GOP, Demos Will Cut Taxes
 Over Truman Veto—Martin

WASHINGTON (AP)—Speaker Martin (R-Mass) predicted after a mass meeting of house Republicans yesterday that the GOP $6.5-billion tax reduction bill will pass the house Monday with unanimous Republican support.

The speaker also forecast: "We will override a veto of the bill we send to the White House. Democrats will get on the band wagon on the final vote."

When a rally of Democratic house members broke up after two hours of speechmaking against the Republican bill, Democratic leader Rayburn of Texas told reporters:

"It looks like the Democrats are pretty unanimous against the Knutson bill."

Rayburn has called the bill "nefarious and dishonest." He said no Democrat spoke up for it at their meeting.

However, Rep. Doughton of North Carolina, the Democrats' No. 1 tax man, said after the meeting that "a lot of Democrats felt there should be some tax relief."

"And if we don't offer something to please them," he added, "I fear a lot of them will vote for the Knutson bill."

Republicans contended yesterday they can cut taxes $6.5-billion this year and still pay about $11-billion on the nation's debt in the next two years. Democrats replied that the GOP is endangering government solvency.

The 15 Republicans and 10 Democrats on the tax-framing house ways and means committee submitted to the whole house these clashing statements on the eve of the opening of election year tax debate in the house today.

A showdown house vote is set for Monday. Passage is expected. The measure then will go to the senate where the size of the tax cut may be whittled down in a Republican effort to pick up enough Democratic votes to override a presidential veto.

The 15 Republicans said they based their tax slash on (1) GOP plans to cut President Truman's $39.7-billion budget for fiscal 1949 by at least $3-billion and (2) an expectation that individual incomes will reach a new record of $209-billion in 1948.

Firing back, the 10 Democrats said the Republican figures are wrong. They said a tax cut of $6.5-billion "presents a threat of deficit spending for fiscal year 1949, and a substantial risk to our fiscal solvency, national security and fulfillment of our international responsibilities."

The Republicans revised upward by $200-million the estimate of the tax cut in their bill on the basis of the expected 1948 individual income. When the bill was first introduced last fall the reduction was estimated at $5.6-billion. This later was upped to $6.3-billion and the new estimate yesterday put the figure at $6.5-billion.

Rep. Doughton (D-N. C.), senior ways and means Democrat, told the house rules committee that if the big tax cutting measure is sent to the White House it will be vetoed. Congress will sustain the veto, he added, "and we will have no tax reduction at all." He said he favors a cut of about $4-billion.

'No Roman Holiday Over My Speculation': Thomas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) said yesterday he will not submit to a public hearing of his speculation in commodities. He declared he will furnish the facts to senate investigators, but added there will be no "Roman holiday" over him.

As a senator, he says he can't be subpoenaed by the appropriations subcommittee which is examining his dealings and that of other public officials in its investigation of speculation in foodstuffs.

The tall Oklahoman told a reporter he will ask the senate to require all its members to disclose their personal finances "as I have been forced to do."

He said he and his wife had closed out all their trading accounts because of the senate inquiry. He explained he had dealt in stocks and commodities with $150,000 realized when he sold his Oklahoma holdings upon entering the senate 20 years ago. He estimated that he has as much money as he had originally.

Meantime, two other senators, Taylor (D-Idaho) and Morse (R-Ore.) introduced a bill yesterday requiring members of congress, and all government employees drawing more than $9,000 a year to report outside income in detail.

Tobey Asks Inquiry Into Eccles Demotion

WASHINGTON (AP)—A congressional inquiry shaped up yesterday into President Truman's sudden ouster of Marriner S. Eccles from the chairmanship of the federal reserve board of governors.

Mr. Ginsberg Was Calm

"I'M NOT EXCITED!" shouted Isidore Ginsberg yesterday at a joint congressional housing committee. Ginsberg was addressing Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy while the committee was trying to find out where Ginsberg, a building materials dealer, buys his gypsum. The 301-pound, 5 foot 4 inch dealer almost got cited for contempt of congress. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Housing Committee Has Lively Session

WASHINGTON (AP)—A 301-pound, 5 foot 4 inch building materials peddler finally agreed yesterday to tell where he buys his gypsum—and got out from under a threat of a citation for contempt of congress.

Isidore Ginsberg of New York was the witness. He appeared before the joint housing committee which is trying to find out why the cost of new homes is so high. The result was a noisy, two-hour session which had:

1. Congressman shouting at congressman,
2. Congressman shouting at Ginsberg, and
3. Ginsberg outshouting them all.

What the shouting was all about takes a mite of explaining.

Ginsberg had appeared before the committee last week. When he came back yesterday its co-chairman, Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.), promptly greeted him as a "big time gray market operator."

McCarthy on Ginsberg: He buys

gypsum—a scarce building material used as laths and partitions—and resells it at large profit. This runs up the cost of housing to veterans.

Ginsberg on Ginsberg: He buys gypsum in New York and Massachusetts, where there isn't so much new housing. And by shipping it where it's badly needed, he's performing a "public service, at a modest 16 percent profit."

When Ginsberg refused to tell the names of the firms from which he got his gypsum McCarthy suggested that he be cited for contempt. (Maximum penalty: $1,000 fine, a year in jail.)

Replied Ginsberg: "I'll make you a sporting proposition. If the big gypsum companies will tell you who they sell to, I'll tell you who I buy from." McCarthy then asked for a contempt citation, but said he would wait until later to have a committee act on it.

While he was waiting, officials of the gypsum companies agreed to give the names of their customers—in confidence. Whereupon Ginsberg said he, too, would give his names—in confidence.

So McCarthy said he'd drop the contempt charge.

Labor—The 3rd Round; CIO and GM Tangle Steelworkers Ask Pay Hike

CIO Charges GM Violates Labor Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—A complaint that General Motors corporation violated the Taft-Hartley labor law was filed yesterday by Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

Acting on charges made by the CIO Auto Workers union, Denham alleged that GM refused to bargain with the union on a union-proposed insurance plan, and sought to compel the workers to accept a company insurance plan drafted without consulting the union.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the union, declared that the company was trying to "jam through" what he termed a sub-standard insurance plan by Sunday, one month before negotiations are opened on a new contract.

Denham's complaint—issued within a week after the union brought its charges—is the means provided under the Taft-Hartley law to send the case to a hearing before an NLRB examiner. The hearing will begin Feb. 10 in Detroit. After the examiner makes his findings, the contending parties have an opportunity to challenge them. If they are not challenged, the findings stand as an NLRB decision. If they are disputed, the NLRB reviews them and makes its decision.

Meantime Denham can apply at any time for a federal court injunction to halt the alleged unfair labor practices until the NLRB examiner can rule on them.

