International — Jerusalem To Get Mayor; Austrian Treaty Talks Bog Down

UN Plans Mayor for Jerusalem

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Nations approved yesterday the appointment of a neutral mayor for Jerusalem.

The special Palestine assembly of the 58 nations then turned over to its political committee the urgent task of finding an adequate police force to back him up.

The vote was 35 to 0. Seventeen countries abstained.

The Jerusalem mayor, or commissioner as he is technically called in the assembly records, would be appointed by the British commissioner for Palestine before the British terminate their mandate May 15. He would have to be acceptable to both Jews and Arabs.

These actions came in a rare burst of speed in the assembly while President Truman told his news conference in Washington that the United States is making every possible effort to settle the Palestine conflict. Mr. Truman said all efforts are being undertaken through the U. N.

A spokesman for the U. S. delegation here said delegation members are talking constantly with Jews and Arabs to try to find something of agreement to stop the fighting in the Holy Land.

Only eight days are left before the British give up their mandate over Palestine. The assembly met at Flushing Meadow park yesterday with every delegate talking about the need for immediate action.

France and Russia rejected a scheme, first backed by the United States, to put Jerusalem under a U. N. mayor without any assigned police. The U. S. during the afternoon agreed that force must be provided from some source and urged that the political committee study a French proposal for a special international police force of at least 1,000 hand-picked men.

The U. S. was said to feel that 1,000 would not be enough to handle the situation. But beyond that the U. S. comment on the French plan was somewhat reserved.

Peace Treaty For Austria Bogs Down

LONDON (AP)—Four-power negotiations for an Austrian peace treaty were suspended indefinitely yesterday on the initiative of the United States.

Austrian Chancellor Leopold Figl said in Vienna that the interruption "destroys all our hopes for an early conclusion of the independence treaty."

The United States delegation here left the way open for new suggestions from Russia to keep the conference alive, but the day's developments indicated that the negotiations may be headed for the same sort of deadlock that obstructs the writing of a German peace treaty.

It was Samuel Reber, the American deputy, who was to be chairman, who brought matters to the showdown stage by announcing he would not call another session unless new proposals were submitted on the questions of Yugoslav reparations and territorial demands on Austria.

Yugoslavia, supported by Russia, demands about 800 square miles of Austrian territory, a demand recently reduced from 1,000 square miles, and $150-million in reparations.

New proposals obviously could come only from the Russians and would have to be in the nature of concessions if they are to be entertained by the western powers.

Reports from Vienna said that because of the suspension of negotiations, American military and civil authorities counted on an indefinite stay in Vienna.

In the negotiations which have continued in Paris, Moscow, Vienna and London for more than two years, both sides have made some concessions but never enough to bring them together.

U. S. Ready To Restore Relations With Nicaragua

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department announced yesterday the United States is ready to restore formal diplomatic relations with Nicaragua. They were severed following a revolt a year ago.

After advising the other American republics, this government notified Nicaragua it is prepared to appoint a new ambassador, the department said.

Czech City Remembers Patton

PILSEN, CZECHOSLOVAKIA (AP)—This industrial city broke out in spontaneous, unofficial celebration of the anniversary of its liberation by the U. S. third army of Gen. George S. Patton Jr.

While official week-long celebrations were being held elsewhere in Czechoslovakia in honor of the Soviet army, the people in Pilsen and throughout the villages and towns north to Cheb and Carlsbad remembered how Patton and his men of the third army had freed them of hated German rule.

That was three years ago in the closing days of the war in Europe. The advance of Patton's troops into the interior of Czechoslovakia then was halted on an order from higher headquarters. The Russians had asked that the soldiers of the third army wait at Pilsen for Soviet troops to link up with them. Russia was to be given credit for liberating Prague and Czechoslovakia.

The American flags were brought out after the people of Pilsen heaped wreaths on a granite cornerstone which marks the spot where a memorial to the third army remains to be set up.

The people began bringing the flowers before dawn and there was a steady trickle of persons to the monument place in Dr. Benes street throughout the morning.

Many wept openly. They stood there, looking at the flowers, silently, or talking in low whispers, remembering.

They remembered they had collected $100,000 to build the monument to the Americans.

They remembered that after the Communists took power in Czechoslovakia last February somebody took down the wooden plaque saying that the people of Pilsen intended to raise a monument. But the cornerstone was there, and that was where the people put their flowers.

Athenians and Liberal parties agreed last night to reshuffle the Greek cabinet. Parliament has been suspended for one month, guaranteeing the existence of Liberal Premier Themistokles Sophoulis' regime until early June at least.

There was no guarantee when parliament would sit again. Before Sophoulis and Populist Vice-Premier Constantin Tsaldaris agreed to suspend parliament, it was scheduled to convene Monday.

While no U. S. representative of the American mission to aid Greece would say so, Greek political sources said they understood the Americans favored the suspension because it would help the aid program.

Politics — Dewey in West; Local Groups Meet

Dewey Assails 'Carpetbaggers'

COOS BAY, ORE. (AP)—The tag of "carpetbagger" was tied to Secretary of the Interior Julius A. Krug and his predecessor, Harold Ickes, by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey yesterday.

It elected president, he said he would appoint a man from the far west to the interior post. The New Yorker, refusing to say whom he might appoint, told an Oregon primary campaign audience "the west should no longer be ruled by carpetbaggers in the department of the interior."

At Springfield yesterday Dewey aimed his "carpetbagger" remarks directly at the west. Westerners for years have been touchy over the fact that the west's natural resources were not administered by a Secretary of Interior from one of the eleven western states.

Education — Bar Dancer From Prom

STERLING, COLO. (AP)—Gilda Gray, who raised the pulse rate in the roaring '20s with her shimmy and song, was barred yesterday from the junior-senior prom at Sterling high school.

Dr. J. H. Jackson, president of the local board of education, said he had asked an assistant principal who invited Miss Gray to tonight's dance to cancel his invitation.

"I think the invitation was ill-advised," Jackson said. "Community pressure was brought to bear to prevent Miss Gray's attendance." Collins said. "It seems some members object to the word 'shimmy' in the newspapers." Miss Gray was not scheduled to dance.

As for the school board's objection to the "shimmy," she said: "I've danced at Yale, Harvard, Columbia and all around the world. The best critics have approved my dancing. It doesn't both me if Sterling doesn't want to be educated."

One of the Sterling Students wrote her a letter expressing disappointment. It said: "What was good enough for my father should be good enough for me."

Miss Gray, reached by telephone at a ranch near Larkspur, Colo., said she hadn't been feeling recently and was just as glad she didn't have to go.

Roulette Kings Quit As 'System' Fails

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Two University of Chicago graduates who have a roulette system which sometimes works and sometimes doesn't quit bucking the table yesterday and announced they planned a cruise in the Caribbean.

The two—Dr. Roy Walford, San Diego, and Albert Hibbs, Chilli-coche, Ohio, each 23, at one time were into the house $1,200. But their system, which they never have fully explained, went sour, and last week they came up with a $700 deficit after three solid days of playing in relays.

Yesterday, after a 24-hour session they announced they had dropped another $200 and "we're through for good; you can't win."

Administration Puts on Pressure To Avert Impending Rail Strike

CHICAGO (AP)—Many railroads began serving all their workers with layoff notices yesterday, in preparation for Tuesday's scheduled strike. Many others declared embargoes on perishable freight. Some planned to continue operating.

