An official Soviet statement said the western allies' dealings with conquered Germany after World War I gave Adolph Hitler the armed strength and diplomatic security he needed to launch the second world war.

Truman Schedules Caribbean Visits, Key West Vacation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman decided yesterday to make a long-deferred visit to Puerto Rico, the Virgin islands and Cuba this month. It will be his sixth departure from the country since he became president. The White House announced Mr. Truman would leave Washington by plane Feb. 24, (this morning after his scheduled address to the $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson day dinner. He will wind up his Caribbean tour with a 10-day vacation at Key West, Fla., flying back to the capital March 5.

1,900 Moslems Die In Kashmir Battle With Indian Army

NEW DELHI (AP)—The Indian army killed 1,900 Moslem attackers Friday in the biggest battle of the Kashmir campaign, a defense ministry communique said last night. Earlier an army spokesman said the attackers had more than 2,000 dead and 2,000 wounded. The communique gave first official details of the fighting, which occurred near Naoshera, 70 miles southwest of Srinagar, capital of Kashmir state. It estimated the total number of attackers at more than 14,000. Indian casualties included 29 killed and 91 wounded, the bulletin said. The Indian forces were made up mostly of Hindus and Sikhs under command of a Moslem, Brig. Muhammad Usman. The communique said 5,000 of the enemy attacked from the southwest and more than 9,000 from the northeast. The initial assault near Naoshera was launched in daylight with heavy automatic weapons. Pierce hand-to-hand fighting occurred at night. Indian troops and Kashmir state forces have been fighting Moslem tribesmen in Kashmir since last October. India has accused the Moslem dominion of Pakistan of supporting the Tribesmen. The dispute is before the United Nations.

Forced To Sign Contract, Miner Claims

CORBIN, Ky. (AP)—Angelo Iudicanni, superintendent of a strip coal mine near here, yesterday reported a group of approximately 300 unidentified men, several of them armed, forced him to sign a union contract. Iudicanni said four men were severely injured in a conflict between the group and some of the firm's employees. He described the fight as a brief but brisk encounter with fists, clubs and stones. No guns were fired, he added. Iudicanni identified the delegation only as miners from Knox, Bell and Harlan counties. He said that although he signed a contract, he did not know the name of the union with which he was told to sign. "They handed me papers, asking if I wanted to sign," Iudicanni said. "One member of the group pulled back his coat, revealing a pistol and several others carried guns. It was either sign, or the 45, so I signed."

FLOYD MAGNUSON (5) of Iowa attempts to get away a hook shot in the first half of the Iowa-Illinois game last night in the fieldhouse. Stan Fronczak (25) of the Illini makes a futile effort to block the shot, while Jack Burnmaster (11) of Illinois comes in from the rear to assist Fronczak. Iowa won the game with a last minute scoring spurge, 70-61. Magnusson scored 10 points for the Hawkeyes, while Murray Wier, Iowa's fiery redhead, took game honors with 34 points.

Hawks Smash Illini, 70-61; Wier Hits 34

By BUCK TURNBULL Sports Editor
The University of Iowa basketball team, a courageous band of kids who's got so much spirit and fight that they don't know what to do with it all, put themselves into a tie for the Big Nine lead at the fieldhouse last night, whipping Illinois, 70-61. A capacity crowd of 16,048 saw Iowa's fabulous little Murray Wier in his greatest collegiate exhibition. The young red-head scored 34 points. An assortment of push, hook and jump shots produced Murray's total, the greatest for an Iowa player since Dick Ives set the Western conference record of 43 points against Chicago in 1943. Wier also takes over the Big Nine field goal mark for 1948 with 15, one more than Minnesota's Jim McIntyre scored in his 36-point out-pout against Iowa earlier in the season. The game last night was by far the best showing the Hawkeyes have made this year. While they were knocking the Illini but of a title-contender spot, the Iowa quintet of Coach "Pops" Harrison tied Wisconsin for the conference leadership with six wins and two defeats. High praise should be given to Wier for his floor play and marvelous shooting. But not far behind the Muscatine star comes the Iowa basketball team — an all-around good ball club very much lacking in height but having something which few teams can boast. That's fight, determination and the will to win. While Wier was finding his shooting eye, which left him momentarily against Purdue Saturday night, his mates kept scrapping on even terms with Coach Harry Combes' boys from Champaign. The Iowa shooting percentage was .394. That in itself is amazing. The total of 70 points is the Hawkeyes' highest scoring conference performance this season. And Wier's shooting percentage of .454, 15 baskets in 33 attempts, along with Floyd Magnusson's 10 points were both happy sights for Iowa fans. The Hawks were faced with the problem of stopping Dike Eddleman and his highly-rated teammates. Eddleman had trouble keeping pace with the indefatigable Wier but he did produce 26 points. Illinois' shooting percentage was an average .244. The Fighting Illini jumped off to an early 4-0 lead on two free throws by Jim Marks and Wally Osterborn and a jumping push shot by Eddleman. After Jack Spencer counted Iowa's first point with a charity toss, Eddleman came back to slap in a driving lay-up. With four minutes gone Wier slashed the nets with his first field goal on a rebound shot. Thirty seconds later pin-sized Murray rimmed another, this one being a push shot while he scampered straight down the free throw slot. Magnusson's gift toss tied the count at 6-all. At the five minute mark the Hawks went ahead on a close-in hook shot by "Maggie." The Illini then began to creep into the lead. Eddleman, Marks and Osterborn led their attack. While Illinois was setting the pace, Iowa played its usual fighting game. The Hawks tied the score at 13-all on Spencer's long push shot, 15-all on Magnusson's rebound and 17-all on another Wier push. Murray then followed with 11 straight points, five one-handed push shots and one free throw, giving the Hawks a 28-23 advantage with four minutes to go in (See IOWA Page 4)

State Demos 'Consorting With Communists,' Joe Martin Claims

DES MOINES, (AP)—House Speaker Joseph W. "How can you expect the Democrats to do it when they have been consorting with the Communists until only a few weeks ago?" he said in addressing about 700 persons attending a statewide Republican Lincoln day rally. "You have a challenge," Martin continued in departing from his prepared text. "We have got to build a strong and better America. We have got to commence that job next November. A Republican president and a Republican congress can do the job."

Chicago Printers Agree To Stop Setting Ads

At the meetings, Mac Kinnon said he was told, union members voted to discontinue setting newspaper ads.

This move is regarded as the first step in terminating the current UMW contract by April 1. "The American people are bigger than you and bigger than the United Mine Workers," Ching told a dinner meeting of the Southern Coal Producers association.

National—Meat and Grain See-Saw; Civil Rights and the South

Meat Prices Fall; Grain Climbs

Overloaded Market Brings Retail Cuts
CHICAGO (AP)—Livestock prices plunged sharply yesterday while grains made a strong recovery just as their slump of last week was being reflected in lower retail prices for some basic food items. Retail price cuts were affected yesterday in bread, bacon, steaks, flour, and lard, but the trend was on a relatively small scale. Consumers were warned that the declines would hold only if the general trend is down. A spokesman for the National Retail Meat Dealers association said that yesterday's break in livestock prices will show up on the retail level "by the end of this week." Hog prices, in their sharpest day's drop in 16 months, hit a 13-month low yesterday as farmers, reacting to last week's commodity slump, overloaded the market with offerings. Cattle and sheep also declined heavily. Grains, however, made a strong comeback, with corn and wheat closing eight cents higher. May corn finished at $2.21 and one-half to $2.21 a bushel, and May wheat at $2.57 and one-quarter to $2.56 and three-quarters. The recovery was attributed to new buying, some short-covering, and purchasing ahead by mills.

