Marshall's Speech Tonight To Highlight Opening Day Of Des Moines Institute

DES MOINES (AP)—The spotlight on the European Recovery Program now before congress will shift to Des Moines today with formal opening of the two-day national farm institute, scheduled for 9:15 a.m.

Highlight of the day's program is scheduled this evening when Gen. George C. Marshall, Secretary of State and author of the "Marshall Plan" will speak at 9 p.m.

Secretary Marshall is flying to Des Moines and is scheduled to arrive sometime late this afternoon. His address will deal with European recovery and the institute theme "Agriculture and World Reconstruction."

Tonight's program at KRNT radio theater will be open to the public, doors of the theater opening at 7 p.m.

Most of the 22 Iowa farmers who toured Europe last fall at their own expense to study food and agricultural conditions will be on the platform for tonight's program.

Other persons participating in other phases of the institute's program include Lady Nancy Astor.

Speakers at the morning session will be O. V. Wells, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics, and Norris E. Dodd, under-secretary of the United States department of agriculture. Wells will speak on "policy issues," and Dodd on "world food needs."

Lady Astor will address the luncheon session tomorrow and bring greetings from overseas to the evening meeting.

All institute sessions are open to the public without charge, and there is no registration fee.

The institute is fundamentally a forum. No resolutions are adopted or proposed.

Friends Say Slain Girl Had Planned to Marry

MASON CITY (AP)—A young couple who used to double date with Charles Ver Helst and Arlene Mott told a packed courtroom yesterday that before Arlene's death she and Ver Helst had said they wanted to get married.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thornbury testified at the district court trial of Ver Helst who is charged with the strangulation slaying of the 16-year-old Mott girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Thornbury said Ver Helst had discussed freely the possibility of marrying Arlene for "quite some time" and that he had mentioned going to work at a local packing plant.

Mrs. Thornbury said Charles and Arlene got along "swell" but she conceded that Ver Helst and "just a little bit" of a temper.

Miss Mott died last Nov. 13, and Van Helst had contended that she died while he was unconscious after he had been struck on the head by an unknown assailant in the alley behind the Mott home.

The state, attempting to prove that Ver Helst was not hurt or unconscious that night, called Detective Glen Hamblin. There was no evidence of a blow on Ver Helst's head that night, Hamblin testified. He added that two days later he found a red spot which looked like a mosquito bite on the youth's head.

Leroy Mott, brother of the dead girl, said last Nov. 13 was the first time he ever had seen Ver Helst's car in the alley during the numerous visits Ver Helst made to the Mott home. Always before he had parked the car in front of the house, Mott told the court.

In his opening statement to the jury, county attorney James R. Brown called the strangulation death of Miss Mott "one of our most horrible crimes, committed in the most horrible manner."

Brown said the girl was "four months pregnant and Ver Helst knew it" at the time of her death. Ver Helst had denied he knew the Mott girl was pregnant.

Politicians, Expert Eye Market Dip

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said yesterday the drop in commodity prices is a step in the right direction. But he declared inflationary dangers have not been removed by the market decline.

Mr. Truman told his news conference he feels as strongly as ever congress should give him legal powers to curb the cost of living.

At the same time he urged all Americans to join in a new savings bond drive, April 15 to June 30. He said every dollar saved is a weapon "in the fight against inflation."

The chairman of the New York stock exchange board predicted yesterday that commodity price peaks have been passed.

Robert Boylan, attending a meeting of the association of stock exchange firms in Atlanta, Ga., said there would be rallies in commodity markets. But, he added, "it is not likely that commodity prices will again reach their record highs."

Two Republican aspirants for President, Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and Harold E. Stassen, expressed the opinion the inflationary curve is flattening out.

Taft told a news conference in St. Paul that the commodity market dip may have solved the problem of the wage-price spiral. He added he does not believe the drop forebushes a depression or will halt attempts to cut income taxes.

Stassen told the Philadelphia chamber of commerce he is convinced the "dangerous high price curve is permanently broken. Wise government policies, he added, should stabilize food prices 15 percent lower than the levels of a month ago.

Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) said in Washington that the government should be "trying to find some way to keep prices up" instead of "trying to bludgeon and beat down prices."

A high national income is necessary, he told a senate agriculture committee, to produce taxes necessary to meet government costs.

LEAK OF GOVERNMENT INFORMATION caused the market slump? There's no basis for such talk says a veteran New Orleans cotton dealer. He is E. F. Creekmore who talked to the senate agricultural committee yesterday.

Maynard To Testify

CHICAGO (AP)—E. T. Maynard, Chicago grain speculator, will appear before a senate appropriations subcommittee in Washington on Monday. Joe Hicks, public relations man for the Chicago board of trade, said yesterday.

The senate subcommittee is inquiring into speculation on commodity markets. Agriculture Secretary Anderson disclosed Wednesday that Maynard profited to the extent of more than $200,000 in the plunging grain markets of the past week.

Asks Price Supports For Basic Farm Goods

Washington, (AP) Immediate extension of government price supports to all basic, non-perishable farm products was recommended yesterday by Rep Vursell (R-ILL.).

He told the House this should be coupled with "drastic" slashes in government expenditures and foreign aid to stabilize the economy in the face of "the present chaotic condition" in the stock and commodity markets.

"If farm prices are allowed to plunge below parity," Vursell said, "the financial structure of the nation will be in danger."

National — Deport Hollywood Composer; Humor Staff Out

Hans Eisler Told He Should Leave The United States

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Hans Eisler, Hollywood composer, yesterday was ordered deported by the immigration and naturalization service.

A spokesman for the agency said an order had been signed, giving Eisler voluntary deportation to any country of his choice except to contiguous countries.

Eisler is a brother of Gerhart Eisler, once described as "No. 1 Communist in the United States." The brothers are natives of Germany.

The order follows a New York hearing by immigration authorities into an allegation that Hans Eisler was a member in Germany of a group advocating the violent overthrow of this government. He came to this country in 1941.

The justice department said Eisler is "privileged to leave the country voluntarily," and that it understood that he is leaving next Monday, Feb. 16.