The actions indicated that any strike would almost completely paralyze the nation's vast rail system. The strike call provides for operation only of troop, milk and hospital trains.

The layoff notices are required under union contracts with individual roads. Some lines planned to keep their shops open as such work would not be affected by the threatened strike of three operating unions.

The embargoes on shipments of livestock, live poultry, and perishable cargo are to prevent such shipments from being stranded out on the lines if a strike starts.

Affect Local Roads

Three switchmen and two trainmen from Iowa City would participate in the nationwide railroad strike if it occurs next week, J. J. Deninger, local Rock Island agent in charge of operations, said last night.

"If any trains on the road would be running," Deninger said, "they would have no switching facilities at Iowa City to the local facilities or to the interurban line."

Herbert A. Christensen, chief clerk of the Crandic lines, said last night that passenger service on the interurban would not be curtailed, but Crandic freight service would be affected by the switching paralysis to the Rock Island lines.

UAW Says 'Strike Inevitable' Over Pay Fight With Chrysler

DETROIT (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers broke off wage talks with Chrysler corporation yesterday and said a strike of 75,000 workers Wednesday "is inevitable."

The walkout, if called, will be the first major strike in the auto industry since the union's 113-day fight with General Motors corporation in 1945-46.

Wage negotiations were in a "hopeless deadlock," a union statement asserted.

The UAW-CIO, accusing Chrysler of "an insult to human decency and to the dignity" of its workers by refusing a wage increase, laid the responsibility for the deadlock "entirely" upon the corporation.

The UAW's stand was enunciated in formal statement by Norman Matthews, director of the union's Chrysler department.

Originally, the union demanded a 30-cents an hour wage increase from Chrysler. A six-cents an hour counter offer came from the corporation.

When the UAW rejected this, Chrysler withdrew the offer last week and negotiations since have been reported stalemated.

Hard upon issuance of the union's statement, Chrysler defended its position asserting "Chrysler corporation has been bargaining in good faith and is willing to continue to do so."

Union Acts To Hold Packers To Contract

CHICAGO (AP)—The CIO United packinghouse workers union, currently striking against the nation's big meat packers, yesterday sued to compel the companies to adhere to contract provisions.

The suit was filed in federal court against Armour & company, Cudahy Packing company, Swift and company, and officials of the locals were plaintiffs.

The suit asks the court to restrain the companies from violating seniority, vacation, and sick pay provisions of contracts which run until August 11. Helstein said his union also will sue for damages to individuals.

The contracts permit either side to reopen negotiations on wages alone.

CARVER STRIKE CONTINUES

Muscateen, Ia., May 6 (AP)—Spokesmen for two striking unions at the Carver pump company announced today that a company offer made after two days of sessions with a federal mediator was not satisfactory. The strike, which involves about 200 persons, continues. The plant is idle.

National — Push Airforce Strength; Dulles' Program of 'Truth and Light' Senate Votes Over $3-Billion for Airforce

WASHINGTON (AP)—The senate, sizzling with talk of a "communist-threatened world," yesterday approved by a landslide 74 to 2 vote a $3,232,000,000 measure to build a 70-group airforce.

Only Senators Taylor (D-Iowa) and Cain (R-Wash.) voted against it.

The legislation now goes back to the house, which passed an almost similar bill 343 to 3, for action on a few minor senate amendments. Little trouble is expected in reaching a compromise between the two.

Then the final bill goes to the President for his signature or veto.

Senator Bridges (R-N.H.), chairman of the appropriations committee which worked out the airforce bill, pulled no punches in a carefully prepared speech urging speedy approval of the money to modernize and expand the airforce.

He said the United States can never equal Russian manpower on the ground and must offset this with the world's greatest airforce.

strength 70-group force converted to jet fighters and jet propelled bombers with wider range.

The appropriations measure voted by the senate yesterday, and the house earlier, would provide funds to enable industry to tool up for major production of modern planes, as well as enable the airforce to expand.

Asks for Reservists To Instruct Recruits

WASHINGTON (AP)—The army said yesterday it wants 20,000 specially qualified volunteer enlisted corps reserves to go on active duty from nine months to a year, mainly as recruit instructors.

The volunteers will be given special opportunities for promotion. While on duty, and for 20 days after they return to inactive status, they will be able to enlist in the regular army in the new grade they have achieved.

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman described yesterday as most astute the proposal by Rep. Allen (R-Ill.) to build up the armed services by giving cash bonuses to volunteers.

Mr. Truman told of his scorn for this idea in a news conference. The president and Allen, who is chairman of the house rules committee, have never seen eye to eye on the military manpower issue. Allen's committee has bottled up a universal military training bill along the lines of presidential requests.

Steelman To Confer With Union Heads

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said yesterday the full strength of the administration and all available resources of the law are being thrown into an effort to head off the threatened railroad strike.

He is trying to keep the peace, he told a news conference—trying to keep the country running.

He said he has done and is doing everything possible under the special law which governs the disputes of railroad workers and management.

John R. Steelman, the President's assistant on labor matters, has a date at 9 a.m. (CST) today with the heads of three key operating brotherhoods which have voted to strike next Tuesday morning.

Although such a walkout could tie up the whole country in a very short time, Mr. Truman had a definite no for a reporter who asked whether the office of defense transportation had been alerted to seize the railroads.

Another reporter recalled that Mr. Truman advocated the induction of railroad men into the military service at the time of the rail strike in 1946. When asked whether the same legislative proposals might be put forward this time, the President said, "Let's wait and see."

Invited to today's conference were: Alvanley Johnston, grand chief engineer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

David B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

A. J. Glover, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America.

All sent word they would be at the meeting.

Charles G. Ross, presidential press secretary who announced the conference, declined to say whether any definite proposal would be presented to the unions, which demand a 30 percent pay increase and changes in 25 working rules.

Johnston, who received notice of the meeting at his Cleveland headquarters, said Steelman indicated he wanted to talk to the union representatives first, and then the railroad operators. Ross said he couldn't verify that point.

Combat Communism With Truth—Dulles

NEW YORK (AP)—John Foster Dulles proposed last night the organization of a United States "department of non-military defense" to fight the Communist party with truth and light.

Dulles, a Republican, has been a frequent adviser to Secretary of State Marshall and to the United States delegation to the United Nations. He spoke before the Bond club of New York.

The primary task would be to expose Communist party tactics, Dulles said. He predicted the plan would be more effective than waging war with weapons or dollars.

"Truth and light are the best weapons of freedom," he said.

Truman Hits Bonus Enlistment Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman described yesterday as most astute the proposal by Rep. Allen (R-Ill.) to build up the armed services by giving cash bonuses to volunteers.

Mr. Truman told of his scorn for this idea in a news conference. The president and Allen, who is chairman of the house rules committee, have never seen eye to eye on the military manpower issue. Allen's committee has bottled up a universal military training bill along the lines of presidential requests.

Allen proposed Tuesday that instead of drafting men, the government let men enlist for two or three years. The two-year men would get $1,000 each and the three-year men, $1,500. As an alternative they could take advantage of the educational, loan and other aids in the G.I. Bill of Rights.

A reporter asked whether the U.N. could be made to work for world peace without amending the charter. (This was in apparent reference to proposals to outlaw the big power veto.)

Mr. Truman said he thought it could, that we were working on that basis.