Joint Committee OKs Truman Grain Rationing

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Truman's plan to ration grain to the liquor industry made a quick comeback yesterday. The senate-house economic committee voted for it, 8 to 0. The next hurdles are the senate and house banking committees. The house group killed a similar plan only ten days ago, but Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich.) last night promised "very careful" consideration of the new recommendation. The bill would revive the grain control prices until next Nov. 1. The President has no such powers now because they expired Jan. 31. To forestall a similar lapse of his controls over tin, nitrogen fertilizer and other "vital" products on Feb. 29, Mr. Truman sent a special message to congress asking extension of the second decontrol act. All these powers—plus price, wage and ration authority—would become law if congress should approve Mr. Truman's full anti-inflation program. But the presidential message noted that it now "appears unlikely" that congress will decide on his anti-inflation authority before the Feb. 29 deadline. Meanwhile, he said, the present powers "must not be permitted to lapse by default." The economic committee did not recommend how much grain the whisky distillers should receive, nor how it should be divided among them.

Southern Senator Attacks Civil Rights; Truman Stands Pat

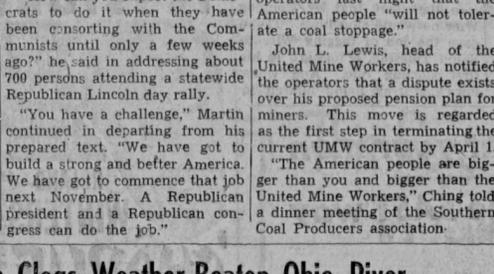

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Senator Eastland (D-Miss.) proposed yesterday that the solid south block the presidential nomination of any Democrat who opposes southern views on "Jim Crow" legislation. In a senate attack on President Truman's civil rights proposals, Eastland said: "No candidate would be nominated if it were known that he would not receive the south's electoral votes. The machines of the north which control the party are not crazy. They will nominate no candidate whose defeat is certain." Eastland, a "white supremacy" advocate, said that the President's proposals on racial segregation and anti-discrimination would "degrade, mongrelize and destroy the south." "And here we have a Democratic president sponsoring it," he deplored. The White House earlier yesterday said that Mr. Truman would not "retreat" from any of his civil rights program. He has recommended setting up a fair employment practices commission, making lynching a federal offense, banning state poll taxes, ending all segregation on trains and buses.

New Agency for ERP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate foreign relations committee was reported in "general agreement" yesterday that the European recovery program should be run by an agency outside the state department. This program report came from Senator George (D-Ga.), a committee member, after the senate group began drafting the "Marshall plan" into bill form.

LOCKED IN OHIO RIVER ICE was this tow boat and oil barge at the Tresler Oil company plant near Cincinnati yesterday. Earlier the jam which has blocked the weather-beaten river for a week broke at dam 35. New Richmond, Ohio, 25 miles upstream from Cincinnati, and piled down upon Cincinnati and points below. Dam 37 at Fernbank still was blocked yesterday and ice jammed up again for a distance of 18 miles. Another major break-up was expected momentarily last night. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Congress To Investigate Price Drop In Grains

WASHINGTON (AP)—The big mystery of the price drop in the grain markets produced new developments yesterday: 1. Rep. August H. Andersen (R-Minn.) announced a forthcoming congressional investigation of last week's market break for see if "insiders" evaded a loss or even made money by it. He heads a special house committee on commodity trading. 2. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said that "political reasons" prompted Senator Taft (R-Ohio) to charge Saturday that the Truman administration was attempting to keep grain prices high for political advantage. Taft said Saturday that advance announcement of government buying plans when the market was dropping was an attempt to boost prices. "There is no reference in my press statement," Anderson wrote Taft, "to plans to buy an additional 50,000,000 bushels of wheat and I made no other statement to which you could have been referring." Andersen said in his statement: "While thousands of small speculators and traders lost their shirts in last week's debacle, speculators tuned to the pipeline of inside information were able to get out of the market without loss or to take a short position and make tremendous profits in a few days."

The Russian statement, issued to newsmen by the Soviet information bureau, charged: 1. A "golden rain of American dollars... fertilized heavy industry for Hitler Germany and in particular her war industry." 2. "It was the billions of American dollars invested by overseas monopolies in the war economy of Hitler Germany that re-established Germany's war potential and placed into the hands of the Hitler regime the weapons it needed for aggression." 3. Britain and France engineered a non-aggression pact between Germany and Poland in 1934 which was important "in the preparation of German aggression." 4. The Russians, who entitled their statement "falsifications of history," said the Russian press would carry it today. The Soviet declaration dealt extensively with events following World War I, paying special attention to the Dawes reparations plan for Germany. It devoted several hundred words to American banking and American financial aid to Germany between the two wars and said that such dollar support enabled Germany, within a short period of time, to re-establish a powerful war industry capable of producing "enormous amounts of first-rate armaments, thousands upon thousands of tanks, planes and guns, as well as naval ships of the latest design, and armaments of other kinds." Speaking of the U. S. state department's revelation of Nazi documents, the Russian statement said: "In order to justify in some way before world public opinion the unilateral publication of this collection of unverified and arbitrarily picked-out records by a Hitlerite official, the British and American press fabricated and circulated an explanation according to which 'the Russians rejected a proposal of the west to publish jointly the full account of Nazi diplomacy.'" The Russians said that publication of the documents which linked Germany and Russia before World War II to schemes for eastern Europe was done without "careful, objective verification" and "could only lead to a worsening of relations between the member states of the anti-Hitlerite coalition."

Harrison Will Remain As Iowa Cage Coach

Paul Brechler Announces No Change in 'Popsy's' Situation

Paul Brechler, University of Iowa athletic director, announced yesterday afternoon that Coach Lawrence "Pops" Harrison would remain as Iowa's head basketball coach.

"We had a long talk today (yesterday)," Brechler declared, "and have settled the questions which attracted so much public attention during my recent absence from Iowa City."

Brechler also said, "Pops has decided to stay on with us with no change in his situation at this time."

However, there has never been any official announcement concerning the so-called situation. Newspapers have quoted "reliable sources" as saying "Pops" has been dissatisfied with his present salary and also desires a full-time coaching assistant.

Neither Harrison nor Brechler have said anything to confirm this.

Apparently, Brechler's announcement yesterday is planned to quiet things until after the basketball season is over. Then "Pops" may decide whether he'll stay at Iowa, quit coaching or accept a similar position with another school.

Other people have also said that "Pops" considers his health as another factor in favor of his retirement.

As it now stands, "Pops" will definitely be here for the remainder of this season, which has four more conference games to go. Then he may have a decision one way or another.

