Truman Winner As Demos Regain Power In Congress

County Vote Follows State In Elections

Republicans Win Only Two County Offices

Johnson county followed the state trend in Tuesday's general election, giving President Truman a majority along with the rest of the state as Iowa went Democratic for president for the first time since 1936 and the third time since 1912.

The county also followed the trend in the U. S. senatorial contest giving Guy M. Gillette almost twice as many votes as George Wilson.

Complete, unofficial returns from Johnson county gave Truman 8,591 votes to 7,139 for Thomas Dewey.

Gillette Vote Heavy

Gillette's majority in the county was 10,204 to 5,488. He received the heaviest majority of any contested candidate on the ballot.

Johnson county gave majorities to all Democratic candidates except Republican William Beardsley, who won the race for governor; and two county officers, Republicans Albert J. (Pat) Murphy and R. J. (Dick) Jones.

Murphy, the incumbent sheriff, and Jones, the incumbent county recorder, both were reelected. Jones was unopposed.

Raim Lead Small

Closest race on the Johnson county ticket was for state representative from this county.

Democrat Joe G. Raim, who held a comfortable lead in early returns from precincts outside of Iowa City, nosed out Republican G. M. Ludwig by 175 votes after Iowa City votes were counted.

D. C. Nolan of Iowa City carried Iowa county by 772 votes in the race for State Senator from Johnson and Iowa counties but failed to carry his own county.

Johnson county gave Nolan 7,107 votes to 8,401 to his opponent, Democrat Leroy S. Mercer, incumbent state senator. Mercer's margin in complete, unofficial returns from the two counties was 522 votes.

City Follows County

Iowa City voters went down the line with the county, giving majorities to the same candidates that carried the county.

Thomas E. Martin of Iowa City was beaten in both Iowa City and Johnson county by James D. France but carried the rest of the district well enough to be reelected to his seat in the U. S. house of representatives.

Closest race in Iowa City was for county attorney where incumbent Jack C. White had a 14-vote margin over Republican Robert Osmundson. White carried the county townships outside of Iowa City to win by a 1,263-vote margin.

The following chart shows the comparison between Iowa City and Johnson county voting (including Iowa City) on the basis of complete, unofficial returns (Iowa City figures listed first):

A Sober-Faced Dewey Meets Reporters

(AP Wirephoto)

SOBER-FACED GOV. THOMAS E. DEWEY talks with reporters in New York after conceding the presidential election to Democrat Harry S. Truman. A loser once before, Dewey said he would never seek the presidency again. About the presidential contest Dewey said, "Governor Warren and I are both happy that we waged a clean and constructive campaign, and I have no regrets in the world."

Election Puzzles Campus

Porter Offers Explanation of Democratic Sweep; Professors Use Classes for Discussion

"I just can't believe it."

That was the concensus among SUI students yesterday over the Democratic sweep of the national presidential and congressional offices in Tuesday's election.

Puzzled about the results which public opinion polls earlier had predicted would not happen, the students took their problems to their instructors.

Prof. Kirk Porter, head of the political science department, attributed Truman's success to what he called the President's incessant hammering upon the differences between the two parties.

Porter Comments

Porter said that Truman called the Republican party the party of the rich, and the Democratic party the party of the people, so often that people came to believe it.

Besides, he added, "millions of people thought Dewey just didn't look like a president."

Porter called Pollster George Gallup "one of the most unpopular men in the country today."

Prof. Leslie Moeller, head of the SUI school of journalism, commented that it seemed unfortunate that the election results will cast discredit on a fundamentally sound research method (that of the public opinion poll.)

Sees Research Need

Moeller thought that the results indicate the need for more research on the voting behavior of persons interviewed by the polls.

'Prof. George E. Mowry of the SUI history department told his class that the people took "the lesser of two evils" approach when they voted for the president.

Mowry claimed that Truman would be pushed to left as a result of the election and predicted a "less tough" foreign policy toward Russia.

Discusses Sweep

Prof. Russel G. Whitesel devoted his entire comparative foreign government class to a discussion of the democratic sweep. When queried about the consequences of the election, he asserted, "I'll not make another political prediction for three weeks."

When the lights were turned out in Prof. Donald Lewis' psychology class in preparation for a short film, Lewis wisecracked in the dark, "Maybe we shouldn't have the light off so long. A Young Republican might pass out."

