Tornado Hits Farms Near Cedar Rapids

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — A tornado struck about 20 miles west of here near the village of Luzerne last night and the state police radio at Cedar Falls reported Highway 30 was blocked by trees and buildings strewn across the roadway. Mrs. Laura Martinson, telephone operator at Luzerne, said no one was killed or injured. Mrs. Martinson said there were two funnels to the twister. "It hit the Dr. Nathan Williams farm northwest of here and destroyed practically everything but the house. "It also hit the Ed Wehrman farm west of Luzerne and did a lot of damage. "The wind also hit the telephone office here and a number of lines burned out, but we stayed on the job. "There seemed to be two funnels but it was the first one that hit. The other didn't do any damage in this area so far as we know. The highway patrol had three cars at the scene to help clear the highway. State Patrolman Joseph Smith, 821 E. Church street, was among the state police called to the scene. The storm damaged four farms near Luzerne and bordering Highway 30. About 25 acres of corn was destroyed on the Peck brothers farm along the highway. On the William Wright farm, just across the road, 40 acres were destroyed. Shocked oats were strewn widely over the latter two farms. One REA electric line was reported down, but service was not cut off. REA linemen began work immediately to put the line up again. The Wright dwelling was considerably damaged, and Wright said the vane on his windmill was "burned inside out like an umbrella."

Disaster Strikes Around the World

A GERMAN POLICEMAN SEARCHES the still-smoking ruins of the I.G. Farben chemical plant at Ludwigshafen, Germany, which was shattered by several explosions Wednesday. Number of dead still is not known but more than 200 are missing and German police report 2,000 injured. The scene above was site of the six-story building in which the original explosion took place.

STRUCK TWICE BY DISASTER was the Japanese city of Fukui. Last month an earthquake and subsequent fires leveled more than half the city. This week record rains overflowed the Kuzuryu river and flooded the area as this U.S. airforce picture shows.

Probe German Factory Ruins

LUDWIGSHAFEN, GERMANY (AP) — Weary American troops ploughed a path to a death trap building at the explosion-torn I. G. Farben chemical plant last night and then withdrew when French soldiers said their "gallant services" no longer were needed. The building, one of the most badly wrecked in Wednesday's blast in this French zone city, was believed to contain from 60 to 140 bodies. A German policeman said scores of bodies could be seen floating in several feet of water and ammonia in the basement. He expressed the belief it might take two weeks to recover all the bodies strewn about in the plant's wreckage. The list of the known dead grew. German police said 89 bodies had been brought out and another 20 persons had died in hospitals. Two hundred persons are missing and believed dead and about 2,000 are injured, they said. Communist newspapers in Berlin claimed, without offering proof, that the huge factory in the French occupation zone was making war materials illegally. Germans investigating Europe's greatest disaster since the war brushed aside the charges. They said preliminary findings indicated the blast was touched off by ethyl chloride, an industrial chemical. A chemist who worked at the plant said only industrial products were turned out there.

SUI Starts Draft Information Center

An information center for students who may be affected by the new selective service act has been established at SUI, it was announced yesterday. Under the direction of William D. Coder, director of the veterans service, information and guidance will be supplied to students concerning their military status and the different types of service offered by the armed forces. Registrar Ted H. McCarrel, secretary of the university military affairs committee, will conduct liaison between the draft boards and the students. He will also assist in presenting petitions for deferments of students entitled to such consideration because of their status at the university.

Highlanders Take Manhattan

See Empire State, Greenwich Village, Baseball, 'Brigadoon,' Jo Stafford

By ROBERT D. NOBLE JR.

NEW YORK—Manhattan belonged to the University of Iowa Highlanders last night. They finished their formal program with a performance in Madison Square Garden yesterday morning and were on their own the rest of the day.

The group was scattered from one end of the island to the other. Jan Tyler of Fort Madison, Marjorie Campbell of Jefferson and Martha Fry of Oklahoma City, Okla., shopped in Greenwich village yesterday noon. Four other members of the group were seen on top the Empire State building. Marjorie McCaslin of Fort Madison and Norma Lou Haegg of Cedar Rapids also spent the afternoon on a shopping tour.

Jean Breckenridge, a Boston member of the group and a terrific Dodge fan, gave up her afternoon to sit through another ball game.

The Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth at the piers in the East river also got the once over from the young ladies. Donna Hiserodt of Des Moines and Beverly McNabney of Des Moines went sight-seeing at the Communists' strike on lower Fifth avenue and were herded along by dozens of city police who were on hand to keep the demonstration in order.

Most of the young ladies last night saw "Brigadoon," new musical show, and the Chesterfield Supper club. One group spent the evening seeing Jo Stafford, dining at the Diamond Horseshoe and then going to the club.

Col. W.W. Jenna, head of military science and tactics at SUI, entered the invitational tennis tournament at the Old field of the Long Island Country club and won a cup for being runner-up. He won three matches in straight sets.

The rest of the group on the tour didn't know Jenna was entering the tournament and still wouldn't have known if he hadn't dropped his cup in the hotel lobby.

Her attorney said she wanted no alimony.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Martha Stewart testified tearfully yesterday that Comic Joe E. Lewis devoted more time to gin rummy than to his marriage. Winning an uncontested divorce in superior court, the 24-year-old Miss Stewart said her 45-year-old husband "spent all his time on card games and race track gambling." Her attorney said she wanted no alimony.

Herbert Hoover and his two sons, Allan and Herbert Jr., were among 91 who have been elected to membership in the State Historical Society of Iowa. The announcement was made yesterday by William J. Peterson, superintendent of the society.

The former president of the United States listed his address as New York City, although he was born at West Branch, Iowa. His sons live in Pasadena, Calif. Two Iowa Citizens also were elected to membership. They are J.R. Skretting and Gerta M. Barrett.

