

Call Out National Guard In Minnesota Picking Strike

SOUTH ST. PAUL, MINN. (AP)—Massed pickets and sympathizers in the packing house workers strike, driven from streets yesterday by national guard bayonets were told by Gov. Luther Youngdahl that "You can't win a strike by anarchy."

Five hundred persons swarmed at the state capitol after national guardsmen, called out Friday by the governor, cleared the way for entry of more than a score of workers automobiles to the strikebound Swift and Company plant.

Several skirmishes developed during the morning as an estimated 500 persons collected at Concord street and Grand avenue, the town's main intersection. Guardsmen battled three men, one of whom attempted to seize a guardsman's rifle.

About one hundred men and women jammed into the reception room of Governor Luther Youngdahl, who previously was closeted with a committee of strikers.

Standing on a stool in his reception room the governor told the group "You can't win a strike by anarchy—you cannot win a strike by violence."

About two hundred men, most of them carrying clubs, Thursday swarmed into a Newport plant, slugged a number of workers housed in the plant and damaged the interior.

The governor told the group he had called out the guard in the CIO Union Packing House Workers strike at South St. Paul and neighboring Newport as a "last resort."

The group applauded the Governor when he finished.

Then one woman in the group, Jean Paddock, a Swift & Company worker shouted:

"If you shut the plants down, there won't be any violence. We don't like to have our people in jail and we don't like to have them beat up either."

A request by the governor that the delegation leave the capitol and its grounds quietly was obeyed. The crowd dwindled away in a few minutes.

Prior to the state capitol session, national guardsmen carrying out orders of their officers, cleared South St. Paul streets of all gatherings. The order came after numerous scuffles at the entrance of the strikebound Swift plant when workers were driven into the plant.

Milton Siegel, St. Paul, field representative of the packing house workers union, led the march on the state capitol. Siegel said, "Use of the national guard to break the strike is a disgrace to the state of Minnesota."

"When uniformed troops push citizens around with bayonets as was done this morning, then you have military rule whether the governor calls it that or not."

Two weapons carriers, each mounting four 50 caliber machine guns and carrying eight troopers armed with carbines, meanwhile patrolled South St. Paul streets.

Iowa Demos Endorse Truman in Convention

DES MOINES (AP)—The Democratic state convention yesterday endorsed President Truman but left uncommitted the 32 delegates named who will cast Iowa's 20 votes at the party's national convention.

The nearest the convention came to an instruction was this portion of the adopted resolutions:

"We believe that for an enduring peace for all the world and for the good of the United States of America, President Truman must be elected president next November."

The resolutions committee rejected an attempt by representatives of the Young Democrats to get an endorsement of an Eisenhower-Douglas slate.

Although the party's junior members had threatened to take the matter to the floor of the convention, they did not.

Former U.S. Senator Guy M. Gillette of Cherokee was elected chairman of the delegation to the Democratic convention.

The delegates voted to assess each delegate $100 and each alternate $50 to pay general expenses at the convention.

The only other flurry was over the action of four of the eight congressional district in doubling their authorized number of delegates. Opposition to this action was voted down.

The party's national committee has ruled that only two delegates, with one vote each, will be seated from each congressional district.

However, the first, fourth, fifth and eighth districts chose four delegates each, with half a vote apiece.

When the convention was asked to approve the first district's delegates, John A. Cunningham, Dubuque attorney, objected. He moved to instruct the district to act in accordance with the rule.

William R. Hart of Iowa City told the convention the first district "is in the habit of minding its own business and it would like to have the other districts mind theirs."

The convention then voted down Cunningham's motion.

Thus there will be 24 delegates to cast 16 congressional district votes at the national convention, opening in Philadelphia July 12.

The national committee ruled it was all right to split the vote of the delegates at large. So eight delegates at large were elected to cast four votes.

Delegates from the 1st District (which includes Johnson county) were: James D. France, Tipton; J. C. Pryor, Burlington; Mrs. Albert M. Kelly, Nichols, and J. Francis Phalen, Fort Madison. Alternates with one-half vote were: Mrs. E. E. Ward, Washington; Frank Engel, Davenport; Harry Shulman, Iowa City, and Mary Cronin, Mount Pleasant.

Jack C. White, Iowa City, was selected a delegate at large.

Loyalty Check Bill Vetoed By Truman

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman yesterday vetoed as "unnecessary and unwise" a bill providing for an FBI loyalty check on persons he appoints to the Atomic Energy commission.

He called the legislation "an unwarranted encroachment of the legislative upon the executive branch."

Senator Knowland (R-Calif), sponsor of the bill, said he would ask the senate to override the President. By vetoing the measure, he said, Mr. Truman has lowered an "Iron Curtain" on information the senate ought to have.

The bill passed the senate April 1 on a voice vote. The house approved it May 3 by unanimous action. A two-thirds majority in both houses is necessary to make a bill law over the President's veto.

Under present law, FBI investigations are required of all Atomic Energy commission employees who are not subject to senate confirmation.

Hickenlooper Comments

Sen. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), chairman of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, declared that congress ought to override the veto, adding: "I feel confident that it will."

Yesterday was the last day the president had to act on the bill. Neither house was in session. He sent his veto to the secretary of the senate.

Wall Street Trade Heaviest Since '33

NEW YORK (AP)—The heaviest trading in 15 years hit the stock market yesterday but Friday's spectacular spurt in prices was slowed to a walk.

Wall Street was in a mood that recalled the turbulent days of pre-crash 1929.

A bull market was on the move in the belief of investors and speculators all over the country. Public interest whipped up to white heat.

Total sales of 2,590,000 shares were the largest for any Saturday since the "Whiskey Market" of July 22, 1933, when heavy turnover followed the repeal of prohibition.

The high-speed ticker tape, which usually reports prices in a matter of seconds after the actual transaction, lagged throughout the two-hour session, unable to keep up with the rate of trading. At one time the delay amounted to a record 13 minutes.

Price advances yesterday at the close though, were limited to a $1 a share or less in most cases.

Young Demos Push Liquor Resolution

DES MOINES (AP)—An assistant of Carroll O. Switzer succeeded yesterday in pushing through the Young Democratic state convention a resolution favoring sale of liquor by the drink.

Switzer is the Democratic nominee for governor. Polk county Young Democrats pointed out immediately, however, that the action does not commit Switzer to endorsement of liquor by the drink.

Joe Marks, an assistant Polk county attorney, presented the liquor resolution. It was in the form of a recommendation to senior Democrats to include such a liquor plank in the platform at the next state convention in July.

Marks' idea was liquor by the drink under local option.

The Young Democratic convention elected Clyde E. Herring, another Polk assistant county attorney, as state president for the next two years. He succeeds Jack White of Iowa City.

Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, Mrs. A. W. Powers, Hubbard; Alanson Elgar of Iowa Wesleyan college in Mount Pleasant, and Donald E. O'Brien, Sioux City; secretary, Jack Wing of Iowa State Teachers college in Cedar Falls; treasurer, Mrs. John Kelleher, Fort Dodge.

The convention defeated an anti-Truman resolution offered by R. Bruce Hughes, editor of The Daily Iowan at Iowa City. The vote was 71-8 against the resolution. The five University of Iowa delegates voted four to one in favor, a roll call showed.

Favorable mention of the President also was eliminated from the resolutions.

The youth convention resolutions asked:

Repeal of the sales tax on foods and medicines, repeal of the Taft-Hartley law by congress and of the restrictive labor laws passed by the last Iowa legislature, annual sessions of the legislature and relaxation of the state board of education rule forbidding speeches by political candidates at such places as the University of Iowa campus.

