'New Look' Invades Russia

LONDON (UP) Radio Moscow announced yesterday that the "new look" had finally reached Russia. The Moscow broadcast, reported by the Soviet monitor, said lowered hemlines dominated 1,500 dresses displayed by Russian designers at a mammoth fashion show.

Lewis, Taft Blast Truman

Mine Chieftain Says President is 'Unfit'

Sen. Robert A. Taft and John L. Lewis delivered bitter attacks on President Truman yesterday as the 1948 political race entered its final four weeks.

The Democrats counterpunched with charges by Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath against Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Meanwhile Dewey was told by his foreign policy adviser, John Foster Dulles, that the Russians are using the American campaign in their war of nerves against western Europe.

Taft charged in a speech prepared for a GOP rally in Washington that President Truman's election would set the nation on the road to "totalitarian government by a vast federal bureaucracy."

Setting out on a southern speaking tour for the Dewey-Warren ticket, the Ohio Republican defended the record of the 80th congress. Said a GOP administration would give the nation social welfare legislation without sacrificing individual liberty.

Lewis spoke before the 40th convention of his United Mine Workers (ind) in Cincinnati. In effect, he told them to vote against President Truman.

Lewis said the president is "totally unfit for the position" and is "a malignant, scheming sort of individual... dangerous not only to the United Mine Workers but dangerous to the United States of America."

In Washington, George M. Harrison, president of the AFL brotherhood of railway clerks, said he did not think Lewis' position was typical of labor's position in the campaign. He brought 26 union heads to the White House who pledged their support to Mr. Truman.

McGrath accused Dewey in a blistering statement of enrolling New York state employees in "the highest paid army of bureaucrats in history" to push the Dewey-Warren campaign.

Naming names, he admitted it was not illegal but said it violated the "spirit of good government." He said he will seek amendments to the Hatch act to bar such practices when the next congress convenes.

Truman Asks Report on UN

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Truman yesterday cancelled the rag-end of his eastern campaign swing and ordered Secretary of State George C. Marshall to fly home from Paris for an "important" conference on the United Nations meeting.

The White House said Marshall will arrive Saturday to report on the deliberations in Paris, where Russia has been hailed before the UN security council on charges of menacing world peace.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Marshall's recall had been prompted by "no particular crisis."

Mr. Truman, he said, "just wishes an oral report from him on whatever has been going on."

A state department spokesman said Marshall would be here for the weekend, and he indicated that the secretary would fly back to Paris early next week.

Another Good Reason for Campus Chest— JAMES BARRETT Lamoni examines the photograph of his brother and a note which he posted on the bulletin board at the Quadrangle yesterday. His brother, Wayne, died of polio in a Des Moines hospital shortly before they were to room together this year. In the note above the photograph, Barrett urged support for this year's Campus Chest drive.

'Chest' Has Slow Start

Barrett Note Helps Drive

A simple announcement was tacked on a bulletin board in the Quadrangle men's dormitory yesterday. It read:

My eighteen-year-old brother, who was to be my roommate, died of polio this summer. Naturally, I'm backing this year's Campus Chest for him.

Barrett, who is in charge of Campus Chest solicitations in his section of Quadrangle, earmarked his contribution for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. He urged others to follow suit.

"I don't want anyone to have the same experience I had," he said.

Barrett's brother, Wayne, died of polio in a Des Moines hospital Sept. 1, shortly after the two had started packing for the trip to Iowa City to start school. It was to have been Wayne's first year at SU.

"We had the room contracts all signed and were all set to go," Barrett related.

"They took Wayne to the hospital two days before he died. He was there only 11 hours.

"There was nothing the doctors could do. They had to let the disease run its course."

Donations tagged for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will be used in polio research and rehabilitation work, the Campus Chest committee reported at the beginning of the drive Monday.

Slow Start Ruby Scott, co-chairman of the Campus Chest drive, reported that the campaign got off to a slow start.

Donations turned in at the Campus Chest office in Iowa Union by 5 p.m. yesterday totaled $480.21. Goal for the drive is $10,000.

The $480.21 represents the amount collected by only 15 of nearly 200 solicitors working in university dormitories, sororities and fraternities, she said.

Miss Scott urged all solicitors to turn in their money at the Campus Chest office. "Then we can get a more complete picture of how the drive is going," she added.

Two 100% Two sororities, Alpha Xi Delta and Alpha Chi Omega, and two fraternities, Sigma Chi and Phi Epsilon Pi, had each made a 100 percent contribution by 5 p.m. yesterday.

Actual contribution totals for housing units will not be announced this year, Miss Scott said. This practice turned out to be "unfavorable" last year, she explained.

Tagged donations showed: American Cancer society, $37.50; World Student Service fund, $8; National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, $6; United Negro College fund, $6; Salvation Army, $4; and CARE, $2. This totaled $63.50. Untagged contributions amounted to $416.71.

Poll Goes to Dewey

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey led 2 to 1 in a poll taken recently in the American government classes to determine how students feel at this stage of the presidential campaign.

Of the 504 votes polled, Dewey received 307, President Truman 154, Henry A. Wallace 27, and others 16.

Another poll will be taken later to see if there is any shift of student opinion as the campaign progresses.

Japanese-American Sentenced to Death On Treason Count

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tomoya Kawakita, 28-year-old American-Born interpreter in a wartime Japanese prison camp, was sentenced to death yesterday for treason.

Federal Judge William C. Mathes sentenced Kawakita to die in the lethal gas chamber. The neatly-dressed defendant stood expressionless in the court room as he heard himself given the extreme penalty.

Mother Present The convicted man's mother, Mrs. Rose Kawakita, who was sitting in the courtroom, buried her face in a handkerchief after sentence was pronounced.

The judgment of death followed a day of argument in which Kawakita's counsel sought to have the verdict of guilty set aside on grounds that coercion and undue influence had been exerted upon the jury.

The black-robed federal judge, speaking before he pronounced sentence, said Kawakita's crime "is against the country of his birth and not against a few prisoners of war."

"Most Abhorred Crime" "Throughout history, treason always has been the most abhorred crime," said Judge Mathes. "A murderer violates a few, a traitor violates all. His life, if spared, would not be worth living."

The federal jurist referred to the fact that while Kawakita was serving as an interpreter in a Japanese prisoner of war camp, some 700 U.S. servicemen of Japanese parentage gave up their lives for America.

Kawakita's attorney immediately served notice of appeal.

No date for execution of sentence, in the state prison at San Quentin, was fixed by Judge Mathes.

Meat Prices Drop In Some Sections As Hogs Fall Off

CHICAGO (UP)—Meat prices began to decline at the neighborhood butcher shops in many sections of the nation yesterday.

Retail meat stores in the central and eastern portions of the United States have cut prices from five to 17 cents a pound during the past two weeks.

The Kroger company announced at Louisville, Ky., that it will lower meat prices as much as 14 cents a pound on some cuts today.

E. J. Stagnaro, meat merchandiser for the company which operates chain grocery stores, said prices would be slashed on 53 or more cuts of meat, including pork chops, sirloin steak, round steak and breakfast bacon.

