

Dixie Parley Blocks Truman

WASHINGTON (AP)—An all-out battle against the nomination or election of President Truman was pledged yesterday by the southern governors' conference.

Six Dixie governors voted to "fight to the last ditch" against anyone advocating passage of the civil rights program which Mr. Truman recommended to congress and on which he said yesterday he "still stands."

Chairman J. Howard McGrath of the Democratic national committee called their plan "most undemocratic." He said it "can only be dealt with by the (national) convention."

All the six governors are Democrats, and the President is an avowed candidate for the party's nomination to a full, four-year term.

The President was not mentioned by name in a resolution pledging opposition to any presidential or vice-presidential candidate who supports federal laws on anti-segregation, anti-lynching, anti-poll tax and anti-job discrimination matters.

It left no doubt, however, as to whom it referred. Alabama's Governor Folsom told reporters: "That's Truman."

If Mr. Truman wins the nomination, despite southern opposition, the governors pledged themselves "to do everything possible" to keep him from getting the electoral votes of their states.

The resolution also put the governors on record as "repudiating the present national leadership of the Democratic party in sponsoring the so-called civil rights program."

Lewis Puts Pension Issue Before Miners

PITTSBURGH (AP)—John L. Lewis' fight for miners' pensions gathered new steam yesterday when the United Mine Workers' chief put the issue before the rank and file.

Lewis sent circulars to union local officers of some 400,000 bituminous miners in 28 states, telling the diggers that operators had "dishonored" the current contract by not agreeing to pay pensions to miners.

He asked the locals to hold meetings to determine their reaction to his stand and said he would be waiting for expressions of opinion from the coal fields.

One expression of miners' reactions came from Charleston, W. Va. President William Blizard of UMW District 17, said a delegation of miners came to his office to declare "something has to be done about our pension plan or we'll quit work."

The welfare fund, from which the UMW wants the pensions paid, comes from a 10 cent a ton royalty which all mine owners pay. The fund now stands at about $30-million. Operators have denied Lewis' claim that the 10 cent royalty is sufficient to pay pensions as well as welfare benefits.

Miss. Valley VFW Favors MacArthur

LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP)—Wisconsin delegate E. M. Dick Greinke yesterday said approximately 65 percent of the delegates attending the Mississippi Valley Veterans of Foreign Wars conference gave verbal support to the candidacy of General Douglas MacArthur for president.

Greinke said no official action was taken, but an individual poll he took showed "the members seem to be about 65 percent in favor of MacArthur."

Women Voters Seek Ordinance To Avoid Controversies Over Future Tree Cutting

The local League of Women Voters has requested a city ordinance to prevent future controversies like the one which arose recently over cutting trees to make room for an electric power line.

The request came in a report yesterday from the league's "Government in Operation" committee on its tree-cutting survey. Dr. Andrew Woods, member of the city planning commission, is drafting an ordinance to be presented to the city council next week. Content of the ordinance will be withheld until it has been considered by the council, Dr. Woods said yesterday.

Members of the committee questioned property-owners and local officials concerning the removal of trees in northeast Iowa City last month by the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co.

"The investigation found evidence," the report states, "that confusion and conflict of opinion did exist as to:

1. The legal rights and responsibilities of a property owner regarding the trees, flowers and shrubs growing in the parking areas in front of his property.

2. The legal rights and powers both of the city council and of any company operating under a franchise permitting the construction of power lines in the city to remove or trim trees within these areas."

The committee summarizes its report as follows: "Insofar as we have been able to interpret the Code of Iowa and the Municipal Code of the City of

Economic Advisers Lash Steel Raises

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman's economic advisers said last night the price increases by major steel companies were ordered without due regard for the "public interest." The justice department said they warrant further anti-trust investigation.

Three reports, requested by Mr. Truman following February's round of $5 to $6 a ton price boosts on semi-finished steel, were made public by the white house.

The gist of their findings: President's council of economic advisers: The action demonstrates that "inflationary influences are still strong." Price, wage and ration control legislation should not be delayed.

Justice department: All producers questioned have denied price-fixing collusion. FBI's anti-trust inquiry should be "completed" and enlarged to cover other recent steel price hikes. Buyers of finished steel products are likely to bear the brunt of the added cost.

Commerce department: The total amount of the February boost is more than $30,000,000. The effect on the ultimate buyer of cars, refrigerators and other products cannot be gauged "at this time."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A $15-billion home building program was recommended yesterday by the house-senate committee on housing.

The construction would be spread over the next 10 years. A big share would be rental quarters for low-income families.

The committee recommended a four-year public housing program providing for 500,000 dwellings.

The committee's recommendations were set forth in a report. Actual legislation remains to be passed upon by congress.

Car Skids to Stop On Edge of River

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Soucek, 515 Oakland street, narrowly escaped being dunked in the Iowa river last night when their car, out of control, skidded to a stop about 15 feet from the water's edge.

The car crashed through the railing just north of the Park street bridge on N. Dubuque street about 7:50 p. m., Soucek said.

Mrs. Soucek is in Mercy hospital. Hospital officials at midnight said no diagnosis was yet available, but Soucek said he didn't think his wife was seriously injured.

Soucek said he was travelling north when the accident occurred. He believed ice on the street caused his 1935 Oldsmobile sedan to go out of control. The car was not extensively damaged.

Foreign — British Jittery; Revolt Flares Labor 'Purge' Faces Britain's Communists

The Klan — KKK Drugs, Manhandles 3 Newsmen

COLUMBUS, GA. (AP)—The newspapers here grimly and openly declared war on the Ku Klux Klan last night after three newsmen told of being manhandled—and worse—by members of the hooded order.

President A. H. Chapman of the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer company said the three were reporters Jim Bellows and Carlton Johnson and photographer Joe Talbot.

The three, said Chapman, were attacked while covering a Klan meeting at Shiloh about 40 miles from here and were not only roughed up, but drugged. While they were drugged, said Chapman, "compromising" pictures were made.

These pictures, said Editor Bryan Collier of the Ledger, showed Bellows with his trousers lowered and Johnson placed in "a compromising position."

Dr. Samuel Green, grand dragon of the Klan, said in Atlanta that he attended the meeting and there was no disturbance. He denied the accusations in full and said he certainly would have known about any pictures.

Even as Dr. Green issued his denial, Collier said a telephone call had been received from a klanman offering to show Johnson the pictures.

Johnson, said Collier, was forbidden to accept the appointment but did have a tentative agreement to meet the man tomorrow.

Dr. Green was asked if he would identify the head of the local klavern so his story could be corroborated from another source. The Klan chieftain declined, saying the man "might work for a Catholic, a Jew or a Greek and be fired."

LONDON (AP)—Britain's leftist Labor government is determined that a Communist coup shall not happen here.

So bitter has become the anti-Communist campaign led by party and government officials that newspapers, politicians and other observers are speculating that the next move may be a "purge" to clear Socialist ranks of fellow travelers and Communist apologists.

