

Local PCA Changes Name To 'Wallace For President'

By KELLY RUCKER

The Johnson county chapter of Progressive Citizens of America last night voted to change its name to Iowa City Wallace for President committee.

The move, proposed by Arnold White, chapter vice-chairman, followed discussion of a meeting of the national FCA executive committee in which it was said that two-thirds of the workers in the national organization have been transferred to the payroll of the national Wallace for President committee.

The action anticipates a national name change for the organization.

To effect an amendment to their constitution, the FCA chapter will have to vote on the motion again at the meeting scheduled for next Monday night.

Arguing against the change, Jim Reeds, G, Iowa City, maintained that it would confuse the people that the organization seeks to influence.

Refuting Reeds' argument, David Coffing, Vinton, said the name change would be the most effective means of spreading "the word of Wallace."

Lou Gleekman, G, Iowa City, added that Iowans know Wallace's name better than they know what PCA means.

"If you say you are the Wallace for President committee, they will know what you mean," Gleekman said.

He pointed out that there are many people in Iowa City who do not know what the organization's initials stand for.

Earlier in the meeting, the chapter heard Reeds, as chairman of the legislative committee, ask for a vigorous campaign aimed at passage of progressive legislation "wherever we may find it . . . in the Republicans, in the Democrats, in congress or in the city council."

The chapter must come out for the defeat of "reactionary or unacceptable legislation," Reeds said. Reeds emphasized the need for a more active program on the local government level.

PCA must propose legislation that Wallace has not "dared" propose. Reeds later suggested that "dared" was "an ill-advised word." What he had meant to say, Reeds pointed out, was that legislation should be proposed on the local level—legislation that "Wallace has not advanced for some reason or another."

As a part of the informal program for the meeting, Herman Schuchman, G, Newark, N.J., interpreted news on the national and international scale. Purpose of the interpretation, Schuchman explained, was because of incomplete coverage of news in the press.

In his discussion of the news, Schuchman charged that Ellis Island is the first concentration camp in the United States.

Basis of his charge, Schuchman said, was the proposed deportation of alien labor leaders "who have been in the United States for 20 to 30 years."

Routine business conducted at the meeting in the basement of the Methodist church included a report from Coffing who told of the formation of a state Wallace for President committee in Des Moines last weekend.

2 Injured In Auto Wreck; $1,100 Loss

An automobile accident occurring Sunday at 1:30 p.m. resulted in injuries to two persons and $1,100 damage to the cars involved, according to drivers reports filed at the police station.

A car driven by William J. Mahoney, West Liberty, collided with a parked car on Dubuque street near the Fairchild street intersection, according to the reports. The owner of the parked car was Gordon E. Lane, Burkely hotel.

Mahoney was charged by police with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. He posted a $500 bond in police court yesterday morning. His case will go before the grand jury.

Mrs. Betty S. Mahoney, West Liberty, suffered cuts and bruises. She was taken to University hospitals and was released Sunday afternoon.

E.E. Brown, Reno, Nev., suffered a broken nose. Both Brown and Mrs. Mahoney were passengers in the Mahoney car.

Mahoney, in his report, estimated $750 damage to his car, and Lane gave $350 damage to his automobile.

Delegates to the GOP county convention March 11 will be chosen at the caucuses, Dane said.

Scouts To Sponsor 2 Weeks Leadership Training Program

A leadership training course for men interested in scouting will be conducted by the Iowa River Valley Council of Boy Scouts according to G. R. Gragg, executive secretary. The course will begin Sunday, Mar. 7, and continue on the two consecutive weekends.

The courses will be held at the Boy Scout camp four and a half miles west of Iowa City on highway 6. Demonstrations and discussions will start at 2:30 p.m. and last until 8 o'clock each Sunday during the series.

Proper use and care in handling an ax, reading a compass, fire building, first aid, and rope work will be among the subjects demonstrated to men enrolling.

