He Was a Real 'Tar Baby'

MAESTEG, WALES (AP)—Clive Jenkins, 3, didn't bat an eyelid when he fell into a pool of tar here — he couldn't, they were stuck together. Rescuers summoned by his pal, Philip Jones, 2, hauled him out with a rope.

'School Days For Cops' Draws 150

Cheez-it, fella! Da place is swarmin' with cops!
Over 150 Iowa peace officers registered in the Iowa Union yesterday for their 12th annual short course. Twice that number are expected to register before the "cops' school days" are over. The classes are held in the River room of Iowa Union.

The course, which lasts through Friday, covers investigation, traffic and general policing.
On yesterday's program was Percy Lainsou, warden of the state prison at Fort Madison. Lainsou complained that the public is ignorant of what goes on inside prison walls.

In the old days, society paid no attention to prison problems, he said. It is the same today, he added.
"We're regarded as a place to keep bad people and that's all," the warden said. "Actually, we have to give the prisoner a chance to rehabilitate himself. No one can rehabilitate a prisoner — he has to do it himself, and we want to help him leave the prison a better man."

"We have some of the finest factories in Iowa. We make all the linens, uniforms and awnings needed by the board of control. We do all the maintenance work, all our own building, even draw the blueprints."
"But how many Iowans know of our work?" he asked.
Course classes are informal and officers' questions and tales of crime-stopping fill most of the fifty-minute classes.
Fifty-five instructors, including police officers from five states, will give 40 hours of instruction to the policemen.

Local Military Busy With Draft Queries

While the draft bill awaits the signature of the President, potential inductees of Iowa City are querying the local military offices.
Most of the inquiries concern explanation of the bill's provisions, but yesterday local offices had received no information other than those provisions already published.
Sgt. O. A. McClung, local army and airforce recruiting officer, estimated that nearly 80 men had questioned him about service opportunities open to them other than the draft.

Staff Sgt. Noel D. Knotts, local national guard recruiting officer, said several men called and some enlisted. Provisions of the bill exempt those in the 19-25 age group who join the national guard before the President signs the bill.
Maj. Erwin M. Parsons of the SUI military department received calls asking for an explanation of the bill's provisions as they would affect ROTC trainings.
Parsons said he believed members of the advanced ROTC class would be deferred until completion of the course. The lower class will probably be subject to call as are other students at the end of their school year, he said.
In Washington, D. C., national guard headquarters reported a rush of enlistments by draft age men in other parts of the country, according to The Associated Press.

14-Year-Old Registers for Police Course

NOT JUST A MERE RADIO GANGBUSTER, Howard Bert, 14, 528 N. Dubuque street, means serious business as he registers for the peace officers short course. Howard took the course last year, too. Waiting behind the special student are Wilbur Cloyd of the Iowa bureau of criminal investigation, and Eidon Winger, Council Bluffs detective. William Kracht and Harold Schwarm, SUI students, are behind table. (See Howard's story on PAGE 6, Daily Iowan Photo by Herb Nipson)

Luncheon Will Honor Swedish Prince Today

SUI officials will entertain royalty today when Sweden's Prince Bertil and his party arrive in Iowa City for a brief stop-over and tour of the campus.
The Prince and 22 other members of the Swedish delegation will be honored at a noon luncheon given by President Virgil M. Hancher at the Iowa Union.
President Hancher and 39 university faculty members, including deans, directors, department heads, administrative heads and others will attend the luncheon.
Prince Bertil, grandson of Sweden's King Gustav V, and his entourage are touring the country to celebrate the Swedish pioneer centennial. With him are a number of Swedish educators, public officials and other dignitaries.
The prince and his party will come to Iowa City en route from Rock Island. They plan to leave at 2 p.m. tomorrow afternoon for Des Moines. Wednesday, Des Moines will welcome and entertain the Swedish delegation at an all-Iowa banquet.

The Scandinavians are visiting Iowa this month to honor Swedish pioneers who, 100 years ago, in 1848, began settling in this region in substantial numbers.
Prince Bertil is the second son of Crown Prince Bertil of Sweden and is second in succession to the throne — after the crown prince, his father. His mother was Princess Margaret of Great Britain, who died when he was a child. Later his father married Lord Mountbatten's sister.
A bachelor, Prince Bertil said in an Omaha, Neb., interview recently that he had "little time for that" when asked about possible marriage plans.
"These people keep me so very busy," he added. "I am not able to give it a thought."

Russians Willing To Discuss Reform Of Berlin Currency

BERLIN (AP) — The Russians accepted early today a British proposal for four-power discussions of uniform currency reform in Berlin, the Soviet-licensed German news agency announced.
Berlin is the seat of four-power rule in Germany.
The agency said Marshal Vasily D. Sokolovsky, the Russian commander in Germany, proposed that representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Russia meet at 6 a.m. today.
The western allies' reply to Sokolovsky was not made known immediately, but it was assumed they would accept since the original proposal for the meeting was made last night by Gen. Sir Brian Robertson, the British military governor.

Robertson bluntly told the Russians they had no more rights in Berlin than the western allies.
He suggested to the Soviets that they join a four-power meeting to discuss the currency situation in Berlin which now faces the prospect of two kinds of currency — that introduced beginning Sunday by the allies in western Germany, and currency soon expected to be produced by the Russians.
Meanwhile, Adolf Hitler's old Reichsmark still is legal tender in the Russian zone of Germany.
The American military governor, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, yesterday suspended the movement of U.S. military freight trains to Berlin rather than allow inspection of their cargoes by the Russians.

Blue and Beardsley — Iowans at GOP National Convention

VISITORS TO THE CONVENTION in Philadelphia yesterday included William S. Beardsley, New Virginia, Republican candidate for governor of Iowa, State Rep. Hugh Lundy, Albia, and Gov. Robert D. Blue, Eagle Grove. Blue and Beardsley posed for several photographers, their smiles indicating that the hard fight for nomination in the state primaries a few weeks ago was all in the past.