Hog Prices Drop Other cities already have posted meat cuts and indications were that the reductions would be even greater following the two-week slump in hog prices at leading midwestern livestock markets.

Hogs were down an average of $2.25 at Iowa market yesterday and sold between $1 and $1.50 less at other cornbelt markets.

The new decline followed a drop of $1 to $2.25 Monday. Last week the market slumped steadily with hogs selling for as much as $4 less at the close of the week.

Price Drop Spotty The retail price drop was spotty, however. Another Chicago chain said it was planning no reduction in meat costs in the foreseeable future. A spokesman for the firm said the only reduction in meat prices during the past two weeks was a two-cent drop in the price of dressed chicken. At Milwaukee meat prices actually increased during the two-week period.

Local Meat Prices Register Declines

The downward trend of meat prices has begun to show at some Iowa City meat markets.

Drops in customer prices of from two to seven cents a pound since Sunday on both beef and pork cuts were reported by three out of five Iowa City butchers yesterday.

The others said price declines were very slight but that they expected some reduction later in the week.

Union Rally Is Broken Up

Police Act Because Crowd Unsegregated

(Special to The Daily Iowan) SAVANNAH, GA. — State and city police last night broke up a rally of the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers union here, because the audience was not segregated.

Police broke up the meeting shortly after J. T. Mooney, international representative of the union, told the audience that the mayor and other city officials would not let the rally begin unless the audience was segregated.

Mooney was forced from the microphone by police and the city auditorium was ordered cleared, reports said.

Ried Robinson, vice-president of the union who flew from Chicago to attend the rally, said arrangements would be made to try to hold the meeting tonight.

Negro vocalist Paul Robeson, who arrived with Robinson, was scheduled to sing at the rally.

Union officials said the rally had been called to stimulate interest in the work of the union. They said arrangements had been made in May.

The question of segregation arose Monday when city officials learned that the audience would not be segregated.

H. V. Summerlin, manager of the city officials had decided that the meeting could not be held.

Mooney had finished telling the audience about the decision when he was taken from the microphone.

Brannon Price, deputy director of the Georgia Progressive party, said in an interview after the incident that Savannah had no law prohibiting mixed gatherings.

Cuba Toll Is Eleven Dead, 300 Injured

MIAMI (AP) — Winds subsided along southeast Florida's "gold coast" early today as the tropical hurricane whirled northeastward in the Atlantic.

Early reports indicated the lush winter playground area escaped serious wind and water damage. No deaths were reported but six persons were injured.

The storm center was about 40 miles east of Palm Beach at 11:30 a.m. (Iowa time), bowling along at 18 to 20 miles per hour.

The hurricane sprouted at least three tornadoes before it swept out to sea near Pompano and gusts up to 80 miles an hour were reported as it roared past Miami and Fort Lauderdale. At least 15 houses were demolished by the tornadoes.

The storm left 11 known dead in Cuba, 300 injured and crop damage on the island estimated at $6-million.

Hurricane warnings were ordered down from Miami southward around to Fort Myers but remained displayed north of Miami to Jupiter. Storm warnings flew from Jupiter north to Titusville.

Florida apparently escaped serious wind damage.

The worst of the tornadoes wrecked 13 houses at Pompano, eight miles north of Fort Lauderdale.

Eighteen persons were found in wreckage of houses at Pompano. Two brothers, R. A. and Cecil Osteen, suffered cuts and bruises as their homes were demolished by the tornado.

In Fort Lauderdale, eight miles from Pompano, a tornado sliced the second story off a house. Opa-Locka, northwest of Miami, reported a tornado wrecked two houses on a dairy farm near there.

The flood threat grew to the South Carolina areas. A deluge brought by the hurricane reached 7.24 inches at the Miami airport in the six hours ending at 7 p.m.

Russia to Boycott UN Berlin Debate; Says Action Illegal

PARIS (AP)—Fiery Andrei Vishinsky announced yesterday Russia will boycott the Berlin debate in the United Nations security council.

He demanded the floor and disclosed his decision immediately after the council voted 9 to 2 to hear full details of the east-west dispute over Berlin.

Vishinsky, the Soviet deputy foreign minister, left up in the air the question of whether he would be present when the council resumes its meeting today.

Smiling broadly at newsmen who pressed for his plans, he said: "I made my position perfectly clear. That is, I am not going to take part in deliberations on this question."

"Do you mean you will not attend? There is a difference between attend and take part," one reporter queried.

"I see no difference," Vishinsky replied.

Vishinsky and Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, foreign minister for the Soviet Union, voted alone against the other members of the council in the decision to hear the Berlin debate. The United States, Britain, France, China, Syria, Argentina, Colombia, Belgium and Canada were in favor.

Then, in a short statement to the tense council, Vishinsky summed up his arguments that the council decision was illegal and the Berlin crisis should be handled by the four-power council of foreign ministers.

Firemen Seek to Cut Iowa City Fire Loss

More months like September and no more years like 1937 are the goals of the Iowa City fire department's periodic inspections every week, including Fire Prevention week.

Fire department records show that 1937 was the worst year for fire damage since 1929 with $353,000 worth of property destroyed. That was the year a hybrid seed corn plant and 55,000 bushels of seed corn were burned at the east edge of town.

No fire loss was reported in Iowa City in September making it the first fire-free month in four years.

Attempting to lower the average of twenty alarms each month, Iowa City firemen check all downtown alleys and garages for fire hazards at least once a week.

Local theaters are inspected 45 or 50 times each month. Their exits, which must be kept open and accessible, are the main inspection points.

Every store and building in the business district is examined four times annually. Outlying places get a checkover half as often.

Beer permit applicants also have to pass fire inspection under city ordinance requirements.

Besides making these regular inspections to prevent fires and dealing with fires already started, the 17-man department handles emergencies like drownings, accidental electrocutions, and asphyxiation cases. At least once a year the firemen refill the city's fire extinguishers.

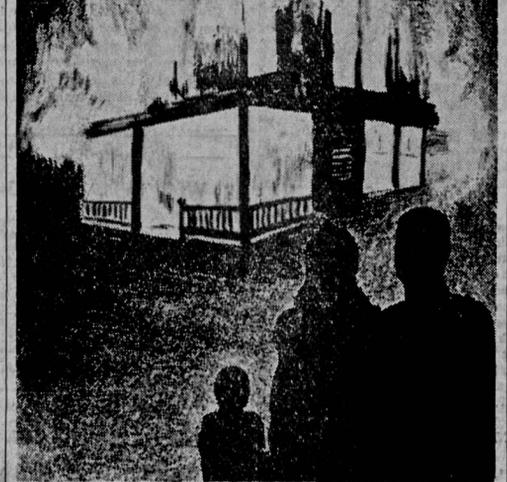

Then, to keep in trim, the men stage frequent training drills.

The drills prepare the firemen for fires such as the Market street fire of March 21, which did an estimated $15,000 damages to four Iowa City business establishments.