Meanwhile jubilant Young Democrats wired congratulations to President Truman and Senator Elect Guy M. Gillette.

Young Demo President Hank Allan remarked, "I knew it all the time. I said so."

REPRESENTATIVE OF THE TREND with which Democratic candidates captured control of congress in Tuesday's elections was Iowa's Guy M. Gillette. He defeated incumbent George A. Wilson for the office of U. S. senator. Democrats won similar contests throughout the nation, both in the senate and in the house of representatives. Here Gillette reads his congratulatory telegrams to his two secretaries, Mrs. Robert Canter (left) and Mary Lou Bush, in Des Moines.

Speculate On Future Demo Legislation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Return of firm congressional control to the Democratic party brought a rush of questions yesterday over the legislative future.

These subjects popped out as returns from Tuesday's voting gave the Democrats a wide working majority of both the senate and the house after two years of playing second fiddle to the Republicans

1. What will happen to State Rights Democrats elected to congress?

2. Will the Taft-Hartley law be repealed?

3. What will become of President Truman's civil rights program which split the Democratic party wide open this election year?

4. How about taxes, inflation curbs, and rent control on which Mr. Truman differed sharply with the Republicans?

The 81st congress takes over on Jan. 3. At that time, control of all the legislative machinery and the chairmanships of all senate and house committees will shift from Republican to Democratic hands.

See Adjournment

There was one thing fairly certain: the present congress, the 80th, probably won't do much more than adjourn when it reconvenes on Dec. 31. Its Republican leaders then will step aside, tossed out of congressional control after only a two-year reign.

The last vestige of doubt that the Democrats were back in the saddle on Capitol Hill was removed by late returns.

They not only lodged the Democrats firmly in charge of the senate but gave them bigger house majorities than they had enjoyed in the closing years of Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration.

53 Senate Seats

With 218 seats needed for house control and 49 for senate dominance, the Democrats elected 24 senators and 257 representatives. The score: 54-42. Democrats had 30 senate seats as holdovers.

All their house gains except one, an American-labor party seat held in the present congress by Leo Isacson of New York, were at the expense of the GOP.

Besides dropping nine senate seats, Republicans lost 73 house races. With contests still out, they had elected 164 house members.

VICTORIOUS HARRY S. TRUMAN WAVES with both hands to a crowd outside Kansas City's Muehlebach hotel. Earlier, Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had conceded defeat in the presidential election as he fell steadily behind the Chief Executive during yesterday's counting. Said the nation's elected president for the next four years: "I just want to deserve the honor."

Dewey Says That He Will Not Seek White House Again

By JOE HALL

NEW YORK (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey indicated yesterday his second defeat for the presidency may well be his swan song in politics.

Less than two hours after he conceded he had lost to President Truman, he told a news conference flatly he would not run for the White House again.

He added that he had no plans to seek a third term as New York's governor.

But the 46-year-old Republican presidential nominee labeled as "pure fiction" reports he would quit as governor before his term ends Dec. 31, 1950.

Sends Telegram

Dewey signalled the end of one of the nation's most amazing presidential election scrambles when he sent a telegram of congratulations to Mr. Truman at 10:15 a.m. Iowa time.

The message offered "heartiest congratulations" and "every good wish for a successful administration."

"I urge all Americans," Dewey told the President, "to unite behind you in support of every effort to keep our nation strong and free and establish peace in the world."

Saw Defeat

The governor said at the news conference that he realized he was beaten after he awoke from a two-hour nap yesterday morning. The Illinois and Ohio returns convinced him, he explained.

"What happened?" was the first question reporters asked him.

"I was just as surprised as you are and I gather that is shared by everybody in the room," the governor answered.

Iowa Gives President 34,569-Vote Majority

DES MOINES (AP) — Complete unofficial returns from Iowa's general election showed last night that President Truman won the state with a majority of 34,569 votes in a race which drew the largest total vote.

His Democratic colleague and senatorial nominee, Guy M. Gillette, rolled up a majority of 165,355 over Republican Incumbent George A. Wilson.

There the Democratic victory stopped. William S. Beardsley, Republican defeated Carroll O. Switzer, Democrat, for governor by 116,120 votes. Republican nominees swept the rest of the races from congress down through the state offices. The soldiers' bonus bill was approved.

