Stassen Greets Nebraska Admirer

Politics — Spotlight on Nebraska; Beardsley Talks

Atom Power, U. S. of Europe Boomed by Stassen, Dewey

LINCOLN, NEB. (P)—Proposals that this country build six atomic power plants and help weld a United States of Europe were voiced last night by two major candidates in Nebraska's GOP presidential campaign.

Harold E. Stassen, plugging to pile a political victory in this state on top of his success in Wisconsin, broached the atomic power proposal.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, working the comeback trail after a bad wallowing in Wisconsin, said a United States of Europe could be built into a "fortress for peace" to halt the spread of communism.

Both are running in a seven-man race in which Nebraska Republicans will decide next Tuesday what man they would like to see nominated for president by their party. The vote is not binding on the 15 instructed GOP convention delegates to be named the same day.

Stassen indicated he will direct his campaign toward the farm and youth vote he credited with helping him to victory in Wisconsin.

Questioned at a stop in Omaha about reports that some of his backing there came from Democrats, Stassen told reporters: "There are millions of young people and young veterans who never before voted, or never before voted Republican, who are giving us definite support in this campaign. We welcome them, not only for our own strength but the strength of the Republican party."

Unlike those in Wisconsin, Nebraska's voters can't cross party lines in a primary. It will be a Republican verdict in this state.

Stassen said he thinks it might be a better test if the voters were allowed to mark their choices for first and second place.

This was seized on by some of his political opponents as a sign that Stassen doesn't expect to finish first here, as he did in Wisconsin where he got 19 delegates and MacArthur eight.

Senator Butler (R-Neb) said a Nebraska victory is already wrapped up for Taft, who ended a personal campaign in the state Wednesday.

Besides Dewey, Taft, Stassen and MacArthur, Gov. Earl Warren of California, Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and house-speaker Joseph Martin of Massachusetts have been entered in next Tuesday's primary.

Martin was boomed in congress yesterday as a possible dark horse candidate for the GOP nomination as a result of Stassen's victory in Wisconsin.

Beardsley Asks State Aid Plan for Schools On Permanent Basis

ANTHON, IA. (P)—William H. Beardsley, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, last night recommended a permanent program of state aid for schools.

Beardsley, state representative from New Virginia, said the aid should be in the amount of one fourth of total school costs.

He told a meeting of Woodbury county teachers that the last session of the state legislature was obliged to put state aid on a temporary basis in order to get the approval of the executive branch of the state government.

"School districts have a right to know what to expect in the form of state support when they draw up their budget plans each year," Beardsley declared.

Wallace Accuses Trio of Shackling Labor Unions

GARY, IND. (P)—Henry A. Wallace said last night that the "Wallace - Vandenberg - Forrestal remobilization program" is a "threat to whip labor into line."

The third party presidential candidate said its "major objective is a labor draft, wage freeze, forced labor and shackled unions."

Wallace spoke at a campaign rally in this organized labor stronghold. The gathering, sponsored by pro-Wallace groups, included many steel workers.

A small group of veterans of foreign wars, wearing arm bands, picketed the auditorium without incident.

International — Tension in Berlin: Set up Aid; Palestine Legion

West Blames Russia for Berlin Tangle; May Use Fighter Planes

BERLIN (P)—Britain and the United States accused Russia last night of trying to strangle trade between Berlin and the rest of Germany. The western powers threatened again to use fighter planes to keep open their air corridor to the west.

The last vestige of four-power administration in Berlin tottered perilously as some of the bitter words in the history of the joint government of Berlin were exchanged between east and west.

The western powers, standing firm in Berlin but apparently resigned to the splitting up of Germany, hastened their efforts to merge the three western zones. French, British and American negotiators met in important conferences.

Soviet occupation authorities proceeded rapidly in laying the foundation for an eastern zone German government. An official Soviet announcement which will appear in newspapers today said the Soviets had approved finally creation of a Communist-controlled economic commission for the eastern zone.

The Russian-controlled German news agency accused the Americans and British last night of repeated violations of air traffic rules over Berlin.

This charge apparently presaged Russian efforts to restrict western power use of the air corridor linking Berlin with western Germany.

Hoffman worked yesterday from a hotel room whose telephone never stopped ringing. He was in almost constant conference, there and elsewhere, with top government officials.

Business associates said he probably would announce shortly that he will take leave of absence from the presidency of the Studebaker corporation, South Bend, Ind.

Hoffman was forced to cancel a quietly planned trip to South Bend yesterday afternoon. There he had hoped to spend the weekend studying, in comparative seclusion, a list of 250 men who might be borrowed from the business and professional world to fill key jobs in the $5.3-billion ECA (economic cooperation agency).

Hoffman Sets ECA Rolling

WASHINGTON (P)—Paul G. Hoffman, without waiting for his oath of office, yesterday began building a foreign aid organization whose expected goal is a one-third increase in Europe's production.

The new administrator of economic cooperation, confirmed without dissent by the senate Wednesday, will be sworn in today (9 a. m. (CST) in President Truman's office.

Predicts American Volunteer Division To Defend Palestine

WASHINGTON (P)—Rep. Somers (D-NY) said yesterday a 14,000-man division, chiefly composed of Americans, is expected to be ready for the defense of Jewish Palestine by May 15.

"That will be D-Day, the day the British are scheduled to pull out of Palestine," Somers told newsmen, "and we expect an attack by the Arabs."

Somers is the author of a bill which would enable Americans going to fight for the defense of Palestine to retain their U.S. citizenship. The bill is before the house judiciary committee.

Barney Ross, former world's welterweight champion and ex-marine, told reporters in a joint interview with Somers:

"I'm 39 and it's almost ten years since I last fought in the ring, but I'm still in good enough shape to fight in this cause. I'd like to go today."

Ross is active in a recruiting drive in New York for the George Washington legion to help the Jews in Palestine.

Local — Miller, Baum Hit Wallace Ban; Gun Victim

SUI Speech Ban Denounced

By BOB CARROLL

SUI Alumnus Merle Miller and Prof. Bernard Baum of the English department yesterday protested the university's ban on use of university facilities by avowed political candidates.

A state board of education policy, the ban came up when the Student-for-Wallace organization tried to arrange for Henry Wallace to speak here April 28.

In a letter, Baum asked the public affairs committee of the American Association of University Professors' SUI chapter to study the ban and "bring recommendations" before the organization's membership.

New York Author Miller, a former Daily Iowan city editor and "not a Wallace backer," wired President Hatcher that he was "frightened and distressed by reports that Wallace won't be allowed to speak on campus. I wish to add my vehement protest at what appears to be a serious civil liberties violation."

James Jordan, head of the university information service, telegraphed Miller that Hatcher was in New York to address the Alumni club tonight. He said Miller could contact the university president at that meeting. The long-standing ban is applied to all candidates, not to Wallace alone, Jordan added.

Baum's letter said, "The existence of a ruling against campus speeches is not in question. Nor is it the charge that the university administration has not applied the ruling impartially."

"The fundamental issues concern the desirability itself of a policy that would close university facilities to political candidates who wish to present their points of view on matters vital to us all."

"The major questions which... have a bearing on the matter are these:

(1) Does not the university... present to the community an example inimical to the preservation of democratic ideals?

(2) Does not the university... sacrifice an important part of its educational service to the student body and to the community?"

Kennedy said the AAUP committee would meet Saturday for the first time. It will be an organizational meeting, he added, but Baum's letter will be considered.

Others on the nine-member committee are Judah Goldin, associate professor of religion; George Martin, professor and curator of cryptogamic herbarium; H. H. Wade, commerce professor; L. A. Ware, electrical engineering professor; Paul E. Huston, assistant professor of psychiatry.