Fireman W. A. Vorbrich recalled yesterday that the temperature was a bitter 16 degrees below zero that Sunday night and residents were forced to flee upper story apartments.

The first eight months of 1948 have produced only about $50,000

Council Says Young Demos' Canvass Okay

The Young Democrats' canvass of married students' housing areas was approved last night by a special meeting of village council chairman.

The meeting also approved the solicitation of funds for the Campus Chest in the housing areas.

The canvass was halted yesterday by university officials in response to a complaint by one of the villagers contacted, according to Henry C. Allan, Young Democrats' president.

Ruling Doesn't Apply An 18-year-old state board of education ruling against soliciting on state property was declared not to apply to the Young Democrats' project yesterday by Fred Ambrose, university business manager, Allan said. Ambrose stipulated that the canvass should be approved by the village council chairman.

Vets Interested The chairman endorsed the plan last night as being of special interest to veterans since the coming election involves a vote on a federal bonus.

Ralph W. Thomas, chairman pro tem of the Hawkeye council, Lester Person, Riverdale council chairman, Robert Maloney, barracks' council chairman, and J. Robert Cotter, manager of married students' housing were present at the special meeting.

Cleveland May See Video from Boston

NEW YORK (UP) — Attempts will be made to televise the sixth and seventh games of the World Series from Boston to the mid-west by means of a stratospheric plane, the Westinghouse Electric Corp., announced yesterday.

If the series goes to the sixth or seventh game, the plane will seek to fly in an area between Cleveland and Boston which will permit it to reach television stations in both cities.

Bush Resigns Post As Research Head

WASHINGTON (UP) — Dr. Vannevar Bush, the nation's "scientific chief of staff" during World War II, resigned yesterday as chairman of the armed forces research and development board.

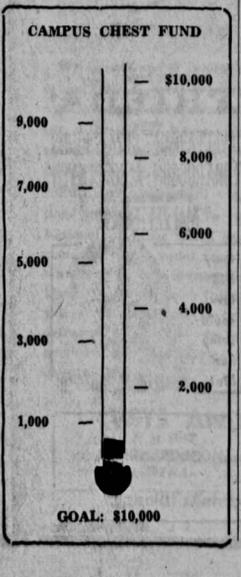

President Truman appointed Dr. Karl T. Compton, famed atomic physicist who has been president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology since 1930, to succeed him.

Compton resigned yesterday as head of MIT.

Bush said in his letter of resignation that he believes it best for the nation to rotate the civilian scientists heading military research.

He indicated he will return to full-time duty as president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, a post he has held throughout his government service.

Bush indicated that he had planned to resign for some time.

Underdog Hawks Still Seek Speed at Ohio

After giving the Indiana Hoosiers a rough battle before failing to defeat last Saturday, 7-0, the Iowa football squad hopes to upset the dope at Columbus Saturday.

The Hawkeyes will enter the Ohio State game as a 14-point underdog. This is not surprising in view of the fact that the sharp Buckeyes tripped Missouri and Southern California in their first two games by scores of 21-7 and 21-0 respectively.

Besides being heavily favored, the Ohio State eleven will be riding along with a 20-year-old jinx against the old Gold of Iowa. Not since 1928, when Iowa won at Columbus, 14-7, have the Hawks been able to down the Buckeyes. The schools have met only five times since then. Ohio captured four of the decisions since 1928 with last year's game at Columbus ending in a 13-13 tie.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. Eddie Anderson continued to work his regulars against Buckeye single-wing plays. The big freshman squad, loaded with former high school all-stars, did the offensive playing against the varsity.

The Hawks will end their practice preparations for Ohio State with a long drill this afternoon. The team will leave Iowa City by train at 4:15 p.m. tomorrow, arriving in Columbus at 7:50 a.m. Friday.

Except for Guard Ray Carlson's injured knee, which kept him out of the Indiana game, the team will be in excellent physical condition.

Al DiMarco's bruised right shoulder, which may have hindered his passing accuracy against the Hoosiers, will be in top shape for the Bucks. Likewise, the right halfback situation will be improved with both Jerry Faske and Ralph Doran ready to go.

Faske, hampered by a charley horse since the Marquette opener, opened up in the Indiana tilt while Doran was kept on the sidelines to rest his sore side.

The Iowans must definitely pick up on their running game in future games. They are sadly lacking in an offensive scoring punch. "Our running game went somewhat better against Indiana than against Marquette," Dr. Anderson said yesterday, "but our passing game was off. As our young halfbacks gain experience, I hope they will learn how to maneuver in the secondary after they get through line holes."

JOHNNY SAIN Starts for Braves

'Cold, Rainy' Prediction for Boston Doesn't Bother Bob

By CARL LUNDQUIST United Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (UP)—An Iowa plow boy and an Arkansas hill billy got ready last night for the greatest day of their baseball careers—pitching the opening game of a World Series.

For the American league champion Cleveland Indians it was Bobby Feller, the greatest pitcher of modern times, who finally will achieve the one goal he previously had missed in baseball—to pitch in a world series. The homespun fellow from Van Meter, Ia., despite his most mediocre season, was the "only logical choice" as far as his manager, Lou Boudreau, was concerned.

And the tall, strong armed kid who will attempt to start the Boston Braves off on the right foot was Johnny Sain from the Ozark hills of Belleville, Ark. Sain, top winning pitcher in the Majors this season with 24 triumphs, figured to be Boston's best hope to beat the heavily favored Indians in the big show.

The Indians, 9 to 5 favorites to win the opening game and 13 to 5 choices for the series, were getting the support of the oddsmakers because of their general all-around strength on paper.

There was a strong possibility that Sain and Feller might have to wait an additional 24 hours before tackling one another because the weather bureau said today probably would come up "cold and rainy."

However, if conditions permit play, the cold weather won't bother either of them.

Sain Prefers Cold "I don't know how the records go, but I would much rather pitch on a cold day," drawled Arkansas Johnny. "You feel stronger and you can keep going longer. As for the cold, it never bothers my arm."

Manager Boudreau recalled that both the no-hitters in Feller's past against the Chicago White Sox in 1940 and the New York Yankees in 1946—were pitched on cold and dreary days.

The forthright young pilot of the Indians said he tentatively had completed his pitching plans for the entire series.

"I hope they work out all right," he added.

Lemon Tomorrow "After today's game we'll come back with Bob Lemon and then will go with Gene Bearden if he is rested up, for the first game in Cleveland."

Boudreau said he hadn't made a final decision on his pitcher for the fourth game, but there was a definite possibility he would start Leroy (Satchel) Paige, the ageless Negro master. If there are additional games, it will be Feller, Lemon and Bearden in that order.

Boudreau, hatless and wearing a tan top coat, stood by the sidelines at Braves field and watched his Indians go through a brisk workout yesterday.

"We had a little fun last night," he said. "The boys relaxed and it did them a lot of good."

Clubhouse Meeting He told of a clubhouse meeting that he called immediately after the Indians lost the last game of the regular season to the Detroit Tigers—a game which would have given them the pennant without Monday's playoff victory.