Bengals Bounce Bosox; Vico, Tebbetts Flare up

Boston Streak Shattered, 8-3 After 4 Wins

BOSTON (AP)—In a lengthy contest marked by a brief fight between Detroit first sacker George Vico and Boston catcher Birdie Tebbetts, the Detroit Tigers yesterday defeated the Boston Red Sox 8-3.

The Detroit triumph, credited to Hal White who relieved Hal Newhouse in the first inning, was fashioned on 15 hits and snapped a four-game Boston winning streak.

Vico swung at Tebbetts in the fourth inning after being tagged out as an attempted squeeze play went awry. Vico ran in from third but White missed the bunt. Tebbetts chased Vico back toward third and tagged him as he ducked.

Tebbetts fell over Vico and as the two arose Vico swung, landing a hard right smack on Tebbetts' mask. Tebbetts flung it off and threw a punch.

Players on both sides and the umpires then joined the rumpus. The two were separated and, under the rules, both were ejected. The pair scuffled again in the grandstand tunnel to the dressing rooms.

Both were marked and each accused "peacemakers." Vico had a cut near his left eye and Tebbetts a scratch on his nose.

Mize Sparkles As Giants Whip Bucs

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Ray Poat snapped Pittsburgh's six-game win streak yesterday with a four-hit pitching job as his New York Giant mates ripped into three Pirate hurlers for a 9-2 edge.

Johnny Mize, who missed the last two games due to a leg injury, made known his return to the lineup by driving in three runs with three hits including his fourth homer.

Although the win sent the Giants into a virtual tie for first with the Pirates, Pittsburgh still maintains a percentage edge of .643 to .625.

Mize threw his weight around in the first inning when the Giants belted loser Ernie Bonham for two runs. The first baseman's two-run single followed a single by Billy Rigney and a double by Bobby Thomson.

The Giants chased Bonham in the third. Singles by Rigney and Whitey Lockman and Thomson's outfield fly produced one run. When Mize doubled, Bonham gave way to Bob Chesnes, the prize rookie from San Francisco who was making his big time debut on his 27th birthday.

Athletics Smash Bob Feller; Take Over Junior Loop Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics went to the top of the American league the hard way yesterday, battling Bullet Bob Feller for eight runs in three and a third innings to defeat the Cleveland Indians 8 to 5.

The Athletics went to work early and with two hits, two walks and a pair of costly errors by Manager Lou Boudreau scored four runs in the first inning.

Cleveland, which dropped from first place for the first time this season, wasted little time getting back in the ball game. Walks to Ed Robinson and Joe Gordon sandwiched a single by Hank Edwards to load the bases in the second inning. Ken Keltner teed off on Dick Fowler's second pitch and drilled it into the left field stands for a grand slam homer, his sixth fourth-bagger of the year.

Doubles by Ferris Fain and Mike Guerra chased home a Philadelphia run in the third and then the roof fell in on Feller in the fourth. Eddie Joost doubled, Barney McCosky singled, Fain walked and Hank Majeski singled to send two runs over and Feller to the showers. Sam Chapman's fly ball off relief pitcher Steve Gromek pushed Fain across with the final A's tally.

Fowler gave up eight hits in his first start and with the exception of his home run pitches to Keltner and to Joe Gordon in the sixth kept the Indians in hand.

It was Feller's second defeat against two victories.

Little Hawks' Virg Troyer

One of Top 440-Men in State

By DICK BECK
A small town boy comes to the city to find success. That is about the size of the life of Virgil Troyer, City High senior.

Virg left Kalona when he graduated from the eighth grade. He came to Iowa City where he has made an enviable name for himself in sporting circles all over the state.

A three sport man, Virg was discovered by Wally Schwank when he was participating in an inter-class relay. That night he ran the quarter mile in a minute flat and from then on it was training by Schwank and Howard Moffitt that has made him what he is today.

"The 440 is my best race," said Virg. "I guess I've done pretty well in that." Coach Moffitt agreed that he is probably one of the best quarter milers in the state, but said, "He'll have to prove it Saturday when we go to Marion."

In football Virg won three letters and a numeral playing end for Wally Schwank his first two years and then switching to center under the guidance of Herb Cormack. He tried basketball and won a letter there but agreed that of the three he likes basketball the least.

Virg ran his fastest quarter while anchoring the medley team to a state championship in the winter. Running a 6:05 quarter he brought the Little Hawks to the front. Co-captain of the track team this season Virg won the state indoor 440 championship as well as anchoring the two relay teams to wins.

In his spare time, Virg carries mail. Yes, he has been delivering to Hawkeye village and delivering special deliveries ever since he has been in high school. He says it brings him a little money and it's a swell part-time job. Virg lives with his mother at 919 E. Washington St.

Being a senior this year, Virg has been approached by a number of colleges offering him scholarships. Among these is Minnesota, where he is thinking seriously of going. He is going to Minneapolis in June to attend the NCAA meet and will run in an open 440 Northwestern meet while there.

Yanks Nip Brownies Early Wynn Blanks Sox

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Brown smashed a two-run homer in the eighth inning yesterday, perilously close to the right field foul pole, to give the New York Yankees a 6-5 victory over the stubborn St. Louis Browns.

Brown's blow, following a pinch double by Ed Stewart, touched off a storm of protest by the Brownies who showered the field with towels. Many of the customers motioned that they thought the ball was foul.

Joe DiMaggio failed to hit safely in four trips, snapping his consecutive hitting streak after 10 games.

Taking Time Out

With Buck Turnbull
'Leo' and 'Stinky'—The Fight Goes On

The Eddie Stanky-Leo Durocher squabble continues on into the night around fair Flatbush and the hub city of Boston. It's been more than three months since Stanky was traded by the Dodgers to the Braves, yet Leo and "Stinky" Stanky are still throwing daggers at each other whenever the opportunity presents itself.

Last year, when the mild-tempered, pennant-winning Burt Shotton managed the Bums, "Stinky" was the first string second baseman. He was the spark-plug. He was a fighter in every ball game, undoubtedly a big factor in Shotton's bringing the National league flag to Flatbush field. But with the coming of 1948, Durocher returned to replace the popular Shotton and promptly ushered Stanky on his way up north to Boston—with a few uncomplimentary remarks about the fiery little one's ability, too.

We can remember one ball game at Wrigley field in Chicago last summer when the Dodgers were playing the Cubs in a three-game series. The Bums were fresh from a series sweep in St. Louis and riding the crest of a seven-game leadership in the senior circuit.

One certain incident in our memoirs—which is true of every game Stanky plays—occurred in the second tilt of the Cubs' series after the Dodgers had dropped the game the day before.

Shotton sought the pitching of his ace hurler, Ralph Branca, to try and quell the Chicago batsmen. But the Cubs were in one of their infrequent batting moods and started to hit Branca early and hard. Branca lost his temper and the control of his fast ball as well.

The Cubs had a substantial lead when Andy Pafko came to the plate in the fifth inning. Branca gave Pafko an inside and high fast ball which sent the husky Bruin sprawling on his face. After two more inside balls, Branca eased up and fired a slow ball directly at Pafko's head. Pafko aimed a few heated words at Branca and strolled down to first base.

That wasn't bad enough. The next Cub batter, Eddie Waitkus, then playing first base, caught one of Branca's faster pitches right between the ribs. That started it—both teams flew out of their dugouts with fists and bats swinging.

Before Branca could take two steps off the mound towards the on-rushing Waitkus, Stanky was in the middle of the whole brawl. When the smoke had cleared, Stanky was still hollering vehement words to the umpires.