Delegates Confident Of Republican Win

SUI Student Sends — Plea for Vandenberg

(R. Bruce Hughes, former editor of The Daily Iowan, is at the Republican national convention in Philadelphia, reporting convention sidights for The Daily Iowan.)
By R. BRUCE HUGHES

PHILADELPHIA—An SUI student whose father is chairman of the Iowa Republican delegation wants his dad to vote for Vandenberg.
That was revealed yesterday morning as the GOP national convention opened here. Whitney Gilliland, who will formally cast the Hawkeye votes when the balloting starts later this week, received the following "Father's Day" telegram from his son, Bill: "Happy Father's Day. Vote for Vandenberg." Bill, an SUI student from Glenwood, Ia., is not registered for summer school.

The telegram pointed up the Vandenberg undercurrent as the Hawkeye delegates cast about for a second candidate in case Stassen loses out.
Sunday night's caucus developed no formal decision on how Iowa's 23 votes will go on the opening ballot. But a check showed Stassen in the lead with a possible 13 votes. MacArthur will likely get the nod from Hanford MacNider of Mason City, a former general himself. Dewey and Taft divide the rest.
Since Governor Sigler of Michigan announced Vandenberg's "availability," several Hawkeyes are known to favor him when horse-trading starts after the initial ballots test Stassen's strength.

Dave Stewart, delegate from Sioux City, had to rescue his son from the unmovable doorkeepers who are determined to keep out gate crashers. They don't want a repetition of the 1940 Wilkie episode. Young Stewart couldn't convince the doorkeepers he actually was a sergeant-at-arms—until Dave came to the rescue and produced a ticket after much pocket searching.
It may have been a hot race for the gubernatorial nomination a few weeks ago, but everything was smiles yesterday morning as the convention opened. Caught posing for the cameras were Governor Blue and his victor in the primaries, William Beardsley. Arm in arm they did their best to indicate the wounds are healed.

'Convention Talks Lash Demos; 'International' Platform Seen

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Shrieking, whistling Republicans wound up the first sessions of their "date with destiny" convention at 9:12 Iowa time tonight with jubilant claims that election victory is in the bag.
Amid the blaring bands and impassioned speeches, they tried without a shadow of success at the moment to decide who their presidential candidate would be—Thomas E. Dewey, Robert A. Taft, Harold E. Stassen or somebody else.

Vandenberg 'Same As Always' Toward Nomination Chances

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan said last night his personal attitude toward the Republican presidential nomination "remains the same as always."
He has said many times he is not a candidate for the nomination but has made plain he would accept a draft.

Vandenberg issued a statement calling on the party to "face the facts and give America the forward looking program which our opportunity requires."
The Michigan senator's statement was handed to reporters by his son, Arthur Vandenberg, Jr. Young Vandenberg said his father had arrived in Philadelphia but would not be immediately available to newsmen.
Over the weekend Governor Kim Sigler of Michigan announced Vandenberg "is available" for the nomination. Sigler emphasized he knew what he was talking about.
Here is the text of his statement:
"I am happy to be in Philadelphia and at this great Republican convention which has a date with destiny."
"My interest is that the party shall face the facts and give America the forward-looking program which our opportunity requires."
"Above all we must not falter in our leadership for peace. I will do all I can to those ends."
"Since my personal attitude toward the nomination remains the same as always, I shall have nothing further to say upon this subject."
"I add my warmest greeting to my friends, my deepest attachment to the Republican party and my sincerest belief that it will succeed because of its deserts."

for second man. Stassen said thanks, he was still out for the top job.
Dewey won a round. The credentials committee, voted, 26 to 24, to seat a 16-member Georgia delegation that's in his camp. A rival Taft delegation still can appeal to the convention itself.
Senator Vandenberg contributed a phrase to the already phraseladen proceedings. He said the Republicans have "a date with destiny" here and that he hoped they'd give America "the forward-looking program which our opportunity requires."
Compromise Candidates
None could say for sure that a deadlock would develop when the voting for candidates begins tomorrow or Thursday but the possible compromise candidates — Governor Warren of California, House Speaker Martin of Massachusetts and others — began to wait for lightning to strike.
Gov. Kim Sigler of Michigan announced that "a formal campaign headquarters" is being established for Vandenberg in the same hotel with Taft. The Michigan delegation blossomed with Vandenberg buttons.
The convention organized for business yesterday morning and even transacted a little. Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece whacked away at the Democrats.
"Condemned Millions"
Green and Mrs. Luce picked up the cudgel and kept it going last night.
Apparently, the Illinois governor said, the only promise the Democratic party "really kept" were those it gave Joe Stalin. Mrs. Luce went him one better. She said secret treaties Presidents Roosevelt and Truman made with the Russians have:
"Condemned to exile, death or slavery millions of the very people to whom we sought to give freedom: the Poles, the Balts, the brave people of central and middle Europe."
She pictured Mr. Truman as "the unfortunate man in the White House" whose "time is short." But she said some gratitude is due him, because he is president now "instead of Red Hank Wallace."
The dying hope of the Democratic party, Green said, is to win without Wallace.
"Western Flop"
"Our answer is," he said, "it couldn't win with Wallace."
"Indeed, the great flop of the recent western invasion has made it clear that the New Deal can't win with Truman. Let me add that they can't win if they drop Truman."
Green praised his own party as glistening with "honesty and integrity." He said it will salvage the victory in war which "new deal diplomacy threw away" before the fighting stopped.
In an address supposed to provide something of a preview of the party policy and platform for the next four years, Green spoke up for aid for Europe, of a kind "to put the world on its feet, and not on our back."
Divides Demos
A Republican president and congress, he said, will deal fearlessly and realistically with labor, farm, housing, social security and health problems. He said they will meet obligations to veterans, strike at communists, live by the constitution, build up the west, recognize civil rights.
Mrs. Luce partitioned the Democratic party into three sections:
A right, "Jim Crow" wing led by "lynch-loving Bourbons, white-shirted race-supremacists of the Bilbo ilk."
A left or "Moscow" wing-master-minded by "Stalin's Mortimer Snerd, Henry Wallace" and filled with "economic spoonies and political bubble-heads."
A center or "Pendergast" wing, run by "wampum and boodle boys, the same big city bosses who gave us Harry Truman in one of their more pixilated moments."

Early this morning the GOP resolutions committee approved a pledge to continue America's international cooperation.
The platform, which is to be presented to the national convention, also promises to battle for world peace through the United Nations.
In a slam-bang GOP family battle, the platform writers beat down repeated attempts to amend the foreign policy plank.
The plank said the United Nations should be freed of the use of any veto in the peaceful settlement of international disputes. This language did not mention Russia directly.
At home, the platform said if the party is given full power of government it will press strong measures to combat communism. It calls for a far-reaching civil rights program, including enactment of fair employment, anti-lynch, and anti-poll tax legislation.

