Metz Second With Hot 67; Records Fall

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Locke registered nine one-putt greens to shoot a course record 65—six under par—and capture the first round lead of the $15,000 Chicago Victory golf championships yesterday.

The heavy jawed South African required only a total 25 strokes with his rusty, ancient putter on Midlothian's tricky greens. On the 447-yard sixth he holed a 20-foot chip shot to salvage a birdie 3.

His 34 on the front nine and blazing five under par 31 on the back side was the best ever recorded on the course, one of the oldest in the Chicago district.

Par is a respected 35-36—71 over the 6,587 yard layout. Old timers still talk of the 72-hole, 290 score Watler Hagen posted to win the 1914 National Open, one of the last major meets held at Midlothian.

The course record of 66 by Harry Hampton of Chicago had stood for 10 years.

Following Locke—the country's third leading money winner—for the $2,000 first prize in the four-day tourney, were Dick Metz of Arkansas City, Kas., with 67, and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Jim Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., with 69 each.

A group of 70 shooters included Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., Cary Middlecoff of Memphis, Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., and Jim Ferrier, registering out of San Francisco.

Two of the most sensational shots of the opening round were made by Johnny Bulla of Phoenix, Ariz., and Metz. Bulla started out with an eagle 2 on the 419-yard first hole by sinking a 135-yard shot from the rough. But he finished with a 37-34-71.

Metz deuced the 404-yard 17th by holing a 145-yard six-iron.

Turnesa, who finished third in the recent U. S. Open, blew on the last two holes, taking 5's on each, but still carded 34-35-69. He took three strokes from the fringe on the 17th and was trapped on the 18th.

Locke's 65 combined with a 74 for his amateur partner, George Dawson of Chicago, put the two-some in the lead of the pro-amateur competition with 139.

Ferrier and Mike Stefanchik of Gary, Ind., combined 70-73-143 for second in the pro-amateur bracket.

Cardinals Play Flint Tonight

Iowa City's Cardinals will play host to the Joe Louis Brown Bombers of Flint, Michigan, on Kelley field tonight.

The Bombers, an eastern division club in the National Softball league, are playing the Cards in an exhibition game here before the Cards leave for twin-bills with Waukegan and Chicago this week-end.

Moving into sixth place and only three games out of first by virtue of Wednesday's night's 2 to 1 win over Rock Island, the Cards have a record of four wins and six losses for a .400 average.

Tomorrow the Cards will be in Waukegan for a two game series. Waukegan is currently fifth in the western division. Sunday they will move on to Chicago where they will try to revenge the loss of a twin-bill with the Match Corporation club here last week.

Reds Stop Dodgers; Defeat Hatten, 5-3

BROOKLYN (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds salvaged the final contest of their three game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, 5 to 3, before 9,334 fans.

Rookie Howard Fox wobbled through the first inning when the Dodgers scored all their runs, then held the Brooks scoreless for his third victory against three defeats.

Joe Hatten, the loser, blew up in the fourth when the Reds overcame the Dodger lead with four runs.

The Reds' final tally came in the sixth.

Bosox Nip Indians; Take Series With Loop Pace-Setters

CLEVELAND (AP)—The resurgent Boston Red Sox handed the league-leading Cleveland Indians their fourth straight loss yesterday, edging the faltering Tribe 8-6 for a sweep of the three-game series.

Dom DiMaggio's sixth-inning home run broke a 6-all deadlock and clinched the game for the Sox, who now have won 11 of their last 14 games.

Don Black started for Cleveland, but failed to last the first inning as Boston tallied three times. Steve Gromek came in as relief and walked Birdie Tebbets to force another man in.

The Indians tied it up in their half of the same inning on singles by Larry Doby, Lou Boudreau, a double by Hank Edwards and a single by Joe Gordon.

Boston regained the lead in the second when DiMaggio singled and went to third on Edwards' error. Eddie Robinson muffed Williams' bouncer, and DiMaggio scored. Stephens then clouted his 10th homer.

The Indians tied the score again in the fourth when Edwards singled and Gordon belted his ninth round-tripper. Ken Keltner, the league's pace-setter in the homer department, then knotted the county with his 16th smash of the season.

DES MOINES (AP)—Jack Stewart of Fairfield and Sonny Dean of Iowa City yesterday eliminated their opponents in the semi-final round of the Iowa junior golf tournament at the Golf and Country club.

Stewart defeated fellow-townsmen Tom Rowe, 3 and 2, while Dean won over Mel Gicoff of West Des Moines, 6 and 5.

The two finalists will meet in an 18-hole battle for the championship today at 8:30 a.m.

Both Stewart and Dean played consistently well during the day. Dean was within five strokes of his par over the 28 holes included in his two matches of the day, and Stewart was eight over par for 30 holes.

Gicoff, former state high school champion, won the first hole in his match with Dean, and then won no more. Dean caught up when Gicoff's approach on the fourth hole caught in a tree and dropped short.

On the seventh hole, Gicoff's second shot went into a trap, and another trapped shot on the ninth put the West Des Moines lad two down at the turn. From there to the 13th, Gicoff lost every hole.

Lou Boudreau Says

Indians Will 'Sink or Swim'

— With Bobby Feller

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Indians will "sink or swim with Feller," said Manager Lou Boudreau yesterday.

And unfortunately, he continued, "If Bob can't win, we're finished as far as the pennant race is concerned."

Although currently leading the American league, the surprising Tribe has been weak on pitching and had counted heavily on Feller. So far, however, the high-salaried hurler has won only five victories and lost seven games.

His last triumph was May 19. Today he dropped his fifth straight game.

But "we'll sink or swim with Feller," Boudreau said. "He'll start Sunday against Philadelphia, and barring bad weather or injury, he'll start every fourth day thereafter. He's our ace and we're going all the way to win with him."

Boudreau said he believed the strikeout king's trouble was that he had been throwing too much between assignments.

"He's been pressing," he explained. "If you noticed, he loosened up Tuesday night, although he was scheduled to work today. I asked him not to take a ball in his hand until tomorrow."

Feller appeared a little puzzled after his latest setback. "My control hasn't been just what I'd like, but I seemed to have my stuff," he said. "I just couldn't seem to get them out."

Herold (Muddy) Ruel, the Indians' veteran coach, known for his ability to get the most out of pitchers, was asked bluntly if Feller "was washed up."

"No, of course not," he answered.

"Then, what's the matter with him?"

"I'm trying constantly to find the answer to that," Ruel replied. "There are a half dozen possibilities. I question his control."

chairs. I ask the fellows with me in the bullpen, who saw Bob all last year, what he is doing differently. I try to remember what players told me when I was managing the Browns. Occasionally I warm up Bob myself.

"Almost invariably, the catchers report that the opposition hit sliders which didn't break, or which didn't break far enough. It seems to me that Bob is delivering in a flatter plane—more sidearm—and I wondered if he might have some soreness which he isn't telling us about."

"But I discounted that theory when I watched his fingers. He's letting them fly with the pitch. No man can do that if his arm is sore."

