

'Good People Everywhere' Arnall Tells SUI Audience

BY MALCOLM RODMAN

"The only limitation on our realization of tomorrow is the limitations we impose today," Ellis Gibbs Arnall, former governor of Georgia, said last night.

Arnall systematically applied his ideals of faith and belief in "plain people" everywhere for the benefit of the capacity Iowa Union crowd of over 1,800.

"All things are possible if we have the courage to impose them," he declared. "There are good people everywhere. People are all alike—we have the same hopes, same feelings, same ambitions, same problems."

With these premises, Arnall led the audience through moods of thoughtful silence and spontaneous laughter with his remarks. He applied his beliefs to each of the following:

The United Nations—"The American people have been led to expect too much from the UN. You cannot solve human problems by setting up an organization or by passing laws. It is a slow process, but the people will make it work."

Marshall plan—"We are going to support the Marshall plan. It represents an intelligent policy of self-interest. I favor aiding the rest of the world limited only in that we don't ruin our own economy and our way of life."

Intolerance—"No section of the country has a corner on bigotry and intolerance."

Capitalism—"Our country with its resources and population is not wearing out. We can support 275-million Americans at a higher standard of living than we enjoy today. We can solve our long-range economic problems by abolishing the trusts, monopolies, cartels and combines which deliberately cut production and abundance. We must make anti-trust laws work."

Communism—"We will not have war with Russia for 10 years, and not after that if we effectively demonstrate that democracy can do work. The only Americans who support communism are the crackpots and the Quislings."

"Selling" democracy—"Democracy will win if we stand up and sell it to the world. We are selling the superior merchandise. We have to sell democracy with some zip, glamour and sex-appeal—our way of life is not dying out."

Henry Wallace—"I cannot agree with his foreign policy. We must not stand by and lose to Russia by default. He will make the Democratic party become more liberal."

Improving government—"The people are much more liberal than our leaders, anyway. In Georgia we gave the right to vote to 18-year-olds. If the older people voted as intelligently as the young ones—we would never have elected Talmadge. States can become laboratories of experimentation for better government; the people never gave their government the right to remain static."

Housing, Education, Health—"I want to see a nation of homeowners. If private business won't break the housing monopoly, then I want government to do it. Health and education are the rights of every American—just as much health as they can get and just as much education."

Economic opportunity—"We must keep capitalism flexible by stamping out monopolies. We are witnessing the breakdown of centralized industry, and with it, centralized populations and government. That is a good thing." He advocated wiping out uneven freight rates, the tax on oleomargarine manufacturing and internal tariff walls.

Arnall concluded, with his southern drawl that fascinated the audience, "We must put aside the disciples of pessimism. All things are possible if we have faith."

Georgia, under Arnall's administration, abolished the poll tax, permitted Negroes to vote in primaries, took education out of politics, reformed the chain-gang penal system, lowered the voting age to 18, wiped out a $37-million debt and moved to revoke charter of the Ku Klux Klan and the Columbians.

Experts Could Solve Blast Mystery—Wylie

The cause of the mystery blast in northwest Kansas could have been traced by a trained astronomer in a matter of hours, Prof. C. C. Wylie, head of the astronomy department, said yesterday.

"If someone had authorized an astronomer to do so," Wylie said, "he could have traced the path of the meteor—and from all reports it sounds like an ordinary big meteor—within three or four hours."

"But since no scientific study has been made and no attempt to analyze eyewitness accounts, we can't be absolutely sure what it was."

According to Wylie, a single Kansas astronomer could have clarified the confusion caused by the explosion. Last December, he proposed a nationwide "sky patrol" of astronomers to recognize promptly whether some object that might appear in the he-

Radio Station Construction Starts Today

By PHIL MILLER
City Editor

Remodelling of the entire third floor of the Whetstone building to make way for the Johnson County Broadcasting corporation's new radio station will begin today.

This announcement was made last night by Bob Snider, president of the corporation and general manager of the new station. Snider said Civil Aeronautics authority approval for location of a transmitter and two radio towers about one and one-half miles north of Iowa City on highway 218 cleared away the final obstacle against beginning construction.

The two 300-foot towers are now being fabricated at Ft. Worth, Tex., and will be put up on the Carl Linder property north of Iowa City within 45 days, Snider said.

In the Whetstone building, the corporation is planning one large audience-participation studio and a small announcer's booth.

Snider set June 1 as the tentative date for beginning broadcasts at 800 kilocycles. The 1,000 watt station will be on the air during the daytime and will concentrate on local programs. It will cover the eastern Iowa area.

The station will have 24-hour United Press radio news wire service, several local newscasts daily and is "a commercial venture for the people of Iowa City," Snider said.

He estimated total cost of construction at $50,000. Chief Engineer Elliott D. Full will direct construction. Call letters for the new station have not been announced by the Federal Communications commission.

Gene Claussen will be news director and assistant manager of the station. He was formerly night news editor at station KMOX, St. Louis.

Herb Olson will be program director. He was formerly chief announcer at station KOKX, Keokuk.

Market Basket Index Falls As Butter, Bacon Lead Drop

By PAUL LUCKINBILL

Paced by butter and bacon, the Daily Iowan market basket index fell 21 cents yesterday, leveling off at $17.08. The index was $17.27 last Friday.

Reflecting last week's market slump, butter was down to 87 cents, continuing the trend which began three weeks ago after a peak of 92 cents was reached.

Grade A bacon sunk to 74 cents, a 5-cent drop, setting a new low record since the survey was begun last September.

Meat cutters reported smoked meat prices are still falling following the market decline but pork and beef are beginning to recover their losses.

Most grocers surveyed look for beef prices to go up about one-cent next week.

"Managers who bought meat at the first of the week got a good break on prices," explained one grocer, "but the cheaper grades are becoming scarce now and we have to buy the higher priced grades in order to get meat."

The Daily Iowan market basket survey is based on prices of 24 food items found in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores. Prices listed are an average of all the stores combined.

The market basket index is an estimate of what a student family of three persons will spend for groceries this week.

The cost of each food item is weighted in accordance with the amount of that item a student family uses in a week.

Flour took another nose dive coming up at 98 cents for a 10-pound sack. This was a five-cent decrease.

Another all-time record was set by center cut pork chops. Those juicy morsels—"Lil Abner's" lifeblood—are now only 63 cents. (See MARKET BASKET Page 8) vens was a war machine or just some explainable natural phenomenon.

He deplored the mass hysteria following the "flying saucer" scare and proposed to a Chicago meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science that a nationwide "sky patrol" of astronomers be set up. Although his proposal was widely considered, nothing has been done about it.

Meanwhile the Associated Press reported crews of two B-29 planes said there was a vapor trail behind the "ball of fire" before it exploded Wednesday in the sky somewhere near northwest Kansas.

The B-29 fliers said they first saw the fireball, trailing vapor, while 10,000 feet over Limon, Colo. They estimated its location as 100 miles southeast of their position, and its altitude as "much higher" than the planes.

The fliers said they saw the ball of fire explode. "A huge multi-colored ball hung in the sky for a brief time, followed by a dense cloud," the B-29 crewmen reported.

The explosion, believed to have come from a meteor high above Oberlin, Kas., was observed in Kansas, Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado. It led to numerous reports of aircraft disasters.

Oscar Monning, secretary of the National Meteorological society, said at Fort Worth, Tex., he felt sure the fire ball was a meteor disintegrating.

The fiery object was first seen near Colorado Springs, Colo., traveling eastward at great altitude. As it exploded in the Oberlin area, windows were shattered and residents reported a red ball exploding "in a fiercely brilliant white flash."

Foreign — Eire Plans To Aid ERP With Exports

DUBLIN, EIRE (AP)—Prime Minister John A. Costello said yesterday his new five-party government would help the Marshall plan by exporting more food to Europe.