At the convention meeting last night, delegates clapped when the keynote speaker, Illinois' handsome Governor Dwight H. Green, blasted the Democratic party as a has-been alliance held together by "bosses, boodle, buncombe and blarney."
They roared when Clare Boothe Luce, the glamorous ex-congresswoman, pictured the Democrats as made up of a "Jim Crow" wing, a "Moscow" wing and a "Pendergast" wing.
That last wing, Mrs. Luce said, was the one that gave President Truman to the nation "in one of its more pixilated moments." But at least, she said, he's better than "Red Hank Wallace."
There was a carnival fever downtown, too, around the hotels where candidates and their managers conferred and dickered, claimed victory and hope.
McCormick "Slate"
Taft for president and Stassen for vice-president was the ticket proposed by Col. Robert McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune. Taft said he'd accept anybody the convention wanted

Al Brazle Shuts Out Braves, 1-0 Loop Leaders Lose Ground

BOSTON (AP) — Left-Hander Al Brazle was "right" last night as he pitched the third place St. Louis Cardinals to a 1-0 decision over the National league's leading Braves before 30,398 disappointed fans.

Brazle, who had been defeated earlier in the season by the Tribe, had his sidearm sinker working so well that he, himself, threw out six Boston batters.

Reynolds Wins Eighth; Sets Back Indians, 13-2

CLEVELAND (AP) — Allie Reynolds batted in four runs last night as he hurled the New York Yankees to a 13-2 trouncing of the league-leading Cleveland Indians before 49,837 stadium fans.

Reynolds notched his eighth win against three losses, while Rookie Gene Bearden was blasted for his second setback, compared with six victories.

Bums End Streak, 5-2

BROOKLYN (AP) — Ralph Branca snapped Brooklyn's four-game losing streak last night by pitching a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Branca allowed eight hits for his sixth straight win. Vic Lombardi, ex-Dodger, was the loser.

Tom Conley, Notre Dame senior from Green Bay, Wis., and member of the golf team, is also the university handball singles champ.

Cards Climb to 5th With Double Victory Against Waukegan

Iowa City's Cardinals jumped to fifth place in the western division of the National Softball league Sunday night when they took a doubleheader from Waukegan, 5-1 and 2-0.

The second game went to twelve innings before Bob Oldis, Card catcher, slammed a single into leftfield scoring Manager Ralph Tucker and Shortstop Tom Stahle. Paul Reberry, Card pitcher, granted only four hits in the twelve inning contest. He held Waukegan hitless until the seventh when they smashed a hard hit ball off Second Baseman Johnny Albrecht's knee.

Don Dannen handcuffed the Pilots in the 1st game until he had two down in the last of the seventh. Three successive hits from Waukegan batters scored the lone run in the 5-1 victory for the Cards.

Iowa City scored two runs in the second and sixth and one in the seventh.

Saturday night Dannen pitched the Cards to a 1-0 victory over the Chicago Match corporation club in the first game of a twin-bill. He hurled a one-hit game—the only Chicago hit coming in the fourth inning when John Anckovic got a clean single.

The Cards scored in the sixth when Bob Best hit a double and advanced to third on a throw that caught John Albrecht at the plate. Duly Bailey singled to bring in Best.

In the second game, the Match corporation came through with two runs in the fourth and one in the fifth to take a 3-1 victory.

Win 2 Grid Ducats — Give The Bird A Name

Can you use two tickets to the Iowa-Notre Dame football game to be played in the Iowa stadium October 23?

The Iowa athletic department, with the cooperation of Tailfeathers, university pep club, is conducting a "Name This Character" contest.

The little Hawk character needs a name because he will appear in University of Iowa sports publicity and promotion for many years to come.

The athletic department hopes that this character will become as widely and favorably known as those of some other Big Nine schools.

The character's name should be simple, easy to remember, and must tie in equally well for all types of Iowa athletics. Examples of such a name are

***
"Hawkie," "ZIP," and "Toughie!"
Here are the contest rules:
1) Submit your entry on 3x5 sheet of plainpaper or card, with your complete name and address. Judging will be on the basis of name only, so elaborate presentations are not desired.
2) Mail entries to Tailfeathers Pep Club, Box 39, Iowa Union, Iowa City, Ia. Entries must be postmarked before Sunday, July 4.
3) Any number of entries may be submitted but each entry must be on a separate sheet of paper or card.
4) The decision of the five judges will be final, no entries will be returned, and all entries will become the property of the Iowa department of athletics.
5) Announcement of the winner will be made the week of July 18.

Cuttin' the Corners

It looks like Ellsworth Vines likes our fair city. The famous professional golfer-tennis player is now apparently listing Iowa City as his home address. At any rate, that's the way an Associated Press story from Chicago listed him.

Eric Wilson, sports information director at the university, tells us that Vines was very favorably impressed with Iowa City and its residents when he was here for his clinics during the past year. But he adds that there seems to be little possibility that Vines will become a "permanent resident."

In the case of a touring pro like Vines, a permanent residence is almost out of the question. He and his cohorts usually list their professional club as their home, but they seldom live there, what with exhibitions, clinics and meets all over the country.

Perhaps the old adage, "Home is where the heart is," applies in Vines' case.

Speaking of golf, the 72-hole total of 266 which Bobby Locke shot to win the Victory Open will give future competitors at Midlothian plenty to shoot for.

Back in 1914 Walter Hagen shot a 290 to win the PGA championship over the same course, and that performance is still held in high esteem by the old-timers.

Bantam Ben, Hogan shot a 261 to walk off with the Portland, Ore. Open in 1945, but even that is not a record in PGA books. The all-time low was carded by Horton Smith when he toured the Evergreen, Colo., course in 241 strokes. That is some golf!

Jack Hand Picks 'Bomber' Over Walcott by KO in 10th

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Louis to knock out Jersey Joe Walcott in ten rounds is the pick from this corner for Wednesday's heavyweight title bout at the Yankee stadium.