A spokesman for Denham's office said yesterday afternoon that "we are seriously considering" applying for such an injunction.

The CIO-UAW has been trying since August, 1945, to win company approval of a group insurance plan covering sickness, accidents, medical, hospital and death benefits for GM workers it represents.

A few days ago the union asked GM for a new 30-cent wage increase, with five cents of the money earmarked to help finance the union's own insurance program.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The CIO united steelworkers served notice yesterday it will demand wage increases for 850,000 members at negotiations expected to start April 1.

The union disclosed its 170-man wage policy committee will meet in the steel capital Feb. 18 "to prepare a program to lay before the steel industry calling for an increase in wages" as part of the "third round" of pay hikes since V-J day.

That session will be preceded on Feb. 16 by a session, also in Pittsburgh, of the union's international executive board.

A spokesman for the union said the average hourly wage now is $1.54.

No hint as to the size of the pay demand was given in the union announcement and none is likely until the powerful wage policy group approves a figure formally.

Although the current contract with the U.S. Steel corporation, the Jones and Laughlin Steel corporation, and other giants in the industry does not expire until April 30, 1949, the pact contains the proviso that wage clauses may be reopened April 1 of this year if either side desires. Wage negotiations must be concluded in 30 days, the contract specifies, or present pay scales continue in effect another year.

Steel industry spokesmen declined to comment on the coming wage hike demands.

Grants Union Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the first decision of its kind, the national labor relations board yesterday granted union bargaining rights to lawyers employed by an insurance firm.

The case involved the New York office of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company of Chicago, doing business in New York as the American Lumbermen's Casualty company of Illinois.

The firm argued that the attorneys are professional employees representing management and that membership in a union would violate the canons of ethics of the American Bar association.

French Close Banks, Agree on Gold Bill

PARIS (AP)—A bill was presented by the government in the chamber of deputies early this morning to do away with the 5,000 franc note, worth about $25 in US currency. Banks were ordered closed for two days.

This form of currency has been a favorite of black market operators who have been buying American dollars and British pounds at twice their official rate.

Economic observers said the move also would catch the French peasant, regarded as a hoarder as a class.

The banks were ordered to remain closed until the chamber of deputies had finished debate on the economic program advanced by Schuman.

An official source said the banks would be reopened Saturday morning, Jan. 31, and remain open all day. Normally the banks in France close at noon Saturday.

The order was issued several hours after Schuman compromised with the Socialists over his gold bill last night and eased a crisis that threatened his government.

In a half-hour session of the cabinet, Socialist ministers proposed they vote for the bill to create a free gold market in France. Other socialist members of the national assembly would abstain from voting against the measure, the Socialists said.

Earlier, a cabinet spokesman declared the government could not continue in office if the assembly voted down the measure.

The gold bill was one of three parts of Schuman's money program announced Sunday. The first and second parts, devaluation of the franc and creation of a free currency market in Paris did not need parliamentary approval.

The Socialists declared that the free gold market was a step away from their idea of controlled economy. They criticized as too low the 25 percent tax on hoarders who turn their gold stores into the free market.

British Close Palestine, Trans-Jordan Bridges

JERUSALEM (AP)—British closed last night all bridges into Palestine from Trans-Jordan except the heavily guarded Allenby bridge.

The move was designed to tighten control of Holy Land frontiers.

It followed the crossing into Palestine last week of 750 uniformed well-trained Arab volunteer troops from Trans-Jordan to participate in Jewish-Arab warfare.

The Allenby bridge over the Jordan is on the main Jerusalem-Jericho road to Amman, capital of Trans-Jordan.

U.S. Won't Ship Arms

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department is not at present considering any change in its embargo on shipment of arms to Palestine and other middle eastern countries, Secretary Marshall said yesterday.

FRANKFURT, GERMANY (AP)—United States air forces began a wide search today for a transport plane missing between Istres, France and Udine, Italy. Three American wives and five children Part of the route would carry it over the Mediterranean.

Fuel Situation—National, State and Local

Fuel Oil Shortage Cripples Nation

Emergency Action Taken by Governor

DES MOINES (AP)—Boone residents whose fuel oil tanks either were empty or whose supply was dwindling fast adopted an attitude of hopeful waiting last night while a newly appointed state fuel coordinator and even the weather sought to aid them.

Boone Mayor F. W. Ganoce said yesterday 100 oil-heated homes there were completely out of fuel and that "no more than a handful" of 1,000 other oil-burning homes had more than a 36-hour supply.

The city set up 24 cots in the city hall to provide sleeping facilities for some of those driven from their homes by the cold and no fuel oil, but up to mid-afternoon no one had asked permission to occupy them.

Shortly after Mayor Ganoce made an appeal to Gov. Robert D. Blue for the appointment of a fuel coordinator to help alleviate the situation, Blue put Rodney Q. Selby, director of the Iowa development commission to work as coordinator, Blue also appointed a five-man committee to assist Selby.

Selby promptly conferred with the governor. Selby said Blue wanted to find some means of getting an equitable distribution of the available supply.

Meanwhile, the temperature in Boone rose from a minimum yesterday of about 8 degrees below zero to a mid-afternoon reading of about 20 above. This was higher than usual during the recent extended cold wave.

In announcing the appointment of the fuel coordinator and advisory committee, Governor Blue said: "A check this morning disclosed that approximately 50 percent of the communities in the state have no fuel oil shortage but the remaining approximately 50 percent have or soon will have one."

"People who burn oil for heat and can convert to coal should consider doing so. Where coal can be used to supplement fuel oil it should be so used."

Students Protest Use of Game Room for Study

CORNING (AP)—A youthful temper blew through this town yesterday but it appeared to be subsiding last night.

Because a portion of a 4-year-old youth center is being set aside to house an over-flowing fourth grade, 130 of the 300 Corning high school students stayed out of school and staged a protest demonstration.

Placards bearing such slogans as "we want our game room or no school" were paraded through the streets by the protesting students.

Supt. D.D. Dunlavy said about 30 of the students returned to their classes during the afternoon and he thought most of the remainder would be back today. He said the problem was explained to the students at two meetings and that the school board probably would take some further action by today.

ALL STEAMED UP was weatherman Harry Wahlgren as he checked the thermometer at the St. Louis, Mo., weather bureau yesterday. The city had its lowest temperature in three years—a frigid one degree above zero. Across the nation fuel oil supplies ran dangerously low and many factories and schools were closed as a conservation measure. One of the reasons for the shortage: the coldest January in several years. (AP WIREPHOTO)

IC Fuel Oil Dealers Say Supply 'Tight'

Iowa City fuel oil distributors passed—unless unusual weather came last night saw no immediate danger of a critical local fuel shortage, although they generally agreed the supply here was "tight."