The grey-haired Dublin lawyer who Wednesday broke Eamon De Valera's 16-year-rule told reporters in an interview the change in Eire's government would not affect relations with other countries.

"But our plans for greatly increasing Irish farm production should bring even closer economic ties with Britain and the rest of the world," he said.

"I am sure Eire can increase her contributions to the Marshall plan by exporting more food, once our program gets under way."

"We have a great advantage for the efforts of the United States to share her abundant resources with the rest of the world because she wants to do as much as she can."

The new prime minister said Eire's present loose relationship with the British Commonwealth would "be serious as it stands at the moment."

"More serious matters take precedent," he said.

Report Yemenite Coup, Ruler Believed Dead

CAIRO, EGYPT (AP)—Yehia Hamid El Din, 32-year-old ruler of Yemen, three of his 16 sons, and a chief advisor are dead and a new king and government proclaimed, a dispatch from that Arabian kingdom said yesterday.

The dispatch gave few details, but Yemenite circles here expressed the belief the five had been killed in a coup d'etat as the result of one of the recurring plots among the king's sons.

A cablegram received by Dr. Muktar Abdel Latif, who has commercial dealings with Yemen, said Sayed Abdulla Bin Ahmed El Wazir, one of Yemen's religious leaders and former first minister, had been elected Imam (Islamic leader), replacing Yehia.

The message added that Emir Seif El Hak Ibrahim, one of the sons who has been opposing the old king, had been chosen head of a "constitutional government."

The capital, a walled city of about 25,000 population, is near the center of the country. The land of 75,000 square miles and about 3,500,000 population faces Eritrea across the Red sea.

Communists — Active Comintern; New York Trials Denies 1940 Comintern Split Hewitt Says Russia Still Gave Orders

Communist party continued to get instructions from the Communist International in Russia after 1940 although it had announced a break with the International in that year, a former party official said yesterday.

George Hewitt, one-time member of the Communist party national committee, made the statement in testimony at an immigration service deportation hearing for a Greek-American newspaperman.

He declared the party announced it had broken its affiliation with the international so "the American people would be allies of Russia" in the event both nations were drawn into World War II.

The instructions from the Soviet Union sometimes were brought by a man named "Eisler," Hewitt testified. He did not further identify the man but he mentioned Gerhart Eisler, described by a House committee as America's "No. 1 Communist." Eisler is now held at Ellis Island on a deportation warrant.

Hewitt also told of seeing 300 communists practicing "warfare and how to set up demonstrations and barricades" in exercises at party headquarters in New York.

The witness appeared for the government at a hearing on charges against Peter Harnisades, 44, staff writer for the Greek-American Tribune, a New York weekly publication.

Harnisades, a resident of this country for 32 years, is accused of belonging to an organization advocating overthrow of the U. S. government by force. Immigration service officials have said the organization is the Communist party.

The government rested its case against Harnisades after another self-described former Communist official, Robert Pitcoff, testified the party seeks to overthrow the government by "force and violence."

On the motion of defense counsel, Mrs. Carol King, the hearing was adjourned until March 9. She said a prospective defense witness, William Schneiderman of San Francisco, a member of the Communist party national committee, could not appear until that date.

JOSEPHINE JOHNSON
"My Country"

Arrested As Communist; Claims Is Persecuted

NEW YORK (AP)—A long-time woman Communist party member, arrested Wednesday on a deportation warrant by federal agents, asserted yesterday she was being "persecuted for my political opinions and for my long activity in the labor movement."

Mrs. Josephine Siskins Johnson, 44, former promotion manager for the recently suspended publication, New Masses, told a news conference "this is my country. I know no other country. It has been my country since I was a little girl. I was educated here."

Says U. S. Is Mark For Communist Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—George M. Dimitrov, a refugee from Reds in Bulgaria, told congress yesterday he is dead certain "American traitors" are being trained in Russia to take over the U. S. government.

"America is Communist target number one," he told a House un-American activities subcommittee.

Bulgarian Reds, Dimitrov said, have set up organizations in this country and a newspaper in Detroit. That prompted Rep. McDowell (R-Pa) to recommend that the Postmaster General "examine some of these papers that are spreading pure treason in America."

Demos Must Keep Isolationists, Reactionaries Out, Truman Says

Rent Controls Effective Until End of March

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rent controls in their present form will be extended through March 31, congress leaders indicated yesterday. A longer extension providing some increases is slated to be approved before then.

This is the schedule outlined by Republican floor managers:

1. The house will pass by Tuesday its stopgap bill extending the present law which expires Feb. 29. The rules committee cleared it for action yesterday.

2. This measure is due to be accepted by the senate before the end of next week without change. By this arrangement senate and house leaders gain added time in which to work out a compromise between their two longer-range bills.

Today the senate opens debate on its measure which would continue controls 14 months beyond Feb. 29. One of its provisions permits abandoning ceilings on so-called "luxury" houses and apartments—that is, rents of $225 or more per month.

The senate bill also would permit rent increases up to 15 percent in cases where tenants and landlords agreed on a lease running through 1949. Higher rents would be allowed landlords who could prove they were losing money.

Meanwhile the senate banking committee delayed action again on the nomination of Tigue E. Woods as federal housing expediter. Members indicated they want to wait until congress acts on rent controls so they can question him on his ideas of administering the law.

Pin Money, Phooey!

CHICAGO (AP)—Mrs. Lillian Milne, 51, opened the door of her home yesterday to a man posing as a gas meter reader who thrust a gun at her and demanded money.

She told him she only had $2.67 in the house.

Then, she told police, the man said "oh pooh" and walked away in disgust.

Omits Mention of Wallace Split, Southern Revolt in Jefferson-Jackson Day Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman lambasted "reactionaries" and "isolationists" last night before applauding Democratic diners—and omitted all mention of two spreading revolts plaguing his party managers.

Skirting delicately around the uprising among southern legislators over the Negro issue and the Wallace third party drive, Mr. Truman sounded a battle cry for "progressive liberalism."

Some southern members of congress boycotted the $100-a-plate Jefferson-Jackson Day festivities at which he spoke. And a call went out to house members from the south to meet today to organize a battle against the Truman proposals for anti-lynching, anti-poll tax, anti-segregation laws.

Mr. Truman spoke to two separate groups of diners after they had finished their terrapin soup, breast of capon and "bombe atomique" dessert.

To a gathering at the massive Hotel Statler, he talked extemporaneously.

"It is your business," he said, "as members of the greatest party in the history of the world to see that the common, everyday man learns the truth."

"And if he knows the truth he will not turn the government over to a bunch of reactionaries who are trying to take us back to 1896."

"Conditions are too grave in the world at the present time to put an isolationist in the White House. Conditions are too grave in the world at this time to put a congress in control of the purse strings of this country, a congress which does not care and does not understand what the facts are."

"Now it is up to you, the Democratic party, to see that the country goes in the right direction, in order to get world peace. There isn't a man in the United States who doesn't want an honorable peace. In order to get that peace we must make the United Nations work. We must not hamstring it and cut its throat. I honestly can't trust these reactionaries."

And then, he sped to the Mayflower hotel, where in a formal address he proposed that his party meet "head on" the election issue as he saw it.

A battle between a Democratic party of "progressive liberalism" fighting for the benefit of all and a "reactionary conservative" opposition favoring the wealthy and "privileged few."

To some observers the speech, kick-off of the Democratic campaign, was as interesting for its omissions as for what was said.

The President made no direct reference to the dissatisfied elements in his party.

He did not name Republicans who last week assailed his foreign and domestic policies in Lincoln Day speeches.

He refrained even from mentioning the Republican party by name.

The band played "That's Where the Tall Corn Grows," but the man from Iowa—Henry A. Wallace—wasn't there.

Mr. Truman went to the Mayflower hotel for his main address after dining at a Statler banquet, set up to care for an overflow audience—at $100 a plate. Diner officials called it a sell-out, with 2,900 guests at both places.