Mrs. Hans Eisler is expected to accompany him. Mrs. Eisler's status as a resident alien is also under inquiry.

Gerhart Eisler, who has been convicted of making false statements in a passport application, is now being detained at Ellis Island in a deportation proceeding.

Resign Rather Than Ban 'Sex and Liquor'

CHICAGO (AP)—Two coeds quit as editors of Northwestern university's humor magazine rather than blue-pencil some of its "sex and liquor."

The co-editors, Joan Forsythe, 21, Webster Groves, Mo., and Mary Helen Woods, 21, Evansville, Ind., said they merely wished to put "new life" in the Purple Parrot, campus life and humor publication.

The chairman of the university board of publications, Dean Kenneth Olsen, stated The Daily Northwestern and the publications board had criticized the co-editors for "too much emphasis on sex and liquor in cartoons and quips."

Miss Forsythe and Miss Woods said they had attempted to present a balanced publication reflecting both serious and humorous aspects of college life. Under pressure from the board they resigned rather than try to alter the magazine.

The publications board declared it feels "new editorial direction can achieve a truer reflection of campus life. The board also feels that this action presents a challenge to those who have in the past indicated their belief that humor and good taste can be combined."

The co-editors declined to comment on the university's official statement.

Snowslide Hurtles Train Down Slope

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Three railroad cars were hurled like toys down a mountainside by a rumbling snowslide, but all 14 occupants came out alive.

None of the dozen passengers and trainmen were injured or were hurt seriously. One who escaped injury entirely was a 15-month-old boy who fell asleep on his grandfather's shoulder as he was carried to safety.

A 19-year-old nurse suffered frostbitten feet as she scrambled, frozen stockings and shoes, off the minus snow slope in the yellow light of trainmen's lanterns.

The train, on the narrow gauge Denver and Rio Grande Western line between Alamosa and Durango, was climbing toward Cumbres pass when the slide struck shortly after 6 o'clock Wednesday night.

The torrent of snow, 100 feet wide, smashed into the last three cars. They were swept down the slope for distances of 30 to 500 feet. Cushioned by the packed snow, they did not overturn.

The nurse said "we hit a large tree and the car splintered. Our car was at a steep angle and I am sure we would have gone on down the slope if that tree hadn't stopped us."

Charges 'Cowardice' in Bottling Up UMT Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—The head of the American Legion accused the house rules committee of "political cowardice" yesterday for not sending the universal military training (UMT) bill to the floor for a vote.

James F. O'Neil, the Legion's national commander, issued a statement declaring "there is evidence of a conspiracy to stall on UMT, involving policy makers for both parties."

"More than that," he said, "there are indications the Republican leadership has ordered UMT legislation to remain bottled up in the rules committee."

Union Halts RR Freight Flow Into New England

WASHINGTON (AP) — Severe winter weather marked by much snow yesterday led to partial embargo on freight movement into portions of New York state and New England, effective tomorrow.

The Association of American railroads announced that is declaring a four-day holiday on eastbound shipments via the New York Central railroad into Buffalo and points east of Buffalo on the central system and the Boston and Albany R.R.

Rockefeller, will marry vivacious, blond Barbara Sears, 31, in Palm Beach, Fla., shortly after midnight tonight. The wedding which was originally scheduled for today, Friday the 13th, was delayed because of the 72-hour waiting period required by Florida law. Politics — Lincoln Day Blasts at Democrats

GOP Leaders Lash Out at Demos in Lincoln Day Blasts

By The Associated Press

Republicans denounced the Democratic administration in Lincoln Day rallies last night. Principal speakers invited dissatisfied Democrats to come over to the other side. Generally, the leading Republicans threw the book at the Democratic handling of foreign and domestic affairs. But they were divided over funds needed for the European Recovery Plan.

Scores of legislators, governors and other party figures took to the platform and radio to lash out at President Truman's foreign and domestic policies.

Says ERP, Tax Cut Needs GOP Victory

NEW YORK (AP)—House Speaker Joseph W. Martin Jr., declared last night that only the election of a Republican president and congress would assure lower taxes and the success of a foreign aid program.

Sen. Homer Ferguson (R-Mich.), speaking on the same program, said the Democrats would seek to retain power by maintaining that a crisis required continuance of the Truman administration.

The two Republican leaders made their statements in addresses to the 62nd annual Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican club at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

"The New Deal has had 16 years in which to prove it knows how to achieve efficiency and economy," Martin said. "For 16 years it has failed."

Ferguson said that "of course you will hear between now and November next that there is a stream, and there is a horse in the middle of that stream. The Democrat administration is on that horse."

"You will hear again that there is a crisis, so you must not change horses in midstream. This poor old horse they call 'crisis' has been in midstream for 16 years now."

"Let us put him on dry land. Let us put him out to pasture."

Taft Asks 'Hard Boiled' Aid Program for Europe

ST. PAUL (AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) centered last night his fire on the administration's foreign aid proposals, calling for a "hard-boiled plan" to give Europe only essential food and pump-priming industrial help.

Taft assailed what he called the "New Deal" plan of inviting European nations to "add up their desired imports, subtract their possible exports and hand us a bill for the difference."

Taft said aid to China must be provided, immediately, asserting: "It is futile to expend billions on a doubtful economic project in Europe to resist Communism while practically inviting them (the Communists) to take over the western shores of the Pacific."

The Democrats, Taft declared, must accept the responsibility for "the losing of the peace thus far." Chairman Reece of the GOP national committee, speaking at Indianapolis, called the Republicans the "liberal, forward-looking" party with "no pro-Russian faction" in it.

"The Republican party welcomes the support of every American devoted to the perpetuation of our representative republic and the economic system which has grown up under the protection of that republic," Reece said.

Stassen Outlines Plans For Economic Stability

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant, yesterday outlined a six-point program to prevent "bubble booms" or "depression crashes."

The 40-year-old former Minnesota governor made his third invasion of Pennsylvania to speak at two Lincoln day gatherings.

He told the Philadelphia junior chamber of commerce his six-point "steadying" program for the nation's economy was:

Government purchase of some 10,000,000 bushels of wheat a week for the foreign aid program to assist the market in stabilizing on sound levels.