Robert J. Cotter, manager of university married student housing, said yesterday there was no need for panic, but he advised fuel conservation measures in temporary housing areas.

"We're supplied every day and will continue to get our supply unless the distributors are cut down," he said.

Here's what local fuel men had to say last night: Harold J. Dane of the Dane Coal company pointed out that usually 40 percent of the winter fuel supply (oil, coal and gas) is used during December and January. Under normal weather conditions, fuel consumption drops to 15 percent in February and 8 percent in March. Therefore, he expected the critical period had passed—unless unusual weather came. Dane said he had enough fuel oil on hand to supply regular customers for the next three weeks under ordinary weather conditions.

Frank T. Sponar of Standard Oil company declared the Iowa City oil situation "was not critical."

"I've got oil and my competitors have oil," he said.

According to Sponar, "panicky" customers had been phoning all day to ask about the local effects of the fuel shortage. He saw no reason for panic.

There is a "definite shortage" here was the opinion of George L. Lehman of Consumers Co-operative society. He said he had been rationing his supply for the past week.

Russ Wicks of Kelly Oil company called the oil supply "tight."

International—Marshall Insists; Russia Protests Asks Full $6.8-Billion

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall insisted yesterday that the full $6.8-billion requested by President Truman is needed for the first 15 months operation of the European recovery program.

He reaffirmed his stand on the size of the fund at a news conference. It was obvious that his comment was directed at reports that a compromise might be worked out $2-billion or more below the President's figure.

Marshall said that although some of the money would not actually be spent in the first 15 months, there should be either actual appropriations or contract authority for the full amount.

Even before he spoke, Dean Acheson and Robert M. LaFollette had urged senators to be careful about cutting the fund.

LaFollette, former Wisconsin senator, testified that the risk in authorizing too small a fund to help Europe get back on her feet would be "greater than the risks in the opposite direction."

At the same time, LaFollette emphasized that "nothing the United States can do will be effective unless the Europeans do more." He said they must act vigorously to bring inflation under control "in ways that are well understood but far from painless."

He recommended a "tough, businesslike administration" of the program.

LaFollette and Acheson appeared before the senate foreign relations committee.

British Deny Provision Exists for Jewish Army

LONDON (AP)—The British see no provision for a Jewish militia in the United Nations decision to partition Palestine, a foreign office spokesman said yesterday.

THE WEATHER TODAY

Fair and warmer today with the high temperature between 30 and 35. Yesterday's high 16; low 10 below. At 11:30 last night the temperature was 7 above.

Industry Allocates Petroleum for Homes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The petroleum industry last night began putting into effect an emergency voluntary allocation program designed to make more fuel oil available for winter-gripped homes.

The program calls for producers and distributors to concentrate during the next 60 days on heating oil output, even at the expense of gasoline production and distribution.

Industry action came after Attorney General Clark notified Secretary of Interior Krug that the voluntary allocation program would not be in violation of anti-trust laws as long as no price fixing agreements were involved.

Krug had requested justice department clearance right away on the industry proposals since he said "the fuel situation is becoming more and more acute." He noted that public hearings on the industry wide agreements will be held later, but that until then immediate steps are necessary to ease the shortage.

The succession of three cold waves this month—the most severe in years in many areas—brought orders for the industrial curtailment of gas supplies that left more than 250,000 workers idle across the country. The major developments:

1. Some 200,000 Detroit workers at General Motors, Chrysler, Ford, Briggs and scores of smaller industries were made idle when the Michigan Consolidated Gas company cut off fuel supplies to industrial plants for at least a week.

2. Steel production was affected with approximately 15,000 workers idle in the Pittsburgh area following an almost 100 percent curtailment of gas supplies.

3. Curtailment of industrial use of gas in Ohio left more than 21,000 workers idle in that state.

4. The Lone Star Gas company cut off service to all industrial users, schools and most commercial establishments in 33 Texas and Oklahoma towns.

Local Martin Supports Coralville Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—Support of a $700,000 presidential budget request to get the $12-million Coralville dam project underway at the Turkey creek site near Iowa City, was voiced by Rep. Thomas E. Martin (R-Iowa) at a house appropriations subcommittee hearing yesterday afternoon.

"It took the floods of 1944, 1946 and 1947 to arouse the people of the first congressional district of Iowa over the wanton waste and disaster that uncontrolled rivers can spread to the homes and over the fertile fields of Iowa," Martin said.

"I wish to supplement the information contained in the reports of the chief of engineers with my own statement urging approval of the Coralville dam at the Turkey creek site," Martin told the army civil functions appropriations subgroup headed by Chairman Engel (R-Mich.).

Martin told the group he had been advised that this site had been recommended by the army chief of engineers. In addition he offered in evidence a copy of a letter from Gov. Robert D. Blue approving the project on the basis of a report made by a special state flood survey committee headed by H. Garland Hershey, state geologist at the University of Iowa.

"Many hearings have been held by the (army) district engineer at various points along the Iowa river," Martin said, "and hearings also were held by the special committee appointed by the governor of Iowa."

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull

New York City is monopolistic. If you don't believe it, check the basketball records of major college teams. You'll find that three quintets are undefeated, and oddly enough, all reside in the metropolitan area.

New York university (12-0), Columbia (11-0) and Fordham (11-0) boast the distinction of the lofty perch. How long they'll stay there is a question. Rough dates are in store for the trio outside of Madison Square Garden "safety."

One other eastern team, Duquesne, had managed to grasp an unblemished slate until Texas Wesleyan crushed its dreams Monday night, 57-53.

The losing disease has even hit the minor college fives. Last week Roanoke, Salem of West Virginia and Shippensburg Teachers all fell by the wayside, leaving only Rocky Mountain college (21-0) and Potsdam (N.Y.) Teachers (7-0) to uphold the honor of the small boys.

Here's a look at the sectional situation at the halfway point in the 1948 cage season:

The Big Nine — Probably the most mixed up race in the United States. Michigan is the only team with less than two defeats and they've played but three games. Wisconsin, defending champions, lost to Illinois Saturday night to set its record at 5-2.

The Illini have a record of 4-2 while Iowa and Purdue have marks of 3-2, still very much in the running in this "free-for-all." Illinois and Iowa have the best over-all records in the conference, 11-2 and 9-2 respectively.

The Midwestern independents — Bradley university has far and away the best record, 19-1. The Braves got playful against South Dakota for their only loss of the season. Other leaders are Bowling Green, 16-3, DePaul, 12-3, and Toledo, 12-3. Yet to hit stride, Notre Dame has 8-4.