Jersey Joe's jiggling three-step is certain to bother the champ again, but a well-conditioned Louis, sharpened by some 90 rounds of boxing, figures to catch up with Walcott at least once.

When he catches Walcott this time, Louis doesn't expect to let him get away like he did last December in the ninth round of their first bout.

"I'll get him quick" is Louis' only hint of the style of attack he will use but those who have been watching his workouts expect him to concentrate on a body attack until he can force Jersey Joe to invite a shot to the jaw by dropping his hands.

The Louis left jab again is sharp and accurate and most of the excess pounds have been melted off his body and legs. He'll weigh about 215 to 195 for the challenger. Spar mates still hit Joe with rights to the chin without too much trouble, a glaring weakness first uncovered by Max Schmeling.

Walcott, like Louis a 34-year-old, probably had his greatest opportunity in December when the referee voted for him but two judges permitted Louis to retain his championship. Few expect him to be better than he was that night. He still remains fundamentally a fighter with a confusing style and a good sneak right hand punch. Jersey Joe is most dangerous when hurt and is drilled on the theory of "throw that right" when in trouble.

4 Law Nines Open Summer IM Play

Delta Theta Pi and Phi Alpha Delta captured first round softball wins last night in the law fraternity league.

The Theta Pi came from behind to defeat Gamma Eta Gamma, 10-7, while Phi Alpha Delta routed Phi Delta Phi, 14-2. The four teams will meet every Monday in double round-robin competition.

Four games are slated tonight in the Married Students' league. Riverside meets West Finkbine, North Hawkeye plays East Pinkbine, Central Hawkeye tangles with Stadium and South Hawkeye meets Templin-Central-Co-ops.

Anderson Paces Moose Over Muscatine, 9-2

The Iowa City Moose whipped the Muscatine Moose Legion baseball team, 9-2, on the City park diamond Sunday.

Dan Kelsey held Muscatine to seven safeties while his mates were getting 12.

Andy Anderson got two for two, and Warren Conrad and Russ Weenick hit three times out of five chances.

Iowa City scored four times in the sixth inning with two men out to clinch the game.

Gunther Wins Medalist Honors

Match Play Starts Today

CHICAGO (AP) — Margaret Gunther, pretty 25-year-old Tennessee state champion from Memphis, fired a two-over-par 76 over tricky Skycrest Country club yesterday to win the medal in the qualifying round of the 19th Women's Western Open golf tournament.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, seeking her fourth open title, and Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. D., were a stroke behind with 77's as a starting field of 154 found the 6,434-yard rolling course easy to start, but hard to finish.

The qualifying test, held under murky skies and intermittent showers, sent the top 32 scorers into today's first round of match play. The tournament ends Saturday with a 36-hole title match.

Miss Gunther, fresh from winning the Tennessee Women's crown for the fourth time, tapped four birdies to overcome a pair of two-over-par and one bogey for her pace-setting 18-hole round.

She was the only shooter to match par 37 on the outgoing nine and, like the rest of the field, found the back nine, also a par 37, pocked with snares.

Margaret's putter, which hit four times from beyond 10 feet, gave her a birdie four on the 18th for a closing 39. Miss Hanson, after starting with a two-over, 39, came back in 38, one over, for the best second nine of the day.

Patty Berg of Minneapolis, like Mrs. Zaharias a professional, tapped 38-40-78 to finish fourth. Miss Berg, open winner in 1941 and 1943, played with her left hand heavily bandaged to protect an injured ligament.

Two Iowans were included in the list of qualifiers. Phyllis Otto Germain of Atlantic had a 34-44-82, while Ann Casey of Mason City qualified with a 42-44-86.

Postpone Welter Title Fight

CHICAGO (AP) — The Ray "Sugar" Robinson-Bernie Docusen fight for the world's welterweight championship yesterday was postponed until next Monday night. Threatening rain and Robinson's failure to make the regulation 147 pounds forced the postponement.

The 15-round battle had been set for Comiskey park, home of the Chicago White Sox, last night.

Robinson, the champion, showing up half an hour late for the weigh-ins, pleaded that he did not have sufficient time to regain the pound notch. He said he weighed 151½, but unofficially it was said he was four pounds over that figure. He refused to get on the scales. Docusen, the boxing wizard from New Orleans, tipped an even 147.

George Gainford, Robinson's manager, agreed to post an additional $4,000 as a guarantee that the title holder will make the prescribed weight by noon Monday. He said Robinson was 147 pounds last Thursday, when the bout was first postponed by rain. He insisted his fighter should not be required to step on the scales again.

Sheldon Clark, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic commission, said the National Boxing association rules require a boxer to weigh in a second time if the bout has been delayed more than 24 hours.

Robinson now has $15,000 posted with the commission. He previously posted $10,000 for appearance and $1,000 to make weight.

Otis Guigot, a co-manager of Docusen, after insisting that Robinson's title should be vacated, accepted the postponement mainly because threatening weather made it doubtful if the bout could be fought. Clark refused to vacate Robinson's title, under the circumstances.

Bob Rossie Annexes Valley Boxing Crown

Bob Rossie Jr., Iowa City boxer, captured the 160-pound crown of the Mississippi Valley championships at Davenport last night.

Weighing in at 149, Rossie had little trouble knocking out Flynn Griffin in the second round of their match.

Student Mates Happy

Mutual Interests and Agreement On Goals Important Aids To College Marriages

Married GI's attending college apparently have a successful formula for a happy marriage. The great majority can be rated as "happy" or "very happy," according to a survey made by Prof. Judson T. Landis of the sociology department at Michigan State college.

Mutual interests and agreement on goals seem to be the big factors making for good college marriages, while the main pitfalls are money problems and in-laws.

Marriage while in college is comparatively new on campuses all over the nation. About one-fourth of the veterans in college are now married. Half of them are or expect to be fathers before they graduate.

Professor Landis submitted questionnaires to 544 married couples at Michigan State college. They were living in trailer camps, barracks or small apartments, characteristic of college housing throughout the country.

Three-fourths of them answered "yes" to the question "Knowing what you know now, would you marry before finishing college if you were unmarried?" The other quarter said "no," or expressed doubts. More of the wives than the husbands said they would do it again. The men's main reason against it was "financial."

