

Taft Proposes Law Change To Let Unions Speak Views

CHICAGO (AP) — A change in the Taft-Hartley act permitting regular labor newspapers to carry political opinions and advertising was proposed last night by Senator Taft (R-Ohio).

Taft told a Gary, Ind., audience he has no objection to a "clarification" of the law which would allow papers circulated to union members and others on a regular subscriber list to carry political news.

He stressed, however, that he is opposed to permitting the free circulation of labor papers pointed at influencing political campaigns.

Taft said this seemed to be one of the issues in indictment by a Washington, D.C., federal grand jury of President Phil Murray of the CIO. He said it is his understanding that the Murray case is based in part on the free circulation of 100,000 copies of the CIO News carrying an article backing a Maryland congressional candidate.

"I don't think we should change the law to permit the use of union dues to print purely campaign papers," Taft told a reporter later.

"But I see no objection to letting bona fide union papers which are circulated to members and others on their regular subscribers list, to discuss political issues," he said.

Taft said in his Gary speech that the Taft-Hartley act requirement for the signing of non-Communist affidavits is driving Communists out of unions in this country.

"Today those Communist members are resigning," he said. "My Canadian friends tell me that several mining unions there are being swamped with Communists who have left the United States because they no longer can make use of their favorite device of infiltration."

Taft also conferred with a CIO delegation headed by State Sen. Charles J. Flemming yesterday. Flemming represented CIO oil workers.

The group discussed the Taft-Hartley labor law and possible revisions. Taft promised no changes other than the political activities alteration he had outlined earlier in the day at Gary.

Indict Phil Murray, CIO for Violation Of Taft-Hartley Act

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Phillip Murray and the CIO heads were charged by the government yesterday with violating the Taft-Hartley act ban on union political spending.

Murray said he welcomed the indictment. He said it will test what he called an attempt by congress to curtail the "vitally important freedom of the press."

A federal grand jury accused 61-year-old Murray and the CIO of intentionally printing in the CIO News, a publication financed by union funds, an endorsement for Democratic Candidate Edward Garmatz last July in a Maryland congressional election. Garmatz won.

Attorney General Tom Clark, announcing that additional prosecutions are being prepared, said he is trying to enforce the law "as written." But he said he recognized that a delicate constitutional issue is involved.

Wallace Party Moves Into Minnesota

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Henry A. Wallace will carry his third party presidential campaign late this month into Minnesota, his New York headquarters said yesterday.

This is the state where Wallace lieutenants say the former vice-president has a good chance of capturing the 26-member delegation to the Democratic national convention.

They hope ultimately to force President Truman's supporters to file him as an independent candidate in Minnesota.

Meanwhile, in New York, the Communist party of the United States indicated its support of Wallace's candidacy. The Daily Worker, official organ of the party, printed an account of a recent meeting of the party's national committee. While not endorsing Wallace flatly, it described his third party as "born in the course of a people's crusade for peace and civil liberty."

Southern Negroes OK Rights Program

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Approximately 100 Negro leaders at a state-wide meeting here yesterday endorsed President Truman's civil rights program.

They also asked Gov. Fielding L. Wright to appoint an interracial committee to work toward equalization of opportunities for Negroes.

These two proposals were contained in what the chairman of the meeting, Newspaper Editor Percy Greene of Jackson, called a "double-barrelled" resolution.

The meeting was called principally to discuss improving Negro school facilities and "petitioning Gov. Wright and the legislature" to effect the improvements.

Compares Vandenberg To Abraham Lincoln

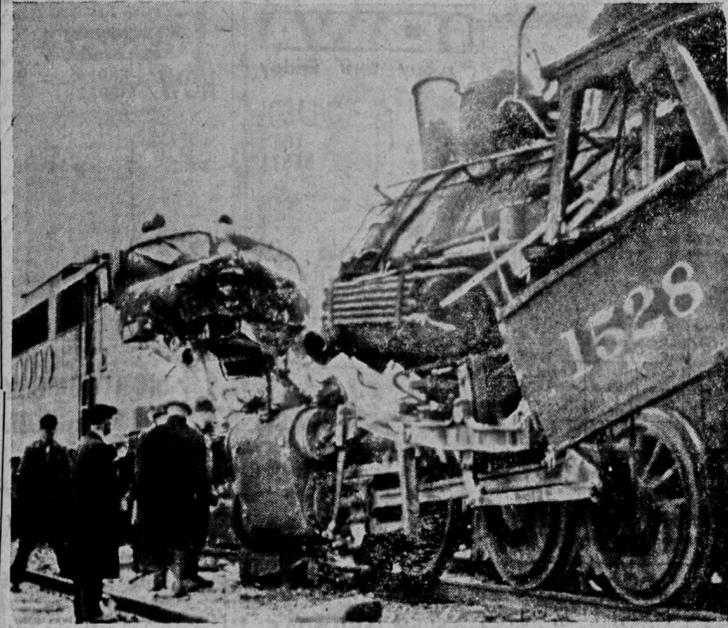

GREENSBURG, PA., (AP) — Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg was compared to Abraham Lincoln last night.

The comparison was made by Harold Stassen, avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. Vandenberg has been mentioned for the same post but says he does not wish to be considered a candidate.

"The statesman who best applies to world problems the concepts of Lincoln is the honorable Arthur H. Vandenberg," Stassen said in a speech delivered at a Republican Lincoln Day Dinner. "His insistent search for peace with justice has had a great impact on our nation's foreign policy."

Stassen paid tribute to Vandenberg for the work he said he is doing "in the constructive reshaping of the Marshall plan to place it on a practical and businesslike basis without the miserly loss of its essential mercy."

Engines Collide Head-On; Trainman Killed

AFTER A HEAD-ON CRASH at Sturtevant, Wis., yesterday, workmen had to pry this switch engine and diesel freight locomotive apart. The fireman of the switching crew was killed in the accident. The mishap occurred on the main line of the Milwaukee road. (AP WIREPHOTO)

State — Friendship Trains Move Across Iowa Lincoln Friendship Trains Set

DES MOINES (AP) — There will be more than $1-million worth of food for European relief in the Abraham Lincoln Friendship trains which will cross Iowa today and tomorrow.

Ralph Delk, Iowa representative of the Christian Rural Overseas Program (CROP), in charge of Iowa arrangements for the train, said there will be about 150 carloads of food for Europe.

Iowa's contributions to this train will include more than 40 carloads valued at more than $250,000.

The food shipments will be on the Abraham Lincoln special with other cars added to regular freight trains on the Milwaukee and Northwestern railroads.

The specials will travel over the Rock Island and Burlington lines, with ceremonies planned at several of the Iowa stops.

The Rock Island special will leave Council Bluffs at 3 p.m. today following a program there. Ceremonies are planned at the other four Iowa stops, at Atlantic at 5:30 p.m., Des Moines at 9 p.m., Iowa City at 7 a.m. tomorrow and Davenport at 10 a.m. tomorrow.

The Burlington will cross Iowa tomorrow, with stops and ceremonies at Creston at 7:30 a.m., Ottumwa at 12:30 p.m., and Burlington at 4:30 p.m.

Delk announced that all church agencies receiving farm bureau funds for European relief purposes are using all of the funds to purchase food to add to the train, with the exception of enough money to pay freight charges.

These agencies, Catholic World Service, the Lutherans and American Friends Service committee have purchased wheat, cereals, beans, canned milk and dried skim milk.

Delk reported that additional cars of food will be added to the

Continued Market Drops Have World-Wide Effect

Post-Election Riots Flare In Costa Rica

By REGINALD L. WOOD

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Shooting broke out last night in San Jose following a demonstration by members of the government Republican National party.

The first shots were heard at 10:05 p.m., CST, and machine gun fire then began to rattle throughout the city.

Supporters of the government party, apparent losers in Sunday's presidential election, ran through the streets shouting "victory."

Government troops stationed at the Bella Vista barracks began firing machine guns toward the center of the city. Rifle and pistol bullets whizzed by the United States embassy.

Three bullets struck close to me as I took shelter on a corner near the embassy. Employees of the RCA-tropical radio station nearby huddled on the floor to escape the shooting.