Wallace Won't Return To Ford, Manager Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Henry Wallace's political campaign manager said yesterday Sen. J. Howard McGrath, chairman of the Democratic national committee, "might as well cease his invitation to Henry Wallace to return to the Democratic party."

The third party campaign manager, C. B. Baldwin, said he referred to a broadcast last night by McGrath, adding:

"Contrary to Senator McGrath's statement, a large vote will be a progressive vote—a vote for Wallace and not a vote for Harry Truman or any presidential candidate of the bankrupt Republican party."

Department grain experts said given good weather at planting time, the corn acreage should reach, if not exceed, the department's goal of 92,120,000 acres. Last year's crop totaled only 86-million acres because of spring floods.

A bumper corn crop of 3-billion bushels or more is needed, officials said, to provide enough feed to encourage farmers to produce more meat animals. Livestock production is on the downgrade now largely because of scarce feed.

But those surveys indicate, officials said, that most farmers are going ahead with plans to match, if possible, the high wartime production.

Price prospects for this year's products were said to be more favorable than for any year in recent decades with the exception of 1947.

Production goals set by Secretary Anderson call for 356-million acres of cultivated and hay crops. This is about 9-million more than last year.

Sues Mother-in-Law for Alienation of Affections

DES MOINES (AP)—A mother-in-law was sued by her son-in-law yesterday for damages of $7,500 for alleged alienation of affections of his wife.

Doyle Bennett Archer, Los Angeles, Cal., filed the suit in district court against Mrs. Margaret Armstrong of Des Moines.

Archer, a former serviceman, charges that his mother-in-law persuaded his wife, Gloria, to leave him and take their ten-month-old child with her.

Mrs. Archer filed a suit for divorce against Archer Nov. 20. The couple was married July 18, 1946, in Des Moines and separated Oct. 23, 1947, the divorce petition said.

U. S. To Improve Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Crawford (R-Mich) said yesterday the government is making "staggering plans" to build up Alaska, especially its defenses.

Crawford gave no details, saying he could not disclose the plans until they reached a public lands subcommittee which he heads. He indicated that would be within a few weeks.

Tennis Stars Bobby Riggs, Jack Kramer to Play Here April 5th

JACK KRAMER
World's Amateur Champ

Troupe Includes Pails, Segura

Bobby Riggs and Jack Kramer, the top two tennis players in the world, will play an exhibition match in the Iowa fieldhouse April 5, Athletic Director Paul Brechler announced yesterday.

The Riggs-Kramer championship troupe, which includes two other prominent stars, Dinny Pails and Pancho Segura, began its tour in New York City Dec. 26 and is now in California.

Brechler said contracts were signed yesterday with Jack Harris, sports promoter, covering the appearance of Riggs, world's professional champion, and Kramer, world's amateur titlist.

The matches will be played on the canvas-covered basketball court in the fieldhouse, measuring 62 by 112 feet. Reserved seats, selling for $1.80, will be in the north and south folding bleachers, while general admission tickets of $1.20 will admit the holder to any of the four balconies.

A special student ticket at $1 will be available until April 3. These will be sold to students upon presentation of their ID cards.

Applications for reserved seat tickets now are being accepted, with checks made payable to the Iowa department of athletics. Tickets will be mailed as soon as they are received from the printer.

Riggs and Kramer are playing practically even in their matches to date, Kramer holding a slight edge, 16-14.

Pails, holder of the Australian crown, has a two-match lead over Segura, South American champion. Kramer and Pails hold a wide margin over Riggs and Segura in their doubles play so far.

Last year Kramer won the Wimbledon singles, Davis Cup and United States singles as well as playing on major championship doubles teams. He turned professional just before the present tour began.

Riggs captured the American amateur singles crown in 1939 and again in 1941. He won the Wimbledon singles in 1939.

Grantland Rice, famous sports columnist, has labeled the touring Kramer-Riggs net struggle as the "tennis duel of the decade."

Riggs, who weighs about 140 pounds and stands 5-foot, 6-inches tall, began his string of championships by winning the Southern California boys' tournament in 1933. Since that start he's won 95 percent of all the tournaments he has participated in.

Riggs' national titles include: U.S. clay court, three times; U.S. grass championships, twice; U.S. indoor, once; Wimbledon, once, and the U.S. professional outdoor championships, twice.

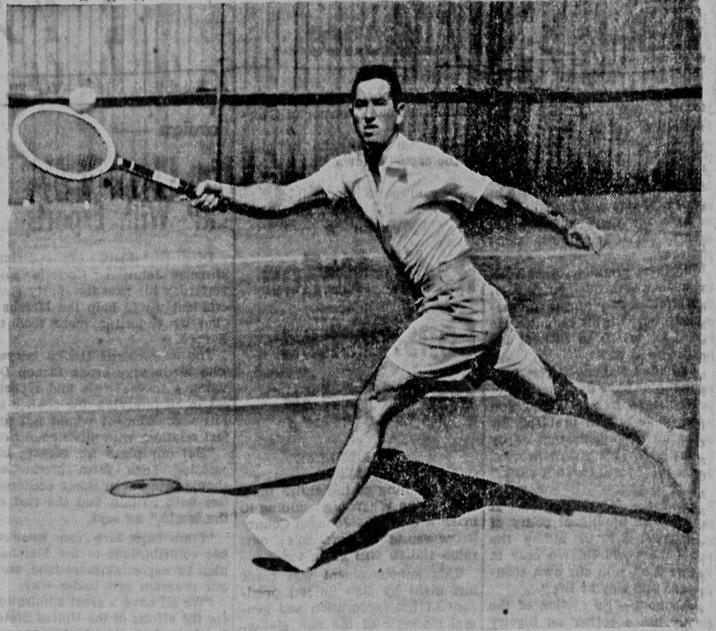

Kramer, who dwarfs Riggs with his 6-foot, 2-inch stature, has been rated by Don Budge, long-time amateur and professional star, as the greatest of the modern champions. The lanky Californian plays a slugging game combining both forehand and backhand, in bristling drives.

Little Hawks Tangle With Clinton Five

City high's Little Hawks are banking on some assistance from Dubuque to ease them into the Mississippi Valley conference crown. The Hawkslets, with a 9-2 record, must win their remaining games against Clinton tonight and against Wilson of Cedar Rapids next Friday while Dubuque is knocking off league leading Daventport, 10-1.

The River Kings, however, may give the Little Hawks a battle at Clinton tonight. Iowa City defeated Clinton, 45-26, here early in January, but the River Kings should prove tougher to beat on their own floor.

Currently, Clinton is in fifth place in the conference with a 6-5 record.

The Hawkslets' big task will be stopping the offensive efforts of Clinton's center, Holcomb. The River King star is in fourth place in individual Mississippi Valley scoring with an average of slightly more than 11 points per contest. Holcomb held Gene Hettrick, the leading scorer in the league with an 18.6 average, to three field goals here in Iowa City but fouled out in the process.

In the preliminary tilt, which will start at 6:45 p.m., the City high sophomores will meet the Clinton sophomores, currently leading the Valley loop race. Clinton won the first game, 39-29, but the City high quintet has shown considerable improvement since then.

The varsity contest is scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

The probable starting lineups:
Iowa City: Diehl, Lane, Shain, Ferguson, Hettrick, Holcomb, Dunham, Domasalla, Beals, Nixon

Riverside Irish Last For St. Pat's

St. Patrick's hardcourt season— which might prove a fascinating study in contrasts and dizzy climaxes for any avid sports researcher—catapults to an early close tonight in the snug village of Riverside.

The Irish, still stinging from a razor-thin 43-42 loss to St. Patrick's of Cedar Rapids Tuesday night, will try to ease a few seasons' woes against St. Mary's of Riverside in the finale. Game time is 8 p.m.