Trainer Max Weisman said he believed Feller was taking his recent misfortunes too seriously and needed to relax more. "But I'm sure there's nothing wrong with his arm," he added.

Bremers, Suttons Open Junior League Schedule

Bremers and Suttons will meet tonight on the city high diamond at 8:30 p. m. to play a delayed game in the opening play of the junior baseball league.

The battery for Bremers will be Eugene Whitaker pitching and Len catching while Ronnie Wilkenson will hurl for Suttons and Freeman will be behind the plate.

Baseball's Big Six

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Stan Musial's triple with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth inning gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies last night. Musial also scored on Whitey Kurowski's single.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The Denver Bears came from behind to defeat the Omaha Cardinals, 9-5, last night by combining timely hitting with the good mound work of Hank Williams and Ken Polivka.

The win gave Denver the rubber game of their Western league series with Omaha. Denver opens against Sioux City there tomorrow night.

National Collegiate Track Meet Starts Today in Minneapolis

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Collegiana's contribution to the American Olympic effort begins today when the track and field championships of the National Collegiate athletic association start unfolding at the University of Minnesota stadium.

It won't be the last stop on the rocky route to London but individual winners can put at least one foot on the boat that leaves next month with the athletes who will wear the red, white and blue at Wembley.

The 27th annual NCAA meet will be more than a scrap for a team title and individual honors among the nation's undergraduate spikesters this time. Along with the coming national AAU meet, it will serve as a semi-final for the U.S. Olympic tryouts scheduled at Evanston, Ill., July 9 and 10.

The unprecedented entry of 345 athletes from 97 colleges and universities contains all the Olympic hopefuls eligible for the meet—and at least two who aren't.

Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace, the nation's premier hurdler, and Bob Likens, javelin favorite from San Jose State, were ruled ineligible on grounds that they already have had three previous years of varsity competition.

Thus stymied in their bids for titles both have won at this meet in the past two years, they must wait until the National AAU meet at Milwaukee, July 2 and 3, to qualify for the final Olympic tryouts.

But the field competing for titles in 18 events still will include seven defending individual champions. Unlike past years, this meet will be staged on the Olympic pattern with track events at metric distances.

The six athletes who score points in each event on a 10-4-4-2-1 basis automatically move into the Evanston tryouts.

Defending champions in the field are Mel Patton of Southern California, 100 meters; Bill Clifford of Ohio State, 800 meters; Gerry Karver of Penn State, 1,500 meters; Charles Fontville of Michigan, shot put; Fortune Gordon of Minnesota, discus; Willie Steele of San Diego State, broad jump, and Irving Mendelschein of New York university, high jump.

Cast in the role of secondary favorites are Ohio State, Big Nine champion; Yale, the ICAA titleholder, and New York university, always a threat for national honors. Illinois, winner of the team title in three of the past four years, isn't given a chance with Herb McKenley no longer on the scene.

Dads Plan Canvass for Pool Fund

Organization of the business district canvass for the swimming pool fund will be made tonight in a meeting of the Community Dads in the city council chambers of the city hall.

The decision to hold the meeting tonight was made at a meeting held last night at which the Community Dads committee laid preliminary plans for the $12,500 drive.

William Grandrath announced that the swimming pool fund now stands at $83, with the Community Dads contributing $50, the Longfellow school PTA $23 and individual contributions amounting to $8. He emphasized that any person or organization wishing to donate money could leave it at either of Iowa City's banks for deposit in the Swimming Pool fund.

Grandrath also said that any money received over the $12,500 subscription would be used on the pool proper. Several items were left out of the pool plans when an attempt to shave costs was made and if any extra money is received these items will be put back into the plans.

The Community Dads drive is part of a three-point plan in which the PTA and the League of Women Voters will canvass the residential area and another committee will canvass the various service, civic and fraternal clubs and lodges.

The $12,500 is needed because the city is obligated for about $110,000 of the $112,500 bond issue with about $15,000 in contracts yet to be accepted.

Clearing of the pool site began this week and the first breaking of ground will begin this weekend. R.H. Wildman is the contractor for the bathhouse and M.D. McCreeley is contractor for the pool proper.

Petitions for Boosts In Rent Total 177 Since 1st of Year

Rent-increase petitions totalling 177 have been filed with the Iowa City rent office since the first of the year, according to T.J. Wilkinson, area rent director.

Eighteen petitions were filed in January, 38 in February, 36 in March and 30 in April.

Last month 55 petitions were filed. In May rent increases were granted in 31 cases and denied in 9 cases, Wilkinson said.

The 15 cases pending for May concern petitions filed late in the month, he explained. Correction for rent "inequities" was ordered by congress in the 1948 rent law.

The rent director said Iowa City landlords "can be assured that their petitions for individual increases are given prompt and exhausting study."

The Iowa City area is zoned and charted so rents may be compared for similar accommodations in the same vicinity, he said.

Rent regulations provide that in making hardship adjustments "due weight shall be given to the question of whether the landlord is suffering a loss in the operation of the housing accommodations," Wilkinson added.

Frank Stepanek Weds Catherine Covert

In a double ring ceremony at the First Presbyterian church in Cedar Rapids Sunday, Catherine Covert, daughter of Mrs. Brainerd N. Covert, 832 Iowa avenue, became the bride of Frank N. Stepanek, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Stepanek, Cedar Rapids.

The Rev. Theodore G. Lilley officiated at the 3 o'clock ceremony in which the bride's sister, Carolyn Covert, Iowa City, served as maid of honor and John Stepanek, Cedar Rapids, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were James K. Iversen and Samuel D. Gross, both of Cedar Rapids.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Rev. Lilley, 2166 Blake Blvd., Cedar Rapids.

Mrs. Stepanek attended Coe college, Cedar Rapids, for two years where she was a member of Kappa Delta social sorority.

She was graduated from the University of Iowa where she was a member of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary fraternity for women in journalism, and Kappa Tau Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity for men and women in journalism. She has been employed as publicity director at Coe college for the past two years.

Mr. Stepanek attended the University of Nebraska and the University of Iowa where he was affiliated with Delta Tau Delta social fraternity. He is now employed as assistant personnel manager at the Quaker Oats company, Cedar Rapids.

After July 1, the couple will live at 1225 Second avenue, S.E., Cedar Rapids.

Record Crowds With Spring Fever At State Parks

There's an epidemic of spring fever in Iowa this year, the conservation commission reports.

Use of Iowa's 87 state park areas so far this year indicates a record crop of spring fever and a record-breaking park season.

This report comes from W.A. Rush, superintendent of state parks, who adds:

"It is possible that more folks will visit the parks than ever before. The record was made in 1941, with more than three million visitors. We had two and one-half million last year and we are far ahead of last year at this time."

"We are a cinch to have more visitors than the entire population of the state."

Rush said the fine early weather provoked the boom.

Low stream stages have made for good fishing, he said, thus calling a lot of Waltons to their Waldens.

First Lady in '49?