Elizabeth Halsey, professor and head of women's physical education; George Kalnitsky, assistant professor of biochemistry, and Helen H. Nowlis, of the child welfare department.

Conduct Autopsy in Gunshot Death Here

An autopsy was held yesterday in the death of Elmer Penniston, 13-year-old Ottumwa boy, who died at 4:48 a. m. yesterday at University hospital.

According to Dr. George D. Callahan, acting Johnson county coroner, no results will be available on the autopsy until laboratory reports are completed. He said this might take several days.

The boy was admitted to University hospital Tuesday night to receive treatment for what he said was a gas pipe burn. But Wednesday, after his father had returned to Ottumwa, the boy admitted having a shotgun wound in his left leg. The information was disclosed during X-rays and conversation between young Penniston and a physician.

According to Ottumwa authorities, the shooting occurred March 31, but Penniston and a schoolmate, George Shewry, 11, did not reveal the actual circumstances of the mishap until a week later.

Ottumwa Detective W. M. Hicks said Shewry told him that he and the Penniston boy found a gun in an old cabin in a woods, and that George pulled the trigger not knowing the gun was loaded.

Hicks said the boys first told their parents and doctors that the injury occurred when Penniston fell on a broken pop bottle.

The boy was suffering a form of paralysis when admitted to the hospital and according to authorities he was having trouble swallowing. The nature of this paralysis will not be known until a brain examination has been completed.

Penniston was one of 10 children in the family. His father is L. H. Penniston, Ottumwa. The body will be returned to Ottumwa for burial.

Attorney Seeks To Free R. Hiatt From Hospital

CHEROKEE (P)—A hearing has been set for next Tuesday on a habeas corpus writ to free 29-year-old Robert Hiatt from the state hospital for the insane here.

The writ was filed in district court by A. J. Shaw, of Pocahontas, Hiatt's attorney.

Hiatt was convicted recently of assault with intent to do great bodily harm and was brought here after completion of his sentence. The charge was filed in connection with the shooting of Delmar Van Horn.

Hiatt had known Mrs. Van Horn when they were University of Iowa students.

Draft Bill Taking Shape In House; Men 18--30 May Have To Register

Labor Roundup

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON (P)—Southern coal producers accused John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers yesterday of breaking the Taft-Hartley labor law by refusing to recognize their association for bargaining.

Their complaint, filed with the national labor relations board, came on top of the government's contempt of court action against Lewis and the UMW.

It coincided with a statement by President Truman at his news conference that the administration is going to enforce the Taft-Hartley law to the letter in an attempt to end the 25-day old walk-out in the coal mines.

In the meantime neither Lewis nor the union showed any disposition to end the walkout. Nor was there any progress in the union-operator negotiations on their pension dispute.

WASHINGTON (P)—President Truman indicated yesterday that action will be taken soon to end the 24-day-old CIO meat strike.

He told a news conference that the Taft-Hartley act will be enforced to the letter in an effort to end the walkout.

A report that paves the way for the government to act was turned over to the President yesterday by the three-member inquiry board created by the President March 15.

CHICAGO (P)—A spokesman for Armour and Company said yesterday that production has been resumed in varying degrees in each of its 21 plants where CIO meat handlers have been on strike since March 16.

Some 2,400 hourly workers are on the job, with two plants on a full scale production and personnel basis, the spokesman said.

A spokesman for the striking CIO Packinghouse Workers of America union said "we flatly deny Armour's claims."

MASON CITY, IA. (P)—District Judge William P. Butler yesterday ordered a temporary injunction against the local union of the United Packinghouse Workers of America restraining its members from mass picketing and interference with traffic in or out of the Decker meat packing plant.

OTTUMWA, IA. (P)—Four railroad cars of meat with signs like "scab meat" scrawled in paint on their sides were stalled outside the gates of John Morrell meat packing plant last night.

Pickets of the striking CIO United Packinghouse Workers union stopped the cars by tossing timbers under them when they were pushed out of the plant shortly after noon yesterday.

WASHINGTON (P)—A draft bill making men 19 through 25 liable for two years' service was whipped into shape in congress yesterday.

The legislation, which also requires registration of all men between 18 and 30, was prepared by the house armed services committee. Chairman Andrews (R-NY) said hearings will begin Monday.

The senate armed services committee continued its hearing on the draft and universal military training but Chairman Gurney (R-SD) said demands for a bigger air force delayed things so much a bill might not be ready for a week or so.

Won't Discuss World Government: Truman

WASHINGTON (P)—President Truman said yesterday that the administration is not ready to talk with other nations, including Russia, on forming a world government.

The question came up at a news conference. A reporter said that the St. Louis Star Times had pointed out in a recent editorial that "one attempt might be to save our bid for peace if we invited the nations, including Russia, to a conference on the question of a real world government."

Is the administration ready for such a step? Mr. Truman was asked. He replied: The administration is not.

Mr. Truman told a questioner that a mob raid on the home of a Communist in Columbus, Ohio, and a fracas at Evansville, Ind., in which supporters of Henry A. Wallace were injured were both improper. But he said their correction is up to state governments.

Blame Government In Texas City Blast

HOUSTON, TEX. (P)—Uncle Sam was blamed yesterday in the Texas City explosion to the tune of more than $90-million in law suits.

Eight suits totaling $55,208,446, including a $50-million claim by the Monsanto Chemical company, were received here by the federal district clerk for transfer to Galveston where trial of the cases is scheduled to begin in June.

Monsanto's suit alleged the government "had knowledge" of the potential hazards of the ammonium nitrate but that it was packed and shipped from government plants while "innocently labeled fertilizer."

NOT FOR DUNKING
HOT SPRINGS, ARK. (P)—Doughnut shaped hailstones pelted the Oaklawn section of Hot Springs Wednesday. Residents reported the unusual hailstones measured about one inch in diameter.

KOUSSEVITZKY TO RETIRE
BOSTON (P)—Dr. Serge Koussévitzky, 74, Russian-born conductor of the Boston symphony orchestra, will retire at the end of his silver jubilee 1948-49 season, Henry B. Cabot, president of the trustees, said last night.

WARN OF INFLATION
WASHINGTON (P)—The federal reserve board warned last night that the government's finances are headed for the red and that "the prospect for inflation is even graver now than it was last November."

Other Developments

Other moves on the preparedness front:

1. President Truman pressed congress for quick cash to expand air power — $725-million. The house appropriations committee called an immediate special meeting and said it would have a bill ready by next week.

2. Navy leaders predicted President Truman soon may more than double his demands for funds to build up the nation's merchant marine.

3. Defense Secretary Forrestal cautioned congress to keep the armed services balanced, and not balloon one unit, such as the air force, out of proportion.

4. The White House ordered the war assets administration to hold up final disposition of all unsold industrial plants, machine tools and production equipment.

Only Minor Changes
Andrews said the draft bill is almost like the one recommended by Forrestal last week. The draft service ages were the same, but the registration limit was lowered from 45 years, as asked by Forrestal, to 30.

Veterans from 18 to 30 would be required to register, along with non-veterans. However, they would be exempt from the draft if they served a year or more during World War II.

Those with more than 90 days' service, but less than a year, would have to join the army, navy or air reserve to be exempt.

Fix Manpower Limits
Andrews said the bill would fix manpower ceilings for the three services. He said the limit for the air forces would permit it to build up to 70 combat groups in two years' time.

Deferments for dependency, occupation or schooling would be left to the President.

National guard members would have to register, but would not be liable for service under the draft law.

Army Using Test Blasts To Find Missile Defense

WASHINGTON (P)—The army will begin on June 1 a five-month series of experiments with heavy explosive charges to learn what underground structures are best able to withstand modern bombs and guided missiles.