The campaign has taken on a new urgency with the fall of Czechoslovakia.

It by no means indicates any surrender of Socialism's leftist ideas, but it makes it increasingly clear Communism and Socialism cannot live together in Britain.

Many British labor leaders regarded Czechoslovakia as a progressive model of socialist democracy.

Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison emphasized the increased campaign against Communism last night in a speech warning the British people they are facing "the same sort of nightmare of aggression we thought we had banished by disposing of Hitler."

At the time the Communists took over in Prague, Morrison said: "The lesson for us is to prevent our trade unions being captured by anti-Democratic conspirators who would use industrial power to undermine the Democratic state."

Of the 640 members of the house of commons, only two are avowed Communists.

Registered membership of the communist party last November was 38,579.

SAN JOSE, COSTA RICA (AP)—President Teodoro Picado last night ordered martial law in Costa Rica as government troops sought to put down a revolt led by Jose Figueres, a political opposition leader.

Vandenberg Steers $5.3-Billion Aid Bill Through Debate, Kills Amendment Efforts

Byrnes Urges Revived Draft Against Russ

CHARLESTON, S. C. (AP)—James F. Byrnes, former secretary of state, said yesterday the United States should promptly revive its wartime draft to back up a new warning that this country is against further Russian expansion by force.

Revival of selective service "will contribute greatly to the preservation of peace," he added.

And the United States should "act," not just make a new protest, if Russia threatens the independence of Greece, Turkey, Italy or France, Byrnes declared.

The former secretary of state suggested the next "four or five weeks" may be critical in U.S.-Russians relations.

"While it is wise to think of our military strength four or five years from now, as a result of a program for universal military training," he said, "I think it more important to think of the situation that may exist four or five weeks from now as a result of our failure to adequately provide for the national defense."

At another point, he "guessed" the Communists cannot win the Italian elections April 18.

"If the Soviet intends to act in Italy as they have in Hungary and Czechoslovakia, we can expect them to move whenever they reach the conclusion that Communists cannot win in the election," he continued.

"They will not wait until the elections disclose that the Communists are in the minority."

Byrnes spoke at Corps day exercises commemorating the 105th anniversary of the opening of the Citadel, South Carolina's military college here.

Although Byrnes joined in Secretary of State Marshall's appeal for cool judgment in dealing with a "world crisis," he said that he spoke as a private citizen. Byrnes added he had not consulted with Marshall or President Truman on his address.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A history-making $5.3-billion European aid program won approval by the United States senate last night by a vote of 69 to 17.

The action which sent the measure to the house came at a dramatic night session after more than 11 hours of debate.

Advocates of the program declared it offers the best chance of saving 16 western European nations from Communism and economic collapse.

Opponents attacked the measure as a costly outlay which might undermine the American economy and permit Russia to shove its iron curtain to the shores of the Atlantic.

With galleries packed to capacity, a score of senators took the floor to praise or condemn the 52-month program for helping friendly nations help themselves.

The vote marked the first approval by either house of the plan outlined by Secretary of State Marshall in a Harvard commencement speech last June 5.

The measure, which authorizes funds for the first year's operation from April 1, faces new assaults in the house. Passage there is expected, but strong efforts may be made to reduce the dollar outlay and to add other foreign aid funds to the bill.

The actual appropriation bills are yet to come. The authorization measure left the senate without substantial change from the form in which it was introduced by Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich) of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Connally (D-Tex) the ranking Democratic member of that committee.

Time after time Vandenberg took the floor to call for the rejection of amendments which would have effected major changes in the bill. On each occasion he mustered sufficient votes from both sides of the aisle to win handily.

The bill faced its biggest test Friday night when Senator Taft (R-Ohio) offered an amendment to reduce the 12-month authorization to $4-billion. It was defeated 56 to 31.

Vandenberg steered the bill over two more formidable hurdles yesterday.

One would have established a new veto-proof international agency by nations pledged to resort to armed force to beat off "aggression" and "subversion." The other would have established a world reconstruction finance corporation.

In going to the house, the senate measure clashes with a single "package" foreign relief plan worked out by Republican leaders. The house version, now being worked out by the foreign affairs committee, would wrap up in one package economic aid to Europe, economic and military aid to China, and military aid for Greece and Turkey.

The administration has asked $570-million in economic aid alone for China, and $275-million for military aid for Greece and Turkey.

With the European measure at last disposed of after more than two months of continuous work, the senate foreign relations group tomorrow will turn to the China and Greek-Turkey programs. Secretary of State Marshall will be the first witness at a closed door session.

The ERP bill cleared its last major obstacle when the senate rejected a substitute world RFC plan by a vote of 68 to 22.

Earlier the senate beat down another attempt to make a major change in the bill by rejecting a proposal to create a new veto-proof world agency to block the spread of Communism.

The substitute measure, sponsored by Senator Caphart (R-Ind) called for an outlay of $5-billion.

Of this, $2-billion would have been authorized for relief only; the remaining $3-billion for economic phases of recovery.

Nations other than the 16 participants in the Marshall plan would have been eligible for both the relief and economic phases of the program.

Caphart proposed to use the reconstruction finance corporation (RFC) as the agency for dealing with foreign recovery.

Caphart's substitute called for participating nations to match recovery funds put up by this country.

Dean J. Ben Robinson, of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, told graduating medical and dental students yesterday morning, there is a "growing conviction that health ranks as a basic necessity along with food, clothing and shelter."

Speaking in the main lounge of the Iowa Union, Dean Robinson challenged the 57 medical and 27 dental students to "participate in the solution of the problem of demands for health care for the American people."

"Realities of the health picture reveal there is a very considerable number of our population who are physically unfit," the speaker stated. "An estimated one-quarter of all the youth of teenage and under in the U. S. are suffering from physical disabilities or handicaps, including mental deficiencies."

Following Robinson's address, Capt. R. B. Levin, head of the Iowa State college naval department at Ames, awarded two bronze plaques to the university on behalf of the navy department.

The first plaque was awarded for training students in the navy pre-flight school here. The second was for the part the university played in the navy V-12 program during the war.

Levin said, "The education of those men was successful because the knowledge and ability of the members of the staff of this university were equal to the task required."

The inscription on the plaques read, "This mark of commendation is awarded to the State University of Iowa for effective cooperation in training naval personnel during World War II" and was signed by Secretary of Navy James Forrestal.

Haffner described the accident thus: "I slammed on the brakes as soon as I saw him (Kellaney), but I couldn't stop. The street was very icy. I was going slow because I was scared of the ice—about 15 miles an hour."

Michigan Wins Big Nine Swimming Meet

Ohio, Iowa Trail; Records Shattered in Every Event

By JOHN HOLWAY
Michigan added the Western conference swimming jewel to its top-heavy crown, 62-59, over Ohio State last night, but Wally "Flash" Ris again snatched the individual cheers.