Moderation on the part of labor leaders in third round of wage demands and strict avoidance of strikes or disruptions of production.

Wage increases for groups who lagged far behind in the postwar movement of wage-price levels.

Prompt tax reduction for small and new business.

Prompt extension of rent control law.

Marshall plan should be carried through on the basis developed under Senator Vandenberg's leadership.

The president was called a "defeatist" and a "bewildered man" who has "alarmed congress by his almost daily demands for power, power and more power."

"Wastrel demagogues," "regimentation," "police state," "national bankruptcy," were some of the terms applied to administration leaders and policies.

In Boston Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York declared last night that the foreign policies of the Truman administration "should be thrown overboard—lock, stock and barrel."

In a Lincoln Day address to top Massachusetts Republican leaders, Dewey urged also that the Marshall plan be used to promote a federation of free European nations as a prime step toward economic recovery and world peace.

He charged that the administration had "no policy for peace" and that through "blundering and compromising" with Russia had abetted "the scheme of Soviet world conquest."

"Those are the policies which resulted in surrendering 200 million people in middle Europe into the clutches of Soviet Russia and are rapidly delivering the 400 million people of China into the same hands," he asserted before the Middlesex Republican club of Massachusetts.

The gathering is traditionally an outstanding Bay State Republican event of the year.

The New York governor proposed specifically that the nations of western Europe stabilize their currencies, abolish customs barriers and form a military alliance.

A candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, Dewey said the administration's foreign policies were "formulated wholly outside the area of by-partisan cooperation."

"It was Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, acting majority leader of the senate, who described Mr. Truman as a 'defeatist' ever ready to grasp for 'power,'" Speaking at Huntington, W. Va., he said:

"One day the President goes to the left, the next day to the right, zigzagging back and forth, attempting to outlead Henry Wallace, but giving lip service to Jeffersonian Democrats."

"Where are the Jeffersonian Democrats today?" Wherry asked. "They are just waiting to be invited to join us. They know a vote for Republicanism this fall is a vote for Americanism."

Wherry also termed the President a "bewildered man," adding: "One moment he advocates the imposition of price controls to lower prices, and, in the next he has the Secretary of Agriculture announce the purchase of 50 million bushels of wheat, which would prevent a fall in the market."

Iowa Mermen Trounce Minnesota, 58-26

Ris Shatters Weismuller's 23-Year Old Mark in 100

By JOHN HOLWAY
Wally Ris, Iowa's latest evidence of a thrilling scientific phenomenon—lightning in liquid—beat Tarzan at his own game last night, as he streaked to a new American record for the 100-yards free style in 51.9 seconds, while Iowa trounced Minnesota's tankers, 58-26, in the fieldhouse pool.

The performance will oust the 23-year-old national long course record of Johnny Weismuller of 52 seconds flat, and becomes the sixth national mark to fall to the Chicago champion.

Iowa conceded only one event, the 440-yard freestyle to Billy Thorpe, while two more University of Iowa records tumbled.

Duane Draves, who also collected points in the 50-yard freestyle, and on the 400-yard free style relay team, topped his own university record for the 200-yard breast stroke snipping two full seconds off his best time, and bringing it down to 1:40.2.

The other mark was bagged by Kenny Marsh in the 50-yard freestyle. His time of 24.2 seconds shaved the standing mark of 24.3, which had been shared by Vito Lopin of last year's squad and Ray Walters, 1936 merman. Draves, heavily-worked tanker, took second in the event by nosing out Gopher Don Benson.

The 300-yard medley relay team came within a second of beating the school record set last December in the intrasquad meet. Bud Griesbach, Dick Lake and Larry Larimore teamed to return a time of 3:08.8, eight-tenths of a second off the pace.

Dave Brockway was uncanny on the three-meter board as he easily copped the diving by twenty-seven points. After a year's lay-off from competition with Iowa, Brockway showed poise and precision form, knifing the waves repeatedly with clean entries.

The Hawks were beaten out in the 440-yard freestyle by Billy Thorpe, son of Minnesota's coach. Thorpe accounted for a time of 5:25 in winning from Paul Hutinger by several body lengths. Erv Straub bested Thorpe in the 220, while Hutinger took third behind the Gopher.

Breast stroker Penny Mower weakened in the stretch and his first place bid was grabbed by Larry Larimore in 2:38.4 for the 200-yard event.

Bud Griesbach, swimming his first meet as a varsity man, accounted ably for himself in placing second ahead at Minnesota's touted veteran, Roger Ahlman in the backstroke, besides his efforts on the winning medley relay team.

Aside from Thorpe, Don Benson, Gopher sprinter stood out for the visitors. Benson followed in Ris' record-breaking wake and turned in a creditable 54 seconds time for himself.

IOWA'S SWIMMING SENSATION, WALLY RIS, raced to a new American record of 51.9 seconds in the 100-yard free style last night in the dual meet against Minnesota. The time eclipsed a 23-year-old record of 52 seconds held by Johnny Weismuller. Here Ris is shown as he reached the finish line and (insert) receiving the congratulations of a teammate.

Three Iowa Citizens Cop Gloves

(Special to the Daily Iowan)
CEDAR RAPIDS—Three Iowa City boxers won Cedar Rapids Golden Gloves titles here last night in the open division and a fourth gained a novice crown.

In the top fight of the evening, Lyle Seydel took the 118-pound open crown with a decision over Verlin Rogers of Ottumwa. The fight was fast and close throughout, with both boxers going all out in the vicious give-and-take slugfest.

This is the third consecutive year that Seydel has been crowned Cedar Rapids champion. He won the 112-pound division the last two years.

Bob Rossie Jr. annexed the 145-pound crown with a close decision over Lou Crumes of Ottumwa. The veteran Crumes, who was a wartime protege of Gus Lesnevich and who holds a decision over Del Cockayne, gave Rossie a tremendous fight.

The first round was fast, furious and even. In the second round, Rossie put on his best showing when he constantly kept the Ottumwa boy off balance with lefts to the face. Crumes came back in the last round to carry the fight to Rossie, but the Iowa Citian staved off the rally to win the decision.