That's the picture one draws of Stanky. If it's to his credit, he's probably more of a fighter and a cusser of umpires than "Leo the Lip" ever was in his hey-day.

Now the two are fighting each other and if it ever gets down to a knock-out, drag-out tangle of fists, we'd like to be on hand to witness it.

The latest Sporting News, weekly baseball publication, told of a photographer's attempt to pose Leo and "Stinky" for a picture together during the Braves-Dodgers' series of April 26 and 27.

The photographer went to Durocher first and asked the Bums' pilot if he would mind having his picture taken with Stanky. "Certainly I'll pose with Stanky," Leo said. "What makes you think I wouldn't?" He was traded to Boston. But that's baseball.

So the camera-clicker asked Stanky. "Nix," he replied. "Nothing doing with a picture with Durocher. I'll pose with Ralph Branca—he was my roomie. But 'The Lip' never."

Durocher made one other statement in Boston which is rather ludicrous in view of the situation. "Lippy" told friends, "I'd like to have nice Stankys on my ball club; they're the kind of guys that win ball games for you."

Come, come now Leo. If nine Stankys can win ball games for you—and Brooklyn certainly would like to win a few—why was he ever traded in the first place?

Mangrum in Lead in Goodall Round Robin

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. (AP)—The official scorers got out of their comptometers late yesterday and came to the conclusion that Lloyd Mangrum, the former open golf champion, was leading the Goodall round robin tournament after the opening round with a score of plus 14.

To accomplish this, Mangrum blazed around the Wyckoff Country club course in a record-breaking 66—six shots under par.

Demro Holds Iowa's Chances For Climbing Higher in Race

Iowa's hope of elevating its current fourth place standing in the Big Nine will rest on the right arm of Wes Demro when Minnesota invades the Hawkeye lair today.

The Gophers, a power-laden ball club, have a predominance of right-handed batters, prompting Coach Otto Vogel to give the mound assignment to Demro.

Iowa's star, Jack Bruner, and the new pitching threat, Dick Hoeksema, are both lefties, commonly regarded as a soft touch for right-handed hitters by the percentage exponents.

However, Vogel will probably counter with Bruner in tomorrow's contest.

The Gophers currently possess a 6-2-2 conference mark. However, two of the losses were to the title favorite Illinois nine. In the second game of that series the Gophers extended the Illini, finally falling, 4-3, in 16 innings.

Sparkplug of the Minnesota attack is First Baseman Leo Shields. In Arvel Henning and Don Tepel the Gophers have two top-flight pitchers.

The Hawkeye nine will be counting on the improved hitting shown in last week's Northwestern series. Iowa blasted 12 hits in the first game against the Wild-cats.

Today's game will be called at 3:30 p. m., with the contest tomorrow scheduled for 2 p. m.

The probable lineups: Minnesota

Maris Quits Oral Surgery Hospital Job

Dr. Arthur M. Maris, professor and head of dental surgery and anesthesia and chief of oral surgery at University hospitals, yesterday resigned these positions effective July 1.

Pres. Virgil M. Hancher received the resignation at noon yesterday. Dr. Maris revealed no plans for the future.

Graduating from the University college of dentistry in 1930, Dr.

DR. ARTHUR M. MARIS

Maris served as instructor in the clinical, crown and bridge department until 1931.

From that time until 1933, he interned in oral surgery at University hospitals. He remained in that department as instructor until June, 1942, when he entered the army.

Dr. Maris, beginning with the rank of Captain, served at Camp Robinson, Ark., Camp Hood, Tex., and at Schick general hospital, Clinton. He was in charge of oral surgery at the latter until separated from the army, Jan. 1, 1946, as a major.

He then became head of oral surgery at University hospitals.

Dr. Maris is a member of the Johnson County Dental society, the Iowa State Dental society, the American Society of Oral Surgeons; Omicron Kappa Upsilon, honorary dental fraternity; Psi Omega, dental fraternity; and Kappa Sigma, social fraternity.

He is a diplomate of the American Board of Oral Surgery, organized recently to accredit persons qualified in this field.

He has lectured frequently at dental meetings in Iowa and Illinois and has contributed several articles to the Journal of Oral Surgery.

Hays Takes Manager Job at Local Company

Leslie M. Hays, for nine years superintendent of the Iowa school of the Blind at Vinton, will become sales manager of the Burkett-Rhinehart Motor Co., 3 E. College street, it was announced. Hays resignation as superintendent will become effective July 1.

Hays, a graduate of the University of Iowa with a B.A. in 1921, and an M.A. from Creighton university, Omaha, is a native of Seymour, Iowa. He and his family will live at 200 Koser avenue.

Wetling Briefs Freedom Train Groups On June 18 Rededication Program Parts

Chairmen and members of 10 "Freedom Train" committees yesterday were briefed by Nelson G. Wetling on the particular part they will play in the rededication program which will immediately precede the train's appearance here June 18.

Wetling, area director of the American Heritage foundation which is conducting the train's tour of 315 cities, will continue meeting with committee heads today. The location of the train during its appearance here will be determined this morning when the train committee meets at 9 o'clock.

The area director has also scheduled meetings with the finance and publication committees for today. Mayor Preston Koser will appoint chairmen for those committees this morning.

Wetling said last night that he was particularly pleased by the enthusiasm shown by the women's committee. Mrs. Albert Husa is chairman of that group.

Meetings yesterday were also held with committees on speakers, churches, movies, advertising, newspapers, radio, agriculture, veterans and schools.

Iowa City has been asked to raise $1,200 as its share in financing the train's 33,000-mile tour. The 127 historical documents carried by the train have been loaned by national and state governments and private collectors. However, the government is not financing any part of the program and each city visited by the train is asked to share in the cost of the tour.

The American Heritage foundation was established as a non-profit group to conduct the tour

IC Crowd Admires 'Train of Tomorrow'

A large crowd gathered at the Rock Island depot yesterday afternoon to see the "Train of Tomorrow" which passed through Iowa City on its way to Des Moines.

Stopping momentarily, the sleek blue and silver streamliner, with a cigar-chewing engineer at the controls, drew oh's and ah's from the crowd as they admired the shining cars.

Drawing the most attention were the glassed-in "Astra dome" observation roofs on the cars. Featuring soft-tinted glass, the compartments will seat 24 persons.

The train, with cars bearing such romantic names as Dream cloud, Sky view, Stardust and Moon glow, will pass through Iowa City again Monday.

Coppock Calls For Foreign Trade Support

Abandonment or curtailment of reciprocal trade treaties would cause other nations to run for economic cover in the opinion of Joseph D. Coppock, economic adviser to the state department office of international trade policy.

Coppock expressed informal opinion after speaking off the record to the Great Issues class yesterday on "World Economic and Social Organizations."

Unless the United States provides adequate support for economic recovery, other nations will interpret our action as an indication of lack of responsibility, Coppock remarked.

Inadequate support of reciprocal trade would be taken as an "ostrich approach" in Coppock's opinion. It would be the storm signal to foreigners, he indicated.

Remarking that U.S. exports now total about $19-billion annually and imports about $11-billion, Coppock thought there would be a closing of that gap to an approximate middle figure.

Even though exports will fall and imports rise, he did not foresee any drastic change in America's trade position. Reminding his listeners that exports had never exceeded 10 percent of total production, Coppock said other nations should be able to earn their way, if trade is to prosper.