Ris outdid his own American record for the 100-yard free style in posting a time of :51.5, and then came back at the end of the evening with an amazing :50.6 as anchor man of the Iowa sprint relay team, which also erased conference, intercollegiate and American marks.

Since there is no established world record for the 100-yard free style, it is reasonable to assume that Ris' time is the fastest ever clocked for the event.

All-in-all, four American long-course records were thrown out of the books—three last night—and six national intercollegiate marks were also evicted. Big Nine meet records fared worst of all. Not a single one was left standing at the end of the three day slaughter.

Michigan entered the evening with a six-point lead, and squeaked out with its three point advantage. Iowa was second with 38 points; Purdue had 22; Northwestern, 15, and Minnesota, 6 and Wisconsin 2. Illinois and Indiana failed to place.

Keith Carter of Purdue pulled his second upset at Michigan's expense, when he bested Bob Sohl of the Wolverines in their breast stroke battle. Carter's time of 2 minutes, 24 seconds, flat, crowded Sohl's short-lived standard from the ledger. Carter defeated Dick Weinberg of the Wolverines in the 50 yard free style Friday.

Sohl, in the afternoon trials, had plowed through the 200-yards in a time of 2:26.2, which bettered the old American record of 2:27.5. But Carter in the finals last night forged ahead of the Wolverine in the last 30 yards and finished a healthy length-and-a-half in front of Sohl.

The Iowa freestyle relay team broke its own American record by three seconds and stole the show in the last event, the show-down between defending Ohio and challenging Michigan. The Buckeyes, with the completion of the diving, had been boosted to within five points of the pace-setting Wolves.

Actually Peppe's team would have needed the help of two other teams in between themselves and Michigan in order to hurdle the five-point disadvantage. Almost from the start, Ken Marsh gave Iowa a lead they never lost. Buckeye Bob Groot worked ahead of Dave Title of Michigan, giving Ohio a second-place tie on to.

Duane Draves and Erv Straub supported the Iowa pace, just slightly ahead of Ohio. Ris then plunged in and thrashed to his unofficial :50.6 to leave the Buckeyes' Hirose six feet behind. Dick Weinberg brought the Wolverines in third.

The 440-yard freestyle may have been the crucial event for Michigan. Although Northwestern's Bill Heusner copped it in 4:56.7, a new national as well as league record, Matt Mann III and Gus Stager of Michigan teamed to push Bill "Whale" Smith, Ohio captain, to fourth.

Smith stayed with Heusner and the two Michigan mates until the 300-yard turn when Heusner broke away. Fifty yards later, Smith had dropped to fourth while Mann and Stager drew away from him. Stager finally crossed about 20 feet ahead of the Ohioan.

Coach Mike Peppe of Ohio confirmed after the meet that Smith had been plagued for several days with a touch of flu in his chest, which obviously told on the great swimmer in the three events he entered. His endurance deserted him in both the quarter mile and the 1500-meters. Significantly, he made his best showing in the shorter 220.

Imps Play Conesville In State

DES MOINES (P)—It'll be Dav-entport's Blue Devils against little Conesville in the first round of the state championship high school basketball tournament.

With seven blistering games in final sub-state tests last night, the unofficial pairings showed the defending champions matched with the sharp-shooting lads from Muscatine county.

Ames Little Cyclones, coming along with a terrific late season rush, and Ankeny, the only undefeated team in the state, will start the first round activities at 9:30 a.m.

Boone, winner over Sioux City (Central), 1947 runnerup, will take on Carroll in the second contest.

Loras will play Fontanelle's Buzz-Boys in the second afternoon contest. Fontanelle, defeated only by Wola in a one point loss, stopped Moorhead 36-32 last night.

Galva and Hudson will finish out the afternoon program, and will be followed in the night opener by Manning and Livermore.

The big game of the lower bracket may be the Oelwein-Ottumwa clash in the second night contest. Central Catholic gave Ottumwa the honor of having two teams in the tournament by downing Albia, 35-29, and will meet powerful Sioux Center in the final first round game.

Taking Time Out With Buck Turnbull

Another Title for Michigan

"Hail to the Victors!" Yes, the University of Michigan swimming team reigns as the 1948 Big Nine champions.

Last night in the greatest swimming meet ever held in the Iowa pool, the stellar Wolverine tankmen dethroned defending champion Ohio State by a scant three points, 62-59.

It was a great weekend in local swimming which may never be equaled. When every existing conference record for long-course swimming is broken, eight altogether, set one other in the 1,500 meters, plus breaking six intercollegiate and five American amateur marks, you've had a full three days.

Beyond the record-breaking department was the exhibition of diving performed on the low and high boards. Only the Olympic games next summer will be able to put a better set of divers on the plank.

The victory for the Michigan mermen was the third Big Nine title captured by the Maize and Blue school this school year. The Wolverine football and basketball teams walked away with the honors in their respective leagues, too.

They must have a monopoly on the athletes in and around Michigan. Besides the three titles, the Wolverines took fourth in the Big Nine track meet, fourth in conference wrestling and also boast the best hockey team in the Big Nine. Not a bad season.

Smith Had a Cold—Probably the biggest disappointment to local fans was the performance of Bill Smith in the distance free style events. But the husky Hawaiian, who lost the 220-yard free style to Wally Ris of Iowa Friday night, had a cold all week and caught a touch of the flu after the Buckeye team arrived in Iowa City Wednesday.

Bill was expected to paddle in with the 440 crown last night but faltered badly towards the finish and fell to fourth place. "Gosh," Bill remarked as he wiped himself off with a towel following the 440 race, "I couldn't even lift my arms above the water in the last lap. I felt like somebody jumped on my back."

When asked what the trouble was, Smith said, "I've had a cold since last Monday. I feel fine but it weakens you an awful lot."

We remarked to Halo Hirose, another Ohio swimmer from Hawaii and close friend to Smith, that the long-course might have something to do in slowing down Smith.

"No," pondered Hirose, "I don't think so. Bill just hasn't been right because of the touch of flu he got here. Bill can go on any course when he's OK."

Bill Heusner of Northwestern, who won the 440 last night, voiced the opinion that "Smith may be working too hard." And it might be true. The Ohio captain swims more than three miles a day.

We also asked Smith the reason for his ukelele, which he takes on every trip. "Aw, I don't know," he drawled. "It's just something to do when things get dull."

We doubt if things were very dull this weekend, were they Bill?

Two Panels Discuss Education, Nursing

Teaching is a challenging and fascinating career. This is the opinion of four SUI graduates who participated in the UWA vocational conference education panel yesterday morning.

Taking part in the program were Mrs. Beulah Kemp, home economics teacher, Keokuk; Lillian Castner, physical education instructor, Des Moines; Mary Ann Rausch, pre-school teacher, Iowa State Teachers college, Cedar Falls, and Mrs. Charlotte Wurl, supervisor of special education, Washington county, Iowa.