Rossie won the welterweight crown at Cedar Rapids in 1946 before entering the service.

Bob Berens, another local slugger, took the light heavyweight crown by decisioning Chet Gralund, veteran Cedar Rapids fighter. The first round was even and in the second Gralund came out trying for a

KO. Numerous good exchanges characterized the round. In the final period, the slugfests were ferocious, with Berens doing the most damage.

In a semi-final bout, Berens took an easy decision over George Van Dorin of Ottumwa. Although outweighted 12-pounds, Berens was the aggressor throughout and had his opponent in danger several times.

Duke Stoner, University of Iowa student from West Branch, won the 175-pound novice crown with a decision over Larry Lemme of Iowa City. The fight was slow and bloodless.

Maynard Parker, local novice heavyweight, lost an unpopular decision to Bill Kanellis of Cedar Rapids in the final round. Parker put on a third round rally and, in the opinion of the crowd, carried the fight to his heavier opponent.

Robinson Signs Up
BROOKLYN, (AP)—Jackie Robinson signed his 1948 Brooklyn contract yesterday for a substantial raise over his rookie pay.

The Dodgers' first sacker, who was the first Negro to play modern big league ball, confined his comments on salary to "I'm still smiling." Oservers figured it would take about $14,000 to keep Jackie smiling. It was a one-year agreement.

Heafner, Demaret Lead
HARLINGEN, TEX. (AP)—Two veterans of the tournament trail—Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., and the links' fashion plate, gold-voiced Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., skipped over 6,045-yard Harlingen Municipal course yesterday for six-under par 65's to lead the first round of the $10,000 lower Rio Grande Valley open.

McKeever Questions Future Status of 22 San Francisco Stars

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ed McKeever's "time-bomb" letter questioning future eligibility of 22 football players he coached at the University of San Francisco erupted yesterday in chain explosions of criticisms—against McKeever.

Most heated of the critics were USA officials. One accused McKeever of taking away vital athletic office files when he resigned.

Criticism came also from Western coaches. Most of them expressed amazement that McKeever should write the letter and then send carbon copies to them and other athletic officials in the bay area.

McKeever, in Chicago where he'll coach the Rockets of the all-America Professional Football conference, explained the letter was written so "later on, nobody can say McKeever didn't say something about their (the players) eligibility."

Charles Harney, chairman of the athletic board at USA, said: "All the letters that can do us any good are missing. They are of no use to McKeever. Why did he take them except for spite?"

Harney said the university could not make a move until the letters are returned as the university does not know what commitments were made by McKeever before he quit.

McKeever's letter, naming some of USA's star gridmen, said their eligibility had been used up in most cases by playing at Eastern colleges as well as at USA.

McKeever also charged that some of the players received substantial amounts above "the usual $75, $50 and $40" a month rate. Father Jerome Sullivan, USA Athletic Moderator, said athletes were paid for work on the campus but denied that they received a "substantial amount" above the going rates.

Joe Kuharich, one of three USA coaches who feuded with McKeever as assistants on his staff, termed his former boss' action "vindictive and spiteful." Kuharich succeeded McKeever in the head coach job.

Wier, McIntyre Continue Hot Pace in Duel for Scoring Title

CHICAGO (AP)—As far as team success is concerned, a good little man is more than holding his own against a good big man in the Big Nine basketball race.

The reason Iowa's Hawkeyes are tied with Wisconsin for first in the team scramble is because Murray Wier, a 150-pounder who stands 5 feet, 9 inches, peppers in points almost as profusely as 6-foot, 6-inch Jim McIntyre of Minnesota, the league's best scorer.

McIntyre has averaged 24 points in seven conference games against 22.4 by Wier in eight games, but Minnesota's Gophers are limping along in sixth place with a 3-4 record.

Both Wier and McIntyre are their schools' only sharpshooters among the conference's top 26 scorers, excepting Center Len Metcalfe of Iowa, who ranked ninth with a 12.7 average before his recent ineligibility.

Minus Metcalfe and with Wier plunking in 34 points, Iowa disposed of formidable Illinois, 70-61, last Monday night. The same evening, Furdue held McIntyre to 13 points and whipped the Gophers, 53-51.

Official league statistics released yesterday show that McIntyre, with a total of 168 points—11 fewer than Wier's 179 for one more game—is the most accurate shooter in the conference with a .458 percentage of 55 field goals in 120 tries. Wier has 368 for 70 fielders in 190 shots.

It's money in the bank when ganging McIntyre gets his hands around the basket. He just leans over and dunks it in. Sometimes, on rebounds, his arms go well above the hoop.

Wier, spotting height to almost every man guarding him, is naturally a different type scorer. A fiery ball-hawk and dribbler, he lets fly with one-handed shots from every angle and distance.

When Minnesota invades the Chicago stadium tomorrow night to face Northwestern, McIntyre is certain to shatter his own Minnesota record of 314 points for a season. Big Jim is only one point shy of his school mark.

Wier will be in action Saturday night at Indiana and, like McIntyre, will be striving to continue a better than 17-point average each needs to break the season conference record of 255 points held by Andy Phillip of Illinois. In his remaining four games, Wier must average 19.2 to top Phillips' 1943 record. McIntyre can break it by averaging 17.4 in five remaining tilts.

In the team race, idle Wisconsin can "back" into sole leadership if Iowa should stumble at Indiana. Michigan, ostensibly the only other team with a title chance, will be after its fifth win in seven starts at home against Purdue. Saturday night's fourth conference game takes Illinois to Ohio State.

Great in Action!

Dear Joe and Jane —

At last we can keep our promise. After showing you a few scenes from "I Live As I Please" starring Tagliavini, we've been bombarded with requests as to when we were going to play the picture. So here he is... The man with the golden voice that will make you want to stand in your seats and applaud... Ferruccio Tagliavini.

Those of you that have a fear of operatic music we are willing to bet will change your minds after hearing him. Matter of fact, we're so sure you'll enjoy his voice that if after hearing him if you don't agree with us just stop in at the office and I will personally give you a pass good to any other shows we will have coming, including the ones starring our new French star Roy Rogers (now pronounced Ro-jay).

