

Russ Bar Jews, Arabs From Big 4 Palestine Discussions

NEW YORK (AP)—Russia threatened yesterday to walk out of four-power talks on Palestine if Jews and Arabs take part.

The Russian declaration at the third closed session of the four powers dashed American hopes for conciliation by bringing Jewish and Arab leaders into the consultations.

Andrej A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, said the views of the Jewish agency for Palestine and the Arab higher committee already were well known. He said he could not take part in any Big Four meeting to which they were invited.

He made it clear that Ambassador Warren R. Austin, United States, personally could pursue conciliation efforts with the agency and the Arab higher committee and report the results to the other three powers.

But Gromyko stood by his previous declaration that conciliation has failed; that the United Nations plan to divide Palestine into Jewish and Arab countries should be carried out.

The delegates passed over the point without a final decision. They will meet again today at 1:30 p.m. (CST) at the French delegation offices.

Other Palestine developments in the UN yesterday were:

1. Britain again served notice she would end her Palestine mandate on May 15.

2. A United States delegation spokesman in a brief statement denied a published report hinting that the U.S. might agree to a federal union in Palestine.

3. Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, head of the American section of the Jewish agency's executive, conferred for 20 minutes at Silver's request with Austin. Later the agency issued a statement declaring partition is the "irreducible minimum" beyond which it cannot go.

4. Arab leaders and the spokesman here for the Arab higher committee declared they would not take part in any conciliation talks as long as those discussions were based on partition. They rejected again any part of partition.

Asks $55-Million For Interim Relief

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman asked congress yesterday, in the light of recent Communist gains in Europe, for $55-million to tide western Europe over until the Marshall plan can be put into effect.

At the same time he said it was a matter of "extreme urgency" that the $3.3-billion Marshall program itself be approved at the earliest possible moment.

A state department spokesman said the $55-million would represent an advance installment of the funds western European countries would get under the Marshall plan—that is, it would come out of the $5.3-billion.

The President's appeal came as Republican members of the house foreign affairs committee gave serious thought to U.S. military backing for any country in the world which is threatened by Communist pressure.

This worldwide extension of the "Truman doctrine"—which will be one year old today—was proposed at a meeting to seek quick action on the European recovery program (ERP) known as the Marshall plan.

Damage to Property Heavy; Firemen Battle for 3 Hours

By PHIL MILLER City Editor

Vicious flames that almost got out of control gutted three business establishments in the 300 block of E. Market street last night.

Though an immediate estimate of damage was not available, losses were very heavy in Sutton's Radio Service, the apartment above it, in the Market Street Beauty Shop and in the OK Body Shop.

No injuries or loss of life were reported. Mr. and Mrs. Lee Blodgett, who lived in the apartment above Sutton's Radio Service, escaped, but observers said the Blodgetts saved practically no belongings.

Hugh Sutton said he managed to save only a ledger and "a few other incidentals."

Just south of Sutton's establishment on Gilbert street, the offices of veterinarians J.S. Potter and Allen N. Lang were practically ruined by water.

With about three inches of water on the floor, Robert Womer, rural route 5, and university student Robert Schmidt were still carrying equipment from the smoke-filled veterinarians' offices at 10 p.m.

Firemen said the alarm was turned in shortly after 9 p.m.

In the body shop, several cars and thousands of dollars worth of equipment were ruined.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

but several early arrivals at the scene agreed it started in the body shop.

Huge billows of black smoke rose from the interior of the body shop.

Sutton, who was at the scene almost immediately, rushed into his building and grabbed the ledger. "As I was going back in the second time," he said, "pressure pushed the big plate glass window in the front out. The smoke was so thick then I had to get out."

He said it was too early to give any estimate of damages.

Owners of the other three damaged establishments could not be located in the huge crowd.

The crowd didn't seem to mind the sub-zero weather that made the three and one-half hour fight all the more difficult.

Vote Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate finance committee voted 10 to 1 last night to cut income taxes $4.7-billion.

The house already has passed a $6.5-billion tax cut bill.

Shortly before the final ballot, the committee defeated 7 to 6, on a party line vote, a Democratic proposal to hold the tax cut to $4-billion.

Then it adopted by a vote of 9 to 3 an amendment which cut the house figure.

The only major change the senate committee made in the house measure is in a section setting up percentage tax reductions.

Foreign — Arab Booby Trap; Czech Suicide

Arab's Bomb Kills 12 Jews

JERUSALEM (AP)—An Arab who masked his attack behind a stolen American flag bombed the heavily-guarded Jewish agency building yesterday killing 12 persons and wounding nearly 100 others, an agency spokesman said.

Three of the dead were women. Driving an automobile stolen approximately an hour earlier from the United States consulate three blocks away, the attacker entered the agency compound, ignited the explosives and walked away.

Seconds later a terrific blast ripped into the walls of the two-story semi-circular stone and concrete structure. Windows were shattered and ceilings blown down.

Approximately 500 persons were in the agency building when the blast shook the city. Most of those killed or seriously injured were in the horseshoe shaped courtyard. Walls of the compound were splattered with blood.

Czech Confesses Plotting Against Coup, Kills Self

PRAGUE (AP)—District police at Moravskostava announced last night that an official of a former anti-Communist party had committed suicide in a jail cell.

Police said Josef Herot, local secretary of the National Socialist party, took his life after confessing he participated in a plot against the government.

Police said Herot's confession involved high officials of the old party.

Commodity Index Drops

CHICAGO (AP)—The high cost of living got another jolt yesterday from skidding commodity prices. All grains, hogs, cocoa, rubber and burlap joined in the downturn.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale foodstuffs and industrial raw materials slipped .67 of a point to 185.10—lowest since last July 31.

A week ago the index was 188.53, a month ago 187.78 and a year ago 182.53. The index uses 1926 prices as 100.

Six Enter Student Council Delegate Race

By KELLY RUCKER

Six candidates for delegates-at-large posts on the Student council yesterday filed petitions before the 5 p.m. deadline.

The six new candidates brought the total in the race to 13. Two men and two women will be chosen for the delegates-at-large openings. Four women and nine men are campaigning. Elections will be held March 23.