Questioned about U.S.-Russian relations, Coppock remarked that he didn't see what a conference between the two powers could accomplish. "What could you talk about?" he asked, saying there must be something on the agenda.

Referring to the press coverage of UN sessions, Coppock said he thought it had been "done only fair," though well intentioned.

Scannell To Take Job At Teachers College

Don Scannell, A4, Iowa City, will replace Robert S. McGranahan as sports assistant in the Iowa State Teachers college bureau of publications in June.

McGranahan has been granted a year's leave of absence effective June 1 to do graduate study at the University of Iowa.

Scannell will graduate from the SUI school of journalism June 5.

Offer General Surgery Postgraduate Course

A postgraduate course in general surgery will be offered May 11-14 at the University college of medicine.

Guest speakers will be Dr. Ansel Keys, University of Minnesota; Dr. F. R. Peterson, Cedar Rapids; Dr. J. W. Dulin, Iowa City physician and surgeon; Dr. W. M. Fowler, professor and acting head of internal medicine at University hospitals, and Dr. F. W. Stamler, instructor in pathology at University hospitals.

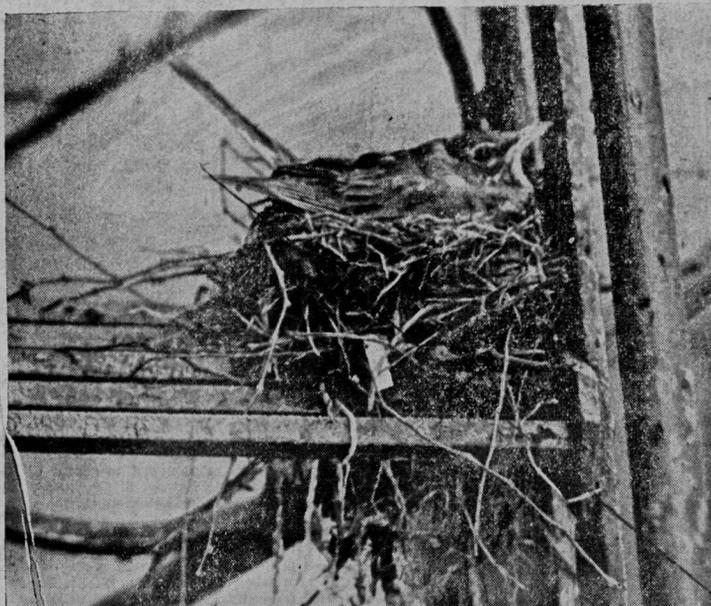

All members of the surgical staff at University hospitals will participate in presentation of lectures and demonstrations.

Watson to Nuclear Study Post

By LEN MOZER

Scientists like Albert Einstein and J. Robert Oppenheimer will be the new colleagues of Kenneth M. Watson of the physics department.

The 26-year-old physicist recently was notified of his appointment to the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J.

The institute is a unique educational institution located near the Princeton campus. Approximately 100 men spend a year devoted to research in the fields of physics, mathematics, economics and the humanities. These men represent some of the world's keenest minds.

The institute is a "post-graduate" school, requiring a Ph.D. degree for admission. Usually confused with Princeton university, it actually has no connection with the school.

Watson received word of his appointment from Oppenheimer, director of the institute. With full laboratory facilities and a salary provided, he will be able to do research in theoretical nuclear physics.

Watson, commenting on the appointment, said, "I'm very happy about it, of course. The wonderful thing about it is that it gives a young fellow like me the opportunity to work with such men as Einstein and Oppenheimer.

KENNETH M. WATSON

"I won't have to spend any time teaching but will be able to devote my full attention to research."

Watson came to the university in September, 1946. During the war years he worked in the Bureau of Naval Research in Washington.

At the bureau Watson aided in the development of a method for "jamming" enemy radar scopes through the use of radio frequency waves.

For this work he was awarded the Meritorious Service award by the navy department. Before joining the institute in September, Watson plans to work at the bureau during the summer.

Watson completed his undergraduate studies at Iowa State college and his graduate work at George Washington university in Washington. He received his doctorate degree here this January. His doctor's thesis was on "the theory of nuclear force with special attention to the polarizing ability of the meson field about a neutron."

Though born in Des Moines, Watson said that he really could not call any place his home town. Since his father was a minister, Watson traveled about the country during his elementary and high school years.

Watson is married and has a one-year-old son. His wife, Mrs. Elaine Watson, is very pleased about the appointment, he said.

Market Basket Falls Slightly

By PAUL LUCKINBILL

Housewives received little encouragement yesterday in their attempts to solve the family's food budget problems as The Daily Iowan market basket index dropped only 3 cents.

This week's index is $17.40 compared to $17.43 last Friday.

One-pound butter continued its downward trend, falling 2 cents to 84 cents a pound. Number two cans of pork and beans were selling for 20 cents, a 1 cent decrease, while grade A eggs dropped 3 cents, retailing for 45 cents.

According to The Wall Street Journal, the federal government is considering shipping overseas a large part of the 49 million pounds of frozen eggs they still hold from price support operations last year.

This would deplete much of the government's frozen supplies, consequently forcing egg prices up if they proceeded to go back into the buying market.

Choice round steak was down for the first time in three weeks, one-pound selling for 87 cents, a 2 cent decrease. First grade bacon was down 4 cents, retailing at 75 cents a pound.

However, center cut pork chops jumped 1 cent, off-setting some of the other meat decreases. Chops were selling at 75 cents a pound. Baker's chocolate showed the only other decrease, slipping 2 cents to 41 cents for one-half

Market Basket Index: This week, $17.40. Last week, $17.43. The Daily Iowan market basket INDEX is not an exact total of the prices listed above. That is, the INDEX figure takes into consideration both the costs of the items listed above and the amount of each item a student family of three uses in one week. The amount of each item the family of three uses in one week was arrived at in a survey conducted in cooperation with the university bureau of business and economic research.

Although cheese prices remained the same this week, one grocer predicted that cheeses of all kinds will soon begin to rise in price. The wholesale price of round cheese gained 6 cents last week, he said.

Soap prices may soon be shaved because of sliding sales, one manager hinted. Price cutting by managers on small package soaps and bulk chips has already appeared in some spots, he said.

A check of market figures showed that tallow, the biggest single ingredient used in soap making has declined to 15 cents a pound, cheapest in a year. Last January it was 27 cents a pound.

The Daily Iowan market basket survey is based on prices of 24 food items in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores.

Prices listed are an average of all stores combined.

Yesterday's index of $17.40 is an estimate of what a student family of three persons will spend for groceries this week.

The cost of each food item is weighed in accordance with the amount of that item a student family of three uses in a week.

An American Boy Comes Home

ALL THE PAIN and sorrow of motherhood is etched on the face of Mrs. Tom Gushiken (left) as she touches the flag-bedecked casket of her son, Pfc. History's Bitter Pills of Justice

History doles out bitter pills of justice sometimes; but this one was lost to us in the welter of opinions and counter-opinions concerning Russia and her place in the United Nations.

It is unnecessary to recount the difficulties the United States has faced in dealing with the Soviets in the UN. To refresh our memories of the dealings in the League of Nations—more popularly known now as the "ill-fated" league—we resorted to the history books.

It was more than a slight shock to be forced to remember that Russia's Maxim Litvinov continuously urged the league to take action toward collective security against the rising fascist movements. It was Russia first who tried to force the league to take sanctions against Il Duce for his wanton attack on Ethiopia. It was Russia (Litvinov) who spurred the league to adopt the principle that "peace is indivisible." It was the Russian government that proposed complete disarmament of the world.