Architect Sees 'Nobility' in Old Capitol

By STAFF WRITER

"These fraternity houses are all fakes—beautiful to look at, but there is no reality in them," Barry Byrne, architectural student of Frank Lloyd Wright, said yesterday while standing in the midst of fraternity row. Byrne, who is in Iowa City conferring with the Rev. Leonard Brugman about the proposed Catholic student chapel, said the fraternity houses are "like the movie props in Hollywood." He agreed with Wright that "The people of Iowa City can be proud of their Old Capitol building—with an emphasis on the 'old.'" Wright made that statement while giving a summer lecture here. The purpose of a building—what it will be used for—should determine its structural principle and to adapt the design of a Greek temple to a capitol building is to defeat its purpose, Byrne said. Byrne said Old Capitol was modeled after a Greek temple. "It has nobility, but like the fraternity houses, it lacks reality." The structure is a product of the old architectural school, he said. During this period everyone was borrowing ideas from the early Greeks and Romans, he explained with wide gestures. "There has been a revolution in architecture since World War I," Byrne said. The new school, heralded by Wright, drew its principles from medieval art. For many years an advocate of modern design, Byrne admitted he knew the change was bound to

British May Halt Military Demobilizing

LONDON (AP) — The British government may halt the demobilization of its armed forces "in a few days" if the Berlin crisis is not settled, Foreign Secretary Bevin said yesterday. At the same time the foreign secretary told the house of commons in a carefully worded statement that he had hoped the crisis will be settled, and that steps are now being taken in Moscow to determine whether there is a possibility of negotiations that would end the entire cold war in Europe between east and west. His announcement that the government is considering stopping demobilization came after Winston Churchill, the Conservative leader, warned that the dispute with Russia "is very serious and might easily become one of life and death."

Speaking a few hours after American and British envoys had arrived in Moscow to explore the possibilities of negotiation — with the lifting of the Berlin blockade as a preliminary condition—Bevin said he hoped the new diplomatic steps "will lead to peace and security in Europe for all."

He thus confirmed what a responsible British official Wednesday first reported — that the three western powers have agreed on the conditions not only for negotiations on Berlin and even Germany, but for all Europe as well. Britain had 940,000 men under arms on March 3. The schedule called for these to be reduced to 716,000 by March 31, 1949. Presumably she has about 860,000 armed men this month.

Blast Cripps' Plan For Joint Council

LONDON (AP) — Angry members of the house of commons blasted Sir Stafford Cripps again yesterday for his plan to call in Americans to advise British industry on production. Laborite Thomas Braddock called Cripps' plan for a joint British-American council on production an attempt to impose "a seeming American dictatorship." Laborite Ian Mikardo said the plan was "misguided and maladroited." Conservative Oliver Lyttelton said it would damage British export trade.

Before the debate began, the Federation of British Industries said it would join the council. The British trades union congress said Wednesday it would do so. Cripps, usually calm, answered his critics heatedly.

"It is not the intention of this committee to carry out a broad investigation of British industry," Cripps replied. "What it can do is discuss whether there are ways and what those ways are—by exchange of technical literature or technicians—by which particular industries in this country can derive benefit."

Something Rotten in Newark

NEWARK, N. J. (AP) — Motorists on a highway close to this city were subjected yesterday to something a little worse than the summer heat when a truck overturned and tossed two tons of rotten eggs onto the road. Police reported that the truck, driven by Leroy Cobbs of Brooklyn, apparently swerved to avoid an oncoming vehicle on Route 25 and toppled on top of another car. The eggs were destined for a tannery.

Berlin Rupture Grows As SED Quits Council

BERLIN (AP) — Representatives of the Russian-sponsored Socialist Unity party (SED) walked out of the Berlin city council yesterday, spreading the rupture of local government in this Soviet-blockaded city which already has two police chiefs.

The SED councilmen thus adopted the tactics of the Russians who previously quit two four-power governmental bodies—the allied control council and the Kommandatura. The mass walkout took place when the SED failed to delay a vote on a resolution branding the five-week-old Soviet blockade of Berlin "a crime against humanity." The resolution, introduced by the Socialists, was approved 85 to 1.

Immediately there was speculation whether the walkout signaled the final splitting of the city into two rival political regimes. Such a break long has been predicted. However, Karl Luedke, an SED spokesman, said his party would continue to take part in the present predominantly anti-Communist city government. Party leaders met for a special meeting.

Luedke said the SED had no warning the Socialist resolution was in the wind. The resolution said the blockade of Berlin "is condemned by all people regardless of their political views."

The city council met in an atmosphere of tension. The day began with charges in the Communist press that the anti-Communist majority in the city government planned to pack the council chamber with plainclothesmen from the western sectors in order to touch off a "bloody provocation." No incidents materialized, however.

The Russians often have accused the city government of being a "tool of the west." There has been talk in German political quarters that the SED eventually might force events to a point where separate eastern and western Berlin city governments would have to be set up. Many American British and German officials expressed the opinion that the SED walkout was not final. Some observers said the Communists in western Europe hold fast to government positions until they are thrown out, presumably on the theory that they can work better from within.

Iowa Citizens Facing Rising Smoke Spiral

The price of packs of several popular brands of cigarettes was up a penny yesterday by some Iowa City stores. The new price is 21 cents a pack, two for 41 cents. Cigarettes affected are those on which manufacturers this week announced wholesale price increases of about 40 cents a thousand.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A four-engine Argentine flying boat crashed into the fog-bound River Platte yesterday and 18 persons were killed and four injured. Only one of the 23 passengers and crewmen escaped injury.

Questions Right

Stennis questioned whether congress has the right, under the constitution, to pass a law outlawing the poll tax requirement for voting in federal elections. He declared further: "This bill was not brought here in a serious vein until high political integrity had been replaced by low political expediency." The senate does not get noisy at one point. Senator Hill (D-Ala.) demanded the floor so vigorously that some of the senators sat up sharply and craned their necks. "I just wanted to put something in the record," Hill explained much more quietly. "I thought the place was on fire," said Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), presiding.

Eccles Tells Congress of Possible Bust

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Truman asked yesterday for power to cut prices of daily-bread items back toward the levels of 1947, when butter sold for 75 cents a pound and you could buy a pound chuck roast for 10 to 13 cents less than now.