Teachers' salaries in Iowa average $2,700 a year, Mrs. Kemp stated. For beginning teachers, wages range from $2,300 to $2,700. The average wage for beginners with a B.A. degree in physical education, Miss Castner said, is $2,430 a year. Those with an M.A. degree receive an average of $2,630.

Mrs. Wurl said there is a great need for speech pathologists in the teaching profession. "One out of every 14 people in the U.S. have some trouble talking," she declared.

A speech pathologist with a B. A. degree receives an average salary of between $2,200 and $2,800 a year in urban areas, Mrs. Wurl said. In rural areas, the average wage is between $2,500 and $3,200.

The field of nursing, occupational and physical therapy are "wide open" to students who have a sincere interest in people. This point was stressed by the hospital work panel in yesterday's conference program.

Participants were Jessie P. Norelius, R. N., executive secretary, Iowa State Nurses' association, Des Moines; Sue P. Hurt, director of department of occupational therapy, Washington university, St. Louis, and Marion G. Smith, executive secretary, American congress of physical medicine, Chicago.

"Women who enter nursing have an unlimited opportunity for a variety of work," Miss Norelius said. She emphasized that a nurse should have a broad education and cultural background.

"The minimum salary for nurses in Iowa is $175 a month," she added.

Discussing occupational therapy,

Women's Swimming Meets To Be Held Here March 16, 23

National women's intercollegiate telegraphic swimming meets will be held March 16 and 23 at 7:30 p. m. in the women's gymnasium pool.

The University of Iowa will receive scores of similar meets from 40 colleges in the central region, and wire all the scores to the national sponsor which will name the first five winners in the country.

Scores of one of the two meets held here will be telegraphed to represent the University of Iowa.

Women who wish to enter the open meet should contact Sally Henry, A3, Cedar Rapids, before Monday.

The 40 and 100-yard events include the crawl, back stroke and breast stroke. Women may also enter the 60-yard individual medley.

Teams of four women may enter the 80-yard freestyle relay, and there will be a 60-yard medley relay for teams of three girls.

The WRA Seals club is sponsoring the local meet, and the swimming officiating class will supervise.

Around the Campus Consultants

Ah, me! It's a great life if you don't week-end! . . . And, after another monotonous week-end, campus CHARACTERS are anxiously awaiting for the future . . . its green grass, picnics and that usual array of spring parties. (Characters. That must mean you, too.)

The spring fever kick will become even more contagious as convertible tops fold neatly in the breeze and uniform regulations become more brief . . . If the ice ever breaks at the "quarries" that should be the sure sign of spring. (Yes, wonderful spring. It helps "break the ice.")

Some female strategists have the lads guessing after evading the Pan-hel dance invite crisis by just going home for the week-end . . . That's one way not to definitely disappoint all five suitors!!

D.A. Miller's volume seems to be improving day by day having no definite frequency, "P.A." can be heard within a radius of 300 yards when the humidity is high . . . And, then there's Anne Smith whose persistent argument has everyone believing she talks to horses. "Smitty" claims to have talked to one "hay-burner" for three days before being recognized as a human. (She didn't have her saddle shoes on!) For rare occasions give a listen to a sincere "whinny" as only Annie can render . . . 'Tis much, much, much better than her jokes.

Al MacLaughlin is said to have the "scoop" on the final of that popular course, "Little Known Bird Calls." A master of the mating calls of the dicky-bird and the blue-billed pelican, "Mac" admits he is having trouble with the call of the "Cam-eo oriole."

For the finest in laughter, listen to Eva Adel Schlossberg . . . controlled volume and tone give a quality combination surpassed only by the "laughing hyena." To protect all bystanders Eva Adel has been limited by her roommate to four fifteen minute chuckles per day.

The "Beta Love Call" as originated by Rex Crane is said to be quite effective. Crane's dog, "Dammit," made an inspection tour of Currier last week and has filed a "top secret" report with his master. So now you know who hounds the halls at Currier . . . "Dammit."

CAMPUS CONSULTANTS' PRESENT prediction's hit disc of the week from SPENCER'S HARMONY HALL . . . Chosen from SPENCER'S fabulous collection of recordings and albums, this predicted "Hit Disc of Tomorrow" will be played by Bill Minchell and "Betsy" Blaise over "Tea Time Melodies" Monday afternoon . . . So all you record collectors and music lovers get ahead of the "Hit Parade" by listening to "Tea Time Melodies" and visiting SPENCER'S HARMONY HALL.

AND HERE IT IS! . . . Predicted for popularity is the RCA Victor recording done up by Tex Beneke and his orchestra . . . "STRANGE AND SWEET," with Garry Stevens vocalizing. Backed Always thought digging up dirt was our job but some cranes and bull dozers behind Currier have taken over.

Anyway, the story goes that a young freshie asked . . . "What are they doing out there with all those men and machinery?" To which the older Currier cutie replied . . . "Oh, it's just the engineers looking for the Blarney stone!"

Believe it or not, the freshie believed her. We denote a slight tinge of greenness so early in spring.

Who's the "Most forgetful person on campus?" . . . Nancy Yull, DG pledge! Going home for the weekend, she took her clean clothes home and brought her dirty clothes back!

MIRACLE OF THE WEEK . . . it happened outside the Phi Delt house. Phyl Tenney, Theta, and Jack Stuhr, Phi Delt, parked the car on N. Duquesne and went inside. Another car nudged the parked car and it merrily started on its way down the hill. The miracle happened in that the car, instead of going straight, seemed to have a mind of its own. It turned and slid into a small place between two other cars and parked parallel as nicely as you please and waited patiently for Phyl and Jack to come out.

Oklahoma for Easter vacation! . . . Seems to be the motto of about eight girls on campus! It all started when these "foreigners" from Oklahoma began a campaign. None other than Marty Fry, DG, from that grand old state, originated this one.

Don't know whether it was an old friend that "Bobbie" Baldridge, Tri Delt, ran into, but she really made a hit! Shaking and stuttering after the accident, she sat behind the driver's seat wondering what to tell father.

Just then, up walked the "Deacon," Milt Hollingshead . . . the master of any situation. He quietly opened the door and calmly asked, "Did you hear the joke about the two old maids at the races?"

"One old maid said to the other old maid, 'Say, have you got a safety pin?' . . . Just then the announcer yelled, 'They're off!' . . . and the old maid fainted."

It's leap year, ladies! . . . Be sure to make a hit with the man of the hour this Easter with a PIN KLIP by SWANK from HERTEEN AND STOCKER. And, to make an extra big hit with him, give him matching cuff links and a key chain . . . also by SWANK.

And, for the ladies, gents! . . . You'll find a fine selection of smart rings, chokers and compacts from which to choose her gift. REMEMBER, it's HERTEEN AND STOCKER for a gift they'll remember always.

The seven buckets and the drip, drip, drip in a certain library on campus reminds us of the bucket brigade at the Alpha Xi house composed of Pat Seymour, Jody Nissen, Dodie Bone, and Beth Jensen . . . Seems Roma Riss had a hot time in her room the other night when flames started flirting with her curtains.