Candidates who filed yesterday were Gene Glenn, A2, Ottumwa; George W. McBurney, A2, Council Bluffs; Robert C. Mullaley, A2, Marion, Iowa; Joseph J. Murray, A2, Cedar Rapids; Richard W. Chadima, A3, Cedar Rapids, and Mary Jean Falk, A3, Red Oak, Iowa.

Candidates who entered the race earlier are Charles G. Leadham,

A3, Springfield, Iowa; Jean Gallaher, A3, Appleton, Wis.; Dean A. Crawford, A3, Iowa City, Evan "Curly" Hultman, A3, Waterloo; Kathryn Ann Kimmel, A2, Pleasant Valley, Iowa; Joyce C. Bahr, A3, Princeton, Ill., and Paul R. Lange, C4, Cedar Falls.

Bob Roseland, C4, Clear Lake, filed a petition early yesterday, but last night withdrew from the race in favor of Lange.

Gene Glenn is the second member of this year's council to seek re-election, this time as delegate-at-large.

Glenn represents South Quadrangle at present. He is president of the university chapter of YMCA. Lange is the other council member filing for a delegate-at-large slot.

Glenn's platform called for:

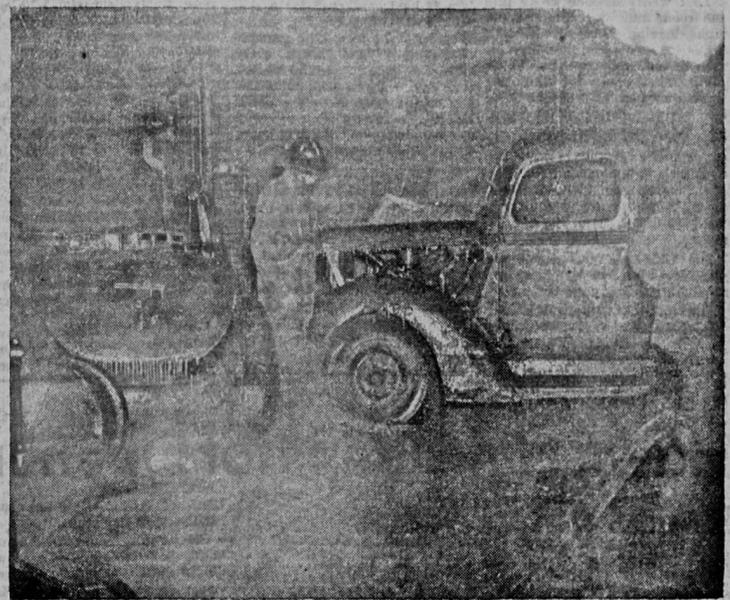

- 1. An all-university picnic and skip day.
- 2. Responsible student representation on administrative committees.
- 3. Increased use of effective student opinion polls.
- 4. Better cooperation with the athletic department for reservation of adequate student seats and general improvement of school spirit.
- 5. Incorporation of a comprehensive winter sports program.
- 6. Expansion and improvement of the student social and recreational facilities of Iowa Union.
- 7. Inclusion of a permanent Student council budget in the student activities fund.

Glenn said that the budget for Student council at present is only a temporary grant from the university. This year's council had a $1,000 budget. Inclusion of a permanent council budget in the Student activities budget would lead to permanency for the Student council as a student governing body, Glenn said.

Glenn maintained that the expansion plans for Iowa Union be made public to the students. He said if students knew what was planned they could better influence expansion plans along lines in accordance with their desires. Glenn suggested billiard tables and bowling alleys should be included in plans for the Union expansion.

Glenn insisted that the students in recent years have shown responsibility in student government, "so students should be placed on administrative committees."

"By doing this," Glenn pointed out, "both students and the administration could grow together with problems as they arise. The students would not be faced with administrative decisions on a day's notice. This would lead to much more cooperation," he said.

Glenn asked consideration of an SUI hockey team to compete on the inter-collegiate level and addition of winter sports to the intramural curricula.

Glenn is a political science major. (Platforms for candidates McBurney, Mullaley, Murray, Chadima and Miss Falk will appear in tomorrow's DAILY IOWAN.)

The fire department had a big day yesterday—at 6 p.m. they entertained their wives, two retired firemen and the mayor at the annual fireman's banquet—around 9 p.m. they battled the worst local fire in years in sub-zero weather.

Sloshing through the wreckage afterwards, one fireman remarked, "We had just finished eating and washing the dishes when the alarm came." Another said, "The fire sort of ruined the evening."

Back at the fire station at 11:30 p.m., the smoke-eaters were brewing coffee and hacking their way out of ice-covered jackets.

After spectators deserted the scene of the blaze, the owners of the radio shop and body shop poked through the wreckage. The water which had been played on the flames was slowly freezing.

Hugh Sutton, of the radio shop, could only conclude "it's a helluva mess" while the owner of the machine shop silently watched several mechanics board up the front of the shop. "There's nothing to nail up in the back," one of them mused.

Huddled around a stove in the machine shop directly west of the gutted body shop, two men could only say that they were lucky to be untouched by the damage.

The policeman directing traffic on the corner of Market and Gilbert streets could testify that it was plenty cold. He said he had been on duty during the whole fire and took off "long enough to get a cup of coffee."

KEN DALLVILLE, IND. (AP)—Traffic was stalled by fish on U.S. Highway 6 yesterday.

A semi-trailer truck carrying 15,000 pounds of smelt overturned on a curve and most of the cargo spilled on the highway.

The driver was unhurt.

Taking Time Out

Are the Olympic Wrestling Try-Outs Fair?

Will Joe Scarpello, Iowa's champion 175-pound wrestler go to the Olympic games in London next summer? Naturally, is your quick reply. What wrestler in that weight classification will be able to beat the "Handy Man" from the Hawkeye school?

And there you've got a point. However, contrary to popular opinion, that fact alone will not send the hefty Scarpello to the Olympics.

Here's why. The United States Olympic committee has set up certain standards for wrestlers to meet in their different try-outs. And their conceptions of how to send the best men to the Olympics is like a barber setting the standard for meat prices.