But the President's request was drowned out by a cry of "police state methods!" by congress Republicans and a flood of southern oratory against an anti-poll tax bill in the senate. This was temporarily shut off at 3:14 p.m., Iowa time, but will resume again at 10 a.m. this morning. The chances of congress okaying the price rollback were practically nil.

Sees Bust Marriner Eccles, a member of the federal reserve board, told congress that this country is "certainly going to have a bust." Eccles was demoted from chairmanship of the board by Mr. Truman earlier this year.

Testifying before the senate banking committee, Eccles said it is "too late" to control inflation. "Are you sure of that?" chairman Tobey (R-NH) asked. "Positively," Eccles said. He added that he likes the word "deflation" better than "bust." And he said the deflation process can be eased—but not by "pleasant" methods.

Porter Takes Bill Mr. Truman sent his anti-inflation bill to Capitol Hill by Paul Porter, last administrator of the wartime OPA and now a special assistant to the President.

It proposed price ceilings on meat, dairy products and clothing as part of a program to bring prices down "so far as practicable" to what they were in Nov., 1947. The bureau of labor statistics said prices crept up, on the average around four cents on the dollar between Nov., 1947 and the middle of last month. The big increase came before that—almost 24 cents in the dollar between June, 1946, when price ceilings went off, and Nov., 1947.

Not Interested But Congress leaders made plain that they didn't regard Mr. Truman's plan as the way to beat the high cost of living.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) declared the president is resorting to "police state methods." Taft, chairman of the GOP senate policy committee, had ruled out price control and rationing in a broadcast Wednesday night. He said the Republicans would try to find some way of their own to stop price rises.

Chairman Wolcott (R-Mich) of the house banking committee said no, too.

"Enough Authority" "The President and the federal reserve system have enough authority already to control the economy, to the extent of plunging the country into another depression, if they wanted to use those powers," Wolcott snapped. A number of Democrats applauded the President's program but scores, including Rep. Monroney (D-Okla.) said it does not have "a ghost of a chance."

Senator Stennis (D-Miss) led off what may become days or weeks of delaying tactics by Dixie senators rebelling against this and other aspects of President Truman's civil rights program—the program that has split the Democratic party.

Questions Right Stennis questioned whether congress has the right, under the constitution, to pass a law outlawing the poll tax requirement for voting in federal elections. He declared further: "This bill was not brought here in a serious vein until high political integrity had been replaced by low political expediency."

The senate does not get noisy at one point. Senator Hill (D-Ala.) demanded the floor so vigorously that some of the senators sat up sharply and craned their necks. "I just wanted to put something in the record," Hill explained much more quietly. "I thought the place was on fire," said Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), presiding.

Olympic Games To Begin In London Today

Yanks, Czechs Favored in Track Events

OLYMPIC STADIUM, WEMBLEY, ENGLAND (AP)—The United States and Czechoslovakia are expected to share the honors today when the track and field competition of the Olympics opens full blast.

Two champions are destined to be crowned before dinner and from all advance data and training camp reports the U. S. should capture the high jump gold medal and the Czechs should romp off with first prize in the 10,000 meter final.

The first event this morning is the high jump preliminaries, followed in the afternoon by two rounds of the 100 meters and 400 meter hurdles, as well as the opening heats of the 800 meters and the 10,000 meter final. The high jump final will be contested in the afternoon.

George Stanich of UCLA is deemed hottest in the high jump. He cleared 6 feet, 9 inches a few days ago and then tapered off training. This is an inch and 1/16th better than Cornelius Johnson's Olympic record set in 1936 at Berlin.

The 10,000 meter race is considered the property of the famous Czech army lieutenant, Emil Zatopek, who has run within two seconds of the world mark of 29:35.5. The Olympic standard is 30:11.4.

The Americans—Ed O'Toole of Brooklyn; Fred Will, the Indiana FBI man, and Herman Goffberg, Lakewood, N. J., do not have much of a chance in this one, run as a final.

The high jump should be an American sweep with Vern McGrew of Houston, Tex., and Dike Eddleman of the University of Illinois right behind Stanich. Other nations are not believed to have any important challengers.

The 800 meters, which is shaping up as one of the most thrilling events of the carnival, will see Mel Whitfield of Ohio State start his attempt for an unprecedented 800 and 400 double.

Herb Barten of the University of Michigan has been fortunate in the draw. Doug Harris of New Zealand is the only apparent strong entry in his 800 heat.

The first round of the 100 meter dash should see the three Americans—Mel Patton of California, Barney Ewell of Lancaster, Pa., and Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace—come through handily.

The first two in each of the 12 heats qualify for the second round. Roy Cochran, the University of Southern California graduate assistant who hopes to have his Ph. D. shortly, is considered the standout in the 400 meter hurdles.

IC Cards To Play Davenport Tonight

The Iowa City Cardinals will step out of the National Softball League tonight when they play the Davenport VFW club at 8:00 p.m. at Kelley field.

Hap Leach, Cardinal hurler last season, will pitch against his former teammates in the single game. Other Davenport players are Bob Schulz, SUI basketball and baseball player, and Pee Wee Day, Northwestern athlete.

The Cards are now in sixth place in the Eastern division of the National softball league with an 11 won, 14 lost record. They will attempt to better their standing over the weekend when they play the league leaders, Racine, there tomorrow night, and Peoria away on Sunday.

6,000 Parade Past Monarch; Cromwell Denies Dissension

By GAYLE TALBOT
OLYMPIC STADIUM, WEMBLEY, ENGLAND (AP)—King George VI of England opened the Olympic games yesterday in a majestic and inspiring spectacle at this stadium where for the next fortnight the athletic youth of the world will compete for glory.

For 50 minutes the slender monarch stood at almost constant salute while 6,000 representatives of 58 nations streamed past the royal box in the colorful Olympic parade and 75,000 spectators sweltered in a burning sun.

Then as the vast stadium became hushed, the King, his Queen standing beside him, uttered the traditional words: "I proclaim open the Olympic games of London celebrating the 14th Olympiad of the modern era."

Seven thousand pigeons were released to whirl aloft, cannon outside the arena thundered a 21-gun salute, and through the east portal raced a tall blond athlete carrying the Olympic flame which had been kindled 12 days before in the village of Olympia in Greece.