Otilio Ulate Blanco, the apparent winner of the presidential election, had predicted that the Communists and some military elements plotted a coup d'etat to deprive him of the office.

It was not determined immediately what faction began the shooting.

Earlier, outgoing President Teodoro Picado told a news conference "the government is prepared to repel a coup d'etat if one is attempted tonight."

Picado said he was maintaining strict neutrality in the political battle between government and opposition parties and added he had heard rumors that a revolt was planned.

The gunfire began several hours after a crowd of about 6,000 persons massed in San Jose in a show of strength by the National Republicans.

The demonstration was held despite an electoral tribunal statement yesterday that it would make no official announcement on the election for two weeks.

India Watches Burial Train

CAWNPORE, India (AP) — Jostling thousands crowded the stations all along the route yesterday as a special train carried the ashes of Mohandas Gandhi to Allahabad for dispersal in the sacred rivers.

The people cheered, saluted and threw garlands of flowers and money into the train window. At Alighar Moslems presented wreaths.

Here in Cawnpore the largest crowd so far encountered attempted to rush military and police lines. Prayers and hymns were broadcast over amplifiers.

At almost every station men and boys clung to the doors and windows of the slowly moving train until whacks of the knuckles from the military shook them off. At Etawah many ran after the train for some distance, some tumbling and falling.

At New Delhi, where the 400-mile journey began at 6:30 a.m., an unruly crowd almost broke through the police lines. Many who were allowed to file past the coach window for a close view plucked flowers from around the urn.

While the train rolled a long members of the family and friends spent the time spinning, reading, singing hymns and reciting prayers.

The urn was placed on a table at trainwindow level in the glow of six spotlights and under a canopy of the national colors.

Accompanying the remains were the sons Ram Das and Devadas, Ram Das' sons, the granddaughters Ava and Manu, and numerous disciples and members of Gandhi's staff.

Study Price Break For Possible ERP Appropriation Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — State department experts are studying the break in U.S. commodity markets to determine whether European aid funds can be cut as a result of lowered prices here.

Secretary of State Marshall told a news conference yesterday he does not know yet how the drop will affect the proposed outlay of $6.8-billion.

Marshall said he will have to hear from his economic advisers before reaching a decision on possible alteration of the figure. Large amounts of food are included in this figure for the first 15 months of the proposed four-year program. And grain prices have dropped sharply since the initial estimate was presented to congress.

He also said the plan to have an independent director for the European recovery program was very acceptable to him. The senate foreign relations committee has approved a plan to administer the program outside the state department. The plan calls for a $20,000 director with cabinet status. A 12-man advisory board of private citizens would help check on how the Marshall plan funds are used.

Grain Market Drop May Alter Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plunging prices on the commodity markets may force congress to alter its tax cut plans, if not scrap them altogether, some legislators said yesterday.

If the drop continues, all possibility of lower taxes may be wiped out, Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) told a reporter. It would trim national income and tax revenues, he declared.

Senator Brewster (R-Maine), another member of the senate finance committee which handles tax legislation, observed that if an appreciable general price decline comes it would have to be considered.

Senator Byrd (D-Va.), another committeeman, said if a business recession should develop it probably would have "considerable effect" on tax legislation. He warned against risking another government deficit.

House Speaker Martin (R-Mass.), who helped guide to passage recently a bill cutting $6.5-million off income taxes, said he is unable to say what effect present price trends will have on it. He counseled two weeks of watching and waiting.

'Maynard Short Seller' Anderson Announces

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "leading speculator" who made a killing of $200,000 or more when grain prices slumped was named yesterday as E. T. Maynard of Chicago.

His identity was disclosed to congress by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, who had revealed that Maynard sold one million bushels of wheat short, but had withheld his name.

Both senate and house investigators demanded it. Rep. Andresen (R-Minn.) contended that the size of the operation indicated possible use of inside information, but this Anderson and Maynard stoutly denied.

Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.), often a critic of administration policies, once more demanded that Anderson resign. He blamed government grain purchasing operations for consumer price rises. He said the administration just wanted to make a case for price controls and rationing.

This attack on the senate floor brought a snort of "tommyrot and poppycock" from Senator Lucas (D-Ill.). He said Anderson brought wheat under "a mandate of the congress."

Rep. Andresen, who has charged that information of government grain operations leaked out in advance, again was accused of playing politics. Tuesday it was Secretary Anderson who fired back at him. Yesterday it was three Democratic members of the investigating committee which Anderson heads.

Wheat Falls Again; Foreign Markets Drop

CHICAGO (AP) — Major commodities continued their marathon price plunge yesterday. Reversations were felt in markets around the world.

A new crash in grain, which gave the Chicago board of trade the sharpest weekly price drop in its history, appears to have broken the back of inflation in the view of many market analysts.

New retail food price cuts were announced in some cities. Temporary price rallies took hold in several commodities, but in many cases they were bumped rudely aside by skidding values. The decline, however, was not as severe as on Tuesday nor as widespread.

Wheat for May delivery again plunged the permissible 10 cents daily limit in all United States markets. It closed at $2.37 a bushel in Chicago yesterday—49 and one-half cents under last Tuesday and 69 and one-half cents below the Jan. 16 peak for this year.

All other grains slumped in all north American markets. Corn declined the limit in Chicago and Kansas City.

Many other commodities continued on the price skids, but New York stocks showed some recovery after an early dip. The market was irregular at the close but most losses were limited to $1 a share or less.

Security markets slumped in London, Manila, Sydney and Copenhagen, but stocks later recovered virtually all their losses in London.

The Swiss national bank asserted in its annual statement published in Bern yesterday that there is "every indication" the world business cycle has passed its peak. Swiss industry already is feeling the effects of a break in the seller's market abroad, the statement said.

As prices continued their swift rollback, these were the major developments in the price picture: A survey of AFL and CIO union leaders showed they generally regard current price drops as not enough to cause them to reduce their wage demands.

2. Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) said that if the commodity market price slump continues it might "eliminate all possibility" of income tax cuts this year. A protracted slump, he said, would cut national income and tax receipts.

3. Secretary of Agriculture Anderson blamed mass speculation by small traders for the "boom and bust" market.

4. Food chains announced new retail price cuts in New York and Detroit. At Cleveland Durkee Famous Foods division of the Glidden company announced a three cents a pound cut to wholesalers in the price of margarine.

Russia Hits Britain, France In Latest Propaganda Move

By EDDIE GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged tonight that Britain and France encouraged Adolf Hitler to make war on Russia and tried to isolate Russia from the rest of Europe.

Replying to the recent American publication of papers on Nazi-Soviet pre-war relations, the Soviets made public a number of documents which they said the Red army captured from the Germans.

Last night's statement was the second installment of the Russian reply. A Soviet declaration issued Monday said American dollars and British-French diplomacy paved the way for World War II.

American officials said in Washington after Moscow's Monday declaration that Russia had been stung into a reply and that the state department evidently had dealt Russia a strong propaganda punch.

Last night's Soviet statement said Russia's captured documents showed:

1. That Britain and France, to save their own skins, engineered the Munich agreement and other pacts to turn Hitler away from the west and toward Russia.
2. Britain and France concluded non-aggression pacts with Hitler "to unite Europe without Russia."
3. Britain gave assent to Hitler's Austrian Anschluss and annexation of Czechoslovakia and Danzig. Britain and France sat by without resistance when these annexations were accomplished.
4. Britain and France nurtured the Berlin-Rome axis and at one time even tried to join it.
5. Britain on one occasion double crossed France by failing to notify her when one secret German-British conference was held at the time of Munich.

Contrary to Monday night's declaration, the Soviets gave scant attention yesterday to the United States.

The state department in Washington had no comment yesterday on the latest Russian charges.

The bulk of the Russian statement was devoted to talks between Hitler, other German officials and British government leaders in late 1937 and early 1938. The names of Hitler, Lord Halifax, the late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, the late Sir Neville Henderson and others who figured prominently at the time of Munich were frequently mentioned.

Say Soviets Foiled Indian Communists

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BOMBAY, (AP) — Miscues by Moscow have prevented India's midget Communist party from capitalizing on the confusion following the Gandhi assassination, in the opinion of political observers.

The Communists admit they have a party membership of only 75,000 in the Indian dominion which has a population of 300,000,000. Yet they talk of organizing the vast sub-continent in a federation of Soviet states "in five or ten years time."