Invading Arab Units Hit Israel From All Sides; Haganah Gains in North

INVASION OF PALESTINE is being carried on by Lebanon, Syria, Trans-Jordan and Egypt (see arrows). Planes from Egypt (symbol) bombed Tel Aviv, new capital of Israel. Egyptians have reported their troops reached Gaza yesterday. Shaded area represents proposed Jewish State approved by the UN. Exact areas of the new State of Israel have not been defined. (AP WIREPHOTO)

TEL AVIV, ISRAEL (AP)—The army of Israel said its new-born state was invaded yesterday from the north and south, shelled from the east and bombed and machine-gunned from the air.

Haganah, now the army of a new nation already recognized by the United States, said the Lebanese army attacked across the border from the north, the Egyptian army speared into the Negev desert, and Trans-Jordan's Arab legion shelled four settlements on the Jordan valley frontier.

(The Egyptian army said two columns of troops invaded southern Palestine and one destroyed the Jewish settlement of Al Dangor, 13 miles southeast of Gaza. This would be in the territory of Israel, as defined in the United Nations decision on partition.)

(The Cairo newspaper Al Assas said Gaza, Arab city 20 miles inside Palestine on the coast, had fallen to the Egyptians.)

(A dispatch from Beirut said Lebanese troops had captured Malikiya, a town a mile inside Israel on the northern frontier.)

(Advanced patrols of the Syrian army grabbed a small bridge over the Jordan river and knifed into the area south of the Sea of Galilee, also inside Israel territory on the east, a dispatch from Damascus said.)

(Farther south King Abdullah's Trans-Jordan Arab legion crossed the Allenby bridge, occupied Jericho, and took military control of a large area in the Judean hills 20 miles northeast of Jerusalem, advices from Jericho said.)

Tel Aviv, temporary capital of Israel, underwent its fourth air attack yesterday afternoon and Haganah ordered the entire city blacked out last night.

All attacks, including the first by three to six light planes, were on the outskirts. They did not interfere much with Jews celebrating the first Sabbath in almost 2,000 year on soil they claimed as their very own.

Israel received its first immigrants since becoming a state—300 European Jews who arrived in Haifa from Genoa. They held British visas, but were given Israel entry permits in their stead.

Arab legion artillery smashed at four settlements, Ein Geb on the eastern shore of Tiberias and Ashdot Yaacov, Shaar Haganah and Gesher farther south, Haganah broadcasts said.

(The Egyptian army communication said one army column destroyed the Jewish colony of Al Dangor.)

In the far north Haganah said it occupied the tiny Arab village of Malikiya about a mile from the Lebanese border inside Israel, but that regular units of the Lebanese army were counterattacking.

Late advices to Haganah sources in Haifa said Arabs, using heavy artillery, were repulsed in attacks on Shaar Haganah and surrounding area near Trans-Jordan. These sources also said Jews took several Arab villages on the slopes of Mount Carmel and near Afula.

Jewish sources in Haifa said Haganah troops were also in control of Ras En Naqura, a northern frontier post on the west coast. These troops were reported driving north to consolidate the western area against a Lebanese invasion. Acre, first kepoint north of Haifa, sued for peace after a sharp night battle, the informants said.

Mahmoud Bey Fawzi, Egyptian delegate, denied Egypt is an aggressor. He said Egypt is entering Palestine with the unequivocal consent of the people of Palestine to maintain peace.

Truman May Lift Embargo In Middle East

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman may lift or modify his embargo on shipment of American guns, bullets, planes and other weapons to warring Jewish and Arab countries in the Middle East, it was learned yesterday.

A White House official disclosed that Mr. Truman is studying the whole question of arms exports in connection with the Palestine issues. He thus was following up his surprise announcement Friday night of American recognition of the new Jewish state of Israel.

Some support for lifting the embargo came from members of congress, where comment generally has upheld recognition of the new Jewish state. However, Rep. Vorys, (R-Ohio) warned against furnishing arms in a manner which would cause the United States to take sides in a "holy war."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) expressed himself as "sure for it" and described the embargo on arms for Jews as a "damn disgrace—the most unfair thing that has ever happened."

He declared Arabs were already getting American and British arms, said an American military mission had been in Saudi Arabia since 1943 "teaching them how to fight" and added, "we have not been neutral."

A decision on who, if anyone, is the aggressor might also affect the way in which the arms embargo would be revised or lifted. If this government, for example, considered the Arabs guilty of aggression it might consider that grounds for permitting the Jews but not the Arabs to obtain American arms.

Israel Seeks Aid In Arab Invasions

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—Israel called upon the security council yesterday to stop Arab invasions of Palestine by sanctions or actual United Nations military force.

The new Jewish state served notice she will defend herself but expected United Nations action immediately.

Arab spokesmen countered with declarations they considered the Jews of Palestine a rebellious minority; that they were merely sending in armed forces to restore order in their house.

The security council met in extraordinary session to discuss the mounting war in Palestine.

Dr. Mordecai Eliahu urged the council to apply the most stringent measures against the Arab countries if they fail to heed a council warning.

Mahmoud Bey Fawzi, Egyptian delegate, denied Egypt is an aggressor. He said Egypt is entering Palestine with the unequivocal consent of the people of Palestine to maintain peace.

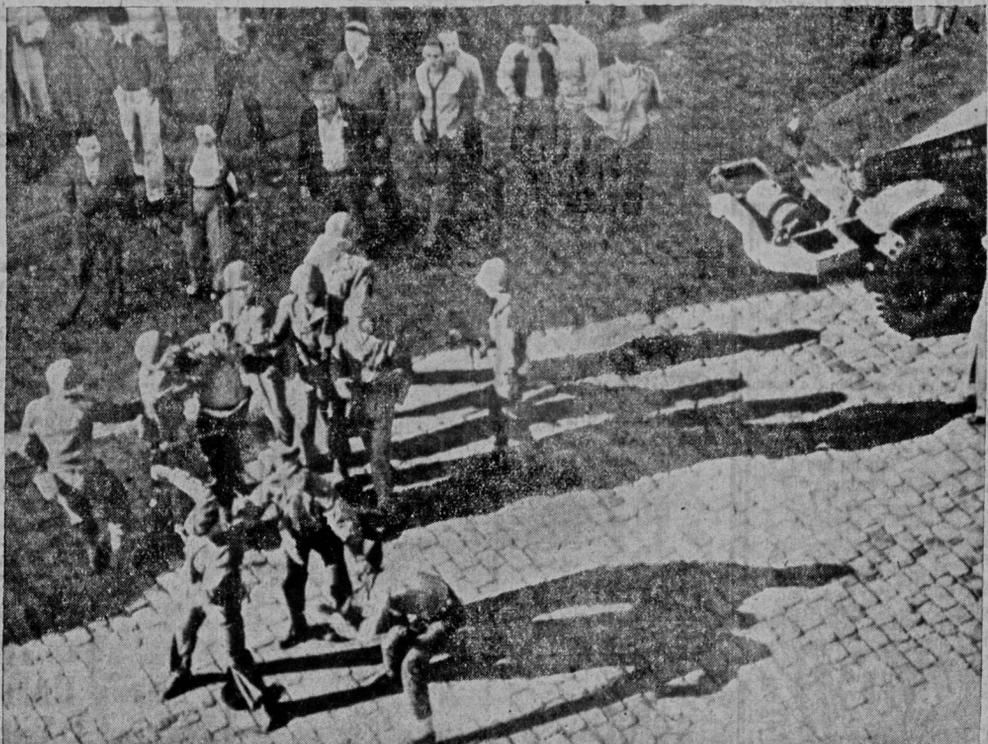

To Hold Service for New Jewish State

A service in recognition of the new Jewish state, Israel, will be held at the Hillel foundation house at 4 p. m. today.