The last of the hundreds of runners who had borne it 3,000 miles across Europe circled the red track once, then mounted a platform at the stadium's east end and dipped it into the Olympic peristyle. The crowd loosed a mighty cheer as a yellow flame leaped up, to burn steadily through the 16 days of the games.

A choir of 12,000 voices sang Handel's beautiful "Hallelujah" chorus, accompanied by a massed band of guardsmen. The athletes who had stood in ranks on the green infield through the ceremony paraded back out of the stadium to scatter to their distant quarters and await the start of competition today.

If the weather remains as it was yesterday—89 degrees at mid-afternoon—it will be one of the hottest Olympics ever.

Spectators collapsed and were carried out of the stadium at a rate of one a minute during the ceremonies, and toward the end three boy scouts who had carried the banners of the nations pitched forward on their faces and received treatment in the infield.

Most of the athletes who will participate in the games stood and marched long hours despite the sun but the 100-yard dash men who will try to qualify in today's opening heats of that event were excused. The only sport scheduled to begin last night was water polo in the Wembley pool.

Shortly before the opening ceremonies began, Coach Dean Cromwell of the American track and field forces loosed a statement as scorching as the weather. He denied bitingly a published report—now carried by The Associated Press—that there was dissension among the American sprinters because he had spent more time training Mel Patton, one of his own University of Southern California stars, than he had on Barney Ewell and Harrison Dillard.

He called the report "utterly ridiculous," and said his critics had "gone a long way to dig up dirt." He added that no "coach on earth could have been more careful than we have to get away from discrimination."

No visiting team in the opening parade received a greater hand than the big American delegation which, because of its alphabetical rating, was near the end of the marching order. Long before the Americans reached the saluting point before the King, the crowd was standing and cheering them on.

While the standard bearers of many nations dipped their flags in salute to the British monarch, the American bearer did not. It just isn't done with the U.S. flag.

Today, there will be the first round in the 800-meter run, and the high jump will be decided. The women will settle their championship in the discus throw, and the 400-meter hurdles will be reduced to the field of finalists. It promises to be a busy opening day.

In adjacent Wembley pool, the swimmers and divers also will begin their battling. The men will open competition in springboard diving and in the 100 meters. Finals in the 100 are scheduled tomorrow. The women will begin qualifying in the 200-meter breast stroke and in the 100 meter free-style. The swimmers, using an indoor pool, will have an evening session.

Elsewhere, scattered around London, the basketball players, fencing stars and wrestlers are set to begin their endeavors today.

Until the American basketballers marched past in the big parade, British skeptics had been inclined to doubt the stories about their height. One look at seven-foot Bob Kurland yesterday convinced 'em.

THAT HOGAN KNOW-HOW — Ben Hogan demonstrates a chip shot to Jimmy Thompson during yesterday's first round of the Western Open. Hogan wound up the round one stroke off the pace with a 67.

Clayton Heafner Grabs Lead After 1st Round in Western

BUFFALO, N.Y. (P) — Clayton Heafner, husky professional from Charlotte, N.C., set the pace yesterday in the opening round of the 45th Western Open golf championship.

Heafner fashioned a scintillating 34-32-66, six under par, over Brookfield Country club's well-trapped and heavily treed terrain to take a one-stroke edge over Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., in the first 18-hole stretch of the 72-hole four-day medal play test.

Six birdies adorned the big southerner's card and he played the other 12 holes in par as he wheeled away in front, in quest of the $2,500 first prize in the $15,000 event.

Hogan, the year's leading money winner, and holder of the National Open and PGA crowns, also had six birdies but lost the chance to deadlock for the lead by three-putting the 225-yard par three 18th hole.

George Smith, forty-two-year-old Buffalo pro, was all alone in the third spot with a 33-35-68 over the par 72 course, which meanders 6,663 yards over rugged ground.

Cary Middlecoff, the touring dentist from Memphis, also had a 68 wrapped up according to the official scorer, but he called a penalty stroke on himself on the 17th hole, where he said his ball budged as he moved a cigaret paper from near it. He wound up with 35-34-69.

That moved him into a tie with six others in the three under par spot. Paired with him there were

Phillies Drub Cubs, 7-4; Caballero Stars

PHILADELPHIA (P) — Little Ralph Caballero paced an 11-hit attack with three safeties that drove in three runs yesterday as the Philadelphia Phillies took the rubber game of the three-game series from the Chicago Cubs, 7-4.

The Cubs made 15 hits and drove Schoolboy Rowe from the mound in the eighth but they were unable to bunch their safeties, leaving 10 men stranded on the bases. Walt Dubiel relieved Rowe.

Andy Seminick hit his third home run in as many days for the Phils.

Bill Voiselle Stops Bucs, 2-1

BOSTON (P) — Big Bill Voiselle managed to weather several dangerous situations yesterday and pitched the National league's front running Braves to a 2-1 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates, his first over the Bucs in the last two seasons.

Not only did the deliberate Voiselle twirl his 11th victory of the season but he got one of his rare hits and drove in what proved to be the winning run in the second inning.

Voiselle's hit, a bouncing single through an infielder, was his fifth of the year and raised his batting average to .097.

It brought many laughing cheers from a ladies' and boys' day crowd of 23,129, of whom 12,813 paid.

The Tribe got a quick run in the opening inning, which Tommy Holmes started by arching a double off the base of the left center field wall.

Tommy hustled to third after Al Dark fled out to right and scored after Earl Torgeson fled out to center.

The Tribe could fashion only one run on four hits and a base on balls in the second inning when the starting, and losing, Mel Queen was derricked in favor of Kirby Higbe.

The Pirates' lone tally came in the third, which Eddie Bockman began by lining a double down the left field foul line. Dixie Walker beat out an infield hit which moved Bockman to third and Ralph Kiner laced a single into left center field which scored Bockman.

City high scored 13 runs on ten hits last night to defeat the Iowa City All-Stars, 13-8.

The All-Stars, comprised mostly of City High alumni and Moose baseball players kept on the Little Hawk's heels until the sixth inning when City high pushed three runs across the plate on no hits.