When Mohandas Gandhi was slain by a non-Communist Hindu, the Indian Communist press and politicians sprang immediately into action. While they had fought his philosophy during his lifetime, they immediately acclaimed him for having shown India the way to "mass resistance to imperialism."

But handling of the news of India's tragedy in Moscow quickly embarrassed Communists here. Many Indian left-wingers were humiliated when they learned that the Soviet Union's largest newspapers confined their reports of the assassination to a few lines. In contrast to deeply emotional tributes to Gandhi from statesmen of the western world, Soviet government figures kept silent.

India Remains at UN To Answer 'Suspicious'

LAKE SUCCESS (AP) — India's delegation suddenly cancelled plans to fly homeward last night and declared it would answer "unjustified suspicions" directed at India in the Kashmir dispute.

India and Colombia clashed in spirited words at a tense meeting of the United Nations security council which was capped by the Indian delegation decision to remain here.

N. Gopalaswami Ayyanger, Indian minister without portfolio, had informed the council his government had called him back to New Delhi for consultations. But he said in a 20-minute speech that he had changed his plans. He would now answer objections at length.

North Carolina State Almost Cined For College Scoring Title

NEW YORK, (AP)—Unless North Carolina State suddenly loses its scoring punch, the high scoring Wolfpack should have no trouble at all capturing the major college basketball scoring championship.

For the third consecutive week, the Southern conference leaders paced the pack with a 78.7 points-per-game average for 22 games through Feb. 7.

The only five with an outside chance to catch the Wolfpack is Rhode Island State, which has averaged 75.9 per game for 14 contests. Bradley, Bowling Green and Western Kentucky appear out of the running.

The Rhodes' chances to overtake North Carolina State are slim indeed. They must average eight and a half points per game more than NC State does the rest of the way. Through the last six games, the southerners have averaged 87.2 per contest to only 73.3 for the New Englanders. In its two games last week, NC State flattened North Carolina 81-42 and crushed Georgetown (D.C.) 87-46.

Bradley vaulted from fifth to third, averaging 70.7 per game. Bowling Green dropped a notch to fall into a fourth place tie with Western Kentucky each with 70.5. Lawrence Tech is sixth with 69.7 and Indiana State is ninth with 66.6.

Oklahoma A & M continued to sport the best defensive record, allowing only 32.4 points per game to the opposition in 20 games. This does not include the record low of 15 points to which the Aggies held Creighton last Monday.

Best free throw shooters were the Texas Longhorns who converted 227 fouls in 314 tries for a .723 percentage. Wisconsin was third with 672 and Northwestern fifth with 671. Oregon State's field goal percentage of .380 was the best in that department.

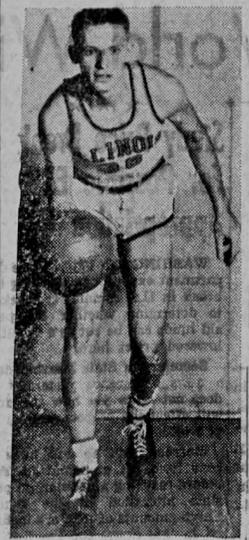

Southern Methodist committed the fewest personal fouls on an average of 13.2 and Iowa State had the most with an average of 23.5.

Nebraska Seeks Interim Coach, Athletic Director

Hawk Mermen Meet Minnesota In Conference Opener Tonight

Tankers Face Tough Campaign

Ohio State, Michigan in Line for Iowa Olympic Hopefuls on Successive Weekends

By JOHN HOLWAY
Dave Armbruster, who has watched the all-America parade for 31 years as merman mentor at Iowa, leaned back in his swivel chair yesterday and began counting on his fingers his proteges who may win Olympic position this summer—and by the time his list was finished, the Hawkeye coach discovered he'd brought both hands out of his pockets to complete the task.

It's with this line-up, steeped in Olympic potential, that Iowa's 1948 tank edition will attempt to dent the toughest swimming league in the country.

"On paper..." began Armbruster, mulling aloud the Hawks' chances, and trailed off to a shrug of his shoulders. He explained the sign by reminding that Iowa finished third in the conference last year, and that everyone of the point-winners in the 1947 Big Nine meet is back in competition with the exceptions of Jim Hill and Jim Counsilman of Ohio State.

"However," promised Armbruster, "we'll be in there fighting." Ohio State and Michigan, both perennial national power-houses, are the teams Iowa must beat. Those two problems slap the Hawks in their first two weeks of league action. Ohio State visits here Saturday, and the Hawks journey to Ann Arbor the following weekend.

But Armbruster's hopes are raised by several heartening factors which are not apparent among last year's official figures, and which will be tested tonight against Minnesota.

The most important one is the assurance of the full-time services of Wally Ris, claimant to a host of swimming titles. Ris was lost to the Hawkeyes after only two dual meets last year, and consequently did not compete in the Big Nine meet.

Wally's flashing strokes have imperiled the intercollegiate record of 53 seconds in the 100-yard free style which he has touched in practice. Whether Ris will swim that distance tonight, Armbruster declined to announce, but when the Chicago champion gets his chance at it, the mark is definitely not on steady ground.

Armbruster named a pair of backstrokers among Olympic "possibilities." Dick Maine and Duane Draves can handle themselves among the nation's best, while two varsity breaststrokers made the list: Dick Lake and Larry Larimore. Penfield Mower became another pleasant ray in Armbruster's swim picture after he beat Lake in time trials last Saturday.

The diving crew will be propped by the return of Dave Brockway, one-time all-American who was ineligible last year. "Brook" has not shown his wares in meets so far this year because he wanted to get thoroughly in shape but will be among the artists on the pool's new springboard tonight.

Erv Straub, freestyler, and Kenny Marsh, distance freestyler, are two more contenders for the Hawks, and Armbruster included three freshmen in his list of "possibilities."

In Minnesota, the Hawkeyes take on a team which beat them, 43-41, in a dual meet at Minneapolis last year. "They had no business beating us," snorted Armbruster, who went on to suggest that with Ris in the line-up tonight and in their own chlorine and with their new diving plank, the Hawkeyes will set that score right.

The first gun to start the meet goes off at 7:30 tonight in the fieldhouse pool.

Minnesota has beaten Iowa State, Nebraska and Wisconsin so far this year. Niels Thorpe, Gopher coach, has an ace of his own which Iowa didn't encounter last year in Backstroker Roger Ahlman, who still holds the national high school back stroke record.

Other Minnesota threats which the Hawks must meet are Don Robinson and Evert Tornfeldt, divers who placed one-two against Iowa last year; Billy Thorpe, distance man; Mel Ivonen, breast-stroker, and Don Benson, who has beaten Iowa State's Roger Watts at 100 yards.

It'll be a busy weekend for Iowa with the opener against Minnesota tonight, followed Saturday by Ohio State. But Coach Armbruster has driven his men hard and assures his fans that there'll be "lots of hustling."

600 Beds In Fieldhouse For State Tourney

The biggest slumber party in Iowa will take place again this year—for five straight nights—in the university fieldhouse.

The university housing office and athletic department will provide 600 beds to sleep members of basketball squads who will attend but not participate in the state high school boys' basketball tournament.

In a letter to high school superintendents, Dr. Paul Brechler, director of athletics, outlined the system for reserving bed space for the high school athletes. The facilities will be open Tuesday noon, March 16, to Sunday, March 21.

A charge of one dollar per night per player will cover the cost, according to Brechler. Blankets and beds will be furnished with showers close at hand in the dormitories atop the fieldhouse.

According to Brechler, preference for accommodations will be given teams staying for the entire tournament.

Special entertainments are being planned for the high school players during the time when tournament sessions are not scheduled.

Seydel, Rossie Win Gloves' Bouts

(Special to The Daily Iowan)
CEDAR RAPIDS—Two Iowa City boxers, Bob Rossie, Jr., and Lyle Seydel won their bouts in the Golden Gloves here last night and enter the final round tonight.

Seydel, 118-pound slugger, and Rossie, 147-pounder, are odds-on favorites to win the titles.

Three other local fighters, Maynard Parker, heavyweight; Duke Stoner, 175-pounds, and Bob Behrens, 175-pounds, will enter the semi-finals after their decisive wins last night.