The Eastern league — Columbia and Cornell figure to fight for the Ivy league crown. Right now both sport 3-0 records. The Big Red from Cornell scored two impressive wins over Canisius and Pittsburgh in non-league tilts last week and are definite contenders for the title being defended by the Lions. Princeton is still a threat with two straight wins.

The Eastern independents — Seton Hall, 12-1, is rolling along with the best record, followed by LaSalle, 11-1, and Rhode Island State, 10-1. But Holy Cross, defending NCAA king, is still one of the best in eastern circles with eight wins, three lost.

The Southeastern conference — Tulane, winner of its last 14 games in a row, has an over-all record of 16-1 and holds the conference leadership with 8-0. Kentucky, as expected, will be the team to beat around tournament time — they have a clean slate in three tries and 17-1 over-all. The Wildcats murdered Cincinnati last Saturday, 70-43, for their 61st straight home triumph.

The Southern conference — North Carolina with a 5-0 league mark and 13-2 for all games is leading, with North Carolina State still favored to cop the title. State's record is 3-0 in the conference and 14-2 over-all.

The Southwest conference — Baylor leads with 5-0 and season's record of 13-4 but Texas is still the favorite with 3-0 and 14-1. Arkansas is still up with the contenders, 4-0 and 11-4.

The Big Seven — Kansas, 3-0, and Kansas State, 2-0, are on top. State has lost only once in four-team games.

The Missouri Valley — Oklahoma A&M leads with 3-0, followed by Drake and Creighton with 1-0 apiece. The Aggies only defeat in 14 games came at the hands of Kansas State.

The Skyline Six (old Big Seven) — Brigham Young and Denver are tied with 3-1.

The Pacific Coast conference — California leads the south with 4-0, Washington the north with 4-2.

Illinois Tramples Marquette, 88-66

MILWAUKEE (AP)—A fast-breaking University of Illinois basketball squad overwhelmed Marquette university, 88 to 66, before a sellout crowd of 5,200 at the auditorium last night.

Marquette rallied slightly just before intermission, but halftime found the Illini safely ahead, 41 to 32.

Game of the Year; Final Score, 118-116

GALLIPOLIS, O., (AP)—Rio Grande cagers nosed Wilberforce Church in a college basketball game last night, 118-116, but they took three overtime periods to do it.

The score was tied, 104-all at the end of the regulation game. The end of the first overtime, it was 114-all and it was 116-all at the end of the second extra period. In the "sudden death" third overtime, Jack Canady sent Rio Grande ahead on a free throw and Newt Oliver won the game with another charity toss.

Oliver wound up with 59 points — 23 of them on free throws, which boosted his charity total for the season to 167.

Lone Tree Advances Into Girls' Finals

Lone Tree's undefeated girls' team fought their way into the finals of the Johnson County basketball tournament last night with a thrilling 26-24 overtime victory over Tiffin.

In a first round boys game Iowa City Sophomores had little trouble in disposing of Solon's quintet, 37-19.

Immaculate Conception Falls To St. Mary's Five, 27-20

Ramblers Cold in Low-Scoring Win

By JOHN C. MCINTOSH
St. Mary's Ramblers defeated Immaculate Conception's Greyhounds, 27-20, last night in a low scoring game on the Junior High floor.

The Ramblers couldn't buy a basket. In the first quarter they went 5 minutes, 45 seconds without hitting from the field. Only two tip-ins and a free throw by Suplee kept them from being blanked. The fourth period was a replica of the first with 5 minutes, 25 seconds elapsing before they again broke the ice.

The Greyhounds had somewhat the same luck, but their main trouble was working the ball through the Rambler's defense.

St. Mary's solved the Greyhound giant wheel offense early in the game, and continually blocked them from working across the free throw lane by going into a three man blocking zone in the front court.

Only good shooting by Ronny Peck, IC center, kept the Greyhounds in the game. Peck could have been much more effective if he had been fed the ball, but Immaculate Conception wasted its time in futile efforts to crack the Rambler defense.

Paul Flannery took scoring honors for the Ramblers with 13 points, and consistently came down with the ball under the defensive backboard. John Suplee played a good rebounding game, and netted eight points for St. Mary's.

Peck hit for ten points while Mike Walsh played a good floor game for Immaculate Conception.

The box score:

Wier Hitting At .418 Clip

CHICAGO (AP)—Three players, representing Minnesota, Iowa and Indiana, hold field goal shooting averages of 400 or better as the "Big Nine" basketball season approaches the half way mark, official Western conference statistics showed yesterday.

Hitting the basket at this spectacular clip — comparable to hitting 400 in baseball's Major leagues, in this threesome:

Player	FG	FGA	FT	FTA
McIntyre, C. Minn.	51	91	46	128
Wier, F. Iowa	100	240	50	120
Meyer, C. Ind.	22	53	9	15

Three other players have a shooting average of better than .350 — Richard Schmittler, Ohio State, .384; Don Rehfeldt, Wisconsin, .369; and George Maddock, Northwestern, .385.

McIntyre, cut down to 20 points by Indiana last Saturday, holds the conference lead at 128 points, but his per game point average has dropped slightly from 27 to 25.6 per game. Wier, in second place with 120 points, is averaging 24 per game, while Wisconsin's Bob Cook, the defending champion, is third with 93 points for a 13.3 average, off slightly from the 15.6 average he maintained last year to win the title.

Announce Officials For Golden Gloves

Names of the officials for the annual Iowa City Golden Gloves, Feb. 3-4, in the Community building, were announced yesterday by Chairman Luther E. Burkert.

The Rev. Donovan G. Hart, long a familiar figure in boxing circles, will referee. Frank Bates, City high's gridiron mentor, and John Wilson, local sporting goods merchant, will serve as judges while Verne R. Miller will act as time keeper.

Burkert revealed that there are 35 boxers signed up for the February slug-fest and it is quite probable that other fighters will enter the tournament the latter part of this week.

Swiss Uphold U. S. Amateur Skate Team

ST. MORITZ, SWITZERLAND (AP)—The Swiss defied the authority of the International Olympic executive committee last night by refusing to obey an order throwing both disputed United States hockey teams out of the winter games starting Friday.

"The Amateur Hockey association remains qualified to participate in the ice hockey championship," the Swiss Olympic committee declared in a formal statement.

Nothing in the Olympic code covers the situation. Meanwhile, the International ice hockey federation squashed reports it might withdraw its teams from the Olympics and hold a world championship elsewhere by announcing it planned to stick with the Swiss Olympic organizing committee.

"I am proud of the Swiss Olympic committee for sticking to us," Dr. Fritz Kraatz, I. I. H. F. president declared after his group had taken the loyalty stand in an emergency session, "and we should stick to them."