The All-Stars led only once during the game—the first inning. Chuck Snook, who led all batters with four hits in five trips to the plate, doubled Bob Krall across for a one run advantage.

The Little Hawks tagged starting twirler Chris Christie for five hits in the first two frames, crossing the plate with six runs. This outburst drove Christie from the mound in favor of Krall.

The Little Hawks put on the clincher in the last of the sixth when Krall issued three straight walks. The runners scored on an overthrow at the plate and a passed ball.

Whitey Diehl went the route for the Hawks, allowing eight hits and ten walks.

NEW YORK (P) — New York's supposedly inept hurlers, acting up like a bunch of Carl Hubbell, hung their third straight shutout on Cincinnati yesterday as lefty Dave Koslo blanked the Reds, 5-0.

Big Walker Cooper supplied the punch that enabled Koslo to rack up his sixth victory against five defeats. The catcher poled a homer with the bases loaded to climax a five-run first inning.

Helpful Hints to Book Banners

Even though we are slightly irritated at censorship in general, we can appreciate the difficult time that the police chief and people of Sioux City are having with their book burning.

The biggest trouble is that there are just so many books. Even with the aid of the Committee of 16 to cull the world's literature, people are likely to read some of the "dangerous" books before the committee can order them removed.

We'd like to help out just a little. We don't presume to know all the morally subversive books on the shelves of libraries and book sellers. We would, however, like to offer a short list of some that strike us as immediately dangerous.

We can start with the Bible. The Song of Songs, for instance, is definitely suggestive. And think of all the words, phrases and sections that deal with physical attractions. Of course, we couldn't exactly suppress the Bible, but maybe we can censor out all the nasty parts.

The old Greek plays, like those by Sophocles and Aristophanes, are classics with a 3000 year history, but they're definitely "dirty". Their themes include lust, murder, incest, rape—nothing that good Americans should know about.

Voltaire's Candide has some interesting "purple" passages—and Boecace's Decameron has a long tradition of titillation. Cervante's Don Quixote has a brush with prostitutes—and some of Lord Byron's poems are collectors' items. Better take Shakespeare out of high school courses, too—a lot of his lines are quite lurid.

Of course, all of these mentioned are foreigners anyway. We can dispense with them very easily.

We can clean out some of our own American writers, too. Hemingway, Dos Passos, Wolfe, Steinbeck, all have at least one sexy episode in every book they've written. Sex, naturally, is not part of the American way of life so we must keep knowledge of it from our children—and our adults.

Let's not forget Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn. Huck actually describes a pornographic show, to say nothing of some assorted bloody murders.

Better ban the Readers Digest, too. It frequently runs articles on unmentionable "social" diseases.

Also, we mustn't forget to remove all books on medicine, psychology or physiology, especially those written by Freud and his followers.

On the political and economic side, the task is infinitely more difficult. If the people of Council Bluffs are interested, we will submit a later list on those subjects for their consideration. In the meantime, we suggest that all schools eliminate Lincoln's Gettysburg Address. The President actually spoke of racial equality, and we are quite sure that the D.A.R. would never approve of that.

In fact, we think just about the safest thing to do is to put aside all the books by Horatio Alger Jr., and by Louisa May Alcott, and the poems of Edgar Guest. Then burn everything else—except the current crop of comic books. That way we can be sure that our children will never be contaminated by anything approaching reality.

Going Up in Smoke

The selling price of cigarettes has been up a cent for only a day now, but the complaints are in the air already.

The whole thing seems to be an object lesson in inflation—one a veteran can appreciate especially. All over the world American cigarettes represent one of the soundest media of exchange in a battered global economy.

Chinese, German, Italian or Latin American citizens know what it is to have a pack of American cigarettes be worth so many coins one day and a few more the next.

It's not a comforting thought when you realize that the value of American cigarettes is the same, but another cent out of the American dollar has gone up in smoke.

Postwar Austria Controls Key To Danube River Controversy

(Austrian-born Berthold Gaster, who wrote the following article and another soon to follow, left Austria eleven months after Hitler's Anschluss. Coming to this country, Gaster received a bachelor degree from the City College of New York and worked last year as a reporter for the Meriden, Conn., Record.

His backgrounding of the dilemma on the Danube is especially timely today. For today a ten-nation conference on unrestricted navigation on the Danube is meeting in Belgrade.

This is the first formal meeting of Russian and Allied diplomats since the cold war pressures have seethed near the boiling point some months ago.

The conference to unclench Russ-imposed restrictions on Danube navigation may herald a new attempt of resolving east-west differences in Europe by diplomacy instead of force.

By BERTHOLD GASTER

Just as east and west battle today for supremacy in the vital areas of north-central Germany, a similar contest for power is taking place in south-central Europe, specifically Austria.

Throughout European history Austria's important geographic position as the gateway to the Balkans and the near east has made her the battle ground for strong outside forces, ever jockeying for better positions in the fight to control the Danube, and the political power that goes with such conquests. That fight rages today as furiously as ever. Its outcome may well be the key to peace on the continent, and therefore, peace in the world.

Out of the first World War there emerged a small nation of six and one half million people called Austria. It was a far cry from the tremendous Austro-Hungarian Empire of over fifty millions. But this little country, revolving around Vienna, a city of two millions, became the cradle of true social democracy.

Its achievements, stopped only by the guns of native fascism four years before the Nazi annexation, rank high on the list of genuine popular programs anywhere in the world.

The domestic program of social legislation created internal stability and, on the basis of European standards, a high standard of living. The failure of the Danubian governments to make sufficient reciprocal trade agreements indirectly led to the little country's downfall, since economic necessity forced it into the German barter trade orbit in 1936, and the eventual "Anschluss" in March, 1938.

The establishment of a corporate fascist state in 1934, and the resulting abolition of democratic rights in favor of one party rule by the Christian Socialists, brought about the surrender of a divided majority to the Nazi minority in 1938.

The fact that the Christian Socialists, usually just a conservative agrarian party, had been taken over by Fascist elements only served to nail down Austria's coffin with a decided bang, for persecuted masses there is no incentive to fight for survival, because what you protect is not worth saving. Therein lies the real reason for the surrender to Nazi tyranny.