At the special service, Arnold Fox of the English department will give a talk on the present situation in Palestine.

The local chapter at the Intercollegiate Zionist Federation of America, is sponsoring the recognition service. Throughout the United States today, similar services will be held by Zionist organizations.

Strike Threatens in U. S. Atomic Plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The threat of an atomic energy strike bounced back into America's troubled labor picture yesterday.

Negotiators in the long dispute over wages and welfare benefits at the Oak Ridge (Tenn.) national laboratory looked up without scheduling further meetings.

The labor spokesman, Kenneth Scott, AFL organizer at Oak Ridge, told reporters the "only hope" of averting strike after June 7 is for the U.S. Atomic Energy commission to move in and reach an agreement with the unions.

The commission declined to comment.

June 7 is the final date of an 80-day court injunction by which the government headed off a strike at the laboratory March 19 under the national emergency provision of the Taft-Hartley law.

Carbide & Carbon operates the laboratory on contract with the Atomic Energy commission, which owns the plant.

The strike is threatened by the AFL Atomic Trades & Labor council, which represents 900 workers—the unionized portion of the 2,500 people in the laboratory.

Gophers Tounce Iowa Track Team 82-50; Gordien Breaks Meet, Field Records

Hawks Sweep High Jump

By HANK ALLAN

Fortune Gordien, National collegiate discus champion, broke the meet and field records with a 168-foot, 9 inch heave as Minnesota tounded Iowa, 82-50, in a dual track meet on the Hawk's field yesterday afternoon.

Eight meet records were shattered and two marks tied as pre-meet Gopher favorites Lee Hofacre, Harry Cooper, Lloyd LaMois, Dick Kilty and Gordien breezed to easy victories.

Kilty, Gordien and Bob Comer, a middle-distance speedster, scored wins in two events. Kilty showed his heels to the pack in the mile and two-mile events. Comer captured the 220-yard dash and the 440-yard run and big Gordien won the discus and shot put events.

Gopher hurdlers Lee Hofacre and Jim Nielsen snappied Russ Merkel's winning streak at two meets. Nielsen edged the Iowa hurdler in the high hurdles, and Hofacre, National AAU 200-meter champion, nosed out Merkel in the low hurdles.

Iowa turned in the only grand slam of the meet when Dick Erdengerber, John Weik and Johnny Mahoney outjumped their Minnesota foes in the high jump event.

The crowd got a glimpse of the world's best sprinters when John Treloar, Olympic entry from Australia, ran against Clark Rice of Minnesota in an exhibition 100-yard dash.

Rice took the lead and was ahead by about 10 yards at the halfway mark. The towering Treloar then cut loose, tore past Rice, and broke the tape in what two timers said was .095.

The Australian has a terrific reputation. He twice bested Herb McKinley of Jamaica, and has been clocked at .095 in the 100-yard dash event on a grass track.

The mile relay won by Iowa gave the crowd a lot of laughs. So that they might have enough competitive time to win letters, Gopher coach Jim Kelly entered several hulking discus and shot putters instead of his regular runners. Minnesota took a bad drubbing in this event, of course, but the sight of 255-pound Leo Nomenlini rumbling alone some 200 yards behind the Iowa anchorman, pursued by a track-minded white dog, more than compensated for the lost points.

Eric Wilson Jr. was the victim of Minnesota teamwork in the 440-yard run. Comer of Minnesota was leading at the far turn with Wilson and Paul Neff of the Gophers a close second and third. Neff moved up and forced him behind Comer on the pole in the stretch. Wilson pulled way out around both Minnesota runners and strained to pass them. The margin was too great, however, and Wilson finished third.

Although Iowa's Russ Merkel was beaten in both hurdle events, the Quincy, Ill., athlete pushed Hofacre and Nielsen of Minnesota so hard both hurdlers established new records.

Harry Cooper Big Nine pole vault co-titlist from Gopherland, drew "ohs" and "ahs" from the crowd with his electrifying vaulting. Cooper went up and up, finally stopping an inch and a quarter over 14 feet. Lloyd La Moie, who set the meet record last year, nickered Ike Johnson of Iowa in the broad jump.

Gordien's tremendous discus heaves kept the officials and sidedined athletes on the go. One of his efforts nearly clouted a group of timers standing alongside the track.

The summaries: One mile run—1. Kilty (M). 2. Roy Good (M). 3. Copeland (I). Time—4:26.3.

440-yard run—1. Comer (M). 2. Neff (M). 3. Wilson (I). Time—3:08.7.

A's Stun Yanks With Twin Win

NEW YORK (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics solidified their hold on first place in the American league yesterday by knocking off the New York Yankees in both ends of a double header, 3-1 and 8-6.

A near-capacity crowd of 69,416, largest ever to see a Saturday baseball show at the Yankee stadium, saw the A's snuff out a ninth inning threat by the Yankees to come through with the twin victory.

Trailing 8-4, the Yankees scored two runs with two out in the ninth and had the bases loaded as Phil Marchildon faced left-handed pitcher Yogi Berra. The Yankee catcher fouled out to First Baseman Rudy York to end the game.

The double win increased the A's lead over runner-up Cleveland to a game and a half. The third place Yankees trail Cleveland by a game.

Joe Coleman outpitched Frank Shea to top the opener.

Ferris Fain's first homer of the season broke up a scoreless duel in the seventh.

Hank Majeski, former Yankee, spearheaded the Athletics' 10-hit attack in the second game. He drove in five runs with a single and his fourth homer of the season to increase his RBI total for the season to 24. Joe Page, who relieved starter Red Embree with the score tied at 4-4 in the fifth, was charged with the loss, his first of the season. Marchildon went all the way to register his fourth victory against one loss for the A's.

The Little Hawks took the team trophy garnering 10 points to Franklin's nine. They will go to the state meet, the site of which has not been announced.

Jenna defeated Jim Wasta of Franklin of Cedar Rapids 6-3, 6-3 to take the championship. Team-mates Keith Boyle and Henry Rate came through to take the doubles crown and make it a clean sweep for the Little Hawks when they defeated Bob Fletcher and Bob Landis of Franklin 6-1, 6-2.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Walter Dubiel's shutout pitching combined with some loose fielding by the opposition gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 7-0 victory over the New York Giants yesterday.

Dubiel, former New York Yankee, allowed only three hits in gaining his first National league victory. The Giants helped him along by committing five errors to present the Phils with six unearned runs.

Errors by Buddy Kerr and Jack Lohrke, followed by singles by John Blatnik and Dick Sisler and a double by "Bama Rowell gave the Phils four unearned runs off Starter Larry Jansen in the third. Lohrke's second error figured in the Phil's two runs in the fourth.

Strengthen League Lead

NEW YORK (AP)— The Philadelphia Athletics solidified their hold on first place in the American league yesterday by knocking off the New York Yankees in both ends of a double header, 3-1 and 8-6.

A near-capacity crowd of 69,416, largest ever to see a Saturday baseball show at the Yankee stadium, saw the A's snuff out a ninth inning threat by the Yankees to come through with the twin victory.

Trailing 8-4, the Yankees scored two runs with two out in the ninth and had the bases loaded as Phil Marchildon faced left-handed pitcher Yogi Berra. The Yankee catcher fouled out to First Baseman Rudy York to end the game.

The double win increased the A's lead over runner-up Cleveland to a game and a half. The third place Yankees trail Cleveland by a game.

Joe Coleman outpitched Frank Shea to top the opener.

Ferris Fain's first homer of the season broke up a scoreless duel in the seventh.

