council Meets To Examine Job Service

A program to determine student opinion on the need for better university placement services will be discussed tonight by the student council which will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Old Capitol.

Bill Reis, C4, Omaha, Neb., will present his recommendations on the placement problem as a result of talks with Prof. Dewey B. Stuit, director of student counseling psychology.

Plans for stimulating school spirit will be given by a committee whose members are Jan Gutz, A4; Gene Glenn, A2; Dean Stichnoth, C4, and Keith McNurlen, D2.

Student Council President Mel Heckt, A4, said all students are welcome to attend the meeting and to present their ideas on building better school spirit.

A final report on the Campus Chest drive will be given by Chairman Ray Tierney, A4, Perry, Ia. The drive, which ends tomorrow, had collected $3,504.90 at 6 p.m. last night.

The council will also hear a report from a committee studying the possibility of setting up an advisory student library committee to survey student opinion on library conditions and hours.

Jean Sprott, A3, will report on student scripts received for "Panacea," campus show sponsored by Mortar Board, Omicron Delta Kappa and Student council. A $40 prize will be awarded for the winning script and prizes submitted. Contest deadline is Dec. 12.

Town Men Begin Free 'Date Dances'

A free "date dance" for all Town Men will be held Friday, Dec. 12, in the YMCA room at the Iowa Union.

This is the first in a series of free dances to be resumed at regular intervals following the Christmas vacation. Attendance at the first dance will determine the policy for the future.

There will be no admission charged, but membership cards will be checked at the door. Those who do not have cards and wish to attend the dance should contact someone in the Student Affairs office, room 111, University hall.

A mass meeting to be held the first Thursday of every month was decided upon by the executive council. January 8 will be the date of the first meeting following the holidays.

The farm fire loss is estimated $85,000,000 annually.

Action by Grocers Forestalls Walk-Out Of Union Butchers

A possible walk-out of union meatcutters and butchers was forestalled last night when grocers agreed to meet with all Iowa City union members next Monday to discuss wage and hour contracts.

About one-third of the grocers employing union men were present at last night's meeting held in Hotel Jefferson. The meeting was the third attempt to work out agreements between grocers and union representatives.

According to Kenneth Sowers, organizer for the Amalgamated Meatcutters and Butcher Workmen of America, the union is asking:

(1) A 45 hour week for all employees.

(2) Sixty dollars per week for journeymen meatcutters and 67 dollars for head meatcutters.

(3) Salaries up to 50 dollars per week for clerks—depending upon the length of service.

"Final agreement will be left completely up to the members of the local here in Iowa City," Sowers said.

Sowers had previously notified grocers that union workers would be called off the job if agreement was not reached at last night's meeting.

ART SHOW—

officially opens."

Longman originated the idea of having the "Metropolitan come to Iowa."

"I read a book by Director Taylor of the museum that said they thought the museum should send its paintings to other institutions so the public could see them," Longman explained.

Longman and Harper last March visited Taylor to see if SUI could obtain an exhibition.

A man was sent by the museum recently to examine Iowa's facilities for exhibiting the 30 famous paintings. The art building was graded "I-A, definitely fireproof," Harper stated.

Numerous gallery tours will be given during the three-month interval if the show comes here. Plans are being formulated for having out-of-town school children brought to Iowa City in busses and for having various other groups see the show.

An administrative and promotional committee has been formed and will meet at 3 p. m. in Harper's office today.

On the committee are Loren Hickerson of the alumni service; Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the extension division; Fred M. Pownall, publisher of The Daily Iowan; Prof. Carl Menzer of WSUI; Prof. Fred Higbee of the college of en-

Chest Drive Short $6,495

An estimated 60 female "commandos" from Currier hall and sororities "invaded" Quadrangle and Hillcrest last night between 5:30 and 7:30 p. m. in an eleventh hour attempt to raise funds for Campus Chest.

The "raid" on the men's dormitories which took place during an official open house was termed "quite a success" by Janet Gutz, A4, who lead solicitors in a room-to-room canvass.