The final Olympic try-outs, to be held at Iowa State sometime in April, will be judged solely on a wrestler's ability to pin his opponent. Even if he's a mediocre grappler, a lucky pin during the try-outs may send the lucky gent to London representing the U.S. as the best man in a certain weight.

For example, let's assume that Scarpello is able to win his way into the final try-outs at Ames. To do this Joe would have to get first or second in the NCAA meet, first or second in the AAU meet or place first or second in a district meet.

He would then have to wrestle five times during the try-outs. If he were able to win all five matches—by decisions—he would automatically be eliminated. Figure that one out.

The Olympic committee is judging the different matmen by a system of "black marks." Each decision for a winning wrestler gives him one "black mark" and the man he defeats is given two. Five "black marks" disqualifies any wrestler.

Therefore, no matter how good any certain grappler is, he must be able to pin his opponents, something which Scarpello may find hard to do in the finals.

Should Glen Brand of Iowa State, one of the "Handy Man's" chief rivals for national honors, pin four men in the final try-outs, while Scarpello is going through undefeated—all on decisions, however—Brand would have no marks against him while Scarpello would have four. Then, if Scarpello defeated Brand in the last bout, Joe would eliminate himself in the process and Brand would still be in the running.

It doesn't follow a very fair pattern for any wrestler but the men in the key positions seem to like the idea. Personally, we think the United States ought to junk the try-outs if the Olympic committee is going to operate under that system.

Lost—Half a Thesis

Here's a note some certain individual might find interesting.

It seems that Wendell Hill, graduate student and junior varsity basketball coach, has been working almost a year on his thesis for his master's degree in physical education.

"Windy" had taken a series of moving pictures of last spring's Iowa baseball games, six altogether, and had been working on them in a little room in the north wing of the fieldhouse. Those six movies plus numerous other material represented his thesis.

Last week someone broke into the room and took three of the films, leaving "Windy" with half a thesis. He'd appreciate the return of said movies—after all, a thesis takes plenty of time and when you lose half of one it is comparable to half a year's work.

Big Two Days for Mermen

Today and tomorrow are the big days for Big Nine swimmers. Ten of the eleven events will be decided by Saturday night following the 1500-meter free style last night.

Most of the mermen worked out yesterday afternoon to loosen up for the big two-day event.

Bill Smith, Ohio State's champion freestyler, sat idly by while the others were in the water and strummed nonchalantly on his ukelele. Smith set the string instrument down for awhile and Halo Hirose, Hawaiian buddy of the Buckeye ace, jumped out of the tank and began to play his favorite tune.

Apparently, the ukelele is standard travelling equipment for the Buckeye duo.

Photographers spent a good portion of the afternoon tagging the star tankers around the pool and taking their pictures. After all, how often do you find such an array of swimmers assembled in one pool.

One photographer cornered Halo Hirose, Ohio sprint ace, and asked him if he would pose for a shot with Iowa's Wally Ris. After Hirose said he would, he remarked jokingly, "You know, every time they want a picture of me, they say will you pose with this guy or that guy. Now the paper will say, 'Here's a picture of Wally Ris, the champion, who will swim against Halo Hirose.'"

Fairfield Clips Iowa Quint

The Fairfield basketball team, boasting such former Iowa stars as Dick Ives, Red Metcalfe and Clayton Wilkinson, defeated a group of Iowa players, which included Murray Wier and Jack Spencer, Wednesday night, 62-46.

Wier scored 26 of his team's points while Metcalfe led the Fairfield quintet with 22.

Smith, Hartford, are other candidates for shortstop.

Bob Schulz, Davenport basketballer, is a leading first base candidate while George Schamberger, Cedar Rapids, is vying with Kater for the hot corner position.

Dale Erickson, Bangor, Wis., and Smith are regular outfielders returning. Two other promising candidates are Arnold Espe, Radcliffe, and John Sullivan, Cascade.

The catching spot looks like the best manned position on the team.

Capt. Lyle Ebner, Davenport, Ed Browne, Des Moines, and Johnny Tedore, Waterloo, all lettermen, have returned. Vogel has indicated that Tedore may be used in the outfield.

Jack Wishmeier, Van Meter, and Floyd Magnusson, Port Dodge, are other basketball players who have reported recently.

The team will leave here March 19 or 20 and will play Louisiana Tech at Ruston, La., March 22 and 23, Arkansas Teachers at Conway, Ark., the 24 and 25, Arkansas State at Jonesboro, Ark., the 26 and 27, and Washington at St. Louis March 29. They will return here for the local opener against Luther April 2 and 3.

With Pete Everett, Crofton, Penn.; Jack Dittmer, Elkader, and Keith Kafer, Waterloo, back at first, second and third base respectively, the Hawks will present a veteran infield. Don McCarty, Guthrie Center, veteran, is the leading candidate for the shortstop position. Bob Primrose, Norway, and Bob

By JOHN HOLWAY

Michigan's Matt Mann III captured the 1500-meter freestyle last night to help the Wolverines spring to a five-point lead at the end of the first final event in the Big Nine championship swimming meet here.

The Michigan distance-men also controlled fourth and fifth places for a total of nine points. Defending champ, Bill Heusner of Northwestern took second, several lengths ahead of Ohio State's Bill Smith, who finished third.

The other Michigan point-winners were Gus Stager and John McCarthy. Wolverine Jay Sanford took sixth, out of the money by 20 seconds.

Mann's time of 20 minutes, 17.5 seconds establishes the record for the event in the Big Nine over the long course. Heusner, about 20 feet behind Mann, was clocked in 20 minutes, 27.6 seconds, and Smith's time was 20 minutes, 38.1 seconds. Stager was four seconds behind that.

Buckeye Coach Mike Peppe's strategy was knocked over in Smith's being forced to third. The Ohio captain swam abreast of Mann, Heusner and Stager until about the 600-yard turn when the line began to string out.

Mann gradually stretched to a convincing lead over Heusner, while Smith slipped to fourth, where he remained until the thirtieth turn in the 32-lap grind, when he began climbing on Stager to slide past the Wolverine in the last 100 yards.