Rossie and Seydel both won by TKO's, while Stoner threw the hardest punch of the Gloves so far, flattening his opponent, Jerry Arringdale of Boone, in 25 seconds of the second round. Arringdale was unconscious for five minutes.

The fights tonight are the finals of the three day series.

Meagher Leaves Iowa Job

The parade goes on and on. It started with football last fall, continued to basketball last week and followed with track Tuesday. There seems to be no end.

Yesterday it was announced by Paul Brechler, athletic director, that Jack Meagher, (pronounced Marr), University of Iowa football line coach since March of 1947, has resigned his position effective April 1st.

Who will be next? Who will it stop? We're getting kinda tired of coming to the middle or end of a season and then having the coach pop up with his resignation. There aren't many coaches left for the 'spotlight.' Just put their names in a fish bowl and draw one. You might be right.

Meagher is reported to have other plans in mind but he is not ready to divulge them yet.

However, we have heard that general Jack, graduate of Notre Dame in 1917, is pretty fond of the Texas climate. There are plenty of schools down in the Lone Star state and a lot of lucrative offers.

We're not even sure Meagher will see fit to stay in the coaching racket. But if he does his next stop will probably be down in the land the soldiers 'loved' so well.

Meagher was appointed to the Iowa coaching job one year ago.

He reported for duty March 1st for spring practice. Meagher was head coach of the Iowa Preflight football team in 1944 and for nine years was head coach at Alabama Poly (Auburn) in Auburn, Ala.

His name was recently linked as a possibility for the Auburn coaching job which was vacant at the time. Meagher began his coaching career at St. Edwards college of Texas in 1921.

Iowa football coach, Dr. Eddie Anderson, now in the midst of spring drills, is faced with the problem of filling Meagher's spot.

Brechler said yesterday that there will be at least two more assistants added to Anderson's staff. He emphasized the "at least," too, and said that Dr. Eddie will have a free reign in the picking of his aides. "We never interfere in the naming of assistants for the different coaches," Brechler remarked.

One to the coaching career, ending in the State.

Hettrick Top Valley Scorer

Gene Hettrick, Iowa City's stellar center, is running away with the Mississippi Valley Conference's individual scoring race, figures released by the league office showed yesterday.

"Big Gene", while participating in only eight games, has split the hoop for 133 points for a 17.3 clip per game. His nearest competitor is Harold "Skippy" Greene of the league-leading Davenport Blue Devils. Greene has played in 10 games and netted 124 points for a 12.4 average.

Jim Stange of Davenport, moved into a third place tie with Holcombe of Clinton on the strength of his 18-point spurge against Iowa City last Friday. Both have hit 111 points in 10 games for a 11.1 pace.

Little changes appear in prospect for this week end as Davenport hits McKinley on the latter's floor, and Iowa City meets tail-end Wilson at Cedar Rapids.

Davenport faces its second big hurdle within a week Friday as it tangles with McKinley at Cedar Rapids. A loss for the leaders is highly improbable, but McKinley has shown itself to be a tough home court opponent.

Another setback for the Imps would throw the title chase wide open, with four contenders still in the race. West Waterloo, Iowa

Panhellenic Lists Sorority Rushing Dates

Formal sorority rushing for freshmen and other qualified women interested in pledging will be held Feb. 14-18, according to Dorothea Davidson, Panhellenic council president.

During rushing, Panhellenic offices will be located in the Iowa Union next to the music room. All invitations will be received there in accordance with the following schedule:

Saturday party invitations will be received and acknowledged from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Saturday; Sunday party invitations, from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Sunday; Monday party invitations, 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon Monday, and Tuesday party invitations, 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon Tuesday. Preference cards will be picked up from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Parties on Tuesday, Feb. 17 are "split" parties. Women receiving invitations to these parties may spend the entire two hours at one house or divide the time between two houses, according to preference.

Every invitation must be acknowledged within the scheduled time. Following the final party on Tuesday, Feb. 17, each rushee is required to go to the Panhellenic desk in the Iowa Union to secure her preference card and file it with the rushing attorney. Bids to pledge will be received by rushees at their residences by 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

One exception has been made to the "no date" ruling during rushing. Women attending the Carrier "Sweetheart Dance," Saturday, will be excused for that evening.

Council Elections In Hawkeye Village Slated for Feb. 18

Hawkeye village will elect a new council Feb. 18. Mrs. Olga Orth, 54 Hawkeye, election committee chairman, announced Tuesday.

Balloting will take place in Hawkeye village wash houses from 12:30 p. m. to 1:30 p. m. and from 5:00 p. m. to 7:00 p. m.

Candidates seeking a council seat must submit a petition signed by seven villagers to an election committee member. Those seeking the council chairmanship should enter a petition signed by 25 voters. Petitions, accompanied by a photograph or snapshot of the candidate must be turned in by noon Feb. 16.

Members of the election committee in addition to Mrs. Orth are Mrs. Rosemary Sears, 147 Hawkeye and Mrs. Shirley Cassidy, 222 Hawkeye.

Hawkeye village will be divided into three main sections for the election: north, central and south. Two men and two women will be elected to represent each district.

Posts $500 Bond

To Publish Study on 'The Negro in Iowa'

The January issue of the Journal of History and Politics, quarterly State Historical society publication, is devoted to a study on "The Negro in Iowa."

Leola Nelson Bergmann, wife of Prof. Gustav Bergmann, of the philosophy department, wrote the article, which traces the history of the colored race in Iowa from settlement of the territory to the present.

Mrs. Bergmann points out in her study that several well-known colored scientists and educators studied in Iowa. George Washington Carver, colored scientist who perfected numerous by-products of the peanut and sweet potato, earned two degrees at Iowa State College in the 1890s. Laurence C. Jones, founder of Piney Woods school in Mississippi, graduated from S. U. I. in 1907.

The author graduated from St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn., and took her Master's and Ph.D. degrees here. She was formerly a member of the research staff of the State Historical library.

The quarterly will be ready for mailing tomorrow. Miss Ruth A. Gallaher, editor of State Historical society publications, said yesterday.

U. S. Obtains IC Land For Vet Hospital

The federal government yesterday obtained official possession of 13.7 acres of state-owned land in Iowa City on which the veterans administration plans to build a 500-bed hospital.

University President Virgil M. Hancher presented the land patent for the property to Andrew J. Murphy Jr., special department of justice attorney attached to the lands division, in exchange for a $133,045.21 check. The brief ceremony took place in Old Capitol.

The site where the VA plans to build is on the west side of the campus north of the University hospital and west of Psychopathic hospital.

Also attending the ceremony were David D. Dancer, secretary of the state board of education, Rep. Thomas E. Martin of Iowa City, and A. A. Welt, representing the local chamber of commerce VA hospital committee.

Martin was very optimistic that the hospital will materialize without further delay. "Everything is favorable from the standpoint of the VA and the attitude of congress," he said.

Re-designing of the hospital plans, necessitated by increased construction costs, will soon be completed, Martin said.

The project, originally estimated to cost $8 million, is now estimated to cost $12 million, according to Martin.

"In my opinion this is the most beneficial project of the entire veterans' program," explained Martin. "It's a very sound long-range project."

A VA spokesman said recently that a June 1 completion date has been fixed for architects' working drawings on the big project.

Student Enrollment 370 Under Last Semester's Total

Preliminary enrollment figures, released by President Virgil M. Hancher yesterday, shows a drop of 370 students under last semester when total enrollment reached 10,130.

Enrollment for the second semester has reached 9,760. This total includes 7,107 men and 2,653 women.

A drop in enrollment for the second semester is usually expected, Hancher said, though no figures from other universities are as yet available to indicate whether the SUI drop represents an unusual trend.

Broken down by colleges, the enrollment figures show the following: liberal arts, 5,498; graduate college, 1,522; commerce, 904; engineering, 612; law, 428; medicine, 266; nursing, 207; pharmacy, 170, and dentistry, 152.

The new figure in liberal arts indicates a loss of 465 students while the school of nursing lost 54 students.

On the other hand, the college of commerce gained 75 students and the graduate college enrollment represents an increase of 80 students.

