

Speculation Investigation— Pauley Expected To Resign Post 'Sometime This Month'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Edwin W. Pauley, whose commodity speculation has been under fire, announced last night that he expects to resign as assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall "sometime this month."

"As I have stated," Pauley said in a prepared statement, "when my job is finished I plan to leave the department of the army, not before. I expect this to be some time this month."

Earlier in the day, senators investigating market trading of government employees calculated that Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, personal physician to President Truman, more than doubled his money in a four-month flier in wheat, oats and corn last fall.

Through testimony and broker's records, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) figured Graham invested $5,700. Graham acknowledged a $4,185.28 profit.

But the physician testified he only took his broker's advice and did not use any inside government information.

Pauley also has denied using any inside information. In last night's statement he took occasion to defend his operations as "completely legal and ethical."

He fired back at Harold E. Stassen, candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, who Monday challenged Pauley's right to hold his government post after profiting nearly a million dollars in trading commodities.

Pauley and Stassen have been bickering each other since Stassen prompted the investigation by a speech last month in which he charged that government "insiders" had made money by trading in foodstuffs.

In his statement, Pauley said that Stassen's latest actions show he is in retreat, and that the presidential aspirant ignores Pauley's counterattack. He also doubts that Stassen will appear to testify before the senate committee on Jan. 23 as planned.

An Editorial

To Our Readers:

We told you yesterday of one experiment The Daily Iowan is conducting this week—a readership survey. Today's front page is another.

It is designed to help you in reading the day's news. Stories on the same general subject are grouped together. Associated Press dispatches are combined and rewritten to provide greater clarity and background material.

Beginning with the upper left hand column, the stories continue to the bottom of the lower right hand column. Usually the most important story is started in the upper right hand column. Small headlines are used. This means saving space for more news.

We realize this is a radical departure from standard newspaper practice, and that certain difficulties must be overcome.

We'd like to know what you think about it. The important question is does it help you read the news? Let us know your personal answer.

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull

Have you ever had anything taken away from you? Or have you ever lost anything through no fault of your own?

If you have, you can easily sympathize with the Iowa basketball team and Coach Pops Harrison. For they had something grabbed right out of their hungry fingers Monday night and it was not a superior University of Wisconsin basketball quintet that did the stealing, either.

You might say they were "whistle-tooted" right out of the city limits of Madison, Wis. The Hawkeyes played brilliant basketball... they out-battled, out-fought and out-scraped the Badgers in every phase of the game for 30 minutes.

Yet the work of two officials—or shall we say "attemped work"—robbed the Iowa team of what would have been their most important victory in two years. And a victory that seemed so near, yet ended so far, far away.

This may sound like sour grapes to many but we'll guarantee you in all truthfulness, it's not.

First, we'll say that we are naturally prejudiced. Then we'll discount any favoritism accorded Wisconsin by the officials, mainly because they were much closer to the situation at hand than we were. But there are a few facts you cannot discount. They stick out like onions in a rose bush.

In our language, bad officiating occurs when one or two referees do not know the rules or abide by them, and consequently lose control of the ball game.

Let us recite just one of the many instances that dotted the Iowa-Wisconsin game.

It was an Iowa out-of-bounds underneath the Badger basket in the second half. Wisconsin's Bob Cook was holding the ball near the end-line and Iowa Guard Jack Spencer reached out to grab the sphere and get play resumed. In the process Spencer hooked

Cook's arm and pulled the Badger scoring ace towards him.

At this point Big Ed Mills, Wisconsin's 6-foot, 6-inch giant, intervened and grabbed Spencer by the neck, shoving him out of bounds into the crowded bleachers.

Before the boxing bout could gain any momentum, other players stepped in and stopped it.

What do the officials (Nate Messinger and William Ferrell) do? Well, they started off right. They told Mills a cold shower might help his temperament and motioned him to the bench.

But they followed with a trick that takes the proverbial birthday cake. Obviously, when you throw a player out of a ball game, some technical foul is in order. But the officials were so flustered and befuddled that they didn't know what to do.

Instead of awarding Spencer a charity toss (two were in order because of an intentional foul) and giving Iowa the ball out of bounds, they decided to resume play with a jump ball at the free throw line. That amazed the 13,000 fans.

If that doesn't reflect a little bit about the officials in question, perhaps this will.

Iowa went for 18 minutes—from the beginning of the second half until there were two minutes left in the game—without being given one free throw.

With basketball the game that it is today, speed being the keynote and the Big Nine probably one of the roughest leagues in the country, it is almost impossible for a team to go through 18 minutes without committing a foul. During the Hawkeye "no Wisconsin foul" famine, the Badgers looped in eight gift tosses—in the final analysis, that was just about the winning margin.

We talked to Wisconsin Coach Bud Foster just before the game and he made a statement which proved very interesting.

"You know," Bud said, "I don't think Pops is going to like the officiating tonight. I'm pretty sure he won't like Messinger—he calls 'em pretty close. And I know he won't like this Ferrell—I don't like him, either."

Riding in the same plane with the Hawkeye cagers is better than a three ring circus.

The ride to Madison was kind of rough, especially on the landing, and the majority of passengers in the plane felt their stomach waltz a few times.

But for Little Murray Wier, the bumps were nothing new—he'd been up once before (to Columbus for the Ohio State game) and looked like an old veteran.

As Wier was frolicking around the plane, Coach Harrison remarked, "Look at that doggone Wier. He makes his first trip in a plane to Columbus and now he thinks he's the pilot."

Two other Hawks didn't especially care for the trip. Bob Schulz and Red Metcalfe both decided to return to Iowa City by car—the new age of airplanes still hasn't affected them. Herb Wilkinson, Harrison's assistant, also thought he'd rather drive back, too.

Walcott's Show Against Louis Is Top Comeback

Yankees 2nd In '47 Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—Jersey Joe Walcott, who almost dethroned heavyweight Champion Joe Louis Dec. 5, staged the outstanding comeback of 1947 in the opinion of the sports editors participating in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

The 33-year-old "Pappy Guy" from Camden, N. J., four times retired from the ring, earned the comeback crown by twice dumping Louis on the seat of his pants during their close 15-round scrap.