St. Pat's, in an earlier cage party, shellacked the Riverside Irish, 38-20, but that means little with respect to the current campaign.

Three probable regulars, Forward Roy Duffy, Vince "Hook" Dalton, pivot, and Merle Herdliska, strapping guard, end their cage careers tonight. All are seniors. Little "Gat" Grady, and Bernard "Boo" O'Connor, thin guard, round out the probable starters.

Wier Versus Cook

The two little boys of Western conference basketball, Murray Wier of Iowa and Bobby Cook of Wisconsin, provide the entertainment for local fans here Saturday night.

Last winter the 5-foot, 10-inch Cook won the Big Nine individual scoring title with 187 points. This season it is quite possible that tiny Murray of the Hawkeyes will outst the defending champion if he can outscore Big Nine Jim McIntyre of Minnesota in the last three games on the schedule.

Wier is riding along with a 22.4 average in nine conference games, two-tenths of a point below McIntyre. Cook is in the loop's fifth slot among the individual scorers with an average of 14.2 points in nine games. Ohio's Dick Schmittker and Illinois' Dike Eddleman with 17.1 and 15.9 respectively are in the third and fourth positions.

Cook works very effectively with the Badger offense which is set up for his dead one-hand push shots. The Wisconsin quintet uses a double-screen in and around the free throw circle to try and shake its high-scorer free.

The job of stopping Cook will fall to Iowa Guard Bob Schulz, who held the star without a basket in 28 minutes of play earlier in the season. Schulz has been suffering from a slight cold but is expected to be ready for the game tomorrow.

Life Photographer Here

The Badger-Hawkeye clash is really bringing the royalty to Iowa City. Even Life magazine plans coverage of the game, sending a photographer here to take pictures of the crowd and action shots of the contest. It is the first time Life has had a photographer at an Iowa game.

In addition to five radio stations, which equals the greatest number of stations to broadcast from the fieldhouse this season, the largest delegation of newspapermen of the home campaign will be on hand.

Also planning to view the game is Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Western conference commissioner.

One-Sidedness—What makes Minnesota and Iowa two very tough basketball teams?

A quick check of the Big Nine individual scoring figures released yesterday gives one answer. The Gophers have Jim McIntyre, and nobody else in the first 25 scorers, while Iowa's sole figure among the elite is Murray Wier. Red Metcalfe, former Hawkeye center, still rates the ninth position in conference statistics with a 12.7 average but his departure leaves the Hawks with only one leading scorer.

Here are the teams with the number of players in the first 25—Ohio State, two; Illinois, three; Wisconsin, three; Northwestern, three; Michigan, three; Purdue, four, and Indiana, four. Even with four top scorers the Hoosiers rate no better than eighth in the league standings.

A Request—Again we're asking Joe Fan to hold himself in check at the game tomorrow night. The less boos the better.

Released From Indiana Pact

DETROIT (AP)—Turning from a career of more than 20 years as a college football coach, Alvin N. (Bo) McMillin, colorful gray-haired Indiana university mentor, moved into the professional ranks yesterday by accepting a long term contract as head coach and general manager of the Detroit Lions.

Although neither McMillin nor D. Lyle Fife, president of the Detroit club of the National football league, would specify terms of Bo's pro contract it was believed to be for seven years at a salary of $30,000 a year.

Both McMillin and Fife made it clear that Bo's acceptance of the pro post hinged completely around his release by Indiana university's board of trustees from his contract there as athletic director and head grid coach. McMillin's IU contract, a 10-year pact when he signed it in 1945, still has seven years to run.

While McMillin said that he had approached some members of the board and had assurance they would not stand in the way of his coming here, he explained that his next move would be to telephone the trustees and ask formally for his release.

Prompt action was expected by the board, freeing him to go to work immediately with the Lions.

McMillin, who has been Indiana's grid strategist since 1934, said he had hopes of bringing along "a man or two" from his Hoosier coaching staff to become his assistants with the Lions. "Just who they would be I can't say right now," Bo said. "I will expect to have an announcement concerning that in several days."

The Eyes Have It

Ramblers Play School For Deaf

Iowa City cage fans get a chance to see something different in the way of basketball tonight.

St. Mary's Ramblers play host to the famous Iowa School for the Deaf quintet from Council Bluffs.

The Ramblers defeated the Council Bluffs team Dec. 19, 42-37, on the latter's floor. However, the Ramblers led by only three points until just before the final gun when they dropped in a bucket to ice the contest.

Since that game the deaf team has improved steadily, and is now one of the powerhouses in southwestern Iowa.

There has been quite a bit of speculation locally as to how the deaf boys control their play. Being deaf, they cannot hear the referee's whistle or the timekeeper's gong.

After seeing them in action in December, Rambler coach Frank Suplee said he still wasn't certain how they did it. "I thought it might be from watching the other team," he said, "but sometimes they get the signal before our team does. I think they must feel the vibrations," he added.

Don't be a bit surprised at the sign language that goes on among the players and to and from the bench. In this game such coaching goes on continually. However, the opposing coach can also direct play from the sidelines. Game time is set for 8:15 p. m. in the junior high gym.

Wier Fourth in U. S. Scoring

NEW YORK (AP)—Jim McIntyre of Minnesota retained the No. 1 spot among the nation's major college basketball scorers last week with an average of 22.3, but the top point maker of all college scorers was still Big Nate DeLong of Little River Falls (Wis.) State.

The latest figures from the National Collegiate Athletic bureau, released yesterday, for games through Feb. 14 show De Long in front by a wide margin. In 17 games, the tall pivot ace has swished through 468 points for a 27.5 average.

McIntyre's margin over his nearest rival for the major leadership was a scant .005. The gophers' center dunked in 334 points in 15 games for an average of exactly 22.266. This compares with 22.261 for Norm Hankins of Lawrence (Mich.) Tech, whom McIntyre ousted from first place the previous week.

Tony Lavelli, of Yale, retained third place, at 21.4. Murray Wier, Iowa, took over fourth at 20.6 as Frank Kudelka, of St. Mary's (Calif.) fell to fifth at 20.0. Klueh of Indiana State was ninth with 17.6.

Stranahan Leads

HOUSTON, TEX. (AP)—Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, continued his below gold yesterday to maintain a favorite's role after the first round of match play of the thirtieth annual Houston Invitational golf tournament.

Southwest Iowa Has Good Teams But None Great

Roosevelt, Abraham Lincoln, Shenandoah, Atlantic Missouri Valley
Appear Tops as Preps Open Tourney Play

By AL SCHMAHL
Assistant Sports Editor

(First in a series of four stories on Iowa high school basketball)

Beginning next week 928 high schools in the state will begin their journeys along the tournament trail. Their final objective will be winning the state tournament here at Iowa City late in March.

Of the 678 class B schools, six will find their way to the tournament. Five of the 210 class A schools and five of the 40 class AA schools will complete the final field.

The A and B schools will open tournament play in the sectional meets next week, while their bigger foes will not be in action until the week following in the district tournament. Sub-state meets and the state tournament will follow.

In the southwest quarter of the state a large number of good teams can be found, but none seem strong enough to work their way to the championship.

According to the latest Associated Press survey, Roosevelt of Des Moines, Abraham Lincoln of Council Bluffs, Shenandoah, Atlantic and Missouri Valley are rated the top five in that order.

The only top-notch AA schools in this area are Roosevelt, AL and Thomas Jefferson of Council Bluffs. However, the Des Moines school, as well as the other AA tives in the Des Moines area, will undoubtedly fall in the central section which will divide the state into five parts.

The Lynx of Abraham Lincoln, sparked by their 6-foot, 5-inch center, Hughes Wilcox, who is averaging over 15 points a game, hold wins over East and Central of Sioux City and Thomas Jefferson.

TJ has done well outside of the southwest area, but as yet it hasn't met any top opposition in that sector, with the exception of AL, who defeated the Yellow Jackets twice.