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull

Everybody Was Cold Including the Clock

The Boiler works froze over at Lafayette Saturday night. The Purdue team was cold, Iowa was a little chilly and the weather outside the Boilermaker fieldhouse snowed the Hawkeye plane in until Sunday morning.

To top everything off, with ten minutes left in the game, the clock decided the proceedings were below zero—it stopped working, too. As the clock went on the blink the score stood 31-27 in favor of Iowa.

But no one paid much attention to the little time-piece which is so important in athletic contests. It seemed that a full 30 seconds later Iowa's center, Don Hays, hooked in a pivot shot. Still no mention of the stalled clock.

The players darted up-and-down the court for another 30 seconds until Hays was fouled underneath the Hawkeye basket. Still ten minutes to go. At this point Coach Popsy Harrison shot off the Iowa bench as if he had been propelled from a sling shot and raced to the official's scoring table.

"What's the matter with that clock," Pops shouted, pointing an anxious finger at the innocent time-piece. After many moments, the public address announced said, "There are now nine minutes, forty-five seconds remaining in the game."

The fans never did understand the situation but it seemed like an unusually long 15 seconds.

Purdue Fans Wonder; Only 12 Baskets

It remained quite a mystery to the fandom of Lafayette Sunday morning as to just what had happened to their basketball team against Iowa. It's hard to imagine a Purdue cage squad playing on the home floor and only hitting 12 baskets. The last time that sort of thing happened in Lafayette was back in the center-jump days.

The Boilermakers with all their height scored only four tip-in shots and one lay-up. The other seven field goals came on push shots. Purdue center Bill Butterfield, six-five, and Guard Andy Butchko, six-four, seemed to enjoy standing under the basket and whipping the sphere back and forth across the backboard.

Iowa's scoring in the field goal column resulted from 10 push shots; three lay-ups, two by Bob Schultz; three tip-ins, two by Bob Vollers, and one pivot by Hays. Incidentally, that was the only hook shot which found the mark during the 40 minutes of action.

Coach Mel Taube decided before the game that by stopping Wier he would stop Iowa. Taube gave the job of tagging Wier to Ralph Thiessen, a forward in his first starting role. And when Iowa's Murray found himself in

Purdue Upsets Gophers, 53-51

MINNEAPOLIS, (AP)—After leading most of the way, Minnesota lost a Big Nine basketball game here last night, 53-51, to Purdue. It was the Gophers' first loss in their last 12 home conference games.

Diek Axness scored 21 points for the winners while Jim McIntyre, out to break his season record of 214 made in 1946-47, was held to 13 by the close guarding of the Boilermakers.

Axness put the visitors into a 4-0 lead and tallied every one of his team's first 11 points until Howard Williams came in with a goal as the first half had six minutes remaining.

With six minutes of the game gone, the score was tied at 6-6. Minnesota pushed the count to 27-22 at halftime and held leads varying from five to eight points until the finale was less than three minutes away.

Ed Kernan scored a goal for Minnesota at that point to run the count to 50-45. Andy Butchko countered with a pair to narrow the margin to a single point and Bill Berberian put Purdue on front, 51-50, with a third.

With the Gophers in a mad scramble seeking to save the game, Axness tossed in a free throw and McIntyre equalled that with a good gratis shot. With seconds left, Purdue had a 52-51 edge, and then Butchko counted the final free throw.

Bud Grant equalled McIntyre's 13 points for Minnesota and Butchko had the same sum as Purdue's second high pointer.

A crowd of 15,780 saw the game, which brought a sprained ankle for Minnesota's Buzz Wheeler at the start of the second, half putting him out of the contest.

Northwestern Whips Buckeyes, 47-45; Sticklen Gets 22

EVANSTON, ILL., (AP)—Northwestern whipped Ohio State, 47 to 45 in a Big Nine basketball game last night when George Maddock, center, scored the winning basket with only 15 seconds left to play.

Bill Sticklen pushed Northwestern to victory and into a tie with Ohio State for the conference cellar—each with 2-6 records—by flipping in 22 points. In the meantime, the Buckeyes' ace scorer, Dick Schmittker, was held to only one basket and a pair of free throws for four points, his poorest showing of the campaign.

Sticklen contributed 10 points in the first half to send the Wildcats into a 25-15 advantage after Ohio State hit only five buckets in 33 shots.

Ted Jacobs and Bob Burkholder made two quick fielders apiece at the outset of the final period to help shave Northwestern's margin to 29-25. The same two, aided by Bob Raidiger, trimmed the lead further to 37-25 with six minutes remaining. Gene Brown's two buckets and shots by Raidiger and Jacobs finally drove Ohio State into a 43-43 tie and Bob Donhams' pivot shot sent the Buckeyes ahead 45-53 with 95 seconds remaining.

Sticklen then locked the count 45-45 and Maddock wheeled in the deciding basket.

Marians Hold Edge in Series

St. Mary's Ramblers and St. Patrick's Irish tangle again tonight in their never-ending rivalry to determine the best parochial basketball team in the city. The game is set for 8 p. m. in the junior high gym.

The Marians won the last tilt and thereby went ahead in the standings in the feud that dates back to shortly after the first world war. They now have a 27-26 edge, not counting tournament play.

St. Pat's will be out to avenge their earlier licking at the hands of the Ramblers, 35-24. The earlier game was a ragged one that was whittled to death with 53 infractions.

"Tonight's game might be a repetition of the former, as the game is again being played within the small confines of the junior high gym which limits play. The tempo of the two teams' play is also conducive to fouls."

It also might well be a battle of substitutes. Coach Sueppel has indicated that all of his reserves might break into the game. In practice the latter part of last week all of his second stringers have been breaking into the line-

St. Mary's lost their last game in the Diocesan tournament at Burlington. St. Pat's also suffered defeat in their last contest, dropping a heartbreaker to Oxford, 32-29.

Straub won the 220 with a time of 2:21.2 for the 20-yard course and Stassforth, an Iowa freshman swimming unattached, established a new record for the meet in winning the 100-yard breast stroke with a clocking of 1:02.9.

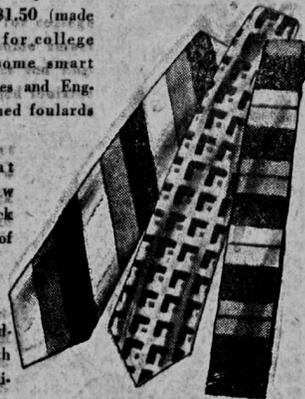

Stassforth also placed second in an exhibition 220-yard breast stroke event in which Jim Counsilman, former Ohio State breast stroker, tried for the American record. The Ohioan missed his record and almost saw Stassforth beat him out in the race.

Porter Hits Communist Secrecy

Panel Raps Congressional Movie Inquiry

By RAY EASTMAN

A panel discussion of "Civil Liberties" at the League of Women Voters monthly luncheon meeting yesterday became primarily a criticism of communism in the United States.

Prof. Kirk Porter, head of the political science department, explored the secrecy of Communist activities, saying, "Why don't they hold meetings so we can go and hear what they say?"

"I'd be willing to go to the university," he declared, "and get room 221A Schaeffer hall, my own lecture room, for meetings of young Communists, old Communists and middle-aged Communists."