So rank an outsider that there was virtually no betting on the outcome of his fight with the Brown Bomber, Walcott established himself as the foremost contender by his surprising effort. The veteran of some 130 fights since 1931 now is in line for a slice of a probable $2,000,000 gate in June although he fought six rounds for $100 as recently as 1945.

Walcott, or Arnold Cream as he is known everywhere except in the prize ring, overshadowed the fine comebacks by the New York Yankees, Joe DiMaggio George McQuinn and the California football team.

The Yankees and Manager Bucky Harris finished second to Jersey Joe in the poll with 48 points to 97 for the heavyweight fighter. The points were divided five for first, three for second and one for third with each editor asked to name three choices. Fifteen firsts went to Walcott and six to the Yankees and Harris.

DiMaggio, voted most valuable in the American league, earned third place with 43 points and five firsts on his 1947 play. The Yankee Clipper, holed by a heel operation in early spring, led the New York club to a pennant and World series victory over Brooklyn.

McQuinn, the Yanks' 36-year-old first baseman, placed fourth, drawing seven votes as the No. 1 comeback. Only Walcott drew more first place ballots.

Cut loose by the Philadelphia Athletics after a disappointing season in 1946, McQuinn asked Harris for a chance with the Yanks. He led the league in hitting for a stretch in early spring and played brilliantly at first base.

The twin comeback of California football and Coach Lynn Waldorf took fifth honors. After a dreary 1946 campaign, the Golden Bears swept past all opposition, except Southern California, in a remarkable form reversal under a new coach, Waldorf.

Brooklyn's fine rally after losing the first two World Series games and the excellent job done by Manager Burt Shotton, returning to the Majors from semi-retirement, picked up enough points for sixth place in the standings.

Others receiving at least 10 points were the Chicago Bears, who rallied strongly after losing to the college All-Stars; the Alabama football team which finished fast after a poor start, Purdue's eleven which was one of the Big Nine surprises, Leo Durocher's return as manager of Brooklyn, Joe Page's comeback as a relief pitcher for the Yanks, Harry Walker's fine job of winning the National League batting title for the Phillies after the St. Louis Cards let him go and the Tennessee football team.

Delta Upsilon had four chances to tie the game on free throws, but none dropped through the hoop.

Wolverine Rose Bowl Records Disqualified

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Revision of 1948 Rose Bowl statistics yesterday knocked Michigan and Bob Chappuis out of two records.

Statistician Charles Weinstock erred in crediting two passes to Chappuis as forwards, when actually they were laterals and should have been credited to the running side of the ledger.

Hence Chappuis' total net yardage was reduced to a total of 230, just shy of Dixie Howell's mark of 239 established in 1934.

The change also reduced Michigan's forwards completed total of 15, instead of 17, which had been hailed as breaking Navy's record of 16 completions in 1924.

ELECT FROSH CAPTAINS

The rules and eligibility committee consisting of Jack Dana, Ken Preiss and Jim Rose decided that Pickard should be given the game, and that Totten should be dropped from the league.

Totten Bears Out of Intramural Town League

The Totten Bears of the Town league have been dropped from intramural basketball this season for using men under assumed names, the intramural office announced yesterday.

The ineligible men were used against Pickard in a game last Thursday night which they won, 22-20.

Prof. Roberts To Address Atom Forum

The increasing importance of the individual's role in the atomic age will be told Thursday evening when Prof. Hew Roberts of the college of education addresses the atomic energy forum in MacBride auditorium. The 8 p. m. meeting is the 15th in a series of 16 lectures.

"Many people think that the atom problem is too big for them," Roberts said, "and they would leave it entirely to the Washington commission and the United Nations."

"I think there are a number of things an individual can do and I propose to suggest and explain some of them," he said.

Australian-born Roberts returned to the University of Iowa in September, 1947, after serving in the U. S. army and the Australian army's directorate of research. He traveled extensively through Europe in 1934-35 under an Oxford scholarship.

Roberts also visited the U. S. in 1937 on a Carnegie traveling fellowship to study American colleges and universities. Director of adult education upon his return to Australia in 1938, he entered the RAF in Malaya.

On his return to Iowa City in 1940, Roberts gave nearly 700 lectures throughout Iowa on educational topics and international affairs. In 1942, Roberts was appointed acting director of the educational section of the British information service in New York.

The general public is invited to attend the free lectures, and take part in the question period following the meeting.

3 great names

in Home Laundering!

WHAT'S in a name? Well, when it comes to home laundering aids, Bendix, Voss and General Electric are three that any homemaker knows she can count on from the standpoint of materials, workmanship and performance.

As applied to the streamlined washing equipment shown below, they also mean the last word in washing ease, convenience and efficiency. Stop in tomorrow and "get acquainted".

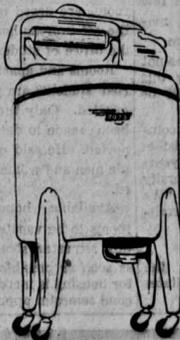

Bendix

A name that means unequalled washing freedom for thousands of women. With Bendix you just put in the clothes, add soap and set the dial. From there, your clothes are gently "tumbled" clean, triple-rinsed and damp dried while you read a book or perform other household tasks. What's more, the Bendix leaves no spilled water — no messy floors to clean. Standard model (not shown) $239.50. Deluxe model illustrated. $259.50

Voss

Here's a name that for 71 years has stood for one of the most progressive and improved conventional type washers on the market. Featuring the patented "floating agitator", the Voss washes clothes in clean top suds. Other features include the Electro-Safe Wringer which offers 3-way protection against injury from wringer accidents, centralized controls for greater convenience and a double-wall insulated tub that keeps water hot longer. $139.50

General Electric

The name General Electric on any household appliance is synonymous with quality of product. G-E scores again with this new washer that's ALL automatic. After you set the dial and add soap, it soaks your clothes before washing; rinses and damp dries — without your lifting a finger. Thorough cleansing is assured by the famous G-E agitator washing action. Last, but not least, the G-E cleans itself, drains itself and shuts itself off — all automatically. $349.75

RACINE'S

First of 38 SUI Building Projects to Begin March 1

Plans Include New Library, Music Building

By PHYL WHITE

Work on the first of 38 proposed buildings and additions for the Iowa campus starts March 1 with the Currier hall north wing.

The plans, approved by the board of education in February, 1945, and revised in May, 1946, include an auditorium and music building, living quarters near University hospital for resident physicians and a science building.