In addition there will be discussion periods in boy psychology, program building, budget and records and leadership.

Gragg said that men interested in outdoor activity should contact the scout office at 15 1/2 S. Dubuque street. There will be no expense for those taking part.

City School Board Candidates Express Views on Civic Duty

By JANE LORD

The city board of education election Monday, March 8 will probably be the quietest Iowa City school election in the past decade, local observers believe.

Five local men are running for the three board positions. Clark Caldwell, 413 River street, present board president, and Glenn D. Devine, 1154 Court street, are seeking reelection. Kenneth Dunlop, 622 Summit street, Chan P. Coulter, 440 Grand avenue and William H. Bartley, 1124 N. Dodge, are new candidates.

Devine, who headed the school board buildings and grounds committee, believes the city should keep and improve its present equipment.

Grade school facilities should be expanded to meet the increased population needs, he contended. He emphasized the need for enlarging physical education facilities in the high school and grade schools. He stipulated, however, that it should be done "without too much burden on the taxpayers."

Devine is assistant business manager of university athletics. Caldwell, an insurance agent, is also completing his first term on the board and presided last year. He declared that "the welfare of the schools depends upon careful thinking and wise expenditure of funds in order that Iowa City can have the best plant possible."

women to teach in local schools should continue, Caldwell remarked. It relieves the unmarried teachers for positions in other parts of the state, he pointed out. This practice was adopted during the war and has been continued with the influx of married veterans studying at SUI.

Coulter, an insurance agent, believes that every citizen owes his community time and effort. His election to the board would be his contribution, he asserted.

"One of the main duties of the school board is to predict the needs of the schools and advise the taxpayers," he said.

He favors having more recreational and study facilities for every student. The schools should provide better all-student participation programs, not merely competitive sports and academic activities, he believed.

Attorney Dunlop said he is running because it is his "civic duty." He pointed out the difficulty in getting people to run for the local school board.

Attorney Bartley, a law instructor in the SUI college of engineering, is interested in the future expansion of the school system.

Chairmen Announce Solicitors for '48 Red Cross Drive

Four Iowa City chairmen for the 1948 Red Cross Fund campaign have announced solicitors for their respective districts, according to A. O. Kelley, general chairman.

Iowa City's quota for the drive, which began yesterday, is $14,905. The quota for Johnson county is $23,750.

Serving under G. W. Buxton, chairman of the business district, are Ray Vanderhoef, James Stronks, Lloyd Cashman, Newton Mulford, Robert Yetter, Earl J. Roberts, C. W. Rodgers, Nate Kendall, Dale Welt, Ed Miltner, Harry Dunlap, Robert Leinbaugh, Ray Bywater, H. F. Hutchinson, James Russell, Cloyd Shellady, Alva Oathout, Rudolph Prybil, Clark Caldwell, Wendell Thomas, and Robert Osmundson.

R. J. Knoepfler, chairman of the professional district, has named the following workers: Dr. M. L. Mosher, Dr. James H. DeYarman, Robert Osmundson, Gene Coltrane, Glenn R. Bowen, and Clair E. Hamilton.

Soliciting in the schools under the chairmanship of Donald Seavy are Anne Wachs, high school; Charlotte Davis, junior high school; Hazel Fritze, Longfellow; Elsie Kirchner, Horace Mann; Mildred Gisel, Henry Sabin, and Emma J. Davis, Lincoln, Roosevelt, and Kirkwood.

Volunteer workers under Mrs. Theodore Rehder, chairman of headquarters district, include Mrs. M. C. Boyer, Mrs. Harold Bechtold, Mrs. Ralph Shriner, Mrs. Carl Menzer, and Mrs. Chan Coulter.

A total of $1,470 has been contributed to the county quota. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. W. Bennett, the residential districts have given $57, and sororities and fraternities, $37. Men's and women's organizations in Iowa City have contributed $70 each so far, and the business district has donated $160. Rural and small town districts, under the chairmanship of M. C. Barry, have turned in $1,076.