An informed source said one possibility was that the entire International Olympic committee, meeting today, might remove the Olympic stamp from hockey but still leave it on the program with the Amateur Hockey association team participating.

Avery Brundage, president of the U. S. Olympic committee, has declared that if the A. H. A. team competes in the Olympics, his committee will withdraw all American athletes from the games.

But if hockey is struck from the official Olympic program, even if continued as an exhibition or a world championship, the way is presumably clear for the United States ski, bob sled, and skating teams to compete.

Meeting as a "jury of honor," the International Olympic executive committee resolved, "owing to irregularities on both sides, not to allow either hockey team of the United States to compete in the winter games."

The hockey team selected by the United States Olympic committee — which apparently gets the trip to St. Moritz just for fun — attended with other members of the U. S. team a banquet given by Brundage.

Informed of the Swiss decision, Brundage declared, "Now you have got a story," and J. Sigfried Edstrom, International Olympic president, immediately interjected, "Well, we're going to sleep on it tonight. We're not going to do anything now."

Basketball Booring, Standeres, Smoking Provoke Brechler

"Football receipts must pay for all other university sports except basketball," Dr. Paul W. Brechler, director of the athletic dept., said yesterday.

In a speech at the Lions luncheon Dr. Brechler said, "Because other sports do not take in enough money, football must be emphasized in any rebuilding program. Basketball just takes in enough to pay for itself, because students fill most of the seats."

An enlarged football coaching staff for next year is one of the things being done to improve the team, Dr. Brechler said.

There are three major problems confronting the athletic department during the basketball games played here, Dr. Brechler said. They are:

1. Smoking in the fieldhouse. He said, "The smoke gets so thick during a game you can hardly read the scoreboard. We are trying to make the people understand the dangers of smoking in such a large crowd."
2. Crowds booing the officials and other teams. "If this was done good naturedly, as it is in baseball, it would be all right," Dr. Brechler asserted. "It is getting so the crowd will do anything to overcome the other team. The supreme test will be when Wisconsin plays here."
3. People who arrive late for the game walk in front of the other spectators. Dr. Brechler announced a plan to keep late comers at the sidelines until there is a break in the game.

Louis After Exhibition KO

CHICAGO (AP)—Storm warnings, rattled in New York last Dec. 5. He yesterday flew over the training camp of Bob Foxworth, aspirant to the world's light heavyweight championship.

Foxworth, 23, of East St. Louis, Ill., a rollicking puncher with 14 knockout victories in 18 professional bouts, has a four-round exhibition date with Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, in the coliseum tonight.

Normally, an exhibition is just another exhibition for Louis. But he regards this one as different, principally because of his sorry showing against Jersey Joe Walcott in New York last Dec. 5. He will be gunning for a knockout, hoping to bow out with blazing fists in his farewell ring appearance in the city where he won the title.

"If he don't duck and I don't duck," Louis warned yesterday, "both of us is likely to get hurt. I'm gonna be trying to hit somebody like I didn't hit Walcott."

The pitch is that the proud champion will have the vision of J. J. Walcott in his mind tonight when he lets a punch go.

Iowa City Girl Scouts will participate in a national Girl Scout project to send 100,000 clothing kits to needy children overseas, according to Mrs. Hugh Carson, local executive secretary.

The Iowa City Girl Scout program committee has set a quota of at least one kit from each of the 40 troops in Iowa City. This will be their International Friendship project for February.

Troop 26, the first local group to complete this project, has already sent two clothing kits to Europe. Mrs. H. Dabney Kerr is the leader of the troop, assisted by Mrs. Ellis Crawford.

"Each kit will contain a complete winter or summer outfit of clothing for one child," Mrs. Carson said. "This could include anything from a layette for a small baby to apparel for a boy or girl up to 14 years of age."

All kits must be completed and turned in by March 12, the 36th birthday of the Girls Scouts in the United States.

Out of the Bandbox

A straight line is the Shortest

by Elizabeth Woodward

'America's foremost authority on young people's problems'

Fooled some of the people some of the time is a justifiable indoor sport. A little tact is like a stitch in time. Helps you avoid ruffled feelings, uncomfortable situations, violent arguments. And you do prefer your public relations to be smooth, pleasant, and comfortable, don't you? Make-up is a justifiable subterfuge, too. Disguise your bad points and play up your good ones. It doesn't hurt anyone else. It's fun to fool 'em!

Imaginations, imaginations, leaving things to other people's imaginations—these pay off, too. You can make your impression by the things you say . . . and the things you leave unsaid. Unfinished sentences, tantalizing hints, dropped clues . . . they'll establish a rep for you. You can cut yourself quite a romantic figure. It's all fooling the people . . . and it's legitimate. But in most other deals . . . play it straight.

Give phony excuses for not keeping dates . . . and you'll cross yourself up. Dish out alibis for not being on time, for remeeting on a job, for not being responsible . . . and you'll be the fooled one. Break out into full-fledged lies and you'll tangle your tongue so it trips you.

Blame it on somebody else. Use someone to accomplish your own nefarious purposes. Cultivate only the people who will "do you the most good." Play politics. Compromise your conscience to curry favor with big shots. You may get away with it for a while . . . but you won't fool too many people for long!

You just confuse the issue by being devious, cagey, roundabout. Nobody knows where you stand. If you want your friends to count on you . . . and count you in . . . take the shortest route, the straight one.

Shortest Route to... Raves!

Prof. Andy Seznohin Will Be at It Again

(Last of a Series)

The matter of promoting Prof. Andy Seznohin has been a problem to university and college administrations. If the students are saddled with professors who don't teach, don't impart a certain amount of knowledge, then the student is concerned with promotion.

Promoting should be a two-fold job; both the administrators and the students should participate.

At present, promotions are decided on by... well, how are they handled? Seniority? Merit? Or is it by intuition? The late President of SUI, Walter Jessup, writing in the Educational Yearbook (1943) said it was by "publication."

He said it was difficult to find any standards for promotion, except at some point the man must get hold of a Ph.D. He pointed out that from there on, it was often a case of what the man published.

In a struggle for academic respectability much emphasis has been placed upon external trappings or scholarship, said the educator. The multiplication of trivial publications has often tended to blind those responsible for selecting, promoting and making the teaching staff comfortable.

Jessup claimed many administrators are blind to the fact personality is still indispensable to make institutions effective. He went on to say standardizing associations have meant well by increasing the number of Ph.D.'s on the staff. But this resulted too frequently in an accumulation of colorless, superficial scholars who were quick to realize promotion lay in the direction of publication. Jessup said this failed to provide a place in the scheme for the teacher who is an artist.

Most businesses find a way to promote effectively. Why should a university be an exception? The business organization will observe its prospects for promotion. If it can't inspect the person as he works, the organization will evaluate the product he puts out.