Many of those students dropping from liberal arts have continued in professional and graduate study, the president stated.

Transfers Land for Vets' Hospital

ACCEPTING A $133,045 CHECK, Pres. Virgil M. Hancher formally presented the land patent for a 13.7 state-owned acreage on which the new VA hospital is to be built to Andrew J. Murphy Jr., department of justice representative. Watching from the back (left to right) are A.A. Welt, representing the Chamber of Commerce; David D. Are You Wanted for Investigation

By Sheriff? — By MAX ELDER

These startling words greet the visitor to Sheriff Albert J. Murphy's office in the Johnson county courthouse.

Facing the visitor as he enters the office is Murphy's bulletin board with approximately 100 wanted person notices, lost property bulletins and burglaries listed.

Not all the posters are of this type, however. Some are small and almost unnoticeable.

One dusty yellow sheet proclaims that on the night of Nov. 7, 1947, there strayed or were stolen from a farm near Highmore, S. D., "2 red white-faced heifers, age 1; 1 red white-face heifer, age 3; and 3 red white-face cows, age 3 to 6."

If you should see any "beef-on-the-hoof" wandering around the city streets, and if they are branded "YO", it might be a good idea to notify the sheriff at Highmore.

A quick summary of the notices on the sheriff's board shows that someone is wanted for almost every charge from check forgery to murder.

Lost children always are being sought. There are two such cases listed on the board that, as far as Murphy knows, haven't been solved yet.

One Iowa girl has been missing since June 14, 1946. Another girl from Wisconsin is still listed as missing although it is thought she may have been kidnapped and killed.

Murphy said two men apprehended for a crime in another state told how they had kidnapped the girl and that she had died while in their hands. As far as Murphy knows, this has never been substantiated.

Leaving through a file of notices from the Iowa military district office, many items of army equipment seem to be missing. This list includes pistols, revolvers, rifles, carbines, and even a few Thompson sub-machine guns.

One efficient individual even got away with an electric floor sanding machine, while another pocketed a radio sending and receiving set.

Murphy said federal, state and postal authorities always notify him when a wanted person has been picked up. In this way he keeps his bulletin board up-to-date.

"But our trouble comes from the out-of-state sheriff and police offices," Murphy continued. "They seldom send any corrections. Just like this bulletin from an Alabama sheriff. We'll never have a follow-up on it."

He said it is difficult to find room for a new notice when one comes in.

"We just look the board over and tear off the oldest notice we can find," the sheriff smiled.

So if you're wanted by anybody for anything, don't walk into the sheriff's office. You might meet yourself face to face.

And even though some of those notices may be catching a lot of dust, Sheriff Murphy has been looking at them for a long time.

Just be cautious. He might recognize you.

Greg J. Eischeid, Reardon hotel, was fined $3 in police court yesterday afternoon by Police Judge Emil G. Trott for parking his car in a fire zone.

Announce Dates for Written Portion of State Bar Exams

The written portion of the Iowa State Bar examination will be held Feb. 17-19, in the law building.

The examination will be divided into five three-hour sessions and is open to anyone who feels he can pass the tests.

Part I will be given Feb. 17, at 9 a. m., and will include property, real and personal; evidence; conflict of laws, and torts.

At 1:30 p. m., Feb. 17, the second part will be given covering bailments and carriers, private and municipal corporations, criminal law and taxation.

The third test, Feb. 18, at 9 a. m., will cover public utilities, agency, contract, insurances and legal ethics.

The fourth session, scheduled for 1:30 p. m., Feb. 18, will include subjects on constitutional law, equity, mortgages and negotiable instruments.

The fifth and final session will be given on Feb. 19, at 9 a. m. It will include domestic relations, pleading, practice and procedure, probate law, and sales.

Sorority Party in Union

Phi Gamma Nu, national honorary women's commerce sorority, celebrated Founder's day at a dinner in Iowa Union last night.

Ralph Brown, member of Delta Sigma Pi, national honorary men's commerce fraternity, spoke on the placement bureau planned by his fraternity.

Lincoln Friendship Train To Stop Here

The Abraham Lincoln Friendship train will arrive in Iowa City tomorrow at 7 a. m., according to Robert L. Gage, Chamber of Commerce secretary.

The train will leave Lincoln, Neb., today, carrying canned milk, wheat and cash donations. Twenty-seven cars will be added to the train at Council Bluffs.

Local donations total around $225. Contributions in Johnson county have been voluntary. All church bodies have been participating.

Contributors could designate their gifts to Lutheran world relief or Christian world service. The Christian rural overseas relief has also been promoting the drive.

Officials will accompany the train, which will be in Iowa City for 15 or 20 minutes, Gage said.

Mrs. Brooke Granted $360 Court Judgment

Cynthia D. Brooke, 603 E. College street, was granted a $360 judgment against Mr. and Mrs. Edwin O'Brien in Johnson district court Tuesday by Judge James P. Gaffney.

The amount was rent due on a farm in Union township owned by Mrs. Brooke and rented by the defendants.

Ries, Dutcher and Osmundson represented Mrs. Brooke.

Courthouse To Close

The Johnson county courthouse will be closed tomorrow in observance of Lincoln's birthday, it was announced yesterday.

Thurman Ends Religion Week

The closing convocation of "Religion in Life Week" will be given tonight at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Howard Thurman in the Congregational church.

His topic for the service will be "This One Thing I Do."

The Rev. Mr. Thurman is a guest professor in the university school of religion for the current semester. He was co-pastor of the Fellowship Church of All Peoples, San Francisco before coming to SUI.

He was formerly dean of the chapel at Howard university in Washington, D.C. and the Ingersoll lecturer on immortality at Harvard university.

On the Information First lecture this afternoon at 4:30 the Rev. Tracy M. Pullman will speak in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

He is presently serving as minister of the Church of Our Father, Detroit.

In yesterday's seminar on "The Church and the Labor Movement," the Rev. John H. Telfer said "labor should be united."

"It should be united since it makes up the majority and the ones struggling to overcome their problems," he added.

"Religion has to be concerned

University To Take Bids On Removal Of Houses

The university yesterday asked for bids for removal of a residence at 9 East Fairchild street to make way for the $431,185 north wing addition to Currier hall.

The structure was formerly Fairchild house, a cooperative dormitory. Eighteen students who lived in the house moved last week to Lambert house and the name of that building was changed to Fairchild house.

Bids also were asked on removal of the residence at 129 Halley street in the Quonset building area. Bids on both projects must be submitted not later than 1 p. m., Tuesday, Feb. 17. Work must be completed within 30 days after notice of award of the contract.

Olin To Speak Tuesday

Prof. H. L. Olin will address the Student Section, American Institute of Chemical Engineers, in room 300 of the chemistry building at 7:30 p. m., Tuesday. Speaking on the "Scarless Lake Potash Industry," Olin will give an illustrated account of life in the heart of the Mojave desert at Trona, Calif. The public is invited to attend.

They Work Before They Play

First Nighters Don't See the Sweat and Tears of Production

By BILL McBRIDE
The student production of George Bernard Shaw's "Androcles and the Lion" opened last night at the University theater, but only the drama on the stage was visible to the audience.

The drama burning down in the dressing rooms, although hidden from the "first nighters," was a splendid show of emotion and organized confusion.

Actors practicing their lines; costume people fitting togas and sandals on the student thespians; the smell of grease paint and nervous perspiration; frantic searching for a misplaced prop; the light control board operator checking her complex script for the last time—all blending to make the taut circumstance of back stage on opening night.

The large cast of 45 males and 11 female actors all worrying at the same time filled the basement of the theater building until the area seethed with Christian martyrs and Roman oppressors.

Although tension was high, good humor still prevailed. A constant stream of banter bounced across the dressing rooms and evoked easy laughter. Sometimes the laugh came too easily to be normal.

The business of getting into sandals with many straps and costumes made of yards of gaudy material added comedy to the scene. In the midst of the display of worried actors and hurrying stage hands, Prof. Harold Crain, director, presented an air of efficiency and orderliness in contrast with his charges.

Miss Bernice Prisk, head of the costume crew, was also calm. Her job of supervising the work on 53 Roman costumes started over a month ago and called for a great store of ingenuity.