Hank Majeski, former Yankee, spearheaded the Athletics' 10-hit attack in the second game. He drove in five runs with a single and his fourth homer of the season to increase his RBI total for the season to 24. Joe Page, who relieved starter Red Embree with the score tied at 4-4 in the fifth, was charged with the loss, his first of the season. Marchildon went all the way to register his fourth victory against one loss for the A's.

Phils' Dubiel Blanks Giants With 3 Hits

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Walter Dubiel's shutout pitching combined with some loose fielding by the opposition gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 7-0 victory over the New York Giants yesterday.

Dubiel, former New York Yankee, allowed only three hits in gaining his first National league victory. The Giants helped him along by committing five errors to present the Phils with six unearned runs.

Errors by Buddy Kerr and Jack Lohrke, followed by singles by John Blatnik and Dick Sisler and a double by "Bama Rowell gave the Phils four unearned runs off Starter Larry Jansen in the third. Lohrke's second error figured in the Phil's two runs in the fourth.

List 'Musts' In Campaign Against Flies

Charles Schindler, chairman of Iowa City's "fight-the-fly" campaign, yesterday listed five "must" jobs for house-holders which will insure success in the city-wide anti-fly program. Schindler is asking householders to:

1. Clean up breeding places of insects.
2. Keep garbage cans tightly covered and wash them frequently.
3. Avoid spilling garbage on the ground and around containers.
4. Treat garbage cans, bases, and walls around them.
5. Indoors, brush five percent DDT in an oil base on screens, thresholds, baseboards, etc., to control flies, as well as mosquitoes, roaches, ants, and other crawling pests.

The DDT emulsion should be applied two or three times during the insect season, since DDT tends to break down on exposure, Schindler said.

The residential aspect of this year's campaign is being emphasized because inadequate control in those areas is believed to hamper the effectiveness of downtown sprayings.

The main event in the anti-fly campaign will be the spraying of 85 downtown food handling establishments and 16 alleys next Sunday. They will receive additional treatments later in the season.

The campaign can be successful only if householders lend active support to the program, Schindler said.

Quantity, Quality Required In Diet: Stearns

In determining nutritional needs, both the quantity and the quality of food must be considered, according to Prof. Genevieve Stearns of the pediatric department, Children's hospital.

Miss Stearns addressed the American Association of University women on "Nutritional Needs During Growth" yesterday afternoon in the University club rooms, Iowa Union.

In America, children are more likely to suffer from a lack of the right quality of food, rather than from insufficient quantities, she said.

Protein and vitamin D are needed in large quantities at all times during growth, she pointed out.

A child should be adequately nourished if his diet includes at least one and one-half pints of milk and 4,000 units of vitamin D a day, a variety of fresh fruits and vegetables, and a sufficient amount of calorie-giving foods to provide energy.

Preceding Miss Stearns' talk, reports on the activities of the past year were given by the officers and study group chairmen.

EVER LOOK BEHIND AN AD?

I AM an ad. I'm one of hundreds in this paper. And I'd like to take you by the hand and show you what's behind these ads.

Obviously their job is to sell goods or services. That's why you look at these ads or listen to radio advertising. You're looking for something that you want to buy.

But advertising affects you and your family far more deeply. Buying and selling goods and services is what, in the last analysis, creates all the jobs, all the pay checks in America. And ads that you read and hear are the fastest, most powerful, most economical way yet devised of selling.

More and better advertising means more sales. More sales mean more jobs and better jobs. Less advertising means less sales, less business activity.

So whenever you see or hear advertising, be thankful for it. Be glad that people like to hear and read it. For advertising, by selling more goods to more people, makes your job—everybody's job—more secure.

OTHER WAYS ADVERTISING HELPS YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

- 1 Brings you better goods for less money.
- 2 Makes shopping more pleasant and easier.
- 3 Gears consumer demand to production, to create prosperity.

Advertising... BY SELLING MORE GOODS TO MORE PEOPLE... Makes your job more secure

Trolley Perplexes Veteran Soldiers

Two veteran soldiers were traveling from Iowa City to Cedar Rapids the other day on a trolley. They were on their way to the West coast, but were stopping for a visit at the home of one of the men near Cedar Rapids.

With rows of ribbons and sleeves laddered with hashmarks the two old army men seemed to take the swaying and bumping of the car for granted. They were used to traveling in anything from tanks to planes.

At last one of the men spoke to his Midwestern buddy in a Philadelphia dialect:

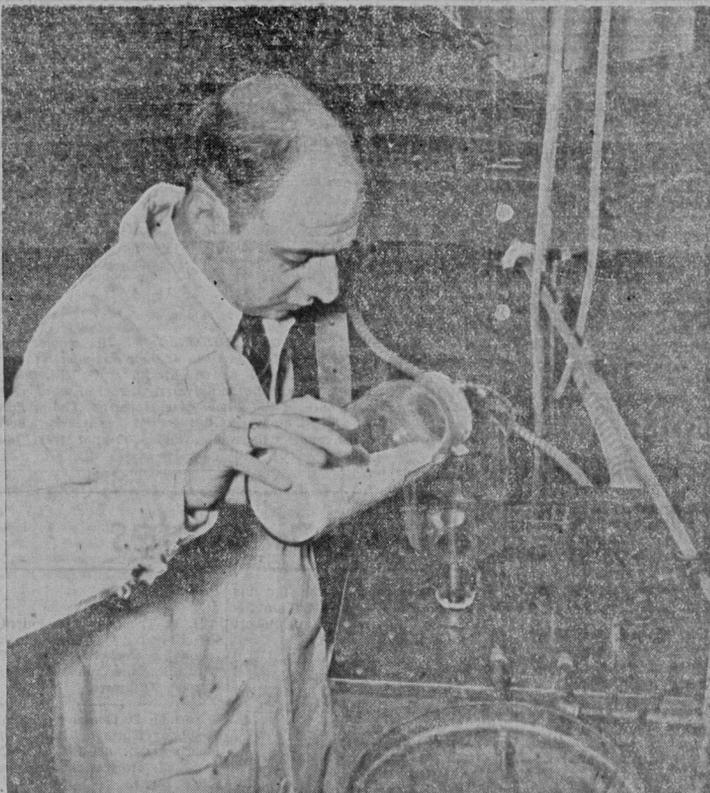

"I've never been west of Pitts-burgh before, but I saw a show about Jesse James once. I was just wondering—did he ever rob this train?"

Recitalists To Perform

New Vibrating Device Can 'Whistle' Dirty Clothes Clean

Will Also Produce Amino Acid, Two University Engineer-Inventors Say

AMINO ACID, INJECTED INTO THE BLOOD STREAM, gives undernourished bodies needed proteins. Shown above is Herbert D. Grove Jr. pouring powdered yeast into his homemade vibrator which separates amino acid from other components in the yeast. The vibrator can also "separate" dirt from unclean clothes. Grove, a graduate chemical engineer, spent over $1,000 to build this device. (Daily Iowan Photo by Russ Zeleniak)

By RUSS PAULDING

Mrs. Housewife, would you like to whistle the dirt out of your laundry? Would you like to end scrubbing and drying clothes? Engineers may be able to help you.

A whistling device has been developed at SUU. Not built for dry-cleaning or the distraction of young ladies, its purpose is experimental.

The sound device has purified and softened water, evaporated benzene and freed protein matter from yeast cells. Other experiments indicate it can form hydrogen peroxide.

Herbert D. Grove Jr., graduate chemical engineer who built the vibrating device, said wood chip extractions such as "turpentine" and "pine oil" are possible with this machine. Eventually, "sterilizing" doctors instruments and cooking utensils may be practical.

Vibrating dirt from clothing may soon be a reality with a machine similar to Grove's. This would mean dry-cleaning in the true sense. Clothes could be laundered in the vibrator at the flip of a switch.