There's truly bitter irony in the history book's words: Litvinov tried unsuccessfully to keep the league conference alive after it broke up in 1934 as a continuing organization in order to provide the means for further American cooperation in international affairs.

This does not mean that there would have been no diplomatic bickering in the world today if we had gone along with the Russians; nor does it mean that Russia would have then ceased her ideological warfare designed to spread communism.

But it is a sad commentary on the possibility for success of the UN that in light of history we are now only looking at the other side of the same coin. The roles of Russia and the U.S. are now reversed.

It cannot be overlooked that it was the United States people and government who were first in League days to deny that peace must exist on a worldwide basis. It was the United States then—like the Russians now—who were the extreme nationalist-isolationists.

We pray the results will not follow the same pattern. They simply must not.

Another Note on the 'Brave New World'

Congressional action on the dieckle (that's spelled dieckle) would save the public an estimated five billion dollars a year.

Maybe the dieckle will be called a jime, though. The object has neither been named, coined nor approved as yet. It's nothing more than an American coin worth 7 1/2 cents.

A soft drink manufacturer from California, Edward Mehren, went to Washington recently with a scheme to have the U.S. make coins worth 2 1/2, 7 1/2 and 12 1/2 cents. The 2 1/2 cent piece he calls a "pickie," for penny and nickel, or "jenny," for jimey and penny.

The coin between a nickel and a dime he calls a "jime," for jimey and dime, or "dieckie," for dime and nickel. A "bit" is the natural name for the 12 1/2 cent pieces, cause two bits are a quarter.

In 1947, Mehren says, Americans drank 25 billion cups of coffee. Many restaurants which can't sell coffee for a nickel a cup raise the price to the next even coin—a dime. If dieckles were in circulation, that would be the selected price.

There's other things too cheap for five cents and too expensive for ten cents—soft drinks, some sales taxes, telephones, streetcar and bus tokens, newspapers. Candy bars selling for a dieckle might return to their old-fashioned nickle size.

The United States has only four coins worth a quarter or less. Britain has six, The Netherlands and Sweden each have seven coins worth a quarter or less. The U. S. would have seven coins, too, if we would have the pickie, dieckle and bit.

With coin machines dispensing everything from bobby pins to apple pie, these in-between coins should prove a savings boon. The question remains: What is to be done with the money saved—drink more coffee?

There's several other obvious drawbacks to the educational coin proposal. Cash registers don't have enough different drawers; men's pockets would develop a sag; waitresses could make still more mistakes making change and be irritated by the dieckle tips left; and panhandlers would have to reward their chant to, "Brother, can you spare a jime?"

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Firmness Required in Palestine

By J.M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Arthur Creech Jones, British colonial secretary, has given the United Nations a vivid picture of what will happen in Palestine in a few days unless a truce can be obtained or a "freeze" enforced.

"War is lurking, ugly, savage and devouring, waiting to defeat the United Nations, to work havoc in the Middle East and bring infinite tragedy to us all," he says.

He advocates a neutral emergency agency to hold the governmental assets of Palestine, to further mediation and act as a central body for the United Nations until a settlement can be reached.

If something isn't done, he says, "I repeat that May 15 will see no central government in Palestine. And whatever is done by the Jews in declaring their state—or by the Arabs who have told us that they contemplate the creation of a provisional government to assume the responsibility over Palestine—administrative chaos and destruction of important assets will occur. And then he adds in the same breath: "Everything possible has been done to prevent this catastrophe."

I wonder.

The British feel they must get out of Palestine if they are to salvage any part of their position in the Middle East, with its strategic possibilities and its oil.

There is, of course, a clamor in Britain against further loss of British soldiers and further expenditure of British resources in a profitless and thankless task.

But the British have just demonstrated in the Jerusalem and Jaffa areas that firmness, backed by troops, can stop the fighting. And stopping the fighting, not the permanent solution of the Palestine problem, is the issue of the moment. The Arab league shows no intention of sending its troops into Palestine as long as the British are there.

There is a precedent for British-American cooperation in a somewhat similar situation. When the British announced they would have to pull out of Greece they asked the U.S. to take over, which was done politically and economically, and partially, militarily. But we asked the British to leave some troops, and they agreed.

Those British troops in Greece, which would have faced any invading international force from Russian-controlled territory, have probably done as much to prevent an overt act in that area as has any other one factor.

If such Anglo-American cooperation could be worked out in Palestine, just to enforce order and keep governmental services running, negotiations might continue in an atmosphere which would lend at least some hope of agreement.

Doing Something About Prejudice

(The following article, written by Dr. Julius Schreiber, appeared in the February, 1948, issue of Survey Graphic. This is the first of a series—The Editor.)

"No, I'm not prejudiced. It's just that I prefer a white stenographer. And that's all there is to it!"

But is that all there is to it? What is a prejudice? It is an emotional blind-spot, an opinion or attitude which is actually a prejudice, a conclusion formed without careful examination of the facts, an idea uncritically or inaccurately checked against reality.

In dealing with the problem of prejudice one often hears the word, "preference." A "preference" means a choice of one thing or person rather than another. Now a choice may be rationally or irrationally motivated. But all too often one finds an attempt to mask a prejudice by resort to semantic double-talk. "Preference" sounds so much better than "prejudice."

When I prefer to make friends with "white, Protestant, 100 percent American" only, my "preference" stems from irrational roots—just as any other prejudice does. For here we have a judgment which implies that a man's color or faith or birthplace or ancestry determines his actual worth as a human being. And that is neither sensible nor scientific.

Well, suppose it is a prejudice—what harm? Let me try to be very explicit: Prejudicial attitudes and actions usually reveal a personality disturbance within the prejudiced individual. So long as the prejudice is not acted upon or does not lead others to follow in similar irrational behavior patterns (an optimistic and unreal hope), the tragedy is not in the prejudice itself.

Bearing the title, "Physics Today," the monthly publication is edited for readers in fields other than physics, according to Editor David A. Katcher, physicist and science writer.

"Physics Today," he said, "is for the physicist, to inform him in comfortable, everyday language, of what goes on and why and who goes where."

"But it is also for the chemist, the biologist, and the engineer, to tell them of the science towards which they are driven by so many of their investigations; it is for the student, the teacher, the lawyer, the doctor, and all who are curious about physics; it is for editors and writers whose profession puts them midway between what is done and how it is reported."

The need for it he said, has grown out of the tendency for fields of research to become so highly specialized that only the research workers within a specialized field know and understand what is happening.

edy and its consequences are a problem of the individual.

But when prejudice is implemented—translated into some form of unfair discriminatory practice—it is no longer an individual problem; it becomes a social problem calling for social concern and social action.

If the selection of a "social companion" is based solely on the color of a man's skin, we have an act of prejudice which is admittedly between "me and him." Even this does not mean that prejudice so expressed is harmless.

But suppose we carry our blind-spots beyond the realm of social companionship, into the area of bread and butter, and refuse to hire someone who is clearly qualified for a job solely because we dislike his religion or color—what then?

Here, there is a projection of our own emotional disturbances into the area of social relations to do violence to the rights of another individual. This is dangerous business.

Make no mistake about it. Prejudice undermines the mental health of all men—aggressor and victim.

Today, man holds a ticking atom bomb in one hand and a dim lamp of hope in the other. And while the seconds pass he must make what may be the last of his fundamental decisions.