Meanwhile, Campus Chest collections had inched forward to a $3,504.90 total by 6 p. m. yesterday. With only one day to go, the drive was still $6,495.10 short of the $10,000 goal.

Chairman Ray Tierney, A4, said he hoped those who have not yet contributed to the drive will do so tomorrow. He also praised the women volunteers who "gave up their valuable time" for last night's canvass.

gineering; Longman, and Harper, the chairman.

Other paintings in the exhibition include The Annunciation by Fra Filippo Lippi, a portrait by Domenico Chirlandaio, a portrait by Tintoretto, Judith with the Head of Holofernes by Cranach, Malle Babbe (The Witch) by Hals, Van Dyck's Portrait of a Man, two Rembrandt's and Van Rysdael's River Scene with Cattle.

Hillcrest Chorus To Carol Dec. 18

Plans for carolling at housing units Dec. 18 by the Hillcrest chorus were announced at a meeting of the Hillcrest council last night. The chorus is under the direction of Eugene Thompson, A2, Garrison.

The council voted to take part in a YWCA program to help needy Iowa City families.

A committee was appointed by George Kauffman, president of the council, to investigate the possibility of organizing an inter-dormitory association.

Results of a recent Hillcrest referendum on a proposal to pay the president and social chairmen of the dormitory $15 a year were announced. The proposal, which had passed the council, was voted down by the residents.

Quad Group Elects Lange as Delegate

Paul R. Lange, C3, Cedar Falls, was elected to represent the Quadrangle on the Student council at a meeting of the Quadrangle council last night.

The Quad council appropriated $25 for a gift certificate for a 14-year-old boy as part of a YWCA program to help needy Iowa City families.

Invitations will be sent to all women's housing units for the third annual Quadrangle Christmas open house, Sunday, Dec. 14, according to Lange, who is also social chairman. The Quad chorus, under the direction of John Craven, will sing and records will be played for dancing at the open house from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Dale Erickson, director of the Quad Campus Chest drive, announced that $462 was collected in the first door-to-door solicitation last week.

An appropriation of $100 was voted for the purchase of equipment for a newly organized Quad photo club. The club, which will be open to residents of the dorm, will sponsor lectures in addition to providing facilities for processing films. Tom Paintin, E1, Elmhurst, Ill., is acting president of the club.

with an estimated income of $30,960.

2. The state liquor tax refund originally estimated $8,500 will be nearly $20,000.

The proposed changes included increasing the parking meter fund from $18,000 to $48,960 and the liquor tax fund from nothing to $11,500. The council had previously added the original liquor tax estimate to the consolidated fund.

The council can spend the liquor tax fund for any lawful purpose, according to the state law setting up the tax.

A resolution authorizing the purchase of three intersection traffic signals from the Eagle Signal Company of Elgin, Ill., was passed.

The corners designated are on Burlington street (Highway 6) at the intersection of Riverside drive and Clinton and Gilbert streets.

The signal company representative told the council several weeks ago that delivery and installation would take about 60 days.

When Hawkins introduced this resolution, Mighell asked why these corners were being considered.

Hawkins said, "The city can't afford more traffic lights now, and we should give these three a trial period before buying more."

The council passed an ordinance establishing the position of custodian of parking meter records. The ordinance received the required three readings last night and became law.

The duties of the new job will be to record parking meter receipts, assist in counting and sorting money and help keep police court records under supervision of police judge.

The job will be under U.S. Civil Service and the mayor will make the appointment.

Salary for the position will be $1,500 a year.

A resolution introduced by Mighell was passed which authorized the mayor to purchase a motor driven coin counting machine for about $283.

Smith asked that the streets and alleys committee be given permission to negotiate on a new street sweeper.

Finds Iowa Homes In Good Condition

Iowa homes are generally in much better condition today than before the war despite building material shortages, according to F. B. Ortman, chairman of the construction committee of the Tile Council of America.

Homes also have more modern conveniences than before the war, Ortman said. There is a definite rise in the number having electric lighting and central heating, he explained.