Ray Hill, who plays the lion, started applying his make-up sooner than the other actors. Originally Ray was to wear a mask, but it was finally decided that he should wear make-up to give the audience the benefit of his facial expressions.

Split-second timing between the organist, Mrs. C. B. Righter, and stage manager Marvin Moon was checked for the last time.

Finally, when everyone's nerves seemed to be at the zenith of tenseness, the buzzer sounded in the dressing rooms; actors took a deep breath; cue girls grasped their scripts more firmly and the organ started the opening theme.

The culmination of weeks of rehearsing, painting scenery and sewing costumes arrived. Knees that had rubbed finally stiffened and stomachs stopped flipping. The curtain went up on "Androcles and the Lion."

1 "I DIDN'T BRING up my boy to be a soldier" may still be the mother's eternal prayer, but if you let them turn into dramatic arts majors, anything can happen. Above, a male segment of the cast of "Androcles and the Lion" is busily engaged in turning itself into UMTEES—old-Roman style. Stage soldiers, like heroes, are made not born. It takes grease paint, a wooden sword, a papier-mache shield talent and soon these gallant youths will be making things tough for Shaw's Christians.

2 WITH A JOB that keeps her busier than a flight engineer on a B-29 during a crash landing, Judy Nash studies the control board that operates stage and house lights. Judy works from a script that looks like a combination of a baseball box score and pheasant tracks in the snow. She keeps in touch with the stage manager on a house telephone and synchronizes her lights with action on the stage. She has to be alert to the slightest changes in the actors' positions. Her script calls for a certain light at a certain place at a certain time and if she isn't there with her lights the whole effect of the scene is changed.

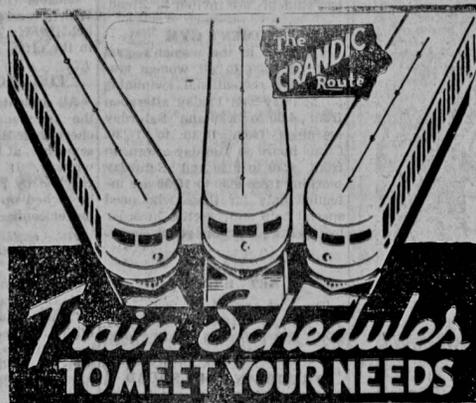

3 ONE OF THE UNSUNG jobs that audiences seem to take for granted (above, left) is the organ music for a play. That music just doesn't happen to come in at the right time. Working with a cue mistress, who gets her cues from the script and the stage via telephone, the organist must be prepared to switch from chimes to a calliope effect in an instant. Playing from music is virtually impossible since the musician must watch the stage constantly and change from one piece to another rapidly. Looking happy at the organ is Mrs. C. B. Righter, organist, and the substitute organist, Jack Miller. Prof. Harold Crain, director of "Androcles and the Lion" is seated on the ledge with Deborah Cohen, cue mistress. They have just finished going through the script for the last time before the opening curtain.

4 WITH THAT "This is it, men" look on their faces, the cast of "Androcles and the Lion" is on its way to the stage for the first curtain of the production. Weeks of "blood," sweat and tears went into the play and they are on their way to the pay-off. They really aren't as strained and tired as they look in the picture above. The make-up and yards of costumes just give that effect. There is no time to think about lines, cues or make-up now. In a few minutes, they will be presenting their art to the public. Downstairs in the dressing rooms and back-stage, members of the production staff who built the scenery and made the costumes are keeping their fingers crossed. It's their show too.

5 CURTAIN GOING UP. Here it is: George Bernard Shaw's satire, "Androcles and the Lion" on stage at the University theater in what the cast hopes to be the full splendor of Shavian wit. Wives, mothers, friends and critics are on the other side of the footlights and it's just got to be good. Now that they're on stage most tenseness has dissipated and the actors can concentrate instead of worrying. . . no more rubber knees. In an hour or so the wives, mothers and friends will be telling them what a fine job they did. For a more detailed report on their performance the cast will have to wait for a critique with Prof. Crain and the critic's reviews in the morning papers. (Daily Iowan Photos by Bill McBride)

THE HARDWARE STORE OF TRUE VALUE

How'd You Make Out With the Board of Education, Joe?

There should be no misunderstanding why the state board of education rejected the bids for Parklawn Tuesday. The project to house married students and staff members was delayed only because, as Board President Henry Shull stated, the bids were felt to be too high. It is true that local realtors presented arguments against the project. But it should not be assumed that the board was "pressured" into rejecting the bids because of this opposition. On the contrary, discussion of the realtors' objections technically was postponed to a later meeting. What arguments there were showed board members to favor the proposal in principle. In fact, there was some inclination to go ahead with one unit despite the high costs. The weakness of the realtors' case was exposed when Shull asked the realtors if they could guarantee the necessary apartments—at prices students could afford to pay—should Parklawn not be built. Dan Dutcher, local attorney speaking for the realtors, admitted the realtors couldn't make that guarantee. He added something about hoping "that is where we are headed."

This is the same kind of wishful hoping presented when the dormitories for single students were first discussed. That kind of wishful thinking never panned out—or else the dormitories never would have been built. The plain fact was that enough housing for single students—at a decent price—wasn't available. A big influx of persons is expected for the veterans hospital and the new printing plant. Then married students and staff with relatively lower incomes would be thrown into competition for available housing. It would seem that both the university and the realtors will have a big job trying to meet that demand.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Latin America and Marshall Plan

By J. M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Latin-American countries have reacted without wavering to word from Washington that something like one-fifth of the Marshall plan money will be spent among them in the next 15 months, mostly for foodstuffs. They need the dollars, all right, but are worried over what such a buying program will mean to their already inflated economies. When they realize, as now seems indicated, that the United States also intends for the buying program to stand in place of the South American "Marshall plan" for which they had hoped, there is likely to be an outburst of great bitterness.

Each of the countries has its own problems, but in general what they want is loans for development of transportation and industry. They also need to buy from us to meet shortages, but see most of our surplus production allocated elsewhere.

The urgency of the European situation in the U. S. pattern of security probably is little understood to the south. Explanation of that will be a big part of Secretary Marshall's job when he goes to the Bogota inter-American conference next month.

The Latin American countries wanted to bring up their economic needs at the Rio conference last year, but the United States succeeded in having them concentrate on the hemisphere defense pact. The other countries got the firm impression, however, that something would be done at Bogota. Then came the Marshall plan, and the South American impression that they were being left out. Now the state department, in reporting to Senator Vandenberg just what the administration thinks must be spent for aid to various world areas in the next 15 months, has again omitted any mention of Latin America.

The possibility that a loan program may yet be worked out is not entirely eliminated by exclusion of the western hemisphere from the aid program. The state department may consider this a different proposition from the type of aid being planned for the anti-Communist bloc.

Even if this should develop it would not be entirely satisfying to Latin America. To them it would be more like a strictly business deal than the partnership into which we are entering with the Marshall plan countries and China.

Also, there are indications that Secretary Marshall may not take any money at all to Bogota, perhaps with the idea that whatever financial arrangements are made with Latin American countries will be on an individual basis.

TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

The Daily Iowan has stated that Henry Wallace is opposed to the Marshall plan. That is true. But Wallace, in his speech in Minneapolis last month, set forth a truly progressive alternative to the cold war, Marshall plan, and the militaristic Truman doctrine.

The Wallace plan calls for:
1. Establishment of a United Nations Reconstruction fund, modeled after UNRRA, for the rehabilitation and reconstruction of the war-devastated lands.

2. Contributions to this fund by the United States and other nations possessing the means by grant and loan, in an amount sufficient to finance an overall five year plan.

3. Priority in allocation of funds should be given to those nations which suffered most from axis aggression, without regard to the character of the political or social institutions of the recipient nations.

4. No interference with the national sovereignty of the beneficiary nations.

5. None of the funds to be used for any form of military supplies or armaments.

6. The Ruhr to be administered and controlled by the Big Four.

7. A world ever-normal granary plan, within the U.N.

The Wallace plan is a clear, sane approach to an issue clouded by hysteria and drum-beating.

Majority of Veterans Satisfied in College; Rate Instruction 'Average' to 'Very Good'

(This is the second of a series of articles describing the results of a survey of college veterans. The study was planned by a national committee appointed by the American Council on Education and was made possible by a grant of funds from the Disabled American Veterans—The Editor.)