'Pigskin Curtain' on Minnesota Practice

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Coach Bernie Bierman last night ordered a "pigskin curtain" drawn over Minnesota football drills for the balance of the week.

Newspapermen as well as students and the public will be barred from Northrop field today and tomorrow. Friday, the Gophers leave for Evanston and their first Big Nine contest against Northwestern.

Today's secrecy order marked the third time the device had been used in two seasons. Last year it was invoked before the Wisconsin and Purdue games, both of which Minnesota won.

Scribes in Boston Pick Cleveland, 3-1

BOSTON (AP)—Thirty of 44 baseball writers at Braves field yesterday picked the Cleveland Indians to beat the Boston Braves in the World Series which gets under way here today.

The writers were polled by the Associated Press while the Braves worked out for an hour and a half in the morning and during the final afternoon tuneup for the American league champions.

Only one writer, Walter (Red) Smith of the New York Herald Tribune, picked the Indians in seven games.

Of the 14 scribes present who selected Billy Southworth's rags to riches club, two saw a long drawn out dog-fight of seven contests.

SUI's New Glassblower a Sculptor, Artist

Father's Trade Is Art Hobby as Well

HE MADE A GLASS ORCHESTRA! Harry G. Nunamaker, SUI glass blower, above surveys his 20-piece orchestra which he made from glass. The group includes piano, harp, strings, woodwinds, percussion, horns and conductor, all in glass.

Glassblower, artist and sculptor are but a few titles that might apply to SUI's new glassblower.

Harry G. Nunamaker, 25, who now fashions glass for the university, learned the trade from his father. Before coming to Iowa he worked at the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., with his father.

Just like the postman and his "holiday," Nunamaker likes to work with glass as a hobby. Before coming to Iowa he fashioned a miniature orchestra in glass, complete with piano, harp, strings, woodwinds, percussion, horns, and conductor.

Nunamaker the artist also fashioned a nude in glass. It is a favorite of all those who stop in the shop.

"I have heard stories about glassblowing ever since I was old enough to know my father," he said.

"Few people seem interested in the trade today," the young glass worker said. "Consequently, glassblowers are in great demand." Nunamaker said glassblowing is very tedious and intricate. If a doctor wants a special piece of laboratory equipment for the University hospitals, a rough drawing of the article is sent to the glass shop. From there it's up to the skilled Nunamaker to work it into shape.

In order to work with pyrex glass tubes, he has to wear special glasses over his regular ones, not only to protect his eyes, but to enable him to see the material.

"My lips take a beating too," he admitted. "I burn myself occasionally either on the tongue, lips or fingers."

Nunamaker produces equipment for the hospital, chemistry laboratories and physics department.

Orders might include mercury diffusion pumps, distillation apparatus and many other queer shaped pumps and devices.

After receiving the order, Nunamaker goes to work with grinding machines, saws, oxygen and acetylene gas tanks, glass stock tubing, and a special burner capable of heating pyrex up to 820 degrees.

When any unusual glass pieces are needed, Glass Blower Nunamaker, receives the call in the chemistry building, and proceeds to blow and mold the article into shape.

U. Hospitals Admit Two Polio Patients

Two new polio patients were reported at University hospitals yesterday and two others were discharged, leaving the total number of active cases under treatment there at 19.

The new patients are Sylvia Steinberg, 30, Bassett, and William Gray, 13, Waterloo. Both were admitted to University hospitals, Oct. 2 and are reported in "fair" condition.

Patients discharged yesterday were Paul Rassmusen, 12, Mason City, and Ronald Winters, 13, West Union.

Lab Refrigerator Won't Keep Cool

A refrigerator which doesn't refrigerate is slowing down progress in the biochemistry laboratory.

So far, the machine has produced nothing but bewilderment, and no one will defend it as a refrigerator. One student suggested that it might even be a heating unit.

The machine ran for a week, but not one ice cube was produced.

Foods that must be kept cold and the lack of a refrigerator to keep them cool has nearly stopped the progress of an experiment.

Technicians who have looked the machine over, students said, leave the laboratory baffled.

Divorce Suit Filed Against Huber Rood

Elsie H. Rood, 414 N. Johnson street, filed suit for divorce from Huber G. Rood yesterday in Johnson county district court.

The plaintiff was granted a temporary injunction restraining the defendant from molesting the plaintiff or her children, and from going on the premises at 414 N. Johnson street.

She charged her husband with cruel and inhuman treatment and habitual drunkenness.

In addition to the divorce, the plaintiff asked sole custody and control of two minor children; that she be awarded the home and furnishings at 414 N. Johnson street; that judgment be made against the defendant for alimony and support; that he be ordered to pay all outstanding debts of the parties, and for all general, equitable relief.

The plaintiff said the couple was married at Iowa City July 26, 1930 and lived together until Oct. 4, 1948.

Swisher and Swisher are the plaintiff's attorneys.

Music for All at— Carnival Of Bands

Twelve bands and a quartet will be crowded into the Iowa Union Saturday from 2 to 5 p.m. for the Carnival of Bands, the union board, sponsors of the party, announced yesterday. All university students are invited to the free party.

Music and dancing will be available throughout the Union. The orchestras of Bill Meardon, Nat Williams and Hal Webster will play in the main lounge.

In the river room, dance music will be furnished by the orchestras of J. Weider, Paul Pearson, Kenny Latham, Richard Tripp, Johnny Durham, and Tom Richards, who now leads the old J. Russell band.

The bands of Leo Cortimiglia, Gregg Franzwa, and Savoy bands will also play downstairs. Ginny Williams' Criterion quartet will entertain in the south lobby.

Ping pong, bridge and other games will be played during the afternoon. Football fans can hear WSUI's broadcast of the Ohio State-Iowa game.

Slowly Going Mad? Your Wallpaper May Be to Blame

Do you growl at children, bite your fingernails or braid your necktie? If so, the trouble may lie in the four walls of your living room. Your wallpaper may be slowly driving you mad without your knowing it.

The idea of wallpaper causing nervous breakdowns is proposed by Thomas Wilfred, director of the art institute of light, West Nyack, N. Y., who will demonstrate "light painting" at the university theater, Oct. 19 at 8 p.m.

Tickets may be obtained at room 8A, Schaeffer hall or at the Iowa Union. There will be no charge.

Wilfred claims that although you may never be conscious of the color of your walls, your eye transmits the offending color to your nervous system, and before you know it, you're flat on your back on a psychiatrist's couch.

Called the latest development in the field of art, Wilfred's "light painting" is done on a flat, white screen with a new-type projection instrument.

Two Evictio

Filed After... To Vacate

Finds 'Frieda' Has—

A Unique Approach

BY BOB SENNISH

Unique for its straightforwardness in dealing with a very touchy subject, J. Arthur Rank's "Frieda" is an unsparing exposition of the stupidity and brutishness of unreasoning hate.

Curiously enough, it is a cross section of good, peace-loving Englishmen who are in this case the brutes — not the Germans who until this release seemed eternally doomed to depict the bad guys.