In entering Smith in the 1500, Peppe had obviously hoped for a first, and planned to keep him out of the sprint relay Saturday, so that he could go fresh in the 440 the same day. The Hawaiian will also swim in the 220 today in his long-sought re-match with Ris.

That event will highlight today's card, which will see five more finals determined by 9:30 tonight. The 50-yard sprint, the back stroke, the 300-yard medley relay and the low board diving will also be decided.

Neither of the two principals, Ris or Smith, was willing yesterday to predict the outcome. When asked if he thought he could beat the Iowa captain, Smith grinned noncommittally and said, "I hope so."

Ris was equally indefinite, but did issue a well-considered promise that "I'm going to throw everything I possibly can." Iowa's Coach Dave Armbruster gave his head a jerk and decided, "When those two meet, you never can tell what will happen."

It was felt by most that the two competitors, who finished within split inches of each other in their last contest here a month ago, will take the collegiate record down from Ris' 2:13.7 closer to Smith's amateur mark of 2:10.7.

In the back stroke today, Iowa's Dick Maine and Duane Draves have hopes of clearing high places for themselves as they chase Michigan Capt. Harry Holiday, who will likely be out to better his own collegiate record for the event.

Holiday will also probably appear with Breast stroker Bob Sohl in the medley relay. It was thought probable yesterday that Sprinter Dick Wehberg, the other member of Michigan's record-holding trio, would be held out of the relay to save him for his bid to oust Ohio's Halo Hirose as defending champion in the 50.

Louisville, Hamline Gain NAIB Semis

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The University of Louisville Cardinals went highflying during the second half tonight to upset Beloit (Wis.) college, 85-70, and join the Hamline Piled Pipers in the semi-finals of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball tournament.

The Cardinals put on a garrison finish after trailing 42-40 at the half-way post.

Hamline had eliminated Manhattan, 60-51, in the first of the night's four quarterfinals. The game had a comic opera finish when six of Manhattan's nine-men squad fouled out of the game, leaving the New Yorkers with only three men on the playing floor.

Yanks Shut Out Cards For 2nd Straight Day

ST. PETERSBURGH, FLA. (AP)—The World Champion New York Yankees shut out the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday for the second straight day and won their third exhibition game without a loss. The score was 1 to 0.

The Cards made only three hits—one each off Red Embree, Frank Hiller and Don Johnson.

Second Baseman Vernal Jones' fumble off Cliff Mages' roller in the fourth developed into the only run. Mages went to second as Yogi Berra grounded out and scored on a single by Joe Collins, rookie first basemen.

The Yankees collected four hits, two of them off starter Murray Dickson, who was charged with the defeat.

Six-Man Hawkeye Track Team Enters Illinois Tech Relays

Six Iowa trackmen will enter the Illinois Tech relays at Chicago tomorrow, Coach George Bresnahan announced yesterday.

The way was made clear for the Hawkeye entry after the dual meet with Wisconsin set for the fieldhouse Saturday was called off because of conflicts. The holding of the Big Nine swimming meet and the scheduling of the sub-state basketball tournament in the fieldhouse this week made the running of the dual track meet impossible.

"This is the first time Iowa has ever had a team in the Illinois Tech relays," Coach George Bresnahan said last night. "Previously we always had a meet scheduled for the particular weekend of this relays and were unable to participate," he added.

"The continuing bad weather had also slowed down the rounding out process," Bresnahan said. "Usually at this time of year we have been able to hold several practices on the outdoor track."

Six other Big Nine teams are entered in the relays in addition to Drake, Kansas State, Marquette, Missouri and Notre Dame. Ohio State and Minnesota do not have teams in the meet.

The six Iowa men making the trip are: Jack Simpson, Ike Johnson, Tom Sangster, Eric Wilson Jr., Very Coffey and Russ Merkel. Simpson will run the 70-yard dash and with the

Wier Second Behind Hankins in Scoring

NEW YORK (AP)—College basketball's individual scoring race has narrowed down to the effort of Yale's Tony Lavelli to dislodge Iowa's Murray Wier from second place.

Latest statistics from the National Collegiate Athletic bureau show Norm Hankins of Lawrence Tech has virtually clinched top honors with an average of 22.3.

Wier, however, is leading Lavelli only by a whisker, 21.0 to 20.9. The Little Iowan has completed his season while Lavelli has one game left. The Yale star rimmed 17 points Thursday night against Trinity but the statistics include games only through last Saturday.

Sam Urzetta of St. Bonaventure, has finished on top in the foul shooting department. He sank 59 of 64 free throws in 22 games for a .922 percentage.

Ohio Economist Says Slump Probable Under Capitalism

By BOB CARROLL

"It is doubtful if we can avoid a depression under private enterprise," Prof. Gordon Hayes said yesterday.

An economics professor at Ohio State university for 28 years, he addressed the Great Issues class in Macbride auditorium.

His proposals for avoiding depressions included:

1. More "social saving."
2. Less inequality of income.
3. More government ownership and benefits.

"Capitalism is delivering the goods in the U.S. now," he asserted, but it doesn't continue to deliver during periods of "hell of unemployment and depression."

Hayes cited a "revolution" in economic thinking in which the 1929 depression "served as a great divide."

New thinking, he continued, is that holding onto money creates unemployment; spending creates employment.

The problem is to keep up a steady flow of money, Hayes asserted. Old-time economists, he said, thought the flow of money was automatic.

Hayes cited the theory that people save automatically, even if they can't invest. When they hoard, no one gets the money, so the flow of money is impeded, the Ohioan added.

Hayes said that in the 1929 depression America's consumer credit "ran out." People bought $6-billion worth of goods on time payments—"goods they couldn't pay for."

By more "social saving," he explained, he meant items such as social security. "You are paying into the funds now," Hayes added, and that money immediately is flowing out to those receiving benefits.

There is no "stagnation in the flow of money."

Hayes lashed at the inequality of income in 1929 when the top 3 percent of persons receiving incomes got one-third of the country's total income.

He approved President Roosevelt's suggestion that no one be permitted to have an income of more than $25,000 a year after taxes were deducted.