The tremendous growth of colleges and universities in this country since the end of the war through the enrollment of one and one-quarter million veterans has raised numerous questions as to the adequacy of the instruction given to our ex-servicemen.

The answers to what the veterans themselves think of the instruction or teaching to which they have been subjected were learned in the nationwide poll of student veterans just completed by a committee of the American Council on Education and financed by the Disabled American Veterans.

Quality of college instruction was rated "average" to "very good" by 89 percent of the veterans polled, while seven percent said they considered their instruction as "inferior" and only one percent branded college teaching as "very poor." In the survey, three percent had no opinion.

Of the 89 percent evidently satisfied with the instruction they are getting, 33 percent described it as "average," 35 percent as "good" and 21 percent as "very good."

Asked whether they felt that the present day greatly increased enrollments had lowered or raised the educational standards of their institutions, only 24 percent of the student veterans replied that standards had been lowered.

No appreciable change in standards was reported by 26 percent, and 43 percent stated they felt that educational standards in their institutions actually had been raised as a result of the enrollment increase.

Of those who thought that standards had been lowered, 31 percent said it was because of crowded classes, and 29 percent expressed the opinion that the large enrollments, resulted in less individual attention.

Another 17 percent asserted their professors and instructors were not sufficiently qualified to teach, while seven percent saw a lowering of standards because of lack of teaching facilities such as laboratory materials, books, etc.

Increased competition among students for grades was cited as the reason primarily responsible for the increase in standards by 37 percent of the group which felt that large enrollments had resulted in such an increase.

Greater maturity of students was the reason advanced by a fifth of this group, while another fifth attributed the higher standards to current higher college entrance requirements and to raised graduation and class requirements in grades.

Other factors cited by this group as causes included: "more and better professors," six percent; "tougher courses," four percent; "school tries to get rid of the less fit," three percent, and "larger selection of new courses," three percent.

Six out of every 10 veterans in college, according to the nationwide poll, feel that their present day attitude toward their education is different from that of non-veterans. Twenty-eight percent said they believe their attitude to be essentially the same as those students who had not been in service, while 12 percent had formed no opinion.

When asked why they felt that their attitude is different, 46 percent of the responding group stated they believed the difference to be due to the fact that veterans are more serious than non-veteran students about their work.

Twenty percent said they thought veterans were more mature in their approach to college studies, 19 percent said they had more practical and definite goals than the non-veteran and another 17 percent contended that veterans realized more fully the value of the educational program which they are now undertaking.

Considerable variation was found when the response of married and single, disabled and non-disabled veterans on the question of attitude toward education were compared.

Of the married disabled veterans, more than 72 percent replied that their attitude differs from that of the non-veteran student, while 65 percent of the married non-disabled veterans answered in this manner.

That their attitude toward education differs from that of non-veterans was the opinion of 62 percent of the single disabled veterans and 57 percent of the single non-disabled veterans.

Fifty-seven percent of the married disabled veterans who stated that their attitude differs from that of the non-veteran student said it is because they are more serious about getting an education.

Half of the unmarried disabled veterans in this group agreed with this statement as did 49 percent of the married non-disabled veterans and 42 percent of the single non-disabled veterans in this group.

Of all of the married veterans who reported a difference in attitude, 23 percent credited the difference to their own increased maturity, while 18 percent of the single veterans in this category offered the same explanation.

Veterans in college, the survey shows, are for the most part pretty well satisfied with college life, 93 percent reporting either that they are well satisfied or that they have "just a few gripes." Only six percent said they are "fed up."

Of those who reported having "a few gripes" or being "fed up," 43 percent complained of the inadequacy of courses and instructors, 21 percent said their subsistence pay has been delayed or is too low or complained of a general lack of finances, 10 percent reported that classes are too large, seven percent cited bad food and poor facilities, eight percent contended that tuition and living costs are too high, while five percent complained of poor housing facilities.

How To Pay for Deflation?

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

According to the form book, last week's break on the commodity markets should have been greeted with joy by everybody. What? Wheat down? Corn down? Hogs down? Land down? How lovely! Isn't that what everybody has been wanting? Haven't all our politicians been engaged to hear them tell it in a mighty battle against inflation? Last week's sharp price decline should have fallen upon the country like rain in the desert. There should have been dancing in the streets, with much kissing of total strangers by conservatives who have been waiting long for "natural processes" to accomplish this miracle.

But, strangely enough, instead of huzzas, there are nervous little pieces in many of the papers, reassuring us that prices are not going to go down very rapidly, that they are going to stay pretty well up. What do you mean? Don't you want prices to come down?

And here the awful axiom (printed many times in this column) that one of the things about inflation is that you get married to it, that you begin to depend on it, and to need it, obtains grim corroboration.

Else why is there so little cheering? Why do some of the same lads who used to tell us lovingly that "natural processes would someday bring prices down" as if they had looked in the mirror and seen Bela Lugosi?

It is because the easy, slovenly "out" of inflation has had the secret approval of many who were making speeches against it; it is because they wanted higher prices; it is because they now see loss of inventory values and unemployment in their cherished natural processes.

Some of the same people who assured us monotonously on the way up that prices were not going to climb too high are now assuring us monotonously on the way down that prices are not going to fall too low; and this is going to be their total contribution.

Now that natural processes are producing deflation, I think we shall see some decline in affection for them. I would not be surprised if the Republican middle west suddenly dropped all opposition to the Marshall plan, for example, and began to favor it as a way of moving food surpluses.

I have a feeling that some of the best internationalist speeches are going to come from that part of the country soon. I would advise semi-isolationist congressmen to hold their thunder; the old speech out of the trunk isn't going to be good much longer.

But, of course, the clock ticks for liberals and independents, too. It is their duty, also, to know what time it is. Even though the present price decline may be halted for a period, it is time, for example, to stop thinking in terms of curbing inflation, of rationing and price control.

These were valid goals, for they might have kept us out of our our big postwar party, and make everybody share them, by setting up, say, a huge national housing program, and conceptions of instant relief for when need arises? We had no brakes without them, too? It seems to me they are necessary, if only to prevent crystallization of the dismal feeling that we cannot avoid a life of being shaken violently up and down, like a doll in the teeth of a trier.

School Board Elections To Be Held March 8

School board elections will be held Monday, March 8, the board of education announced at its monthly meeting last night.

The board moved to use the first floor of the community building as the place for the polling, provided permission is granted by city officials.

Earl Y. Sangster, 1106 E. College street, and Mrs. Charles Mott, 420 Gilbert street, board members, were appointed to the election committee. Judges for the election will be named later.

Mrs. Betty Jane Lazenby was appointed to replace Jeannette Picken as 6A teacher at Longfellow school. Miss Picken is planning to enroll at Parsons college in Fairfield, Iowa.

The board also voted to appoint Mrs. Margaret Hall to the position of secretary to Ralph Austermler, City high principal. She will replace Mrs. Doris Cannon. Fred Jones, head of the social science department at City high school, will be employed on a five-fifths time basis for the remainder of this school year.

Use of the girls' locker room at City high school as a boys dressing room for basketball games was discussed. The board decided that the girls' locker room will be used for that purpose only in case of tournaments.

The board voted to rent the City high auditorium to Jim McKinstry, A2 Waterloo, and Willard Merrill, A3, local agents for the U.S. navy concert band. April 22 is the tentative date set for matinee and evening performances by the band.

Board member Mrs. Howard L. Boye said she thought extra-curricular school activities were conflicting with students' regular school work. She suggested that certain grades be required of students participating in outside activities and that meetings be held after school in the afternoon rather than in the evenings.

Another board member pointed out that evening meetings add to the taxpayers' burden by running up light and heat bills.

Poverty Is Basis Of India's Trouble, Student Tells Club

"Poverty is the basis of India's troubles," Dr. Hirendra Bose, G. Calcutta, India, said last night.

In a speech at the Moose lodge, Dr. Bose said, "England found the country prosperous 200 years ago and left it poor. India was made into a market for England's manufactured goods and had few industries of its own when the English relinquished their rule."