Competition among the A schools should provide the real thrills in this section. Shenandoah has two defeats at this time, one to Creston and the other to Atlantic. Although Atlantic has another strong team, it does not appear equal to its state tournament five of last year.

Missouri Valley has a tall, rugged five. It started like a house afire behind the great play of Bus Steward but has dropped three recent games to Dunlap, Onawa and Boys Town.

Among the smaller schools (Oakland, Wiota, Fontanelle, Lenox and Underwood seem to have the edge. Oakland went through its first 20 games with only one defeat. Wiota has only one loss, an upset victory by Richland Township.

Fontanelle's only defeat was a one-point setback at the hands of Wiota. Underwood took its first 15 starts, but has since lost three contests, while Lenox has two defeats.

That's the situation in the southwest. Although any of the schools mentioned might pull surprises, it appears that the state champion won't come from this area.

All coaches guiding teams in the United States Hockey League once were connected with the American Hockey League.

Invite Iowans To Art Show

Invitations to attend the Metropolitan art show were sent to 2,200 Iowans yesterday by Dr. Earl E. Harper, director of the school of fine arts.

Civilization Discovered at Last; We Had It Before

By ARDATH YOUNG
A local afternoon newspaper recently carried a National Editorial association story about a college course in American civilization, claimed the "first of its kind" in any U. S. college.

"I have been teaching the same course here for at least 15 years," Prof. H. J. Thornton, of the history department, said recently. "I call the course 'Social, Economic and Cultural History of the American People,' however."

Dr. Chauncey S. Boucher, former president, chancellor and dean, respectively, at the Universities of Nebraska, West Virginia and Chicago, instructs the course at Knox college. Though it is a required course, it is conducted on a highly informal basis, involving "no textbooks, no examinations, no homework."

"The only formality in my course," Thornton said, "is the examination the university requires and I'd be willing to do away with that."

Thornton's course is elective. When he began teaching it, some 20 students were in the class. Now 150 to 200 students ordinarily enroll.

On a larger scale, the college of liberal arts offers a major in American civilization under the direction of Prof. Alexander Kern of the English department.

"The American people are looking to their own traditions to find solutions for their pressing problems," Kern pointed out. The object of American civilization as a major field, he indicated, is to "show how European ideas, arts and institutions were transmitted to our country, adapted, enriched, and emerged as unique contributions to world civilization, that affect foreign nations."

Truman Needs a Liberal--Arnall

Intimates Willingness To Accept Nomination For Vice-President

By BILL McBRIDE
"This is a land of opportunity and anything can happen."

That was former Governor of Georgia Ellis Arnall's reply last night to the question of his possible candidacy for the democratic nomination for vice-president.

Arnall said he was not a candidate for "any political office" but would accept the nomination if offered.

The one-time governor of the peach state said, "Truman is going to need a liberal on the ticket with him this year if he expects to win the election."

Arnall and Eugene Talmadge Jr. contested the governorship last year when Talmadge Sr. died just before taking the oath of office.

Arnall made it plain, however, that the Georgia supreme court said he was technically the governor but that he did not want the office as a "technicality."

In discussing his home state politics, the stocky little southerner said, "Young Talmadge will try for governor again and will probably run a good race. There will always be Talmadges and Bilbos until we get rid of them through education and economic opportunity."

The recent victory of Leo Isaacson, Wallace-supported labor party nominee in the Bronx, N. Y., congressional election, did not strike Arnall as being significant of a Democratic party break-up. He said, however, that he considers Wallace a "real danger" to Truman and the party.

The Atlanta lawyer said neither President Truman's 10-point civil liberties program nor Wallace's third party could split the Democratic party into north-south factions. He said the south could not break from the party because "it has no place to go."

Discrediting the humor of a southern split with the President, Arnall declared, "The so-called revolt of the solid south is mostly newspaper talk."

Arnall said he feels Mr. Truman's civil liberties program is an "election-year issue."

"The south is making progress in solving the racial situation. Why make an issue of it now? It can only create friction among political leaders of the north and south," he said.

FORMER GOVERNOR ELLIS ARNALL of Georgia relaxed on the piano bench at the Delta Chi fraternity house last night before speaking at the Iowa Union. Unlike another Democrat in the news, Arnall does not play the piano.

Augustus Sore So February Suffered In Month Shuffle

February has one less day than it once had due to the insult of a man.

The Romans named the months. July was named after Julius Caesar and was given 31 days. August originally had 30 days, so the story goes. It was named in honor of Augustus Caesar, grand nephew of the former.

Augustus felt piqued because July had one more day than August, so the Roman senate took one day from February and added it to August, thus placating the gentleman.

Other months got their names thus: January was named in honor of the Roman God Janus. February, a holiday, was the origin of February.

Mars, the God of War, was honored by having the month of March named after him. April comes from the Roman word "aperire", which means "to open" and refers to the beginning of spring.

May was named after the Roman goddess, Maia. June was named after the Junii, a powerful Roman family.

September comes from "septem", meaning seven. October comes from "octo", meaning eight. November comes from "novem", meaning nine. December comes from "decem", meaning ten.

To Sing With Tex Beneke

City High Girl Beneke Guest

Irene Davis, 17-year-old City high student, will be featured as the U.S. airforce's "high school sweetheart of the week" on a coast-to-coast broadcast with Tex Beneke's band tonight at the all university dance.

The broadcast, a half-hour program sponsored by the U.S. airforce, will be aired at 9:30 over Mutual network. It is a weekly show in which the Beneke band and a high school girl singer are featured.

During the half-hour radio show, Miss Davis will sing one number, "Golden Earrings."

Miss Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Van M. Davis, 1908 F street, was picked by Jack Roche, producer of the show, in an audition yesterday afternoon at a WSUI studio.

Six other Iowa City high school singers participated in the auditions. They were picked for the try-outs by their music instructors.

Entrants To Register For Speech Contest

Undergraduates desiring to enter the annual Hancher Oratorical contest should register with Prof. Orville Hitchcock in room 13, Schaeffer hall, as soon as possible, the speech department announced recently.

The winner of the contest, which is sponsored by President Virgil M. Hancher, will receive a $25 award, and will represent the university at the Northern Oratorical league contest at the University of Wisconsin, May 7.

According to Hitchcock, the speech should be approximately 1,500 words in length. The topic can be about any significant subject. Quoted material must not exceed 100 words, and the speech must be the original work of the entrant.

A double-spaced typewritten copy of the speech will be due March 13. A preliminary contest will be held on March 18, in room 221-A, Schaeffer hall, and the final contest will be held April 6, in Old Capitol.

To Attend Meeting

Helen Poulsen, instructor in the women's physical education department, will attend a meeting of the Iowa Section of American Camping association in Ames this weekend. Miss Poulsen is chairman of the leadership training committee.

State Replies to a Title Suit Over a Block of SUI Campus

The State of Iowa filed an answer yesterday in Johnson county district court to a suit questioning its title to a block of the SUI campus.

The answer denied Mrs. Celia Carson's petition and questions her legal ability to bring such an action. It also questioned the jurisdiction of the court and contended that the cause of action stated by Mrs. Carson is barred by the statute of limitations.

The state contended that the original ordinance and the state statute of acceptance were lawfully enacted. It also re-asserted the state's rights to "exclusive use, occupation and possession of said property."

The property in question is the park, fronting on Iowa avenue, now occupied by East hall and the Electrical Engineering building.

Mrs. Carson, 325 E. College street, filed the suit last March. Her petition attacked the legality of an Iowa City ordinance passed in 1890 in which SUI was granted use of the property. Her petition also attacked a state statute passed by the general assembly in 1890 accepting the grant from the city of Iowa City.

The property has been used as a part of the campus since 1890. The state said loss of the property would "disrupt the permanent campus and building plan of the university."