First Lady of Far East Would Stir Capitol

MRS. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR

What a stir it would make if Jean-Marie Faircloth MacArthur became the First Lady of the land!

The spotlight, which has shown so brightly on her illustrious husband, General Douglas MacArthur, has not given Americans a clear picture of his wife, Mrs. MacArthur probably doesn't know a dozen people in the nation's capital.

The dynamic general has made so many headlines that there's more than a normal interest in his wife, who calls Murfreesboro, Tenn., "home."

Not only that, but Washington, which likes its social intrigues, houses the first wife of the general—Louise Cromwell Brooks MacArthur Helberg, a playful wit.

In Washington, Mrs. MacArthur would be faced with the same problem she had in the Philippines and Japan—giving her 10-year-old son, Arthur, a normal life under conditions which can hardly be considered normal from the viewpoint of the American youngster.

Actually, nothing has been normal for Mrs. MacArthur, a wealthy globe-trotter. Her romance with the general started on ship-board.

Mrs. MacArthur grew up in Tennessee and later attended fashionable Ward Belmont college in Nashville. Her parents were divorced and her father topped off her education with junkets to the orient and South America. During a longer-than-usual stay in Manila, she saw a lot of the general. They were married very quietly in New York, April 30, 1937, and the next day were off to Manila.

She has had plenty of practice as an official hostess as "First Lady" of the beautiful American embassy in Japan. The adaptable kind, she would swing into any exacting White House duties without too much effort.

Yes, say her friends, she would make a charming First Lady in Washington just as she has made a charming First Lady in the Far East.

Plan Large Staff For Police School

At least 47 Iowans are expected to appear on the program of the 12th annual Iowa peace officers short course at SUI from June 21 to 25, according to R. L. Holcomb, director of the course.

The large faculty will instruct over 300 law enforcement officers in traffic investigations, general police techniques, criminal law and related fields.

Members of the university faculty who will appear on the program include Frank E. Coburn, professor of psychology; Samuel M. Fahr, college of law; R. B. Gibson, professor of biochemistry; J. S. Gottlieb, professor of psychology; H. M. Howard, wrestling coach; Paul E. Huston, professor of military science and tactics; A. Leo Levin, college of law, and Dr. Wilbur R. Miller, head of the psychopathic hospital.

Also included in the list of instructors is O. A. White of the Iowa City police force.

Market Basket —

Meat Prices Hop on Pogo Stick

Pork Chops Drop, Force Index Down

Meat prices are still going up and down like a man on a pogo stick, but the average price of pork chops dropped 10 cents to bring about an 11-cent decrease in The Daily Iowan market basket index.

The index this week is $17.47 compared with last week's $17.58.

Price changes were confined to the meat department in yesterday's survey. Ground beef and round steak moved up the scale, while pork chops stepped off in the right direction.

Ground beef is up 2 cents a pound this week. It is retailing for 61 cents a pound on the average.

Choice round steak went up 3 cents a pound, retailing for 93 cents a pound.

The 10-cent drop in the price of pork chops brings it down to the lowest it has been in the last 11 weeks. A pound is selling for 69 cents on the average.

Butchers pointed out that the price decrease in pork is no indication of a general lowering of meat prices. All the meat departments checked reported an increase in the wholesale price of beef.

"The whole picture is kind of gloomy for the merchant as well as the consumer," one meat department manager said.

Another store manager said he was setting up meat "specials" for the week-end sales "that are ridiculously low compared to pre-vailling prices."

He added that the "prices are still too high."

Prices on other index items remained the same this week.

New potatoes are still retailing at 69 cents for 10 pounds, but the potato harvest due the middle of this month promises quite a price drop.

According to The Wall Street Journal, "the early potato harvest... is expected to produce some 12-million more bushels of spuds than the market normally absorbs."

The Journal reports that the agriculture department is urging greater consumption of potatoes.

For the last two months Iowa City merchants have been handling new potatoes from the west coast, for the most part. The early harvest will bring mid-west potatoes back on the market late this month or early in July.

The Daily Iowan market basket index is based on prices of 24 food items in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores.

Prices listed are an average of all the stores combined.

Yesterday's index of $17.47 is an estimate of what a student family of three persons will spend for groceries this week.

The cost of each food item is weighed in accordance with the amount of that item a student family of three uses in one week.

Group Hits at 'Broad' Party Platforms

Make short party platforms that say something. Don't fill them with 'spread-eagles' and catch phrases, Iowa City League of Women Voters advised two delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions this week.

Striking at platforms that are too broad and too vague, the League is asking delegates to work for platforms that are concise and straightforward, stating the principles and policies of the party for the next four years.

In interviews with Mrs. Marguerite Sikora and Mrs. Florence Ohme, Jack White, Democratic delegate, and William F. Morrison, Republican delegate, agreed that platforms should be realistic and brief. They plan to carry these ideas to their conventions.

The interviews by League members are part of a nation-wide effort of the League to improve party platforms. Though the organization is non-partisan, it urges members to work effectively in the party of their choice.

Swedish Gymnasts To Present Exhibition Of Dancing

Sofiaflickorna will visit Iowa City next week.

A group of Swedish gymnasts who call themselves Sofiaflickorna will give an exhibition of Swedish gymnastics and folk dances in the field house at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Under the direction of Mrs. Maja Carlquist of Stockholm, Sweden, the 16-girl troupe is touring the country in connection with the Swedish pioneer centennial programs.

The group was organized by Mrs. Carlquist in 1936 for competition in the Berlin Olympics. Although the personnel has changed, the standard of performance has continued. The girls have given over 400 exhibitions.

They will demonstrate a modern version of the Ling gymnastics, and will present colorful dances of their people in costume.

The program is being sponsored by the SUI division of physical education in connection with the 17th annual conference on "Problems in Physical Education," which will open here June 23.

Tickets will be on sale at the Women's Gymnasium, Iowa Union, and the athletic office of the fieldhouse.

Swedish Prince To Visit Iowa City

PRINCE BERTIL OF SWEDEN, who will be a visitor in Iowa City Tuesday, was greeted on his arrival in New York by Police Commissioner Arthur W. Wallender. Bertil will stop off in Iowa City on his way to a Swedish Pioneer Centennial celebration in Des Moines. He will be the guest of the university at a luncheon Tuesday. Several of the 23 delegates accompanying the prince on his tour are shown in the background.

Mrs. William Porter, president of the local League of Women Voters has outlined the specific planks which the group wants included in party platforms:

1. Strong and consistent United States leadership for world peace through United Nations.
2. Acceptance by the United States of its full share of displaced persons.
3. A program of scientific reduction of tariffs.
4. Abolition of discrimination against women in governmental measures and administration.

"These planks represent objectives for which the League has long worked," Mrs. Porter said.

She reported that the League believes the platforms should avoid endorsement of specific legislative measures which may change; that platforms should state the policies of the party toward present problems rather than merely boast about the party's past history.

