

'Acrobatic' Swedish Misses To Give Dances, Gymnastics

Sixteen acrobatic and agile Swedish misses will perform gymnastics and folk dances before SUI audiences tonight.

Sophiaflickorna, the troupe of girl gymnasts, is touring America during the 1948 celebration of the Swedish pioneer centennial. The program is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the fieldhouse.

The performance has been arranged as a part of the three-day conference on health and physical education being held here this week.

More than 200 physical education instructors representing schools of Iowa and nearby states were estimated to have attended the opening session last night of the 17th annual conference.

Based on problems in physical education, the three-day conference is sponsored by the men's and women's divisions of physical education with the cooperation of summer session and extension division members.

The Swedish girls tonight will portray Ling gymnastics, a system dating back a century or more to Sweden, Elizabeth Halsey of the SUI physical education department for women explained Tuesday.

Miss Halsey reported that, at a luncheon Tuesday for Prince Bertil, members of the Swedish delegation eagerly inquired if she knew, had seen or was going to see the Sophiaflickorna, their "crack" gymnasts.

"In Sweden," said Miss Halsey, "physical education is such an important part of all education that experts in all fields know all about the programs."

The girl-gymnasts have been touring the United States independent of the Swedish delegation but often the two Swedish companies have met, Miss Halsey said.

The Swedish girls' performance will highlight the sessions of the physical education conference which opened Wednesday night with a speech by Ruth Evans on "Education for Citizenship."

Miss Evans, president of the American association for health, physical education and recreation, has for a number of years been associated with the Springfield, Mass. schools.

She outlined a program to combat racial and religious prejudices in the public schools at the initial conference meeting last night.

Several years ago she developed and put into effect in all departments of the Springfield schools a plan which came to be known as the Springfield plan for intercultural education. The program was designed to teach children to understand and appreciate each other's racial and religious backgrounds.

Miss Evans pointed out that the prejudice-reducing program applies not only to physical education but to all phases of school life.

Both men and women educators will participate in two roundtable discussions this morning and this afternoon. Miss Halsey is chairman of the morning session at which President Virgil M. Hancher will give the conference address of welcome.

Leon G. Kranz, director of the department of physical education at Northwestern university, Evanston, Ill., will speak this afternoon on "Developing a Philosophy." Chairman at today's afternoon meeting is an SUI physical education faculty member, Ernest G. Schroeder.

The physical education conference will end tomorrow with a morning speech and roundtable discussion and clinics on activities at the fieldhouse during the afternoon.

ATO Mascot Gets Cold Reception On Warm Day

By CAROL THURNAU

ATO went calling Tuesday, but he didn't get a warm reception. The shaggy, 160-pound St. Bernard mascot of the ATO fraternity, spent a lazy summer afternoon making a few social calls at Iowa City stores.

ATO II stopped in at a barber shop to chat. But the barber tossed him out—if anybody can "toss" a St. Bernard.

Sadly the brown and white pooch of proportions shambled down the streets into a crowded drugstore. Panting, he sprawled out full-length just inside the door and contented himself by greeting shocked patrons.

A little old lady clucked at sight of him. A co-ed skirted him fearfully. ATO lolled an enormous pink tongue.

But he wasn't welcome at the drugstore either. Urged to leave, he dragged himself up and started down the sidewalk again, causing gleeful shouts from youngsters on the street.

ATO II tried a call at a shoe-shine shop, but got the cold shoulder there, too.

The lonely St. Bernard padded down the street again, sniffing listlessly here and there. Finally he crossed the street and flopped down in the grass before Old Capitol.

A moment later, a T-shirted student approached. "Hyah, ATO, old boy!" he called. Students coming along patted ATO affectionately on the head. One student rough-housed the big dog and ATO II happily rolled over pawing playfully at him.

The dog watched the student disappear out of sight, settled his head on his big paws, and went to sleep probably to dream of pounds and pounds of beefsteak.