Two-thirds said they would advise friends to marry while in college. Again, more wives than husbands felt this way. Unmarried students, however, were more doubtful. Only a third of the men and about one half the women among 600 unmarried students questioned thought college marriage a good idea.

Children a Problem
Happiness ratings have shown, according to Landis, that those with children are not as happy at present as those without children. Unless there is enough money, the arrival of children makes things tougher. The children often are too much of an added responsibility atop an already difficult schedule.

The married students are better students. A University of Wisconsin study showed that married men generally made better grades than the unmarried and that fathers make better grades than married students without children.

In ranking problems causing family friction, the married students ranked difficulties with in-laws as the biggest problem in their marriages.

Sources of Friction

Other problems ranked in the following order: division of work in the home, financial problems, the training and discipline of children, social activities and recreation, sex relations, religious differences, and association with friends.

Although none of these problems is peculiar to college marriages, difficulties with in-law relationships are aggravated because of the special circumstances. Many parents are too conscious of the "hardships" of such a marriage and cannot refrain from trying to advise.

President John A. Hannah of Michigan State favors the college marriage. He believes that married students are better students. He also believes that it is good for the country to have people raise children while they are young.

Five Men Pledge Phi Epsilon Kappa

Phi Epsilon Kappa, professional fraternity for men in physical education, has announced the pledging of the following five men:

Donald H. Head Jr., G. DuBuque; Elwin A. Duhm, A3, Sterling, Ill.; Alvin E. Poock, A3, Atkins; Shipley J. Farroh, G, Michigan City, Ind., and Warren L. Hudson, A4, Waterloo.

In a meeting following the pledging President Don Eden, Lone Tree, appointed the following officers for the summer term to replace those officers spending the summer at home: James T. Charles, G, Fort Smith, Arkansas, vice-president, and William J. McCabe A3, Green Bay, Wis., secretary.

At Last—Comfort Before Style

TAKING A "BREATH" FROM STUDYING are three Iowa coeds in "varied" night wear. Mimi Gustafson, A4, Burlington, wears a cool pair of "midrifts", trimmed in white lace. Jeanne Christensen, A4, Harlan, prefers the ever-popular "tommy coat" and Rose Marie Paul, A4, Burlington, wears an old-fashioned "nightie" of white cotton trimmed in dainty embroidery. Summer or winter, these styles predominate in coeds' sleeping apparel.

Don't let "Vogue" fool you, fellows! Your best gal's sleepy-time wardrobe does not necessarily include smartly-tailored pajamas or sophisticated gowns which are advertised in fashion magazines.

An after-curfew glimpse into any women's housing unit would reveal coeds arrayed in anything from grandma's flannel nightgown to big brother's navy pajamas.

Of course some girls still prefer the conventional bedtime attire, but for many others the emphasis is on comfort rather than on style.

Ideas of comfort vary with the individual, however. One girl may prefer a long-sleeved, floor-length flannel nightshirt while her warmer-blooded roommate will wear no more than a pair of short, midrift pajamas throughout the winter.

Sleeping beauties who enjoy loose-fitting pajamas raid their dad's or brother's closets for gaudy striped or print pajamas. Those who get them in large enough sizes wear only the top

Economy Begins . . . Where?

With an election coming up, the caterwauling about governmental economy is bound to increase. From Republicans especially, the cries about "cutting down on government bureaucrats" are going to get louder.

Before we start promising too much reduction, though, it might be in order to see just what we have.

According to the latest authoritative accounts issued by the Civil Service Commission, 1,631,209 people work for the federal government, on a full time basis. That's a lot of "bureaucrats"—one for every 87 of population. Or if you want to figure it another way, one for every 37 of working population.

There must be some way of reducing such a top-heavy structure.

The post-office uses over 300,000 people—but not much can be done there. Most folks think they have to wait too long for service when they mail things now.

Veteran's Administration takes up another 205,000. We could chop that. No, maybe we couldn't. 15 million voter-veterans and their voter-families are demanding more and more services, and naturally that many voters must not be irritated.

Another 657,000 civilian employees are shared by the Army and Navy. We could fire them—and draft more boys to take their place. But that's a touchy subject too. Besides, we're expanding the armed forces for "defense" purposes now, so elimination there wouldn't do.

The department of agriculture uses 70,000 employees. Farmers are notoriously allergic to bureaucrats—but somehow we don't think they'd like their own particular services tampered with.

Ignoring the already mentioned branches, that leaves almost 430,000 people still working for the government—in all branches, ranging from the atomic energy commission to the Panama Canal; from the department of commerce to the Indian claims division. Still too many? But probably we could fire the three people working for the American battle monuments commission.

Another irritating factor is that most of these employees are civil servants. They can't be fired without cause—or pared down without eliminating their services by legislation. Voters are funny—once they get used to governmental services, they don't like to give them up.

And, good gosh! What are we going to do about jobs for all the deserving Republicans who have been waiting so patiently for these past 16 years?

Editorial Notes

Domestic turkeys will peck a fellow bird to death if he is placed in their midst with a ribbon or cloth tied about his neck. Maybe they just don't like show-offs. But with this in mind, most turkeys find it smarter to go along with the mob.

A judge in the east recently ruled that the arrival of a new baby in an apartment does not constitute grounds for an increase in rent. The magistrate held that the event is a blessed one for the parents—not for the landlord.

If the increase in the number of new businesses that have opened out on South Dubuque in the past year continues, it won't be long until that area will be a major shopping district.

Two Ways of Doing Things

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The two men walked into the bar and gave it a fast look, the way men do who are after a quick drink.

"You want to be careful," said the other. "You have to let a house get used to a new support. It's like a live thing."

"We need submarines, too," said one of the other men. "Sure we do," said his friend. "And bacteriological warfare. And a standing army, forty, fifty good divisions. Anytime anybody gives us lip, we take a little excursion in the big ships. Just out for the fishing and the fresh air." He laughed. "In a year or two the world gets quiet. They'll know."

"You want to be very careful," said the man in overalls. "It isn't too much of a house, but even so there must be a few tons of weight there. You come back every few days and take another part turn in the jack. Then you leave it, you understand, and you go away. You can't fool with anything like that."

"Yeh, take it easy," agreed the other.

"I'll come over and help you," said the first. "You get that thing set up, it's a temptation to do it all at once."

"Bold strokes," said one of the other men. "Give them their choice, peace or war. Just like that, any old time they want either. They'll take peace."