Touches Pros and Cons

Although a certain red-blooded few will smear the film as pro-German (the same two-fisted fellow having regarded "Gentlemen's Agreement" as a go-ahead Zionism) "Frieda" touches intelligently on both the pros and cons of turning the other cheek to reformed Germans.

Frieda, played by Mai Zetterling, is a young German girl who, in the closing stages of the war, finds herself the wife of heretofore respectable citizen. He is a dischargee — which is fine and dandy with Mom and the neighbors. But his wife is German — which is not so fine and dandy.

Rough on Wife

In short, the community does everything conceivable to make hell of life for the veteran, his family, and particularly his wife. Aunt Nell, a local politico, predicts that public opinion will grow sugary with time. She, however, is determined not to forget. She hates Germans collectively and is sure that as individuals they have sold themselves out to the monster of "race."

When Frieda's brother turns up in the guise of a Polish soldier, Nell's convictions are greatly weakened. But when he is exposed as a die-hard Nazi, thus bringing to bear a storm of abuse upon Frieda, the central theme is somersaulted into two resolves:

Omit Lead Pipes

Scorn Nazis if it's impossible for them to be anything else. And while finding out whether it's possible, omit lead pipes from the procedure.

Balancing a rather generous treatment of Germans is a scene in which the brother derisively recalls to Frieda that she was in victory a Nazi. She has no answer — although it might be argued that voicing the teachings of St. Matthew at that time would have been a little unhealthy.

Space prohibits all the nice things which might be said about Mai Zetterling, the Swedish actress, and the cast as a whole. Photography, direction, and script are equally deserving.

Two Eviction Cases Filed After Orders To Vacate Ignored

Two eviction actions were filed by Iowa Citizens yesterday in the Johnson county district court.

Grace D. Parker filed action against Myra Tompkins asking that the defendant be removed from the plaintiff's premises at 910 Highland avenue.

The plaintiff said in her petition that the defendant was renting by oral lease at $15 a month on a month-to-month basis with rent due on the first of each month.

The plaintiff said the defendant failed to pay rent Sept. 1 and refused to vacate the place. Thereupon, the plaintiff had notice to vacate served on the defendant, Sept. 21. She claimed the defendant still retains possession.

Attorneys for the plaintiff are Swisher and Swisher.

George and Della Kaspar filed suit against Charles and Sophia Bocek, asking for a hearing and a judgment against the defendants and ordering them off the plaintiffs' premises at 713 N. Lucas street.

Judge James P. Gaffney ordered a hearing of the case for 10 a.m., Oct. 15 in Johnson county court.

In their petition the plaintiffs said they gave the defendants 60-days notice to vacate on Aug. 3, and they have not complied.

The plaintiffs' attorneys are D. C. Nolan and G. A. Schlaegel.

The damage to the Kunstling car was estimated at $75. Damage to the motorcycle was not estimated in the report.

Three Faculty Members to Attend Meeting

Three SUI faculty members will attend the three-day conference of the Iowa Welfare association in Des Moines tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, Wayne Vasey, director of the school of social welfare, said yesterday.

Besides Vasey, they include Prof. F. E. Haynes and Prof. Robert Caldwell of the criminology division of the sociology department. Mrs. Caldwell will accompany her husband. Vasey will address the conference Thursday night following a banquet at Hotel Savery, conference headquarters. He will speak on "The Role of Professional Education in a Positive Welfare Program."

Local Group to See Rock Island's New Street Light System

Iowa City's two light committees will go to Rock Island, Ill., tomorrow afternoon to view that city's new mercury-vapor type street lighting system, Alderman H. Grandrath said yesterday.

The trip was proposed after a survey of Iowa City's downtown lighting system showed that more than 30 of the 71 lights are not lighted.

The committee will also visit the stitghouse company branch office while on the trip. Westinghouse representatives recently examined the local lighting system and prepared estimates on the cost of replacing the local system with the mercury type lights.

The city engineer has been making temporary repairs of the short circuits in the local lighting system but city officials say that all the wiring must be replaced before the lights will operate satisfactorily.

A completely new lighting system has also been proposed. The committee from the Chamber of Commerce was appointed because a new lighting system would call for an assessment of the downtown property owners.

Members of the city council committee, besides Grandrath, are German Frank Fryauf Jr., and James Jones. The chamber of commerce committee includes Roy Ewers, Joe Cilek and W. J. Jackson.

Mayor Preston Koser, City Engineer Fred Gartzke and Robert Gage, secretary of the chamber of commerce will make the trip.

The Platforms Foreign

Second in a series by Daily Iowan Research comparing the main points of the Republican, Democratic and Progressive national platforms.

REPUBLICAN PLATFORM:
"Our foreign policy is directed to preserving America in a free world of men. This calls for strengthening the United Nations and many recognition of American self-interest in the liberty of other peoples. Prudently serving our own resources, shall cooperate on a self-basis with other peace-loving nations."

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM:
"... the United States become the principal protector of the free world. The peoples of the world look to us for support in maintaining their freedoms."

Foreign Affairs
The Democratic and Republican national platforms are practically identical in their treatment of foreign affairs. Both promise continued aid to Europe on a business basis and both urge continued support of the United Nations as an international organ. The only difference in the platform are the accusations at each party that it is stringing American international prestige by incompetent management or failure to provide adequate funds. These charges appeared chiefly in campaign speeches and appear to be the only major charges by the two major parties in area of foreign affairs.

One thing is certain. Whether Republicans or Democrats control both congress and the white house there will be a bipartisan policy. Russia's latest maneuvers will see to that but even before the Berlin blockade a bipartisan policy was developed that still keeps a strong American front on the international stage. Both major presidential candidates have wisely refrained from destroying that front because it would take months, perhaps years, of rigorous diplomacy to regain it after an election victory.

Truman's chief charge has been that the Republican eighteenth congress failed to vote adequate European aid funds; Dewey in turn accused the Democratic administration of poor business methods in handling the funds. No mention has been made on either side that incompetence marked the actual conduct of American United Nations delegates or the American military government in Berlin. Any accusations have carefully been delimited to that of a domestic nature.

If the Democrats control both congress and the white house after November the present methods and modes of foreign aid will continue. However, if the Republicans return to power there is bound to be a conservative curtailment of aid funds at loose points. But this does not mean that a drastic curtailment will occur. Instead, there will be ter like this and similar ones Republican foreign policy will do the greatest amount of work in changing the external structures of foreign aid and encouragement.

PROGRESSIVE PLATFORM:
"If peace is to be achieved capitalist United States and communist Russia must establish good relations to work together..."

Foreign Affairs
The Progressive platform merely mentions its support of the United Nations as a means towards international peace but it is completely silent on aid to the western European bloc of nations and on a firm, nonappeasement attitude towards Russia. When it comes down to a matter of campaign strategy the Progressives have lost a big point. The majority of the American public is too Communist-conscious to support any party lacking an anti-Communist plank. The mere presence of Communist followers in Progressive ranks is enough to scare votes away from Wallace.