At the present, the University of Iowa is not evaluating. With exception of a few departments, the professors are not observed, nor are their products evaluated. If so it's through peekholes in the walls. Should the university be above determining the value of its workmen?

There are two ways to facilitate making promotions effectively. One solution is that the administrators have qualified observers walk into classrooms now and then. Have them take a seat and listen to the man in front.

The other solution is that they ask the students about the man in front. A few well chosen questions could be answered by placing an X beside two or more choices. The administrators could pick up an evaluation that should at least help in promotions.

Look up the word professor in a dictionary. The definition will tell you he's a teacher of the highest grade. Being a teacher means more than a walking filing cabinet. It's the job of the university's administration to see that its professors are teachers of the highest grade.

Words That Will Be Heard in Tokyo

Gen. Eisenhower's announcement that he couldn't accept the Republican presidential nomination had implications other than for himself.

Eisenhower has gained such a reputation that many people argued that no military man should be elected president—except Gen. Ike.

At the time when feelers are being put out for Gen. MacArthur to cap a triumphant homeward march with a raid on the Republican national convention, Ike's reason for not running has an unusual significance.

He declared that the "wise and necessary subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained... when life-long professional soldiers... abstain from seeking high political office."

Those are words that will be heard in Tokyo. They put a pretty effective crimp in Mac's plans—or the plans others have for him. It would be pretty embarrassing for him to run for the presidency in the face of Eisenhower's declaration.

If for no other reason besides stating clearly once again the "side subordination of the military to civil power," Ike's declaration is welcome for the crimp it puts in one who has been only too willing to usurp power.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS—

Russia Will Leave Austria When Ready

By J. M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The deadpan expression with which British and American officials have received Russia's latest proposals for an Austrian peace settlement means mighty little.

Russia has said, in effect, "give us Austria and we will make peace with her." Although the new proposals represent some superficial softening of Russian demands, they have inserted a beautiful joker. They want to handle the details of disputed German assets in bilateral negotiations with Austria. That would put Austria in the position of the small boy "negotiating" to avoid a spanking.

But the deputy foreign ministers will go through the motions again, the answer will eventually be "no," and the situation will in all likelihood rock along until there is a decision in the cold war.

The Russian demands for oil, Danube shipping and other reparations would make her the master of Austria to an extent not attained in some of the central European states. The attempted grab is even more thorough than the one the Soviets tried to put over on Iran.

The compromise offered by the French at the recent London conference would have had the U. S. and Britain pay Russia to get out of Austria. Something along these lines might have been worked out if the Russians had been willing. But any agreement which would virtually give Austria to Russia is out of the question. The memory of Munich and the atmosphere of the times guarantee that.

Why, then, does Russia make a show of keeping negotiations open? And why do the western powers seem to accept the offer at face value as a basis of discussion. The answer is, for propaganda purposes. The Russians have been trying hard to convince the Austrians, like the Germans, that British and American intransigence prevents peace and prolongs the occupation. We have to negotiate to offset the idea.

Russia, of course, has no intention of making a real settlement. Indeed, if Britain and the United States should show any signs of accepting the terms the Soviets would probably make further demands to break up the negotiations. For if Russia made peace with Austria she would have to withdraw her troops and, probably more important, withdraw the troops she now keeps in Hungary "to guard her Austrian supply line." If that ever happened, the Magyars might be able to throw out the Communists who have taken over the Hungarian government.

Russia will get out of Austria and Germany when she is forced out. At that time she may offer some acceptable terms to save her face through the appearance of negotiating. That will come when democracy has proved that it can feed people better than can communism.

"Everybody Loves My Baby..."

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

A Postwar Fantasy

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

I guess the American upper middle class consumer is the most wooed and sought-after commercial prospect in the world today.

The French want him to buy more cognac, and more Paris for his women, and more perfumes, and they want him to take more vacations in France, so they have just reduced the value of the franc in terms of dollars. Whereas you used to get a legal 119 francs for your dollar by waiting in line at American Express in Paris, or an illegal 240 by dealing with odd little characters in doorways off the Place de l'Opera, you can now get 300 and more, legally.

(It gives one an odd feeling, to realize how the poor, sick tortured countries of Europe are forced, by economic law, to reserve their best and finest food, drink, clothing, for the well-heeled American. He is the hope of foreign trade. May his appetite never falter, or every currency in the world might topple.)

Of course, the same sad little drama is being played out in Britain, too, where the people are going without almost everything you can name, under the theory that the way ultimately to get the things they need is to produce more and more fine woolens, leather goods, Scotch whiskey, motorcars, etc., for consumers in the better American neighborhoods. "Fill the ships!" shriek the British posters.

(Which should an American do, drink Scotch or cognac, which should he save first, Britain or France? One must choose, as the full ships head here from the empty countries.)

The queer thing, however, is that American business, too, is beginning to turn to the same idea, to look to the well-heeled, upper middle class American buyer to save it.

As prices rise, whipping past the pocketbooks of the average wage-earner, sellers begin to gear themselves to a lower volume of goods, but with their prosperity maintained, they hope, through the sale of quality items.

Oh, that well-heeled American consumer! What a responsibility is his! He must keep the whole western world going. If he has any sense of duty, he will buy more shoes than ever, but he will never walk. He will make sure to have Scotch before dinner and cognac after. He will buy the best of bedding, but he will not sleep in it, for he must make certain to see the Tower of London three times a year, and the Place de la Concorde with equal frequency.

Spending, you laggard! Don't sit there like a dummy, not consuming the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism in Philadelphia.

"A working newspaperman is supposed to have not much money but a lot of education, while publishers have lots of money and not much education."

There would be economics, political science and sociology on the curriculum. This would be so much gravy in the eyes of Liebling who says "almost any kind of school is likely to be a good thing for publishers."

Such a school might accomplish miracles. It might bring about some healthy self-criticism in the American press. Conceivably it might some day bring us to the point where the press would admit there are holes in its pants and its cuffs are frayed.

There might be some mending done.

ing anything! Half the world's economy now depends on you alone!

It's a funny way to run a world, exist, this Final Customer, this rich American, for whom foreign countries now dig and spin, and toward whom the heavy ships speed, their horns crying in the night, and upon whom our own economy now depends to buy and keep on buying, regardless of how high prices go?

Perhaps he is only a figure in a dream. For already there are signs in some of our own luxury trades that he isn't there when you want him. And, even if he does exist, how much can his belly hold, or his back wear; in how many places can he be at once?

Not so much, not so many; and that is why it is necessary to get aid to Europe, so that it can begin to produce for its own people again, and get on its own feet. That is why it is necessary, too, to roll our own prices back, as Mr. Baruch suggested last week, in the most quickly forgotten public statement of the year. A post-war economic fantasy is running out.