Can he successfully cut through his blind prejudices, his paralyzing greed, his irrational hates? Can he fully recognize the terrible implications of uncontrolled human hostility? Can he withstand this assault on his mental health? Any answer less than a swift, world-shaking "Yes!" means the disappearance of the human race in an atomic puff.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Our Off-Balance Policy

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

All recent British and American proposals for Palestine are based on the idea of establishing peace without granting independence. Whatever tortured forms the new plans may take, they all come down to some effort to persuade the Jews not to be free and not to care.

Whether the offer be one of trustee ship (as we Americans have suggested) or of overseership by some neutral power (as the British have urged) it is, in the end, always the same, a suggestion to the Jews that they give up independence and be pleasant about it.

Now this would be a fantastical enterprise for anybody to be engaged in, but it is especially bizarre on the part of two free nations, such as the United States and Britain. We are really saying to the Jews: "Ah, independence isn't so much."

The maxim behind our acts, then, is one which we ourselves don't really believe in, and can't really believe in; we are offering to the Jews, and thus to the world, a proposition to which no existing power on earth could for a minute make us subscribe.

Actually we cannot even visualize, we cannot even conceive of such a thing as a denial of independence joined with peace and contentment. Where, indeed, does such a combination exist? Where has it ever existed?

All our difficulties in relation to Palestine stem from the fact that we are trying to peddle a fantasy, and when, with solemn mien and statesmanlike bearing we try to persuade the Jews to accept such a future we are as out of character as if we were suddenly to try to convert another people to ancestor worship.

And that is why we and the British look so bad in these premises. We offer the Jews a proposition which we ourselves regard as inherently unacceptable on grounds of principle. And when we completely fail to sell them pogamy, or sun worship, or whatever curious idea it is we are offering, we strike our palms against our foreheads, and wonder why we aren't doing better, and we dream up still more arguments in favor of the bizarre dogma we are pushing, and we sweat and squirm as we offer them.

The British strike magnificent poses and rush their troops out of Palestine, then they strike equally magnificent poses and rush them right back (and they will have only themselves to blame if the world says they do so because the Jews have refused to surrender and because the Arabs are losing)—and they wouldn't have to do any of these things, or look so nervous, if they would once and for all square themselves with that love of independence which is said to lie at the bottom of the British character.

And we ourselves would not seem so feeble and inept before the United Nations if we would simply decide to act on the maxims of what we are, as a free people, and stop trying to tell the Jews that independence would be bad for them.

For independence is not an idea on which you can pick and choose your position, pro or con; it is one of those great universals which one must accept and approve out of hand, like spring, young love, sunshine and the look of light on water.

The reason we and the British are careening on this issue is that we are off balance; we can't make it look good because it can't be good. We shall never attain peace without independence in Palestine because it is unattainable.

Have You Wondered What Goes on Behind the Mike? Open House at WSUI-KSUI-FM Gives You a Chance To Find Out

By MERRIT LUDWIG

WSUI and KSUI-FM, the university's broadcasting stations, have invited the public to be their guests today and tomorrow... to see programs broadcast, tour the studios, and ask questions about radio broadcasting.

In the brighter light of such stars as Fibber McGee and Charlie McCarthy, the function of these university stations is often forgotten by students and townspeople. And, perhaps the public doesn't realize that the university broadcasting operations are unique among U. S. educational stations.

Perhaps they don't know that between 80 and 90 students work an average 25 hours a week in the production and presentation of radio programs; that these stations have every facility for professional radio training from engineering to dramatic production—including news writing, continuity writing, announcing, musical production directing and other jobs in the radio industry.

The function of most U. S. educational stations is to give the public "high-type" radio programs. WSUI and KSUI-FM go beyond this objective to include a twofold: professional training for students interested in the expanding radio industry.

The university stations are almost 100 percent student-operated. Every year five of the top students fight supervisory positions in the station which are commensurate with jobs in the radio industry. Many students are given the opportunity to train in radio here, as advanced by the 50 percent staff turnover every year.

Radio students at WSUI and KSUI-FM are not restricted to one phase of the broadcasting operation. They may seek as much experience as they want in every phase from writing to announcing and engineering.

The industry is demanding more than "golden voices"; it wants workers who need little or no training before they begin carrying their way as radio station personnel. The university's radio department is among few which deliver this kind of individual to the industry.

The university's broadcasting facilities look to the future when they will be an important segment of the new communications center, when they will be able to contribute more to the expanding field of research in mass communication. The university has already applied for a television broadcasting permit.

The university stations are on the air 14 hours a day and six days a week presenting a full program of information and entertainment.

A visit to the studios during open house today or tomorrow will show you what goes on behind the mike.

Wallace Not Communist; Our Attitude Not Right

TO THE DAILY IOWAN: The old saying, "a man convinced against his will, is of the same opinion, still," certainly applies to The Daily Iowan's attitude toward Henry Wallace.

You have in your mind a picture of Henry Wallace, an innocent political babe in the woods, surrounded by insidious Communists and fellow-travelers. What utter nonsense! Mr. Wallace is no tool of any interest, and he and the top leaders of the new party are no more Communist than is the editorial staff of L'Osservatore Romano, the pope's newspaper.

Because Mr. Wallace refuses to "red-bait" and ascribe all our political and economic troubles to the Kremlin, the purified liberals of the ADA feel that he is either (1) a fellow-traveler or else is (2) surrounded by fellow-travelers. No one has ever denied that some Communists support Henry Wallace. You will perhaps remember that the Communists supported Franklin D. Roosevelt. And the top Wallace advisors and it has been charged that the so-called left-wing unions supporting Wallace are Communist dominated. This, too, is utter nonsense. The top labor advisor to Wallace is Edward Fitzgerald, a devout Catholic, who has no love for communism. Fitzgerald does, however, refuse to "red-bait."

You were very unhappy because the press wasn't allowed to cover the luncheon. Wallace speaks "off the cuff" at these affairs so no one could know in advance he was going to make strong criticism of Russia at this particular time. The reason for barring the press was because a number of professors in state universities have been discharged or refused promotions because they support Wallace. You should be aware of this...

Please don't accuse Henry Wallace of every political "sin" because he left the Democratic party. Your holier-than-thou attitude is slightly nauseating at times.

Kelso Predicts No Dirt on SUI 'Tropical Isle' Russia Won't Start Hot War

"Russia will probably continue the cold war," Prof. Hugh E. Kelso of the political science department told about 80 members of group 16, Iowa Pharmaceutical meeting in Reich's cafe last night.

Speaking on "What's ahead in world affairs?" Kelso said Russia has been too successful in the cold war to turn to a shooting war. "We can look for Russia to keep on prodding, pushing and insulting," he said.

Kelso admitted that an incident could possibly start a war but thought that it would take a "premeditated mass military movement" to start a war now.

"Russia isn't prepared militarily for a long war," Kelso continued. "An incident would probably result in some pretty strong letters and demands for reparations, but they would be paid."

Kelso took issue with a magazine article predicting a rising standard of living for "25 years." "Prices will continue to go up for several years because of ERP," he said. "But the standard of living will decline."

He explained that exports of money and goods to Europe coupled with our re-armament program would result in a scarcity of consumer goods. "And I don't need to tell you that high prices don't necessarily mean high profits," he added.

"And finally," Kelso concluded, "we must accept foreign goods if we are to get re-payment on our aid to Europe. This will mean a re-shuffling of our traditional attitude on world affairs."

