Hawks Trounce Wisconsin

Wier Gets 28 in 62-40 Win; Iowa In 2nd Behind Michigan

By BUCK TURNBULL
 Sports Editor

The Iowa basketball team had a little dessert last night. Peaches and cream with a little sugar thrown in.

The Hawks utterly humiliated Wisconsin's once-proud Badgers, 62-40, before a roaring capacity crowd at the fieldhouse. And in the process little Murray Wier broke the all-time Iowa Big Nine scoring record by burning 28 points through the nets.

Wier also took a commanding lead in his individual scoring duel with Minnesota's Jim McIntyre, who was held to eight points by Michigan last night. The Wolverines topped the Gophers, 56-45.

Wier has totaled 230 points in Big Nine competition to date, compared to McIntyre's 211. It is the first time Murray has taken the top spot since the early stages of the season. Both players have two games remaining on their respective schedules, one between each other here in Iowa City next Saturday.

Wier's 230 points breaks Dick Ives' Iowa conference record of 208 markers set in 1944.

Last night's victory gives the Hawkeyes undisputed possession of second place in the Big Nine with seven wins and three losses. Michigan leads the pack with seven wins and two losses.

Maggie Helps Out
 For the first time in the last four ball games Fireball Murray Wier had a point-scoring buddy. He was Floyd Magnusson, displaying amazing accuracy with his one-handed push shots.

Magnusson had his best night of the season at the expense of the Badgers, rimming 17 points. He tallied 7 of 13 points for the evening, good for a .538 shooting percentage.

Hawks Start Slow
 Wisconsin stayed in the ball game for the first five minutes while the Hawks fell behind at three different times.

The Badgers led, 1-0, 3-1 and 5-3 before a long push shot by Wier tied the count at 5-all. With three and a half minutes of the first half gone, Magnusson cashed in on a free throw. With the score at 6-5, Iowa, the Badgers never again took the lead.

But Iowa's scoring for the majority of the opening period was a two-sided affair — Magnusson and Wier. In fact, the duo roared along together for 18 minutes and 5 seconds of the game with nobody else in the Iowa lineup hitting a field goal.

Finally, Don Hays, continuing to improve by leaps and bounds with every minute of action, poked in a push shot from the corner. The Hawks led, 31-18.

After Larry Pokrzywinski scored a short push shot for the Badgers, back came the fleet Wier to score on a one-handed push shot driving down the free throw slot with five seconds left in the half.

The teams left for the intermission with Hawk leading, 33-21.

Foster Befuddled
 During the Badgers' dilemma, Coach Bud Foster tried everything except inserting himself in the lineup.

Foster opened the game with Bob Cook and Bob Mader at forwards, Ed Mills at center and Jimmy Moore and Doug Rogers at guards. This didn't work.

He continued to change his quintet for the rest of the game, shifting his players in every conceivable way. Don Rehfeldt, who relieved Mills at the pivot post, took scoring honors for Wisconsin with 14 points.

Bobby Cook, Badger high-scorer, was held to seven tallies by the alert Hawkeye shifting man-to-man defense. He scored two field goals, both on push shots from the side of the court.

The second half was all Iowa as the Hawks began to pour through the baskets while the Badgers looked unable to cope with the situation.

Wier, who had scored 18 points in the first period, pushed in 10 more in the final canto while Hays and Magnusson continued with their first half scoring. Hays finished the game with nine points.

tempts. During the first period Magnusson hit 5 of 7 shots for Hawks hit 23 field goals in 72 at .728.

Wisconsin tallied 14 baskets in 62 tries for .226. They shot .212 in the first half.

The official attendance for the game was announced as 16,349. This must have been a conservative estimate with our guess coming a little closer to 17,000.

Fans were packed in every nook and crevice imaginable. One eager spectator found the ventilator at the east of the fieldhouse a comfortable vantage point, while others jammed the balcony which runs back into the armory. Still more people watched the proceedings from the top of an ice cream truck.

The officials called 22 fouls on both teams with the fans finding fault with every Iowa infringement of the rules. However, they were no worse than Wisconsin's crowd at the first Hawk-Badger clash at Madison earlier in the season.

It took a lot of guts to give the speech Herb Wilkinson, former Iowa all-American, made just prior to the start of the contest. It was directed at the fans with the hope that there would be the minimum amount of booing. But Herb took the assignment and did a good job.

"We don't have to play follow the leaders (of other Big Nine crowds) and act like they have," Herb stated over the loudspeakers.

"Why not?" yelled some fan from a far corner of the fieldhouse.

Herb was on the spot but made the perfect retort.

"That's what I thought you'd say," Herb remarked. "But anyway," he went on, "silence is golden sometimes and the Wisconsin players may not like that silence."

The Badgers ended up by not liking the entire situation which took place.

Form Progressive Party
 LANSING, MICH. (AP)—Presidential backers of Henry A. Wallace gave birth to the Progressive Party in Michigan yesterday, promising to put his name on November's ballot.

Nearly 1,000 delegates from virtually every section of the state organized the new third party.

Union Rejects Wallace
 DES MOINES (AP)—Henry A. Wallace's third party was rejected unanimously by the Des Moines industrial union council at its February meeting, Harry Booth, president, said yesterday.

Members of the local CIO council voted to follow the national CIO policy of using "full, undivided strength" in support of the union's domestic and international program.

Back Palestine Decision: Taft

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) called last night for United Nations enforcement of the decision to partition Palestine.

The Republican presidential aspirant, in a carefully worded statement, expressed belief that no nation would defy the UN if it "shows that it intends to see that its decisions in the world are enforced."

Taft made no direct personal commitment on the hot issues of sending American troops or arms to Palestine.

But he said there can be no new American policy toward the establishment of a Jewish homeland in Palestine "which does not square with our commitment and the decision taken by the United Nations less than three months ago."

He said the question before the country is whether "we shall support the United Nations and urge them to send a United Nations force to maintain order while the (partition) plan is set up."

The alternative, he said, will be civil war in Palestine.