Now that the war is over and Austria has been found to be on the losing side, many so-called "good" Austrians want to jump on the Allied bandwagon. If not for their good, but for the sake of world peace, we must solve the Austrian dilemma.

Today Vienna is half in ruins. The rest of the country's four occupation zones don't let each other know what each is doing. Tension between the Russians on one side, and the western Allies on the other, has brought this about.

Production, both industrial and agricultural, is at a low point. Labor is scarce, partly due to the fact that thousands of prisoners-of-war have not been returned from Russia. Most raw materials are taken out of the country, ostensibly as reparations.

As a result economic recovery is constantly retarded. The peasants hold their output down to a minimum since they cannot realize the market prices for their products that a normal economy could easily give them.

The entire question can actually be boiled down to two words—reparations and fear. I shall discuss the question of fear—Russian fear—later.

Reparations are the sore spot of all east-west negotiations. The discussions inevitably come around to the definition of German assets. Needless to say, the Russians have one definition, the western Allies have another.

According to the Russians, any Austrian property which was German at the time of the armistice is to be considered German property, and therefore subject to use as reparation payments.

According to the Allies, however, a distinction must be made between those assets that were owned by the Germans prior to the "Anschluss" of 1938, and that property which was bought up at bargain prices or confiscated from Vienna's Jewish population of 200,000 (now reduced by extermination and emigration to 4,000) and other anti-Nazis after the "Anschluss".

The latter definition would give back to the Austrians what they had been forcibly deprived of, and would still give to the victors the honest prizes of war, such as the war industries and oil refineries built up by the Germans.

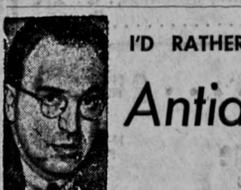

The point is that enough would be left to send Austria off to a recovery program which would take it off the ERP hook after a certain period of time.

Let me emphasize that the Allied definition would lead to an objective, though not necessarily a just solution; for were we to punish the Austrian people for their conduct under the Nazi regime, which, by the way, was anything but befitting decent human beings, then we would surely have to destroy every former Nazi in Austria, and during the time of Hitler's peak, that meant the majority of the people. But since the motive of the victorious powers in Austria is to build up rather than destroy, that is the course to be followed.

Let me emphasize that the Allied definition would lead to an objective, though not necessarily a just solution; for were we to punish the Austrian people for their conduct under the Nazi regime, which, by the way, was anything but befitting decent human beings, then we would surely have to destroy every former Nazi in Austria, and during the time of Hitler's peak, that meant the majority of the people. I'D RATHER BE RIGHT

Antidote for Set Faces

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

I find myself a little amused at the absolute horror displayed by some of the more bitter critics of the Wallace party over the fact that that party never blames Russia for having done anything to injure the peace, and yet blames the United States, always and constantly, in bulk and in detail.

For these same critics, if they are truly faithful to our bipartisan foreign policy, do much the same thing in reverse; they always blame Russia, never blame the United States; they find that every Russian move has been sheer provocation, every American move a merely necessary counterthrust, forced upon us.

Their stand may be more acceptable, on the nationalist level, but it would be hard to show that it is any more acceptable, or even very different from the other, on the philosophic level.

I suppose that this opposition of two rather extreme stands is the best we can hope for. But it is a little sad.

A real peace party, a party that didn't hate anybody, might, I think, be willing to concede that the Russians have quite unnecessarily painted themselves into a corner by their morbid theorizing about the nature of capitalism, and that we have on occasion been

Friends Offer Help To Victims' Mother

COUNCIL BLUFFS (P)—Things were looking brighter to Mrs. Paul Sanders yesterday though the fear another of her seven children might be afflicted with polio still loomed.

Four of the Sanders children already are hospitalized with polio and a fifth, three-month-old Marvin Paul, has been running a fever, though it went down yesterday morning.

Neighbors and various organizations have offered help to the young mother. She said her phone has been kept busy this morning with offers of help.

Southwest Iowa's total of polio cases for this year rose to 88 this afternoon with the admission of Margaret McCord, 9, of Dunlap to Mercy hospital.

Her admission brought to 32 the number of patients in the hospital. Margaret is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McCord.

McBride's Hall 'Hell's Bats' in Grand Island

Word comes that a bat has attended the last two experimental plays given in McBride auditorium. The flying mammal is supposed to have started swishing around as soon as the lights went out, making frequent passes through the spot lights and creating some element of uneasiness among feminine playgoers.

That just shows how far a bat will go if you don't watch it. I had occasion to become familiar with a similar situation in Grand Island, Nebraska, about seven years ago while chatting with a theater owner in that city.

According to the owner of the Rialto there (his name was Webster) his bat troubles started one fall evening when one of the creatures made the marquee his home. He would hang head down from the marquee all day and look at the illustrations in front of the theater just shaking his head in a negative manner.

One day Webster had a reshewing of "Hell's Angels" and the bat, called Vincent by his friends, disappeared. His absence was first noted during the matinee, and no one but the popcorn girl thought much of it. She remarked prophetically, "No good will come of this." She was right, no good came of it.

Webster was never sure whether it was the advertised flying scenes or the pictures of Jean Harlow that had tempted the bat to see his first movie, but whatever it was, aeronautics or pulchritude the bat was in. Apparently he sat through both matinees without an utterance, but when evening came it was a different story entirely.

When the first dogfight scene appeared on the screen, Vincent swooped down from the balcony and screamed, "let 'em have it Gus!" He was so carried away with the story that he forgot that it was just a movie and began giving instructions to the Allied pilots.

For 15 minutes the bat flew formation with the Spad images and then things really got hot. The German ace and his flying circus loomed up on the horizon outnumbering the Spads and Vincent four to one.

Action was terrific for awhile. Vincent did Immelmans, chandeliers and at least six outside loops.

After disturbing the audience completely the awful event happened. Vincent lost his bearings and flew smack into the hot projection lamp, igniting his highly inflammable fuel tank.