The tests, some employing charges of as much as 320,000 pounds of TNT buried at depths simulating the point of penetration of bombs or guided missiles, will be conducted in central Utah and western Colorado.

Beaten Publisher Blames 'Political Intrigue'

Threat From Slot Machine Interests... Brutal Beating

JOLIET, ILL. (P)—William R. McCabe, Joliet publisher and politician, yesterday blamed "political intrigue" for a brutal beating administered by two men who left him unconscious in a roadside ditch.

A former state legislator and one time Will county state's attorney, McCabe, 65, was found Wednesday night on a highway near his farm, two miles east of Lockport. Both legs and one arm were broken.

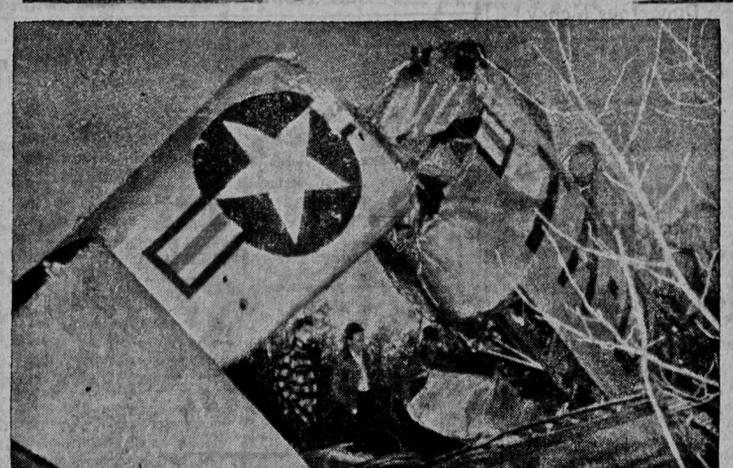

A candidate for committeeman of the 46th precinct in Joliet's downtown district, McCabe was publisher of the "Spectator," a weekly publication with vigorous political views.

Although sheriff John Kirincick said McCabe told him he believed the motive for the attack was robbery and not politics, the publisher's own newspaper said McCabe blamed "political intrigue."

Authorities said they were investigating reports that the publisher was threatened recently by a man representing hand book and slot machine interests in Will county. Sheriff Kirincick said he was told the man ordered McCabe to get out of the race for precinct committeeman.

The Spectator said also the attack "would be considered an attempt to effect his withdrawal from the campaign."

Cincinnati's Reds Talk of South; Loom as Threat in Senior Circuit

Blackwell Tops Pitching Staff

By JACK HAND
 TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Cincinnati's hustling Reds are the talk of the south this spring. With improved pitching to back up Ewell Blackwell, the Reds loom as a first division threat.

Pennant talk, of course, is premature in the second year of a rebuilding program. There are definite weak spots on the team that surprised by finishing fifth last season. But Cincinnati is coming strong and Brooklyn, St. Louis, Boston and New York must scramble to stay in the first division.

If any of the first four falter, Manager Johnny Neun has a well-organized team that could move in with the upper crust.

"I think we are stronger than last year in pitching," said Neun as the club broke camp after winning 17 of 27 starts.

"Rookie Howie Fox has looked as good as I expected and Johnny Vander Meer is way ahead of last spring. Tommy Hughes, whom we acquired from Philadelphia, looks like a winner. Of course, Blackwell seems to be ready for another good year."

Second base is one of the questionable spots on the club with Bobby Adams and Ben Zientara sharing the job. Another uncertain position is center field where Johnny Wyrostek and Clyde Vollmer alternate against righthand or lefthand pitching.

Hank Sauer, who hit 50 home runs at Syracuse in 1947, adds right-handed power to the attack. He has hit six or seven circuit drives in the spring games to earn the left field job. If he shows a weakness against righthanded pitching, Neun has the Veteran Augie Galan, who batted .317 in 124 games last year.

Frankie Baumholtz came to camp with right field sewed up and has done nothing to change Neun's mind. As a rookie, Baumholtz hit .283 last year. Marv Rickert, acquired from the Cubs on waivers, is the sixth outfielder.

Babe Young starts his first full season with the Reds as the first baseman. Red Stallcup, who hit .338 and sparked afield at Jersey City, is the shortstop.

Grady Hatton, a capable hitter and fair fielder at third, rounds out the infield. Claude Corbitt is available for utility duty at any infield position except first.

Neun expects Ray Lamanno and Ray Mueller to do most of the catching as they did last year.

Fox shot into the No. 2 spot on the pitching staff behind Blackwell by his showing down here. Possessor of speed and a sharp curve, he won 19 for Syracuse in '47.

Vander Meer, sent home with a sore arm last April, has shown no recurrence of his ailment. Bud Lively, winner of four games last season, has looked good in exhibition games. Tommy Hughes is counted upon as a starter.

Bucky Walters and Ken Raffensberger will be saved for spot duty with long rests between starts. Harry Gumbert will have full charge of the bull pen chores with occasional southpaw help from Raffensberger and Young Kent Peterson.

Williams Faces Possible Appendicitis Operation

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox hitting star, left here yesterday for Boston where he will undergo observation for a possible appendicitis operation.

Williams, who led the American league in hitting last season, complained yesterday of pains in the abdomen. However, club officials thought the discomfort was caused by a case of intestinal influenza. Williams suffered in Florida.

Manager Joe McCarthy and Traveling Secretary Tom Dowd decided to send the big slugger to Boston after Dr. Nicholas Chetta, New Orleans physician, recommended that he be sent back for an examination.

The Boston club was in New Orleans for a series of exhibition games.

Brownies Squeeze By Chicago Cubs, 7-6

DALLAS, TEX. (AP)—The St. Louis Browns choked off a ninth inning rally one run short of a tie and squeezed in with a 7 to 6 decision over the Chicago Cubs yesterday.

Going into the final inning with a four-run deficit, the Cubs combined three hits with some sloppy Brownie fielding to score three runs. But they were unable to wipe out the six-run lead the Browns had taken in the early innings at the expense of Russ Meyer.

A three-run triple by Pete Layden was the big blow in the Browns' attack. Nelson Potter, who blanked the Cubs for the first four innings, was the winning pitcher.

It was the Browns' eighth victory in 12 games with the Cubs this spring.

It's Proven! East Has More 'Tooling'

NEW YORK (AP)—The view that there is more basketball while-blowing in the east seemed borne out yesterday by final season statistics from the national collegiate athletic bureau.

A tabulation of teams committing the fewest personal fouls showed only one eastern team—Holy Cross—in the top 15. Conversely the list of teams committing the most personal fouls had five eastern teams—CCNY, Rhode Island State, Brooklyn College, Pitt and Army—in the first 15.

Southern Methodist committed the least fouls, averaging only 14.4 a game for 23 games. Tulane and Mississippi tied at second at 14.3.

Iowa State committed the most fouls, 546 in 23 games to average 23.7 for each game. Oregon and CCNY tied for the runnerup spot at 23.2.

18 Wrestlers Given Awards

Athletic Director Paul Brechler announced yesterday that 18 wrestlers had been awarded letters and numerals for the 1948 season.

Nine men received major letters, while two received minor letters. Seven aspiring first-year grapplers received freshman numerals.

The Hawks ran up a string of five consecutive triumphs at the start of the season before falling to the University of Illinois. Among its opponents Iowa listed Colorado State college, Bradley University, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Michigan.

In the conference championships held at the University of Illinois the Hawks tied for second, falling by one point to annex a first place tie. They finished fourth in the NCAA tourney.