Starting With Schools for Publishers—

The American Press Needs Self-Appraisal

By JIM BECKER

In recent months the American press has been subjected to some of the most critical scrutiny that has been focused on that institution since its earliest days.

In rapid succession, there have appeared on bookstore shelves "The Report of the President's Commission on Freedom of the Press," "Your Newspaper" by the nine Nieman fellows, and "The Wayward Pressman" by A. J. Liebling, the New Yorker's constant critic of things journalistic.

The accusations hurled at the press are serious. So far, that press has shown no inclination to dodge the charges—only a blase willingness to let the storm settle around its ears and spend its fury without retaliation.

The charges: the press is too narrowly owned and controlled; its policies are set by the wishes of too few people; the writing is poor, local coverage deplorable; the press is too willing to air views without regard to the ethical or moral validity of those views—it's irresponsible, and it is biased in favor of property and privilege.

Even some of its basic philosophies have been challenged. These have not been the petty mutterings of malcontents, but the considered criticisms of men such as William Ernest Hocking, professor of philosophy, emeritus, Harvard university; Beardsley Rumel, chairman, federal reserve bank of New York; Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago; Zachariah Chafetz, professor of jurisprudence at Harvard, and others of similar stature. These are the men who made up the President's Commission on Freedom of the Press.

The Nieman fellows are practicing journalists who, while on a year's fellowship at Harvard, compiled in "Your Newspaper" an assortment of family skeletons from dark corners of the press's closet.

Liebling's recent disclosure of a Mississippi bureau of investigation and a new death penalty in that state (for throwing either rocks or bombs, or anything between those extremes, at buses or other forms of transportation) brought sheepish admissions of "dereliction" from at least one major wire service. The story was not prominently mentioned by papers outside the deep south.

Liebling has long been a frank—even to the point of embarrassment—critic of American newspapers and newsgatherers.

If Hocking's statement is true—"It's (the press's) inadequacies menace the balance of public opinion"—then the time has come for publisher and reporter to sit back and take a long, open-eyed look at themselves and the world. If the publisher and reporter are unwilling to sit for a candid portrait of themselves, there are those willing to paint the picture from what they see and remember of the press. The likeness may not be flattering.

The problem of improving American newspaper ethics has been examined by those who would start from the top—with publishers and editors—and begin the clean-up there.

It has been examined by those who would start from the bottom—with the reporters—and begin the rejuvenation there.

The American Newspaper guild of the CIO would hit the problem from the lower level first but it recognizes that this can be but a partial solution to the ills it sees.

By organizing newsmen and placing them on an equal bargaining basis with employers, the guild would seek reforms which would, it feels, effect many changes for the better in the newspaper world.

"In negotiating contracts," says Marguerite McCollum, international representative of the ANG, "we have pointed out innumerable times to publishers that by improving wages and working conditions it would be possible for them to attract and hold workers of higher calibre, thereby benefiting the industry."

"Unfortunately," she says, "many publishers while talking of professionalism still want to be free to drag into their employ the person who will work for the lowest sum with a 'public be damned' attitude."

Citing Henry L. Mencken, Miss McCollum points out one of the difficulties of starting press reforms "at the bottom." "The journalist," Mencken declares, "is probably somewhat in error about his professional status. He remains, for all his dreams, a hired man—the owner, downstairs, or even the business manager, though he doesn't do it very often now, is still free to demand his head—and a hired man is not a professional man."

The journalist's code of ethics, Mencken states—and he is echoed by the President's commission, the Nieman fellows, and by Liebling—are "all right so long as they do not menace newspaper profits. The moment they do, the business manager, now quiescent, will believing the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism in Philadelphia.

"A working newspaperman is supposed to have not much money but a lot of education, while publishers have lots of money and not much education."

There would be economics, political science and sociology on the curriculum. This would be so much gravy in the eyes of Liebling who says "almost any kind of school is likely to be a good thing for publishers."

Such a school might accomplish miracles. It might bring about some healthy self-criticism in the American press. Conceivably it might some day bring us to the point where the press would admit there are holes in its pants and its cuffs are frayed.

There might be some mending done.

Registration To Begin Monday With A's

Students whose last names begin with "A" will start second semester registration in the north gymnasium of the fieldhouse at 8 a. m. Monday, Feb. 2. Registration will continue through Feb. 3.

A new system of alphabetical registration is being inaugurated this semester. Mel Heckl, student council president, drew the letter "A" from the hat in the office of the dean of student affairs Jan. 15—thus selecting the starting point for the coming registration.

The alphabet will be rotated for each future registration, giving a different group of students a chance to register first each time.

Registration will be in half-hour shifts with students registering alphabetically according to the first letter in their last names in the order listed in the schedule.

Special buses will run between the corner of Washington and Dubuque streets and the fieldhouse. They will leave approximately every 15 minutes.

A lunch stand will be operated near the gymnasium. Food will also be served in the Quadrangle and Hillcrest soda fountains.

Examinations for new students entering the university will be Feb. 2 with registration for new entrants on Feb. 3.

Advisory tables designed to guide students in registration will be placed just inside the door of the gymnasium, according to Registrar Ted McCarrel.

Facilities for veterans registration will be increased, according to Dr. William D. Coder, director of the university veterans service.

Registration materials may be obtained at the registrar's office. No materials will be given out to students until all indebtedness to the university is paid.

newspaper, Montevideo, Uruguay. An air view of the campus and pictures of East hall and Old Capitol illustrated the two-page Sunday supplement story, which described the university and its Child Welfare station.

The article, "Por el Bienestar de los Niños" was the first in a series by Miss Milles on the study of child psychology.

Miss Milles studied here as an exchange student in child psychology the first semester of 1945-46. Later she visited juvenile research clinics in Chicago and Kansas, returning to Uruguay last year.

Ellis Arnall To Speak Here

Ellis Arnall, former governor of Georgia, will appear here Feb. 19 as the fourth speaker in the university lecture course series.

Prof. Earl E. Harper, chairman of the committee on university lectures, announced the date yesterday.

The title of Arnall's lecture will be "Whose Country is This, Anyway?"

Arnall was elected governor in 1942 at the age of 35 and was proclaimed the youngest governor in the country. He began his career in Georgia politics in 1932 as a state representative.

As governor he made a series of dramatic legislative changes during his term in office. He amended the state constitution allowing 18-year-old citizens to vote, removed the university and the common school systems from political control and eliminated poll tax in the state.

In 1946 his book, "The Shore Dimly Seen," was published.

Arnall will speak at Iowa Union at 8 p. m. Tickets will be available to students and faculty members at the union desk Feb. 13.