"You want to be very careful," said the man in overalls. "or you'll have a hell of a replastering job on your hands."

"When you jack up that floor," said one of the men in overalls to the other, "you set that jack up in the cellar, and you take maybe part of a turn. Little bit. Then you stop, you understand, and let it rest for several days."

"Several days, huh," said the second.

"You want to be careful," said the other. "You have to let a house get used to a new support. It's like a live thing."

TO THE DAILY IOWAN:

I was in the long line of people who waited patiently to board the Freedom train and to file through its lengthy and efficient interior. And I was highly impressed, as were hundreds of thousands before me, with its panoramic array of those great documents of freedom, many of which represented the progression from a germinal of liberty to the present complex, articulated conception of a great social philosophy.

But I felt a certain disappointment too, as the collection was not complete. For missing is a set of documents important to our traditions of freedom. They represent a certain recognition of the rights of minority, of the assumption that if in times of emergency and dictates of expediency the minority voice—whether right or wrong—is stymied; then when the pressure of expediency is diminished, that voice shall again be permitted to speak forth.

These documents are the eight amnesty proclamations issued within the past 156 years by Presidents Washington, Adams, Madison, Lincoln, Johnson, Wilson, Coolidge and Roosevelt. The minority is the group of several thousand men, who during the recent war chose to follow the dictates of their consciences and refused to contribute to a war which they considered unjust, immoral and a means totally incompatible with the projected end of freedom, world peace and individual liberty.

Last December out of over 15,000 Selective Service violators, President Truman singled out 1,523 men for pardon. He narrowed the definition of conscience to include only members of recognized churches and creeds and pardoned only 147 out of 4,300 Jehovah's Witnesses.

By this sort of discrimination the President has said in effect that a self-formulated philosophy is less valid for an individual than a philosophy formulated and dictated by a recognized organization. That a decision in many cases resulting from years of extensive study of social, economic, political and philosophical problems is not as sincere as one resulting from a certain approach to Christianity.

As I left the Freedom train, I glanced back once more and thought what a curious paradox we have committed. Several thousand men deprived of their civil rights because they had new and revolutionary ideas; because they felt that war as a means of settling disputes is an anachronism; because they saw so clearly and distinctly the incongruity in coercion of the individual by a state engaged in fighting another state because of its coercion of individuals.

Many of the documents on the train also represented at one time new and revolutionary ideas. The Declaration of Independence was startlingly new for the majority—England. The Thirteenth amendment was rather alarming to the southern slave holders. The Bill of Rights was merely acquiesced to by many of the Federalists in order to obtain ratification by the states.

And I asked myself, what will the Freedom train one hundred and fifty years from now contain? RICHARD LOWENBERG, A4
233 Melrose Ave.

Say Cominform Meets 'Somewhere in Poland'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Information received from usually trustworthy sources in Europe said last night that a meeting of the Cominform is being held "somewhere in Poland."

Top European Communists are attending, presumably from all nine countries of the postwar international Communist "information bureau" organized under Russian leadership last autumn, this information said.

The meeting is presumed to be reviewing Communist tactics in Europe, in the wake of the anti-Communist victory in Italy's April elections and the recent western power decision on self government for the western zones of Germany.

McBride's Hall — The Thad Cathe of Thimms

By BILL McBRIDE

Now that Father's Day is past there are a good many neckties around the house that Father wouldn't (as an old Chinese proverb goes) be caught dead in.

One Iowa City resident claims his annual Father's Day tie will soon cost him over $20,000.

This year he figures the pastel green and blue neckwear came to $18,001.75. He says he has spent $2,000 a year, for nine years, to rear his son. The $1.75 is the price of this year's cravat.

Complaints on the quality of coffee served in I.C. have been finding their way to my desk. I don't know why these complaints should be turned in here. The last thing in the world I want to be (next to a Siberian steamfitter) is a coffee complaint bureau.

A word of advice: Coffee is a nickel a cup almost any place in town, and that's one of the few things a lonely five cent piece will still buy. Don't worry about the quality; just be happy it doesn't cost you a quarter.

If you really want to gripe about something, pick on the new lightweight plastic cup. After serving in the conventional coffee mug for years, the restaurant industry suddenly switches to a featherweight plastic cup.

The result of this switch is that many customers fail to detect the difference in weight and exert the same effort that was required to get the old fashioned mug from counter to mouth.

The effects of this exertion culminate in accidentally throwing the contents of the cup completely over your shoulder and onto the person standing behind you waiting for your seat.

This leads to bad feeling all around, and you find yourself the subject of glaring looks from customers and management alike.

That reminds me of an old fellow I once knew in Red Lodge, Montana, whose name was Simms. Originally his name had been Thimms, but he lisped and people were always spelling it Simms because they thought he was mis-pronouncing his own name. That's why he changed it to Simms . . . a confusing situation . . . probably not worth mentioning.

To get on with the story: old man Simms (or Thimms) went to Japan in his youth to work on a tea ranch. For 12 years he helped cultivate tea bushes. At last his chance came to leave the fields and advance to a desk job. He left the fields and that was his downfall.

He was given a job counting the number of cups of tea the tea testers drank. All day long he would sit in the center of a doughnut shaped table and count cups of tea to make certain the tea testers didn't get carried away with their work and drink the company out of business.

The constant grind of seeing nothing but the up-turned bottoms of Japanese tea cups proved too much for the old tea cup counter, and he finally went stark mad.

He was sent back to Montana to regain his sanity and succeeded in doing so due to the lack of upturned tea cup bottoms.

However, because of his former job of adding up cups of tea, old man Simms (or Thimms) is now known as one of the few tea-tallers in the sovereign state of Montana.

Convention Sidelights —

Convention Hot, But Indian Appears in Full Regalia

By ARTHUR EDSON

CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The hottest man at the Republican convention yesterday was a Sioux chief — with an international touch.

It was hot here for the Republican opening, so hot yesterday that many a delegate and newly-arrived men peeled to their shirts—and wished they could peel further.

But Chief William Spotted Crow, an alternate delegate from Pine Ridge, S.D., showed up in full Indian dress.

The 77-year-old Chief had an otter skin around his neck, two rows of eagle feathers around his head, and here and there an extra bear claw or porcupine quill.