The following men received awards: Major letters, Richard Barker, Osage; Ray Carlson, Ft. Dodge; Don Duven, Iowa City; Robert Geigel, Algona; Romeo Macias, Davenport; Vern McCoy, Waterloo; Don Rodenborn, Ft. Dodge; Joe Scarpello, Omaha, Neb.; and Richard Woodard, Ft. Dodge.

Minor I winners: Sebastine Canino, Omaha, Neb.; and Eugene Larson, Ft. Dodge.

Freshman numerals: Jack Abshire, North Liberty; Donald Kniffen; Rock Rapids; Roger Koller, Waterloo; Joe Paulsen, Davenport; Delbert Perrin, Cherokee; George Tesla, Waterloo; and Russell Tharp, Waterloo.

Hawk 9 Travels to Bradley U

The Iowa baseball team, with a travelling squad of 21 players, will leave for its weekend series with Bradley University of Peoria, Ill., by chartered bus at 9 o'clock this morning.

Coach Otto Vogel's nine will meet the highly-touted Braves in the first game this afternoon and follow with another single game tomorrow. In case rain intervenes today, the two teams will play a doubleheader tomorrow.

Vogel and Trainer Doyle Allsup will accompany the Hawks. The travelling squad is the same that made the southern trip with the addition of Pitcher Jack Weik.

The Bradley games are the final non-conference tune-up contests before the Iowans open their Big Nine slate against Michigan here April 16 and 17.

Bradley is expected to give Vogel's crew its severest test of the season. The Braves won five of eight games on their southern journey and split a two-game series with Wisconsin last week. They will start practically the same line-up which beat Iowa here last spring, 11-7.

Vogel is expected to give the pitching duties for today's game to Al DiMarco with Jack Bruner getting the assignment tomorrow. "Firm Grip" of football fame is undefeated in three starts while Bruner has a 2-1 record.

Iowa's line-up will probably be: Bob Smith, lf; Dale Erickson, cf; John Tedore, rf; Lyle Ebner, c; Jack Dittmer, 2b; Don McCarty, ss; Bob Primrose or Keith KaJer, 3b; Pete Everett, 1b, and Al DiMarco and Jack Bruner, p.

Barons Down Cardinals

BIRMINGHAM, ALA. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals were handed a 2 to 1 defeat yesterday by the Birmingham Barons in a game limited to four and a half innings by rain.

The birds were held to one hit by Irving Medlinger, 20-year-old left hander from Chicago who pitched for Oneonta, N. Y., last season. The hit, a double by Whitey Kurovski, was followed by two outs and produced the Cards' only run.

The Barons touched Jim Hearn for six hits and only brilliant fielding by the Cards kept the score down.

Tigers Wallop Crackers

ATLANTA, GA. (AP)—Bunching five hits with a pair of errors for six runs in the third inning, the Detroit Tigers walloped the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association 8 to 3 here yesterday in an exhibition baseball game that attracted only 1,113 fans.

Freddie Hutchinson went the route for Detroit, scattering 10 hits, two of them homers by Tom Neill and Charley Glock.

The Tigers collected 13 hits off Norman Brown, who stayed five innings, and Bob Katz, his successor.

Raise Olympic Funds At Carnival Saturday

An Olympic booth will be featured at the all-university carnival to be held in the fieldhouse tomorrow night.

The purpose of the booth will be to raise funds for the American Olympic team participating in the Olympic games this summer.

Iowa's Olympic hopefuls will man the booth and sell sheets of official U. S. victory stamps at the rate of 40 stamps for one dollar. The money raised will be given to the U. S. Olympic committee.

Klotz Reveals His First Team

Coach Donald Klotz will take the wrappings off of his first University of Iowa tennis squad here next weekend when the Hawkeye netmen open their season with a pair of non-conference foes. The team will be host to Coe college on Friday and St. Ambrose of Davenport on Saturday.

Twenty-six hopefuls are climbing seven months of intensive workouts this week, battling in do-or-die double-elimination tournaments.

Klotz hopes to pare his varsity squad of twelve down to eight potential starters. Four other players will be lopped off the 14-man combined freshmen and transfer squad.

Klotz, who inherited the tennis realm from Al Wendler last summer, looks toward a dismal net season with only three minor "I" winners and two freshmen—numeral men returning.

Mangrum Tops Masters

AUGUSTA, GA. (AP)—Lloyd Mangrum, the year's leading money winner and a heavy favorite to win the 12th annual Masters Golf tournament, got away to a one-stroke lead in yesterday's opening round with a 69, three under par.

Tied at 70 was Ben Hogan, Claude Harmon, Herman Keiser and Ed Furgol, three strokes in front of Jimmie Demaret, the defending champion.

Houghton Captures Intramural Crown

Hiram Houghton, Phi Delta Phi, continued his winning ways in intramural competition Thursday by beating Lynn Gray, also of Phi Delta Phi, 21-11, 21-9 and 21-10 to capture the Professional Fraternity league table tennis singles crown.

In the Quad league table tennis tourney, Laurel Hagerty beat Phil Wigg, 21-16, 21-19, 21-8, to take the singles championship. John Craven and Roger Menges teamed in the doubles to edge Al Noury-Esfandiary and Frank Logan, 21-18, 22-20, 22-20.

Applications Available for UWA Jobs

University women students who wish to apply for positions as chairman of next year's Information First, Vocational Conference and Spinners' Spree are urged to file applications immediately. Betty Dickinson, University Women's Association vice-president, said recently.

Application blanks are available at the UWA desk in the office of student affairs and should be returned there. Blanks for Spinners' Spree are due Monday, April 19, and for the Vocational Conference and Information First on Tuesday, April 27.

The deadline for applying for the chairmanship of the UWA 1948-49 calendar project has been extended to next Tuesday, Miss Dickinson said. Applicants should submit samples of their drawings and ideas to the UWA office. Originality of ideas and artistic ability will be considered in the choice of a chairman.

Selection of the chairman of Vocational Conference and Information First will be based on the value of suggestions for each project.

Sue Gronna To Head Student Christian Unit

Sue Gronna, Minot, N. Dak., was elected Student Christian council president, it was announced yesterday.

Miss Gronna is a representative to the council from the Lutheran Students association.

Other newly-elected officers on the council include Ed Buxton, Waterloo, Wesley foundation, vice-president, and Mary Vande Steeg, Orange City, Congregational student group secretary.

Mill Potee, Ames, was re-elected treasurer.

Approve Salary Raises For Welfare Workers

DES MOINES (AP)—A new salary schedule for employees of state and county departments of social welfare has been approved by the Iowa executive council and Gov. Robert D. Blue.

It will provide increases in the salaries set for new employees or those who have been with the departments a relatively short time.

(The Johnson county social welfare department reported yesterday that only one new employee of that office would be affected by the new salary schedule.)

Offered in the applications, and also on the experience and ability of the applicant.

To Be Married

MR. AND MRS. C. W. DACK, 717 Kirkwood avenue, announce the engagement and approaching marriage Sunday of their daughter Donna, to Wayne Maddocks, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Maddocks, Malvern. Miss Dack will be graduated in June from Iowa City high school and plans to enroll at the University of Iowa. Mr. Maddocks is a graduate of Malvern high school and is now a senior in the University of Iowa's college of education. The wedding will take place at 2 p.m. in the First Methodist church with Dr. L. L. Dunnington officiating.

Market Index Dips 2 Cents; Meat Prices Remain Inflated

By PAUL LUCKINBILL

Supported by high meat prices, The Daily Iowan market basket index remained at a "budget-stretching level" yesterday, dipping to $17.35. This is 2 cents below last Friday's index of $17.37.

Of the index's five meat items, only one changed in price. Center cut pork chops slipped to 70 cents, a 3 cent drop.