Reservists To Meet

The Reserve Officers' association will hold its regular meeting at 7:30 p.m. at their headquarters located in the old Top-Flight ballroom.

A business meeting will be held and latest reserve information discussed. Following the meeting, refreshments will be served.

Dunlop were endorsed last week by a bi-partisan committee of local citizens. Bartley filed nomination papers independently.

There seems to be no burning issues in the city school system this year. Voting has always been light in Iowa City school elections compared with other public elections. Last year 784 ballots were cast in the school election in contrast to 5,418 ballots in the city election.

A record was set in 1946 when 1,504 citizens voted at the polls on school election day. That year voters elected John Kelley and Mrs. Charles Mott to the board and turned down a $300,000 bond issue proposed by the school board.

Any registered voter in Iowa City may vote in the school election. Persons living outside the city limits, but within the independent school district, may also vote in the election. Those persons, however, have to be sworn in at the polls on election day.

Apple Polishers Paying Trip Expenses To Health Meet

By BETTY LOU EHLKE
Women in the physical education department really can "polish the apple."

Their apple polishing may not put them on the good side of university professors, but it's going to help pay their expenses to the national convention of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation at Kansas City, Mo., next April.

The physical education majors have been taking turns polishing delicious apples which were on sale at the matron's desk in the gymnasium for the past three and a half months.

"Everyone has been very willing to co-operate," said Dorothy Jahns, A4, Burlington, Wis., in charge of the money making project. The girls who wanted to help signed their names at will to a schedule posted on the bulletin board.

Miss Jahns said she believed the apples sold very well. "They tasted pretty good between classes," she commented. Approximately three or four bushels of apples were polished and sold weekly.

Apples are getting out of season, now so the girls are planning to sell mixed cards in order to raise more money.

Prof. Greene Named To Head Edit Board

The appointment of Prof. H.A. Greene, director of the SUI bureau of educational research and service, to head the editorial board of the American Educational Research association was announced recently.

The appointment was announced at the recent convention of the American association of school administrators in Atlantic City.

Prof. Albert N. Hieronymus, research assistant in education, was named as assistant editor.

The editorial board, according to Greene, produces a series of five reviews on educational research each year. They are distributed to members of the association, libraries, schools and boards of education.

Males Moan Over Mail Marked 'Miss'

Two Riverdalers, Carroll Reinert and Carroll Steinbeck, are having trouble with their first names. A good portion of their mail is addressed "miss," and they're not women.

They can't understand it. Women whose names are pronounced the same as theirs usually spell it C-R-R-O-L. Their names have two "r's" and two "l's."

Neither care to defend their parents choice of a first name, but both explain rather weakly that they were "named after a friend of the family."

Most of the "miss-addressed" letters received by the pair are advertising circulars. The circulars advise them to do everything from "stock upon nylons now," to "lux your undies."

Reinert said he has probably about 20 or 30 such circulars in his lifetime. Steinbeck has received three since he enrolled at SUI.

Once Steinbeck received a letter from a women's college in south central Iowa asking him to enroll in the school. The letter invited him to come down and inspect the campus and dormitories.

"I had a good notion to take them up on it," Steinbeck laughed.

Judge Gaffney Awards McNabb Divorce Decree

Judge James P. Gaffney granted a divorce by default to Dorothy McNabb from Marvin M. McNabb in the Johnson county district court yesterday.

Mrs. McNabb was awarded custody of their child, $20 per week alimony and their household furniture. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

The couple was married April 27, 1940, in Lancaster, Mo., and separated Feb. 5, 1948.

SUI Makes Plan for Summer Housing

By ABE POLAYKOFF

With snow still covering the ground, the university off-campus housing bureau has plans underway to provide summer housing for graduate and married students.