In general the Progressive platform confines itself almost entirely to domestic issues. Russia is scarcely mentioned if at all. In addition, nothing is said of veterans aid or national defense. The platform is purely that of a peace party and it contains the same fallacies behind it that Prime Minister Chamberlain had when Hitler tricked him into appeasement. Wallace does not think of appeasement in terms of people and land areas as did Chamberlain but his ideas of armament and the

An End to Subtle Pressures

A Chicago newspaper had representatives in Iowa City yesterday taking a straw vote. Those votes will be thrown in with votes from all over this area and somewhat of a lead obtained on how the area feels about potential presidents.

Plans are being made for a home-made straw vote here on the campus. Up to that time political activity on the campus should be at the maximum. Talks by student representatives are scheduled. A big rally will be organized. The issues of the campaign will be presented by this paper, together with an analysis of the planks in the parties' platforms.

Speeches by candidates may be few. Those that will be made will be staged off the university campus. The League of Women Voters has a program set for Monday, October 11 that will help you mark your ballot if it's your first election and will help you understand the aims of the various parties.

One of the big reasons why there may be few speakers here is the early reluctance on the part of the student political groups to go ahead with plans for candidates' appearing here. They felt themselves stymied by the state board ruling that avowed political candidates cannot be given state facilities.

How far does that ban go? When is a political speaker not a political speaker? Where do we draw the line on general political activity under the surveillance of the state board?

In the tight-rope walking feat which has led to hesitancy on all political activity about campus, the campus groups may have given the impression of pretty risky business when they plan political activities. The impression may have been created, due to a general jitteriness and foggy atmosphere about the state board ruling, that such things as rallies and straw votes were frowned upon.

Let's not fall into step with this idea. The student political groups are accepted as part of the informal educational program—be it ever so extra-curricular. Their activities are legitimate. Their purposes are clear. They will provide a discussion medium for the political issues of the day—will elevate the thinking processes from party rattle-dazzle to the level of interpreting and understanding major issues.

If the student groups fail in this responsibility it is because they have emulated the national groups too closely—or because they became apprehensive about indulging in their right of intelligent free speech.

A Week for Worldwide 'Paper Boys'

Newspaper week in the United States is generally a time when most of us stop to admire how much news and entertainment we can get for a nickel. It is also a week to honor the carrier boy for the job he does.

But newspapers and the news they carry cross our borders and enter the sea of foreign entanglements. The gathering of objective information is combatted by dictatorial pressures in many quarters.

Item: Russia in a new order has virtually confined American and other foreign diplomats to the city of Moscow. Although the crackdown came last week, Soviet censors held up the dispatches of American correspondents reporting this.

Item: The Yugoslav government ordered a United Press staff correspondent out of the country for filing a dispatch about a resolution passed by the Yugoslav national assembly.

The correspondent was accused of having written that the assembly, in passing the resolution, had taken an anti-Soviet attitude.

UP's dispatch quoted the resolution as saying, "In view of the Yugoslavia's correct attitude toward the Cominform countries and Soviet Russia, Yugoslavia is surprised at the campaign which has been conducted by neighboring states and even by Soviet Russia for the last three months."

Item: American correspondent George Polk was murdered in Greece last May because he knew too much to please someone. Since then, no effort has been made by Greek authorities to solve the crime.

Item: Commending the nation's press, a member of Mr. Truman's cabinet issued a statement saying in part, "Few things are more important to the peoples of a democracy than a free and unadulterated flow of facts."

If you don't believe him, ask any of the world's self-styled dictators. They know it is a first-rate tactic to coop up, expel or murder those seeking the facts.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT Unity a la Commuters

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The train was still empty, and Ed had his choice of seats. He saw Martin, his old opponent, sitting by himself. For a moment Ed thought of retreating to the car before, but that seemed ungenerous, and so he walked forward.

"Hi, Ed," said Martin. "Sitting with me? You know, I sometimes feel you duck me on these trains."
"Oh, no," said Ed, and the ride began.

"Hey," said Martin, "have you been listening to those Dewey speeches? That one about unity. Did you hear that?"
"Yes," said Ed.
"That was the right tone. A dignified campaign, as if he's already President, see? National unity, everybody together. That's the stuff." He chuckled, and suddenly dug his elbow, hard, into Ed's side. "Unity!" he said. "Everybody working together. That's the tone."

Ed glanced sideways at the other man, remembering a dozen years of village quarrels, and something stirred in him.

"Say, Martin," he said, "there's a meeting at my house Saturday afternoon. Some of the parents in town want to get up a presentation asking for more federal and state aid for the hot school lunch program, you know, with food prices up. Three o'clock. Will you be there?"
"Me?" asked Martin with the air of a man looking to see where the joke is.
"Sure. You'd be very helpful."
"Me?" said Martin. "Me, ask the government to spend more money? Are you out of your mind?"

"It'd be a sensation in the town if you did it," said Ed. "I just thought you might, now. Unity, you know. Everybody working together."
"You don't have to make a joke out of it," said Martin, stiffly. "I can't come."
"All right," said Ed.
They rode on, in silence. This was when their unity worked best, thought Ed, when there was silence.
"And what about Dewey's atomic energy speech?" asked Martin suddenly. "What was wrong with that?"
"Well," said Ed, "he wants to take atomic energy away from the government, which means all of us, and give it into private hands. I don't see much unity in that."
Martin was silent.
"I've reached him, thought Ed. I've got to him at last. He's trying to figure that one out. Maybe he's beginning to think about what unity really means. Martin stirred unhappily in his seat.
"There's some people in the back car I have to see," he said. "Will you excuse me for the rest of this ride?"
He got up and walked away. Ed watched him go. It was the first time in all their quarrels that a break as open as this had been reached, and it had taken a discussion of unity to do it.
Ed leaned back, thinking of Martin in the other car, probably alone now like himself. They were on the same train. That was as much as you could say.

McBride's Haul

By BILL McBRIDE

An addition has been made to my list of why people attend college. Word comes about a girl only interested in registering for one course at this institution. She lives at Eastlawn, and if she doesn't attend at least one class she will have to move.

Her plans for the future include matrimony around Christmas time, so she assumes her housing troubles will be over when that happy day arrives. But until then she will continue carrying one "snap course" to keep a roof over her head.

Last year I found a fellow in school because he couldn't stand his mother's cooking. Another student wanted to lose himself from his old crowd back east and figured a mid-west college campus to be the best place in the world to lose himself.

That may be one of the more basic reasons, since there seem to be several persons wandering around here looking pretty lost.

Another agent reports that Sgt. O. A. McClung got one of our boys earlier this year because the lad couldn't find the courses he wanted. . . he must have been desperate. McClung is the army recruiter in IC.

While shopping at the Whiteaway Friday night I overheard a student wife (you can always tell their student wives because they look so fresh and pretty in a paperish sort of way), say, "What ELSE have you got in there that I haven't seen?"

Upon looking around I saw a lovely little redhead going through the push-basket her husband had been wheeling around. Earlier I had noticed this same fellow merrily scooting about the store, picking out cans of expensive and delicious little tid-bits from hither and yon.