Because our request list is piling up on us we are also showing another of your requests, Douglas Fairbanks in "Don Juan".

See you Saturday. Of course, if you're not doing anything Friday night stop in and see Bugs Bunny plus Betty Davis in "Deception".

It's a Capitol idea.

Two To Seek Reelection to School Board

Two members of the Iowa City board of education, Pres. Clark Caldwell and Glenn D. Devine, said yesterday that they will run for reelection to the board on March 8 when their terms expire.

A third member, Harrison H. Gibbs whose term also expires this year said that he plans to retire.

Caldwell and Devine are completing their first terms while this is Gibbs' second term. Gibbs, a druggist, served as president of the board for one year. Devine is assistant business manager of the university men's physical education department. Caldwell is a local insurance agent.

Members of the board serve for three-year terms. Iowa City's election procedure differs from most cities. A bi-partisan committee composed of Democrats and Republicans nominate local citizens whom they feel qualify for the positions. Other citizens may run for the board also.

Each candidate, whether nominated by the board of running independently, must have a nomination petition signed by 10 qualified voters. Petitions should be turned in by Friday noon, Feb. 27, at the City hall.

Members of the bi-partisan committee are Mrs. Sarah Paine Hoffman, Olive Pearl Ritter, Mrs. L. C. Jones, Mrs. Don Guthrie and Mrs. Cromwell Jones, all Republicans. Prof. Himie Voxman, Mrs. Emil Trot, Mrs. Clair Hamilton, Mrs. Thomas Farrell, W. J. Jackson and Dr. P. W. Richardson, Democrats.

The election is scheduled for Monday, March 8, from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., at the Community building.

Man Can Choose Way of Life: Thurman Asserts Evil Man Will Be Destroyed

BY DON DEEDRICK

A person can choose the thing he is willing to stand for in life, the Rev. Howard Thurman said last night at the closing convocation of "Religion in Life Week."

"The options in life available to the individual are very few, but this is one option for everyone," he explained.

"I can do evil things against my fellowmen. Even though they are wicked, this is the kind of world that makes evil effective," he said.

The Rev. Mr. Thurman added it is religion's conviction that the evil man will perish.

In revealing the other side of the option, he stated it is within the range of the individual who makes the option to make his life good for his fellowmen.

"I must then inform my environment where I stand and realize the world expects me to carry my stand through."

"It is much better not to make my option, though, than to make it and not carry it out," he emphasized.

The Rev. Mr. Thurman said he believes this is either a world that is fixed, hard finished and unyielding or a world that is fluid, unfinished and yielding.

"If we believe the first, then we believe nothing can really be done about anything, but if we are convinced of the second, we believe a man can hold to his dreams so completely that the world around him will take on the objectives of his dream," he stated.

He said we are often harassed by this conflict of dualism in our life and in the world, and therefore we find it easy to make distinctions between the ideal and the real.

The Rev. Mr. Thurman is a guest professor in the university's school of religion for the current semester. He was formerly the co-pastor of the Fellowship Church of All Peoples in San Francisco.

5,500 Books Held by Faculty

Ellsworth Sees New Building as Solution to Library Tangle

BY EUGENE KIEFFER
About 380 faculty members have over 5,500 university library books checked out, but that isn't the main reason students are having trouble getting the books they want.

The real reason, according to Prof. Ralph E. Ellsworth, director of libraries, is that the university has very poor library service due to a lack of facilities and because books are dispersed over the entire campus instead of being in one central library.

"The fact that many faculty members do have large numbers of books out is a contributing factor, but not to the extent many students believe," Ellsworth said. After many complaints from students, the Student Council last week decided to speed up the organization of a new library committee. Its function will be to meet with Ellsworth to discuss remedies for the present situation. Ellsworth, although greatly interested in a student library committee, doesn't believe much can be done to improve the service until the new library is completed. Construction will begin in about two years, he said.

The greatest difficulty over books occurs in the library in Macbride hall," Ellsworth said, "because most of the English, social science, history and language books are kept there, and those are the books most needed by professors and students."

"Our facilities are so bad that the only way a scholar can work is to keep books in his office, and that is a legitimate reason.

"Of course, there are abuses, but we can't correct them very easily without causing hard feelings."

Of the 5,500 books charged to faculty members, Prof. E. P. Kuhl of the English department has 550, some since 1935.

An authority on Chaucer and Shakespeare, Kuhl said it is necessary to have that many books for research and class room purposes. "I probably could return some of them," Kuhl said, "but within a week I would need them again, and that would waste time."

Kuhl agrees that the new library will do a great deal to alleviate the present hardships encountered when getting books.

"There are days," he commented, "when it is necessary for me to consult several of the six libraries on the campus."

Faculty members, graduate assistants, research assistants and other staff members are not required to return books to the library within a specified time, and they are not subject to library fines.

However, if a student requests a book that is being held by a faculty member, the librarian will send a request card to the professor and the book is usually returned within a day.

Miss Irene Steidl, head of the circulation department, said some professors do not have many books out but many of the books are badly needed by students. Often these requests are ignored by some professors, she said.

Once a year Miss Steidl sends inventories to all the professors who have books charged out to them and requests the return of those not being used.

"Most faculty members cooperate," she said, "but some don't even bother to reply."

Prof. W. Leigh Sowers of the English department said that although he had some 180 of the university's books, some since 1928, he has never failed to return them when asked.

"Most of the books I have," Sowers said, "are old pamphlets out of print and unimportant plays which nobody else wants. I keep them for personal research and to protect them, but any student can use them in my office."

Some professors have recently withdrawn a great number of books from the library for their classes.

One of these, Prof. Robert S. Hoyt of the history department, with about 120 books out said, "By keeping the books in my office my students can get at them much faster and with less trouble."

Only four other professors have more than 70 books checked out. Prof. Robert S. Michaelson and Prof. Judah Goldin, both of the school of religion, say their more than 70 books are kept in a kind of "circulating library" within their own department for the use of their students.

Eighty books are listed as checked out to Prof. George de Schweinitz. They were checked out within the last year. He is now ill in the hospital.

Prof. Marcus Bach of the school of religion, listed as having about 80 books, is on an extended leave of absence from the university.