One meat manager expressed the opinion that Iowa City butchers have taken advantage of the CIO meat packing plant employees strike and have raised their prices unnecessarily.

He explained that few, if any, butchers are having trouble getting meat from independent packing plants. "All Iowa City stores have plenty of beef and pork," he said.

His views are backed up by a report on wholesale meat prices printed in Friday's issue of The Wall Street Journal. Wholesale beef prices went down 3 to 4 cents a pound, lower than in the pre-strike week, according to the Journal.

Ham was off 6 1/2 cents a pound while bacon was cheaper by 5 cents. Wholesale prices of pork loins and chops were down more than 11 cents.

Reasons cited for this were: 1. Prior to the strike, consumers jammed home freezers and ice boxes with meat.

2. Spreading strikes cut meat consumption. Coal miners, normally big ham eaters, are buying very little now.

Meat managers here report their sales volume has decreased since the strike began. "There isn't enough buying power to keep meat purchases at the lofty pre-strike level," said one manager.

Only four other price changes were found among the index's 24 items. Butter was off 1 cent, selling for 88 cents a pound. Grade A eggs climbed 2 cents, retailing for 47 cents, while 10-pound Idaho potatoes gained 1 cent, selling for 79 cents. Five-pound sacks of sugar reached 49 cents, 1 cent above last week.

Although grocers seem to have plenty of vegetable shortening on hand now at low prices, one grocer predicted one-pound shortening will go up 3 to 4 cents a pound soon. Since February, vegetable oil values on the market have risen. Processors say they intend to raise their prices accordingly, he added.

The Daily Iowan market basket survey is based on prices of 24 food items in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores.

Prices listed are an average of all stores combined.

Yesterday's market basket index of $17.35 is an estimate of what a student family of three persons will spend for groceries this week.

The cost of each food item is weighted in accordance with the amount of that item a family of three uses in a week.

Engaged

ANNOUNCEMENT IS BEING MADE of the engagement of two university students, Kathleen J. Cusack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cusack, Cedar Rapids, to Leslie C. Boysen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Boysen, Camanche. Miss Cusack was graduated from Roosevelt high school, Cedar Rapids, and is a senior in the university's college of liberal arts. Mr. Boysen is a graduate of the Elvira Iowa high school and is a junior in chemical engineering at the university. No date has been set for the wedding.

Party Line

Job Conference Speakers List Needs for Business Success

Training, initiative, personality and enthusiasm for your job are the prerequisites for success in the commercial fields, according to speakers at the third annual business careers conference here yesterday.

Fifteen representatives of various businesses discussed the employment outlook, starting salaries and responsibilities of their fields.

The employment outlook was never better than it is today, the speakers generally agreed. However, practically all of them stressed the need of a broad education, if you are to be successful.

The social sciences, economics, literature, natural sciences and mathematics all are valuable courses which college people should take, they said.

The conference was sponsored by the Collegiate Chamber of Commerce. All sessions were held in Old Capitol and University hall.

Briefly, this is what the speakers said.

"Jobs in foreign trade are available right now providing you have training. Foreign trade is excellent during normal times," according to Frank P. D'Aquila of the Iowa manufacturing company, Cedar Rapids.

Salesmanager R. Keller of Hormel Co., Chicago, said, "The present employment outlook in the sales field was never better than it is today."

"A real interest in problems of personnel management is more important than specific background as a prerequisite for personnel work," stated M. L. Putnam of the industrial relations department of Deere and Co., Moline, Ill.

"The accounting field's opportunities are unlimited depending on one's initiative and ability," declared James F. Carney, partner in a Waterloo public accounting firm. Business, he said, is placing greater and greater dependence on the "growing field of accounting."

Ray O. Mertes, director of school and colleges service United airlines, Chicago, listed the following qualifications for prospective airlines employees:

1. You should be able to meet and talk to people.
2. Airlines need people who are versatile and adaptable.

John W. Shoen, assistant Treasurer of LaPlant-Choate Manufacturing company, Cedar Rapids, told students, "Management wants the type person who will think instead of just punching the time clock, spending eight hours on the job, then going home for the day."

"You're going to have to start at the bottom," according to E. F.

Moorman of the Universal Engineering company, Cedar Rapids. He recommended that the would-be executive look for a job in a smaller company as offering better chances for advancement than a large one.

Don't say, "I can do everything," when applying for a job, warned

Austin E. Finnessy, public relations director, Iowa Federation of Labor. Head for the job you like, and don't drift. You probably won't get the work you want without experience, so get a job close to it, such as a clerical position where you can "keep in touch" with the place you want, he advised.

Law Society To Initiate 15 Students

Fifteen law students and graduates of the college of law and one honorary member will be initiated into the Order of the Coif, honorary law society, at the College of Law's Supreme Court day, April 15.

The 15 men represent the highest 10 percent of the September, January and June graduating classes. It is the biggest group ever to be initiated into the Iowa chapter, according to Dean Mason Ladd of the college of law.

The initiation will be held at 9:15 a.m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol. It is a part of annual Supreme Court day ceremonies which this year include an address by Justice Wiley Rutledge of the U. S. Supreme Court and the argument of a case before the Iowa Supreme Court by four senior law students.

Those to receive membership in the oldest of law societies are Lee

B. Blum, Hampton; Phillip W. Tone, Park Ridge, Ill.; Donald H. Shaw, Oelwein; David O. Stone, Marengo; Walter W. Reynoldson, Madrid; Larned A. Waterman, Davenport; James Barron, Iowa City.

Carroll K. Batschelet, Guthrie Center; Orville W. Bloethe, Victor; Robert J. Thornton, Waterloo; John Donnell, Waterloo; E. O. Garrett, Cedar Falls; Marion G. Michelson, Fort Dodge; Edward R. Hayes, Mt. Pleasant, and Wallace W. Butler, Waterloo.

Justice H. J. Mantz, Audubon, of the Iowa Supreme Court, will be made an honorary member of the Coif. He will deliver the Coif address at the ceremonies Thursday morning.

The Iowa chapter of the Order of the Coif is a charter member of the national organization founded in 1911. The order is based on an old English organization of barristers which is believed to date from the time of Edward I.

The order gets its name from the white lawn coif which was formerly worn by members of the English order. It is now worn in the form of a small patch of white cloth attached to the mortar board caps of the members.

Support Petition Drive to Strengthen UN

The United World Federalists are starting a petition drive today to get your support for improving the United Nations. The deterioration of world affairs certainly makes this improvement a necessity.

It will pay you to consider carefully the issues contained in the petition—study them and think about them even after signing the petition.

Basically, the petition is to support resolutions now pending in congress. Those resolutions call for a general world conference to improve the United Nations. Among the questions to be considered are elimination of the veto power. The questions would be considered in the form of amendments to the UN charter. Such amendments would not be subject to the veto.

One of the big questions still to be answered about the UN is its basic philosophy. It was founded on the realistic realization that peace depends upon cooperation of the big five. Therefore, the UN was set up to keep the peace once it had been established—not to make the peace.

But the fact is the big powers have not succeeded in making a peace to keep. That fact is all too apparent.

So the question now arises whether the UN should be an instrument to facilitate that cooperation among the big powers which up to now has been so sadly lacking.

That is one of the questions you might go on examining even after signing the petition.

Take a Look in the Mirror, U. S.

One can't help wondering at times what has happened to us Americans. It seems we've lost our balance, have tripped over a log in the path, completely losing our sense of balance and proportion.

The day after signing of the ERP bill we announce that we will send a navy carrier force to the waters off the Scandinavian countries. This is supposed to impress other countries with our naval might.

But one has only to recall the great cry that went up when it was reported that a submarine was lurking off our west coast. You would have thought war was imminent.