More government ownership and benefits don't mean slavery, but "we may have to check a bit of our freedom," he declared.

He cited the University of Iowa as an example of government ownership. "Although," he said, "I've been on the campus all day, I haven't seen anyone in chains yet."

Town Woman Files For Elections with Platform in Poetry

Poetry found its way into the all-campus elections yesterday when Dorothy Roman, A3, Moline, Ill., filed for candidacy as Town Women's representative on the Student council.

She called her program, "A Candidates Ode to the Town Women." It rhymed:

"A platform sturdy without no splinters
To help you dance away your winters,
And when the green of spring appears
Picnics and parties to draw your cheers,
But setting aside the social whirl
To think of government, I'm your girl.

When you're ready to leave old SUI
And for a job you must apply
A placement bureau, thorough and quick
Is what I think will do the trick.
At all the games you'd like a seat,
So would I! But let's be realistic,
I'm no mystic!"

Miss Roman asked that town

men and women combine into an independent student's organization "to match the activities of the sororities and fraternities."

She proposed willing and able counselors to help bewildered students, and a priority system for seniors and juniors in registration for first choice at classes.

More familiarization with National Student association was the last plank in her platform.

Young Michel was tasting icicles with playmates at the LeVois home Tuesday when one of the youngsters bumped him, jamming an icicle down his throat.

The sharp point drove into a tonsil and Michel, bleeding badly, was rushed to University hospital.

Doctors there were able to fix up the youngster without stitches.

Michel found himself something of a hero on his return. His eager classmates wanted to look down his throat to see what had happened.

Plan Medical Short Courses

Seventy-four doctors from Iowa and neighboring states will be students in four short refresher courses at University hospitals this spring.

The physicians will come to Iowa City for courses in four fields of medicine designed by University hospitals as a continuation of medical study for general practitioners in the state.

Dr. William C. Keettel, assistant professor in obstetrics and gynecology and acting chairman of the University College of Medicine committee on postgraduate education, said the courses are to help make doctors better aware of recent trends and advancements.

"We want them to see how other people do it," Dr. Keettel explained.

First conference of the series is in internal medicine, on March 31, April 1 and 2. Guest instructors at that time will be Dr. William H. Bunn, Youngstown, Ohio; Dr. A. B. Baker, professor of neuropsychiatry at the University of Minnesota and Dr. Albert J. Snell, professor of medicine at Mayo foundation, Rochester, Minn.

Short courses in general surgery and ophthalmology are scheduled for May, according to Dr. Kettel, but further details are not yet available.

Registration for the short courses is restricted to 74, and all available places have already been spoken for, Dr. Keettel said.

J.C. Penney and Co. To Remodel Store

Remodelling for a second-floor ready-to-wear department will be part of an extensive $40,000 modernization plan for the local J. C. Penney and Co. store, Manager H. S. Ivie said yesterday.

The 100-foot-long, ready-to-wear department will be built in space which was formerly used for offices. An expanded home-furnishings department will be located on the store's present balcony.

The work, contracted to M.D. McCreedy, Iowa City, is expected to be completed early in June. The project will replace 10 percent of the existing fixtures with new equipment and will install an air-conditioning system.

Two Indian tribes of early America, the Eries and the Hurons, were almost exterminated by the Iroquois.

U.S. expenditures for personal domestic service declined about 28 percent between 1929 and 1940.

Now If It Were International . . .

A rather curious and interesting note on the recent supreme court decision involving religion in the schools is our willingness to obey.

Immediately after the decision was announced, many communities looked to see if it had a program conflicting with the decision. Here at SUI the question was raised about the school of religion.

Naturally, the decision applied specifically only to one program at Champaign, Ill. There is no way to tell how that decision might be applied to other cases. Judges are human, after all, and the law itself recognizes that different circumstances might bring a different decision.

The point is that instead of reacting with threats of violence and disobedience, collectively we tried to conform. When viewed in terms of harsh international dealings, this is indeed a marvelous attitude.

As a nation we have a good right to be proud of our progress in this respect. At times it hasn't been so good.

But here was a case involving one of the fundamental aspects of our life—the separation of church and state. There was plenty of plausible argument on both sides.

The controversy touched on that perimeter of doubt—the recognized constitutional limit on combining church and state and the opposing desire to make Christian philosophy more easily available through the public schools.

We are inclined to agree with the court's decision, but that is not the thing we started out to observe.

The immediate and spontaneous desire to follow the spirit of the decision is a great testimony to the strength of our faith in the judicial process. Perhaps at times we have as a nation placed too much faith in it to work miracles. But it is rather startling to observe in this world of naked force the peaceful acceptance of a hotly disputed decision.

Some general, or at least a colonel, must have put on a pair of GI shoes within the last six months. He must have gotten a blister.

At any rate, the army has announced that it is changing the last on which GI shoes and combat boots are made. The idea is to give GI's toes one-eighth inch more room. And the soles will be flattened to give better traction.

The old last on which GI shoes were built—the ones vets are still wearing on campus—is dated 1912. The late Brig. Gen. Edward L. Munson invented it. The last has his name stamped on it.

This is probably the best recruiting move the army could have made, as any GI who has had his arch angle changed and his toes pointed up can testify.

The announcement doesn't specify whether the quartermaster will stock shoes to fit your feet. But down in the small print at the bottom of the page comes the joker:

"The new last, of course, will incidentally make soldiers' shoes last longer."

INTERPRETING THE NEWS—

Masaryk Learned a Bitter Lesson

By J.M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Jan Masaryk, although deeply devoted to democracy, thought he could do business with communism. His suicide is a warning to his recognition, and a warning to the world, that no such course is possible.

(Masaryk's death seems to have been generally accepted as suicide, although the London Star reminds pointedly that "jumping out of windows has become oddly frequent in dictator countries.") The implication, if ever established as fact, would only serve to emphasize the premise.

In world diplomatic councils Masaryk was known as a man who, though perhaps not possessing the same strength, tried earnestly to follow in the footsteps of his great father, Thomas G. Masaryk, founder of modern Czechoslovakia.