The issue of communism arose first with a wholesale condemnation by the panel of the Thomas committee's recent investigation of alleged communism in Hollywood.

Porter termed "shameful and outrageous" the techniques used in questioning witnesses in the investigation but "stoutly" defended the constitutional right of congressional committees to conduct such inquiries.

He took issue with Prof. Hugh Kelso, also of the political science department, who saw some justification in the refusal of witnesses to admit their communist party membership because they might be discharged from their positions.

Porter also disagreed with local attorney William Bartley, who suggested future investigations might be conducted in secrecy—similar to grand jury proceedings. Porter defended his position on both counts by contending they implied criminality in membership in the Communist party—a legally recognized political party in the U.S.

On the question of loyalty checks, Paul Roach, A4, Rock Rapids, complained that "loyalty" remains unidentified, as does "un-Americanism."

Bartley defended the checks, saying "Perhaps injustices done to certain persons will be outweighed by the need for national security in preparing for war, or preparing for peace by armament, as we seem to be doing."

Before the discussion centered on communism, Porter said the 14th amendment to the Constitution "has come to be as important as the original Bill of Rights."

Bartley then suggested that the Constitution be amended, or that the Supreme Court "amend the Constitution by judicial decision" so that the 14th amendment would make the Bill of Rights enforcedly applicable to the states.

A proposal was made that congress be compelled to make the Bill of Rights "positive"—in the sense that congress "shall guarantee certain liberties, instead of saying that Congress 'shall not' abridge specified civil liberties.

Amid applause and laughter, Porter retorted that it was "utterly futile" to attempt to "compel" congress to change the Bill of Rights or do anything else.

Moderator was Lawrence E. Dennis, instructor in journalism and political science. The discussion was arranged by Mrs. William Porter, the league's program chairman.

Fire Dept. Answers 23 Alarms During January; Records $226 Damages

Iowa City firemen answered 23 alarms to put out blazes causing $226 damage last month, Fire Chief J. J. Clark reported yesterday.

The $226 figure compares very favorably with the $10,000 loss registered in January of 1947, Clark said.

The first month in the year is usually one of the worst for fires he reported. Usually, many fires are started by chimney sparks or by persons thawing out frozen pipes.

Although damage was lower than average, last January's figure was no record, Clark said he thought.

Iowa —

After Illini Center Fred Green hit a charity, Don Hays took over the Iowa pivot slot from Roger Finley and pocketed four straight points and Iowa led by its biggest margin, 32-26.

Jack Burmaster, Illinois defensive star who found that guarding Wier was harder than juggling ten eggs with boxing gloves on, Burdette Thurlby and Green added late Illini field goals and Iowa left the floor for the intermission with a skimpy 33-30 lead.

In the second half the Illini found themselves completely on the defensive. They managed to capture the lead only once in the final period, this coming at 51-49 on a tip-in shot by Eddleman. But again it was Wier who put the Hawks back on top to stay with two push shots, ten minutes, twenty-five seconds left to play.

Eddleman managed to tie the score two more times, once at 53-all, and then at 56-all. At this point, still looking like anybody's ball game, Bob Vollers and Spencer connected with a free throw apiece and Vollers arched in a short push shot.

Marks notched two charities for Illinois and the deficit dropped to 60-58. Spencer and Osterkorn traded free throws and two minutes, fifteen seconds remained to play.

Twenty-five seconds later Wier made good on one free throw. But Eddleman chopped the lead to 62-61 with a tip-in.

Then came eight straight Iowa points in a rapid-fire last minute. Stan Straatsma, who had replaced Finley and Hays at the center post after the pair had fouled out, made a beautiful tip-in shot following a free throw. Vollers came right back with a driving lay-up and two gift tosses and the Hawks led, 68-61, with 15 seconds to go.

Illinois came back down the floor, missed a shot, Iowa rebounded, the ball went to Wier and the flashy red-head topped off the evening by throwing in an uncanny hook shot while traveling full speed away from the basket.

The buzzer sounded just after Wier let the sphere fly. The crowd of happy Iowa rooters charged onto the floor and swarmed around the little ace of the hard-court immediately after his shot had swished the cords for the final basket in the 70-61 victory.

Wier's 34 points stepped the Hawkeye high-scorer right back into the Big Nine race with Minnesota's McIntyre. Wier now has 179 points in eight games, while sky-scraping Jim of the Gophers holds forth with 168 markers in seven contests.

In a preliminary game last night the Iowa junior varsity dropped a close 36-35 decision to Muscatine Junior college.

City High Students To Present Free Concert Thursday

The City high school band, orchestra and chorus will combine to present a free concert at the City high auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m. Ralph A. Austermill, principal, said yesterday.

Armand E. Vorce, band director, and Thomas Wikstrom, chorus director, will lead the 120 student musicians in the performance.

Band numbers include "Royal Fireworks" by Handel, "Deep Purple" by De Rose and "Southern Wedding." The chorus will present a Bach Choral, "Cherubim Song" by Glinka, "Whiffenpoof Song" and "Country Style."

The orchestra and band will conclude the musical array with "The Voice of Freedom," a new arrangement of "Kamennoi-Ostrow" by Rubinstein.

The concert is open to all members of the community. Tickets may be obtained at Huyett music store, Spencer's Harmony hall, Gibbs drug store and from City high students.

This is the first mid-winter concert given by the City high musicians for several years. Austermill described it as a dividend to the community for its cooperation in supporting other high school music events this year.

The concert will be given before a student assembly Thursday morning. Adults are urged to attend the evening performance.

University Students Married Sunday in Centerville Wedding

In a single ring ceremony Sunday afternoon Roberta Harter became the bride of Robert C. Davison. The Rev. Mr. Lester Greenwood performed the ceremony at First Methodist church, Centerville.

Corene Wilcox, Milwaukee, Wis., attended her cousin as maid of honor. Other attendants were Alice Reininga, A3, Western Springs, Ill.; Peggy Howell, Centerville, and Mrs. Karl Schmidt, Iowa City. Tom Schultz, Ames, was best man. Ushers were William Teeter, Ames; Richard Beery, Minneapolis, Minn., and John Bradke, A3, Cedar Rapids.

A reception was held at the Continental hotel in Centerville following the wedding.

Mrs. Davison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Harter, Centerville, graduated from Centerville high school and attended Iowa State college. She graduated from the University of Iowa Jan. 31, where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha social sorority.

List 2 Collisions; One Person Injured

Cars driven by Lloyd F. Martin, 2026 Muscatine avenue, and Merle Roth, 926 E. Church street, collided at 10 p. m. Saturday at the intersection of Davenport and Governor street, according to police.

Martin was thrown from his car but suffered only a slight back injury, a hospital report said.

Damage to the Roth car was estimated at $200 and Martin, in his report, listed $150 damage to his automobile.

A second accident Saturday involved cars driven by Jay D. Strong, 624 S. Dubuque street, and Henry F. Kloos, Route 4, according to reports filed with police. The two cars collided at the Dubuque and Court street intersection.

Estimated damage to the Strong car was given at $75. No one was injured.

Electrician Boosts Low Hooper Rating

During the past two and a half weeks, the Hooper rating of all radio stars was almost zero in the Quonset park housing area. Few people could listen to their radios.