President Is Modest, Happy in His Victory

By ERNEST VACCARO

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry S. Truman, the man who turned an apparent rout into a "miracle" victory, talked only of peace and American "prosperity and happiness" yesterday as the tributes of a nation rolled in.

Now President of the United States in his own right, and the popular champion of its political arena, he accepted the honor with midwestern modesty.

"I feel very deeply the responsibility which has fallen to my lot as the result of the election," he said in a simple statement.

"I shall continue to serve the people to the best of my ability. All my efforts will be devoted to the cause of peace in the world and the prosperity and happiness of our people here at home."

President Quiet

Gone was the fighting man who criss-crossed the nation to win this hour of sweet victory from the depths of Democratic despondency.

Gone was the cocky air with which he closed in triumph a campaign the big-wigs of his party had said he could not win.

Missing was the sarcasm with which he had promised to force the pollsters to consign their forecast "to the ash cans."

The 64-year-old onetime farm boy was as humble as he was happy as friends of his boyhood and the comrades of his campaign showered him with praise and congratulations.

Laughter and Cheers

When the news came over the press association printers that Gov. Dewey had conceded Mr. Truman's election, laughter and cheers resounded through the corridors outside the living room where the President talked with his staff.

Soon the door was opened, and for three minutes or more, stenographers, clerks, newspapermen, and friends of World War I days swarmed into the room to embrace the grinning President or shake his hand.

Telegrams came in by the thousands from all parts of the nation.

First Act

The President's first act in his hour of his greatest political triumph — here in the county of his humble beginnings — was to remember the man who shared with him the long, uphill campaign.

He telephoned Sen. Alben W. Barkley, his running mate, the new vice-president-to-be, to thank him for his speechmaking.

Congratulations came, too, from Gov. Dewey. The President sent back this reply, "I thank you sincerely for your congratulations and good wishes. Your fine sportsmanship is deeply appreciated. We jointly owe congratulations to the American people who have once again shown the world the vitality of our free institutions."

Explains Why Pollsters Off

"Even the weather man can be wrong sometimes," Prof. Norman C. Meier of the SUI psychology department declared yesterday in response to questions on what happened to the public opinion polls Tuesday.

Meier is technical advisor for the Iowa Poll and is on the advisory board of the Gallup Poll.

The last Poll before the election, printed in the Des Moines Register, showed that Gov. Dewey would gather in 55 percent of the vote in Iowa compared with 43 percent for President Truman.

However complete Iowa totals in the presidential election yesterday showed that Dewey received 34,569 less votes in Iowa than did Mr. Truman.

Trend from Dewey

This final Iowa poll was taken approximately nine days before the election, Meier said, and a definite trend away from Dewey was "very noticeable."

The farm vote — which was indifferent toward Dewey after recent price drops — coupled with the heavy Democratic labor turnout, helped to make this trend, Meier said.

The error this year is no reason to discredit polls Meier said.

In the Iowa senatorial race the Iowa poll had indicated that Gillette should win with 51 percent of the vote. But the vote for Gillette reached almost 60 percent.

Minimum Estimate

Meier said the published 51 percent figure was the minimum estimate for Gillette. Some breakdowns of the poll showed Gillette's percentage at 55 — a figure which would have been within the four percent variation allowed in the polls, he added.

Since the state poll was established in 1943 it has missed on only one election, according to Meier. That was the Beardsley-Blue race in this year's Republican primary.

In the Republican gubernatorial race in June of 1946 the Iowa Poll predicted the exact percentage, Meier said.

Truman and Dewey Make Peace Appeal

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scrappy, underrated Harry Truman captured the presidential election yesterday in one of the biggest upsets in America's political history.

And in the hour of his greatest triumph, the Democratic party gave him a solid, comfortable majority in both senate and house.

It was a triumph which the little man from Missouri, standing almost alone against the flood-tide of pre-election forecasts, had predicted with unswerving confidence.

Down to defeat went Thomas E. Dewey, trying for a comeback along the road to the White House which invincible Franklin D. Roosevelt blocked four years ago.

Key GOP Losses

Down with him went Republican candidates in key congressional races and gubernatorial contests.

They went down fighting, in the toughest presidential battle since Woodrow Wilson squeezed out Charles Evans Hughes in 1916. Dewey conceded defeat at 10:15 a.m. (Iowa time) yesterday.