Dr. Hansell, English Photographic Director, Inspects SUI Facilities

Dr. Peter Hansell, director of medical photography at Westminster hospital in London, visited the SUI campus Wednesday. He inspected the medical photography facilities and products here.

While on campus, Hansell inspected the photography studio under direction of F.W. Kent and Dr. Lee Allen of the ophthalmology department at University hospitals.

Do It Today!

Have Your Auto Safety Checked

"Today is the day—Do it!" That's the slogan the Junior Chamber of Commerce is using for its June automobile safety campaign.

The feature of the campaign is a free check-up for all cars by garages and some service stations, according to Harry B. Dunlap Jr., chairman of the campaign committee.

"We hope to have a majority of the cars in Iowa City checked by the end of June," Dunlap said.

Brakes, lights, steering mechanism, tires, glass, and windshield wipers will be checked without charge, he said.

"The idea is to get the public in the habit of having safety features on their cars checked regularly."

Automobiles that pass the check will have an "O. K." sticker put on them. Cars not passing will have notes applied with the defects found listed for the owner.

The Jaycees hope to have a safety lane set up in Iowa City. The lane will be a permanent set up for car safety checks.

The June automobile safety campaign is part of the overall safety campaign sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, according to Dunlap.

Each month a different area of safety is emphasized. Last April pedestrian safety was concentrated on. In May it was school safety.

Freedom Train Rolls Into Iowa City Today

Clinton Street Entrance Open At 10 a. m.

Nelson G. Wetting, area director of the Freedom Train, announced yesterday that all plans except those of security for the train had been completed for the arrival of the train today.

Security measures, which include guards for handling the crowd, will have been completed before the train's arrival, he said.

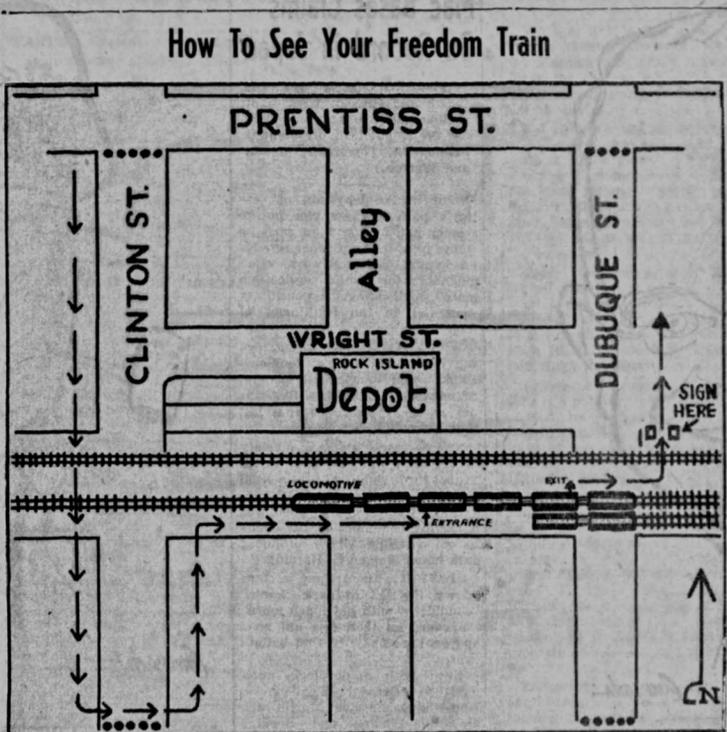

A welcoming committee headed by Attorney D. C. Nolan will have a special program for official guests this morning before the opening of the train to the public. This program is scheduled for 8:45 a. m.

The train will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. The entrance to the train will be on Clinton street on the south side of the Rock Island tracks. The exit will be on Dubuque street.

During the program this morning Mayor Preston Koser will officially welcome the train to Iowa City. Following the response by Walter J. O'Brien, director of the Freedom Train, Prof. William J. Petersen, general chairman of the dedication week ceremonies, will speak.

The Freedom Pledge will be led by Sam Shulman of the VFW followed by an address by Virgil M. Hancher, president of SUI.

The Rev. M. Willard Lampe, director of the SUI school of religion will give the invocation and Msgr. P. J. O'Reilly, pastor of St. Patrick's church, the benediction.

THE ROUTE OF VISITORS to view the Freedom Train is shown on the above map. Arrows indicate the spectator line. This lane will be formed by two fences alongside the train. Entrance is on the south side of the first exhibition car and the exit is on the north side of the third car. The two cars on the siding are the living quarters for the crew. ## American Documents

— In Iowa City Today

The arrival of the Freedom Train in Iowa City today marks the third showing in Iowa of the documents concerned with our American heritage.

The train stopped in Sioux City last month and was in Burlington yesterday.

The 33,000 mile tour the train is making is the first public trip many of the documents have been taken on.

For the most part, the papers belong to the library of congress, the national archives, and the state, war, navy and treasury departments. Other documents come from private collections, notably the Rosenbach collection of early American articles.

Since many of the documents aboard the train are irreplaceable, elaborate precautionary measures have been taken to insure their safekeeping. The chief measure is the all-steel welded construction of the entire train and the heavy steel sheathing of the three exhibit cars, especially constructed for the tour.

The documents and books are placed between plastic sheets, firmly anchored by bronze bolts inside specially designed cases. These cases are of shatterproof, double-glass sheets and are imbedded in steel walls.

In addition to the usual maintenance crew, a documents expert is aboard the train to check the condition of the manuscripts. Even the train's air-conditioning system has been designed to provide maximum protection for the historic papers.

The exhibition cars were supplied by the Pennsylvania railroad. Windows are entirely covered with steel plating.

The equipment car and the three pullmans were loaned by the Pullman company for the train staff, consisting of 28 Marines and 12 civilians.

The 2,000 horsepower Diesel-electric locomotive was donated by the American Locomotive company and the General Electric company.

The Freedom Train's schedule has been planned so that high speeds are unnecessary. The trip from Burlington to Iowa City, for instance, will take three hours.

While traveling, the train is protected by security measures like those taken for a presidential tour. All bridges and viaducts are guarded.

The train has precedence over all traffic in its trip throughout the country. From Burlington it will travel the Rock Island's north-south line to West Liberty. From there it will come to Iowa City on the east-west line. After the exhibition here the train will be backed to West Liberty and again will take the north-south Rock Island line to Cedar Rapids for its exhibition there tomorrow.

The train will pass through Iowa City enroute to Des Moines after its day in Cedar Rapids. Since Cedar Rapids does not have facilities for turning the train around, it will be backed to West Liberty again.

Every inch of track traveled by the train is inspected by railroad patrolmen. All switches will be set so they cannot be tampered with.

ROOM FOR 86

The foreign languages library contains about 52,000 volumes. It accommodates 86 readers.

'See' Freedom Train With WSUI Recorder

WSUI will conduct a special wire-recording program on the Freedom Train this morning at 9:30, John Highlander, WSUI program director, announced yesterday.

The program, which will be aired at 10:45 a. m., will include notes by H. J. Thorton of the history department. He will give a few historical highlights of the documents on the train.