The bucket brigade had the fire out in no time, but Roma's still mourning about the dirty water on her wallpaper . . . They used the maid's scrub pail!

Whether it's morning, noon, or night, it really doesn't matter as far as good food is concerned . . . Just go to the MAID-RITE CAFE and have that hunger of yours satisfied by their delicious food served at prices you'll like. The MAID-RITE has everything for all hours from pick up snacks to full meals. Your budget will never interfere with your appetite as long as you go to the MAID-RITE CAFE right across from the campus!

Then there's the Daily Iowan kid, Bob Carroll, whose comment on the Photography course is, "Snap . . . Snap!"

Ever since the California pledges were supposed to have stolen and eaten the cocker spaniel, the Betas here have threatened ATO, the wandering dog. Just try to get through a meal at the Beta house without being told you're having "dogburgers."

The makers of ketchup must be doing right well for themselves if the Theta house is any indication. From the end of Christmas vacation until the beginning of final week, the Thetas consumed four gallons . . . quite a record!

Just another note about that WSUI show, "Tea Time Melodies" . . . Bill and Betsy, who do a mighty fine job handling the show, would like you to drop a line to "Bill and Betsy" if you have any requests, suggestions, or predictions for their afternoon four-thirty to five program.

A congregation of coeds at WHETSTONE'S cosmetics counter may mean they've discovered Dorothy Gray's unique set of "ELATION" perfume and lipstick. Done up in a clever little red leather case, the lipstick is the new rosy red shade of "ELATION" and the perfume is as exciting as its name.

"Aw, I ran over a milk bottle last night."
"Didn't you see it?"
"Naa, the kid had it under his coat!"

Easter is coming up again and what could brighten the vacation more than taking a box of RACINE'S candy home for the family? Your best girl would go for the idea too! RACINE'S fine selection includes a fruit nut egg by Bunte, back again after its war absence. These are in either half pound sizes for 75 cents or pound sizes for $1.25. Other Bunte boxes are also awaiting you. Johnston's candies are featured in one and two pound sizes with price ranging from $1.25 to $3.25. When it's candy you want, RACINE'S is the place to go.

Patty Ricketts and Gloria Berg find the best in fashion at YETTER'S DEPARTMENT STORE

The "Brucewood" bolero dress, with its ballerina skirt and feminine blouse, is another YETTER'S fashion . . . To accent the fullness of the skirt, Gloria wears a rustling taffeta petticoat.

Templeton's Specialty — Improvisation and Parody

— A Long-Hair Antidote

★ ★ ★ By JOHN L. HARVEY ★ ★ ★

Last night I found myself unconsciously paying tribute to Mr. Alec Templeton in an odd way. Listening to the first part of his concert, I forgot the handicap with which he is afflicted, and found myself judging him precisely as I would any other pianist.

Judged in that way he is always competent, sometimes excellent.

He opened the formal part of his program with selections which included an unfamiliar "Fantasy in C" by Handel, and Bach's lovely chorale "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring" in an unidentified transcription. Both quite well played.

The main work of the program was Beethoven's C sharp minor sonata—"Moonlight" Sonata, if you must be mawkish about it. Mr. Templeton played the celebrated first movement with commendable straightforwardness, leaving out much of the lurid rubato which has become traditional. His tone was somewhat odd, probably owing to the unusual way in which he holds his hands. It didn't seem to me that he quite caught the rush and impetuosity of the last movement, but as often as I have heard this work, I've known only one pianist to do so (Wilhelm Bachaus).

The rest of the formal portion of the program consisted of familiar tid-bits. Outstanding, I thought, was an exceptionally sensitive reading of Debussy's often-played "Clair de Lune."

Templeton also did a very neat job on George Gershwin's second piano prelude. I could have done without a somewhat rigid transcription of Strauss "Tales from the Vienna Woods," complete with a noisy octave passage.

I heard some members of the audience complain—with some justice—that the program consisted almost entirely of ultra-familiar material. The presumable attitude of the public, however, was voiced by a young lady sitting behind me. "I'm glad," she said to her escort, "that he didn't play real deep classics."

The last part of the program consisted of Templeton's specialty, improvisation and parody.

In improvising publically, of course, Templeton is carrying on an old tradition. Bach and Mozart were both famous for their improvisations; Scarlatti and Handel once had an improvising contest—(Handel won). Beethoven first became famous in Vienna by improvising at gatherings of the nobility.

Templeton's specialty is to ask the audience for a series of notes, improvise a theme on them, and then play the improvisation in the manner of various composers. It's quite a trick, and he's good at it. He is able to do it partly because of his pianistic skill, partly because he knows the characteristic clichés of most composers. It's

45 Members Initiated At Highlanders' Dance

The Highlanders held their annual party and dance, "Highland Fling," Friday night from 9 to 12 in the River room of the Iowa Union.

About 45 new members were initiated into the organization. The new initiates wore their Scottish plaids for the event. Joanna Hurst, Leon; Lavonne Mersch, Masonville; Bonnie Wanmaker, Iowa City, and Alice Marie Lotridge, Centerville, were in charge of the initiation.

Movies taken of the Highlanders' performance at the Ohio State game were shown.

Col. W. W. Jenna, members of the military department and their wives also attended the affair.

Dance committees were Nadine Nieman, Manchester, decorations; Mary Vande Steeg, Orange City, programs; Frances Valentine, Casey, invitations.

Mary Liz Gillen, Chicago, was chairman of the dance.

Where, Oh Where Has My Piggy Bank Gone?

A fountain pen and piggy bank containing about seven or eight dollars, were reported stolen from the home of Dale Sandvig, 2220 F street between 8:30 and 9:40 yesterday morning.

Sandvig said the screen on the back door was unlocked and a small hole had been punched in it near the hook. He said he had locked the front door and hooked the screen when he left earlier.

Nothing else was missing, he reported.

Kilroy Signs Found On Sinbad's Trails

One of Kilroy's ancestors may have travelled with Sinbad the Sailor.

Typical "Kilroy was here" notations have been discovered on limestone cliffs along ancient caravan routes over which Sinbad, the pre-Christian Popeye, was supposed to have trekked.

The ancient inscriptions, discovered by the University of California's African Expedition, were scrawled on the walls 1,500 years ago by the Nabateans, Arabs of an ancient kingdom formerly controlled by Rome.

The writings are thought to be names of individuals anxious to record their journey through the Wadi Feiran, a canyon on the Sinai peninsula just east of the Suez canal.

Nothing comparable to modern Burma signs have been discovered yet, the expedition reported.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE COOK'S PAINT MAKES

Controlled Penetration Makes This Difference

ORDINARY PAINT

COOK'S SUPERWHITE PRIMER

Equal amounts of ordinary paint and Cook's Superwhite Primer were dropped on a test panel. Look at the results!

Ordinary Paint
Note the large amount of oil that is absorbed by the surface. Where this happens, there is not enough oil left in the film to bind the pigment particles of the paint together permanently.