The present government of India has started a plan to improve the standard of living, he said. University students, according to Dr. Bose, do not receive their degrees until they have served as teachers in their own communities for six months to two years. This raises the amount of literacy in a country that can not afford

Former Alcoholic Tells How He Was Cured

Says Alcoholics Dislike To Be Called 'Drunks'

By RUSSELL ZELENIAK
"We don't like to be called drunks," a distinguished member of the Alcoholics Anonymous told an audience of 300 townspeople, students and instructors who met in McBride auditorium Tuesday night.

"A drunk knows what's wrong with himself, but doesn't want to do anything about it. An alcoholic knows what is wrong and wants to do something about it," explained the unnamed speaker, who, during the course of his speech, disclosed that he is a former judge.

A stocky built man with ruffled black hair and eyeglasses, the former judge said the AA has had great success with men and women who recognize their malady and honestly want to cure themselves.

"A person must want to quit drinking and not want to quit drinking," he remarked in a manner reminiscent of the late Gertrude Stein.

Alcoholism is a form of sickness, according to the speaker, who compared it to tuberculosis and heart ailments.

"But most people have attached a stigma to alcoholism. For example, if a man is walking down the street and falls down from a stroke, somebody will immediately call an ambulance. On the other hand, when a man falls down from over-indulgence in liquor practically nothing is done to help him."

He hopes that through his and other AA members' lectures on alcoholism throughout the country, persons may learn to understand the plight of an alcoholic and to accept him as a sick person.

He pointed out that many alcoholics have been cured and have resumed responsible positions with nationally-known firms.

"And we're staying sober because it's a life and death proposition with us. We only have three 'outs': out of our mind, out of the window (suicide) or sobriety," he said.

The former judge told the story of his joining the AA.

"I was in Chicago—on a 'binge' for five or six days. I was a judge at the time and I did most of my drinking then. I picked up an Artistry magazine for the first time in my life and took it home with me. Later, I opened the magazine and read an article on the AA. It said for further information write to a listed New York address. I did, and was referred to the Almo Club in Des Moines."

He said that through this organization he learned to believe in a Power greater than himself to whom he accredits his abstinence.

A hush fell upon the audience as he continued, "When I see the sun rising in the morning—spring change to summer—summer to autumn to winter, I know this Power exists."

The AA consists of 60,000 men and women who are divided into 857 groups throughout the United States, he said.

"The organization is guided by recovered alcoholics," he disclosed. "But we have no officers, no rules, no committees. We finance ourselves by passing the hat around at our meetings."

University Play —

Has Roman Circus

— Delights, Sophistication

 By JACK O'BRIEN ***

Last night the University players tackled a wise and wonderful play by a great man of the theatre. The result?—the riotous delights of a Roman circus sophisticated by some of the most brilliant writing of the contemporary stage.

Both Shaw and the University theatre group benefited from the collaboration.

Shaw designed "Androcles and the Lion" as a fable play for children. It was a futile gesture by a man who probably never knew anything more of the ridiculousness of childhood than he knows of the enfeebling encroachments of old age. Children might enjoy its rather childlike efforts toward pageantry but the more intellectual merits of the play would be wasted upon them . . . bless their little hearts.

But the university cast has enough of the energy and unselfconscious jubilation of youth (so curiously wasted upon children) to give "Androcles" just that vitality and high spirits it needs.

And the university players have long needed a play like this . . . gay while intellectual, comedic yet sane, blessed with dialogue on which they might sharpen their wits as well as their tongues. They respond to the opportunity like bored school children to a recess bell—with a yelp and a leap and a light in their eyes.

Here is a religious play that has had the good fortune to be decked in the gaudy garments of good solid theatre. Shaw, in his peerless sanity as a dramatist, realizes that the only way to instruct in the theatre is to entertain. He's a past master at both.

Shattering as the news may be to him, this vicious old iconoclast has in "Androcles" and "St. Joan" given us two of the outstanding religious plays of our time. Only a fine old reprobate would dare to attempt to reduce the religious persecutions of the Christians to the level of a vaudeville skit. Only a Shaw would succeed.

He has reduced the Olympian monuments of tragedy to dusty, crumbly trifles—a thing to be laughed at. And yet, in this state of decomposition, the whole is fit, for the first time, for analysis—its component truths fully visible.

It's been some 30 years since Shaw first gave these ponderous truths the once over lightly, but these truths are as timeless as humanity and Shaw's style—even

City Council To Hear Sewer Plan Objections

The city council will hear objections to plans and specifications for the construction of a proposed sewer on March 8, the group decided at its meeting Tuesday night.

The project calls for a bond issue of $2,595,28. Present plans specify that the sewer will run west on Gould street from Temp-lin road to Holt avenue, and north and south on Holt avenue 300 and 200 feet respectively.

Good Schools Mean Good Business, High Incomes: Hartnett

"Good schools are good business," Ellen Hartnett, field representative of the Iowa Education association, said yesterday.

In a speech at the Lions weekly luncheon in the Pine room of Reich's cafe, Miss Hartnett said: "When there are good schools in a community you find higher incomes, retail sales and rentals."

To aid in maintaining good schools in Iowa City, Miss Hartnett suggested three things residents can do. They are:

1. Encourage the best young people to become teachers.
2. Work for state aid so that teachers can receive an adequate living. Miss Hartnett said 350,000 qualified teachers left the classrooms in recent years because they could not earn sufficient incomes.
3. Provide proper equipment in the schools. "Besides helping the student," she said, "an attractive school keeps good teachers."

In closing Miss Hartnett said, "I hope businessmen in this city are interested in the teachers getting a square deal so the children will get one too."

Fraternity Grades Engineering Profs

Tau Beta Pi, professional engineering fraternity is grading SUI engineering professors for the second time, according to President Randall Meyer.

First rating of their instructors took place last June, he said. Meyer, a graduate student from Mt. Union, added that grading is done anonymously and students participating are urged to do it with the idea of being helpful.

The instructors are graded as lacking, adequate, good or excellent on 17 items pertaining to tests, lectures, technical knowledge, assignments, personality and consideration of students.

The teachers seem to approve and even welcome the grading, members of Tau Beta Pi claim. When results were mailed to professors in the college of engineering last spring, 90 percent of the 25 who replied favored the system, Meyer said. Many declared they would be willing to devote class time to speed the process.

Some instructors have taken the suggestions seriously, Meyer said, and have "pepped up" their courses. It is too early after just two gradings to tell what effect the system will have on instruction in the engineering college, he added.

Tau Beta Pi inaugurated the grading system because they felt a basic need for such a step, Meyer said. Instrumental in starting the system at SUI were Bill Bauer, president last year, and Dick Ringo, both graduates, and Verne Boulton, E4, Iowa City, Meyer recalled.

Collision Causes $150 Damage To Two Cars

An accident yesterday at 7:30 a.m. involved cars driven by Robert L. Hein, 117 Clapp street, and Clark De Haven, West Branch, according to reports filed with the police.

The two cars collided at the Market and Rochester street intersection.

Damage to the Hein automobile was estimated at $100 and De Haven reported $50 damage. No one was injured.

Marguerite Sikora Files For Divorce

Marguerite Sikora, 536 Kimball road, yesterday filed suit for divorce from Otto E. Sikora in the Johnson county district court.

The plaintiff asked that she be awarded half of all property owned by either or both parties and for other relief the court deems equitable. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

Judge James P. Gaffney issued a writ of attachment against the property of the defendant. He also issued a temporary injunction restraining Sikora from entering the premises occupied by the plaintiff or from molesting her in any way.

The injunction also restrains the defendant from disposing of any property pending divorce actions.

Kuhn Heads Survey Of Faculty Housing At Other Colleges

A survey of faculty housing conditions in other universities is being conducted by the American Association of University Professors, Prof. John Gerber, association president, announced yesterday.

Prof. Manford Kuhn of the sociology department is in charge of the survey. According to Gerber, the purpose of the inquiry is to "investigate what is going on at other universities and to see whether we have lost faculty members because of the university's housing situation."

Kuhn stated that the committee would report its findings to the school administration "within a day or two."

The association, which has been concerned with faculty housing conditions in the university, discussed the Parklawn apartment project at their meeting Tuesday. Parklawn would house faculty members as well as married student families.