Interviews with local officials responsible for bringing the freedom train to Iowa City, as well as with freedom train officials, will be broadcast.

The Freedom Train officials, Highlander said, will tell what the people should look for on the train.

400 READERS AT RESERVE

The Reserve reading room contains about 12,000 books and accommodates 400 readers.

History Rides the Freedom Train

Among the most distinguished documents on the Freedom Train which is in Iowa City today is the Declaration of Independence.

There are two copies of this great document aboard. One is the rough draft of Jefferson's original manuscript. The other is a copy which was signed by Benjamin Franklin and Silas Deane and sent to Frederick the Great of Prussia in 1777.

Jefferson's document contains all revisions suggested by the continental congress during the three stormy days needed to adopt it. It was introduced on July 2, 1776, and adopted on July 4. Printed overnight, the document was signed by John Hancock and Charles Thompson, the president and secretary of the Continental congress. It was then sent to the state legislatures and to Europe. The declaration was read a few days later in Philadelphia's Independence Square.

The other copy, the actual declaration of the 13 original states, was not completed until the signing on Aug. 2, 1776.

This copy is the one sent to Franklin and Deane in Paris in August, 1776. It was then sent to the Prussian emperor to gain recognition of American independence and establish commercial relations with that country.

Another document on faded yellow parchment is a close rival for the distinguished position held by the Declaration of Independence.

It is the Bill of Rights, added to the constitution on insistence of the various states present. When the constitution was submitted to the states for ratification, a storm of protests arose over the omission of specific guarantees of rights and liberties.

Objections came for the most part from those patriots who still remembered colonial grievances under British rule. They demanded a written bill of rights and were backed in their demands by the state of Virginia which already had such a bill in its constitution.

After assurances that a written bill of rights would be included, the constitution was ratified.

A special committee, of which James Madison was a member, suggested 17 amendments to the constitution. These were later reduced to 12 by the senate, and only 10 were finally ratified. These documents are now known as the Bill of Rights.

Three of Alexander Hamilton's famous papers are also exhibited on the train.

One is the original manuscript outline of subjects contained in the Federalist papers. These papers did much to help in ratification of the constitution.

Another of Hamilton's papers on exhibit is his original manuscript of the "Report on the Public Credit," written while he served as the first secretary of the treasury.

Hamilton's original draft of George Washington's farewell address, from which Washington drew some ideas for his final document, is the other paper on display.

aboard would be complete without mention of Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation and his Gettysburg Address.

These documents are both originals. The Emancipation Proclamation exhibited is the first draft of the great document. The Gettysburg Address exhibited is the copy Lincoln held during his speech.

Visitors won't have time to read all the American heritage documents on the train. Suggestions have been made that persons read the texts in history books before viewing the originals. If each person took time to read all the documents, many interested persons would be unable to see the exhibits.

Republicans in The Race —

Eisenhower, MacArthur Lend Air of 'General' Mystery to Race

Disinterested Ike' a Big Question Mark

Although he formally assumed his position as the 13th president of Columbia university last week, some Republicans are wary, others hopeful that a bandwagon will develop for Dwight D. Eisenhower at the Philadelphia convention.

To pass into the convention spotlight, Eisenhower would have to sweep past even the most remote dark horse present.

It is not even known definitely if Eisenhower is a Republican. He has said himself, "I am neither a Republican nor a Democrat." He is said to take his political advice from his brother Milton, president of Kansas State university, a confirmed Republican.

But factions of the Democratic party are eagerly luring Eisenhower's attention their way. If the Republicans nominate a conservative—Taft, Martin, Bricker—the Democrats will increase their tempo to put Eisenhower on their ticket.

If Eisenhower's name plays any role in the Republican convention, it will not be as an ever-present dark horse, poking and probing at every opportunity. Rather, he would have to appear in an overpowering gust similar to the Willie stampee in 1940. Chances of this happening are slim at best.

"Ike" Eisenhower was born in Denison, Texas, in 1890. When he was still a boy, his father—a telephone company employe—moved the family to Abilene, Kan. Ike still considers Abilene his home.

Eisenhower entered West Point and graduated in 1915 as a second lieutenant in the infantry. He was stationed at Fort Sam Houston. He married Mamie Doud in 1916.

During World War I, Eisenhower did not get overseas. He displayed his administrative ability in training tank corps troops and was awarded the distinguished service medal. He became aide to General MacArthur when the latter was chief of staff under President Hoover.

Eisenhower meteorized to international fame shortly after Pearl Harbor. He led Allied troops in North Africa, Sicily, Italy and finally France via the Normandy invasion.

Throughout all these campaigns Eisenhower was entrusted with far-reaching military and diplomatic responsibilities. Ike had armies of 12 nations under him. Like most of his predecessors in the line of military candidates, Ike has virtually no background in American politics and his personal views have never seeped out.

As army chief of staff, he strongly supported universal military training and the recent army-navy merger in testimony before congressional committees.

On other matters, his supporters style him as a "liberal" with nothing to prove it. In foreign affairs, Eisenhower is a supporter of the United Nations and a strong peace advocate, but who isn't? As a field commander in Europe he got along well with the Russians, but he has reportedly cooled towards them recently.

Even on so scanty a record of ability and thoughts in practical politics, he has tremendous popular appeal with the voters of the nation. His personality is his main campaigning point. His warm personality made him the most popular general in the recent war. As a public speaker he is delightfully colorful and relaxed.

Republican voters looking over the so-so field of contenders, may wish to draft a brilliant leader-administrator like Eisenhower into office.

But like General MacArthur, he is removed from the leaders who work the strings in the background. He would be subject to a recent stigma planted by the Republicans themselves—"We have too many military men in the government."

There is only a flick of a chance that Eisenhower will figure in the picture at Philadelphia, much less a chance of capturing the nomination.

For even his supporters are confronted with the undeniable impact of his words: "I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it was offered to me."

Mac Bases Claims On Record in Japan

(Presented below are the fourth and fifth in a series of sketches on leading contenders for the Republican presidential nomination. Tomorrow: Martin and Warren.)

"For in the labyrinth of destiny's pattern there can be no greater satisfaction than such as comes from the confidence reflected in the selection by one's neighbors for public service—no more challenging responsibility than lies in the fulfillment of their trust."

With this statement—employing his usual flowery, religious-tinted prose—General Douglas MacArthur threw his five-star hat in the presidential ring last New Year's.

The 68-year-old man of mystery is the first military man in 28 years to become a presidential candidate. In the 1920 GOP convention, Gen. Leonard Wood was a leading contender in the deadlocked struggle which produced dark horse Warren G. Harding.

In 1948, MacArthur is far down the list of dark horse candidates with not much more to count on than fate and approximately 10 first-ballot votes.

Even with a deadlock, such men as Senator Vandenberg, House Speaker Joe Martin Jr., Governor Warren and Senator Bricker would get the first whacks at the nomination.