And at the moment of decision by tens of millions of American voters, victor and vanquished alike cried out their hopes for peace in a troubled world.

For himself, Mr. Truman pledged anew that he would give all his efforts "to the cause of peace in the world and the prosperity and happiness of our people."

Dewey Asks Unity

As Dewey lost, he called out to all Americans to "unite" behind the man who beat him and behind "every effort to keep our nation strong and free and establish peace in the world."

In those words of the President and the man who wanted to be president there was new notice that America's foreign policy will remain bipartisan, that it will remain one of unwavering firmness toward Russia.

In fact, there were suggestions that the first big diplomatic move by a chief executive bolstered by a resounding vote of confidence in his program will be in the direction of a military alliance with western Europe.

No Record Vote

The national popular vote lagged behind the record total of more than fifty million that had been expected. And there wasn't much chance it would climb to a new mark.

Early last night reports from 122,083 out of the 135,858 of the nation's polling places put the total at 44,491,891. It was split this way:

Truman 22,229,100, Dewey 20,371,674, Thurmond 862,429, Progressive Candidate Henry A. Wallace 1,228,391.

Same Electoral Vote

The electoral vote remained unchanged—324 for Mr. Truman and 189 for Dewey. It had gone up and down during the afternoon as California and its 25 votes leaned first to Truman, then to Dewey, then tilted back again.

But with Ohio's 25 votes finally in the bag for the Democrats, California couldn't change the election outcome by landing at last in the GOP column.

The grit and never-give-up spirit of the man who inherited the White House from Roosevelt couldn't be discounted. And Mr. Truman could say "I told you so." He had told the poll takers they would be red-faced yesterday. They were.

Schoolyard Straw Poll Ties Truman, Bonus

RED OAK (AP) — Two Red Oak second graders were discussing the election at recess yesterday when the teacher overheard part of the conversation.

"My folks voted for Truman," the first little girl said. "Did yours vote for him too?"

"Nope," said the second miss. "They voted for bonus."

Anderson Believes Illini at Peak

Underdog Iowa Hasn't Beaten Illinois for Six Straight Years

To beat Illinois Saturday, Hawkeye Coach Dr. Eddie Anderson thinks Iowa will need to play their best football of the season.

"I believe the team will have to play better football than it has yet shown in order to defeat that much-improved Illinois team," said Dr. Eddie yesterday.

"The men must be at their peak because we anticipate that Illinois will be ready to play their best game."

RAY CARLSON

Iowa has been called a 10-point underdog by betting circles early in the week for the game at Champaign, Ill.

If the Hawks should succeed in upsetting the "experts" a lot of minor strings will be snapped.

Illinois has won over Iowa regularly for the last six years since 1941, the longest winning streak in the series.

Might Take Second Place

An Iowa victory would not only break the streak and give Dr. Eddie a personal 3-3 break with the Illini, but would give Anderson-coached teams an even Big Nine record of 19-19 for seven years.

In addition, the Hawks might find themselves in a second-place tie in the conference, provided Northwestern loses to Wisconsin.

Left guard is still the biggest worry before the Iowa coaching staff. Regular Starter Joe Grothus will probably miss his second straight game since the Notre Dame affair when he injured his knee.

Behind Grothus are Ray Carlson, who has gotten into the lineup only sparingly so far this season with leg trouble, and Lou Ginsberg, another doubtful quantity after being injured last week.

Yesterday it looked as if Carlson was the most likely to start, backed up by Bill Kersten and Ginsberg as a possibility.

The encouraging running game has been drilled all week in hopes of cashing in on the promise Iowa showed on the ground against Wisconsin last week.

Fans Praised

Iowa fans were given much of the credit for the Hawkeyes' last-half upset of Wisconsin last week by both Anderson and Backfield Coach Frank Carideo yesterday.

"When we came back onto the field for the second half, the spirit of the fans was wonderful, even though we were down 13 points," Anderson praised.

"I think that spirit definitely gave the team the spark which set off the explosion for three second half touchdowns within eight minutes.

Carideo joined Anderson:

"I think our rooters carried us right down the field for that third touchdown. When we got the ball to start that last drive, I felt as if I were being pushed right out onto the field by that tremendous cheering.

"I know the players appreciated it."