"The shipment of arms from the United States should be controlled and regulated in accordance with the policy so developed with the United Nations commission; and embargoes, if any, should be imposed only if approved by the commission," he added.

Taft's statement came as government officials here generally discounted reports of a new move for a compromise of the Arab-Jewish talk over the Holy Land.

It preceded an expected report on the American position to the UN security council next week by Warren R. Austin, United States representative.

Says UN Success Hinges on Palestine

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said yesterday "the whole chance for world peace and the future of the United Nations rests with success of the Palestine partition plan."

Mrs. Roosevelt made the statement at a foreign policy discussion at the first annual convention of Americans for Democratic Action.

Mrs. Roosevelt said flatly "the United States must help implement the UN's Palestine decision. There is no other course."

A U.S. delegate to the UN, Mrs. Roosevelt also urged congressional passage of universal military training "with qualifications."

"We must show Russia that we have strength," she said. "We must show Russia that we mean what we say and that we will back up all our proposals. The danger in UMT is that we may become a military nation. We must watch ourselves so no harm can come of it."

Flatly Rejects Russ Protest of Meeting

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States yesterday rejected a Russian protest against a forthcoming American-British-French meeting to organize the economy of Western Germany and blamed Russian policies for making the step necessary.

Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett sent a note to Soviet Ambassador Alexander Panyushkin declaring that "the failure of the Soviet government to observe the principles of economic unity" in Germany "impels the other three powers" to organize the German economy in the interests of both German and European recovery.

Lovett told Panyushkin flatly that Russia's protest against the three power meeting which opens in London tomorrow "can only be construed as an effort to shift the responsibility incurred by the Soviet government itself for the present division of Germany."

Stassen telegraphed Dewey, a rival for the Republican presidential nomination, after entering his name in the Oregon presidential primary. Dewey already had entered there where 12 convention delegates will be elected May 21.

Dewey and Stassen both have delegate slates entered, too, in the first primary in the nation—March 9 in New Hampshire.

Stassen's office here made public his telegram to Dewey. It said national radio networks have indicated a willingness to "provide ample time for such a series of discussions" between the two.

Stassen offered to debate at eight subjects with Dewey: Taft-Hartley law and labor relations, price and production levels, development and regulation of atomic energy, strengthening the United Nations, policies toward Russia and communism federal tax program, reclamation and hydro-electric development, and future educational financing.

Taylor To Run on Wallace Slate: PM
 NEW YORK (AP)—The newspaper PM said yesterday it was authoritatively informed that Sen. Glen H. Taylor (D-Ida.) would be Henry Wallace's running mate this fall.

The newspaper said Taylor would announce his decision to seek the vice presidency on the third-party ticket in a radio address Monday from Washington, D. C.

Taylor in Washington, however, would only say that he will announce his decision in the Monday broadcast.

In the meantime, he told a reporter, he has told no one of his decision, and will not until he goes on the air at 5:15 p. m. central standard time over the CBS network.

He sat in the defendant's dock in Nuremberg, Germany, yesterday. Sperrle and 12 other high-ranking Germans are being tried on charges of crimes against peace and humanity by a U.S. tribunal. Army Abandons Hunt for 1636 Missing Soldiers
 WASHINGTON (AP)—The jungles of India and Burma will hide forever the story of what happened to 1,636 American soldiers in World War II.

The army said yesterday the service has suspended further search for the bodies of flyers and other American military personnel after more than two years of intensive probing in the wild hinterland.

Many of the 1,636 men who "failed to arrive at destinations" were air force crews believed to have crashed on inaccessible mountain peaks or in jungles seldom if ever traveled by humans.

Stassen Invites Debate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Harold E. Stassen yesterday invited Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York to join with him in a discussion of the "vital issues of American and Republican policy."

Stassen telegraphed Dewey, a rival for the Republican presidential nomination, after entering his name in the Oregon presidential primary. Dewey already had entered there where 12 convention delegates will be elected May 21.

Dewey and Stassen both have delegate slates entered, too, in the first primary in the nation—March 9 in New Hampshire.

Wolverines Dump Gophers, Hold Lead

Suprunowicz Scores 16 in 56-45 Win

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Michigan kept its Big Nine basketball conference lead by defeating Minnesota 56 to 45 last night. It was the Wolverines seventh conference win.

The Wolverines took the lead in the first few minutes and established a zone defense so tight the Gophers had to make futile scoring attempts from long range. Gopher star Jim McIntyre, center, left play early in the first half and again in the second as the Gophers were unable to penetrate the Michigan defense.

Michigan meanwhile enjoyed a comfortable point margins all along the way. Late in the Irish Meet Kalona In Tourney Opener

To St. Patrick's scrappy Irish goes the distinction of being Iowa City's first cage quintet to pry off the lid on state sectional tournament play. The Shamrocks tee off against Kalona, host school, at 7:30 p. m. Monday night in the Class B opener.

One other local representative, University high, hits Williamsburg in the tournament's lone Class A game at 8:45 p. m. Saturday night. The Irish, paired in the upper bracket with Oxford, Cosgrove and Kalona, face rough going in their quest for the sectional diadem. Wellman, big gun in the Ke-Wash loop, and the host Kubs offer chief trouble.

Father Pacha, encouraged by St. Pat's recent added reserve depth, is counting on team alertness and marksmanship to counter-balance Kalona's home floor edge.

The Kubs have a couple of scoring stars in Forward Leland "Dutch" Shaver and Don Kallaus, center. But the Irish boast a pair of their own in Bob "Gat" Grady, fleet front-line man, and Guard Bernard "Boo" O'Connor, long-shot artist.

Win Meet on Final Match

By JOHN MCINTOSH
Iowa's wrestlers saw victory slip away in the last match yesterday afternoon, as Illinois came from behind to score a 19-18 triumph.

It was the sixteenth straight win for the Illini over Iowa, and marked the seventh time the Hawkeyes have gone into the Illinois meet with a perfect record only to go down in defeat.

The turning point of the meet, however, was much before the final bout. Don Rodenborn had a decision practically in his pocket in the 136-pound division. He was leading, 11-9, with only 38 seconds remaining. Then victory slipped from his grasp as Richard Loewe pinned his shoulders to the mat to give the Illini their most important points.