MacArthur was born in army barracks at Little Rock, Ark., in 1880. The son of Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, Douglas graduated from West Point in 1903 at the head of his class.

After joining his father in the Philippines where the U.S. army was fighting Aguinaldo, MacArthur shifted to Europe and the first World war.

He was the commander of the 42nd or Rainbow division and held the distinction of being the youngest division commander in the war. Winning fame for going over the top with nothing but a riding crop, MacArthur was decorated by ten different nations.

In 1919 he became the youngest superintendent of West Point; he was 39 years old. After marrying for the first time in 1922, MacArthur was sent to the Philippines to reorganize the native army.

He returned to the states in 1925, was divorced soon after. President Hoover made him chief of staff of the army in 1930, giving MacArthur another "the youngest" distinction at the age of 50. He retired in 1937 and returned to the Philippines.

Five months before Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt recalled the general to active duty. After the fall of Corregidor, MacArthur escaped to Australia.

Following years of island hopping, MacArthur returned to the Philippines, went on to play the role of conqueror and ruler of Japan.

Since the general has not been home in 11 years, he must base his campaign strictly on his record as ruler of Japan. Even so, as long as he retains the position of supreme commander in Japan, army regulations forbid him to conduct an active campaign.

At best, his accomplishments and shortcomings in Japan would be difficult to compare with his potentialities as a U.S. president. To begin with, his command has been a military dictatorship. He has encouraged labor organization, for instance, but when unions attempted to flex their muscles by striking, he has blocked them consistently.

Such tactics could never be applied fully in the U.S. Also, Japanese officials in a choking bureaucracy have fought him at every step. There is no telling how some of his policies, if launched by an effective government, would have turned out.

A new constitution for Japan is considered by the general to be his main achievement. The document renounces war and makes no provision for any military organization.

Against mounting reluctance, lethargy and stagnation, he has gradually carved up Japan's major estates and has smashed the "Zaibatsu" a group of wealthy families controlling 87 holding companies that dominate the Japanese economy.

Labor laws making collective bargaining legal have helped 5-million Japanese workmen organize. Critics claim the sweeping reforms MacArthur has imposed on Japan are superficial, have not been absorbed. For good or bad, MacArthur's record in the defeated nation is his vote-getting appeal.

His main backers in this country are men like Lansing Hoyt and Colonel McCormick of the Chicago Tribune, men identified with the prewar isolationistic movement. But the general is an internationalist believing in preparedness against Russia. This accounts for McCormick's cooling toward him after the colonel's recent trip to Japan.

Today, at 68, MacArthur—healthy, ascetic and aloof as ever—is making his bid for the presidency. A devout Episcopalian, his public statements often are of a religious tenor. He would bring to the presidency the military coolness and efficiency he has always known.

For a confused nation groping for leadership, the general may have strong attractions. But, for the leaders of the Republican party who must nominate him, he hasn't much to stand on. His chances of nomination are slim.

International Outlook: Rosier

Well, they did it. After months of emotionalized appeals for a draft; after thousands of warning words concerning an international crisis and our need for protection; and after hours of whittling, amending, attaching riders, detaching riders and summary voting—after all this the house threw in the towel.

What happened to the international crisis? Secretary of State Marshall met with the house foreign affairs committee yesterday. They weren't talking outside the meeting about what Marshall said. But Rep. Eaton (R-NJ) mentioned that "You and I know it (world situation) isn't any better."

As the house played around with the draft bill, international affairs must have looked rosier and rosier. They first made a less-inclusive age limit—cutting out several thousand potential draftees. But the latest stunt was to cut the period of service from two years to one year. But Rep. Coudert (R-NY) said that maybe they could compromise with the senate's 24-month measure. Coudert sponsored the 12-month amendment and figures that 18 months is a good middle ground.

But this move, relaxing the draft period, made foes of the bill pretty happy. They saw a chance to lick the whole move.

So by this time, foreign affairs had picked up to the point where the house could shove the draft bill.

Several questions arise. Did our government do everything it could to "get together" with Russia when the big chance came? Or was our coolness part of the frame of mind we were creating to shape our acceptance of measures like giant navies, air fleets and standing armies?

One of the big talking points for the draft has been the threat of war and ticklish foreign attitudes. The fact that this is an election year has put a damper on any rush-rush move to pass a draft bill which affects so many voters. The draft measure certainly didn't get the push that the "world's largest navy" bill received.

So we say, yeh, that's it—the representatives were afraid of the voters; it's just tossing the draft bill into the political ring with all those hats.

But it's more than that. It shows how the minds of people can be trained to any attitude. It shows how even a democratic government can—intentionally or not, who can say—mold sentiments and reactions. It shows how a pill can be sugar coated—and then how the pill can be removed without even disturbing the coating.

Studies in Extinction: A Normal Human

Dr. F. W. Dersheimer, a psychiatrist of Wilmington, Del., said in a speech recently that what's really needed is more study of the normal person.

We think it's a fine idea. Only catch is that since Freud became fashionable and the public has been inundated with book titles like "Be Glad You're Neurotic", to say nothing of the flood of "psychological" movies, we don't know anyone who is willing to admit that he might be a normal person.

Communist Strikes Spurred French Move

By J. M. ROBERTS
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

The Communists, whose coup in Czechoslovakia did much to assure congressional approval of the Marshall plan, have helped the Allies to put through another extremely important agreement.

approval of the London accords which, in the words of French Premier Schuman, will permit the integration of western Germany "into a United States of Europe."

There were several factors involved in passing the measure through an assembly still fearful of German economic and military revival, and of retaliation by Russia. It was accepted on several grounds, but with instructions that the government continue to press for greater acceptance of French views during administrative negotiations. The assembly desired to avoid a government crisis. It was unwilling to veer away from England and the United States now that France's early postwar ties with Russia have been broken. It recognized that the United States and Britain have been concerned at all times to give France every assurance of safety compatible with their own situations. But the margin of victory was very small.

The issue was closely balanced in the assembly when the Communists, always looking for an opportunity to create a government crisis, injected themselves into a strike at Clermont-Ferrand and tried to spread it to the rest of the country. Hesitant deputies recalled the riots of last December, and the fact that rejection of the German accord would be exceedingly pleasing to the Communists.

Just which were the determining factors cannot be said. But French Communists apparently do not learn as fast as their masters in the Kremlin, who seem to be more aware that aggressive moves now stir up more opposition than they are worth.

Early reaction in Washington to the French reservations regarding the accord showed some fear that the Paris government might interpret the assembly's act as requiring it to negotiate further before permitting the allies to get down to the actual work of setting up a political and economic regime for all of Allied-held Germany.

More detailed information, however, would seem to indicate that the assembly intends for the government to go ahead on the present basis, but to stand, in working out administrative problems, for greater recognition of French desires. Some of the reservations are of the "make sure" type, covering matters already generally agreed upon, such as military security, French participation in control of German industry, continued military occupation, efforts to organize Europe politically and economically and for German unity but with opposition to the formation of a centralized Reich (such as Russia proposes). The principal French contention, one of long-standing, is for complete internationalization of the Ruhr, with Allied operation rather than just control.