Fans to Champaign

Hawkeye supporters have bought about 1,000 tickets to the Illinois-Iowa game at Illinois Saturday, Business Manager Frank Havlicek announced yesterday.

In addition, the Iowa band will appear before 42,000 expected fans in the Illinois stadium.

Picks Hawks to Lose 'Closest Game of Day'

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO, NOV. 3 (AP)—Giving the football roulette another spin:

Illinois 14 Iowa 13—Could be the closest game of the day . . . both clubs are showing improvement and bursts of unexpected power . . . Illinois running attack has clicked especially well in its last two games and should prove the deciding edge . . . Iowa's Al DiMarco and the Illini's Bernie Krueger will provide plenty of aerial fireworks . . .

Northwestern 27 Wisconsin 19—Playing at home for the first time since the "Goodbye Harry" incident, and before a Homecoming crowd at that, the Badgers are likely to hit their peak in this one . . . statistically, they have the flashiest running attack in the Big Nine, but Northwestern has the Rose Bowl in mind and should pull through with a hard earned win . . .

Minnesota 20 Purdue 13—Purdue is working back from a collapse that hit bottom in its loss to Illinois and may be ready to pull a major upset in this ancient rivalry . . . However, the Gophers know any trace of a Pasadena trip will vanish should they lose . . . that's enough to keep them buoyed . . .

Michigan 42 Navy 7—The Wolverines, locked with Notre Dame in race for the mythical national crown, would like to outdo the Irish who romped over Navy 41-7 . . . Otherwise, the score might be more orthodox . . .

Notre Dame 28 Indiana 7—With George Taliaferro handicapped with an injury, the Hoosiers don't stand much chance of denting Notre Dame's prestige . . .

Ohio State 25 Pittsburgh 6—The Panthers are flushed over their Indiana win, but their fever should drop considerably as Jerry Krall and Joe Whisler fan past them . . .

Michigan State 21 Marquette 12—Michigan State has lost only two games—those to the two top teams in the country, Michigan and Notre Dame . . .

Illinois Injuries All Slated for Iowa Tilt

CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) — Fear of further injuries to an already handicapped Illinois football squad prompted Coach Ray Eliot to curtail contact work in yesterday's practice session.

The top four Illini guards — Capt. Herbert Siegert, Art Archer, Chuck Gottfried and Aldo Martignago — have been nursing injuries, but team physicians said they should be ready for the game with Iowa Saturday.

Sam Piazza, fleet sophomore halfback who missed the Michigan game, also will be ready to resume his left halfback duties.

He Learned It the Hard Way--Never Bet on Football Games

By BEN FUNK

DENVER (AP) — The biggest football upset in the country last week didn't happen to a football team. It happened to Harry Bitman, Denver tailor.

Bitman, a small independent business man, was the victim of the most fantastic backfire in the history of football contests. He figures it will cost him $22,248, enough to send most small business men into bankruptcy.

Bitman's firm, known as Harman Tailors, sponsors a weekly radio contest in which fans are offered free suits for the best predictions each week on the outcome of ten close football games.

The joker in the rules provides that all persons naming all ten winners will receive suits.

Last week, Bitman disclosed yesterday, 412 persons picked all ten winners.

Bitman, who says he "didn't sleep for three nights" after getting the returns, figures that's $22,248 worth of suits. Production of the garments will tie up his small factory for several weeks during the winter rush season. Normally, it turns out only seven suits a day.

"I thought about cutting my throat," Bitman groaned, "then I talked with my attorney and he said there was a legal loophole I couse use to get out of paying off.

"But I've spent five years building up my business and I figured I'd have to close if I welched on all those people. So they're all going to get the suits as fast as we can make them."

The contest started at the beginning of the football season. For five straight weeks not a single person made a perfect pick. Bitman happily paid off one suit a week to the fan coming the nearest to it.

Then, two weeks ago, nine persons picked all ten teams.

Bitman consulted Chet Nelson, sports editor of the Rocky Mountain News and the commentator on his weekly radio show.

"Aw, go ahead and give all nine guys their suits," Nelson advised. "A thing like that couldn't happen again in a lifetime."

Then, last week, came the deluge.

"Holy smokes!" Bitman hollered, "Denver has more football experts than any other city in the world. Who'd ever dream a thing like this could happen to me!"