Rometo Macias, Joe Scarpello and Bob Geigel maintained their undefeated records. However, Macias was the only one of the three to register a fall. Ray Carlson was the other Hawkeye to pin his opponent, turning the trick in 3 minutes, 45 seconds. Macias had little trouble in throwing Guy Stone in the fast time of 1 minute 43 seconds.

Probably the closest match of the afternoon was in the 121-pound class. Vern McCoy of the Hawkeyes and Dean Ryan of the Illini battled on even terms throughout their bout, with the referee calling the match a draw.

Dick Woodard lost his first match of the year to Chuck Gottfried of the Illini, dropping a 5-0 decision.

Captain Joe Scarpello had little trouble decisioning Gil Gaumer of the Illini, but couldn't get an all important fall. Gaumer used his extremely long arms to keep Scarpello from flipping him over, but didn't come close to giving the Hawk captain any trouble.

Tone Receives Clerk's Post With Rutledge

Philip Tone, Park Ridge, Ill., mid-year graduate of the University of Iowa college of law, has been appointed law clerk and research assistant for Justice Wiley Rutledge of the U.S. supreme court.

Dean Mason Ladd of the university college of law announced the appointment yesterday.

Tone will assume his duties in September after graduate study in the Yale university law school this spring and summer under a special fellowship. He was admitted to the Iowa bar Friday.

Tone's research work with Rutledge will include examination of cases and location of material for the justice to use in reaching decisions, Ladd said.

Rutledge served as dean of the college of law from 1935 to 1939. "He has shown a keen interest in the University of Iowa college of law," Ladd said.

"It is the practice of supreme court justices to choose for their law clerks outstanding graduates from leading law schools," Ladd explained. Tone is the fourth law student selected for this position.

While a student here, Tone served as editor of the Iowa Law review and was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, men's honorary fraternity, and Phi Delta Phi, professional law fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Tone left yesterday for New Haven, Conn., where Tone will begin his studies at Yale.

It's Always the Man Who Pays!

Dons Dress To Pay Bet

By JOHN ELLIOTT

H. S. Ivie is a man who knows all about the "new look," he has it. Furthermore, he isn't likely to bet against eight women—at least not all at once.

Because he lost his bet, Ivie had to walk around town yesterday in a woman's house-dress, size 46. Ivie is manager of the J. C. Penney store in Iowa City. Early last week, he bet eight ladies in the dry-goods section they couldn't sell 500 dresses in 10 days.

The ladies just smiled and asked the terms. The terms were: a red rose every day for each lady who sold her quota, a box of candy if the goal was reached, and an orchid to the one who had sold the most at the end of the period.

If he lost, Ivie also agreed to wear one of the dresses around the block.

There was no disagreement. Last Wednesday the contest began. On Friday, with one-third of the time gone, the 500th dress was sold.

Yesterday, eight a-las-ladies were wearing red roses and eating candy. Ivie was wearing an astonished look and a new print dress.

There were some who thought Ivie's courage might be weakening just before he left the store with his hilarious escort.

"Want to call the bet off girls? I'll go get the candy," he said hopefully. The Russians never had such a veto.

"We had a lot of fun doing it," Mrs. Lillian Fisher said, speaking for her friends.

Will Ivie bet again? "Well, maybe," he grinned. "But it'll be at least a thousand dresses for a quota next time."

The women who out-guessed Mr. Ivie were: Mrs. Lois McElroy, 519 S. Van Buren; Mrs. Imelda Goss, route 1; Mrs. Betty Balhorn, 321 E. College; Mrs. Sara Deuel, 416 Riverdale; Mrs. Hannah Reddeck, Berkeley Hotel, Miss Laverne Robertson, 521 S. Johnston; Mrs. Fisher, 401 Kimball road, and Mrs. Barbara Wagner, 1701 Morningside drive.

Chooses 3 Women In Seals' Tryouts

Three university women were chosen for membership in the WRA Seals swimming club after second semester tryouts held in the women's gymnasium this week.

New members of the club are Katherine Lynch, A1, and Connie Jewett, A1, both of Des Moines, and Betty Buck, A1, Cedar Rapids.

The new members were selected for their speed and form in swimming and diving.

Women Voters Finishing Poll Of Opinions on Tree-Cutting

By RAY EASTMAN

Results of the local League of Women Voters' questionnaire on the recent tree-cutting activities of the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co will be presented to the city planning commission early next week, Mrs. Owen T. Edwards announced yesterday.

Mrs. Edwards, chairman of the league's government in action committee which is conducting the survey, said questioning of property-owners and tabulation of results should be completed this week-end.

The zoning and planning commission will call a special meeting when the league is ready to discuss Iowa City's tree-cutting question, said L.C. Crawford, acting chairman of the commission yesterday.

Crawford indicated that the tree-cutting proposition was discussed at some length in the commission's meeting Friday night. "There seems to be considerable uncertainty of jurisdiction concerning the trees in the street parkways and whether or not there are ordinances covering the situation," he said. "However, we agreed, and the mayor concurred, to hear any and all reports on the matter."

He pointed out that the commission can act only in an advisory capacity in making recommendations to the city council regarding the tree-cutting situation.

Results of the league's questionnaire were to have been laid before the commission at its regular meeting Friday night but the report had not yet been completed.

Robert H. Lind, district manager of the gas and electric company, said Friday he would reserve comment until the results of the questionnaire are known.

Mayor Preston Koser said Thursday that sentiment on the local tree-cutting issue "is about a 50-50 proposition."

He said none of the telephone calls to his office objecting to the tree-cutting had come from affected property-owners. Most of the objectors, he said, charged destruction of the city's beauty.

Koser said others favored the cutting of some trees because (1) shade from the trees hindered growth of grass and shrubs; (2) some of the larger trees' roots had raised and buckled sidewalks, and (3) soft-wood trees such as box-elders rotted and broke during storms, causing extensive damage.

Questioning of homeowners in the north-city area Thursday and Friday supported Koser's divided-opinion estimate.