Twenty-six of the proposed structures will be new buildings. The other 12 will be additions to buildings now in use. Of these, 11 will be located on the west side of the river.

Contracts totaling $431,185 were let by the board Dec. 9 for the Currier hall addition and dining hall extension. The addition will accommodate 150 more women.

Also on the list of proposed structures is Parklawn apartments for married students.

Bids will be received by the board of education Jan. 29 for four of the 11 buildings in this 374-apartment project.

In April, 1946, bids received by the board indicated the project would cost at least $2,000,000. Plans were dropped at that time because of high costs.

University officials expect the board to advertise for bids early this spring for completion of Hillcrest dormitory. The original structure, completed in 1938, houses about 400 men.

The addition would double the dormitory's present housing capacity.

Other proposed housing units include three small dormitory buildings for men surrounding South Quadrangle, a women's residence hall southeast of Parklawn and completion of the Law Commons.

The university finished partitioning South Quadrangle into 42 rooms early this fall. The original 25-room structure was built by the navy in 1942 and turned over to the university three years later.

The university library and communications buildings rank high on the list of projects.

This spring the board will advertise for bids for the library, according to officials.

An appropriation totaling $1,500,000 has been set aside by the legislature for this project. R. E. Ellsworth, library director, said this amount would be sufficient for construction of only the first unit.

Other additions can be added to this main structure later, Ellsworth stated, when more money is allocated for the work.

The first floor of the three-story unit will house a main reading room with open stack shelving, lecture hall, administration offices and a technical process department.

Graduate reading rooms and research offices will be on the second floor. The third floor will include storage space and federal and state documents.

Macbride hall, reserve annex and Schaeffer hall libraries will be abandoned when this library opens, Ellsworth disclosed.

Prof. E. C. Mabie, chairman of the university committee on the communication center, said plans for the building are "simply in the process of discussion."