The whistle used is actually an audible vibration, or sonic waves. Most people can hear sonic waves as rapid as 15,000 cycles per second.

Waves used in this experimentation remained largely between 8,000 and 12,000 cycles per second.

Grove started work on his sonic wave machine in May, 1946. He spent over $1,000 on it before it was finished. Dr. James O. Osburn directed work on the machine.

Grove sounded a call for help in September, 1947. William Haberstrah, graduate chemical engineer, answered, and the team of Grove and Haberstrah has been working since.

Killing bacteria with the vibrator was the big problem facing the two chemists. If they could kill all the bacteria, they would sterilize a particular substance called amino acid.

This would mean killing two birds with one stone, since the acid to be sterilized was also produced by the vibrator.

Haberstrah's job was to determine how many bacteria were killed by a salvo of sound waves. Here's how it was done:

The bacteria were placed in a nutrient solution which made them grow. First the chemist counted the number of bacteria in the original yeast solution.

Then a portion of the same solution was given the vibrator treatment. A count after treatment was then made. The sterilizing ability of the vibrator was determined by comparing the two counts.

After the bacteria were shattered by the sound producer, Grove discovered that only the "strongest" bacteria remain alive to produce again.

But why all this interest in amino acids? Amino acids are components of protein, the building blocks for muscles. Today, their production has become big business for drug companies.

Amino acids are used in all hospitals. Injected into the blood stream, these acids give undernourished bodies needed proteins.

Grove said, these acids must be properly sterilized before being given to a patient. The vibrator is important since it extracts and sterilizes at the same time.

Much work is left in this field, Grove said. "For years industries have been plagued by continuous separation of protein matter from these extracts." If we could combine all the contents of the yeast cell, we would have a valuable product. "Vitamins and proteins" would then be combined.

Golfers Grab for Golf Trophy

THAT'S IT, BOYS, but you have to win it first. Clutching for the trophy that will go to the winner of the journalism golf tourney are (left to right) Professors Arthur Barnes, Philip Burton and Gene Harlan. The trophy is in the hands of Don E. Powell, Home Insulation company president, donor of the travelling cup. The golf match will be a continuing affair until the semester's end. Opening date for the tournament has not been set. Soviet Atom Study Costs Over $1-Billion

CHICAGO (AP)—The Soviet Union spent more than $1,225,000,000 on atom bomb development and other military research in 1947, an American intelligence chief reported yesterday.

The information came from Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, assistant director, Central Intelligence group, Washington.

Writing as an individual, rather than as a CIA official, he said also in an article prepared for the 1948 Britannica book of the year that:

Russia laid up at least $9-billion in 1947 for new equipment.

The U.S.S.R. kept more than 500 German scientists at work on guided missiles and other new weapons—among them a new tank which probably is the largest ever built.

The end of the second full post-war year found more than 15-million men in the land forces of all nations.

The strength of the active force of the armies of each of the great powers was listed as — U.S.S.R. 3,800,000, United States 670,000, Great Britain 650,000, France 430,000.

China was tops with 5,750,000. But these troops were split into two camps by civil war. Turkey ranked third with 675,000 men.

The United States — listed as "the only major power without peacetime conscription"—saw its army drop to "the equivalent of 13 divisions and 670,000 men," said the general.

Heat Experiments Turn Up Surprises for SUI Doctors

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

Heat treatments, used to relieve pain, have turned up some new surprises and puzzles at the SUI college of medicine.

Doctors have long used heat lamps, diathermy machines and hot pads to ease pain and swelling. But no one knows just why they have this effect. One thing the heat was thought to do was to increase the blood flow.

Using animals, Dr. W. D. Paul, Dr. C. R. Kemp and Dr. H. M. Hines put this theory to a test. Then came the surprises.

Short-wave heat, they found, didn't increase the blood flow in veins or arteries under the skin. If anything, it decreased the flow.

But microwaves, the extremely short waves like those used in radar, did boost the blood flow. Why there should be this difference, and whether one is more beneficial than the other, are still unknowns, Dr. Paul said.

The blood flow was measured by detouring the blood from an artery through a glass shunt. The glass gadget released an air bubble into the bloodstream, and recaptured it before the blood re-entered the artery. The speed of the flow could be measured by the speed of the bubble's travel.

Under heat treatment, the capillaries or small blood vessels in the skin do dilate or expand. But, Dr. Paul said, it hasn't been proved yet that the blood flows through faster.

Ice makes capillaries contract. The cold also decreases the flow of blood in large blood vessels.

Leopold Rovner, Dr. Paul and Dr. Hines also are studying the differences in heat-effects of different kinds of infra-red lamps and reflectors. For this, they devised a lamp scanner, which records infra-red intensity, and reproduces the pattern of intensity on a graph.

Some lamps scatter heat generally, while others spotlight it. But there are differences in the amount of scattering or spotlighting with various types of lamps and construction, they find. With the instrument, they can measure the heat output of the lamp, and tell where the heat is directed, and how much of it hits different areas.

Judge Harold Evans To Pick Petit Jury

Judge Harold D. Evans will select a petit jury of 12 tomorrow morning to hear the case of Greazel vs. Caskey, first assignment of the May term of the Johnson county district court, he said yesterday.

Fred Greazel, 7 W. Burlington, has asked judgment of $7,500 against Northal L. Caskey and Dr. Phillip Cahn. Greazel said he suffered injuries as a result of an accident between Cahn's automobile and Caskey's truck.

The accident happened, said Greazel, at the intersection of Highway 6 and Highway 153. Employed by the state highway commission, he was repairing the road there.

The two defendants in the case have since filed cross petitions against each other.

Iowa Dairy Industry To Advertise More In Effort To Halt Increased Oleo Sales

DES MOINES (P) — The Iowa Dairy Industry commission is going to try to halt the increased use of oleomargarine in this state with a 10 to 15 percent increase in local newspaper advertising of butter.

Frank Barker, commission director, said yesterday the use of oleo has been increasing steadily in Iowa and reached a record of 2,317,260 pounds in 1947. Meanwhile, butter consumption in Iowa last year was approximately 20 times that amount, or about 41,000,000 pounds.

Barker said, however, efforts in congress to repeal federal taxes on the butter substitute also were a factor in the stepped up advertising program. The house has passed a repeal bill and it now is before the senate.

Two Iowa dairymen-farmers will go before the senate finance committee in opposition to repeal, after the hearings open next Monday. The Iowans are Marvin McLain, Brooklyn, and Scott Ellis, Dallas Center.

Ellis milks from 40 to 50 cows a day, and McLain from 15 to 20, Barker said. He added that they were authorized to go to Washington by the Iowa State Dairy association. The date of their appearance has not been set.

Barker said Iowa produced 209,140,107 pounds of butter in 1947, but that last year, like other recent years, only about 20 percent of the production was consumed in Iowa.

The newspaper advertising in Iowa will be supplemented by butter promotion ads placed by the American Dairy association in nationally circulated magazines and on billboards throughout the nation.

"We think that as soon as the consumers are aware of the goodness of butter the increasing use of oleo will stop," Barker said, adding:

"It is not the producer, nor the processor, nor the distributor who is responsible for the present price of butter. It is just the economic situation, and, principally, the high cost of feed."

Kappas Win First Place Plaque in SUI Canoe Races

Kappa Kappa Gamma yesterday paddled to first place with a total of 66 and one-half points in the WRA all-university canoe races.

The winners were presented with a copper and wooden plaque made by students in the women's physical education department.

Delta Upsilon placed second with 37 and one-half points and Delta Delta Delta totaled 35 and one-half points for third place.