Residents on the east side of N. Dodge street bemoaned the loss of shade trees which formerly shielded their homes from the afternoon sun.

Many householders said they were unaware that failure to give their consent could halt the tree-cutting.

"We didn't know we had any choice," said Mrs. Clifford N. Bauserman, 618 N. Dodge street. The Bausermans lost the lone shade tree on the west side of their home.

A housewife at 328 N. Dodge street said, "My husband didn't want to have our tree taken out. He talked to somebody from the power company. I don't know what they said, but the tree's gone now."

A white-haired lady at 630 N. Dodge street successfully resisted two attempts to fell her tree. She said, "We've lived here 27 years and would certainly miss its shade." She compromised by allowing the power company to trim a large center branch from the tree.

She preferred to remain unnamed, but added, "If they should cut it down, maybe I'll have something to say you can put my name to."

Edna Kadera, 416 N. Dodge street, said she would "put the trees back up if I could. I talked to somebody at the light company and was given to understand I had no say over what the company could do with trees in the parking.

Some residents with lots facing the west side of N. Governor street heartily favored the removal of trees.

Concerning a tree removed from the corner of her lot, Mrs. A. M. Hotz, 421 N. Governor street, said, "We wanted the tree taken down. It was old and the roots were blocking the sewer."

90-year-old Mrs. Helen Vitosh, 830 E. Bloomington street, thought she should have had at least a week's notice before cutting operations began. She also complained that workers offered no alternative between cutting the tree down or trimming it.

Mrs. C. P. Bream, 105 N. Governor street, had a "hazardous" tree removed at her request by the light company last fall. It was broken twice before, once by sleet and once by wind, and the one remaining branch threatened both the house and power lines. Company workers this week took time out to saw the remains of the tree into usable firewood.

Residents of 16 of the 31 homes in the affected area were questioned Thursday and Friday. Three residents in the area rent their homes and were not concerned with permission to cut trees. Six had no trees in their parkings. Of five residences whose occupants were not home, three had trees still standing.

All felled trees on N. Dodge street have been cleared away. Only sawdust, small twigs and freshly-cut stumps remain. On N. Governor street, branches and tree-trunks are neatly stacked, awaiting similar removal.

A light company official said Friday the tree-stumps will be removed and the holes filled with earth "as soon as the frost is out of the ground."

Injunction Issued Against W. B. Keil

Steven J. Dinning, university student from Des Moines, obtained an injunction yesterday restraining W.B. Keil, owner of the Commonwealth apartments, 340 Ellis avenue, from removing the furniture from his apartment.

The injunction was issued by Judge Harold D. Evans in the Johnson county district court.

In his petition, Dinning said he is paying $88 per month rent for a furnished apartment, and the OPA ceiling is $65 per month for unfurnished apartments.

Dinning said that when he asked for an OPA ruling on the ceiling rent for the furnished apartment, Keil threatened to remove the furniture.

Pianist Alec Templeton To Present Concert At Union March 13

Alec Templeton, blind concert pianist, will appear at the Iowa Union Mar. 13, Frank Burge, assistant director of the Union, announced yesterday.

Templeton will play two concerts; a matinee at 2:30 p.m. and an evening performance at 8 o'clock.

The first half of each concert will be devoted to popular classics. Templeton will apply a humorous technique to the second half of each program, allowing one request from the audience.

Tickets will be available about one week before the concert. Students will be able to obtain tickets by presenting identification cards at the Union desk. General admission tickets will cost $1.50 per person.

Stolen Car Recovered

Iowa City police recovered a stolen car Friday afternoon belonging to John Ward, Hills. The car was reported stolen earlier in the week to Sheriff A. J. (Pat) Murphy.

Police found the car in the 300 block on N. Dubuque street.

To Hold Interviews For Summer Jobs

Students from the Westminster foundation will be interviewed Wednesday, for summer service projects.

Margaret Crofoot of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education will conduct personal interviews with students interested in large city settlement, small church and migrant work.

This work will be done throughout the country by students from colleges and universities. A training course will be given to the students before they do field work.

Miss Crofoot, assistant director of the department of young people's work, will meet all day Wednesday with students at the foundation.

City, County Offices To Close Tomorrow

Officials and employees in the city hall, county courthouse and postoffice get an extra holiday tomorrow.

City and county offices will observe Washington's birthday by closing tomorrow, because the holiday falls today.

The city council, which would ordinarily meet tomorrow night, will meet Tuesday night in the city council chambers.

Windows will not be open at the postoffice, although mail will be picked up at collection boxes.

Group Plans Calendar, Use Evaluation Blanks

The YWCA public affairs committee is sending evaluation blanks to members to be used in planning next year's program, according to Virginia Anderson, Harcourt, Iowa, committee chairman.

Members are asked to comment on the group's activities and to return the blanks as soon as possible, YWCA president, Jean Dawson, Des Moines, said yesterday.

Dealers Say Fuel Oil Will Last Until March

By PAUL LUCKINBILL and HARLEY ASHBAUGH

Fuel oil dealers in Iowa City now have enough oil to carry their customers through February and into March, according to a survey made yesterday by The Daily Iowan.

By limiting deliveries, the oil men said oil supplies will last through the winter.

Additional barracks units in Finkbine stadium, equipped with oil burners, which use 12,000 gallons a week, have increased the demand for fuel oil in Iowa City, dealers say.

The change from coal to oil burners in homes has also burdened the already diminished supply.

Dealers, by trading oil with each other, have been able to supply every one with fuel in emergencies. They are not taking on new customers, however. Most dealers are allotted fuel oil in proportion to last year's sales and they make deliveries on the same basis.

"Shopper buyers are in trouble because they have no allotment," another agent explained. "Those who have regular sources for purchasing fuel oil receive periodical shipments."

Some dealers in Cedar Rapids, he indicated, are buying black market oil and charging as high as 20 cents a gallon.

Fuel oil here averages 15 cents a gallon. The agent said he was buying his supply any place he could get it but was not "touching black market stuff."