The Chief, a rancher when he isn't politicking, also wore some beads. A heritage from his ancestors, eh?

"No," said our honest Injun. "They come from Czechoslovakia."

Four places on the official program it says in black type: "Because of radio commitments, all sessions of convention must start on time."

So? So the opening session got under way exactly 27 minutes late.

An impromptu quartet, which included one semi-soprano, started to yodel in the halls. Each wore a large Taft button as a breast-plate, and the opening number was, "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover," Taft's theme song.

The next selection was that old Yale favorite, "The Whiffenpoof Song." Whereupon the quartet was promptly hushed by the ushers, who, presumably, are Princeton men.

The first piece played on the organ yesterday was "Hello," a tune recognized by practically nobody. I found out what it was by going down into the basement to interview the organist, who sits 30 feet below the stage. He keeps in touch with the convention by telephone.

In case you've noticed a certain fervor in the organ tones that thunder from your radio or television sets, don't be surprised. The organist, Harry W. MacMillan, plays for a local Baptist church on Sundays.

Among yesterday's visitors: Harry Byrd, Jr., son of the Virginia Democratic senator . . . two congressmen are working their way in to see the GOP elephant.

Reps. McGregor (R-Ohio) and Arends (R-Ill.) are helping to keep the delegates in two by serving as assistant sergeant-at-arms. "I like it," beamed McGregor, "I like to mingle." And he kept right on mingling maddly.

Samuel F.B. Morse, the hotel impresario who's a California delegate, made a large hit with the Vermont delegation.

"Come and see me at Del Monte," he urged them. "I'll take care of you. I own the place." The Vermonters accepted, to a man. Then, too late, Morse had a second thought.

"What am I saying?" he muttered. "I sold the place last week!"

Jesse James' Return Leaves Experts Agry, Publishers Perturbed

Jesse James has been cussed by experts in the old days, but today the bandit is getting a verbal going over in the usually sedate halls where scholars write textbooks and encyclopedias.

The publisher's wrath stems from the amazing story told by an old man in Lawton, Oklahoma, who claims that he and Jesse are one and the same.

J. Morris Jones, managing editor of the World Book Encyclopedia, is one of the many editors who are praying that the whole thing is a hoax.

Jones is particularly disturbed because the World Book publishers have just spent more than two million dollars on a new edition.

Jones pointed out that there must be positive proof before James is declared alive in the encyclopedia. Facts printed in newspapers, and detective reports are carefully followed by editorial researchers.

However, before the World Book will eliminate James' death date, there will be a period of watching and waiting. If, after several weeks, the identity of James still seems conclusive, a World Book contributor will be asked to check and double check the matter. Jones stated that E.E. Dale, Oklahoma University's nationally known historian, will probably be asked to handle the research assignment.

If James' claim proves to be legitimate, thousands of expensive corrections will be necessary in educational publications.

Art Department to Hold Panel Meet Tomorrow

A panel discussion at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the main gallery of the art building will deal with "Changing Directions in Modern Art," the art department announced yesterday.

Schedule Grad Record Exams

Announcement of the graduate record examination to be given August 2 and 3 was made yesterday by Prof. Robert L. Ebel, of the graduate record examination service.

The examination for graduate and prospective graduate students is given four times a year—February, May, August, and October. Registration deadline for the August tests is noon, July 15, according to Ebel. Registration should be made in the examination service office, room 114, University hall. The office's hours are 8 to 12, and 1 to 5.

Although SUI does not require these exams for graduate students, a large number of graduate schools in the United States and Canada do, Ebel said. The results of the graduate record examination are submitted as one of the credentials for admission.

The examination is a measure of general education in eight fields with advanced testing in one major subject.

The $5 fee for the test is payable at the beginning of the first testing session.

Union Rejects Ford Proposal

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. (AP)—Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer and acting president of the CIO-unioned automobile workers, said last night the union has rejected a wage offer by the Ford Motor Co.
 "We don't agree with the formula," Mazey said. "The union will insist on a flat rate for all workers with adjustment of inequities."
 Ford offered to raise wages of its 110,000 employees by 11 to 14 cents an hour.
 At the same time, Chrysler corporation, which recently granted its 90,000 employees a 13-cent increase, raised its passenger car prices.
 Ford told the UAW-CIO it was ready to add 14 cents to the wages of all employees making $1.50 or more an hour. Those making less would get an 11-cent boost.
 A few weeks ago, Ford asked the UAW-CIO to forego a wage increase this year, suggesting that a cut in wages even might be advisable. The union had asked 30 cents an hour increase.
 Ford told the union its wage offer was a "maximum package." It explained that union demands for pensions, medical insurance, guaranteed weekly wage, night shift bonus, paid lunch period and the like must either be shelved or paid for out of the 11-14 cents.

Crack Greek Troops Pound Communist Guerrilla Forces

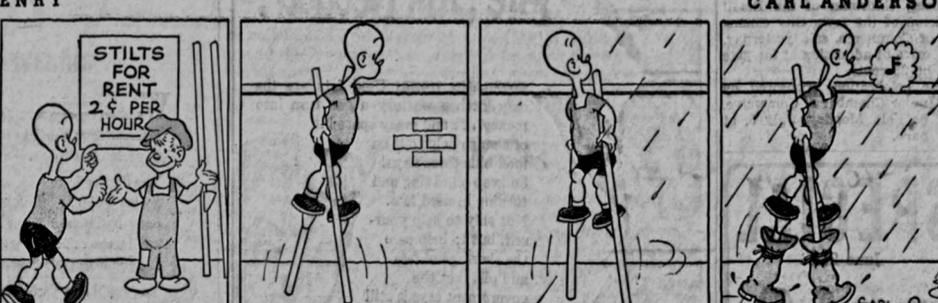

ATHENS (AP)—The crack Greek ninth division was reported last night only eight miles from a main rebel base at Lykorrachi in the heart of the towering Grammos mountains. Greek air force planes backed up the swift advance.
 The ninth jumped off Sunday night from Konitsa and began a steady drive toward the core of guerrilla forces as six divisions began an all-out campaign to break the Communist rebellion.
 Dispatches said troops of the ninth moved ahead four miles without any opposition.