Due to an electrical disturbance in the area, every program resulted in a scrambled buzz. The Quonsetites couldn't even make out the commercials.

Tom Stahle, electrician for Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric company, came to the rescue. Using a Tobe portable receiver with an intensity meter, Stahle tracked down the source of disturbances—a loose connection on a transformer pole.

The Tobe receiver is a device which measures the intensity of electrical waves "broadcast" within its range of reception. The meter reaches its peak reading when it nears the source of disturbance.

After university physical plant electricians repaired the connection, the Hooper ratings of radio stars in the Quonset park area rose again.

Ten Commandments For Ball and Chain

CHICAGO (P)—Do you want to be your spouse's perennial Valentine?

Then take a tip from a woman lawyer who specializes in domestic relations.

Mrs. Coula Psaras Butler, a trustee of the John Marshall law school and a practicing attorney since 1936, yesterday listed these 10 commandments for keeping marriages happy:

1. Treat your mate as courteously as you would a stranger.
2. Trust your spouse.
3. Confer on finances.
4. Share hobbies.
5. Join the same church or club or both.
6. Never nag.
7. Don't ridicule your partner.
8. Plan little surprise gifts, even on no special occasion.
9. Give praise for little things.
10. Respect your mate's opinion.

Following these rules, Mrs. Butler believes, will keep Cupid courting and out of the courts.

Security Week Proclaimed by ROA, Kosher

Iowa City will observe its first "atomic age" National Security week beginning Thursday, according to an announcement by Graham Marshall, president of the Johnson county chapter of the Reserve Officers association, sponsors of the event here.

Ray J. Slezak is chairman of the observance which runs from Feb. 12-22.

Mayor Preston Koser issued an official proclamation designating the period for the local observance, calling attention to "the needs for preserving our national strength which must be received by all our people."

"It is urged that the official flag of the United States be displayed on all official buildings and at other appropriate places on city property and that the many business, civic, and patriotic organizations demonstrate by other means their support of the R.O.A. and National Security week," the proclamation continued.

Col. Charles Miller of the Second Air force headquarters will give a speech at 7:30 p. m. tonight in room 221 A Schaeffer hall in connection with the observance.

He will speak on "National Security and Organized Reserves." Members of the committee for the 11-day observance are Mr. Slezak, chairman, Robert Schmickle, and Robert B. Olm.

Agricultural scientists can determine what plant foods a plant lacks by analysis of the leaves.

Plans Airport Management Course Here

Plans for a two-day course on the operation and management of airports, to be held at the university March 8 and 9, are nearing completion, according to Elmer C. Lundquist, professor of mechanical engineering.

"Our intent is to promote an understanding of all airport operations," Lundquist said.

Included in the 14 sessions are airport problems dealing with operating expenses, financing, operational leases, winter operations, maintenance, zoning, building, lighting and rates and charges.

Lundquist is in charge of the local arrangements. The two-day meeting is being sponsored jointly by the college of engineering, extension division and the Iowa Aeronautics commission.

Cooperating with Lundquist in the local planning are Professor H. O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department; Dean F. M. Dawson of the college of engineering, and Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the extension division.

Invitations will soon go to airport managers, operators and commissioners throughout the state. Plans now made are in terms of 200 registrants for the course, but more can be accommodated.

"Any interested person will be welcome," Lundquist said.

Hotel accommodations will be available in Iowa City and Cedar Rapids, he said, but persons expecting to attend the conference should make their own reservations.

The Iowa City airport will be ready to take care of those who fly in for the two-day program, Lee Cochran, manager, said.

The complete program is still in the tentative stage, but among those scheduled to speak during the conference are: Arthur E. Thomas, manager of the Des Moines municipal airport; Donald T. Hines, chairman of the Cedar Rapids airport commission; Dr. Leslie A. Bryan, director of the University of Illinois aeronautical institute; Ray Nyemaster, Des Moines, and Walter E. Betsworth, manager of the Sioux City municipal airport.

Sessions of the first Iowa conference for airport operators and managers are scheduled to open at 9:40 Monday morning, March 8, following registration. Adjournment is set for March 9 at 4:00 p. m. A special dinner will be held Monday evening.

Most of the sessions will be held in Old Capitol.

Tax Refund To Swaner

J. J. Swaner, Iowa City, was named by the U.S. house committee on expenditures on a list of firms and individuals that received large tax refunds for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1947.

The amount of $9,903.61 was listed for the refund.

The John Deere Tractor company of Dubuque received the largest refund, $1,096,138, according to the list.

Commission Releases Report of SUI Aviation Survey

SUI Aviation Study Printed

Five requirements for aviation development in Iowa were stated in "Iowans Flying," a 112-page report released by the Iowa Aeronautics commission in Des Moines today. The report was based upon a University of Iowa aviation survey.

The report called for a network of modern airports serving all business centers in the state and low-cost airplanes to meet the needs of average fliers.

It also said Iowa needs more service by present and proposed commercial airlines. Continuing prosperity for Iowa farms and industries was included in the outlined requirements for aviation development.

Air-age education in Iowa public schools was also listed as essential.

The report claimed that "Iowa has much to win by encouraging this development."

Lester G. Orcutt, former director of the Iowa Aeronautics commission, started the state aviation study. Prof. H. O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department, chaired the project at SUI. E. C. Lundquist, associate professor of aeronautical engineering, was survey director.

Other faculty members who worked on the project were Leo Sweeney, Iowa City, associate in economics; John I. Matill, university information service, Iowa City; John E. Gustason, assistant in economics; Tama; Paul R. Jones, assistant in engineering, Creston, and James S. Smith, assistant in engineering, Aurora, Ill.

Alcoholics Lecture, Skeptic's Hour on Religion Week Bill

Evening seminars in "Religion in Life Week" will be held today and tomorrow in the house and senate chambers, Old Capitol, at 8 p. m.

A representative of "Alcoholics Anonymous" will also speak at 8 p. m. today in Macbride auditorium. Tomorrow night at 8, the Rev. Ben C. Bobbitt will conduct a "Skeptic's Hour" in the YMCA rooms at the Union.

The evening seminars are "Road to Successful Marriage" given by the Rev. Lael Westberg and "The Christian Approach to World Problems" by the Rev. Alfred M. Rehwinkel.

This noon at 12:30 there will be an international luncheon at the Congressional church. The Rev. Cecil W. Lower will be the guest speaker.

"Religion is a way of behaving," the Rev. Bryant Drake said yesterday in the seminar on "Psychology and Religion."

"A person is all that has happened to him," he added, "and therefore, a person who has experienced God is a greater person."

The Rev. Cecil Lower, co-speaker in the seminar, related that every man makes a personal response to life. He said, "What a man is, determines his status with other men, but religion adds individual redemption to a man as the game.

compared to society."

When a person is a Christian, the Rev. Mr. Drake said, he must be willing to sacrifice his individuality for his fellowmen.

The seminars that started yesterday will continue through Wednesday with the same men conducting them.

In his address at the opening convocation, the Rev. Paul C. Payne emphasized that a hungry Europe and an economic depression in our country could be the causes of another world war.

"This is a critical time. That is why we must face the issues in a Christian way. Our democracy is a growth of religious convictions—we must obey God or be governed by tyrants," he related.