The federal government's cutting of oil and gasoline exports will not have any effect upon the local situation, most local dealers agreed. "It is but a drop in the bucket," one man asserted.

Another agent disagreed. "The embargo will enable us to buy more oil later on, but it will have no immediate effect on the situation," he said.

Total savings of gas and oil to American consumers through Thursday, resulting from the embargo, was 598,500 barrels.

One dealer pointed out that when ice breakers cut through the ice on the Mississippi river, permitting oil barges to reach Davenport, "fuel will be more plentiful."

Each of these barges carry about two-million gallons of oil, he said. "Last week's record high temperatures saved fuel oil users approximately five gallons a day," estimated one bulk station manager. This resulted in an estimated saving of 10,000 gallons of fuel oil a day per 2,000 users.

W. H. Yakish, supervisor of married students housing for the university, said each of the 612 barracks units have been saving three gallons of fuel oil a day since the buildings were insulated four weeks ago.

Dealers indicated that people with oil heating units can save by several methods.

"We raised the efficiency of one oil burner from 52 percent to 74 percent," explained one man, "simply by making a few adjustments."

He added that owners of oil furnaces and burners should have them checked periodically by experienced service men. "Some people think that as long as their furnace runs, it's all right."

By turning the thermostat down to 70 degrees from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m., you can save "10 to 15 percent of your fuel," emphasized another bulk agent.

"You can pull the shades down at night in an insulated house and save a lot," he declared.

Firemen Find No Fire

Firemen were called at 1:15 p.m. yesterday to put out a grass fire on Mrs. George Koser's vacant lot south of her home at 230 Gulfview.

The blaze, started by sparks from burning trash, was extinguished by the time the fire truck arrived, Mrs. Koser said.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A woman cashier, trapped in a basement washroom, burned to death yesterday as a $600,000 fire destroyed a five-story office building in the heart of the city's "Golden Triangle."

Seeking Relatives, German Asks Aid

City Clerk George J. Dohrer is ready to act as a postman if he can locate Frederika Hinrichs or one of her relatives.

Dohrer received a letter Wednesday mailed from the British zone of Germany and addressed to the Iowa City town clerk. The writer, Berta Genscher, is attempting to locate relatives in Iowa and asked Dohrer to deliver an enclosed letter to Mrs. Hinrichs.

The request, translated by Gerry Schroder, G. Iowa City, reads:

"I would like to ask you most politely to send the enclosed letter to my relative Frederika Hinrichs, nee Schuchard, or her family. Their address is not known to me, but a long time ago they lived there (in Iowa City) and their home was there.

"I am in great distress, and it is only for this reason that I turn to you with this request.

"In the hope that this request will not put you to any trouble, I thank you in advance for your help and send you my greetings."

The letter was signed Berta Genscher, Reichenstrasse 31, Glueckstadt, Elbe (24), British Zone, Germany.

Mrs. Hinrichs, or a member of her family, can call for the letter in the city clerk's office.

Highlanders Dance At Game Half Time

Ten Scottish Highlanders, directed by William Adamson, performed two dances between halves of the Wisconsin-Iowa game last night. The program was sponsored by the Tailfeathers pep club.

Dancing the Irish Jig were Mary Liz Gillen, Chicago, and Barbara Ginter, Marshalltown.

The Scottish sword dance was performed by Jean Breckenridge, Boston; Patricia Malloy and Mildred Pell, both of Marshalltown; Jeanne Wing, Rockwell City; Joanna Hurst, Leon; Jane Pauls, Washington; LaVonne Mersch, Masonville, and Helen Nissen, Walnut.

Tailfeathers club members in charge of the entertainment were Roy Geiselman, Villa Park, Ill., chairman; Ann Miller, Sioux City, and Retha Santi, Madrid.

IC's Milk Report Should Be Published

Did you use milk on your breakfast food this morning? On your way to work, did you have oil put in your car? If you're like most milk drinkers and car drivers, chances are you know more about the oil you put in your car than you do about the milk you drink.

You know your car runs a lot better when you pour in the proper grade and quality of oil. But, how many of us can say how "good" the milk we drink actually is according to test. There is no published milk inspector's report in Iowa City.

Most cities have an ordinance which sets the requirements for butterfat and bacteria count in milk. So does Iowa City. Most ordinances on this subject read that milk must have at least three percent butterfat and a maximum bacteria count of 50,000. So does Iowa City's. A number of cities have an ordinance which requires the monthly milk inspector's report to be published. IOWA CITY DOES NOT.

You say, "What do I care as long as I know the milk is being checked and is meeting the standards of the milk inspector?" But, consider the local inspection law for a minute. It reads that if a dairy's milk ranks lower than the requirements for a couple of inspections, it can still jump to the minimum requirements of the law by making the bacteria count better than average the next two inspections.

A dairy can be selling below standard milk and still not meet the required standard, because the law says a dairy can't be stopped from selling milk as long as the average of the last four consecutive inspections are as high as required.

The last milk inspector's monthly report given to the city council showed the dairies serving Iowa City had a variance of from 26,000 to 53,000 in bacteria count. That is all the report showed, because the council doesn't require its report to list dairies separately.

Even so, at least one dairy stood above the maximum bacteria count by 3,000. The public is entitled to know which dairy is not meeting the standards.

If the reports were published for each dairy, how they meet the standards of the law and rank with other dairies, it would be an incentive for dairies to put out better milk; it would put milk quality, as well as production, on a competitive basis; it would let the public know the quality of each dairy's milk.

Challenging the Old Guard

Henry Kaiser's latest difficulties, with getting more stock sold isn't the first time the vigorous newcomer in the industrial field has run up against the opposition of entrenched groups.

He had a hard time getting Willow Run from the government after the end of the war. He was dragged before a congressional committee investigating his record-breaking production of ships on the west coast.

The 'inner circle' is supposed to have tried to stop his original issuance of stock. They tried delaying tactics before the securities and exchange to prevent SEC approval of the stock issuance.

Russia's Actions Violate UN Principles

Soviet Russia has finally climaxed its long period of irreconcilability with a direct violation of the United Nations charter, leading to a revival of speculation as to how long the organization can permit this flouting of its authority.