The younger Masaryk was an affectionate man. Some of his friends in America speculated that he might even have killed himself because he found he could not help his anti-Communist friends in the foreign ministry as the red purge sweeps through Prague.

Masaryk was not merely a professional democrat. It was in his every mannerism, entered into his relationship with everyone he encountered, whether diplomat or bellboy, He took pride in the menial jobs of his youth in New York.

The picture painted by dispatches from Prague in recent days is of a man still trying to stand between his people and red dictatorship. He thought, although he decided to call it appeasement, that through compromise Czechoslovakia could stand beside, not under, Soviet Russia, and that she would continue her trade and cultural relations with the west.

When the Communists finally demonstrated that their policy toward friend or foe is "all or nothing," Masaryk still thought that by remaining in the cabinet he could temper the wind toward his shorn country. Thoroughly honest himself, he still believed in Russian promises that Czechoslovakia would be permitted to continue as an independent country.

He was bitterly criticized by his friends, not that they doubted his continued integrity, but because they seriously questioned his judgment. They thought the use of his name by the Communist dictatorship would far outweigh any influence which Masaryk might continue to wield in council.

As the reds rode roughshod over Czech liberties, and prepared to eliminate their opponents from the seats in parliament to which they had been voted by the people, Masaryk learned that you can't do business with Stalin.

And so, after a lonely night reading critical letters from his friends in a cigarette-littered room, he made the only protest against tyranny which still remained in his power.

Market Basket Index Skids

By PAUL LUCKINBILL

A 3 cent "heat wave," which melted the price of butter to 80 cents, greased the way for a 9 cent skid in the Daily Iowan market basket index yesterday.

This week's index was $16.85 compared to $16.94 last Friday. Butter dipped 5 cents per pound in two days, according to one grocer, dropping 12 cents below the 92 cent record set five weeks ago.

Several grocers reported a decrease in the demand for oleomargarine during recent weeks when butter has been declining in price. However, they predicted oleomargarine sales will pick up if the federal government removes the federal tax.

Of the seven price changes found in the index, five of them were decreases. The price of sliced peaches slipped 2 cents, selling for 33 cents. Other canned goods on the grocery list remained steady, however, indicating no general downward trend on canned goods.

One-pound shortening hit its lowest price since last November, dropping to 45 cents, a 4 cent decrease. Prices varied from 43 cents to 49 cents, though, among the seven stores surveyed.

Idaho potatoes slid to 75 cents for a 10-pound bag, a 3 cent drop. Most fresh fruits and vegetables are holding steady, said one grocer, except for California oranges.

"During the last few weeks, they have climbed slightly," he reported. Flour set a new low record this week, 10-pound sacks selling for 95 cents, 3 cents below last Friday's average price. This is the exact opposite of a predicted increase this week made by a grocer last Friday.

Miss Albee will be accompanied by Mildred Young. Cobb will be assisted by Kenneth Klaus, viola, Katherine Knight and Norman Cross, piano.

MARKET BASKET INDEX table with columns for Item, This Week, and Last Week. Items include butter, eggs, coffee, oranges, potatoes, peas, beans, soups, sprays, salmon, cheese, flour, sugar, lard, margarine, beef, pork chops, bacon, and milk.

Housewives will be glad to hear the news, even if it is a rumor, that milk prices may go down April 1. One grocer said he had heard some talk among local dairymen that they are considering a price drop.

Dairymen raised their prices 1 cent per quart during the second week in February.

The Daily Iowan market basket survey is based on prices of 24 food items in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores.

Prices listed are an average of all stores considered. Yesterday's market basket index of $16.85 is an estimate of what a student family of three persons will spend for groceries this week.

The cost of each food item is weighed in accordance with the amount of that item a student family of three uses in a week.

IC Airport Commission Elects Croft Secretary

Prof. H. O. Croft, head of the mechanical engineering department, was elected secretary of the Iowa City airport commission in a meeting held at Hotel Jefferson yesterday.

V. W. Bales, 430 S. Dodge street, was re-elected chairman.

Other commissioners are Wilbur D. Cannon, 602 S. Summit street; E. F. Lenthe, 445 Hutchinson street, and William R. Hart, 730 E. Burlington street.

Student Reports Car Damaged While Parked

Leonard Nystrom, A3, Joliet, Ill., reported to police yesterday morning that his parked car had been hit sometime during the night by an unidentified automobile.

The left rear fender of the Nystrom car was dented and the back bumper was knocked off. The car was parked on Davenport street near Gilbert street.

There was evidence that the unidentified car was blue, since Nystrom found blue paint on the fender of his car.

Kadlec Fines Trucker

Frank Dickson, Omaha, Neb., was fined $37.50 yesterday by Justice of the Peace J. M. Kadlec for operating a truck loaded above the registration limit.

An information was filed against Dickson Feb. 26 by Thomas W. Hannah and J. Clark Hughes, Iowa highway commission officers.

Firemen Entertain At Annual Dinner

Iowa City's firemen, their wives and Mayor Preston Koser were fire department guests at a turkey dinner at 6 p. m. last night in the City hall council chamber.

Due to recent growth in department personnel, this year's supper, with 40 in attendance, was the largest ever held, Fire Chief J. J. Clark said.

The large number attending the banquet posed a mechanical problem for the department. The small table formerly used would not accommodate last night's function. The table finally employed extended the full length of the council chamber.

An unidentified Iowa City merchant provided part of the turkey served at the meal. He donates a bird every Christmas and the firemen keep it in cold storage for the annual dinner. This year's gift, a huge 20-pounder, was one of three turkeys prepared for last night's feast.

The two shifts of firemen alternate in serving the meal. Last night was shift one's turn, so they donned aprons and dished up the food.

UWF Adopts 3-Point Plan

A three-fold program was adopted last night at a meeting of the university chapter of United World Federalists, to urge passage of a United Nations reorganization resolution now in congress.

The resolution being supported by the World Federalists is one asking President Truman to "take the initiative in calling a general conference of the United Nations for the purpose of making the United Nations capable of enacting, interpreting and enforcing world law to prevent war."