Part of the campus and buildings would be isolated from the rest of the campus, rendering them useless for university purposes, the state report said.

With the present demand on educational facilities and the building shortage, the report continued, many students would be deprived of educational opportunities.

The state's reply was filed by Special Counsel Arthur O. Leff, on behalf of Attorney General Robert L. Larson.

T. A. Brown Funeral Tomorrow Afternoon

Funeral services for Thomas A. Brown, 73, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the Hohenschuh mortuary, with the Rev. Ralph M. Krueger, pastor of the First Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mr. Brown died at his home, 141 Grand avenue court, Wednesday at 6:30 p. m. following a long illness.

During his life he was a pioneer motion picture showman, and owner and operator of the Strand theater in Iowa City for many years.

Born August 19, 1874, in Renwick, Iowa, he was the son of Lola and Charles Brown. He came to Iowa City in 1903 and has lived here since.

His first wife, Martina Westergaard, preceded him in death in 1944.

On October 17, 1945, he married Margaret Jensen.

Mr. Brown had the longest record in show business of any man in Iowa. He started "Browns Nickeldom," the first regular theater in Iowa City.

In 1917, the present Strand theater was opened by Mr. Brown. Surviving are his wife; one sister, Mrs. William Pool, Algona; one grandson, Thomas Brown, Iowa City, and one niece and two nephews, also of Iowa City.

To Remodel Apartments
A building permit was issued by the city engineer to R. E. Carvut-tunics to authorizing him to remodel two apartments at 316 E. Burlington street.

The estimated cost was set at $500.

Public Librarian 'Has Many Children,' But Fortunately She Knows What To Do

By PAT WOLFE
The old woman in the shoe fable has nothing on Mrs. Norman Carney.

As children's librarian at Iowa City's public library, smiling, affable Mrs. Carney is the center of attraction for some 30 or 40 youngsters every Saturday afternoon.

Pig-tailed, snow-suited little girls and blue-jeaned boys with "hitch" hair cuts, were at the library during a recent session of the children's story hour. They sat in a semi-circle of squeaky chairs and gave Mrs. Carney attention that any university professor would envy.

Mrs. Carney read a portion of "Pinocchio." Although wide-eyed and quiet, many of the children were way ahead of the story.

"I heard that over the radio," popped one little readhead. And, "I know what happens next. We got the whole book at home," giggled another girl.

A little fellow in a striped "T" shirt provided the comic touch. He caused a few hand-hidden smiles when he stood up in the middle of the group and balanced a book on his head.

Two latecomers, a boy and his younger sister, shuffled into the room in heavy overshoes. Like any big brother, the boy pulled off his sister's hood and coat, and propped her up on a chair.

His sister said loudly, "We're going on a bus home." Although called the children's hour, the program lasts only 30 minutes because, as Mrs. Carney said, "some of the younger children can't sit still any longer than that."

Books to be read are chosen by Mrs. Carney, who said that the Dr. Seuss stories are very popular with the youngsters.

Mrs. Carney, whose husband Dene is a university junior, taught at the university pre-schools before she accepted the library position. She has been children's librarian since September.

The program, which is open to all children, begins at 2:30 p. m. every Saturday.

Two Art Department Members Sell Prints To Library of Congress

Two prints by Prof. Mauricio Lasansky and Malcolm Myers of the art department have been purchased by the library of congress recently, the art department announced yesterday.

The prints, "Pieta," by Lasansky and "Man and World," by Myers, were exhibited last month in New York by the society of American etchers, engravers, illustrators and woodcutters.

"Still Space," by Helen Mae Carter of the art department and "Study," by Ray French, graduate student, were also exhibited in the collection of 100 selected prints.

Street Lighting—Big Business in Iowa City

(Third of a Series)

What is it worth to you to have a street light on your corner? It costs almost $17,000 a year for Iowa City to light its streets. That sum is set aside in the annual budget for street and alley illumination.

For that payment the city gets light every night "from 30 minutes before sunset until 30 minutes before sunrise." The contract also calls for replacement of ordinary breakage and for all globes to be washed four times a calendar year.

When the contract was made in 1940 the city was lighted, by 563 lights not including the downtown ornamental stands which numbered 72. By provisions of the contract the light company has installed more lights as they were needed so that latest count brings the total up to 627.

Fewest in number but most expensive to install and operate are the amber sodium vapor lights on dangerous intersections and the highway. They put out 10,000 lumens of light and cost $46 each a year to operate.

About 40 percent of the lights used on the streets are the 2,500 lumen dome radial wave type. They cost $22.50 each a year to operate. Rated at 4,000 lumens the enclosed type street lights number about the same as the 2,500 lumen kind. Each costs $30 a year to keep burning.

Radial-wave lights with output of 1000 lumens make up the rest of the lighting and cost the city $15.00 each a year. The business district lighting which is on from 30 minutes before sunset until midnight is the cheapest. The city gets it free, for being such a good customer on the rest of the lights.

That is not the whole story. The university powers and maintains the ornamental standards on the campus and also powers the lights across the bridges. There is some overlapping of lighting facilities and power supply in the operation of the utilities company and the university because of the location of the campus within the city itself.

The nearly $17,000 appropriated by the city for street lighting is taken from the consolidated fund of about $65,000 for purposes ranging from police protection to snow removal.

But the greatest value obtained from good street-lighting cannot be measured in lumens of light per tax dollar.

According to the National Safety Council poorly-illuminated sections of a city foster accidents both to pedestrians and motorists.

Well-lighted streets and thoroughfares offer security and peace of mind to people who walk and people who drive.

Challenge for Campus Organizations

The duty of voting has been and voting brings up the question of residence—which is required. This has been a sore point in years past. It would seem that married students have a right to register here, and there is every indication that they will be allowed to do so.

Part of the reason—aside from pure indifference—is the failure to register. This is required by Iowa law in cities over 10,000 and in some smaller cities. If you don't register—in those cities that require it—you can't vote when the primary and general elections roll around.

So the time to think about complying with registration laws is NOW.

Many university students will be denied the opportunity to vote unless they register—either here in Iowa City or in their home towns.

The question of registration

You're Sure You Don't Need Any Help, Doc?

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT A Staggering Question

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

Joseph C. Harsch comes up with a worry in the Christian Science Monitor. What, he asks, would happen to the Marshall plan if Russia were suddenly to become conciliatory and offer to reach accord with the U. S.?

It is sad to think that the coming we are ill prepared to meet it. We are, in fact, prepared for everything in our foreign policy, except for peace to break out.

The threat of peace, so to speak, would have a shattering effect on our thinking, and would, oddly enough, produce a period of commotion and dismay.

An accord between Russia and the United States, says Harsch, might reduce support for the Marshall plan as no longer necessary, thus raising the theoretical possibility that we might leave western Europe high and dry.

It is sad to think that the coming of peace could possibly be bad for anybody on earth, or that the recovery of western Europe depends on continued ill feeling between the two greatest powers.

Yet all of this is at least schematically possible, and it reminds one of the distorted perspectives in the old expressionistic movies, like "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari." We used to see those pictures; now we live in them.

Earlier in this space I took the same problem up from another angle. I tried to show how the G. O. P. seems to be evolving a new party line, to the effect that the Marshall plan is a great improvement on those bad, old days when we used to meet with the Russians and try to work out agreements with them.

Dewey for example is glad the Marshall plan has come along to replace the era of agreements, and now Harsch reports there are those who fear that a new era of agreements might come along, to replace the Marshall plan.

But, actually, the Marshall plan is not better than a formal accord with Russia, nor are the two things properly comparable. We need the Marshall plan, whether or not we reach agreement with Russia. And we need an accord with Russia, whether or not the Marshall plan succeeds.

The Marshall plan is a victim of its own advertising, of the brassy, raucous and hostile build-up it has been given.