After listening to a stern, but understanding, lecture on the necessity of sticking close to the budget, the husband, a big fellow, slowly went about the business of replacing all his choice articles with a sad face.

I used to do the same thing, so I could sympathize with the reproached spouse. The way to stay out of a situation like that is to eat a meal before going grocery shopping. I find I can stay much closer to the budget if I shop on a full stomach.

One of the unsung contributors to the community spirit in student housing areas is John Weber, editor of the Villager.

He is doing a double-barreled, blown-in-the-bottle job of newspapering down there and certainly deserves a back pat from his neighbors for whom he writes.

At 1 a.m. Tuesday morning I founded an opinion on the romantic act of mass serenading. At that wee hour even the Cossack chorus wouldn't inspire me.

It may be that I am losing my perspective on such chivalrous doings, but at 1 a.m. a sweetheart song hits me like a pot of cold porridge.

The undeniable fact that sorority girls' hearing facilities are as keen at 10 p.m. as they are three or four hours later would appear to make that hour suitable for group corraling . . . or is it choral.

The idea of crooning by the light of the morning star has, I should imagine, even less appeal to the working man who lives down the street from us, and who goes to his daily labors at 6 a.m., than it does to me, a 7 a.m. ariser.

It wasn't so much the manly chorus which rasped my nerves as it was the delighted female squeals at the end of each number. Those squeals fell upon my sleep befogged senses like a dash of icy rain on the back of the neck.

A letter to the editor of a magazine, the name of which I can't recall, by a 13-year-old boy refutes some experts' opinions on the cubic inches of bad impressions which can be stuffed into one comic book.

The boy said that few of the comic books he reads even so much as mentions sex or politics . . . and all this time I have been blindly thinking the Russians were responsible for our difficulties.

usually to reach a depth of 3,000 feet.
Hundreds of additional miners are expected to immigrate to Argentina from Italy in the near future. With this expanded labor force, Argentina hopes to increase coal production considerably above the present 75,000 tons a year.
The chief obstacle to development of the Santa Cruz fields is their location on the eastern slopes of the Andes mountains, a long distance from the sea routes which are the main supply channels to southern Argentina. A railway is now being built at considerable cost to bring coal from the mountain mines to the sea.
In the meantime, Argentina is negotiating with several other countries for coal to replace that normally supplied by Britain.

Court Delays Contempt Suit For Thayer

DES MOINES (AP)—First Assistant County Attorney Ed S. Thayer yesterday was granted a second delay in district court for filing an answer to contempt of court proceedings filed against him by Safety Commissioner Myron J. Bennett.

Thayer told District Judge C. Edwin Moore he had been too busy with other official business to go into the contempt matter.

Judge Moore told Thayer he could have all the time necessary. Bennett and Jack Wolfe, president of the Welch-Iowa Printing company, were jointly charged Aug. 27, in a special county attorney's information with criminal conspiracy. The charge was filed following a special investigation by the county attorney of complaints from five tavern operators that demands have been made on them for a "payoff."

Bennett, in the contempt action, charges that Thayer used improper methods to call in three officials of radio station KSO and threatened them if they didn't stop Bennett from making statements over the radio regarding Thayer and County Attorney Carroll Switzer.

Bennett also faces contempt of court charges filed by Thayer, growing out of alleged statements Bennett made over the radio.

The conspiracy trial of Bennett and Wolfe is pending trial this term of court.

Army Honors Two Iowa High Schools

Two Iowa high schools are among 190 ROTC "honor high schools" recently designated by the army, the SUI military department announced yesterday.

The "honor schools" located in 39 states and Hawaii are determined by an annual army inspection. These junior units are graded in such things as course completion, maintenance and use of government property, instruction in "intelligent citizenship" and basic military training.

Musical Fame Calls

Doctor Wrote Music Between Operations; After 20 Years It Pays Off

By CLAIRE COX
NEW YORK (UP)—A busy physician has arrived at the threshold of musical fame because a composition he wrote between appendectomies 10 years ago was pulled from a dusty shelf by a friend without his knowing it.

Dr. J. Clarence Chambers said he was the last to know of his good fortune. "An American Suite," which he composed in 1938 had been a standard number on the programs of the famous pianists Jose Iturbi and his sister Amparo, for years before he knew it.

Recording
It wasn't until Victor records told him a few months ago that it was being recorded by the Iturbis and where did he want his royalties sent that Chambers was aware of fame beckoning. After 20 years of composing between stethoscope and scalpel, this is his first income from his avocation.

Chambers, deputy medical superintendent of Harlem hospital, started jotting down tunes when he was only 10. Nobody but his friends and family would listen and they thought he was just another overworked doctor letting off steam.

Back to Babies
After he wrote "An American Suite," he tried to get musicians to play it, but they told him to stick to his thermometer. So he tossed the music on the shelf and busied himself delivering babies and removing gall bladders.

But two years later, a friend, Pianist Vincent de Sola, found the yellowing manuscript and played a few bars. He liked it. He asked Chambers if he could show it to the Iturbis.

Chambers said "no" but when Chambers' back was turned, de Sola took the suite with him.

Coast to Coast
The Iturbis soon were playing it from coast to coast. The audiences clapped heartily but Chambers never heard a note of it until a year ago.

"I had forgotten all about the number. I was so busy with my patients," Chambers said. "It was an agreeable surprise. I was so delighted that I never asked a cent for the lurbi performances."

Chambers took up music seriously along with his doctor's satchel after he was graduated from Columbia university medical school. He has managed to turn out a string quartet, a sonatina for clarinet and piano, some vocal selections, folk music and a number of piano numbers.

Medicine First
Medicine comes first with the composer-physician, but he believes a hobby or an avocation can help a person overcome a feeling of frustration and inferiority. He thinks you can get in the dumps whether you are a surgeon or a sign painter.

"It's good for anyone to have a creative or semi-creative avocation or hobby," he said. "Even if he has a humdrum way to make a living, it keeps him from being a cog in a wheel."

'Herky' Helps

His Picture to Grace Homecoming Badges

Homecoming badges this year will feature a picture of the Iowa stadium with "Herky the Hawk" superimposed, Prof. Louis C. Zopf, chairman of the Homecoming committee, announced yesterday.

Sale of the badges will begin Thursday morning, Oct. 14, at 7 a.m. and continue up until game time Saturday, Oct. 16, Dean Crawford, president of Tailfeathers, said last night.

The university pep club has been organized into two teams—the Gold and the Black—who will compete in selling the badges, Crawford explained.

The goal is set at 33,000, or 500 more than last year.

Ken Mounce is captain of the Gold team, with Don Davidson and Jackie Englebert acting as lieutenants.

Heading the Golds will be Joan Perry. Her assistants are Janet Shacklett and Dean Heiser.

The losing team will entertain the winners at a party. A cash award will be made to the individual selling the most badges.

Price of the badge is still ten cents as it has been in previous years, Crawford said.

The first Homecoming badge appeared in 1924. Only once in 24 years has the Homecoming symbol

In 1943, because of critical shortage of metal, the badge was made of cardboard.