These were the ten games on the unfortunate card:

Detroit - Villanova, Alabama - Georgia, Columbia - Cornell, Holy Cross - Harvard, Michigan - Illinois, Minnesota - Indiana, Kansas - Oklahoma A&M, UCLA - Nebraska, Northwestern - Ohio State, SMU - Texas.

"And there wasn't an upset in the bunch," Bitman complained.

"That was a card that certainly 'suited' a lot of Denver people."

Dick Dunkel's COLLEGE FOOTBALL POWER INDEX

EXPLANATION—The Power Index provides a direct comparison of the relative strength of any two teams for this season to date. Thus, a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger than a 40.0 team on their comparative records, in which scoring margin has been weighed against strength of opposition. This does not necessarily mean that a 50.0 team should defeat a 40.0 team by exactly 10 points in the future. Teams rarely follow past performance that closely. The Dunkel system correlates records of all college teams and was started in 1929.

Girls Observe Scout Week

Iowa City Girl Scouts, directed by Mrs. Hugh Carson, have joined with Girl Scouts all over the country this week in the observance of national Girl Scout Week.

The Iowa City Girl Scout organization has received special distinction for a senior program which the national organization has authorized every senior troop to adopt. Special feature of the program is a planning board with representatives from each of the nine senior troops to plan meetings, activities, and camping trips.

Iowa City's 600 Girl Scouts have taken an active part in many community services. They assisted the Red Cross in preparing packets for drives and spent approximately 1,000 hours folding Christmas seals and Crippled Children's seals.

An extensive camping program is carried out by local members. Margie Moeller is the representative from Iowa City to the Mississippi Valley Girl Scout conference which will draw up plans for senior camp at Shaboenee camp, Moline, Ill.

Senior scouts will camp near St. Louis next summer in connection with an exchange camp established between St. Louis and Iowa City. Day camps and trip camps will be held at Camp Cardinal, four miles west of Iowa City.

Regardless of race or religion, every Iowa City girl is given the opportunity to belong to the Girl Scouts. Aid from private sources is offered to any girl who expresses the desire to become a Girl Scout but cannot because of financial reasons. Troops are organized in classes of every school, some having 100 percent membership.

Under the authorization of President Truman, a stamp honoring Juliette Gordon Low, Girl Scout founder, will be released this week. The stamp will go on sale in Iowa City today or tomorrow.

McBride's Haul

By BILL McBRIDE

A Des Moines Agent recently brought to my attention the Yaffle situation in London. It doesn't look good . . . I don't wish to be an alarmist, but this could easily turn into an international incident.

So far, Yaffle activities have been pretty much restricted to the British isles, but there is nothing except the Atlantic ocean between us and the worst case of Yaffling in history.

The DM Agent enclosed a clipping from the Register, which related in detail the first indication of Yaffles to be reported since before the War. I saw the article the day it was published, but failed to recognize it for what it is . . . a frightening thing.

Upon opening the letter, I knew it was of immediate importance, since the sender is an expert analyst of some recognition. Aside from his regular job, he washes dishes in a cafeteria which features chop suey, Hungarian goulash, Boston baked beans and southern fried chicken on its menu.

* * *

As it stands now, a woman by the name of Mrs. Gay in London (it's supposed to be gay in London in the spring too) is the chief target of Yaffle attacks. The condition of her home is sufficient evidence that dirty work is afoot . . . everyone walks, what with austerity and all.

Mrs. Gay's home is full of holes. This may seem insignificant at first, since your home might also be full of holes. Yours weren't caused by Yaffles, though . . . if they were, report it immediately. Also place pans on the floor. This is the wet season.

We seem to be losing the thread pretty consistently, don't we? There will be a five minute pause while a search is made for the thread. The spool seems to be missing as well.

* * *

We'll have to struggle along without that thread for the time being I guess . . . it was right here just a moment ago. But to delve further into the strange account of Yaffling, Mrs. Gay told representatives of the press that she first became aware of Yaffle operations one morning at 7 o'clock.

In her own words, "It started with two sharp raps, and then followed a rattle that reverberated through the house."

Before we carry on this discussion, it becomes necessary to identify the Yaffle. According to the best sources, a Yaffle is a green woodpecker with a laugh which sounds like, "Yaffle, Yaffle," from which it gains its name.