There have been many suggestions for correcting library abuses, from assessing fines to withholding a professor's salary until long

Two accidents in Iowa City the past week.

A truck driven by Audrey Anclaux, 1111 East Fairchild, and a car driven by O. B. Edgerton, West Branch, collided at 11:15 a. m. yesterday morning.

The collision occurred on Washington street near the Linn street intersection.

Damages to the vehicles were small and no one was injured.

Two cars collided at the corner of Court and Madison streets at 10 p. m. Wednesday causing damages which totaled $84.50, according to reports filed with the police.

Police said the car driven by Ralph Goering, 29 West Court street, suffered $80 damage. The automobile driven by Joe Corso, 225 North Madison street, received $4.50 damage.

Both drivers escaped injury.

W. M. Albright, 636 South Johnson street, reported $150 damage to his truck as the result of a collision which occurred last Friday on Dubuque street.

The Albright truck collided with a truck driven by Ray Cambridge, 523 Dearborn.

No one was injured.

Proposes Adequate Banking, Budget Steps to Curb Boom

"Adequate budget and central banking policies can check today's inflation and the depression to follow," John K. Langum, vice-president of the federal reserve bank of Chicago, told a great issues course open meeting in MacBride auditorium yesterday.

"We must watch government spending and use surpluses in a forceful debt retirement policy," Langum said. Veterans aid and foreign commitments mean that the federal budget will never again go below $30-billion, he added.

"We financed the war on the lowest rate of interest in history, two percent," Langum continued, "and during the war, the federal reserve system kept interest rates from rising."

But since low rates of interest during a boom contribute to inflation, we must revise our central banking policy, he reasoned.

"Money being the primary cause of inflation, we have got to fight inflation and the following depression by getting at its roots," he observed.

People are afraid to tinker with the boom for fear of the depression which must follow, but the longer we wait, the worse the depression will be.

Langum said, "We have never gotten out of an inflated boom without a depression. We won't escape it this time either."

In concluding, Langum observed, "Our personal and political freedom is bound up with our economic problem. It will take voluntary restraints and a limited amount of enforceable controls along with revised budget and banking policies to solve it."

Leather bags are used for carrying water in many countries because leather "breathes" and water kept in it tends to remain fresh and cool.

Croft To Meet With American UNESCO

Prof. H. O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department, will attend the national UNESCO commission meeting in Washington, D. C. Feb. 17 and 18. He is a commission member.

Also elected were Judy Kistler, Baton Rouge, La., vice president; Donna Wilken, Rock Rapids, treasurer; Mary Lou Ogden, Mason City, recording secretary; Jean Ruehmann, Davenport, corresponding secretary, and Eleanor Geppert, Council Bluffs, historian. Marilyn Fanter, Crystal Lake, Ill., guard; Mary Frances Dahl, Cedar Falls, senior representative; Darlene McGonigle, Waterloo, junior representative, and Joy Schnoebelen, Iowa City, chaplain.

Appointive officers will be announced later.

Fallacy in New Rent Decontrol Proposal

The senate banking committee last week sent back for revision a "sky's-the-limit proposal" for rent control.

The proposal would allow unlimited "voluntary" rent increases where landlord and tenant could agree on a long-term lease of 14 months.

Except for the "no limit" provision, this is similar to the 1947 revision of the rent control law. Under last year's law, a boost of 15 percent was allowed where the landlord and tenant could agree.

Under the 1947 law, 1 1/2 million tenants signed up for the 15 percent increase through 1948. But 14 million others did not.

The senate subcommittee that framed the new bill would remove from control that housing which got a 15 percent boost last year. And they would let landlords who didn't get last year's increase catch up by submitting leases to their tenants asking for any amount they wished.

The tenant could do little but obey. There's no place to move to. That is the fallacy in the so-called agreement between tenant and landlord.

The reluctance of congress to impose other controls brings cries of discrimination from the landlords. But until the housing shortage really becomes a "figment of the imagination," rent controls—with provision for landlords' hardship cases—must continue.

'Better Than Working'

(First of a Series)

Joe pushed his empty glass toward the bartender.

"Nothin' on, and some nickels."

He laid a dollar bill next to the empty glass. Last buck, he thought to himself. And only the seventeenth of the month.

"Here you are, Joe." The bartender set a full glass down and counted out a handful of nickels.

Joe glanced around him as he picked up the change. He couldn't help feeling a little important whenever the bartender called him Joe. After all, not every college student knows a bartender well enough to be called by his first name.

Joe moved over to the pin-ball machine and set his glass on the ring-stained top. He was shooting the first ball when a friend came in.

"Lo, Joe."

"Hi, pal."

"Didn't see you in class this morning, Joe."

"Didn't feel like going. Prof. never says anything anyway."

"Goin' to your three-thirty?"

"Well, I've skipped 'em all so far today—no use makin' an exception. Think I'll go to a show, or just stay here. Say, can you lend me a couple of bucks? Pay you back soon as I write a check on the old man. Thanks, pal."

"Sure. Well, got to go home and study. Ready for that test?"

"Don't think I'll worry about it much. Haven't taken any notes. Might read over yours tomorrow night. I figure I can get by in the course without knockin' myself out."

I'd like him better, Joe thought, if he wasn't so eager. Handy to sit by in a test, though.

Tiring of the pin-ball machine, Joe moved back to the bar. He had a feeling of discomfiture.

"Two years here and nothing to show for it," he thought. "They don't teach it right, don't make it interesting. Won't let you take what you want to."

But after all, he said to himself, it's better than working. Congress is raising the pay and the old man has plenty when I need it. Plenty of women here, too. Be sort of crazy to leave a gravy train.

Joe picked his glass up again and went over to the phone booth. Maybe a date would put him in a better humor.

You Look Guilty—You Must Be To Blame for Inflation

Hindsight Blames the Brass For Fiasco at Kasserine Pass

NEW YORK (AP)—Five years ago this week "the desert rat" paid a valentine visit to the American forces in North Africa.

In the next few days this tempestuous Teuton—Field Marshal Erwin Rommel—sent the overwhelmed Yanks spinning back forty miles.