Donates $500 to IUI In Memory of Husband

A check for $500, honoring the memory of the late Arthur John Cox and presented by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Cox of Iowa City, has been accepted for the university by the Iowa state board of education.

The gift is to be used to benefit the college of engineering in whatever way the dean may decide upon.

Cox, who received two degrees here, donated many anonymous gifts to the university during his lifetime. Mrs. Cox's donations during the past three years total $5,500.

Cox received a bachelor's degree in civil engineering in 1891 and an LL.B. degree in 1895. At the time of his death, he was director of the First Capital National bank in Iowa City.

From 1820 to 1890, the Pennsylvania oil fields were the chief source of petroleum in the United States.

Give IUI $10,500 For Chemical Study

Three grants for research in chemistry at the university, totaling $10,500, have been accepted by the state board of education.

A gift of $7,500 from John H. Witte and Sons, paint and varnish manufacturing firm of Burlington, will be used to support fundamental studies in the field of paint and varnish chemistry.

Prof. Ralph Shriner, head of the division of organic chemistry, will direct the work, according to Prof. George Glockler, head of the chemistry department.

Dr. Clarence P. Berg, professor of biochemistry, was granted $1,800 by the Nutrition Foundation, Inc. to conduct a one-year project in amino acid research. The study is entitled "A Study of the Intermediary Metabolism of Tryptophane."

Nutrition Foundation, Inc., was established almost 10 years ago by a group of food manufacturers for research and education in the field of nutrition. Another grant from the foundation is already in effect here.

The Allied Chemical and Dye corporation fellowship in chemistry has been renewed for 1948-49, according to Prof. Glockler. The $1,200 stipend is given to a graduate student, chosen by a chemistry department faculty committee.

Art Show Viewed By 10,000; Draws Out-of-Town Groups

Almost 10,000 persons have seen the Old Masters art exhibit in the art building, Director Earl E. Harper of the school of fine arts told the engineering faculty luncheon club yesterday.

Harper said attendance has been "very fine" since the 30 famous paintings went on exhibition in the main art gallery Jan. 11.

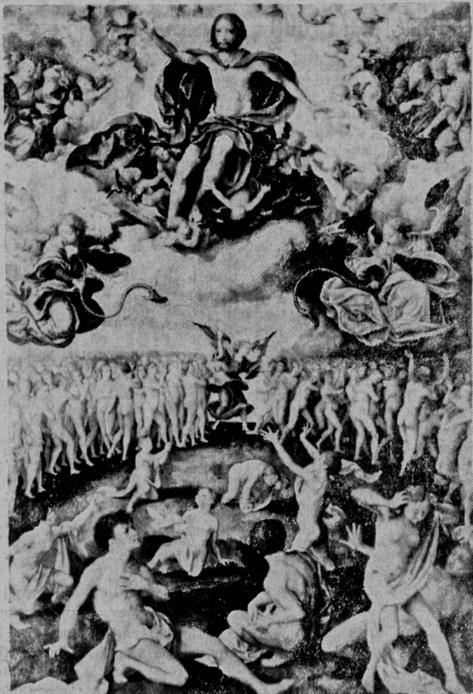

Speaking to engineering faculty members in the private dining room of Iowa Union, the fine arts director revealed that several delegations have come from nearby towns and Des Moines to see the $1-million collection.

He expected groups here from as far away as Chicago before the show ends March 31. If attendance stays at its present high level, almost 45,000 will see the show before it closes.

Harper gave a resume of how the show was obtained. Iowa is the first university in the U.S. to have an Old Masters exhibit from the Metropolitan museum. Harper said the show will cost about $10,000 all told.

Confusion, Chaos Mark Cleve Work

By JOAN LIFRING

Poor composition and confusion characterize this painting by Joos Van Cleve (1507-1540). The vast multitude begging forgiveness create only a scene of chaos.

El Greco, the famous Spanish artist, probably would have painted this theme with greater intensity, more drama, fewer people and better composition. Instead of painting with insight and understanding the psychological reactions of hysterical people, Joos Van Cleve gives only an impression of confusion.

An angel with outstretched arms is avenging sinners in the painting's center. A multitude is shown in the background. Some of the people are trying to flee, but there is no place for them to go, and their violent, crowded action is futile.

Open SUI Housing Bids Over Objection

Bids on the million-dollar "Parklawn" university apartment buildings project to be built in northwest Iowa City will be accepted at 2:30 this afternoon despite objections of the Iowa City Real Estate board, declared University Architect George L. Horner last night.

The realtors attacked the project in a resolution sent to the university Wednesday in which they asked the administration to "cease and desist" carrying out their plans for this and other similar housing projects. Members of the Iowa City Board of Education will be in Iowa City today to consider the matter.

The board charged that developments of this type would:

1. Discourage investment of private capital in housing projects here.
2. Place a burden on existing tax paying facilities and other taxable property in the community.

The resolution, said S. Lyle Duncan, president of the board, points out that "further housing development by the university should be confined to dormitory housing for unmarried students and temporary relief by barrack type housing for married veteran students."

"We have no objection to the university building dormitories, but we don't want non-veteran married students and faculty members housed in them," he said.

The board's statement declares that the state board of education is now planning permanent apartment housing on state-owned, tax-free property.

"A balanced development of the city and the university requires that home development not be dominated by state-owned apartment construction," it said.

Print Plant Erection To Start in March, To Cost $1 Million

Construction work on a million-dollar printing plant in Iowa City, which will have an annual payroll of $750,000 to $1,000,000, "is supposed to start some time in March," W. W. Summerwill disclosed Tuesday.

Establishment of the printing plant, whose company name has not been revealed, will bring approximately 200 new families here, Summerwill said, raising the population of Iowa City by some 1500 persons.

The one-story structure will be located on an 8.96-acre site near the intersection of Kirkwood avenue and Lower Muscatine road, lying south of the Rock Island railroad tracks.

Plans for the first unit call for an expenditure of half a million dollars with initial employment at about 175 persons.

Drives Recklessly; Pays $52.50 Fine

James E. Langton, Cedar Rapids, paid $52.50 of a $102.50 fine in police court yesterday on charges of reckless driving. Police Judge Emil G. Trott suspended the rest of the fine.

The charges were filed by police as a result of a three car collision which occurred late Saturday night in the 700 block of N. DuBuque street.

An automobile driven by David Schoell, A2, Burlington, but owned by Dr. Eddie Anderson, was sideswiped by the Langton car, according to the police.

The Langton car then struck a parked car belonging to John Kampmeyer, A2, Sioux City. Nobody was in the car. Damages on the Anderson car were estimated at $500. Langton and Kampmeyer reported approximately $200 and $60 worth of damage respectively.