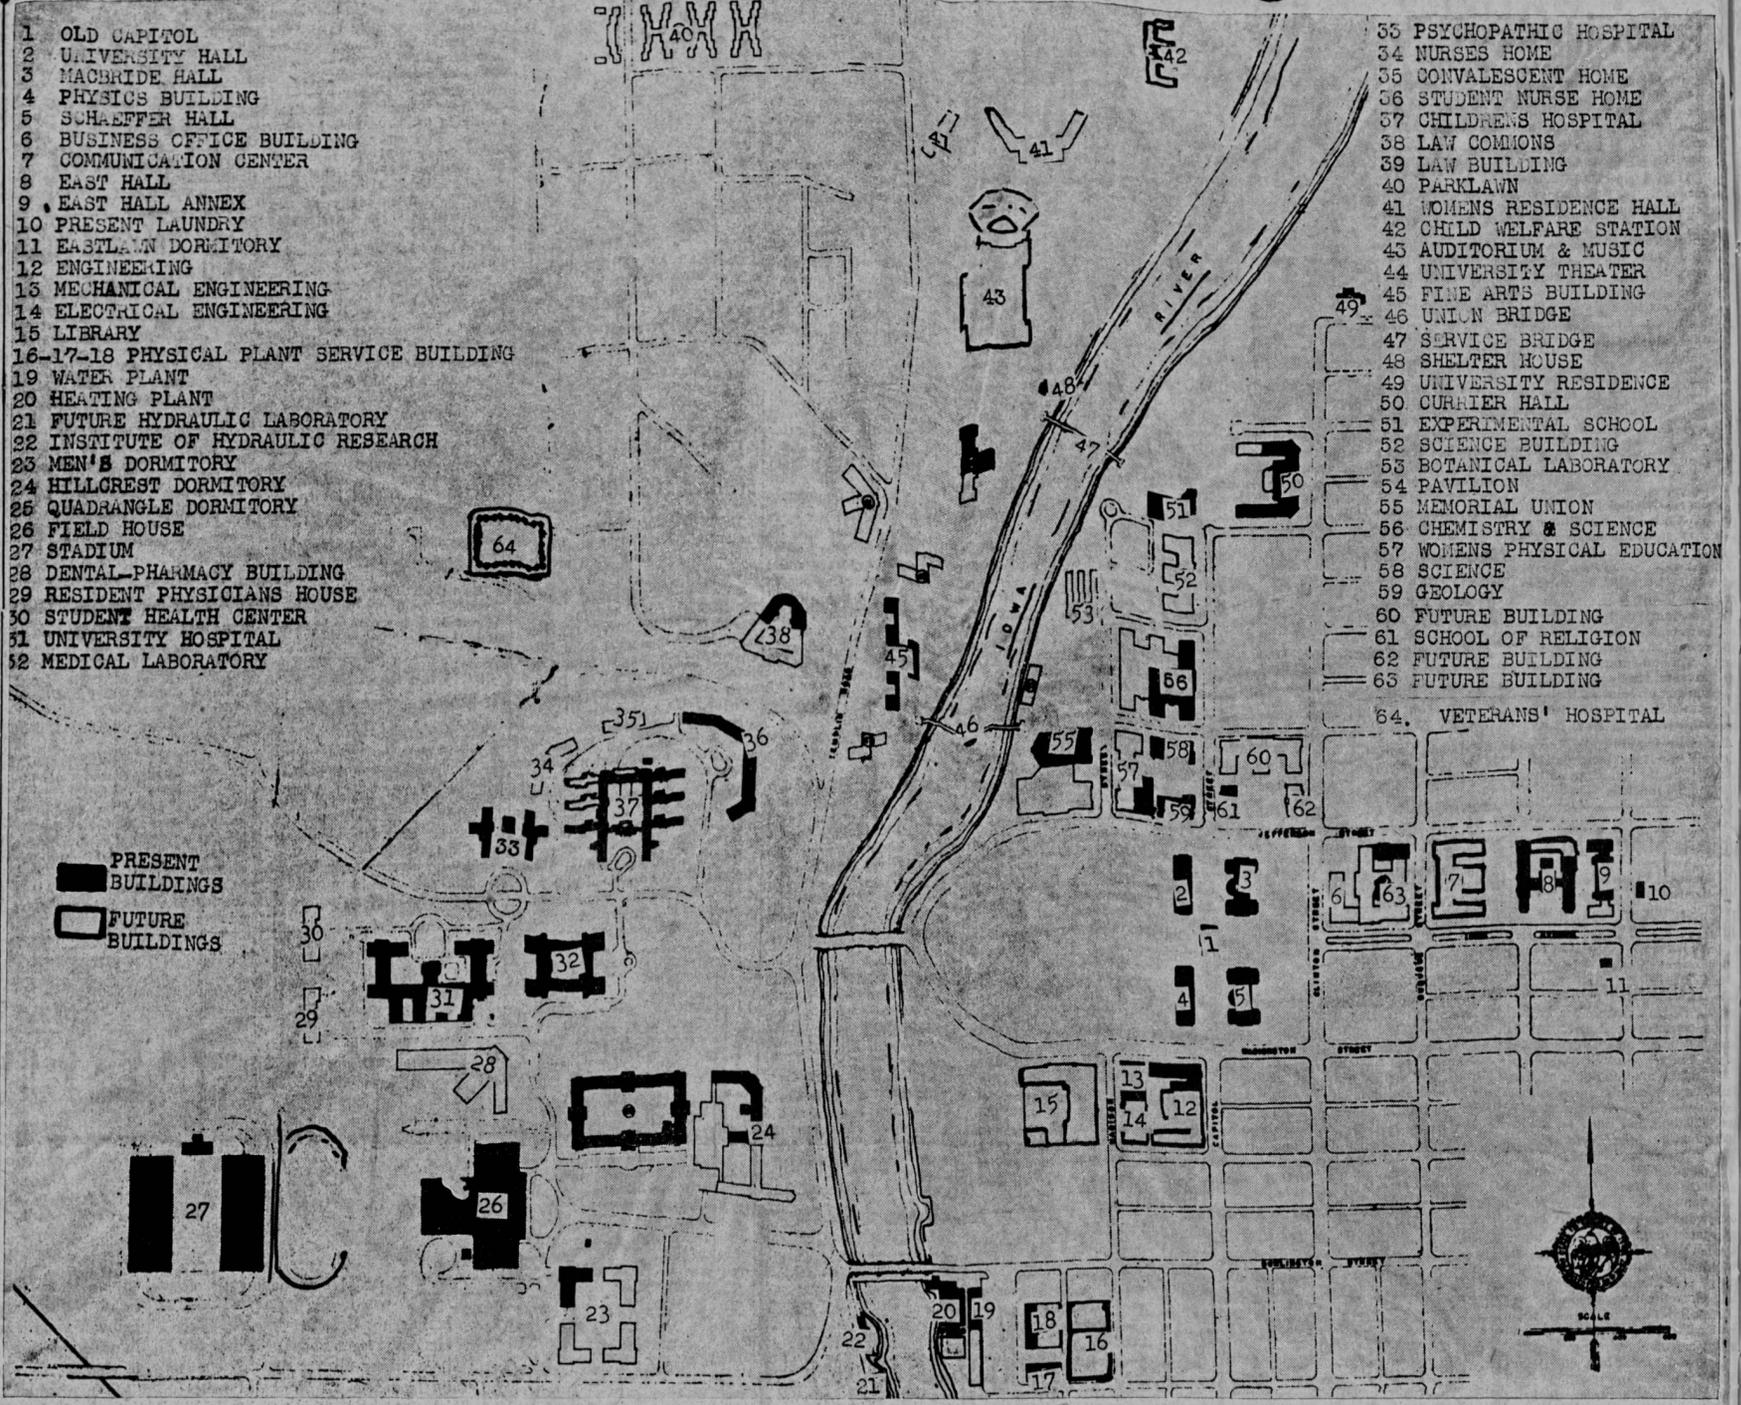

It has not yet been decided what departments will be included in the structure, Mabie said.

"No decisions will be made," he added, "until everyone has been heard."

It is believed, however, that the building will at least house radio station facilities and the school of journalism, including The Daily Iowan press rooms and shop.

Ownership of the property on which the communication center will be built is being contested in the Johnson county district court.

Mrs. Cecilia Carson, 906 E. College street, has a suit against the state pertaining to this strip of land west of East hall. In her petition, Mrs. Carson claimed the land was originally dedicated as a park. She further states that the mayor and the city council in March, 1890, acted without legal authority when they gave the land to the state for the university's use.

Money has also been set aside by the legislature for the children's hospital wing, a foot bridge north of University theater, new botanical laboratories, women's physical education building and a physical plant service building.

Dec. 15 the legislative interim committee gave the "go-ahead" signal on a $45,000 appropriation for the first floor in one of the two proposed west wings of the children's hospital.

The addition is to help relieve overcrowded conditions and to house the new department of psychological service.

The construction of a convalescent home north of University hospital seemed nearer reality last month when the present structure, 22 E. Bloomington street, was condemned. Dec. 31 the residents were moved to children's hospital following a building inspection by the state fire marshal, in which the property was described as "unsafe for housing crippled children."

West of the proposed convalescent home is the 12-acre site on which the veterans administration plans to build its $8,000,000 hospital. VA officials said last month plans for the hospital were completed, but contracts would probably not be awarded until July.

The VA purchased this $133,000 property from the state in November for their 500-bed general and surgical hospital.

An electrical engineering building may be built in the next few years next to the present mechanical engineering structure.

Although the legislature has not yet appropriated money for this project, officials feel it will be considered soon.

These structures will be completed first. Others in the list of 38 will be constructed many years from now, according to University Architect George Horner. "We won't be here then," Horner smiled.

Only 10 per cent of the blind people of the United States were born without sight.

Need Housing For Students

Student housing in the town area for next semester is still needed, Richard Sweitzer, manager of the off-campus housing bureau, reported today.

Householders having available rooms are urged to list them with the off-campus housing bureau at the office of student affairs.

Rooms and apartments for married students are particularly requested. Only three listings have been made to date, Sweitzer reported. He said quarters for single men and women are also needed.

Available housing, including rooms to be vacated at the end of this semester, should be reported as soon as possible. The demand for housing is increasing as the second semester approaches, he said.

Auto Accident Causes Total Damages of $750

Damage of $750 resulted from an automobile accident at 9 a. m. yesterday on S. Riverside drive near the Benton street bridge, according to police reports.

Police said drivers of the cars were Robert Haughenberry, route 4, and Robert L. Humphreys, Wyman.