He fought furiously for control and went through all sorts of gyrations trying to whip out the flames. In a few seconds Vincent's control surfaces were gone, and he knew he was licked. He shouted bravely to the still fighting aircraft on the screen, "Carry on boys! The dirty stinkers got me, but this war ain't over yet—get one for me Gus."

With that he pulled nose up, stalled out and spun in, making as true a "flamer" as Howard Hughes ever filmed. ("Flamer" is a war term and has nothing to do with Jane Russell.)

Market Basket Meat Prices 'Steady'

By DAVE NICOLETTE
Iowa City butchers are holding the retail price of meat down "so we can sell a little more of it," it was learned yesterday in The Daily Iowan market basket survey.

Butchers report that wholesale prices continue high. But retail prices have not been raised, meat dealers said, because across-the-counter prices are about as high as the consumer will stand for.

"On some meats we're lucky to break even," one butcher said, "but in order to make sales we have to hold prices steady."

Meat retailers in other parts of the country are taking even more drastic steps to keep sales up. The Associated Press yesterday reported a slashing of beef prices in some areas. The report also indicated a slight drop in the pork wholesale market. However, Iowa City butchers said pork prices remained generally steady with just an indication of a drop.

Two meat items in the market basket reflected a price change in yesterday's survey. Ground beef was down 1 cent, and first grade bacon picked up 1 cent a pound. There were three other price changes—five in all—but they cancelled one another to leave the index at $17.57, the same as last week.

Other items that showed an average price change yesterday were eggs, up 2 cents a dozen; Spicy, down 2 cents for a one pound can; Baker's unsweetened chocolate, down 1 cent on a one-half pound package.

Potatoes remained at 59 cents for number one whites, but home grown potatoes are now appearing on the market. The stores that have home grown potatoes are selling them for an average of 49 cents for 10 pounds.

The Daily Iowan market basket index is based on prices of 24 food items in seven representative Iowa City grocery stores.

Prices listed are averages from all stores surveyed. Yesterday's index of $17.57 is an estimate of the sum a student family of three persons will spend for groceries this week.

The cost of each food item is weighed in accordance with the amount that commodity a student family of three uses in a week.

Item	This Week	Last Week
1 lb. Iowa Brand butter	51	51
1 doz. grade A eggs	49	49
1 lb. Hills Bros. coffee	54	54
1 doz. med. size oranges	49	49
10 lb. potatoes	59	59
2 1/2 can Tenderloin Peas (med.)	30	30
2 1/2 can Van Camp pork & beans	30	30
2 1/2 can Del Monte sliced peaches	33	33
1 can Campbell tomato soup	11	11
1 lb. Spicy sockeye salmon	46	46
1 lb. can red velvet cheese	69	69
Large size Ivory Flakes	34	34
1 lb. 1st grade sausage	69	69
10 lb. Gold Medal flour	92	92
1-1 lb. 4 oz. box Quaker Oats	18	18
1 lb. pkg. Baker's chocolate (unsw.)	44	44
2 lb. Kraft Velveeta cheese	1.18	1.18
1 lb. Armour lard	30	30
1 lb. ground beef	69	69
1 lb. "Choice" round steak	95	95
1 lb. center cut pork chops	75	75
1 lb. 1st grade bacon	79	79
1 20 oz. loaf white bread	17	17
1 qt. grade A milk	18	18

The Daily Iowan market basket INDEX is not an added total of the prices listed above. That is, the index figure takes into consideration both the costs of the items listed above and the amount of each item the family of three uses in one week. The amount of each item the family of three uses in one week was arrived at in a survey conducted in cooperation with the university bureau of economic and business research.

Army Equality Aimed To End Segregation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said yesterday "equality of treatment and opportunity" order for the armed services is aimed at the eventual end of race segregation in the army.

Negroes are now kept in separate units in the army. A reporter at Mr. Truman's weekly news conference said that Gen. Omar Bradley has been quoted as saying he favors segregation among the lower echelons.

Is that consistent with the President's "equality" order of last Monday? he was asked.

Mr. Truman responded that he was informed by Secretary of the Army Royal that Bradley, the army chief of staff, had made no such statement.

The President responded with a prompt and flat yes, when asked if his Monday order aims at an eventual end of segregation.

That order stated a presidential policy of equality of treatment and opportunity to be put into effect as soon as possible, "having due regard to the time required to effectuate any necessary changes without impairing efficiency or morale."

No Social Reforms
(Bradley said at Ft. Knox, Ky., Tuesday, that "the army is not out to make any social reforms. The army will put men of different races in different companies. It will change that policy when the nation as a whole changes it.")

Neither Bradley nor the army department had any comment on yesterday's statement by President Truman on segregation.

A reporter inquired of the President: "Do you think that the senate has acted in good faith in starting its work on the civil rights controversy?"

Mr. Truman replied first that he had no comment. Then he added that the senate stands before the country just the same as he does. The senators, he went on, will have to take the consequences of their actions.

Freeze Wages?
The questioning got around to Mr. Truman's anti-inflation proposals. Asked whether wages would be frozen under the plan, the President said not necessarily.

It was noted that he is now asking restrictions on credit, as contrasted with his position earlier. A reporter asked what impelled him to endorse the change.

The situation changed, Mr. Truman replied. He said credit was constantly rising.

Mr. Truman flatly refused to discuss foreign policy; he said he does not plan a message to congress on the Berlin situation.

During the discussion of congress, a reporter wanted to know whether Mr. Truman would try to get Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, to help him get action in the extra session.

That brought a round of laughter and a drawn-out no-o-o-o.

'Cop' Wears Skirts — Woman Aids in Pinches

— But Never Totes a Gun

"WHEN DO I RENEW MY DRIVER'S LICENSE?" Deputy Ella Kelly of the Johnson county Sheriff's office can answer this query by looking in the files pictured above. They contain a copy of every vehicle license issued in Johnson county.

By JACK DOOLEY

As long as there have been police forces there have been desk sergeants, but Sheriff Albert J. (Pat) Murphy's "desk sergeant" differs from the others in at least two respects:

1. The sergeant would not shoot a criminal.
2. The sergeant is a lady.

Miss Ella Kelly, 220 S. Linn street, has worked in the Johnson county sheriff's office since last October, 1945. Her official title is "office deputy."