That was the only time I ever led troops. I ran back 41 1/2 miles. After a week of wild rampaging, Rommel trundled his panzers back into the Tunisian coastal hills, leaving behind the hulks of 86 American tanks and thirty overrun field guns.

Since then it has been the fashion to treat the battle of Kasserine gap as a great defeat caused by the greenness of American troops. This ready explanation puts a needless and untrue slur on the men who fought there, men who really had done considerable fighting already. And it hides the fact that much of the blame belongs on the top brass.

Many of the men went to their deaths believing they were fighting the battle the wrong way. I know this because one evening they told me so, and the next evening they were dead.

There will always be some controversy over the battle of Kasserine. Many American officers who fought there believe the record would have been considerably better if their units hadn't been fed to Rommel a battalion at a time.

The United States does not do business that way. Although we were doing everything possible to stave off war with Japan in the fall of 1941, there was never any thought that we could make a deal with her which, for instance, might have accepted her position in China.

But in the history of European politics there are many precedents which Russia might cite for her realism in looking out for herself. There is no evidence that anyone would have helped her if Hitler had attacked her alone.

from the first armored was sent against the Germans. Outgunned, outnumbered—but not outthought—it was destroyed. The next day a second American tank battalion was ordered out and met the same piecemeal fate.

This left Fredendall only one heavy tank battalion. It was under Brig. Gen. Paul McDonald Robinett—slim, small cantankerous commander of combat command "B."

A brilliant tactician, Robinett and his men stubbornly held off a German force at least five times their size until the infantry could withdraw. Then they pulled out in perfect order.

I bring up all this because Field Marshal Sir Harold Alexander, perhaps Britain's finest soldier, says in his memoirs that the Americans had "no coordinated plan of defense" at this time. That's true. They were confused. Their plan had been knocked in the head the first night.

Alexander also says the decisive engagement a few days later which halted Rommel at Thala was fought by a British armored brigade and infantry battalion supported by two battalions of American ninth infantry.

That's only half the picture. When Rommel got through Kasserine gap he had the choice of turning south to capture the American second corps supplies or north through Thala to outflank the British.

He tried both places—hard.

Fredendall was brought home and promoted to an army command. Peppery little Robinett, who has never received public credit for the stand that prevented a debacle, was wounded and later became commander of the armored force school at Fort Knox.

What of General Anderson, the man behind the initial allied strategy at Kasserine?

After the Tunisian war he went home, was knighted and promoted, and was cited by President Roosevelt. In 1944 he was made commander in chief of the eastern command in Britain, a London post.

I can find no record in newspaper files, however, that he ever again led troops in the field under Dwight Eisenhower.

THESE DAYS— Unions' Drive Against T-H Act

By George E. Sokolsky (King Feature Syndicate)

The idea was to organize a huge, non-partisan machine to drive from the congress those who voted for the Taft-Hartley bill. It was a total subordination of every thing in American life to personal revenge, to the special interests of a particular group.

That group is not the working man of America, the millions of men and women in shop, factory, mill, mine, transportation and services, but a special elite, a professional body of careerists who manage the affairs of labor unions.

So, William Green, the front as it were, for this elite, has been seeking a manager for this campaign. Naturally, he regarded himself as inadequate for such a purpose. He has been shopping for competence.

Finally, when these and the Lord knows who else turned him down, he focussed on former Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

Green picked a good man and the fact that Wheeler turned down the proposition speaks well for his good humor and his sense of proportion.

Actually, the whole farcical business revolves about the fact that anyone with even the slightest political experience knows that Green's purge is a bad and dangerous business.

The shame of it all is that Green would even try to conduct such a campaign, would concentrate money and power and the coercion of the electorate because the representatives of the people chose to be true to their oath and to vote according to their conscience.

It is satisfactory that Wheeler turned down the management of the absurd campaign. It is strictly the business of the professional careerists of labor and they ought to be permitted to manage it themselves.

They ought to make speeches all by themselves, with the advice, of course, of their own specialized counsel.

As a matter of fact, the Taft-Hartley bill is working out surprisingly well. The number of strikes have been sharply reduced. An unexpectedly large number of disputes are again being settled by direct negotiations, by collective bargaining without governmental intervention.

In spite of an agitation for a third round of wage increases, a more rational relationship is being established between management and labor.

War Altered Few Vets' Vocational Plans

(This is the third of a series of articles describing the results of a survey of college veterans—The Editor.)

The general belief that war experiences have altered the vocational plans and ambitions of the great majority of American veterans is discounted by the nationwide survey of veterans' education by the American Council on Education.

Results of the study indicate that more than half (51 percent) of the veterans now enrolled in the nation's colleges and universities are preparing for the same vocations they planned to enter before they went into the armed services.

Only 35 percent, the survey shows, have changed their vocational plans made before entering military service, while 11 percent had not chosen vocations prior to donning uniforms.

The greatest change in vocational aims was found among the disabled veteran students, with 46 of the married students in this group and 43 percent of the single students enrolled in programs leading to occupational goals different from those they had prior to the war.

Principal reason advanced for changing vocational choice was "change of interest." Of the 35 percent who have changed their plans, one fourth gave this reason.

Other explanations advanced for change of vocational plans included "more opportunity in second choice," 17 percent of this group; "more aptitude for second group," 13 percent; "is better paying," four percent, and "too long

'D RATHER BE RIGHT This Is a Time To Beware

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The break in grain prices has year on living costs, he can spend it on food, and that is one way to help the farmer.

3. Keep an eye peeled for the laddie who rather relishes the prospect of a period of unemployment.

He will talk learnedly of a "natural readjustment" of the "cost structure." What he will mean is that a decline in the living standard makes it possible to produce goods for less.

Such an approach to joblessness is an offense against 20th century morality. Ours may not be a perfect morality on every issue, but on this one we have clearly made progress. We need correctives against unemployment; and unemployment is not a corrective for anything.

5. In general, I would measure how reliable a man's guidance is on the way down, by how reliable it was on the way up.

If he is one of those who told us that prices would not rise too high after we wiped out controls, I would discount what he has to say now by about 50 percent, or roughly, the degree to which he was wrong the last time.