The only basis for the report was the statement of a pilot of a commercial plane flying into San Francisco. But the navy sent out alarms that would have led one to believe we were in immediate danger of attack.

There was absolutely no evidence that the sub was Russian. But the presumption was so made in public announcements. This was used to great strategical advantage in the congressional debates over increasing our military strength. "See," the military said, "they're right off our coasts even now."

But just last Tuesday the navy abandoned its search for the sub, declaring it could find no trace of it.

Yet only a few days afterwards we announce to the world our intentions of sending not one submarine, but a whole task force to foreign waters.

How quickly we can forget our condemnation of an act which we propose to imitate.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS—

On Scandinavian Naval Maneuvers

By J.M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Arrival of a U. S. naval task force in Scandinavian waters later this month will serve as reassurance to a much-worried area that America offers more than a mere breastwork of dollars against Moscow's expansionist tactics.

If repeated reports are true, the American warships will also be a sort of offset for Russian military activities which go far beyond mere maneuvers.

Swedish officials consider their universal military training system (for all men between 20 and 47) insufficient, and have been calling for more extensive defense measures. They are preparing to augment their army of 45,000 men and the home guard of unspecified size.

Norway has expressed determination "to die on our feet rather than live on our knees." She also has universal military training, and is reorganizing the home guard which augments her tiny army.

Denmark apparently has felt herself under even more urgent pressure. Easter leaves for her troops were cancelled this year, and 2,400 men who were to have been demobilized under her conscription system have been kept on active duty.

She has sought an agreement with the British for shifting her occupation brigade in Germany back to an area just outside her own borders on the grounds that these crack troops might be needed to handle an internal situation.

Russian naval activities in the Baltic, the finding of arms in Communist caches, plus Russian efforts to obtain many exports which normally go to England, all contribute to this nervousness.

The still-free Scandinavian countries were seriously upset by the Russian demands on Finland and will not be reassured by any protestations that Finland is still free, because she has not been actually free since the war. The Czechoslovakian coup's repercussions were louder in this area than anywhere else, too, because of Russia's proximity.

Norway, Denmark and Sweden would like very much to be more closely integrated with western European military and economic union just as quickly as possible.

To do this, Scandinavia must have assurance not only of western goodwill, but of western ability to back them to the limit in any conflict with Russia, political or military.

The American planes, warships and sailors in Bergen will be saying "here's a sample."

Story of Union Welfare Funds--Past and Present

Part I—

The Development of Welfare Plans Through Period of World War I

(By DAILY IOWAN RESEARCH STAFF)

At the root of the present coal strike is a controversy over disposition of the so-called union "welfare fund." This series will examine first the development of union health-welfare funds. Then we will look at congress' position on the funds. And finally we will pay special attention to the miners' welfare fund, which is probably the most outstanding example of the many such funds in operation.

That goal has been partly attained by the International Ladies Garment Workers union in New York city, Philadelphia and Fall River. A complete medical care program for employees and their families was negotiated two years ago by the St. Louis joint council of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees union. The plan is financed wholly by employers.

PROGRAMS DURING THE WAR
Efforts of American trade unions to afford special protections to their members through crude forms of social insurance long antedated the old-age benefit plans of the states and the federal social security act.

Several of the present railroad brotherhoods started as mutual insurance and benefit associations and only later assumed the function of representing their members in collective bargaining. A system under which miners pay for physicians' services in advance through regular deductions from wages has been in use in bituminous coal fields since the middle of the last century.

The unions of barbers, pattern makers, plumbers and tobacco workers all had sick-benefit programs in operation by the late 1890's. The American Federation of Labor reported in 1903 that 28 such plans had been set up by its affiliated national and international unions.

Union sick-benefit programs have declined in number during the last decade and union leaders now advise against them.

From an actuarial standpoint, many of the union plans had a weak financial base. Benefits were set with little relation to risks or to the amounts paid in by members.

Benefits were often taken from the union's general fund rather than from special reserves. And claims for sick benefits always shot upwards in times of widespread unemployment.

Delegates to national conventions frequently complained that union officers mismanaged benefit money. At the same time, conventions would vote higher benefit rates, but would refuse to sanction any increase in assessments.

EMPLOYER-SPONSORED PLANS

A number of welfare plans, largely financed and administered by employers, were instituted by industrial concerns during the years 1900-1930. Often these plans had anti-union objectives. Welfare schemes were looked upon as one way of "winning" employees away from "outside" unions, and luring them into company unions." (Florence Peterson, "American Labor Unions," (1947), p. 9.)

Employer-sponsored welfare plans in operation during the 1920's included old-age pension plans, death-benefit plans, group life insurance, in-plant medical services, building and loan plans and profit-sharing arrangements.

The results expected by sponsoring firms were reduced labor turnover, long continued service and greater employee loyalty, avoidance of labor troubles, lower labor costs and a reputation of being an up-to-date and liberal corporation.

Welfare plans were frequently abandoned if they failed to produce the desired results or when a change of management took place.

"The management naturally reserves the right to withdraw a pension, an insurance or a stock-ownership plan whenever it wishes. No legal contractual relation is involved even in the case of the pension schemes.

"Another corporation taking over the plant, as for instance when Armour company absorbed Morris and company, leaves the pensioners without any pensions in spite of their long service for the latter company.

"The courts tell them they have no legal claim upon either company. The workers of the Sheelton Steel company fared the same fate when the Bethlehem Steel company absorbed their plant some years ago." (J.B.S. Hardiman and associates, "American Labor Dynamics," (1928), p. 218.)

In some cases, however, industry-sponsored welfare plans proved of such benefit to both workers and employers that they were maintained even after the economic collapse of 1929.

UNDER THE NEW DEAL
Adoption of the social security act of 1935 led to modification of certain union-financed benefit schemes. In general, the unions abandoned their unemployment and old-age pension plans, and switched to group life insurance and health programs.

And with the rapid spread of unionization under the New Deal, rules to govern employer-sponsored welfare plans began to appear in collective bargaining agreements.

Prior to World War II, union demands for inclusion of health and welfare provisions in labor contracts were rare. But there were several outstanding cases in which such demands were met by employers.

Streetcar workers in Chicago got the entire cost of sickness and life insurance paid by the Chicago Rapid Transit company. The unemployment benefit plan of the Chicago Amalgamated Clothing Workers union is financed entirely by manufacturers.

A few unions have negotiated welfare plans under which a fund is established to finance a cooperatively-owned health institute for complete medical care and hospitalization of workers and their families. The war years brought a large increase in the number of employer-financed health and welfare plans. In virtually all cases these plans were written into collective bargaining agreements. Welfare plans offered a convenient means of circumventing wartime wage ceilings.

The government's "hold-the-line" policy on wages led trade unions to seek various types of "fringe" benefits, including health and welfare schemes.

Employers, confronted with rapid labor turnovers and an acute shortage of workers, generally acceded to welfare demands put forward by strong unions. (Report of wage stabilization board, Sept. 13, 1946, p. 1.)

The national war labor board announced a policy on April 1, 1943, of approving all welfare plans voluntarily agreed upon by employers and trade unions if their cost did not exceed 5 percent of the pay roll.

In three notable decisions handed down in January and April, 1945, the board agreed:

1. To order an employer, if a union so requested, to include in the contract any benefit programs established in an earlier agreement.
2. To prohibit the abolition or amendment of an existing sick-leave or insurance plan for the duration of the contract.
3. To require the employer to institute or liberalize a group insurance plan "where it is clearly necessary in the interests of a fair and equitable disposition of the dispute."

HOW MANY COVERED?
The department of labor reported in mid-1945 that, exclusive of workers in unilaterally established welfare plans, some 600,000 workers were covered by health-benefit plans incorporated in contracts.