Since the Russians set themselves up as the sole judges of when the United Nations can do anything, their lead has been followed by more and more members. Yugoslavia has been violating the charter right along with its refusal to cooperate with the Balkan commission, and the Arab states are in armed revolt against the Palestine decision.

Paragraph five of article two of the charter says specifically that "All members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes..." "Article six says "A member which has persistently violated the principles contained in the present charter may be expelled..."

Well, the whole principle of the charter is summed up in four words of paragraph 3, article 1: "To achieve international cooperation..."

Russia has been in violation of that principle almost from the beginning, she committed an indirect charter violation by failure to appoint a delegate to the trusteeship council, and now she has directly refused to permit the Korean commission to carry out the duties with which it was charged.

The situation has revived discussion of the possibility that in order to do anything, the UN may have to be reorganized and the Russian bloc excluded. That wouldn't be a United Nations any more. It would inevitably take on the color of an anti-Russian bloc.

But since there is no likelihood of its being able to do anything within the Russian sphere now, it might at least be enabled to go ahead with its business elsewhere.

DEATH DAYS?

'Bed-Ridden' Boyle Ponders His Past

Says Act of Living 'A Lot of Trouble;' Wouldn't Do It Over.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—Too many years ago today (Saturday) in a big old wooden house in Michigan avenue in Kansas City an interesting thing happened to me.

I was born. I didn't get out of bed that day, and I don't think I will today either. What good is an anniversary if you don't try to keep the old atmosphere?

Why not just sprawl with a pillow under my neck and let the past roll by? It's as good a way as any to spend a birthday.

Living sure is a lot of trouble. Takes up all a man's time. Take a simple little thing like disease. I've run through colic, chicken pox, measles, bronchitis, strep throat and puppy love.

Or take accidents. No sooner do you start like a man than begins chipping away at mother's little masterpiece. A personal index of misadventures and missing parts: I've fallen off bobsleds, tree limbs, street cars, fences, horses, chairs, desks, tables, boxcars and a number of water wagons.

A schoolteacher and a cow kicking a goat. I have been poked by a mole, trampled by a pig, backed by a goose, kissed on both cheeks by a liberated Frenchman, scratched by three cats and spat upon by an old Nazi woman. I have been bitten by four dogs, a jealous lady friend in kindergarten, a field mouse, a pet squirrel—and many, many times by an elderly man called remorse.

I have been bowled over by a brunette and run over by a hit-and-run scoter and a bicycle, a romantic couple on ice skates, a speeding U. S. army motorcycle in Paris and a slow milkwagon in Greenwich village.

In sports, I have been hit in the head with a horseshoe—the horse wasn't wearing it, luckily—and cracked across the face with a baseball bat. I also sprained both ankles up to the knees, broke one elbow, one jaw, one tooth, and the only nose I ever had. I also dislocated one hip. How many letters in athletics do you think I won? None. I couldn't even move in on the checkers team.

I arrived too late to join the "lost generation" and too early for the one which is the hope of tomorrow. Just going around in blind circles. It snowed the day I was born and outside my window now there is still snow on the ground.

When I got out of college, I landed right in the middle of the biggest depression in history—and they weren't hiring young men who knew nothing except that you shouldn't use a preposition to end a sentence with.

I hadn't learned to play marbles well when the first world war ended, and when the second one closed I still didn't know any better than to bet $25 against a lieutenant who held three aces.

Here I am at 37, looking more and more like a balloon after every meal. And I'm getting bald so fast that when I ask the barber for a hair trim he says: "both of 'em?"

"Wouldn't you like to go back and live your life all over again," asks my wife.

Nope. Not me. I'm going to lie here all day and make plans for second childhood. It ought to be lots more fun.

And I don't know a better place to begin it than where I started the first one—lying in bed.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Revolt Against Smugness

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The day after Henry Wallace's candidate won the special congressional election in the Bronx, I was buttonholed at least four times by horror-stricken gentlemen who wanted me to tell them at once, and without any nonsense, whether America was going Communist.

Several looked as if they were ready to take off for Venezuela to flee what (it was plain to see) they regarded as revolution, revolution falling upon the Bronx.

Around Town And Campus

By RAY HENRY AND RICK TIMMINS

Glenn Cocking told this at a Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting the other night. He was going home one noon not long ago and noticed a school sign was not up near one of the city schools.

When he got home, he called the police and asked them about the sign. He said the police told him they hadn't put up the sign because it was slippery and they knew the cars wouldn't stop. They did put up the sign a little later he said.

A Cedar Rapids man, John L. Wagner, must have set a new record Friday in Iowa City when he roared his car through five stop signs. A little later police clocked him driving 75 miles per hour.

The engineers have yet to find the Blarney stone buried two years ago. Last year during Mecca week, the slide rule mechanics probed endlessly for the stone buried by the senior engineers students the year before, but to no avail. They contacted one of the grads in Denver for further information, but he was no help either.

This is the second time the stone has been lost for a long period of time. It was "discovered" in 1939 after being lost for 17 years.

Sixteen-year-old Ronnie Wright of Cedar Rapids brought his model airplane here Feb. 8 to fly with some of the Iowa City kids. But, he went home without it.

Seems that while they were flying the models, Ronnie's plane got hung on a high light wire. They couldn't get it down that day so they left it.

Before Ronnie could retrieve the plane, someone beat him to it. Ronnie's still looking for the model he spent out-of-school hours and Saturday nights to earn enough money to buy and to build.

The university military department will return the plane to Ronnie if the person who found it will take it to the university armory.

Even suave Tex Beneke gets confused once in awhile. He was introduced to the Hawkeye Queen with the remark "this is the queen you picked." He answered, "Oh, did I?"

Book Review

By JIM BECKER
The Abuse of Learning by Frederick Lilje. Macmillan, $2.75. Available at the Bookshop.

An important, if indirect, contribution to the body of criticism aimed at the American educational system is made by Frederick Lilje in this study of the decline of German liberal thought and education.