The program involves: 1. Collecting support for the resolution now in congress. 2. Getting people to write congressmen urging passage of the resolution. 3. Getting people to sign cards, stating, "I am for world government."

Boston U. Professor To Sing in 'Elijah'

Houghton, a native Iowan from Davenport, is a graduate of the University of Iowa music department. He will sing the baritone role of Elijah in the pre-Easter combined appearance of the university chorus and symphony orchestra at 8 p. m. in the Iowa Union.

Student and faculty soloists will be Prof. Thomas Muir, tenor; Obadiah; Faye Von Draska, contralto, an angel; Bette Johnson, soprano, the widow; Victoria Abodeedy, soprano, the youth; Harry Bannon, tenor; Ahab; Marjorie Miller, soprano; the prophetess Virginia Linn, alto; Queen Jezabel, and Shirley Remer, soprano. People, priests of Baal and angels will be represented by the chorus.

To Sterilize Mentally III

DES MOINES (AP)—The state board of eugenics yesterday approved applications for sterilization of 32 feeble-minded or otherwise mentally deficient persons.

All but three were present or former inmates of state mental hospitals. One application for sterilization was signed by the patient's sister. The others were signed by one or both parents or the husband or wife.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

A Matter of Definition

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

Constructive Criticism: A form of criticism which confines itself to telling someone how to do something wrong in a better way.

Thus when some of our statesmen practically declare verbal war against Russia, and carry on as if hostilities may begin soon, it is constructive criticism to tell them that what they are doing is unsafe unless they also adopt universal military training.

But it would be destructive criticism to tell them that what they are doing is perhaps somewhat reckless from the beginning, and that it might be more wholesome to explore once more the possibilities of agreement.

Destructive criticism is considered unsportsmanlike, something like shooting birds, and the understanding behind the bipartisan agreement on foreign policy is that all criticism must be constructive.

Thus when we fail to bring order to Greece after a year's effort and expenditure, constructive criticism says we ought now to try the same policy in China, too—as against destructive criticism, which would murmur loathsomely that maybe we ought to try something else.

In brief, if you see a man conducting dangerous experiments with a tub of gunpowder, it is constructive criticism to advise him to paper his house with asbestos, whereas it would be vicious, destructive criticism to tell him to get rid of the stuff at once, and find another occupation.

Charm: A deep, subtle appeal exerted by certain prospective presidential candidates; it is considered possibly to have something to do with the fact that they have never been in politics.

The Vice-presidency: A peculiar office in the American governmental establishment, whose incumbent is sometimes described as being, simultaneously, a member of the executive branch without power, and of the legislative branch without a vote.

The office is chiefly important during election campaigns, when a nominee for vice-president is usually sought on the basis that he must complement and round out the qualities of the nominee for president.

Thus, if the presidential nominee is from the East, the vice-presidential nominee should be from the West. If the head of the ticket is a kind of cold fish, you look for a Will Rogers type for second man. If the first is sort of internationalist in his views, it is considered fair ball to pick a sort of isolationist for the lower spot. If the presidential nominee is admired by labor or capital, then you look for a vice-presidential nominee who is admired, in reverse order, by capital or labor.

If the two could be put together into one, they might make the complete man, but since they cannot be so put together, the whole process is a kind of mystique.

The chief practical effect is to insure, in event of the president's death, the instant elevation of a chief executive who will be almost precisely the opposite, in every way, of the man the voters picked to lead the country.

Fantasy: An unreal, often wild and distorted, view of the future, such as is held by a man who believes that, with sound government planning, we ought to be able to level out booms and busts, and live peacefully, orderly lives.

These frenzied visions are not to be compared with the lucid, wholesome and realistic perspectives of truly sober men, who know that there will always be periods of unemployment and depression as long as mankind shall endure.

Critical Detachment: The attitude of some of our book reviewers, who discuss Jim Farley's volume about himself and Franklin D. Roosevelt as if it were a book about a politician, written by a statesman.

'Liberals' Stall Action By Wallace Group

By KELLY RUCKER
About 20 self-styled "liberals" last night were instrumental in causing the Students for Wallace group to postpone adoption of a constitution and election of officers.

Consideration of the constitution got under way after showing of slides deploring racial discrimination and a speech by Charles Howard, Des Moines attorney. Howard is vice-chairman of the recently organized State Wallace for President committee.

When David G. Coffing, temporary chairman of the Students for Wallace group, called for discussion on the proposed constitution, an apparently concerted action was begun by the 20 "liberals" to discredit the aims of the new organization.

Coffing recognized Charles Thodt, A2, Walcott, Iowa, who asked specific details of the constitution. Coffing read the constitution to the audience, numbering about 150.

It was then proposed that a constitutional committee be appointed to prepare the constitution for a discussion next Thursday night.

The "liberals" were headed by three sophomores who gave their names as Everett Waller Jr., Sioux City; Louis Scott, Davenport, and Charles Thodt, Walcott, Iowa.

The "liberal" group was orderly in its "stalling" technique, which apparently was to monopolize the floor.

After the meeting, reaction of the "liberals" to the attempt at organizing Students for Wallace was that the Wallace supporters used a "steamroller" method.

Speaking for the group, Waller said it was a "steamroller" because of the way the Wallace group sought to enlist members in the organization before adopting the constitution.

Asked for further identification of the anti-Wallace following, one of the 20 said, "We are what Prof. (Kirk H.) Porter would call 'purposeful people.'"

In a post-meeting statement, temporary chairman Coffing said, "The purpose of the meeting was to bring those interested in the Wallace movement together."

"Unfortunately, it seems that some 'group' of non-Wallace students attempted to disrupt the purpose of the meeting. However, they were not at all successful in their attempt. The meeting was a tremendous success, and as such represents another step forward of the Wallace movement."

County Group Backs Stassen

By RAY EASTMAN
Johnson county Republicans met yesterday morning, selected delegates to the Republican state convention, and unofficially picked Harold E. Stassen for the Republican presidential nomination.

Approval of the slate of state convention delegates proposed by the nominating committee came at the meeting's end.