Joe Scarpello, Hawkeye wrestler, and Mary Lou Thomas, Currier entry suddenly found themselves swimming instead of paddling the first heat of the mixed races. Their canoe overturned.

The girls' novelty race gave the gals a chance to prove they could paddle just as well backward, or even a little better than they could forward.

Donna Jones, Missouri Valley, was in charge of the races. Helen Pappas, Mason City, was announcer and Mary Ann Wyant, Leon, starter. Judges were Frances Falck, Decorah, and Jean Swenson, Moline, Ill.

The 'Little People' Are Happy, But . . .

When the Long boys from Louisiana do anything there are no halfway measures. There is no doubt about who is doing it, or about what they are doing. They are somewhat like the James boys in that respect.

You remember the "Kingfish"? Huey Long, the Baron of the Bayous, made a Mardi Gras of Louisiana government, while he was chief executive, until he was shot down in a statehouse corridor in 1935 by the son-in-law of an official he had deposed. His kingdom collapsed into its own graft and corruption after that.

Now, after years of semi-oblivion, the Long banners are flying high. The Kingfish's brother, Earl, is now governor of Louisiana.

"Every man will be a king and every lady a queen—with no one wearing the crown," he told 50,000 happy "little people" Tuesday at his inauguration in the Louisiana State University football stadium (Long built).

Forty-one bands, 200,000 hot dogs, 240,000 bottles of pop, 16,000 glasses of buttermilk and an untold amount of wine made the Long-loyal subjects dream happily of the fabulous Kingfish era.

However, brother Earl insists it won't be the old "Kingfish era." He said:

"I will not permit any of my friends, because they support me politically, to graft or take advantage or be shown undue favoritism in dealing with this state, its various political subdivisions and its institutions."

Very commendable. But that won't stop the "little people" from dreaming, the political hangers-on from hoping or the rest of us from being skeptical, until proven wrong.

We hope, for the political and economical well-being of the "little people" of Louisiana, that the "Kingfish era" has not returned.

Shades of the 'Good Old Days'

Shades of the 'good old days' of the corn-likker, stump-speech, and torch-light-parade kind of political campaigning. The presidential campaign is warming up.

Harold Stassen and Tom Dewey have promised the nation a debate tomorrow night on, of all things, "the control of communism."

It should be interesting. Presumably the two men know what they are talking about, but, even if they don't, it should be interesting.

Everyone gets around sooner or later to that subject and the two candidates for the Republican nomination should be no exception, in fact, it should be required that all the candidates take a public stand on a question that is now occupying so much of congress' time.

Dewey has said he disfavours "outlawing" the American Communist party. Stassen has different views. He said in Portland, Ore., Wednesday:

"For the best hope of a future of peace and freedom I hold that the Communist organizations should be promptly outlawed in America and in all freedom-loving countries."

He proceeded to link Dewey with President Truman and Henry Wallace (what a thing to do to a fellow Republican) in that "they all continue to believe that the blessing of legality should be extended to the Communist organizations."

Stassen has three questions he wants Dewey, and others, to answer:

"Do you not agree that the Communist organizations in the world today are under the direction of the Kremlin in Moscow?"

"Do you not agree that this world Communist organization is a threat to world peace?"

"Do you not agree that the objective of these Communist organizations is to destroy the liberties of other men?"

Presumably he will pose these and other questions for Dewey to answer over the four-network broadcast at 8 o'clock tomorrow night (Monday). Whatever questions are asked and whatever answers are given, it should be interesting to the listeners.

We suspect that if Stassen and Dewey get a good "Hooperating" on their broadcast the other candidates will want to take to the air to debate their views with each other.

Let's hope so. This campaign might as well be interesting, if not enlightening.

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

Communist Land Reform Is a 'Cruel Hoax'

By J.M. ROBERTS JR., AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

One of the cruelest hoaxes being played on some of the Communist-subjugated peoples of Europe is in the much touted matter of land "reform."

The longing for a little land of their own has been one of the driving forces for years among the peasants under the old feudal agricultural systems.

The reds have made much of it in an attempt to win over the people of every country they have invaded. It was one of the chief baits held before the people of southern Italy in the recent elections. Every peasant was promised that, under a Communist regime, his landlord would be despoiled and he would be given his own plot of ground.

It doesn't always work out too well, especially in wheat country where cultivation of small plots is not economical, but the peasants love it. They shortsightedly trade their liberties for it.

And then comes disillusionment. An example of what happens is given by emigres from Estonia.

The Estonian peasants got their land in 1945 with assurances that "no power on earth" would deprive them of it. Until the end of 1947 all went well. The farmers filled their quotas for the state and the Communist government bragged that they had done in 10 months what was supposed to have taken a year.

However, as the Estonians tell it, early this year the Bolsheviks took a new turn. They decided that individual tilling of land is nefarious, and began to set up kolkozoes, Russian-type collective farms.

When the land-loving peasants declined to respond as rapidly as desired, the Commies knew how to put on the heat. They announced that machine and tractor stations and horse-lending centers (which allot the government-owned equipment to the farms) would henceforth be able to make contracts only with kolkozoes and paupers. The small farmer would be frozen out, unable to till his fields. But failure to fulfill his government produce quota remained a criminal offense. He had to join the kolkozoe.

Now, in fairness it must be said that collective farming of the Russian type has some advantages. Better machinery and professional direction increase production. Millions of Russian peasants are far better off, live in better houses, and many of undoubted sincerity have testified to happiness unknown under the czars.

In his interesting book, "Speaking Frankly," Mr. Byrnes tells the story of various conferences. At Yalta and Teheran there seems to have been amicable agreement. Of course, then, we had a common cause, to win the war; no one seems to worry about winning peace.

But Byrnes considered the Potsdam conference a success; President Truman tied the three major propositions up in a single package and Molotov could "take it or leave it." He didn't like it but he took it.

Byrnes calls the London meeting a setback but the Moscow conference which followed seems to have been successful from our point of view.

There were three complaints which we thought Molotov might rake up—relative to the atomic bomb, American troops in China and the control of Japan. I understand that these questions were not very seriously raised; our position was endorsed.

There were three complaints which we raised relating to peace conference procedure and Russian influence in Bulgaria and Iran. There was some bitterness but in the end the first two were settled to our satisfaction; the Iran question settled itself later.

Mr. Byrnes is probably oversimplifying a complex situation but this would seem to give a pretty high score for American firmness and Russian amenability to reason (or, as the Russian might express it, to American obstinacy and Russian appeasement).

Contrast this success in the smoke-filled room with the palaver at the United Nations. Mr. Gromyko is indeed a walker-out-er. The only Soviet-American agreement here which I recall was in regard to Palestine—until we changed our minds.

There Must Be Talks Between U. S., Russia if We Want World Peace

TO THE DAILY IOWAN: We have just given Russia the polite brush-off. They want to talk things over; we suggest that they tell their troubles to the United Nations—to Argentina, Egypt, South Africa, and the rest, who cannot even settle a little mess like Palestine.

President Truman sees nothing hopeful in the Russian overture; Secretary Marshall sees in it a sign that the Soviets are softening up, a success for our get tough policy.

One column in our newspaper tells us that our state department refuses to enter into bilateral conversations with Russia without representation from all other interested parties, the other states of Europe, are looking hopefully for these same conversations, without worrying about representation.

They know that the black cloud which they see over them is the urge toward war in Russia and in the United States. There is no conflict in real interests between these two countries which both have all the resources they need—there is simply the will to disagree.

There is an impression that we cannot talk with the Russian because he has a chip on his shoulder. He will not compromise. Mr. Molotov always walks out. This is far from the fact. When the UN was organized at San Francisco, friend Molotov had a number of little harmless suggestions; none were adopted but Mr. Molotov did not walk out.