Cook's Superwhite Primer
Here the oil remains in the paint film to bind the pigment particles tightly together. You get paint value of 2 coats—a primer and undercoat—in one coat of Superwhite Primer.

COOK'S PAINTS

"BEST FOR WEAR AND WEATHER"

125 E. COLLEGE IOWA CITY

EMPLOY A RELIABLE PAINTER

You can see the difference that Cook's Paint makes in your house. That's because Cook's Paints are made with the finest modern pigments and specially refined linseed oil. And when you use Cook's famous 2-coat house painting system, you make real savings because you need only two coats.

Yes, 2 Coats Do the Work of 3 WHEN YOU USE COOK'S PAINT Here's How it Works

"One Coat for the Wood"
First use Cook's new primer discovery, SUPERWHITE PRIMER. It gives you perfect seal and hiding in one easy-to-apply coat of paint. It doesn't soak into the wood, but stays on top to seal, allowing the finish coat to wear . . . and wear . . . and wear!

"One Coat for the Weather"
Now apply COOK'S HOUSE PAINT. See how much farther it spreads and how it leaves a protective layer of paint on the surface to resist the weather. You'll agree here's a 3-coat protection at 2-coat cost.

Oleo Tax Penalizes Society in General

Congressional hearings on repeal of the margarine tax involve something more than the one tax. They will to a large extent determine the future of the dairy industry, which plays so large a part in Iowa's own economy.

One newspaper (see editorial reprinted below) has set out to convince dairymen that they themselves should press for repeal of the unjustified margarine tax. The federal government levies a tax of one-fourth cent on each pound of uncolored oleo and 10 cents on colored oleo. This means virtually no colored oleo is produced.

Added to the federal tax are various state taxes. In Iowa it is 5 cents a pound. This means you pay an additional 15 cents for the privilege of eating margarine.

One approach is to convince the farmers that they could do better by producing more whole-milk products, as the Des Moines Register points out.

Another approach is the social one. It is well known that many persons, especially in the lower income groups, are not getting enough milk. This is so for two reasons:

1. Proportionally too much milk goes into butter. The amount going into butter has declined in recent years. But the amount left for whole milk and whole-milk products is still inadequate for a large segment of our population to have enough milk.

2. The price of butter is so high that persons in the lower income groups cannot afford it. This is a vicious circle. There isn't enough milk and the price of butter is too high for many to buy. This means inadequate diet.

Part of the reason is the antiquated method of pricing milk. It is still largely determined by butter-fat content. This method of pricing milk was determined decades ago when milk could not be shipped easily and most of it went into butter.

But now, with refrigerator trucks and railroad cars, milk can be more easily shipped. There is agitation in the dairy to base prices on milk-solid content. This probably would have a tendency to increase the use of milk for other than butter and give our population a more adequate diet of milk products.

In these circumstances of high-priced butter (kept there in part by heavy oleo taxes) and insufficient whole milk, there is no excuse for retaining the tax. From a social point of view, as well as the individual farmer's, the taxes are unjustified.

Dairy Farmers Lose by Oleo Tax

From The Des Moines Register

Iowa farmers who milk cows nearly always assume that they have a vital stake in maintaining discriminatory taxes on oleomargarine.

Many may buy margarine for their own families' use. And many recognize the injustice of taxes which penalize margarine in competition with butter—injustice to both the consumer and the margarine producer.

Still the average dairyman feels that somehow he benefits from the taxes on margarine.

The evidence is becoming clearer all the time that taxes which "protect" butter may actually be slowing down a needed shift of the dairy industry out of butter production into more whole-milk and other dairy products.

The record for the last 15 years shows a steady decline in butter production and consumption per person in the United States, despite the help butter has had from taxes on margarine.

(This is due to the) desire of consumers to have a greater share of their milk in the form of fresh milk or whole milk products. In a depression, such as in the Thirties, when consumer demand falls off, whole-milk supplies begin to back up in the large cities.

Then more butter is produced and butter consumption rises. But the long-term trend of consumer preference is plain as plain can be: It is for less butter and more whole milk.

This is an extremely significant fact for dairymen, especially Iowa dairymen, to face, Iowa has been, and still is largely, tied to a butter market for its milk. It is becoming more and more out of date as the trend away from butter continues.

Our dairy industry should begin to set its sights for a broader market—more diversified products and less dependence on butter. This involves a lot of things besides margarine taxes—including, for one thing, freer admission to eastern city markets for Iowa whole milk.

But one thing is sure: Blind adherence to out-of-date margarine taxes will gain Iowa dairymen nothing and may prevent them from modernizing their dairy marketing systems.

Packing Wallace Meel Condemned

The action of a group of self-styled "liberals" in trying to pack the Students for Wallace meeting the other night would seem to go beyond the limits of "purposeful people."

That it was within the limits of parliamentary procedure does not sanction the action. We ourselves have made our opposition to the Wallace movement rather evident. But we don't think it should be done by tactics reminiscent of the Hitler era.

That the Wallace people have "infiltrated" other meetings does not excuse Thursday night's action. To heckle and ask embarrassing questions does not merit attempts to prevent organization.

We'd rather allow organization in an orderly fashion and then plenty of argument and discussion afterwards.

Student Council Campaign Has Slow Start

By KELLEY RUCKER

A slow start. That's the consensus of opinion of most candidates in the election race for delegate-at-large seats on the Student Council.

An under-current of anxiety exists for some, however. The late start has them wondering who will be first to hit the campus with publicity stunts.

General opinion seems to be that tomorrow or Tuesday the campaign "will really start rolling." The campaign will reach its climax at an election-eve caucus Monday, March 22.

The caucus is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. in MacBride auditorium. Each candidate will be allowed four minutes to present a speech or skit.

Posters have been displayed in dormitories and on the campus. Printed handbills will probably make their appearance tomorrow.

For the most part, speaking schedules will start tomorrow when some of the candidates have their initial engagements to speak at dinner gatherings in housing units.

Reaction to individual platforms has been varied, but student interest in the campaign is growing, most candidates agreed.

According to the Student council elections committee, signs and speeches will not be permitted in units without permission of the unit. All campus signs must be approved by the president's office.

Crawford's Poll

TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

The interest shown by the student body in the Student council elections, March 23, has been very small. For this reason I am circulating a poll which I should like to explain at this time.

This poll concerns my platform as candidate for delegate-at-large to the council. All students answering the poll are asked to read the outlined platform, and then indicate the planks that they are most or least interested in.

My purpose in this undertaking is to provide the newly-elected delegates, whether I am included or not, with a working basis to use in the formulation of their immediate policies. From the tabulated results it will be determined where the prime interests and problems of the student body lie.

For my poll to be effective it must (1) reach a great number of students, and (2) cover all possible issues. In order to accomplish these goals I wish to give the following directions to those who will come in contact with my poll:

When you are contacted, seriously consider your problems and the program which you wish the council to follow.