Political Science Profs Write History

*** Spend Spare Time in Iowa of Yesterday ***

By RALPH DARROW

Whether it is a tale of Blackhawk's ill-fated war or a saga of the Mormon trek across southern Iowa, the chances are a SUI political science professor has written about it.

For politics is not the only forte of SUI's professors of politics. Eight of the present staff have contributed numerous articles to the state historical society publications, the Palimpsest and the Iowa Journal of History and Politics, as well as several books on Iowa history.

Those professors who have turned historian at one time or another are John E. Briggs, Jacob Van der Zee, George F. Robeson, F. E. Horack, Herman H. Trachsel, Kirk H. Porter, Jack T. Johnson and Hugh E. Kelson.

Interest in Hawkeye state history is a political science tradition started by Benjamin F. Shambaugh, founder and long-time head of the department and former superintendent of the State Historical society.

Shambaugh was greatly interested in Iowa history as well as in political science. Elected to the historical society board of curators in 1897, he edited the Iowa Historical Record for several years and was later instrumental in founding the Iowa Journal of History and Politics. As superintendent, he developed an extensive program of research and publication.

Following Shambaugh's example, and in response to his influence, the political science professors have continued to be active in supplying historical society publications with writings from 1897 through the present.

Many doctoral theses of political science graduate students have been published by the society, particularly in the Iowa applied history volumes. Scheduled to appear in the future are two of these works—the Ph.D. thesis of David C. Scott, "Iowa State Tax Commission" and the master of arts thesis of Ivan L. Richardson, "Aid to Dependent Children."

One of the two most talented producers of historical compositions has been Briggs. Besides writing historical articles, he edited the Palimpsest from 1922 until 1945 and was second editor of the historical society publications from 1940 until 1943.

Briggs showed wide range in his writings, covering subjects from geology, Indians, grasshopper plagues, biography, diplomacy, legislation, the Sioux City Corn palace and the 1900 SUI football team.

Each week during the school year from 1933 until 1937, he wrote a story under the general title of "Exploring the History of Iowa." These stories were printed in about 30 Iowa daily newspapers. Some of these "explorations" were published in 1939 as a volume entitled "Iowa Old and New."

Van der Zee, also a great praiser of Iowana, did most of his writing from 1905 through 1922. His works dealt with the Hollanders of Iowa, early French explorations, the Indian wars, lead mining in Iowa and fur trading in the Upper Mississippi valley, as well as many other subjects. Most of Van der Zee's works described Iowa before the time of the permanent white settlements in 1833.

Robeson's output has been less voluminous than that of Van der Zee and Briggs and his stories have dealt with the less spectacular but equally important aspects of history. His writings have been confined largely to electrical subjects and biographical sketches, though his volume on special charter cities is a valuable contribution to municipal government.

Horack, the oldest contributor among the present staff members, first broke into print in 1897. Like Robeson, he wrote primarily on legislative subjects, but also wrote a text book on Iowa government.

Trachsel, while chiefly a public utilities expert, has composed tales with such intriguing titles as "The Hairy Nation," "Jim Jackson's Raid," "Due Process of Marriage" and "Proximity." The articles deal with some interesting and often humorous incidents in Iowa history. Trachsel's stories reflect a homely frontier flavor with baths and shaves an almost unheard of luxury, whisky flowing like water, and befuddling words in government dispatches confusing the naive settlers.

Porter's writings have dealt with Iowa county government and elections in Iowa.

Two of the younger staff members who are carrying on the tradition of bringing state history to light are Johnson and Kelson.

Johnson has authored such articles as "Iowa City Lot Sales," "Napoleon on the Frontier" and "Plumb's Railroad to the Moon," besides others dealing with early Iowa. One of Johnson's writings, a biography of Peter Dey, was an outgrowth of his research on railroad history. (Dey was one of the first white men to settle permanently in Iowa City. The Dey building at the corner of Clinton street and Iowa avenue was named after him.)

Kelson, like Horack and Robeson,

Labor Union Calls 1-Hour Sympathy Strike in France

PARIS (AP) — The powerful, Communist-dominated general confederation of labor (CGT) yesterday called a one-hour general strike throughout France for tomorrow in sympathy with striking workers in Clermont-Ferrand.

Token strikes, most of them only a half-hour or an hour long, continued to break out throughout France yesterday as sympathy gestures toward the Clermont-Ferrand rubber employes.

Workers in many plants indirectly joined in the movement by starting their "vacations." In France many establishments close down and all employes take their vacations at the same time.

But there were no reports of violence throughout the day and the conference table appeared to be replacing street fights in France's troubled labor situation.

At Clermont-Ferrand union and management officials worked to iron out their differences, begun as a request for wage increases.

The two-day strike has resulted in the arrest of some 100 persons.

Hold Welcome Party

A party, welcoming summer session students, will be held tomorrow night from 8 to 12 p. m. at the Hillier foundation, 122 E. Market street.

There will be dancing throughout the evening. Refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kipnis, summer directors of the foundation, will be in charge.

Offer Music Auditions

Pianists, violinists and singers interested in auditions offered by the Associated Concert Bureau, New York City, have been asked to apply to the fine arts division of Clarke college, Dubuque.

State winners in these nationwide auditions will appear at Carnegie hall, New York.

has confined his writing mostly to legislative subjects.

Taken altogether, the political science department, through its numerous publications, has made a significant contribution to knowledge of Iowa history.

Fritz Kuhn Recaptured In Germany

MUNICH (AP) — Fritz Kuhn, deported German-American Bund chief, was recaptured while trying to get a license to operate a chemist's laboratory, police disclosed yesterday.

Kuhn was seized two days ago in the French zone town of Bernkastel near Trier four and a half months after he escaped from Dachau internment camp where he was awaiting trial before a German denazification court.

He faces 10 years at hard labor, the sentence the court handed down in his absence on April 20.

Kuhn said yesterday he considered the 10 year sentence as a "major Nazi offender" was unfair and that he intended to appeal it.

How Kuhn escaped has never been officially explained, although there was an investigation, and the camp director, Anton Zirngibl, was fired.

Kuhn's wife, 49, daughter, Anne, 23, and son, Walter, 20, live in a Munich suburb.

Police reports said Kuhn was arrested when he gave his name as G. Kuhn of Munich in applying for the chemist's license. The similarity of the name, the address and appearance caused suspicion to be raised. He was identified by fingerprints and brought to Munich for questioning. There he denied using the name Kuhn.

Kuhn said he was trying to get the license to make an "honest" living.

The 52-year-old Kuhn was convicted in the United States on charges of embezzling bond funds and deported to Germany in December, 1945.

Freedom Train Draws Two Millionth Guest

BURLINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Harry Blanchard, Fort Madison, yesterday became the two millionth person to visit the Freedom Train since it began its tour.

About 6,000 persons went through the train during its stop yesterday in Burlington.