In his interesting book, "Speaking Frankly," Mr. Byrnes tells the story of various conferences. At Yalta and Teheran there seems to have been amicable agreement. Of course, then, we had a common cause, to win the war; no one seems to worry about winning peace.

(as I understand it) sees no place in the sun for a communistic state.

I suppose we have a right to kill our own brothers and sons and wreck our own country in another war; and we may be satisfied that our enemy will be hurt even more. But we do not have the right to murder all the innocent bystanders, the little fellows of Europe; we have no right to poison the world.

We can have peace if we want it. But none of our spokesmen seem to care—except Mr. Wallace. I suppose it is the same in Russia.

Any policy is better than none. I am afraid the Truman doctrine is the only policy which the American people will consistently support. I hope the Russians are getting soft.

Wallace Decries Our Vile Distortion of Facts

TO THE DAILY IOWAN: The Iowan's article on the food drive for the striking packinghouse workers was a dishonest, slanderous misrepresentation of the Wallace position and the Iowa City group.

This was The Daily Iowan's position, not mine, since I had specifically informed the reporter that I could not permit such a perverted statement under any conditions, even if it meant no publicity at all.

I feel that the editors even distorted the copy of their own reporter, as well as distorting my statement, since the complete article as read to me before publication did not contain those vile facts.

Although I am incensed at this singular example of journalistic hypocrisy and deceit, I have come to expect it from an American press which is dedicated with vast devotion to the proposition that all means of slandering and vilifying the Wallace movement, however low, are acceptable in an American press where the great lie has become the order of the day.

But still more revolting to me was the indecent spectacle of Larry Dennis's shameful rhetoric in The Daily Iowan, May 14. It would be understandable from one less sophisticated than Dennis perhaps, but it is unpardonable from one who knows better—and Larry Dennis knows better.

Larry Dennis knows, as anyone who has bothered to make the slightest inquiry into the meaning of our movement knows, that the statement in the Iowan could not, did not represent our position on the packinghouse strike; that our support of this strike is unconditional, that there are no strings attached, that there can be no reservations.

We support unequivocally the just demands of the packinghouse strikers, everywhere and equally! All honest people know this full well!

We are most gratified, nonetheless, that Dennis has announced himself as a strong partisan of the strikers, and shall be happy to accept any contribution toward their support that he may offer.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT We Play Strange Game

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The exchange of notes between the United States and Russia has led to one of the great diplomatic shambles of all time.

Our original note was sufficiently curious, stressing with equal emphasis our great determination to be tough, and our great determination to be friendly. But when the Russians seized on the friendly aspects of our note, and took a "positive attitude" toward the idea of holding discussions, we immediately reverted to the tough side, and rejected direct talks.

What goes on here? If the Russians had picked up only the tough aspects of our communication, and had hit back in kind, what would we have done then—directed attention to the friendly paragraphs? What strange game of hot and cold running diplomacy is this?

For one moment there was a break in the dismal fabric of an unhappy year; for a moment crowds in the streets of Europe read bulletins which seemed to promise peace, and were happy. Our own stock market cheered up and rose to the hope of peace.

The most disheartening circumstance in the entire affair is the speed and the seeming casualness with which our government has closed up this chink through which the daylight showed, and marked it: "Opened by Mistake."

I had hoped, when I first heard of the notes, that a certain period was at last drawing to its end. It was a period in world affairs which could be called the era of rediscovery of the obvious.

It was that strange period in which M. Molotov would bounce to the microphone to tell a breathless world that America had a number of quite large corporations in it, and it was the period in which Mr. Truman revealed he had inside information that Russia was a Communist country, and on the whole devoted to an expansion of its influence.

It was the period in which we suddenly found out that Russia was a dictatorship and in which Russia was desolated to discover that Americans like to sell goods abroad and to make a dollar in the process.

These facts, known to every school child for a generation, were suddenly shrilled through the planetary night by the top statesmen of the world in accents of sharpest surprise. Truman, shaken to discover that Russia's leaders were Marxists; Vishinsky, flabbergasted to note that collectives do not cut much ice in America—these are the characteristic snapshots of the period of the rediscovery of the obvious.

Perhaps, on an idealistic level, the explanation is that during the war the two countries had oversold themselves on how alike they were, and that reality had to come as a shock.

Or perhaps the answer is that when peace is in prospect we tend to stress similarities and when conflict threatens we stress differences.

Perhaps if peace became the prospect again we would rediscover Stalingrad, and remember that the Russians were pretty good in there against the Nazis; and the Russians, for their part, might recall that the United States, though indeed a capitalist country, has on the whole the best international reputation any great power has ever had, and has helped many, and hurt few, if any.

I have not too much respect for cold reason; I have a feeling that even the most carefully integrated logical systems follow the emotions more than is believed; and it seems to me that if peace became a lively possibility again the Russians would suddenly discover that perhaps the United States was not going to be knocked over by dreadful depression next year, and we might discover that maybe Russian interest in security is not just a grim whim.

It is possibilities of this sort that we close off by rejecting what was, after all, an overture. It is not only that we have turned down a conference; we have turned down a chance at the kind of thinking and talking that goes with an improved atmosphere. We have not only rejected a possibility; we have rejected the other possibilities that were inherent in it, and could, in their turn have been made possible by it.

Third: Much "critical" gobble-dyok is contradictory to fact: Item—the superior assumption, in the "Fanny" review as in others, that this was the sort of honest theme that Hollywood could not or would not make, is at variance with the fact that in 1938 MBM filmed "Fanny" as "Port of Seven Seas" with a capable production staff and cast.

James Whale directed; Preston Sturges and Earnest Vajda did the script, and Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan and John Beal played the principal roles. They somehow managed also to avoid the "stigma of sensationalism"; TIME described the film as having "quiet, anecdotal charm."

Bible Teaching Not Barred in Iowa Schools

DES MOINES (AP)—There is no legal barrier to teaching the Bible or religion in any form in Iowa schools so long as it is not sectarian, the state department of public instruction said yesterday.

R.A. Griffin, the department's legal adviser, said that was his conclusion after a study of a recent decision of the U.S. supreme court. The court's ruling was on an appeal from Illinois contesting religious education in public schools.

"It (the decision) in no way bars the inclusion of courses in the teaching of the Bible or religious influences in the development of modern civilization," Griffin said in the current issue of the department's monthly educational bulletin, adding:

"The decision in no way bars the employment of qualified teachers, duly certified, to teach these courses in a purely nonsectarian manner as literature, history or social problems.

"This seems to be the most feasible plan now available for such instruction.

"The offering of such courses as electives in the secondary school field may require additional training of teachers for this type of work. Evidently such training should be broad and unbiased toward any particular sect or creed, in order to conform to the court's decision."

Griffin urged those interested in the problem to study the full text of the decision.

"In presenting this brief summary of this epoch making decision," Griffin said, "we realize that it is fragmentary, that it hits only the high spots, that it will not satisfy many people.

"But it is the view of the court of last resort and is the law until legally changed through reversal or constitutional amendment.

"So long as this decision stands it behooves school authorities to adhere to its mandates in order to keep themselves unspotted before the world."

Filipino Countrymen Chat

DISCUSSING CURRENT FILIPINO NEWS are Dr. Manuel Gatmaitan, brother-in-law of Manuel Roxas, Philippine president who died recently, and Major Perfecto Vasquez of the Philippine army. Dr. Gatmaitan has been in Iowa City since April 27 studying techniques in surgery and facilities used by the University hospital's orthopedic clinic. Dr. Manuel A. Gatmaitan, brother-in-law of Manuel A. Roxas, Philippine president who died recently, is studying techniques in surgery and facilities used by the University hospital's orthopedic clinic.