Damage of $550 was listed for the Humphreys car, and $200 for the Haughenberry automobile. No one was reported injured.

University High Students Compete for Roles in New Assembly Program

Students at University high school are trying out for parts in the exchange assembly series sponsored by the school's Student council.

Karl Harshbarger and Bob Ballantyne wrote the script for the assemblies which will be given to other high schools in the state.

Student council members will accompany the assembly groups and will sit in on student council meetings in other schools.

No schedule of the assemblies has been arranged yet.

Sees Still Higher Food Prices in '48

Grocery bills will probably continue to go up in 1948, according to figures in the December Iowa Business Digest, published monthly by SUT's bureau of business research.

This digest shows that 1947 commodity prices (wholesale prices) increased an estimated 34 percent over 1946. Consumer prices (retail prices), on the other hand, went up an estimated 15 percent.

This comparison means someone along the line, between manufacturer and consumer, is absorbing the difference in price increase. This difference in price should soon reach the consumer in the form of higher prices.

This means we can look for another 19 percent raise in retail prices, over 1946, to equal the increase in the price of wholesale goods.

Iowa farmers fared exceptionally well in 1947. Although their costs rose one-fourth, the price they received for their products went up one-third. The results are seen in the 45 percent jump in 1947 farm incomes.

Wages for industrial workers have been steadily increasing the past year. The digest shows a 25 percent increase in industrial pay rolls.

Both farmers and industrial workers are well ahead of consumer prices in the inflation spiral. For, while consumer prices in 1947 went up 15 percent, industrial wages rose 25 percent and farmer's incomes increased 45 percent.

More people were employed in 1947 than in 1946. The digest shows a 10 percent increase in Iowa employment during the past year.

Production is also steadily increasing. A 10 percent rise in industrial production throughout the nation is noted in the digest.

War Dads Reduce $20,000 Memorial Campaign to $10,000

The goal of the American War Dads campaign for a granite war memorial on the county courthouse lawn has been reduced from $20,000 to $10,000, an official announced yesterday.

The slow progress of the campaign since its beginning early last year has caused the reduction. Elimination of secondary features such as the approach to the monument will make possible a smaller amount, the official said.

It is estimated that the amount of money collected already is between $4,000 and $5,000.

The project received opposition, particularly from veterans, when it was first proposed in 1947.

War Dads chapter members decided to proceed with the project after more than 70 percent of the county's Gold Star parents favored the plan.

DISPLAY FAMOUS PAINTINGS

The Annunciation
... sweetness and delicacy.

Reflects Florentine Culture

By JOAN LIFFRING
The Annunciation from the workshop of Fra Filippo Lippi (1406-1496), a $12,000 Metropolitan painting in the art building gallery, has sweetness and delicacy.

The unidentified painter of The Annunciation evidently worked closely with Lippi, although he shows influence of Fra Angelico and Domenico Veneziano. This painting has feeling for perspective and sense of light and air.

Lippi, whose style influenced Florentine painting, lost much of the intensity of Medieval and early Renaissance masters.

Lippi's art has the feeling of happy prosperous Florentine life. He depicts middle class people. His work always has the quality of youth and a sense of poetic beauty tinged with melancholy. He shows the charm of closely observed little things. The work of his pupils has these characteristics.

Early orphaned, Lippi was thrust into a monastery. Later as a monk, he tossed aside his vows and ran away with one of his models, Lucrezia Buti, a nun. Lippi married and settled down as a father of a family.

Lippi studied with Fra Angelico. The artist of The Annunciation was influenced by Fra Angelico, since the facial types, attitude and composition is very much like an earlier annunciation by Fra.

One-Man Art Show Given in New York By 1926 Iowa Grad

Prof. Myrwyn L. Eaton, 1926 Iowa graduate, is holding an exhibit of his paintings in New York City, Jan. 3-23, according to information released by the university's alumni office yesterday.

MYRWYN EATON

Eaton, formerly of Strawberry Point, Iowa, is assistant professor of fine arts at New York university. His current one-man show is the second exhibit of his work to be hung in the Binet gallery during the past year.

Eaton expects to exhibit, at the request of a French art dealer, some of his paintings in Paris in later in the year.

VA Lists Procedure In Change of School

Student veterans transferring to other schools and colleges for the second semester are asked to pick up special forms at VA offices.

The VA said yesterday veterans would ease the necessary paper work and speed up mailing of subsistence checks by making sure four steps are completed before beginning studies at the new school.

Veterans should:

1. Obtain a certificate of satisfactory progress from the school they attended this semester.
 2. Secure a supplemental certificate of eligibility from the VA.
 3. Ask the VA office now holding their records to transfer their files to the regional office having jurisdiction over the new school.
 4. Give VA their new mailing address to avoid delays in receipt of subsistence checks.
- Change of address forms are available at all colleges for students who have moved during the semester.

Graduate or prospective graduate students may take the examination Feb. 3 from 1-5 p.m., and Feb. 4 from 8-12 a.m.

Fee for the examination is $5 payable at the beginning of the first testing period.

Petzoldt, Mountain Guide, Speaks Sunday

A color motion picture travelog, "Five Miles High," by Paul Petzoldt, one of America's leading mountain-climbing guides, will be presented by the Iowa Mountaineers Sunday at 8 p.m. in MacBride auditorium.

The color picture will feature scenes of the fabled Vale of Kashmir, the Himalayas and the attempted ascent of K2 in the Himalayas. K2 is the second highest mountain in the world.

A short sequence of the rescue procedure of the stranded parachutist on Devil's Tower in Wyoming will also be included in the travelog. Petzoldt has a member of the rescue party.

Petzoldt was the chief climbing guide during the Iowa Mountaineer's 1947 summer outing in the Sawtooth region. He will also be in charge of the school of mountaineering sponsored in connection with the Iowa Mountaineer's 1948 summer outing in the Wind River range in Wyoming.

A champion skier and mountaineer, Petzoldt started climbing and exploring almost as soon as he learned to walk. At 12 he led month-long trips into the Sawtooth range and at 15 he led the third ascent of the Grand Teton in Wyoming.

In 1938 Petzoldt attained an elevation of 26,000 feet on K2. At present he is chief mountain guide in Grand Teton National park in Wyoming.

Admission to the travelog will be by membership or paid admission of 80 cents at the door.