Prior to 1924, special decorative stamps were sold to students and business men, Zopf said.

Previous to the use of stamps, Homecoming activities were financed by soliciting funds from students and townspeople, he explained.

Emmetsburg Fire Guts Two Buildings

EMMETSBURG (AP)—A fire yesterday afternoon wiped out the interiors of two business buildings in downtown Emmetsburg.

The fire was quickly brought under control and the buildings were left standing.

No one was injured. One of the buildings gutted was occupied by a radio shop. An implement company and monument works occupied the other.

Origin of the fire was not known. No estimate was available on the extent of the damage.

Chest Drive Above $2,000

The Community Chest fund advanced $866.50 yesterday, bringing total returns for the first two days of the drive to $2,521.50, Mrs. J. L. Records, permanent secretary, reported.

There remains $17,211.26 to be collected before this year's community chest quota of $19,732.76 can be reached.

Mrs. Records called yesterday "not a very good day" on the basis of returns expected.

The drive is scheduled to end Oct. 16.

Money received will go to the Iowa City Boy Scouts, Iowa City Girl Scouts, Parent Teachers association milk fund, city hall rest room fund and to allay campaign and administration expenses.

In last year's Iowa City community chest drive, over $25,000 was collected against a quota of $17,000.

Douglas R. Williamson, campaign manager of the drive this year, explained that last year's surplus would be held in reserve for "lean years."

Talks to Jaycees On Child Handling

Parents should adopt a favorable balance between reward and punishment in dealing with their children.

That was the belief Prof. O. C. Irwin of SU's child welfare department expressed to members of the Iowa City Junior Chamber of Commerce and their wives last night.

Irwin said children should be praised for commendable actions but should be punished when guilty of misdeeds.

The speaker said punishment of children should be administered to fit the offense. This may raise from "a raised eyebrow" to more severe types of punishment, Irwin said.

Irwin spoke to 37 Jaycee members and their wives in the first "ladies night" of the season for the organization.

The regular business meeting followed the address by Irwin. George Williams, sports chairman, reported a $15 surplus from the recent Jaycee-sponsored Iowa

Students Get Practice for SU's Poll

SUI Air ROTC Now Up to Quota

A full quota of 97 students in advanced air ROTC was announced yesterday by the military department. This includes 65 in first year advanced and 32 in second year.

Two new courses, administration and military management and statistical control are being offered to second year air students, the department revealed.

City closed tennis tournament.

The money will go toward a junior development fund to help send Iowa City junior tennis players to tournaments away from home.

Four Pay Fines in Police Court Here

Judge Emil G. Trott collected fines totaling $167.50 in police court yesterday morning.

Fines of $52.50 each were paid by Charles Grolmus Jr., route 7, and Raymond D. Conklin, Monticello. Grolmus was fined for leaving the scene of an accident and Conklin was fined for reckless driving.

Charles Hicks, 703 N. Dubuque street, paid $27.50 for not having registration on his car and $12.50 for not having a chauffeur's license while operating a truck.

Alton R. Curry, 532 S. Johnson street, was fined $12.50 on charges of disorderly conduct.

Ann Avery, A2, heads the Sunday matinee dance committee; Jim McKenzie, A2, the Wednesday tea dance group, and Vincent La Bahn, D3, the movie committee.

GAINS ON NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—California may pass New York's 14,000,000 population mark during the next ten years and thus become the nation's leading state, L. A. Johnson, president of the California Association of Manufacturers, said yesterday.

Rancher Safe Lived on Candy For 20 Days

CASPER, WYO. (UP)—A rugged Montana rancher told the story last night of how he staved off death by starvation after he was injured and a companion killed when their plane crashed in an isolated mountain section 20 days ago.

"I had a box of candy bars along—and I guess they saved my life," he said. "I rationed myself to two a day and they held out for 12 days."

The almost unbelievable story was recounted at the Casper army air base by James M. Alvey, 37-year-old Forsythe, Mont., rancher, who was rescued yesterday from the site on a mountainside where the plane crashed 20 miles southwest of Casper Sept. 16.

Martin Mitzkus, 35, also of Forsythe, who was piloting the plane when it crashed, was killed instantly. Alvey suffered a broken leg.

He said he managed to drag himself around the spot, burning fabric from the plane to keep warm.

Alvey said he accidentally set fire to the plane and that Mitzkus' body—still in the craft—was consumed in the blaze.

Air base authorities said the crash survivor would be flown to Denver for army hospitalization Wednesday.

Republican Veterans Disclaim Criticism Of Senator Wilson

DES MOINES (P)—The Republican Veterans League of Iowa in expressing itself concerning the campaign of U.S. Senator George A. Wilson for G.O.P. reelection "intended merely to make a helpful suggestion," Richard N. Mason, league secretary, said yesterday.

In Estherville, Senator Wilson expressed surprise at the league's comments.

The league, in a week end meeting here, called upon the senator "to immediately make a statement of his stand on the important issues of the campaign." The league said further the senator's stand on such issues as agriculture and veteran problems has been "very vague."

Mason, deputy secretary of state who was made the league's executive secretary to the meeting, said in a statement:

"The Republican Veterans League made no criticism of George Wilson in their meeting. They intended merely to make a helpful campaign suggestion."

Wilson said in an interview at Estherville that he has covered everything that has to do with veterans and agriculture.

Women Sponsor 'Vote' Rally

A "Let's Vote" rally sponsored by the League of Women Voters, and open to the general public, will be held in the Community building 8:00 p.m. Monday.

The rally will stress the importance of voting in the Nov. 2 election, Mrs. A. T. Clark, chairman of the league's "get out the vote campaign" reported.

Hawkeye Village Elections Friday

Hawkeye village council elections will be held in the wash-houses Friday, Mrs. Thelma Ryan, council member, said yesterday.

Villagers who wish to make nominations or wish to run in the council elections should contact Bill Thomas, 148 Hawkeye, chairman pro tem of the council, Charlotte Eastman, 134 Hawkeye, or herself at 201 Hawkeye, today, Mrs. Ryan said.

She said nominees must be endorsed by seven Hawkeye residents; otherwise, anyone living in the village is eligible to run.

Members of the election committee will try to contact each villager personally during the day, Mrs. Ryan said, to ask for nominations and call attention to the election Friday.

The council will consist of a chairman elected from the village

A "voting" skit presented by County Attorney Jack C. White and Deputy Sheriff Marjorie Glaspey and speeches on election issues by the three major political parties' county chairmen will feature the rally's program.

Prof. Russell Ross of the SU's political science department will address the rally on "Sixteen Don'ts for Marking Ballots," explaining the necessary steps to take in casting a ballot.

Ten-minute talks on political issues in the Nov. 2 election will be given by Edward Rate, chairman of the Johnson county Republican central committee, Edward Lucas, chairman of the Johnson county Democratic central committee and Prof. Bernard Baum, chairman of the Johnson county Progressive party.

Two short motion pictures will be shown as part of the program.