Originally advanced as a new approach to peace, as an alternate method of reaching peace, it has now come, in some quarters, to be considered as even better than a formal peace. The substitute is now believed to be finer than that which it replaces.

hope that the Marshall plan might, for a time, keep the peace, we find ourselves arrived at the strange fear that peace might come along and upset the Marshall plan.

Harsch himself recognizes that our relations with Russia are not the determining factor as regards our need for helping western Europe, but he fears that if Russia should turn sweet our extreme right would be happy to swing against the Marshall plan, for reasons of economy.

I don't think that would happen. I think the extreme right would be against an accord, if it dared show its head; I think it would howl that the Marshall plan was being violated, that wood was impudently coming back to replace plastic.

The fact that the extreme right doesn't even support the Marshall plan fully would present no serious difficulties against its taking this position; it can pull off several contortions like this before breakfast any day.

The real problem is to make peace, and also to rebuild western Europe; the extreme right who feels that these two aims are in opposition, or that they can be swapped, like two nickels for a dime, only shows that he doesn't have much understanding of peace or of western Europe, to begin with.

Housewives' Joan of Arc

Chicago Woman on Wrong Track in Her Battle With Inflation

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One theory of history holds that emergencies produce the heroes to meet them.

Thus a muddy street in England created the legendary deed of courtesy—Walter Raleigh spreading his cloak before the dainty feet of Queen Elizabeth.

Walt acted quickly and coolly to meet this emergency but lost his head later in another one.

Out of the Ruins From the Crimean war came Florence Nightingale and the development of modern nursing.

From the ruins of the 1919 baseball scandal rose a new figure—big Babe Ruth, who helped rescue the national pastime.

Holland was reported saved once by a small boy who plugged a hole in the dike with his thumb.

History is full of such examples. Out in Chicago the present emergency—the high cost of living—may have produced a new Joan of Arc for budget-bothered housewives.

Passive Rebellion This lady is 22-year-old Mrs. Ruth Berbes, who last week launched a one-woman drive against present food prices by going on a "high cost of living fast."

Her passive rebellion began after she was charged 26 cents for a quarter pound of butter.

Mrs. Berbes immediately went on a diet consisting of five slices of bread a day and two glasses of milk. In the first few days she lost three pounds. She said other housewives were taking up the idea, and neighborhood storekeepers were giving her frowns.

Her program holds many interesting possibilities. If it becomes popular American women will have to put even more padding in their clothing to retain the "new look," and that will probably cost more money than they saved by dieting.

Bachelors Will Benefit Stingy bachelors will benefit most. They will show up at their girls' houses with a loaf of bread and a bottle of milk and say: "Let's stay here and enjoy a nice meal at home, honey. We'll fight this inflation together."

Personally I think Mrs. Berbes is overlooking an even better way to reduce her grocery bills. She works at a drugstore soda fountain. I did this for two years during high school and found my worries about food costs were at an end.

Drug Store Hero When I took the job I weighed anemic 135 pounds and could hardly muscle up a gallon jug of chocolate syrup.

Technically we were supposed to pay for any delicacies we consumed. But with me the public always came first.

From time to time I found it necessary to taste a spoon full of ice cream to see that its flavor and consistency were proper for the customers. I also regularly checked the marshmallow, the fudge sauce and the crushed pineapple.

After two years the store manager found that my wholehearted devotion to the public welfare was costing him about one gallon of ice cream out of every five. So he moved me over to the tobacco counter.

Bulgaria's Enemies Get a Special Kind Of 'Labor Education'

By WES GALLAGHER

SOFIA, BULGARIA (AP)—Without trial or public hearing, any Bulgarian considered "dangerous to state order and security" can be "forcibly placed in special labor educational communities."

In western terms these "communities" would be called concentration camps. They are one of two types of camps through which the Communist regime of Georgi Dimitrov can dispose of its enemies without public trial.

Lesser offenders go to "compulsory labor camps." These are straight labor groups where the work is long and the food poor, but adequate. The term is usually six months.

The law published in the official gazette says this forced labor is for the benefit of those forced to do it since it is aimed at "developing in them a love for public work and eliminating their bad habits."

How many persons are detained in these camps is impossible for a foreigner to learn. When American correspondents asked to visit one of the "labor education communities" the official government interpreter flatly refused even to ask permission.

According to reliable information reaching diplomatic sources there are at least ten of these camps. Complete sources gave this picture of the Kutsian camp, which operates in conjunction with the main Bulgarian coal fields:

At one time there were 780 Agrarian (Peasant) party members in the camp, including 48 deputies of the national assembly. This was the strongest opposition party to the Communist regime until it was outlawed and its leader, Nikola Petkov, executed.

One hundred prisoners slept in a room the size of a village school on wooden bunks, three to a tier and so narrow they had to lie on their sides. Each had one blanket.

Militia guards aroused them at 4:30 a.m. At 4:45 they had a meal of black bread and tea. At 5:15 they started work in the coal mines. At 2 p.m. they quit for a meal of raw cabbage and garlic.

From 2:30 to 6 p.m. they policed the camp and listened to lectures on communism. At 6 p.m. they had a meal of black bread and soup and at 7 they were confined to barracks.

Failure to work hard enough was punished by confinement in dark, wet underground cells in which it was impossible to stand upright. Those released, over-varying periods had to sign papers that they would support the Communist fatherland front and fight the Anglo-Saxons.

Although in the peace treaty Bulgaria signed guarantees of a free press, opposition papers have been suppressed under a law so broadly written it can be interpreted to cover any point.

The cabinet can order a paper suppressed permanently. Lesser punishments may be inflicted by the minister of information. There are no provisions for open trial or hearing. The law concludes: "Dispositions issued under this article are subject to no appeal whatsoever."

THESE DAYS—

The Planners Planned Too Much

By George E. Sokolsky (King Feature Syndicate)

Lord Linlithgow, chairman of the Midland bank, the largest private bank in England, has this to say:

"The first step towards solving a problem is to see it clearly, to assess its magnitude and to visualize its implications, and here a marked advance can be recorded; for hardly anyone now dissents from the view that the post-war programme of reconstruction and improvement had outrun the nation's resources: human, material and financial."

"The seemingly almost miraculous achievements of war had led perhaps to over-estimation of the effort that could be sustained when the extremity of peril had been passed. Possibly, moreover, the assistance extended by the United States and Canada—essential to any plan of full economic recovery—had made the task appear less gigantic than in fact it was, leaving regard to the inroads made by the war upon our physical capacity for production and our external financial assets."

In a word, the planners planned too much. The professors and the experts set targets for themselves, targets which may or may not be realities, targets which have not even a theoretical basis.

They were mystical targets based on faith and hope but propounded by materialistic socialists. They always look good in the blueprint stage, but when it came to balancing income and cost, the

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Russian Charges Partly True, But . . .

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Moscow's charge that Britain and France wanted to start a war against Russia in 1940 is absurd, but the accompanying statement that allied military men were making plans for war in the Caucasus is probably true.

It should be. Russia was allied with Germany at the time, was contributing to the Nazi war effort, and Foreign Commissar Molotov was making all sorts of inflammatory statements.

The Russians were fighting an aggressive war against Finland and no one knew how it might be extended. Molotov accused the allies of "embarking on war" against the Soviet Union by aiding Finland. That was the way the totalitarians of those days talked when they were trying to justify some pending outbreak.

"Soviet-German relations were firmly proved in the Polish campaign," Molotov added. He bragged about the growing Red army.

Russia and Germany were working toward an agreement that Russia could take the Dardanelles away from Turkey.

Communist activities in Paris became so blatant that the French government sent the Soviet ambassador packing.

Molotov was saying that there was no hope of better relations with Britain, and that the Soviet-German pact had "assured Germany a calm feeling in the east."

He began attacking U. S. "imperialism" in those days, and when France fell he said it was because "unlike Germany, leading circles in France treated too lightly the role and weight of the Soviet Union in European affairs."