We can learn a lot from the experience of the last three years if, because of it, we begin to substitute a humanist approach and scientific accuracy for the ugly spit-in-the-corner kind of "common sense" which has produced our difficulties.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Self-Preservation Guided Russ in 1939

Many observers have felt, since publication of the captured German documents on Nazi-Soviet relations for 1939-41, that Moscow had been given room for some pretty strong retaliation.

Russia was expected to come back with a statement showing exactly what the situation was at the time. While Russia had actually set the stage for the war, students knew there were factors in justification. Just as there were such factors in the British policy of appeasing Germany.

There is no question in my mind that Russia, faced in 1938 with the possibility of war for which she was unready, shelved her efforts for world revolution to devote herself to self-preservation.

She was perfectly willing, of course, that self-preservation should be accompanied by a disruptive war between the western powers. But she also was right in suspecting that the west was perfectly willing to see Germany assume the role of communism-killer.

Fear of communism after World War I resulted in what amounted to an international boycott of Russia. The west, for a time, unquestionably welcomed the rise of Hitler as an antidote. When they finally recognized him for what he was, it was too late.

When they gave him Czechoslovakia the Russians naturally took it as a sign that he would be permitted to expand eastward without hindrance from France and England.

France and England tried reassurances, wanted a treaty. But they had nothing to offer except the support of the French army, of which the Russians might have known a great deal which the world did not find out until later. The Germans, on the other hand, were in Czechoslovakia, were spreading the control which later became occupation in the Balkans, and were shooting sparks in the direction of Poland. This latter was of vital concern to Russia's strategic position.

Much has been made of the fact that it was Russia who first suggested that she and Germany might get together. But as I read the documents, it amounted only to about what is usual when the ambassador from one country meets the state secretary of another for the first time.

The entire progress of the negotiations indicates that it was the Germans, not the Russians, who displayed the real initiative, and that this initiative became almost frantic as Hitler prepared to start his war without knowing whether he might have to fight on two fronts.

The United States does not do business that way. Although we were doing everything possible to stave off war with Japan in the fall of 1941, there was never any thought that we could make a deal with her which, for instance, might have accepted her position in China.

But in the history of European politics there are many precedents which Russia might cite for her realism in looking out for herself. There is no evidence that anyone would have helped her if Hitler had attacked her alone.

Lard, Butter, Flour Drop; Index Climbs Nine Cents in Week

By PAUL LUCKINBILL
With one-pound lard skidding to 28 cents, a drop of nine cents, the current market plunge of commodity prices was reflected in the Daily Iowan market basket survey yesterday.

One grocer said the price of lard dropped from 34 cents to 24 cents in his store within four days.

A one-cent price hike on milk, however, which we failed to catch last week, sent the market index to $17.27. This is nine cents above last week's total of $17.18.

Other items on the grocery list which showed price increases were pork and beans, up one-cent, salmon, up three cents, soap, up two cents, baker's chocolate (unsweetened), up four cents and cheese, up three cents.

An eagerly awaited price drop on beef failed to show up. "Choice round steak climbed one-cent, topping 75 cents. Some hope for the housewife's food budget was expressed by one grocer though, who said his beef ordered for next week would be down two cents.

"We don't get the price breaks on down prices very soon," he explained. "When prices go up, the wholesale house usually telephones us long distance so we can make the price change."

Flour, one of the first items to break on the market, slid to $1.03 for a 10-pound bag. Only two weeks ago this same flour was selling for $1.15.

One store was selling flour for 87 cents, while two others were below the average by six or seven cents.

Butter, which equalled the all time record last week, was down to 90 cents, a two-cent decrease. "We have to change the price of butter practically every hour," declared one manager. "This market changes too fast for us to keep up."

Pork prices continued their downward trend, center cut pork chops sinking to 65 cents per pound. Grade A bacon dropped from 85 cents to 79 cents with some stores selling it as low as 73 cents.

Good news for the farmers' but disheartening for the housewife was the reversal of egg prices. One dozen grade A eggs went up two cents, reaching 49 cents.

Idaho potatoes, which climbed to 78 cents for a 10-pound bag, are getting so high, said one grocer, that we have quit handling them.

Most grocers expressed the general opinion that the biggest price drops will occur next week. "Breakfast foods, bread, and other products made from grains will begin to reflect the market drop by then," explained one grocer.

The Daily Iowan market basket survey is based on the prices of 24 food items found in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores. Prices listed are an average of all stores combined.

The market basket index is an estimate of what a student family of three persons will spend for groceries every week. The cost of each food item is weighed in accordance with the amount of that item a student family would use in a week.

Movie Initiates Local Garbage Disposal Study

First action on the possibility of adopting a new method of Iowa City refuse disposal was taken at 7:30 last night with showing of a movie on the sanitary landfill method used in Rockford, Ill.

Three officials from Rockford, where the landfill disposal system is in operation, answered questions in a short discussion period after the movie.

This is the first of a series of meetings to explore different systems of garbage collection and disposal, according to Mayor Preston Koser.

"We are not going to take any action here," the mayor said, until we have looked into every method we might use."

Rockford began using the landfill system in September 1945. In that year, there were 459 cases of polio in Rockford, according to Dr. N. O. Gunderson, Rockford health officer.

In the sanitary land-fill method, garbage is dumped into a trench, packed down, then covered with a layer of earth.

According to Dr. Gunderson, the land-fill system eliminated rodents, flies and odors from the dumps in Rockford. He indicated that the area could be employed as a park or playground without danger.

However, the ground should not be used for building, Gunderson said.

Iowa City is spending about $11,000 a year now for garbage collection through a private contractor, Koser said. The garbage is being burned in the city dump now and city officials want to find a more sanitary way to eliminate it. Residents near the dump have complained of smoke when the garbage is being burned.

"There is almost no problem of the area settling," Ragner Levine, Rockford superintendent of streets said in reply to a question from the audience.

The Rockford group also included Herbert Kempster, Rockford field sanitarian.

The Rockford men have shown their movie in several Iowa towns including Waterloo, where a land-fill system has since been adopted, according to Dr. Gunderson.