By early 1947, the number of workers covered had risen to 1,250,000—in large part because of the establishment of the United Mine Workers plan in the preceding year. These workers so covered represented less than 10 percent of the total number of 14,800,000 persons employed under union contracts.

Eighty eight percent of workers covered by welfare plans were in three industries—textiles, clothing and coal mining. But the labor department reported "an increasing number and variety of industries in which some of the workers are covered." ("Monthly Labor Review," February, 1947, p. 192.)

ADMINISTRATION
Procedures for administering welfare plans follow no consistent pattern. Some of them are administered by the union alone. Others are administered jointly by the union and employer plus, in a few instances, a member representing the public.

The department of labor's 1945 survey showed about one-third of the workers covered were under programs jointly administered by unions and employers. Plans underwritten by private insurance companies covered another third, while somewhat less than a third of covered workers were under schemes administered solely by unions.

A majority of health plans studied by the department were financed entirely by employers. None of the union-administered plans, and less than half of the program administered by insurance companies required payments from employees as well as employers.

BENEFIT PAYMENTS

Most of the negotiated health plans allow weekly cash benefits for periods of illness and of disability caused by non-occupational accidents and, in some instances, doctors' fees. Provision is seldom made for dental care or preventive medical service.

The maximum period for receiving cash benefits for any one continuous disability ranges from 13 to 26 weeks, with a 6-week limit in pregnancy cases.

Sick benefits do not begin until the eighth day of illness, but the payments start on the first day of any disability caused by accident.

Payments for hospital services, ranging from $4 to $5 a day, are usually allowed for a period of 31 days for any one continuous disability. Many programs pay no fixed daily sum for hospital expenses, but provide for hospitalization under separate plans sponsored by medical societies.

Only a few plans give benefits to dependents of trade unionists or to temporary employees. The group health insurance plans underwritten by insurance companies ordinarily provide that new employees may participate only after having been continuously employed for periods ranging from one to six months.

Union membership in good standing is a common requirement in plans administered solely by unions or jointly administered by unions and employers. The majority of plans administered by insurance companies do not make union membership a prerequisite to participation.

COVERED HOW LONG?
The question of how long a worker should be covered during periods of temporary lay-offs, seasonal slack periods, and leaves of absence is usually the subject of considerable negotiation in establishing a benefit plan.

Employers and insurance companies are generally opposed to paying benefits to workers who are not on the active pay roll.

Plans underwritten by insurance companies usually state that the insurance remains in force until the end of the policy month in which the lay-off begins, provided premiums are paid during that period.

Unions tend to hold that a laid off worker should receive full benefits as long as he has a "reasonable expectancy" of being called back to his job. Under union-administered plans, the practice is to pay benefits to laid-off workers, provided they maintain their union membership.

SOCIAL SECURITY
Specialists in the field of social insurance agree that an expansion of the social security program would afford the most dependable solution of the problem of caring for workers' health needs. They say that would extend to all workers the benefits which "royalty," "tax," or "assessment" arrangements seek to secure today for segments of organized labor.

But with the federal program still limited, and as long as congress refuses to extend it, unions probably will continue to press for inclusion of a welfare plan in their collective bargaining contracts.

Engel Recommends Slash in $641,067,000 Waterway Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Engel (R-Mich.) said yesterday he believes the $641,067,000 recommended for waterways appropriations by a senate subcommittee is too much.

Included in the senate group's recommendation is $700,000 for the proposed Coralville flood control reservoir on the Iowa river northwest of Iowa City.

Engel, chairman of the house subcommittee on army civil functions, steered through the house a bill providing for $102,703,000 less than the amount for waterways recommended by the senate subcommittee.

The recommendations of the senate subcommittee have to be approved by the entire appropriations committee and the senate itself. After those steps, the bill must go to a senate-house conference to iron out differences.

Red Cross Drive

The Johnson county 1948 Red Cross fund campaign needs $4,764,49 to reach its $23,750 quota, according to the Iowa City Red Cross headquarters. Contributions are $18,985.51 to date.

Iraq Is Scene of Political Tug-of-War

By DANIEL DE LUCE

BAGHDAD, IRAQ (AP)—Communism is legally invisible in Iraq. But the red underground extends from the mud-walled slums of Baghdad to the ragged tents of nomad tribes.

Under the Iraqi criminal code, the Communist party has been forbidden to exist since 1938. Its best agitators wear progressive and liberal labels.

The Soviet Union is 140 miles from Iraq, with Turkish and Iranian territory as a buffer. The Arabic-speaking voice of Tiflis radios through each morning and evening. To illiterate Iraqis—94 percent of the population—a spoken word is mightier than pages of printed matter.

The reds play all the angles. They say they are for the Arabs against the British, who used to hold Iraq as a mandate, and for the millions of peasants against the few thousand hereditary sheiks. They incite the city workers against the industrialists and the minority Kurds against the central government.

The nationalists are bitter critics of British influence here, but are even more suspicious of Russia. They denounce "class struggle," but they have to be continually on guard against red infiltration of even their own ranks.

"Communism can't be stamped out by police action alone," Nationalist leaders say. "Communism feeds on ignorance and poverty. Unfortunately, we have too much of those in Iraq."

The Soviets are not yet on the march. But they are not idle.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

A Talk With Senator Taft

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

I called on Senator Taft in Washington the other day, to continue the informal series I've been doing on the leading presidential candidates.

He met me with more smile than I'd expected, maybe because he appreciated the amusing aspects of being interviewed by someone who had denounced him fairly steadily for ten years.

I asked him about selective service and universal military training. He said the President might get the first without the second. Then he did something which (I came to feel before we were through) was characteristic. He proceeded to break the question down, to shred it.

He went into a long thing about how it was wrong to start with a draft, how we had to figure out overall strategic defense plan first, then look into it to see what manpower was needed, and whether you couldn't get enough for, say, a big air force, by voluntary means.

He felt the services were not getting along too well together, and were far from perfect agreement on defense, and that we were kind of rushing into a draft instead of working up a plan. "I don't see what U. M. T. has to do with the Russians anyway," he said. "They could put three million men on the ground to our one."

Sitting opposite this small, cool man, one suddenly had a strange feeling that if he were president it wouldn't make much difference who was in the palace guard. For better or worse, it would be Taft himself all the way.

It's an odd feeling; I don't think he's a great leader of men, but I don't think he can be led, either. It has something to do with a big I. Q., and with a kind of hard confidence in the reasoning process.

I remembered a campaign long ago, I think it was '36, when some Republicans were saying vaguely that we ought to have more unemployment relief, but that we ought to make it cost less, while others were saying that we ought to have less, and still others that we should have none.

Taft came out for exactly $750,000,000 of relief for the following year. I've remember it for 12 years, because he was the only man in the entire campaign who had said exactly how much relief he was for.

I asked him about the current crisis in foreign affairs, and he shredded that one.

"We don't know how serious it is," he said. "Has the President any information we don't have? It doesn't look as if the Russians will attack us with an army."

"What has changed in the last two years? They say Czechoslovakia, but Czechoslovakia has been Communist-dominated right along; when the Communists are in control of the police, that's domination.

"I have no information that the Russians are contemplating aggression. We bluster and get everybody worked up. We should walk softly and carry a big stick."

He stopped and became very thoughtful. "The Russians are very unreasonable," he said. "I'm as anxious to be against Russia as anybody. I don't really object to our policy; it's the atmosphere and the way we do it."

He stopped again. His hard-headedness seemed rather attractive in frantic Washington.

Then I remembered that his rather similar approach hadn't seemed very attractive in 1940, when Hitler was the issue. It hadn't been of much help to the world then.