Sawtooth Climbers Speak at Kiwanis

The hardships of climbing the Sawtooth mountains in Idaho were discussed by Prof. E. K. Mapes, Prof. N. C. Meier and Mark Meier, E3, at the Kiwanis luncheon yesterday.

The three men made the trip with the Iowa Mountaineers last August. They traveled by car and truck, eating and sleeping outdoors.

After arriving in the mountains, Mark Meier carried a 65-pound pack to the base of Mt. Heyburn to help establish an advanced camp. This camp was used as a central point from which the mountaineers began their ascent.

The three women in the group were the first women ever to reach the peak, according to Mark Meier. The first ascent was unsuccessful because of crumbling rock.

Color slides showing the different stages in mountain climbing were shown. The Sawtooth mountains get their name from the tooth-like appearance of their peaks.

CITY EDITOR Phil Miller assigned Merritt C. Ludwig to the story. The city editor is usually pictured with a green shade over his eyes, a cigar and a perpetual scowl. The Daily Iowan's city editor isn't so tough. But he does have to know what's happening all over town. One movie item is right, however—his telephone jangles most of the time.

THE REPORTER'S FIRST TASK is getting the facts. He must get all of the facts and be sure they are correct. This requires checking with several news sources. Above, Ludwig is shown interviewing George Rebal, manager of Rebal's food market, and asking for prices on 24 market basket items. Six other Iowa City grocers were checked.

Getting a news story into print isn't always as glamorous and exciting as some Hollywood movie directors would have people think. On the contrary, most news stories involve a great deal of time, patience, routine checking and just plain work.

In order to acquaint its readers with the story behind a news story, The Daily Iowan assigned photographer Don Richardson to take pictures of each step.

The weekly market basket story of last Thursday was selected as an average news story and one with which readers are familiar. Sixteen people helped write this story and contributed a total of slightly more than five "man hours" to get this one particular story into print.

Not included in the sixteen people were the circulation department's news boys.

If a picture had been used with the story still more people would have played a part in getting it into print and the five "man hours" would have been increased to approximately eight.

BACK AT THE NEWS ROOM he compiled his information, figured out averages and percentages, compared the results with previous surveys, seated himself at a typewriter and wrote up his story. He then handed it to the city editor who checked to see that it was well written. The city editor asked the reporter about all sections of the story which were not clear.

NEXT MAN to get a crack at the story was Wayne Schakel, news editor. He read the story for possible errors. He decides how large the headline will be and on what page the story will appear. Robert Schmidt, the man on "the rim" of the copy desk, took the story and went over it again. He checked for capitalization errors, punctuation, misspelled names and checked the figures in the report. He eliminated wordiness, smoothed out rough spots, checked for libel and then wrote a headline to fit the size ordered by the news editor.

A COPY BOY CARRIED THE STORY to the composing room where linotype operator Loren Vilmer set each line of the story in slugs of metal type.

IF THE STORY READS #EKK34 "wks, it means that the proof reader didn't catch the linotype operator's mistake. Bud Urban compared the proof with the original copy and marked all errors in the margin of the proof. After new lines of type had been substituted for those containing errors, the column of lead type was sent to the makeup man.

MAKING A STORY FIT into the space allowed for it, is the task of the makeup man. Keith Ohl is shown accomplishing this trick as he inserted slivers of lead between lines and paragraphs in order to fill the even 12 inches allowed for the market basket story. If the story had been too long, he would have had to shorten it by removing the least important words or paragraph. When all of the stories were in, Ohl locked the type in a metal frame called a chase. Clamps on either side of the chase prevented the type from spilling out.

Lang Urges 'Force Behind the Law' as Way To Back UN

Sovereignty is not a great barrier to world government, Prof. Reginald Lang of Carleton college told United World Federalists last night at 221A Schaeffer hall.

"The word 'sovereignty' can be used in two connections," he said. "That's where people become most confused."

Lang said the first meaning of the word is that nations are free to do as they wish in foreign affairs. The second meaning of sovereignty sets up a "supreme or ultimate but not sole authority," he said.

"Sovereignty is not a quantity which nations possess, like milk or the cocoon. It simply recaptures the notion that in an area where there has been no law the people now want law," Lang said.

Lang said that the nations of today originated in a conflict between ecclesiastical and political forces. "The only way to restore order was to set up precise areas where one legal authority reigned," he said. "Now the law must pass beyond the state into the international community."

"An international community would not absorb all other communities, but simply extend the idea of sovereignty to the world in all its legal implications," Lang said.

Lang believes that the only way to avoid the law of force" is to put "force behind the law." "We must put force in a pool behind the law instead of letting it lay around in puddles to encourage lawlessness," he said.

Lang said that he would favor a joint congressional resolution for the formation of a law enforcing body in the United Nations.

MOSCOW 'NO LIKE'

LONDON (AP)—A Moscow radio commentator said last night that President Truman's new budget message "eloquently confirmed" the "intensified militarization" of the United States.

Extroverts are said to favor red colors.

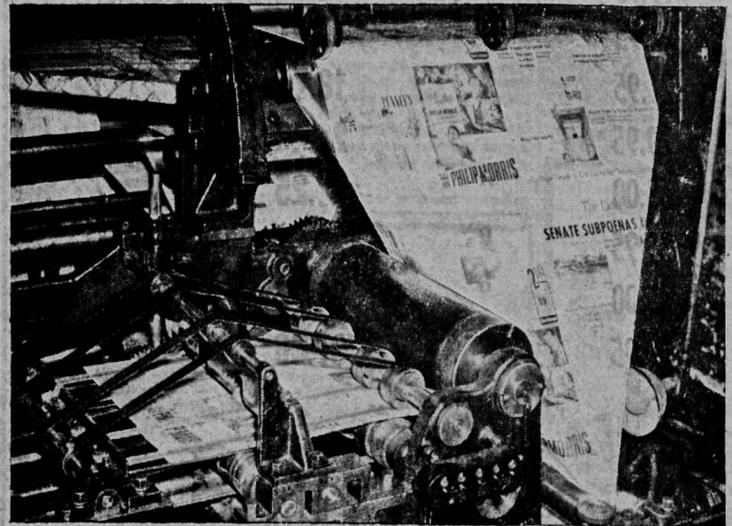

French Assembly In Riotous Uproar

PARIS (AP)—Fist fights among the deputies threw a session of the national assembly into an uproar last night. The Communists, fighting for a key legislative office, broke up the meeting in a maneuver temporarily paralyzing France's law-making machinery.