For the first time in county history, university students were included in the delegation. They were James P. Goodwin, Ft. Madison, and Robert F. Tyson, William Meardon, and Ted Johnson, all of Iowa City.

Goodwin and Tyson are members of the university Young Republican league. A third league member, John Loughlin, Cherokee, was included in the list of alternate delegates.

The names of 29 delegates are listed below the picture above.

Not all of the delegates were present at the convention. Following approval of the slate, Goodwin suggested that since some of those named were absent, others present be allowed to have their names listed as alternates.

Dane turned down the proposal, saying delegates had 48 hours to signify their intention of attending the state convention by depositing a one-dollar registration fee with Teeters. Teeters is treasurer of the county Republican central committee. The meeting was delayed by extended deliberation of the nominating committee. Controversy arose therein over the number of Young Republicans to be included in the county delegation to the state convention.

The state convention will be in Des Moines April 2. Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) will deliver the keynote address, State Republican Chairman Whitney Gilliland, Glenwood, announced yesterday.

While the nominating committee deliberated, the county convention heard an address by D. C. Nolan, Republican candidate for the nomination for state senator from the Iowa-Johnson county district.

Local attorney Nolan said the nation's condition now is "much more perilous" than in 1932.

He recommended Republicans nominate and elect a president who will be a "good business manager" regardless of his name and personality.

Following Nolan's address, Dane called on the members of the group to "discuss the Republican presidential candidates with all the frankness of a Ladies' Aid society."

Said Atty. Kenneth Duplop, speaking for Devey: "We need Taft in the senate and Joe Martin in the house. Let's put Dewey, a good administrator, in the White House."

Atty. Dan Dutcher, for Stassen: "He has no false modesty. I like the way he speaks out and lets us know where he stands."

Jaycees To Hear Safety Director

Thomas Burke, program director of the national safety council in Chicago, will be guest speaker at the Jaycee safety campaign kickoff banquet Tuesday night, in Hotel Jefferson, Carl Redenbaugh announced yesterday.

Redenbaugh, co-chairman of the Jaycee safety campaign committee said Burke would talk on "Community Safety."

Following Burke's talk, members of the safety committee will outline their plans for conducting the campaign. Window stickers, posters, literature and other publicity material to be used will be on display at the banquet, Redenbaugh said.

Invited guests may purchase tickets at the Chamber of Commerce secretary's office. Reservations must be made by Monday.

Surprisingly enough, third-party candidate Henry Wallace—"Somebody must be at the wrong meeting," said Dane.

The convention passed three resolutions, (1) to thank Prof. Stark and Robert Raven for leading group singing (2) to recommend Morrison for state delegate-at-large to the national convention, and (3) requesting the state central committee to furnish financial aid to the university Young Republican league.

Vandenberg was third with 10-19 and Taft fourth with 5-7. MacArthur and Warren trailed with 4-5 and 4-3 respectively.

Sen. Wayne Morse (R-Ore.) gained two write-in votes, as did,

Tots To Compete In Beauty Contest

All future Robert Taylors, Lana Turners and Glen Cunninghams are requested to enter the tots' contests in the all-campus carnival to be held April 10 in the fieldhouse.

Les Brooks, representative of Mortar board, discussed plans with the University Married Students organization council last night for entering married students' children in beauty and creeping contests.

Any student parent interested should turn in the name, age and sex of his child to his village council representative or to UMISO President Robert Van Horne (phone 7201) by April 1.

The two beauty contests planned include one for males and one for females, between six months and three years of age. A creeping contest will be held for young Cunninghams who are at "that creeping age." Any participant who gets up and walks will be disqualified.

Candidates for Publications State Views

Candidates for board of publications last night told their views of the duties of the board and the reasons for their candidacies at a dinner meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society.

Each candidate presented a brief summary of his views to the society.

Patricia Ann Wells, creative writing junior, Sioux City, spoke of her general approval of campus publication, though saying they needed some improvement.

Miss Wells suggested another magazine to be published "perhaps three times a year."

B. Jean Strong, Cedar Rapids, journalism major, spoke of her interest in scholarships for journalism students. She told of personal experience in newspaper work and declared, "I definitely believe in freedom for the editors of each publication."

Katherine McNamara, Winter-set, journalism senior, said the emphasis should be on choosing the best possible editor. Policy decisions should be entirely up to the editor, she stated.

Richard A. Dice, Marion, journalism sophomore, was represented by Edward Diekmann, Ottumwa. Dice's stand was presented as asking for greater coverage of student activities, particularly intra-mural sports. He also urged scholarships for journalism majors from funds of the board of publications.

Keith Glasgow, Iowa City, radio journalism, declared more efficient newspaper delivery was the main issue. Town students in particular need more attention, he said.

Sherwin Markman, Des Moines, political science junior, said he believed it was necessary to have a well-balanced representation of student opinion on the publications board.

Richard P. McClanahan, advertising junior, Des Moines, spoke of desirability of bringing campus publications nearer to professional standards.

John Nickelsen, Clinton, junior majoring in English, said he thought the various university publications were in good shape. He would work on the board with the idea of maintaining the high standards of journalism we have here at the University of Iowa.

Norman Schrader, senior radio journalist, declared that journalists have "a challenge in educating the public." The Daily Iowan, in his opinion, should expand its territory beyond Iowa City. This could be done, Schrader believed, by having a system of correspondents in surrounding towns and counties.

William Shuttleworth, Cedar Rapids, liberal arts junior, said that the policies of student editors should be their own. "Responsibility makes responsible people," he said in speaking of the need of care in selecting editors.

Dene Carney, Ames, advertising junior, said he felt his personal contact with The Daily Iowan make him familiar with the problems the publications board would face.

Last Night's 9 Below Breaks Record for IC

A March 11 low temperature record of nine below zero was registered at the CAA weather station at the municipal airport at 10:30 last night as the cold wave continued.

The previous low of four above was set in 1932.

The people rushing to get on buses yesterday were giving little thought to other years when happier weather prevailed. On March 11, 1908, the thermometer soared to 62 degrees in Iowa City.

The high yesterday was a frigid 11 above, registered at 4:30 p.m.