Although the office end of her duties occupies most of her time, she is deputy and frequently has to act as one.

Miss Kelly explained that when a situation arises where it isn't considered proper for the sheriff or his deputy to serve a court notice, the duty is hers.

"If a notice is to be served on a woman in a hospital ward, I'm elected," she said.

She also said that arrests involving a woman prisoner call for a female deputy to accompany the sheriff. "Somebody else always goes though," she sighed, "I have to stay to answer the telephone."

Miss Kelly said she occasionally does accompany the sheriff on cases of this kind.

"Once," she said, "I went with Pat to look for a woman who had escaped from the mental ward at University hospitals. We drove several miles out in the country, stopping cars to ask if anyone had seen her."

"It turned out I was just along for the ride. The woman had stopped at a farmhouse—told the people there she had escaped, and they took care of her."

"When we got back, she was already in the jail."

If a call comes in when the sheriff and his deputy are not available, Miss Kelly doesn't have to strap on a 45 and settle the disturbance.

"I telephone the Iowa City police," she explained, "and they contact the highway patrol by radio. It's a good thing, too, because I wouldn't shoot anyone. I don't even know how to fire a gun."

Miss Kelly said she quite often serves court orders on people without leaving her office. She explained that people often know they are going to have a court order served, and don't wish to have the sheriff issue it in their place of business or their home.

"It's a funny thing," she mused,

Audio-Visual Study Attracts Observers To Local Workshop

Johnson county schools are ready for radio education, but it will be some time before schools in general are ready for television. This was the general opinion voiced at Wednesday afternoon's discussion in the audio-visual workshop being conducted this week by the college of education.

The workshop, begun last Monday, has attracted some 80 students, according to Dean Bruce E. Mahan of the extension division. This list includes teachers, audio-visual directors and deans of colleges all over the country. The workshop ends today.

Come For Workshop
Many students came to SUI just to attend the workshop. "That is the only reason I came to this campus, and the only regret I have is that we don't have a workshop like this in Idaho," Melvin Dunn of Pocatello, Idaho said.

Students have a chance to inspect and operate classroom projectors and recorders which are on display in the laboratory. Besides the regular equipment belonging to the school, manufacturers have sent equipment to be placed on display.

Outlines Program
During Wednesday's discussion on "The Future of Radio and Television in Education," John Highlander, program director at WSUI, outlined the proposed radio program for Johnson county schools this fall. This program calls for broadcasts directly to schools in the county.

Some students have traveled a great distance to attend the workshop. One of these is Leita Davy of Fargo, N. D., dean of the school of home economics at North Dakota Agricultural college. "It seems like old home week for me here. I received my master's from SUI and I came back to attend this workshop. It's a wonderful course," Miss Davy said.

Another student from home is Recene Ashton of Silver City, N. Mexico. Miss Ashton is a teacher in New Mexico State Teachers college.

Announce Cancellation Of Scout Camp Session

The third camp session for boy scouts scheduled for Aug. 1-7 at Camp Wo-Pe-Na was cancelled yesterday by scout officials.

Only 20 applications were received, they said, and plans required at least 25. The officials added that a full scout program could not be run with less than 30 scouts, but that the limit had been reduced for this special session.

Two Divorces Granted; Two Suits Filed

Two divorces were granted and petitions for two more were filed in Johnson county district court yesterday.

Granted divorces were P.C. Schooley, 220 1/2 S. Linn street, from Doris Ann Schooley, now in Maryland, and Vera Schmid, 715 Church street, from Edward L. Schmid, Waterloo.

The Schooleys were married in Waterloo, April, 1946, and lived together until last February, the plaintiff said. He charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

Mrs. Schmid was awarded custody of a 2-month-old daughter and $25 a month to support her. The defendant was granted "rights of reasonable visitation" to the child. The plaintiff was awarded household furniture.

The couple was married last July and lived together until last December, the plaintiff said. She charged habitual drunkenness.

Ya Can't Foil Me, Baby, Says Thief

CHICAGO (AP)—Police yesterday captured a burglar who told them he had burglarized 25 homes this month including one where he had to rock the baby back to sleep before looting the place.

He was David Peterson, 30, who was released nine months ago from the Illinois state penitentiary after serving six years for burglary.

Peterson was captured by several squads of police checking on complaints of burglaries. He first escaped on foot under gunfire but was later cornered in a vacant north side lot.

Police, who held him without charge, gave this account: He always operated between 1 a.m. and 6 a.m. He took only cash. Last week a baby started crying in one of the homes he entered. He then rocked it back to sleep and proceeded with looting the home.

Stassen Gets Pennsylvania School Post

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harold E. Stassen was chosen president of the University of Pennsylvania yesterday but promptly announced he will "continue a vigorous interest in public questions."

Disclosing nomination of the 41-year-old former Minnesota governor to the Pennsylvania post, the university's board of trustees said he was chosen "above all" for "his inspirational appeal to the youth of America."

Just one month ago at convention hall, some two blocks from where the trustees met yesterday, Stassen was defeated in his bid for the Republican nomination for presidency of the United States.

Stassen will take over as president at the beginning of the fall term in September subject, he said, "to the fulfillment of my speaking schedule on behalf of Governor Dewey (GOP presidential standard bearer)." His salary was not disclosed.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harold E. Stassen was chosen president of the University of Pennsylvania yesterday but promptly announced he will "continue a vigorous interest in public questions."

Disclosing nomination of the 41-year-old former Minnesota governor to the Pennsylvania post, the university's board of trustees said he was chosen "above all" for "his inspirational appeal to the youth of America."

Just one month ago at convention hall, some two blocks from where the trustees met yesterday, Stassen was defeated in his bid for the Republican nomination for presidency of the United States.

Stassen will take over as president at the beginning of the fall term in September subject, he said, "to the fulfillment of my speaking schedule on behalf of Governor Dewey (GOP presidential standard bearer)." His salary was not disclosed.