The non-Communist majority in the chamber appealed immediately to President Vincent Auriol for aid in getting the assembly operating again. Another session was set for today.

A Communist decision to insist on the re-election of their legislative leader, Jacques Duclos, as first vice-president threw the session into an uproar as deputies shouted and fought in the aisles.

Fighting also preceded the vote on the presidency which Herriot won by receiving 317 votes to 124 for Communist Raoul Calas.

AFTER PLACING THE CHASE on the bed of the press, the clamps were removed. The presses rolled slowly on a test run and still another check for errors was made.

Science Marches On—

'On The Beam' Is Obsolete

The army slang term "on the beam" is obsolete. The phrase is going out with the latest in air radio navigational aids known technically as VHF omnidirectional control.

Workmen have been busy in the last few months installing one of the sending stations for the new device about nine miles southwest of the Iowa City airport. Installation of the $37,000 worth of equipment should be completed by Feb. 1, according to James M. Bradford, manager of the Iowa City airport CAA weather station.

Previously, pilots leaving a point such as Chicago, lined up on a radio beam at the next station. The beam was sent out by a low frequency transmitter in one to four directions. If the plane got "off the beam," the pilot had to use a fairly accurate system of radio calculation to locate his position.

The sending station will be controlled by the weather station at the airport. Installation of transmitters and control units, goniometers, or the "brain" of the station, emergency power plant and the antennas is completed. Lines from the station to the airport still remain to be installed, Bradford said.

The range of the sending station will vary with altitude. At 1,000 feet the range is about 50 miles. When leaving the maximum range of one sending station, an automatic change is made by the receiver and the next station is picked up.

With the new device, there is no longer any "on and off the beam"—omni-directional control is just all beam.

Not Guilty Plea Entered By Davis On Charges Of Embezzling $2,500

Herman L. Davis, 917 S. Gilbert street, pleaded not guilty in the Johnson county district court yesterday on charges of embezzlement. He was arraigned before Judge Harold D. Evans.

Clair Hamilton represented Davis, who has been held in the county jail since his arrest Dec. 4 on a complaint by H. H. Hiett, manager of the local Montgomery Ward store.

Hiett claimed Davis embezzled $2,555 during his eight month's employment with the company. Bail has been set at $3,000.

Rebels Pose New Threat in North Greece

ATHENS, (AP)—A highly-placed Greek military informant in Ioannina declared yesterday that all of Epirus was in danger of falling to the guerrilla forces of Markos Vafiades, who is striving to carve out a separate Communist state in northern Greece.

His statement came as Dwight P. Griswold, chief administrator for the American mission to aid Greece (AMAG), announced that the Greek government had agreed to impose bank credit controls to fight inflation and take other vigorous action "to help themselves."

A new army offensive was launched against a force of 800 guerrillas on famed Mt. Parhassus, 75 miles northwest of Athens, with an amphibious operation from the Gulf of Corinth.

Commando units moved ashore near the port of Itrini from destroyers, gunboats and coast guard vessels before dawn and occupied heights guarding passes used by the guerrillas, a military spokesman in Athens said. Troops, police and air force units began attacks farther inland.

The military informant at Ioannina, who could not be quoted by name, said Communist-led guerrillas had concentrated strong forces at many strategic points close to the Albanian border and west of Ioannina near Philates.

Diversionary activities were reported in progress in that region and the informant said the guerrillas were using excellent military tactics which indicated they were receiving directives from high "foreign" military chiefs.

Love Finds Way In Bulgaria, Too, Kilpatrick Relates

In Bulgaria, if you see a boy and girl walking side by side you may be sure they are at least engaged, because a girl must always walk behind her escort until they are engaged, according to Norman Kilpatrick, who taught for two years at the American college in Sofia.

Kilpatrick, assistant director of the international libraries, addressed the international relations group of the American Association of University Women on "Social Life in Bulgaria" last night.

He described housing, food, education, business and social etiquette of the Bulgarians. Water buffalo and wooden plows are still being used for farming, Kilpatrick said. The reasons for this are:

1. The law makes it impossible for anyone to own plots of land side by side. A person's property is scattered over the countryside.
 2. The peasants live in villages and work on the surrounding lands.
 3. The high costs of machinery under these conditions makes it impossible for an individual to purchase modern machinery. A few villages own tractors, however, Kilpatrick pointed out. This sort of communistic system must be employed if they are to survive, he added.
- "It is going to be a slow process to raise the standard of living in such countries as this," said Kilpatrick. "They just don't have the facilities."
- Kilpatrick said the people are poorly fed and poorly housed. Breakfast is unknown, even in the capital, and rice and bread compose a great part of the peasant's diet. One can often "go to a Bulgarian's home and be served a cucumber for a meal," he said.
- Kilpatrick said the Turkish custom of keeping men and women segregated in social life is still practiced quite a bit in Bulgaria. Marriages are arranged by parents.
- "However, every girl has a boyfriend and every boy has a girlfriend," he laughed. "They get a kick out of writing notes to each other and arranging secret rendezvous because they are not supposed to do that."
- Kilpatrick concluded his talk by serving Turkish coffee and an assortment of Bulgarian tidbits, including salted pumpkin seeds.

Soldier Steals Xmas Mail Valued at $15,000

HONOLULU, (AP)—Army authorities announced yesterday they had found $15,000 worth of loot from Christmas mail thefts at Fort Shafter and that a 25-year-old soldier was in custody.

The said the loot was discovered in unused filing cabinets at the fort, where the soldier has been assigned as a messenger. It consisted of cash, money orders, checks, wallets and gifts.

Authorities reported the looted mail all was addressed to army transients. Mail to permanent members of the garrison, who would learn more quickly that money and gifts had failed to arrive from home, was undisturbed.

This Trip Wasn't Necessary

GEORGE RUIZ, 15-year-old Los Angeles youth, made an unexpected trip yesterday over the railing of this bridge. A heavy trailer-truck went out of control, overturned, hit Ruiz and threw him to the street 28 feet below. The youth crawled to the curb (left) and safety before cars on the heavily traveled highway could hit him. His injuries: a broken wrist and lacerated hand. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Longman Delivers First of Lectures On SUI Art Show

Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the art department, gave the first in a series of 31 lectures last night on the Metropolitan art exhibit in the art building auditorium.