Maybe, it seemed to me, his talk of today of being safe behind a big air screen was not so very different from his attitudes of eight years ago; maybe the missing element, both times, was belief in the possibility of making this a more coherent world.

It's a temptation, today, to feel pleased by any general expression on behalf of peace, and to forget the enormous, constructive work that will have to be done before there can be real peace. More on Mr. Taft tomorrow.

WHAT WAS HE LOOKING FOR?

Diogenes, an ancient Greek philosopher, went about the streets of Athens hunting for an honest man. He carried a lamp which, from time to time, he would raise to examine the faces of strangers, and then went on his way unrewarded. The strange old fellow ate only coarse bread and slept in a tub, convinced that the simple life and scorn of material things would bring real happiness.

IC Teachers To Get $300 Year Increase

Iowa City public school teachers will get a $300-yearly salary increase effective next fall as the result of action taken by the local school board at its regular monthly meeting last night.

President of the Iowa City Teachers club, Otis Walker, Junior high school principal, presented a request from the teachers for the pay increase. The raise in teachers salaries represents the estimated increase in living costs during the past year.

The board voted the raise with the stipulation that is to be added to present salary rates as a permanent pay schedule and that all future raises be granted as cost of living bonuses.

This pay boost will increase school board expenditures $38,000. Thirty-thousand dollars are to go to the 100 full-time teachers and the remainder to part-time school help. Last year's board awarded local teachers a similar increase.

City librarian Joyce Nienstedt last night submitted a letter to the board proposing that it enter into a one-year contract with city librarian board to share expenses of grade school books.

F. B. Olsen is chairman of the library board which wrote the letter. Estimated expenses for books would be $4,200. The library board asked the school board to pay $2,100 of the sum.

Under the present system of library circulation in grade schools, only two schools, Horace Mann and Henry Longfellow, have permanent book collections loaned by the public library.

Speakers To Open The Annual History Conferences Today

About 150 out-of-towners will arrive today for the two-day annual history conferences if attendance is the same as last year.

Prof. William O. Aydelotte, interim chairman of the history department, said teachers of history and the social studies in schools and colleges of Iowa and neighboring states have been invited.

Dean Elmer T. Peterson will deliver a welcoming address in the river room of Iowa Union at a 12:15 luncheon today.

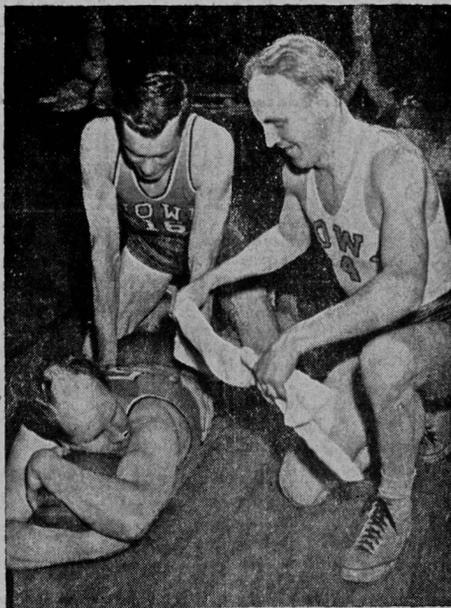

An afternoon session will be held at 2 p. m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol. Prof. William H. Hesselstine of the University of Wisconsin will speak on "States Rights and Human Rights in the American Civil War," and Prof. George L. Mosse of the history department here will give "A Re-examination of the Liberties of Englishmen."

Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the extension division will also give "A Preview of Selected Classroom Motion Pictures in World History" at this meeting.

Prof. A. C. Krey of the University of Minnesota will speak on "The Substitution of Law for Force in the Settlement of Disputes" at 8 p. m. in the same place.

Tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock Prof. Robert R. Palmer of Princeton university will speak on "What Modern History Should We Try to Teach?" and Prof. Robert E. Keohane of the University of Chicago will give "Articulation in History Between High School and College."

A Hancher's Hawk Gets on the Ball

CALLING ALL OXYGEN TANKS! Trying to revive Eugene Harlan of Hancher's Hawks, who collapsed after 30 seconds of hectic chugging around the fieldhouse court yesterday, are teammate John Ford (left), communications skills instructor and L. World Tension Part of Social Revolt: Bowen Present tension between the U.S. and Russia is part of a great "social revolution" in which nations are trying to adapt their social organization to modern technology.

This view was expressed by Prof. Howard R. Bowen, dean of the University of Illinois college of commerce and business administration, in a talk before the Great Issues class yesterday in Old Capitol.

Discussing six "Economic Causes of War" Bowen said "no one of them" quite fits the present crisis in American-Soviet relations. Various economic factors have in the past combined to produce war, Bowen said. But in the light of our experience of the cost of war and our knowledge of the destructiveness of atomic power, Bowen did not believe these factors likely to produce war in the future.

Rather it is the clash of economic ideologies and mutual suspicion which may cause hostilities, Bowen indicated. Both capitalism and communism are vulnerable and each fears the success of the other and finds it "intolerable."

"We know that communism has strong mass appeal," Bowen said. If communism were to be successful in its program, Bowen inquired, what arguments would we have against communism?

In the opinion of the former SUI faculty member, both systems will inevitably have to move toward the same goals. In support of

Four Radios Stolen From Local Store

Police report four table model radios were stolen late Wednesday from the Mulford Electrical service, 115 S. Clinton street.

The theft occurred between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 6 p.m. Wednesday, according to police.

The radios, valued at $104, were taken from the display counter in front of the store.

No evidence was found of a break-in, but Police Officer Harold Sprinkle said it was possible for a person to have entered through the basement by lifting a steel grate which covers the loading chute. This entrance was not locked.

The person could then have left by the front door which opens from the inside, Sprinkle said.

Police Seek Woman For Child Desertion

Mrs. Elsie James, Shariton, is being sought by local police for child desertion.

Charges were filed by Shariton authorities after Mrs. James left three children in Shariton to bring her seven-year-old daughter to University hospital for treatment.

Iowa City police said Mrs. James had worked in a restaurant here. An Iowa City cab driver told police that he and Mrs. James took a bus to Rock Island, Ill., and she is now supposedly staying in a hotel there.

She is five feet four inches tall, weighs 140 pounds, has blue eyes and blond hair, and wears glasses.

UWF Starts Petition For Stronger UN

Urging student support for world government, United World Federalists last night started a drive for 7,500 campus signatures on a petition favoring a strengthened United Nations.

Keynoting the drive, Dr. L. L. Dunnington of the Methodist church called upon students to use the power of the individual to influence congressional action calling for revision of the U. N. charter.

Resolutions reposing in congress, he said, are waiting for public opinion to crystallize in favor of making the UN capable of enacting, interpreting and enforcing world law to prevent war.

Meeting in Schaeffer hall, about 100 persons heard Dunnington declare that world government nations must give up their rights to declare and wage war individually.

Before Dunnington's speech, Lawrence E. Dennis of the political science department backgrounded the group on UWF's development and purposes. Prof. Leslie G. Moeller introduced Dunnington and moderated a question and answer period at the end of the program.

Twenty UWF members will canvass university housing units for signatures. Town men and town women may sign the petition at a booth in front of Old Capitol, Dave Campbell, UWF political action chairman, announced yesterday.

New Rotary Officers To Take Over Duties

Marc M. Steward, insurance salesman, will assume the office of president of Rotary July 1, Prof. Wendell R. Smith, retiring president, said yesterday.

New members of the board of directors for the club are L.C. Crawford, assistant director of hydraulic research, administration dean, Allin Dakin and Robert H. Lind, Iowa Illinois Gas and Electric Co.

George Gragg, boy scout executive, will remain as secretary-treasurer until a new one is elected.