When you have completed giving your opinion on my platform, record any additional comments or questions on the back of the sheet which you have signed. This will give the widest coverage of all issues.

When you have finished, return the paper to the person distributing the poll, or else pass it on to other students not yet contacted.

If all who participate in this poll will give their sincere support and cooperation, I feel that it will become a great help in guiding the next council's actions. It will also create interest in the coming election and thereby assure a large vote, which, in turn, should assure a hard working council for next year.

If there are any students who have not been contacted by next Wednesday, and they wish to take part, they may call me at 6611, and I shall personally see that the opportunity is provided.

DEAN A. CRAWFORD
Candidate for delegate-at-large

Kimmel's Platform

TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

Since my platform appeared in Thursday's Daily Iowan, several students have been asking me about my platform, and I would like to clarify a few points.

My platform consists of these three points:

1. Petition.
2. Investigate and vote.
3. Publicity releases.

There should be a definite way of bringing campus problems into the open with the aim of reaching an understanding of the parties involved. By having the students sign a petition and present it to the Student Council, they can carry out a complete investigation. This will be presented to the students so they will know both sides and then vote. If the university ignores this, then our own publicity releases will go throughout the state presenting both sides of the story.

With the students' help and participation through these means, you can have a strong student government to carry out your wishes.

KAY KIMMEL
Candidate for delegate-at-large.

Dierks' System

In this letter I would like to explain more fully the operation of a possible point system for campus activities which I have advocated in my platform for Student Council.

That more students should have an opportunity for leadership is agreed upon, and this plan is to make this possible:

Each organization would rate its own executive offices according to the amount of time and responsibility required for the position. On the basis of these ratings, Student Council would determine a relative numerical value for each activity and suggest a designated total as the maximum number of points an individual might accumulate from various activities in which he would participate.

For instance, if 25 points were the total suggested for a given year, a Student Council position might be valued at 15 points, and 10 points assigned to a YWCA cabinet post.

Therefore, an individual might hold both of these positions with a total of 25 points. Or if the presidency of UJA were judged to be a 25-point job, then it would be recommended that that person hold no other major position.

This would not be an iron-clad rule. Selection of activities must always be a personal choice. However, such a point system would have value as a standard—an indication of what an organization believes its offices require and of how the Student Council ranks it with others.

Capable campus leaders do not often seek responsibility in many activities, but are urged by other students to take additional jobs. My plan would not prevent qualified students from expressing themselves through leadership, but would set up a device to encourage more students to seek it.

The greater the participation, the sooner we'll get responsible student government and the much-desired school spirit.

The success of such a program depends on a complementary effort for increased "esprit de corps"—an enthusiasm for SU which is as real as that which we show for the basketball team.

All campus fun, such as nine-band Saturday afternoons, the May mother's day sign, swim night, will combine the school spirit characteristic of small schools with the advantages of our super university.

Critics' Opinions of 'Emperor' Music

'Exceptionally Good Show-Score'

By JOHN L. HARVEY

The music provided for "The Elegant Mr. Emperor" by librettist Herb Kanzell and Maestro Larry Barrett is neither "full of uplift," nor apt to provide "a message you can take home with you"—the Lord be praised! It is, in short, an exceptionally good show-score.

My metaphorical hat is off to both gentlemen.

The close fitting together of words and music suggest close collaboration—or perhaps a chicken-or-the-egg problem. Whichever came first—the book or the score—somebody deserves a good deal of credit. Kanzell's verse is often clever, but some of it might drive a composer to drink. Mr. Barrett, apparently without resorting to that expedient, has succeeded in giving some of Mr. Kanzell's most jaw-breaking stanzas a singable setting.

At times, it seemed as though there had been two collaborators whose names were not on the program. The DAILY IOWAN'S editor-in-charge-of-a-name-not-on-the-program informs me that the missing monickers are those of Gilbert and Sullivan.

In particular, there is a trio in the second act (called "You Must Not Fight") which would not have been out of place in "H. M. S. Pinafore" or "Iolanthe." Now that I think of it, a good deal of the vocal music somehow suggested de-Victorianized Gilbert and Sullivan. However, you could do a lot worse in that in a musical show. In fact, most musical shows do do worse than that.

The orchestral parts are well-written, and handled with a good deal of sparkle. Barrett kept everybody reasonably on pitch, quite observant of cues, and thoroughly alert.

The singing sometimes left a little bit to the imagination. Ardis Kresensky's singing of the opening number, "Just Like You," left everything to the imagination.

From a certain intemperate tone, you may infer that one member of the audience, at least, liked the whole affair. Quite right.

COMMENT Around Town and Campus

By RAY HENRY and RICK TIMMINS

The Johnson County Bar association recently recommended that an elevator be built in the court house. Its installation probably will be passed over when they find it will cost the county about $20,000.

Just to prove that even engineers get confused, the other morning one of our beard-growing friends arose, took razor in hand, lathered his face and took some swipes at his stubble before remembering he was trying to win the beard production contest. The only explanation he could give his fellow engineers for the missing moss was, "I should have opened my eyes after I got out of bed."

Another engineer says he's seriously considering leaving his beard as a permanent fixture. "I kinda enjoy mumbering into it," he says.

To drive out any illusions about the newspaper business being romantic and reporters overpaid. A survey of Iowa newspapers shows the average wage of a reporter to be about $31 a week. That ain't hay—but it ain't cabbage either.

With all the activity in the fieldhouse after three o'clock in the afternoon, the fieldhouse could be three times as long to accommodate the track team, baseball team and the football squad. In the original planning, the fieldhouse was to have another wing added to the rear of the ROTC armory.

There is a possibility that a

'Expressively, Generally Happy Score'

By JACK O'BRIEN

The calf-eyed shy-guy who is the "hero" of "The Elegant Mr. Emperor" uses "a couple of love songs and a few cliches" as recipe for success with the opposite sex. In the wonderful way of musicals, they worked.

As the fundamental formula for musical comedies, however, they are just as successful as a bunch of witted violets and a bag of melting cornmeal. It's been proved.

"The Elegant Mr. Emperor" has several love songs and at least that many cliches. It also has the vitality and good humor to mesmerize these banalities into boisterous high comedy.

The success of the affair lies in the neat inter-twining of the talents of Herb Kanzell and Larry Barrett. Kanzell's lyrics are seldom riotously funny but neither are they embarrassingly inadequate. Barrett's music is probably more consistently imaginative. But, the important thing is the two go well together. When the music fades thin, the lyrics seem their brightest. When the words falter, the music swings in to the rescue.

The score follows the inevitable pattern laid down by Broadway "Better's."

There is the humorous song of social significance ("Organize"); the geographical tour type song ("Fellow Travelers"); the love is like the weather type song ("Never a Sometime Thing"); the best-thing-in-life-are-free type song ("Until They're Gone"); the great-day-coming-manana type song ("Look Ahead"); the Gilbert-Sullivan type song ("The Well Dressed Emperor") and "You Must Not Fight"; and the wise guy's practical advice to the sweet young thing type song ("No, No, No").