He was constantly attacking Turkey and Iran orally, and the world would not have been surprised.

Two Lose Coins As Pop Machine Wins
 Mrs. Edith M. Frederickson, custodian of parking meter records in Mayor Preston Koser's office, placed a coin in the pop machine Wednesday afternoon but no bottle of pop came out. Neither did her nickel.
 She called the mayor. He placed another coin in the slot. After waiting a minute, Koser called a fireman to help him. The fireman pounded on the machine and something was heard dropping inside. But still neither the pop nor the money was returned.
 The mayor and Mrs. Frederickson got paid back though. The fireman said the man who fills the machine left a few coins for such an emergency.

Dick Spencer Leads

A Life Crammed With Excitement

— And Many Hobbies —

By SAM GOTTESFELD

Dick Spencer has packed more excitement into his 27 years than a Readers Digest condensation of an adventure novel can cram into 27 pages.

He looks like a baby-faced liberal arts freshman, but he's an SUI graduate and managing editor of the university information service. This semester he is teaching a new course in magazine production to acquaint students with the problems of magazine editing.

His present Iowa City life is by far the most peaceful he has had since he was 11 years old.

At that tender age he rode his first bucking bronco in a Texas rodeo. Since then he has hung on to tossing horses and steers in 50 cowboy shows and he's a trick rope expert.

But that's not all. He made 22 parachute leaps as a member of a parachute combat team in the invasions of Italy, France, Belgium and Germany. He was wounded three times and became a first lieutenant before he was discharged.

He is also a fine cartoonist and writer, having worked in Look magazine's promotion department and contributed to Stars and Stripes.

"Cartooning," Spencer says with a warm grin, "is just my avocation."

His avocation, however, keeps him busy buying ink. Besides drawing for university publications, Spencer contributes to numerous other magazines including the Blue Book, Boy's Life, Sports Affair, The Aircraft Dealer and countless house organs and trade magazines.

He prefers most of all to cartoon for the The Cattleman, a large southwestern magazine. That's the magazine that featured 12 of his cartoons in the same issue. They've never rejected a Spencer cartoon.

During the war, Spencer was the Bill Maulden of the 517th Parachute Combat team in Europe. His series of panel cartoons in Stars and Stripes kept the men in the foxholes chuckling.

Spencer also designed his combat team's insignia—a parachuting buzzard. Over the side of the boat that brought the outfit home, hung an 80-foot banner bearing Spencer's insignia. He also wears a silver ring on which parachutes the same buzzard.

One of the cartoon projects during the war that Spencer takes most pride in is the historical pamphlet he helped make about his outfit. They got the paper through the black market and had French "commie" printers set it type.

"They did lousy line cuts on my cartoons," he remembered.

Even by wrinkling his brow, Spencer couldn't recall when he had his first cartoon published.

"Must've been 9 or 10 years ago when I was in high school," he decided.

Born in Texas, Spencer has ridden broncos and steers in the Lone Star State, Iowa and Mexico. His father, former art editor of Collier's, gave him free reign in almost everything he undertook because, says Spencer, "My father tried everything himself, except parachute jumping."

But after Spencer broke his leg dismounting from a lurching bull last fall in an exhibition near Des Moines, his wife Jo Anne has refrused to let him ride bulls again.

She still kids the former paratrooper for breaking a leg by "falling off a cow." She'll let him ride bucking broncos though.

Spencer pointed out that getting off a bull while he's still moving is the most dangerous aspect of the sport. It's one of the requirements on which bull riding is judged.

A bronco buster, on the other hand, is escorted from a lurching stallion by assistants on horse-back.

Riders make points by changing the position of their legs while on the back of the steer or bronco according to recognized procedure. For example, when the rider places his feet on the bull's neck, "scratching him on the neck," in cowboy lingo, he is hanging on by the sheer strength of his hands. That earns points.

When Spencer appeared in a Mexico exhibition as the only steer rider, the animal headed straight for a "cuadra," one of four shield-like wooden shelters behind which bull fighters duck for protection when things get rough. The steer ran smack into the obstruction and sent Spencer through the air. The crowd in the (sol) section of the grandstand booed and flung liquor bottles at him like Brooklyn bleachers do to umpires.

Spencer never traveled with a rodeo circuit, but volunteered to ride at rodeos which happened to stop where he was. He averaged about $10 for a 10-second ride.

Leaving his spurs-and-chaps life, Spencer described his paratroop experience. He left SUI to enter the army in Dec., 1942.

"Jumping out of a plane is a much bigger thrill than bronco busting," he said, "but I didn't like the walking afterwards."

Spencer saw plenty of action in the European theater, once losing 22 of 28 men in a raid on pill boxes in Italy.

In 1944, he sent three dispatches from France to The Daily Iowan through regular mail channels, surprising veteran newsmen who had trouble getting their copy to the states.

The Daily Iowan market basket INDEX is not an added total of the prices listed above. That is, the INDEX figure takes into consideration both the costs of the items listed above and the amount of each item a student family of three uses in one week. The amount of each item the family of three uses in one week was arrived at in a survey conducted in cooperation with the university bureau of business research.

housewife who wants to do some shopping can find them for 49 cents at one store to 65 cents at others.

Soap put in its two-cents worth and joined the fight against inflation by dropping from 40 to 38 cents. Several stores were selling large boxes of soap flakes as low as 36 cents.

Number two cans of sliced peaches were down to 33 cents, a two-cent decline.

Not all price changes on the grocery list were downward, of 1945, Spencer worked for Look magazine and in the summer of 1946 became the editor of three Steinell publications in Des Moines. He joined the university staff late last summer.

As a student here until he entered the army in Dec., 1942, Spencer was a reporter and staff artist for The Daily Iowan, an editor of Frivol, a high diver in the Dolphin shows, intramural wrestler and a varsity cheer leader.

Married in July, 1943, Spencer and his wife have a three year old daughter.

One thing is certain, unassuming Spencer has a lot to look back on. Now if people will only be convinced he isn't a freshman ...

though. Four items, sugar, potatoes, lard and cheese, served to check the index fall.

Two-pound boxes of cheese hit $1.22, four cents above last week while five-pound sacks of cane sugar were up two cents, selling for 52 cents.

Lard, striking rock bottom at 28 cents a week ago, began an upward climb, rising one-cent, which grocers believe will continue.

Idaho potatoes increased to 79 cents, a one-cent rise.

Coffee prices have gone up in some stores although the average price remained the same. "Raw coffee beans went up several weeks ago," said one manager.

Shortenings, which have been absent from shelves for some time, returned this week in one or two stores.

Kleeneex and napkins were plentiful in practically all stores but toilet tissue was seen in only one. Wholesalers say "scalpers" have cornered the market on toilet tissue and refuse to sell except at high prices.

Extend 'Sing' Deadline

The deadline for University Sing applications has been extended to a 3:30 p.m. Monday, according to Mary Frances Dahl, chairman. Applications must be left at the reception desk, office of student affairs.

Temperatures Fall Throughout All Iowa

The weather man turned the other cheek yesterday.

After five days of thaw and a high of 44 degrees above zero at 6:30 a.m. yesterday, the thermometer had tobogganed to 18 at 6 p.m. The weather bureau forecast even colder weather for today.

Accompanying the drop in temperature were gusts of wind ranging up to 50 miles an hour. At 11:30 a.m. the blasts averaged 40 miles an hour.

Elsewhere in Iowa the thermometer told the same story. The greatest temperature drop was reported at Mason City, where the readings slid downward 42 degrees.

Strong northwest winds prevailed throughout the state with the strongest gusts, 70 miles an hour, at Sioux City. Low temperatures today are expected to be about 10 below in the northwest to 5 above in the southeast. High will range from 8 above in the northwest to 18 in the southeast.