Court Rules Labor Can Back Politicians From Union Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The supreme court ruled yesterday that the Taft-Hartley act does not forbid political partisanship in newspapers financed out of labor union funds.
 Unanimously the court added that if the law did that the constitutional validity of the ban would be highly questionable.
 The case had been intended by both the CIO and the government as a direct test on the validity of the act's general prohibition against political expenditures from union treasuries but in that respect it fell flat. The court said it did not have to go into the constitutional question to make its ruling. It simply held that the law does not forbid the acts alleged as a violation.
 Thus, at the start of the season of heavy political warfare, unions and government are left to make their own guesses as to how far unions may go in political spending. Many unions have planned ambitious programs during the campaigns.
 The high court quit for the summer after handing down the ruling so there is no chance of a definite decision in time for the main campaign weeks. The court meets again the first Monday in October, which would not allow time to process a new case ahead of the November elections.

Oldest Iowa Veteran Dies

Burial Rites Wednesday for Ebenezer G. McMurray, 103

Iowa's oldest veteran of the "Boys in Blue," Ebenezer G. McMurray, 103, died quietly here Sunday evening, leaving only one survivor of the GAR in Iowa.

A resident of Iowa City for the past 13 years, Mr. McMurray lived at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Dean and Mrs. Chester A. Phillips, 721 N. Linn street.

Mr. McMurray was looking forward to the celebration of his 104th birthday August 27. Alert and up and about until nearly a week before his death, he last appeared in public on May 31 when he rode in an automobile in the Memorial Day parade to ceremonies at Oakland cemetery.

The aged veteran died in his bed at the Phillips home at 10:30 p.m. Sunday night, not ill, but "just worn out," according to his daughter, Mrs. Phillips. Though he remarked at Memorial Day observances that he "didn't feel bad," he had continually become weaker and refrained from eating much. He was in a coma before his death.

Sole GAR survivor in Iowa now is James P. Martin of Sutherland, who was 100 years old last November. Martin and the Iowa City veteran both appeared at ceremonies which officially opened Highway 6 as GAR highway last September.

Born August 27, 1844, in Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies, Mr. McMurray was one of five children born to James Henry McMurray, missionary, and his wife, Elizabeth, both natives of Scotland.

When he was four years old, his family moved to Brooklyn, New York. Soon after that, Mr. McMurray's father died and his mother took the children to Tuscarawas, Ohio, where she taught school.

Though his older brothers were educated in Scotland, Mr. McMurray attended boarding school in Hartford, Conn., for a year. In Tuscarawas he continued his education and worked for his board and room.

Once he ran six miles to hear Abraham Lincoln speak. While working for a farmer, he heard that Lincoln was passing through on a train six miles away. Though the farmer galloped off to see Lincoln himself, he called an order over his shoulder to the boy to remain at work. But as soon as the farmer was out of sight, the lad ran the distance to hear Lincoln speak from the rear platform of the train.

In 1863, when he was 19, he enlisted in the army as a mule driver. He became a corporal and later served in the infantry. Though he never participated in any major battles, his duties took him through Cumberland Gap to Lookout Mountain, Tenn., and other historic points in the south. After the war Mr. McMurray returned to Tuscarawas where he married Lydal Ann Van Lehn and settled down to farm there. Mr. and Mrs. McMurray were the parents of 5 children. In 1900 Mr. McMurray and his family moved to Huntington, Ind., where he planned to become a postal employee. But though he had been a veteran of the Civil war, and voted in many elections, he found that he was not technically a United States citizen. He owned a farm near Huntington but lived in College Park, Ind.

Thirteen years ago he came to Iowa City to reside with Dean and Mrs. Phillips. In 1938, accompanied by Mrs. Phillips, his daughter, he attended the 75th anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg in Pennsylvania.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Tuscarawas, Ohio, with burial there. The rites will be at Tuscarawas Sharon Moravian church where he was a member for 84 years.

Friends and relatives called at Beckman's until 9 p.m. last night. The body was then put aboard a late train for New Philadelphia, Ohio. Dean and Mrs. Phillips left for that city yesterday noon to complete funeral arrangements.

Survivors include Mrs. Phillips; a son, Raymond S. McMurray, Huntington, Ind.; eight grandchildren; 16 great grandchildren, and two great great grandchildren.

One of his grand children, Mrs. Edward Howard of Cleveland, Ohio, is the author of two books, "And Beat Him When He Sneezes" and "Out on a Limbo."

EBENEZER G. MCMURRAY IS PICTURED as he reflected on more than a century of experiences as a farmer, father and GAR veteran. He died quietly at the home of his son-in-law and daughter, Dean and Mrs. Chester A. Phillips, 721 N. Linn street, Sunday night.

Amateur Dick Tracy — Junior Crime-Buster

A junior crime-buster is hobnobbing with some top-ranking police officers this week.

In line with more than 150 veteran police officers, a two-headed Iowa City lad registered yesterday for the policemen's school being held this week at SUI.

But Howard Berg, 14, son of Prof. and Mrs. Clarence Berg, 528 N. Dubuque street, is no "freshman" in the school for law enforcement officers.

Howard and several of his buddies, members of a junior crime club, attended the policemen's sessions last summer. But the club "sort of broke up," Howard explained. "The fellas got kind of bored with the subject, I guess," he added.

But Howard was back for more instruction this year. "I find police work interesting," he said. He has enrolled in courses in basic investigation which includes fingerprinting and all types of investigation.

Just returned from a visit to scout camp, Howard finds time to take a typing course at university high (where he recently completed eighth grade) and an instrumental course in music at SUI.

Howard's interest in football, basketball and sports is only "average," he reported. His main hobbies are radio construction and repairing clocks.

He copied a design for a device which he admits "comes in handy." Howard's instrument is a "little amplifier" that allows him to "hear what's going on all over the house."

Enthusiastically Howard insisted that the amplifier really works. "Sometimes you can even hear the dog breathing," he said. Howard claims he hasn't used his amplifier to listen in on any of his parents' conversations yet. "But I'm gonna try it sometime," he added mischievously.

Tickets On Sale For July 5th Celebration

Tickets for Iowa City's Fourth of July celebration will go on sale Saturday, June 26, in a number of downtown retail stores.

The tickets will sell for 15 cents each at the stores, Ray W. Vanderhoef, chairman of the Retail Division of the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday. The price of admission at the gate will be 25 cents.