In a questionnaire sent by Richard E. Sweitzer, manager of off-campus housing, 635 faculty and staff members were asked to list houses or apartments which they desire to rent out during the summer.

Requests for summer housing are already coming in from members of other colleges and high school teachers who plan to do summer graduate work here, Sweitzer said.

For the first time, an organized attempt is being made to provide a housing list for graduate students planning to attend the summer session only.

The questionnaire offers "assistance in locating reliable couples or families" to occupy the homes of faculty members leaving Iowa City for the summer.

Housing is probably the major problem confronting married students planning to attend summer school, Sweitzer said. He thinks that many graduate students will attend school wherever adequate housing is available.

The questionnaire asks for particulars on the house or apartment, the price per month and whether the owner objects to a family with children occupying the home.

High Bid on Pool Construction Necessitates Shaving Costs

By RAY HENRY

There is a possibility of shaving municipal swimming pool costs to satisfy the bidders and yet come within the $112,500 which was voted for pool construction.

Pool Engineer Ned L. Ashton told the city council last night that by building the pool bathhouse of a cheaper material than planned, by eliminating two outside toilets and by excluding spectator beach walks the pool could be built within the allotted bond issue.

This will be necessary because the only bid on the complete pool submitted yesterday afternoon totaled $139,188.

The bid made by the W. H. Wildman Construction company of Iowa City was $30,688 more than the engineer's cost estimate.

Wildman, who backed Ashton in saying the costs could be cut, told the council in its regular meeting at the council chambers that using cement or tile blocks instead of cast-in-place cement, as originally planned in building the pool, would cut costs considerably.

Whether the council could make specification changes legally without asking for another public hearing and calling for new bids was not known last night. The council hoped it could award the contract with the necessary cost changes to Wildman without advertising for new bids.

Pending legal advice on this, the council postponed any action on Wildman's bid.

Meanwhile, Ashton said consideration of the specification changes would go ahead.

He said Wildman should be given a week or ten days to consider the changes.

"We still could build the pool for use this year, if we meet no legal trouble in awarding the contract to Wildman," Ashton declared.

These changes would change the plans of the pool slightly. The outside toilets and spectators beach walk could be added later, he said.

Wildman told the council that changes could also be made in the filter system to cut costs.

The group turned down the request of American Veterans of World War II, 112 S. Capitol street, for a class "B" club beer permit. At the same time, they passed a beer permit request of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2581, 22 1/2 E. College street.

No reason for turning down the AMVET's request was given by the council.

The resignation of the Rev. D. G. Hart from the city playground and recreation commission was accepted. The Rev. Mr. Hart resigned to take a position with the playground and recreation department under J. Edgar Frame.

William R. Hart was approved as a member of the airport commission for a six-year term effective yesterday.

Alderman James W. Jones was absent. The next council meeting is scheduled for March 8 at 7:30 p.m. in the city council chambers.

Employment Service Places 55 Persons

Fifty-five persons were placed in jobs by the Iowa City employment office last month, and there are still many openings. Mrs. Nellie Verdin, acting manager of the employment service, reported yesterday.

Although almost 100 people still have job applications registered with the employment office, over 50 jobs remain open.

Modern Art Is Dying: Longman

By ARDATH YOUMANS
"Abstraction and surrealism are dying a natural death," said Prof. Lester D. Longman, head of the art department, in a Humanities society illustrated lecture on "Art Today" in the art auditorium last night.

"I could be proven wrong," Longman admitted, "by a new genius who could give these forms of art a new lease on life." Such a genius, he hinted, must come from a younger generation than the successful "modern artists." "The case for modern art seems to be won. Debate need no longer be acrimonious," said Longman, pointing out that the "cultural lag" is beginning to catch up. Since popularity is always slow coming to new developments, this is a sign that art is lagging.