Over 200 people heard Longman's slide-illustrated lecture on Rembrandt. Two paintings by Rembrandt, The Admiral and The Admiral's Wife, are in the exhibit. Rembrandt is noted for his ed the greatest painter who ever lived by students and the public in this country," Longman declared. "He is great because of his human understanding."

Rembrandt is noted for his serenity, philosophical depth, versatility and subtlety, Longman continued. "Lesser men have only one mood in their paintings; Rembrandt had many."

The Dutch artist has also been considered the greatest etcher who ever lived, Longman said.

"In some cases Rembrandt was one of the first modern artists. His whole-hearted devotion to art, his painting at times only to please himself, is similar to many moderns," Longman said. Rembrandt was individualistic and a rebel in his time, he added.

Opera Star Nadine Conner Wears Good Luck Heirloom

By TOM HABIB

When Soprano Nadine Conner presents her concert in Iowa Union at 8 o'clock tonight, chances are she'll be wearing a cameo brooch once belonging to her great-grandmother.

The Metropolitan opera star, native of California, has worn the heirloom for good luck at professional appearances ever since her audition with the opera company in 1941.

Before becoming a Met singer, Miss Conner sang on Los Angeles radio programs while studying music at the University of Southern California. There, her outstanding work won her the Entrepren Opera Scholarship. Later she was engaged by the Southern California Opera association.

In 1939, she married Dr. Lawrence Heacock and retired from her career. However, in 1941 she was encouraged to resume singing.

An audition with Dr. Bruno Walter, conductor of the New York philharmonic symphony orchestra, was soon followed by her debut on the Metropolitan stage. Soon afterwards, Miss Conner debuted as soloist with the symphony orchestra under Dr. Waller.

Miss Conner, accompanied by Stevenson Barrett, will open tonight's concert with a recitative, "Let Me Wander Not Unseen" and an aria, "Oh Let the Merry Bells Ring Round," both from "L'Allegro," by Handel. She will then sing Mozart's "Bester Jungling" from "Der Schauspielerdirektor."

Her second group will begin with "Cantique (de soeur Beatrice)" by Boulanger, followed by Fourdrain's "Le Papillon." She will continue with "Chant d'Amour" and "Le Nelumbo" from Morel's "Sous le Ciel de l'Islam," followed by "Femmes, Battez Vos Mays," arranged by Arnold Bax.

Miss Conner will conclude the first half of the program with the aria "Un Bel Di" from Puccini's opera, "Madame Butterfly."

After intermission, Barrett will play Prelude by Kittel Bauer, Schubert's Impromptu, and Capriccio, by Dohnanyi.

Miss Conner will resume the concert singing two Schumann works, "Mondacht" and "Fruh-

Ben Birdsall Wins Practice Law Case

Ben C. Birdsall, Clarion, last night won the law school's junior class argument held in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Second place honors went to Robert L. Bliss, Mason City.

Arguments centered around the question of whether John Black deceased, could will his body to science.

Black died of an unknown disease and in his will asked that his body be turned over to his doctors so that an autopsy could be performed to find the cause of death.

Black's children, James and Mary, claimed that the will was ineffective. They brought suit for damages against the doctors for illegally performing the autopsy and for failing to turn the body over to them.

Birdsall and Bliss were attorneys for the doctors. Arguing for the children were Charles E. Harris, Williamsburg, and Francis Fitzgibbons, Armstrong.

No decision was handed down in the case. District Judge J. E. Heiserman, of Anamosa, presided over the court.

Quick Arrest In Ohio Knife Killing of Girl

BALTIMORE, (AP)—Less than 24 hours after his arrest, a 23-year-old former inmate of a New York mental institution was on the way to Cleveland to face a charge of murder. He is charged with the knife slaying of a machinist's eight-year-old daughter.

Nonchalantly chewing gum, Harold Beach Jr. waived extradition and was delivered to the custody of two Cleveland detectives. They left by train for Pittsburgh where they will be joined by Cleveland's director of public safety, William Smith.

The detectives had with them a statement in which they said the slack-jawed, bespectacled youth admitted stabbing to death Sheila Ann Tuley.

Beach told of picking up the girl on the street after he watched a movie double feature—"Savage Love" and "Native Bride." He said he led her into an alley. Then he stabbed her in the back when she started to scream.

Cleveland detectives said they first started to hunt Beach after discovering he had a criminal sex

Michigan Officials Seek Bootleggers

LANSING, MICH., (AP)—The Michigan Liquor Control commission tackled reports of an interstate rum-running racket yesterday by assigning 65 agents to check every bar in Detroit.

The commission said the investigation would proceed, although no evidence had yet been found.

Walter M. Noack, enforcement director at Detroit, said earlier federal aid had been asked in checking reports that bootleggers were bringing hard-to-get whiskey into Michigan from Chicago.

The reports told of racketeers buying Scotch and Canadian whiskeys from overstocked Chicago dealers and selling them at premium prices in this state, according to the commission. However, the commission said a Chicago survey revealed shortages there similar to those in Michigan.

Woman and Youth Get Life for Husband Killing

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Prison life terms were imposed yesterday on 16-year-old Richard Gorman and Mrs. Josephine M. Upton, 30, for the ambush killing of the woman's husband.

Attractive red-haired Mrs. Upton and Richard showed no emotion as they stood side by side for sentencing by Circuit Judge Charles H. Hayden.

Both Richard and Mrs. Upton admitted they plotted to slay her husband, Frank, last August.

Mrs. Upton said her husband was guilty of repeated cruelties to her. Richard admitted firing a fatal shotgun blast as he and Mrs. Upton waited upon Upton's return home from work.

Satira Hires Lawyer For Appeal of Sentence

HAVANA, (AP)—Patricia (Satira) Schmidt hired a new lawyer yesterday to handle her appeal from a 15-year prison sentence for the fatal shooting of John Lester Mee aboard his yacht in Havana harbor.

The dancer from Toledo, Ohio, signed a paper appointing Carlos Menorio, one of Cuba's outstanding criminal lawyers, as her attorney. He succeeds Rene Castellanos who defended her during her trial.

Mencio said he would handle the appeal for "absolutely nothing."