Little effect—or significance—is lost because Lilje is content to allow the reader to draw his own parallels between reasons for the German catastrophe and the problems facing our educational system today.

His warning is unmistakable. His book seems to stem as much from the negative worry and fear for our system as from the positive drives to increase man's fund of knowledge and to interpret the past in such a way as to increase our awareness of forces very much in the present.

Despite the hatred of this University of California professor for the weaknesses that caused the German debacle, he writes, not "... to condemn, but to understand." The book realizes the aim. Lilje, the historian and educator, finds weaknesses in German education in the past are important because they made possible that subjugation of rationality and of human values that reached fulfillment in the Nazi regime.

"Nazism as merely the result of a temporary economic and political crisis would not have been taken so seriously in Germany," Lilje says, "had it not been for the failures of German education."

To this degree, German educators and philosophers were responsible for the final calamity. Our educators will be similarly responsible should our educational system contribute to a national break-down.

"Actually there (in Germany) is potentially here," Lilje maintains. The parallels he draws between the two systems are frightening.

In tracing trends in German education, Lilje demonstrates that by the time the Nazi historian, Alfred Rosenberg, produced his myth-history of western civilization in 1930, the groundwork, the brief, already had been prepared by men of the previous two centuries.

Rich as German culture was in its traditions of humanism (of Goethe and Humboldt), in its background of idealism (Fichte) and in the works of the supreme defenders of rationalism (Weber and Scheler), that culture was unable, in the last analysis, to resist the onslaught of reaction and the fascist mythology.

Liberal education fought a losing battle in Germany, says Lilje, despite the men who recognized the crucial problem of education in modern technical civilization: How to prevent the separation of technical power from moral responsibility.

For the Nazis, who desired only animated automata, this problem ceased to exist. How this problem faded in importance and solution became impossible is the story—and the lesson—Lilje has to tell.

In a nation such as our own, the problem is still very much with us. The results of our failure to solve the problem to date are evident in many of our people.

The results are seen even, as Nietzsche said of another day, in the "... social gatherings of the learned which, once the shop talk has ceased, testify only to fatigue, to the desire for distraction at any price, to a ravaged memory, to an incoherent experience of life..."

Education that fails to leave the moral life uncultivated, that is unable to define the purposes of that life, can precipitate reaction here. This is Lilje's warning.

If our system fails, the result can be a giving up to, as Lilje describes it, "a voluptuous itch to let oneself go in nihilist rebellion and national irresponsibility."

This is Lilje's thesis. If he is right (the text is convincing), then we too can succumb to the myth—whether of aryan superman or white supremacy—that is an integral part of the fascist state.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ground of race, color or creed. Arnall ridiculed each legislation, asking why laws were not passed requiring employers to hire homely persons and pointed to the analogy of the prohibition amendment.

These are irrelevant to the principle that it is the duty of government to implement civil rights. The right to employment is now regarded as such a right...

Arnall failed to distinguish between prejudice, which is an attitude, and discrimination, which is a practice fraught with implications for community welfare.

You cannot legislate brotherly love, but it is common knowledge that we work alongside people every day toward whom we may have varying degrees of liking. Ultimately, of course, new patterns of personal relationship of whites and Negroes do destroy the distorted stereotypes which whites have of Negroes, as our experience amply demonstrates.

Sociologists are fully aware of the great power of the mores, but they know also that the mores change, and that mores, even in the field of race relations in the south, are by no means uniform or consistent.

What is social legislation or law, but a prime technique for giving prestige value of community approval to certain trends in the mores rather than others, and sometimes changing the traditional rules sharply and even successfully, as has been shown in recent times in the field of labor legislation, and in such instances as woman suffrage!

The federal FEPC law when previously in effect, and the state FEPC laws which are now functioning in six states, do not use punishment as Arnall erroneously implied, but rather rely on the law as an educational instrument backed by the prestige of government to widen the area of opportunity for minority groups.

There is no reason to believe that a federal FEPC law would not be a similar instrument for improvement of race relations even in the south, after the initial shock had worn off.

Astute and progressive leaders such as Arnall would find ways of using such a law in a constructive manner.

HENRY MILLER, Asst. Prof. Sociology Dept.

Thanks to Prof. Miller for his letter, the point of which we thoroughly believe. It is not discrimination per se that is sought to be eliminated, but the basis for discrimination. An employer is entitled to, and indeed ought to, discriminate on the basis of ability (when the word discriminate is thought of as meaning to separate or distinguish).

But to discriminate (with the meaning of unfair) on the basis of race, creed or color is clearly a violation of our basic tenets.

Laws are the expression of public policy. The argument that we are not advanced enough to frame a public policy in law is contradictory.

We have prohibited discrimination for the reason of race, creed and color in voting, education, medical care, government employment, etc. in some areas. Employment has become so closely associated with the ability to live, as Prof. Miller points out, that the national public policy, as expressed by law, needs to cover it.

We were, as Prof. Miller, disappointed in Arnall's statements about FEPC. Especially because in other connections he mentioned so frequently that this type of discrimination has had no rightful place in America.

We couldn't help thinking afterward about the very title of his speech—"Whose Country Is This, Anyway?" Of course, it's extremely unlikely that any two persons would answer the question exactly alike.

While we liked his speech as a whole, we felt his answer on FEPC meant the country belongs only to those who can get jobs—provided they're the race, creed and color the employer wants... (The Editor.)

Wilcox Suit Starts New Court Term

Jury cases for the February term of the Johnson county district court will begin Tuesday at 10 a.m. The $15,000 damage suit brought by B. F. Wilcox, West Branch, for his daughter, Benita Wilcox, against Earl Sangster and the Yellow Cab company is the first case.

Misspelled Mississippi To Stay

James P. Gaffney will preside. The Wilcox suit grew out of an automobile accident in June, 1947, in which Regina O'Neill was killed. The original petition in the Wilcox suit asking for $4,500 was amended and Miss Wilcox is now asking $15,000 damages for injuries she suffered in the accident.