Modern artists, he said, have deteriorated to a large group of "mannerists feebly imitating pioneers" like Matisse, Van Gogh, and Picasso. "No really new ideas have come about in art since 1925. A decline in leadership is indicated," Longman protested that it is too easy for young painters to get their work recognized. "When young, inexperienced students can get their pictures in national art exhibits, we can anticipate that something is basically wrong," he said.

"What is more, we are beginning to suspect that there are no new developments coming," he observed. "There seem to be no more surprises for the informed."

The remedy for this is a new cycle of art, he said, in some form which will probably be more "representative" than "illustrious."

"Forward to representation!" will be our motto, he punned. Painters will return to representing particular subjects rather than experimenting in pure form. Such a return should involve a synthesis of all the knowledge gained by experiments of the past two generations, however.

It will include "acceptance of society rather than rejection" and assume a more constructive basis than the attitude of social criticism common to contemporary artists.

Likening the monotonous flow of modern art to a dripping faucet, Longman declared, "We are tired of the burden of this lamentable message. We've got to start doing something to stop this Bloop-Bleep chant."

Dorm Men Meet to Fight Rent Increase

By JOHN ELLIOTT
Meetings of the Hillcrest and Quadrangle councils last night brought divergent plans in opposition to the recently announced dormitory rate increases.

The Hillcrest council voted to petition the state board of education to send a cost accountant to study the operating figures of the university dormitory system. It was also agreed to ask the councils of the other dormitory units to permit the circulation of the petition in the respective units.

Quadrangle council voted to accept the report of its investigating committee that the university be asked to establish cooperative dormitories in the present temporary barracks by eliminating the services of janitors and maids. The Quadrangle council voted not to accept the petition presented by Hillcrest in asking for a cost accountant.

The emphasis of the Hillcrest group appeared to be that the dormitory system might not be operating efficiently and that an accountant would be able to determine if this were so. On the other hand, the Quadrangle seemed to think there was at least some justification for the rate increases, though it was pointed out this could not be determined fully since exact figures have not been presented.

The Hillcrest meeting also adopted a resolution endorsing the recommendation of the Quadrangle committee in asking for dormitories on a cooperative basis.

It was agreed a plan would be presented to the next Student council session calling for more notice to students by the university in announcing future plans. It was the feeling of the group that present procedure is arbitrary. Also passed by the Quadrangle meeting was a resolution instructing its Student council representative to press for equal treatment of fraternity and non-fraternity men in the matter of optional contracts allowing cancellation in case of the person moving to some other housing accommodation on the campus.

In discussing its plans for cooperative dormitories, the Quadrangle group stressed that rate increases impose financial burdens on students not receiving government aid.

Water Covers Highway 218 North of Iowa City

SHOVING A 50-POUND CAKE OF ICE, a stranded car driven by John Ward, route 2, was pushed by a wrecker from about one foot of water on highway 218 almost directly in front of the Mayflower Inn at 10:30 last night. With the motor drowned out, the car was stalled in the freezing water about 30 minutes before Iowa City police called the wrecker. At that time, water was creeping up the highway at about 10 feet a minute. About 200 yards away, huge chunks of ice were banging at the City park bridge pilings, shaking the bridge and creating an eerie effect in the snow-filled darkness.

Stolen Car Recovered By Iowa City Police

A car reported stolen Sunday morning was recovered two hours later by Iowa City police.

The owner, Richard Turnipseed, Wellman, reported that he had parked his car in front of the Skelly service station at 327 E. College street.

Belgian Village Aid Drive 'A Little Slow'

The drive which started last Friday to gather aid materials for the Belgian village of Villers-Labon-Eau has been "a little slow" to date, John McDonough reported last night.

McDonough, chairman of the village aid committee of the Johnson county chapter of the American Veterans committee which is sponsoring the drive, blamed bad weather for the small volume of supplies received so far.

He said the collection point in the basement of the English Lutheran church will continue in daily operation through Saturday, the last day of the drive.

AVC will dispatch a truck Saturday to collect items from persons and groups unable to bring them personally to the collection point.