This doesn't mean that the score lacks originality. It means it's a well-rounded, varied musical score nicely in keeping with the prescribed musical formula. The motivation may be familiar, but the product is refreshing and novel.

"The Elegant Mr. Emperor," purely a student enterprise, is the most spontaneous, unhampered show to charge across the boards since "The Dove and the Duck." It is better organized, more unified and far more satisfying than that earlier "happy hit." But like it, it fulfills a crying need for original productions with broad, popular appeal.

The entire show benefits from the experience of last year. The book is more coherent, the casting is more confined, insuring less vocal strangulation. The production and lighting are expert.

The expressive and generally happy score is in tune with the uninhibited, tongue-in-cheek action Hans Christian Anderson and Kanzell have catapulted into the show. This means that the show doesn't have to stop a-la-Hollywood for the music. It weaves around it and through it.

The current success of such obnoxious dead-beat ballads as "Near You," "Four-Leaf Clover" and "Now is the Hour" indicates a complimentary uncertain fate for this score. Primarily, it consists of show-tunes, neatly integrated to the script, a mark of distinctive success on one level that, unfortunately, usually means limited radio and juke-box appeal.

"Today's the Day" and "Look Ahead" are lively and contagious tunes. There is rhythmic subtlety about the love songs that is credit to Barrett.

The wistful "Song Without Music" and the more bouncy "Near a Sometime Thing," as delivered by Bobbie Cotter, are pleasant ear-teasers. "Until They're Gone" is pointed to fine effect by Grant Eastham. All three, and others, deserve wider play. They'd be a welcome, if startling boon, to that stupefying salute to the musical decadence of the moment, "The Hit Parade."

It isn't only in the dialogue that the show takes well-aimed pot shots at Guy Lombardo "... and Carmen." The entire score, both in composition and rendition, is a stimulating antidote to the narcotic style of the brothers Lombardo, which is so bad it's only served to rate them as the highest paid band in the land last year.

Now is the time, regretfully, for your reviewer to confess he is a pushover for a good musical comedy—just in case you hadn't guessed. The Panacea show is just that—a good, a very good musical comedy.

'D' RATHER BE RIGHT

Situation Is Disordered

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

If you had to settle for one word to describe the "situation," domestic and foreign, I guess disorder would be it.

One looks about and sees grain prices heading south, and the Russians heading west. The former movement threatens a recession, the latter something worse.

When, at such a time, Jan Masaryk goes out of a window to his death in Prague, the event takes on a kind of extended meaning, as an expression of the frank incredulity of our times. Who would have thought, at the end of the war, that within three years the postwar world would be one in which the gay and democratic Jan Masaryk would not want to live? His death is symbolic of the world's unbelievable present hour, its strangeness, its upsidownness.

But though there is a sense that the disorder of our time is general, there is almost no effort to meet it in a general way, with a general program, one large enough to prevent recession at home, and to re-establish peace and order in the world. Instead our statesmen try to break it up into bits, and each is content to worry his pet fragment.

A number of congressmen belatedly for military aid to China. A number of others hiss at "grain speculators." Still others think the answer will be found in probing Hollywood, and yet another group wants to cut taxes, as an uncomplicated, almost magical way out.

And each man takes hold of only as much of the general problem as he can carry in his two hands; each seeks a kind of manageable segment, which is made to look like the whole thing.

What we need is a renewed humility, a realization that none of these jobs is very likely to work. We need to face the fact that our problems are big, and general, that the "trouble" which has come to every other country following the war had put in a sort of American visit, too. We need a program big enough to tame the huge disorder.

Part of it, certainly, would have to be a plan to curb recession, and to mitigate its effects. The Marshall plan clearly fits in, too; to abandon or weaken it now would transform mere disorder into chaos.

We need, also, a new approach to peace, a renewed drive to negotiation, before we reach the stage at which the very desire for peace will come to seem a weakness; and we are at the border of that stage now.

But the odd fact is that only through humility will we be able to approach and shape the big program; for the prouder and more arrogant our attitudes become, the smaller will our thinking be.

Can we do it? Part of the current disorder is due, not to our problems, but to the uncoordinated atomic dance of our methods for solving them, to our scuttling and our thin squeals, our attempted broken-field runs and our hunch plays.

Student Groups To Give Information on Summer Service Jobs Tuesday

An all-campus meeting on summer service projects will be held Tuesday at 4:30 p.m. in 207 Schaeffer hall.

The meeting, sponsored by the Student Christian council, Newman club and Hillel foundation, will be given to inform students of special summer work.

Short talks will be given on the American Friends Service committee, playground and camp jobs, denominational work, YMCA, YWCA and European projects.

Conrad Wurtz, chairman of the meeting, said the jobs will offer pre-professional experience for students. "The jobs will help students gain a broader education by working with people who have problems other than students usually experience."

Wurtz said summer jobs are available in Iowa mental institutions, reformatories in Iowa and eastern states, work camps in the United States, Mexico and Europe, city settlement projects and industry areas.

Engineers' Mecca Week Celebration Begins Tomorrow

Engineering students' Mecca week celebration will open tomorrow with a "Get on the Beam" contest and Blarney stone hunt.

The celebration will end Saturday with Nat "Lotspoppa" Towles' orchestra playing at the Mecca ball.

During the week of festivities honoring St. Patrick, patron saint of the engineers, the students will hold an open-house for all students and townspeople in the engineering building.

Engineering displays will be shown there from Wednesday morning to Friday evening.

At a smoker Thursday, the engineers will select the beard contest winners, choose a queen and four attendants for the Mecca ball, and the senior engineers will present the new Blarney stone (if found) to the junior class.

The old Stone is still missing. Students and faculty will also present skits satirizing each other.

At the beam contest, beginning tomorrow at 9 a. m., a contestant must guess the approximate amount of pressure pounds it takes to break a beam 6 feet long, 6 inches wide and 4 inches thick.

Contestants will write their name, address and date of entry on a piece of paper to be put in a ballot box inside Bremer's clothing store. The beam will be displayed in the store's window.

The winner will receive a $5 cash prize.

Prize money will be sent the winner in the event he is not present when the beam is broken in the materials testing laboratory Friday at 2 p. m.

Engineering students are barred from the contest.

Case for Ripley

CEDAR RAPIDS (P)—Sheldon Anton, farmer living near LaPorte City, was astonished to find 18 inches of a broomstick protruding from between the ribs of one of his Holstein cows.

The cow, purchased at a sale last fall, had not been doing well and a short time ago developed an abscess on her side. It ruptured Thursday and the broomstick popped out. How the stick got into the cow's stomach remains a mystery.

Council To Discuss Sewers, Sidewalks

The sidewalk construction program, as sponsored by City Engineer Fred Gartzke, includes sections of 10 streets where property owners have petitioned to have