He said no man is planning war against the United States, but that by our own actions we will play into the hands of the destroyers of liberty.

Workers Beat Deadline; Players Take Showers

Sweaty Hawk and Illini basketball players took their showers last night through the courtesy of the university steam and plumbing shop.

A water main north of the fieldhouse froze and burst Sunday morning cutting off the fieldhouse water supply.

A repair crew from the steam and plumbing shop uncovered the underground pipe, slipped a coupling under the break and sealed it with a lead compound. They finished the job a few hours before vidual redemption to a man as the game.

Here Cigarette Holders — Are Considered Snobbish — But Not in Greece

By FRAN SCHWEITZER

"Cigarette holders belong in Greece but not on the Iowa campus," explained Marietta Radovich, G. from Athens. "Many students here consider it snobbish to use cigarette holders, but at home we always use them," she said.

"In fact," she smiled, "I have a large collection of holders from many parts of the world including Greece, Africa and Germany. I haven't purchased any in Iowa City yet," she added, "and I've been here since June, 1946."

She pulled out a 12-inch carved, ivory holder with jungle figures and said in her very precise English, "This is my home holder. I call it that because I use it more than any other. It is just the right size. A friend in Dar-es-Salaam, Africa, brought it to me."

"This one," and she picked up a small, delicate filigree holder, "is my—shall I say, best one? I carry it when I go out. My mother sent it to me last Christmas from a small town in northern Greece called Ioannina."

"My uncle, who was counsel of Tiflis, Greece, in Russia, sent this one home to me." It was a holder with a changeable stone held in an eagle's silver claw.

"Oh, I especially enjoy using this one from Japan," she said, and began rubbing the lipstick off the tip of a small feminine ivory holder.

"I have two recent additions to my collection," Marietta said. "My father, who is an engineer in Greece, sent me this dark amber holder from Munich," she said fingering the shiny surface of a miniature pipe. "Last Christmas a friend from home sent me this hammered, silver holder which I like very much."

"In Greece it is common to see a woman smoking her cigarette with a holder. In fact," she added, "without them the fingers would turn yellow."

"During the occupation in Greece, cigarettes were rationed. It became almost necessary to use a holder to smoke your half of a cigarette," she said.

"But here in Iowa City, the cigarette holders just don't seem to be the thing," she said putting her cigarette out, "and for heaven's sake, I wouldn't want to be called a snob!"

Confusin But Not Amusin'

Four men on a radio forum the other night were going at it hammer and tong—debating the Marshall plan for rehabilitating war-torn countries.

In the heat of argument one of them tossed out the Communist pet phrase, charging that the plan is an "imperialistic Wall street plot."

His colleague immediately shot back, "It is not a Wall street plot—and I ought to know what I'm talking about. I'm a broker and I'm opposed to the Marshall plan."

It wasn't amusing as it might sound—and it certainly must have been confusing to the listener.

It was't as amusing as it might sound—and it certainly must have been confusing to the listener.

It's confusing, too, to find such bitter enemies like the Daily Worker and the Chicago Tribune thumping the same tub.

The Communist newspaper would dump the Marshall plan in the Atlantic if it had its way. Col. McCormick's Tribune would do exactly the same thing—and toss Secretary Marshall right in behind it!

But don't think the two papers are deliberately giving aid to each other. Far from it.

The Daily Worker figures that the Marshall plan will retard the spread of communism among hungry Europeans. The Tribune is following its old and well known policy of isolationism.

Now how about two other types of Marshall plan opponents? Sen. Joseph Ball of Minnesota and Henry Wallace are typical of these types. Ball would whittle the Marshall plan down into something so small and ineffective that its resemblance to the original would be purely coincidental.

Wallace would go him one better. He would whittle it down to nothing. And he would make sure that the Marshall plan never got started—by sending it to the United Nations where it would encounter the Russian veto.

The motives of these two men are quite different, but the final product would be the same—no Marshall plan.

Some of the confusion results from thinking of the Marshall plan merely as a "stop Russia" move. But, unfortunately, that's been one of the only ways to "sell" it to congress and the American people. This very "anti" air about the Marshall plan may ironically cause more trouble than good in the long run.

As we understand it, the Marshall plan is an affirmative program of rebuilding shattered economies.

The program actually calls for interchange of goods between nations of western Europe and those of eastern nations, some of which are in the Russian orbit.

This is predicated on the assumption that the countries of eastern Europe eventually will have to trade their raw materials for the finished products of the countries of western Europe. But first the western countries must get their production going.

That's where the Marshall plan comes in. It isn't a matter of short term relief—like UNRRA. It's a matter of permanent recovery to a stable economic world.

Key Problem Even as Prices Drop

President Morris Sayre of the National Association of Manufacturers, told the Wall Street Journal recently the slump in commodity prices may indicate "we are now on the way to taking the cap off the high cost of living."

We make no pretense at being economists like Sayre, and we haven't had any money to invest in commodities.

But everybody knows that there is more to deflation than a short honeymoon of being able to buy cheaply. There is still the problem of maintaining purchasing power—or real wages.

With inflation, the wage earner always seems at a disadvantage. High prices always seem a step ahead. Going down, he has the advantage with prices going down while wages remain temporarily high. But while he enjoys the slide to the bottom, the money in circulation decreases. And at the bottom, things are pretty still. That is the frightening aspect.

A deflated currency doesn't necessarily cut the real cost of living. We're still concerned with how much we can buy with a dollar. There isn't much difference in buying butter at $1 a pound on $50 weekly pay or paying $50 for it with much less wages.

When American industry shows signs of tapering off from its postwar expansion to meet demands for consumer goods, which will have an immediate effect on producers of machine tools, revival of the foreign demand would have an important effect on our economy.

This overall strengthening of the general industrial as well as the arms-making capacity of the United States would be comparable to the old idea of the importance of a navy "in being." It would be a strong deterrent to anyone with ideas of aggression.

For the present, unassailable strength, militarily and economically, seems to be the only positive insurance.

England and the United States already have an arms standardization agreement. England is leading the way in spreading it to Europe.

Most of the Marshall plan countries already buy a big part of their military supplies in the United States and England. Under standardization, diversified orders would not have to be filled piecemeal, and arms manufacturing within the entire group would fall into a correlated pattern. Equipment for the various armies would become interchangeable, and thus the armies themselves could be unified for operations if that ever became desirable.

Survey Shows Vets Can't Live on GI Bill

(This is the first of a series of articles describing the results of a survey of college veterans. The study was planned by a national committee appointed by the American Council on Education and was made possible by a grant of funds from the Disabled American Veterans. The survey was conducted before congress acted to increase subsistence allotments to veterans in training—The Editor.)

Of the six out of 10 married veterans who worked last summer, 62 percent said they were unable to accumulate any savings, 21 percent reported they were able to lay aside up to $250 and 17 percent more than $250.

More than one-third reported in the survey that they have no reserve savings whatever upon which they can draw to help their way through school.

(The second article of this series will appear tomorrow—The Editor.)

Many single veterans who worked last summer were in a better position financially when school opened since 40 percent were able to save up to $250, while another fourth set aside more than $250. Only one-third of the single veterans who worked during the summer said they were unable to save any of their earnings.