The 48-year-old surgeon's study dealing with methods in preventing or correcting deformities, especially in children, is sponsored by the United Nations' World Health organization.

"We are eight years behind in the study of medicine and surgery because of the war," he said. "When I return to my country in July, I will present my findings to the government."

Most of the medical equipment used in the Philippines is U. S. army surplus, according to Dr. Gatmaitan, who said in many cases it was difficult to apply the equipment to civilian medical practice.

Before coming to Iowa City on April 27, the doctor visited seven major orthopedic clinics in the United States and one in Toronto, Canada.

In comparing the clinics, he said the one here "rates with the best I've seen."

"The University hospital's clinic gives maximum benefit to patients and medical students studying the cases," he remarked.

During his study at Ann Arbor, Mich., Dr. Gatmaitan was greatly impressed by a 12-year-old boy's lack of fear when it came to operations.

"The boy had undergone 18 operations since birth," continued the doctor, "and he has many more to go. But he would enter the clinic smiling." The child was born with deformed arms and legs. Today, he is able to walk and move his arms, but with some difficulty, according to the doctor.

Next week, Dr. Gatmaitan, who is affiliated with the Philippine government hospital in Manila, will leave for the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn., where he will continue his observations.

Two other Filipino doctors are in the United States under the sponsorship of WHO, according to the doctor.

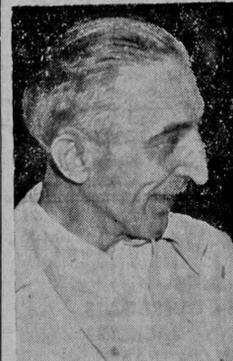

"One is studying health education, and the other, nutrition," he said.

Give Badges To 2 Retired IC Policemen

For the first time in the history of the local police association, two former Iowa City policemen received retirement badges at the same time.

They were H. R. Beranek, 808 Hudson avenue, and B. A. Hauber, 924 E. Washington street.

At the meeting of the Iowa City policemen's association Friday night at the police station, the retirement badges were presented to the two men by Fred Lewis, president of the local group.

The badges are solid gold replicas of regular service badges with the retiring officers name embossed on the front in blue enamel.

H. F. BERANEK

The officers service record is engraved on the back of the retirement badge.

They are presented by the members of the association as a token of esteem to the retiring officers.

Hauber started working as a patrolman Nov. 1, 1922, and retired because of physical disability Jan. 1 of this year.

Beranek, who served as desk captain for about eight years, was with the Iowa City police force for 22 years. His retirement took effect April 23 of this year.

Ver's Victory, Defense Medals Available at Army Recruiting Office

World War II Victory and American Defense medals are available at the recruiting office in the postoffice for eligible veterans, Sgt. O. A. McClung, local recruiting officer said yesterday.

Medals for veterans who served in the American, Asiatic-Pacific or European-African-Middle Eastern theaters of war are expected soon.

Veterans calling for these medals should bring their discharge papers with them, McClung said.

Huge GI Bill Influences Education

WASHINGTON (AP)—The huge GI bill education program has brought the influence of the federal government into the education field on an unprecedented scale.

Already 4,850,000 American men and women who served in World War II have benefited from the various types of education offered by the nation at a cost of $2,750,000,000 a year.

That's one-third of all World War II veterans and the program is just now in its peak. It will run on until July, 1956, for virtually all veterans and a little longer for a few.

Educators point out that institutions of higher learning—colleges and universities—are educating 1,000,000 more men and women today than they were in 1940. There's a waiting list of 500,000 prospective college students.

But the GI bill provides more than higher learning. Its vast educational program under joint control of individual states and the veterans administration, but paid for by the federal government, is divided into three parts:

1. Education in schools, colleges and universities—called institutional training. (1,705,000 veterans are in this phase of the program).

2. On-the-job training, in thousands of different industrial and business establishments. (479,000 are in this).

3. Institutional on-the-farm training on thousands of self-supporting, veteran-managed or veteran-owned farms of all sizes. This is relatively new and only 286,000 veterans are taking part.

These are the figures on veterans now getting GI bill education.

Latest VA statistics show a slight decline in the number of veterans at institutions of higher learning; a slight increase in the number at lower schools and vocational schools.

Rescue 2 Miners From Coal Shaft; Companion Perishes

SHAMOKIN, PA. (AP)—Two miners were rescued yesterday after a 60-hour entombment in a flooded coal shaft. Their companion presumably perished.

The two bedraggled survivors, their eyes bandaged against the too-bright light of dawn, were brought up from their 175-foot deep prison by volunteers who had carried on the sleepless hunt for three days.

"We almost gave up hope," said the rescued men, Edward Heck, 42, and Peter Gorton, 35, both of Shamokin.

They were taken to Shamokin State hospital for rest, unharmed by the long vigil underground in their own small coal pit.

By nightfall, searchers had removed all but two feet of water from the pit and had investigated all the tunnels through which their companion, Charles Bashore, 42-year-old father of four children, might have escaped.

The searchers said Bashore apparently was caught in the first rush of water Wednesday and buried in an 80-foot mire where mine refuse normally is piled.

Heck and Gorton said an explosive charge set off to loosen a section of coal Wednesday afternoon unleashed a torrent of water that flooded their small working that is tunneled into a mountain-side above this eastern Pennsylvania anthracite town. As it flooded into the "sump"—the low point where Bashore was working—they found themselves dry and safe in a tunnel sealed at both ends by murky water.

$4,000,000,000. A recent boost in subsistence allowances and a lifting of the so-called "ceilings" for on-the-job-trainees will raise the rate of expenditure.

The only other major change being considered is a proposal now in the house veterans committee to cut out all training which doesn't lead to a definite employment-objective. This is aimed at certain flight-training, dance-class and other vocational courses.

Educators who have watched GI bill education in action predict it will have a lasting influence on American education.

Representatives of the American Council on Education and the Association of American Colleges believe veterans who receive school and college training will want their children and younger brothers and sisters to have the same chance they did, and they'll expect federal aid.

The office of education says the significance of on-the-job training lies in its future application. Thousands of veterans who are now trainees, it points out, will some day be employers. They will appreciate the value of training-on-the-job, with its progressive step-ups in salary until the job-objective is reached.

Until the GI bill came along few people ever got this kind of training. But since June, 1944, (date of the GI bill) 1,194,000 veterans have enrolled in job-training establishments. The law provides tight training standards and constant policing of employers to see that they live up to the standards.

(Job-trainees get an allowance from the government which is proportionally cut as the entry wage is increased. When the veteran is trained to take over his job-objective the allowance stops).

'Glutton Contest'

2 Tie in Ice Cream Eating Race

Two members of the Dolphin swimming club tied for first place in shattering an old record yesterday in a contest sponsored by Irv Weber, Iowa's first all-American swimmer.

Rejecting traditional bathing suits and donning bibs, Duane Draves, (one of three) defending champs last year, and Phil Cady, Dolphin president, took two hours to eat seven pints of ice cream in the annual Dolphin's "glutton" contest.

Dennis Hoffnagle spooned through six pints for second place. Frank Havlicek, business manager of the athletic department out at Coach Dave Armbruster 2-1. Wally Ris, captain of Iowa's swimming team, finished near the bottom after forcing down a pint of ice cream.

Draves and Cady each started on their eighth pints but neither finished. In order to be counted, the pint of ice cream had to be finished and "kept down."

Ervin Straub, another of the defending champions, finished ninth.

Paul Hutinger, the third defending champ of last year's contest, did not participate.

A freshman who was not eligible for the varsity contest out-clasped the field. Just to get in shape for the next year's contest, he ate a whole gallon.