1798 MISSISSIPPI TERRITORY 1948

MINUS THE FOURTH "S," the name of the state of Mississippi will appear on a new three-cent stamp to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the state's admission as a territory. Back in 1798 somebody fashioned a seal for the territory and incorrectly spelled the name—a mistake that still remains.

First Symposium On American Liberalism To Begin Tuesday

The first of four round table discussions on American liberalism, sponsored by the American Veterans committee, will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in room 221A Schaeffer hall.

Prof. Eric C. Kollman of the history department at Cornell college, Mount Vernon, will moderate each symposium in the series.

Professors Alexander Kern of the English department and George Mowry and George Mosse of the history department will take part in Tuesday's discussion. Their topic will be "Backgrounds of American Liberalism."

The other round tables will be held on Tuesdays of the following weeks. They will deal with "Contemporary American Liberalism," "The Future of American Liberalism," and "Religion and American Liberalism."

Jack Adams, A3 of Iowa City and chairman of AVC Johnson county chapter, said yesterday he hoped to have Richard Bolling, national vice-chairman of AVC, present to take part in the second or third discussion of the series. Bolling, a former professor of history at Kansas university, would represent the veterans' viewpoint in the symposium, said Adams.

Engineer College Adds Non-Technical Library

Engineering instructors, students and university librarians here are forming a non-technical reading section in the college of engineering library. Librarian Miss Norma Englert said yesterday.

The section will contain fiction pocketbooks, modern collection of fiction literature, sports magazines, The New Yorker, Time magazine and non-fiction books dealing with psychology, philosophy, art, music and drama.

The collection so far contains 60 books and magazines.

Cooperating with the engineering college are Prof. Ralph E. Ellsworth, university director of libraries and Mrs. Luanna Stahlebecker, department supervisor of libraries.

15 Schools To Take Part In Confab

The Iowa inter-collegiate conference on postwar problems, will be held here Feb. 27 and 28, Prof. A. Craig Baird, director of forensics, announced yesterday.

Fifteen colleges and universities will take part. Purpose of the conference, Baird said, is to provide training and promote leadership among college students. The sessions are intended to act as an information exchange on attitudes toward national and international problems.

Scheduled activities include four rounds of debating, extemporaneous speaking, discussion groups, public speaking and after-dinner speaking.

The formal debate question will be, "Resolved: That a federal world government should be established."

Leroy Cowperthwaite, Colby, Kan., will be tournament manager. Information concerning the conference is available at room 11, Schaeffer Hall.

Schools participating will be Alma college, Augustana college, University of Denver, Drake university, Coe college, University of Colorado, Cornell college, University of Illinois, Indiana State Teachers, Iowa State college, Northeast Missouri State Teachers, Knox college, St. Olaf's college, Temple university, Central Missouri State Teachers and the University of Iowa.

Baird invited the public to attend.

Former Enlisted Man Receives First Direct Reserve Commission

DES MOINES (AP)—Howard W. Husing, Des Moines, is the first former enlisted man in Iowa to receive a direct commission as second lieutenant in the organized army reserve.

A former master sergeant, Husing was among 320 former enlisted men living in Iowa to make application. Col. C. S. Pettee, senior instructor of organized reserves in Iowa, said he was the first to receive appointment.

Haas Holds Lead in New Orleans Open

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Front-running Fred Haas Jr., slowed his pace somewhat yesterday but still held a lead of two strokes at the end of the 54 holes in the $10,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Haas had a lead of five strokes at Metairie Country club, shot 36-37-73 after taking 67 on each of the first two rounds. Par is 71.

His three-quarter mark of 207 was two strokes better than the second-place 209 of Dick Metz, handsome swinger from Arkansas City, Kans., Metz added 34-35-69 to his previous 140.

Haas had a lead of five strokes Friday at the end of the second round.

Jimmy Demaret and Ed Furgol were the players penalized yesterday by George Schneider, PGA vice-president and tournament committee chairman.

Schneider said Demaret, winner of the Vardon trophy last year for low average scoring in tournament play, was ineligible to keep the cup for 1948 because he walked off the course yesterday at the eighth hole.

Furgol, of Pontiac, Mich., suffered deduction of ten points from his Ryder cup score. Schneider said Furgol was guilty of "ungentlemanly" conduct by intentionally digging divots and otherwise "beating the course."

Michigan —

had a 28 to 12 lead and coasted to a half time margin, 31 to 19.
Mack Suprunowicz, Michigan forward, started off the second half on a scoring rampage, getting eight points in as many minutes. Suprunowicz was high point man with 16.
With the count 52 to 29 and six minutes remaining Coach Ozzie Cowles sent in second stringers.

Illinois —

the count at 8, 21 and 26, but the Illini then steamed to their 16-point halftime margin and thereafter made it a walkaway.
Illinois had the previous runner-up total to Iowa's record 103 points with a 92 to 25 win over Chicago in 1943.
The Boilermakers were led by Dick Axness and Howard Williams with 12 points each.
Despite the Illini point-making orgy, Forward Dwight Eddleman, fourth ranking among the conference scorers with a 15.9 average, tallied only seven points.
The win hoisted Illinois to a deadlock with Purdue in the conference standings, each with a .500 rating of five victories and five defeats.

Northwestern

half as the Hoosiers gained a 25-22 lead. Bob Hughes and Bill Sticklen each hit four baskets for Northwestern in the first period which was tied up 11 times.
While Hughes and Sticklen kept up the pace after intermission, the Hoosiers faltered and for an eight minute stretch failed to make a field goal. During this time, Northwestern's fast, fancy-passing gang rolled up a 43-29 edge.
Indiana finally caught fire again as Bob Armstrong broke the spell with a side shot and then collaborated with fiery Don Ritter in a 10 point surge. With one minute left, Northwestern's margin had been sliced to 46-42 after Hughes added a free throw, Northwestern successfully controlled the ball until the gun.
The Wildcats, gaining their third triumph in 10 conference starts hit only five free throws in 15 attempts. Sticklen with 14 points and Hughes with 15 were high scorers. Watson took game honors with 19 points. It was Indiana's sixth Big Nine defeat in nine games.