In an effort to determine the financial cushion which student veterans are able to maintain, they were queried in the poll as to their total personal savings now available for financing their educations.

Prohibition and Politicians

By George E. Sokolsky (King Feature Syndicate)

There are two ways of looking at prohibition: one is that alcohol, like opium, is bad in any form. Even opium is not bad in any form, it and its derivatives being used constantly by physicians.

That question we can waive for this discussion because the argument will go on forever as to whether alcohol in any form should be imbibed for other than medicinal purposes. Those who regard it as a sin will always oppose it; those who like alcohol will get hold of it, no matter what laws are passed against it.

This country has had so prolonged and disastrous an experience with enforced prohibition that it is difficult to understand how anyone can believe that that is the way to achieve temperance.

But there is the other way of dealing with the question of prohibition. It is the way of the bootlegger, the black marketeer, the criminal politician deals with prohibition. It is the way the bourbon-broking, prohibition-talking politician deals with prohibition.

They use it to keep themselves in power, to make political hay, while they associate with lawbreakers, with thieves and murderers, with the Al Capones, the "Legs" Diamonds, the "Little Augies" who do their shameful work while they pose as puritans, as so holy that neither whiskey nor gin, beer nor wine crosses their lips. These guzzling liars love prohibition, as they love any black market.

That is the way the people of this country ought to look at the new prohibition movement, apparently now being advocated by devious methods by President Truman under the stress of sympathy with a starving world.

Incidentally, I am told the president's drink is bourbon. I happen to be a teetotaler, so that I have no favorite drink and can speak impartially of any of them.

The government of the United States is putting every pressure on the American distilleries to close down, to reduce output, not to use wheat.

But the same administration agrees to give Europe—for the manufacture of distilled liquors—

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT Some Days You Can't Win

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

Harry passed the small night club every morning on his way to work. This time he stopped to look at the girl pictures outside. He realized as he did so that though he had never been in the club, it was, in an odd way, a part of his life.

There had been a time, it must have been ten, eleven years ago, when the place had been popular with some of his friends.

Harry had never had the money. He remembered, as he looked at the pictures, one night when he had had to crawl out of a double date at the club, because he didn't have the money.

During the war years, of course, when he had started going places with Margaret, he'd been a little better off. When you had a couple of month's army pay in your pocket, small as it was, a night club didn't look too formidable.

He remembered, as he turned down the avenue toward his office, that he had taken Margaret to the place one night. But they hadn't been able to get in. It had been packed to the doors, with a lot of people on the sidewalk, wondering where to go instead.

Harry remembered how annoyed he had been. When you got a buck at last, everybody else had one, too, and you still stayed outside.

He called Margaret at her place. "Let's go out tonight," he said. "No special reason. Only don't let people need a special reason, don't you think?"

She laughed, which meant that their moods were matching. That was good, too.

She dressed happily, bubbling, and he loved her for the matter-of-course way in which she had risen to the outing, without going wild on him.

"Let's walk," he said. "They did the three blocks down from their brownstone, and crossed the first avenue. The sidewalk in which the little night club stood seemed darker and quieter than he remembered.

"Used to be more action around here during the war," he said. "I remember," said Margaret. "Well, it won't be too crowded, and I like that."

It was darker and quieter still when they reached the club. No lights were on, and a man was pasting a sign on the glass door.

"Closed for Alterations," it read. "Alterations, hell," said the workman. "No business. If you've come last night, you'd have had the place to yourself. They decided to close it half an hour ago. You just missed it by thirty minutes."

"Thanks," said Harry.

U. S. Peacetime Arms Expansion Plan

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The United States is moving toward something she has never had before, something vital to her position in international affairs—an important peacetime arms industry capable of quick expansion if the need arises.

If Anglo-American plans for standardization of arms are adopted by the Marshall plan countries, the effect would be similar if not so great as that of the Franco-British arms orders between 1939 and 1941, without which American industry would have had to start almost from scratch when we finally did go to war.

Coupled with the 16-nation agreement on standardization of important industrial equipment, the program would vastly increase the Anglo-American military potential and give new tone to their voices, which developed traces of falsetto in the frenzy of postwar demobilization.

It would revive such direct war industries as aviation, where production has been cut back to what military men consider a dangerously low level.

England and the United States already have an arms standardization agreement. England is leading the way in spreading it to Europe.

Most of the Marshall plan countries already buy a big part of their military supplies in the United States and England. Under standardization, diversified orders would not have to be

Says More Fish Die Of Old Age Than Of Hooks

BLOOMINGTON, IND., (AP)—An inquiring Indiana university scientist says old age claims more fish than fishhooks do.

Dr. William E. Ricker of the I. U. faculty said yesterday he experimented with hatchery-reared fish who had no reason to be wary of hooks. When he sent fishermen after them in a pond, he said, only 21 percent bit in decisive "hook, line and sinker" manner.

To Oppose 'Parklawn' At Hearing

Dan C. Dutcher, attorney for the Iowa City Real Estate board, will present realtor's objections to the university "Parklawn" housing project at a meeting of the state board of education this afternoon at Oakdale.

Dutcher pointed out Monday that the realtor group intends "to be constructive as well as obstructive" in connection with the Parklawn project.

Included in these plans was the appointment last week of a committee to form a community housing association.

It will be the real estate board's object in the meeting today to discuss what can be done by private enterprise and private capital in cooperation with the university, according to Dutcher.

Assisting Dutcher in the legal aspects of the realtors' case will be George Clark, former assistant attorney general. Clark assisted the Ames Home and Proerty Owners foundation in opposition to a similar housing development at Iowa State college last year.

 Last month the real estate board asked the state board of education and university officials to halt construction of the married student housing development in northwest Iowa City.
 The realtors argued that projects of this type discourage private enterprise and capital in the solution of the community's housing problems.
 The state board of education went ahead with bid opening, taking the construction proposals, and will hold a hearing on the bids today.

Ethical Sermon Makes Congregation Sit Up

DECORAH, (AP)—How a radio broadcast momentarily was injected into the Sunday sermon of the Rev. Daniel O'Sullivan remained a mystery today.

When the strange interruption echoed through St. Benedict's Catholic church a second time during the sermon, Father O'Sullivan removed from his vestment a small walkie-talkie he was using to amplify his voice. There was no trouble after that.
 The amplifier apparently had picked up the frequency of some radio station.

Panacea Cast Named; Lists 1st Rehearsal

The cast of the Panacea show has been chosen and first rehearsals are scheduled for Feb. 16, Director Harold Hayes, G. Arcola, Ill., announced yesterday.

This is the second all-campus show sponsored by Mortar board, Student council and Omicron Delta Kappa. The production this year is a modern version of "The Emperor's New Clothes," a Hans Christian Anderson fairy tale. Herb Kanzell, New York, N. Y., who wrote the script, says it follows the old tale in a "vague sort of way."

Cast in the six leading roles are Joe Smith, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Helen Maley, Des Moines; Bobbie Cotter, Iowa City; Grant Eastham, Greenwood, Neb.; Ardis Krensensky, Algona, and Phyllis Ariens, La Grange, Ill.