Following Kelso's address, Dean R.A. Kuever of the college of pharmacy spoke on "What's ahead for education in pharmacy?"

"Pharmacy students today are achieving higher scholastic accomplishments than ever before," he declared.

Kuever said that the large number of pharmacy graduates will result in an increase in drug stores a few years from now unless enrollments are limited. "And there are no signs that point to a decrease in enrollments," he added.

However, students are being asked for today even before they graduate, according to the dean. "I never saw such a situation in pharmacy as exists today," he said. "Graduates are being asked for three and four times over."

Kuever described plans for a new pharmacy building to be built across the river at the medical center. "We intend to provide the finest facilities possible for our student," he said.

C.R. Orchard of McKesson and Robbins company talked to the group on "What's ahead from the wholesaler's viewpoint." I. W. Myers, legal counsel for the state pharmaceutical association talked on "What's ahead in new legislation for pharmacy"

WHAT'S THE TROPICS HAVE THAT IOWA DOESN'T. Norma Jean Bedell, A3, Cedar Rapids, wants to know as she points out the Hawkeye state can grow bananas too. Miss Bedell and the bananas posed at the botany greenhouse on Felkner avenue. (Daily Iowan Photo by Speed Engelby)

By RALPH DARROW

On a "tropical island" about 2,800 miles north of the equator, SUI's botanists carry on experiments beneath the waving branches of citrus, papaya and palm trees set off by a mass of tangled jungle vines.

The "island," actually the botany department greenhouse on Felkner avenue, is a research center where plants are grown without soil and with the aid of artificial light.

This greenhouse raises no flowers or vegetables commercially, all efforts being confined to producing specimens for student experimentation. Here students learn the mysteries of plant biology and what happens to plants under different conditions of mineral deficiency in the soil.

Here are carried on many of the experiments with hydroponics (soilless gardens) which the army put into practical use during World War II on sterile desert islands. Experiments are also conducted in supplementing sunlight with artificial illumination to hasten the blooming of flowers.

Hydroponics is the name for growing fruit and vegetables in mineral solutions. First step is the dissolving in water of all elements necessary for plant growth. These nutrients are then fed directly to the plant roots.

Stems and roots of plants grown by this method are supported by gravel or coarse sand. Advantages of hydroponics are elimination of weeds and ability to raise vegetables and flowers in areas like Iwo Jima, which lacks soils, or like Japan, where soils are contaminated.

Plants grown in mineral cultures are in no way inferior to those in nurtured soil. In fact, mineral grown vegetables are often superior to those soil raised, especially if soil lacks certain mineral elements. Rarely, if ever, can an observer detect any taste difference between hydroponic-grown vegetables and those grown in soil.

Except for the use of hydroponics by the army during the war and by some commercial greenhouses, soilless gardens have no practical value. Mineral culture is just too costly for the average family in any area where soil is capable of maintaining plant life.

Even during the winter in Iowa, fruit and vegetables can be shipped in from warmer areas more cheaply than they could be grown here by soilless culture.

Unless gardens are achieved by the use of ordinary incandescent or fluorescent lamps to supplement or replace sunlight. Artificial illumination furnishes almost the same quality of light as that which comes from the sun.

Fluorescent bulbs seem superior to incandescent types since they cast a "cold light," permitting their use much closer to the plants than would be possible if incandescent lamps were used.

Artificial lighting plays a big role in speeding plant growth in Iowa City and other municipalities all over the United States.

Methods being tested at SUI and other schools have been used for years by florists to bring flowers into bloom at a desired date such as Easter or Mother's day.

Plants are of such nature that they will bloom only when they get light a given number of hours every day. For instance, when sun shines only six hours daily on a plant which needs nine hours of sunlight before it will blossom, artificial illumination must be furnished or the plant won't bloom.

By giving a flower more or fewer hours of light per day, florists can fool the plant into blooming several weeks ahead of schedule. Also, they can keep plants from blooming for an indefinite period by furnishing too little or too much daily illumination.

This fact is of vital importance to the florist who wants to sell flowers on a given day. Ordinarily, cloudy days might retard his blooms until after the special occasion had passed.

Like soilless gardens, the sunless variety are not practicable in Iowa City for the average family. The day when John Doe can raise vegetables in his cellar all winter long cheaper than he can buy them in the market is a long way off. Any one could produce plenty of fruit and vegetables in a soilless, sunless garden, but unless he's a millionaire, he'll lose his shirt.

MUSEUM TRAINING AT SUI
For many years Iowa was the only institution offering museum work training. The work may be used as a minor on a master's degree.

Kelly Sues Strand Cafe

Clifford Kelly, 220 S. Linn street, filed suit for $22,000 against the Strand Cafe, Andrew Karas and Louis Maniatis in the Johnson county district court yesterday.

Kelly's suit resulted from a shooting April 22 in the cafe. Defendants in the suit are the owners of the Strand cafe.

Oscar Anderson has been charged with intent to commit murder in connection with the shooting.

Kelly claimed in his petition that the defendants were negligent in admitting Anderson to the cafe and in allowing him to remain.

Kelly claimed the defendants knew of Anderson's "quarrelsome disposition." Kelly said they were negligent in failing to protect him.

The defendants "could have prevented the plaintiff's injury but instead they stood by during the tirade by Anderson against the plaintiff and failed to take any steps in protecting him," Kelly claimed.

Kelly said he is permanently disabled, and that the bullet is still imbedded in his spine.

W. J. Hayek is Kelly's attorney.

Dice To Replace Gray in NSA Post

Richard Dice will replace Tom Gray as the national affairs chairman of the National Students association, Ruby Scott, N. S. A. secretary, announced yesterday.

During the N. S. A. meeting Wednesday night in Iowa Union, Dice also was elected to represent the association on the orientation committee. The orientation search committee plans to correlate orientation programs from colleges throughout the nation in a booklet for next year.

Jim Packer, Cedar Rapids, will represent the association on Student Council. The University Women's association representative has not been selected yet.

UWF To Avoid Use of 'Political Action' In Literature To Maintain Tax Exemption

"Political action" is not to be mentioned in United World Federalists literature, Jean Leu, state UWF executive secretary, told the university chapter at a meeting in Iowa Union last night.

She told UWF members that the organization faces the risk of losing tax exemption if the words "political action" are used.

Identification of a non-partisan organization with political activity makes donations to the organization taxable Harlan Hockenbert, university chapter president, said after the meeting.

UWF members last night also heard their recent petition drive for a stronger United Nations called both a "success" and "failure."

Reporting on the drive, Dave Campbell, Dubuque, termed the drive a failure as far as it concerns the "political pressure we can put on now."

Robert Meyers, Quincy, Ill., regarded the drive a success since it introduced people to the advantages of a stronger U.N. "It put a good taste in their mouths," he said.

Signatures on the petition in the two-week drive totaled 2,723, Campbell reported. This is slightly more than one-half the secondary goal of 5,000 and one-third the original goal of 7,500.

The group also ratified the Student Organization assembly constitution (SOA) and nominated officers to be elected next week.

UWF became the 14th campus organization to ratify the SOA constitution, Betty Dickinson, SOA secretary, said last night.

Persons nominated for UWF posts were Campbell, president; Sherwin Markman and Evan Hultman both of Des Moines, vice-presidents; Annette Braverman, Iowa City, secretary, and Robert Kramer, White Plains N.Y., treasurer.