Russians Cool Off, Return to Meetings Of Kommandatura

BERLIN (AP) — There were hopeful signs last night that the Russian walkout on Wednesday night's Kommandatura meeting might blow over without a permanent rupture of the four-power city governing body.

The Russians were plainly angry Wednesday night, but they had cooled off enough yesterday to show up for three Kommandatura subcommittee meetings.

The Russians clumped out of Wednesday's meeting angrily and without waiting for a date for the next session to be set.

They charged that Col. Frank Howley, U.S. representative, left the meeting before it was adjourned and assigned his deputy to continue for him. They said he did so because he did not want to hear their labor legislation proposals. They demanded an apology.

Howley said he had announced beforehand that he would have to leave the meeting — long-winded and bitterly debated — before midnight. He said his departure did not breach Kommandatura etiquette.

Definite indications of ultimate Soviet intentions toward the Kommandatura may come June 23 when a meeting of the city's deputy commandants is scheduled.

Jockey Club Holds Reading Program

Quality as well as quantity of books read will be stressed this summer in the children's reading program, at the public library, Mrs. Dene Carney, children's librarian, announced today.

The program, for children 9 to 12 years old, started yesterday. Mrs. Carney said the children will meet at 2:30 p. m. every Thursday for eight weeks.

Meetings feature games, quizzes and book reports.

Called the Jockey club, the group is holding a contest for number of books read during the eight-week period. The team reading the most books will win a prize.

UN Police to Palestine

Larger Group May Be Sent

LAKE SUCCESS (AP) — The United Nations disclosed yesterday 50 members of its headquarters security force are being sent to Palestine for emergency duty.

This represents the first time a uniformed UN force of any kind has been assigned to assist in the world organization's peace projects abroad.

While the 50-man detachment is not an international military force in the strict sense of the term, it does constitute at least a step toward a world police force.

Informed quarters said Secretary-General Trygve Lie might send other contingents to join this group.

The guards will be flown to Cairo tomorrow by chartered plane and will be placed under orders of Count Folke Bernadotte, UN Palestine mediator. It was an urgent request from Bernadotte that led to Lie's decision on the guards.

Meanwhile, Cairo dispatches said there were reports Count Bernadotte might ask for a prolongation of the four-week truce.

Commenting on the reports secretary general Azzam Pasha of the Arab league said Bernadotte should submit his plan for Palestine peace to Arabs and Jews before expiration of the four-week period.

Bernadotte flew from Cairo to Tel Aviv yesterday to seek the cooperation of Israel's leaders in proposed negotiations at Rhodes for a permanent peace in the Holy Land.

Before leaving Cairo, Bernadotte promised that "necessary measures" would be taken to restore the military situation to what it was at the truce hour eight days ago. The promise was in a letter to Egyptian Prime Minister Nokrashy Pasha in reply to Egyptian complaints that the Jews seized vantage points after the truce became effective.

Haifa dispatches said the U.S.S. Marquette, an amphibious cargo ship from the sixth fleet in the Mediterranean, had arrived there with jeeps, mobile radio communications sets and 30 U.S. marines to aid in the work of truce controllers. The marines will serve as drivers for United Nations field officers.

All the regular UN guards are American citizens and former members of the U.S. armed forces. They are being sent on a volunteer basis. To give the Palestine detachment an international character, the UN is recruiting secretariat members of other nationalities for temporary duty with the guard force.

The UN said the guards would have their lives insured for $25,000 each while they were in Palestine. They were told to be prepared to stay two to three months, possibly longer.

The question of whether the guards will be armed will be decided by Bernadotte.

Board Approves Sewer Plan

divided into general, electrical and plumbing, and heating contracts. Low bidder at $266,990 for general construction was Viggo M. Jensen of Albert Lea, Minn. For the plumbing and heating contract, J.W. Darragh, Cedar Rapids, entered the low bid of $55,473. The electrical contract received the lowest bid from the Cedar Rapids Electrical Supply company with a bid of $11,198.

G.A. Gelatt, Burlington architect, said the state board must accept the bids within 30 days for the bids to be valid. Construction, he said, would begin immediately after bids were accepted. He estimated that the apartment building would require between 120-190 days to complete, if materials were available.

The committee approved the engineer's request for Veterans hospital sewer connections on the university sewer system. The earlier in the morning, committee granted approval with the provision that, should the sewer capacity below the joint connection be insufficient, action would be taken by the engineers to correct the situation within six months.

The folding bleachers, which added about 1,300 seating capacity to the fieldhouse, were completed earlier this year.

Members of the committee who attended the meeting yesterday were Chairman Ray Loudon, Fairfield; Halstead M. Carpenter, Monticello; Lester S. Gillette, Fostoria; and Mrs. George Kyseth, Clarion. Henry Shull, as president of the board, and David A. Dancer, secretary of the group, also participated in the discussion.

William R. Boyd, William G. North and Dancer attended the financial committee session held university sewer system. The earlier in the morning,

Lomax Discusses Folk Music

Alan Lomax

"Frankie and Johnny," Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," and Louie Armstrong's jazz have a lot in common, Alan Lomax, authority on American folk music said yesterday.

The former curator of the archives of American folk song in the library of congress discussed folk music at the afternoon and evening programs of the twenty-first Child Welfare and Parent Education conference.

In the afternoon Lomax, now in charge of folk music for Decca records, spoke in the senate chamber on "Folk Songs in the Family."

Lomax ranked folk songs with classics because they are "serious considerations by individuals of events that had happened to ents rhythmically singing songs such as "The Boll Weevil" before the afternoon session ended.

Folk songs are going to outlive tunes like "Nature Boy" by quite a few years, he concluded.

The evening performance in Iowa Union, titled "Folk Songs, U.S.A.," was strictly "for fun."

Mothers, fathers and children turned out with educators to hear songs of the frontier, chain gangs, loggers, mountain-folk and even modern jazz.

Once again Lomax invited his audience to join in the singing and everyone hummed along, tapping their toes and occasionally clapping their hands in rhythm.

"Our people have been a singing people," the ballad collector said in introduction to his performance of actual folk music and tales. "Each community has adopted familiar folk tunes."

According to Lomax, the American stock of folk songs is equal to the stock in any part of the world. The south is the richest source of such music, he added.

Lomax called folk music a "part of human culture," portraying the character of Americans in folk lore as no other part of our heritage does.

Lomax regaled his audiences with stories of how he and his father collected folk ballads. "Peaceful-faced old ladies sang sad love songs from their rocking chairs. The songs concerned poisonings, murders and drownings," he reported.

Lomax concluded his program with a group of documentary records. One of them was a Louie Armstrong early jazz record which Lomax called "cified folk music."

Striking an entirely different note was Prof. Allison Davis of the University of Chicago. He spoke on "Different Social Values in Child Rearing" at the morning meeting of the conference.

Whether a child is from "the right or wrong side of the track" has much influence in his training, Davis said.

To expect that a child be perfect and beyond reproach is one of the most dangerous concepts in child training, Davis warned.