Other principal players are Charles Guggenheim, Cincinnati, Ohio; Jane Buckley, Woodstown, N. J.; Estelle Omens, Morris, Ill.; Diane Witte, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Beverly Bragg, Iowa City; Oren Peterson, Williamsburg; David Foster, Cedar Rapids; Joan Haehnel, Hammond, Ind.; Florence Strate, Keokuk; Don Robertson, Des Moines; Leon Hillman, Bettendorf, and Bob Willhite, Iowa City.

Part of the Quadrangle chorus will sing in the show. Other members of the choruses and dancers have not been chosen.

Jack More, Monticello, Ind., and Dorothy Reutner, St. Louis, Mo., will arrange the dances. Larry Barrett is writing music for the production. His band will play for the show.

The Panacea committee which is making all arrangements for the show is headed by Bill Bauer, Iowa City. Other members are Margery McDonald, Lakewood, Ohio; Jean Sprott, Grand Haven, Mich.; Nancy Green, Cedar Rapids, and Leo Ziffrin, Davenport.

Last year's show, "The Dove and the Duck," was held over for several performances by student request. Eight performances starting March 12 are planned this year. Net profits go to the Panacea fund and will be used for future Panacea productions.

Sheriff Recovers Stolen Automobile

Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy reported yesterday that a car belonging to Perry Bodie, West Liberty, had been recovered.

The car, a 1939 Oldsmobile four-door sedan, had been missing since last Wednesday, when it was stolen near Cou Falls.

Murphy said the car was found about a mile from North Liberty parked beside the road. None of Bodie's personal effects had been taken from the car and it was still in running condition.

The thief had apparently wired around the switch to get it started, Murphy said.

The car was stolen sometime before midnight from a Cou Falls parking area.

Panacea Tells of Life and Love

Police Court Fines 11 Persons $141

Fines totalling $141 were imposed on 11 persons in police court over the week-end.

Of this total, $74 was taken after six persons were fined for intoxication.

Edward Roskup, 145 East Burlington, was fined $17.50 for disturbing the peace; Edward L. Hartley, 125 1/2 East College street, $7.50 for failure to observe a railroad signal; Donald L. Roggers, 832 Rundell street, $27.50 for speeding; Andree Jassogne, 732 East Jefferson street, $12.50 for driving without a license, and H. N. Fielder, Cedar Rapids, $2 for leaving a car unattended with the motor running.

Files $7,800 Damage Suit After Auto Wreck

Harriett Hoskinson, Tiffin, filed a $7,800 damage petition against Roger and Jack Fallon yesterday in Johnson county district court for damages she claimed resulted from an automobile accident Nov. 27, 1947.

In the petition Mrs. Hoskinson stated that she was riding in her husband's car on Highway No. 6 about one mile west of Tiffin when struck by a car owned by Jack Fallon and driven by Roger Fallon.

She asked judgment of $300 for doctor bills and $7,500 for personal injuries. She requested a jury trial.

Messer, Hamilton and Cahill and William H. Barley are attorneys for the plaintiff.

City Council Plans To Hold Swimming Pool Hearing Tonight

A public hearing on the proposed municipal swimming pool will be held by the city council in the council chambers of the city hall at 7:30 tonight.

Also up for the third reading will be the cemetery ordinance outlining conditions for burial in Oakland cemetery. At the last council meeting, Jan. 26, the section of the ordinance prohibiting burial in the cemetery on Sundays was eliminated.

Public hearings may be held on proposed re-zoning of properties on S. Riverside drive, according to Alderman Max S. Hawkins. Plans for the pool have been completed by Engineers B.J. Lambert and Ned L. Ashton. Following the hearings, bids will be accepted for the pool's construction. The engineers estimated the pool would cost $107,800 at current costs.

Four Fire Alarms Answered Sunday

Firemen answered four alarms Sunday, Fire Chief J.J. Clark reported yesterday.

An alarm at 12:07 a.m. was turned in by someone who saw a flash from an experiment on the third floor of the Chemistry building and thought it was an explosion, Clark reported.

A 7:53 p.m. blaze in a basement electric switch box in the Ben Whitebook Cash grocery, 117 S. Dubuque street, created considerable smoke but no damage.

An 11:35 p.m. chimney fire at the Frank Kelley residence, 730 S. Lucas street, did little damage, Clark said.

While returning from the S. Lucas street call at midnight, firemen noticed a minor blaze in a car owned by Richard Dolezal, 1102 N. Dodge street.

An electric light bulb used to warm the engine started the fire which damaged some wiring, Clark said.

Depicts Polar Fogs, Glaciers

By JOAN LIFFRING
A feeling of the vastness and coldness of the polar landscape prevades most of the 40 Arctic paintings now exhibited in the main lounge of Iowa union.

The wide expanse of the northern sky, the biting cold of miles of snow and glacier and the delicate yellow lights and purple hues of the region are emphasized. Navy artists Dayton Brown and William Walter painted these scenes while on a Navy cruise together. Their work will be shown until Feb. 29.

There are pictures of twin glaciers, fog streams, purple mountains, Eskimos in a boat and the Arctic summer. Most of the paintings try to portray the spirit and poetry of the Arctic as Brown and Walter see it. Eleven of the works aim at precise color and tone. The remaining paintings attempt to illustrate realistically the contours of mountains, glaciers and clouds.

Exhibition visitors will have difficulty telling the three groups apart. It is easier to tell which paintings are by Brown and Walter. Brown usually omitted texture and detail in his work. Paintings without texture are often flat and monotonous.

Walter painted a few impressionistic scenes having richer texture and more of the delicate aesthetic beauty of the northland.

Brown's freer paintings of fog scenes have more feeling and are among his best work.

One of Brown's paintings, Twilight Range, is mainly a hazy purple formless mist. It is impossible to tell just what it depicts—a foggy seascape, cloud, or obliterated mountain.

Both artists painted Eskimo women, showing the rugged healthiness and vitality of people living in a frozen wasteland. Brown's over-painted portrait of native women is an excellent documentary portrait of people who have lived on mainly whale blubber and sea food all of their lives.

Eskimos in a Boat by Walter shows the smallness of man in a huge unconcerned world of ice and snow. It is painted in an interesting primitive fashion.

Walter's work is more interesting and has more variety than Brown's. Often Brown is some of his larger canvasses neglects to give the feeling of rock, ice and snow. Frequently his composition, as in Snow Cliffs, is poor.

While the paintings are often duplicated, they give a glimpse of a new entirely different world. They show the horizonless sky. They pictorially interpret the land of northern lights and snow.

Croft at DM Meet; Talks on UNESCO

H.O. Croft, head of the SUI mechanical engineering department, described the UNESCO yesterday as "not an operating agency but a sort of probing radar," according to the Associated Press.

Croft, who yesterday addressed the Iowa Council for Better Education in Des Moines, was the only Iowa member of the United States commission to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural organization.

The UNESCO is designed "to determine where help and guidance is needed to stimulate member governments, international and national commissions and private organizations; to undertake peaceful projects all over the world," Croft said.

He said also that the UNESCO is a young organization and is operating on a 1948 budget of $7,680,000. Croft described the budget as "a meager sum to spend in the cause of world peace."