There is some dispute as to whether it is actually green or a sly red woodpecker in disguise. Some experts say the Yaffle originated in the Ukraine. If that is the case, I'm for throwing the whole shebang to the UN today.

* * *

Under no circumstances is the Yaffle to be confused with that good old American institution, the waffle. Whereas the Yaffle is a green woodpecker, a waffle is a corrugated flapjack designed to discourage syrup from seeking its own level.

Waffles are definitely a bourgeois item, and are frequently seen in the company of fat, capitalistic sausages. From that you can see there is no connection between the Yaffles and waffles.

This London Yaffle has Mrs. Gay in the straits of nervous fantods, and I can't say that I blame her. In describing her skirmishes with the unruly woodpecker she said, "When I scare it away, it laughs at me from a neighboring tree."

* * *

It is also noteworthy that Yaffles have weak spots . . . mainly that they prefer to seek out "neighboring trees" when frightened.

I'm not sure if I would recognize a neighboring tree if I saw one, but then it may be that Mrs. Gay meant to say "neighborly trees." Any tree that would be neighborly to a Yaffle ought to be chopped down in disgrace and hauled off to the nearest toothpick mill.

At present this situation would seem to be strictly the problem of Mrs. Gay and the British commonwealth, but let's not be complacent.

Yaffles may be right here under our very noses. Only yesterday I heard a man say that while public opinion experts were out looking for a few stray trends, some one made great cavities in their polls.

Which Chicago Newspaper Do You Read?

One of the big cries raised during the campaign was directed against media of mass communication, especially the nation's newspapers.

The press was accused of distorting the facts and slanting news coverage. This charge was brought chiefly by the Progressive party, but Truman lashed out against public opinion polls during the late days of the campaign.

Partial substantiation of both of these charges can be seen in the post-election analysis of newspapers and voting returns.

The two-star Chicago Tribune has earned itself a place beside the old Literary Digest by jumping the gun—and then running the wrong way—on how America voted.

The lead of their story which read: "Dewey and Warren won a sweeping victory in the presidential election yesterday" was indicative of the general tone of the paper. It came out early perhaps, but from the returns received here there was not a moment of the election when anyone could count a party in or out.

Whether or not confidence in the Tribune will be shaken is the big question. Yesterday's paper (shown in the picture) sold out early in Iowa City newsstands; but the question is, will the next day's paper and the next be taken up with the same attitudes as before by that paper's readers?

The same question may be posed concerning public opinion polls. The error committed by these polls is not that they are all wrong in sampling opinion; but rather that their deductions have been too freely exploited.

In a statement last week accompanying one of the Gallup poll reports it was predicted that "Dewey will win the presidential election with a substantial majority of electoral votes."

Actually the poll of popular opinion was not so far off as the above statement would indicate. The pollster simply went out of his realm of sampling opinion into the uncertain spot of predicting national political results.

The whole election points up one important fact. The American voters are not doing their thinking through opinion polls or unreasonable propaganda —they have matured to the point of choosing officials by present convictions rather than straight slates from national down through local government.

International Club to Meet

Speakers from five continents will be featured at the International club meeting at 7:45 p.m. Sunday in the River room of Iowa Union.

Faculty people and students interested in international cooperation will be welcome at the meeting devoted to International Students' day Nov. 17, President Michael Flach, Czechoslovakia, said yesterday.

The International student congress meets annually on Nov. 17 in Prague, Czechoslovakia, and that day is celebrated by students all over the world, Flach explained.

Each of the five speakers will give 10-minute talks about the work and conditions under which students work in the respective continents.

Speakers Named

Prof. Hew Roberts, department of education, will speak for Australia; Prof. J. M. Jauch, department of physics, for Europe; Prof. Russell Whitesel, department of political science, for America; Ranjana Sidhanta, Lucknow, India, for Asia, and Son Chinfoot, G, South Africa, for Africa.

Speaking for SUI students, Student Council President Evan Hultman will address an allegorical group made up of a man and a woman from the negro, Chinese, white and Hindu races. Flach will address the group in behalf of foreign students.

Group singing of foreign folk songs, led by Brig Wheelock, G, Sioux City, will open a short business meeting.

Two Czechoslovakian folk songs, directed by Martha Hiscock, A2, Iowa City, will precede the program. Dancing will round out the evening.

British Oil Expert Visiting University

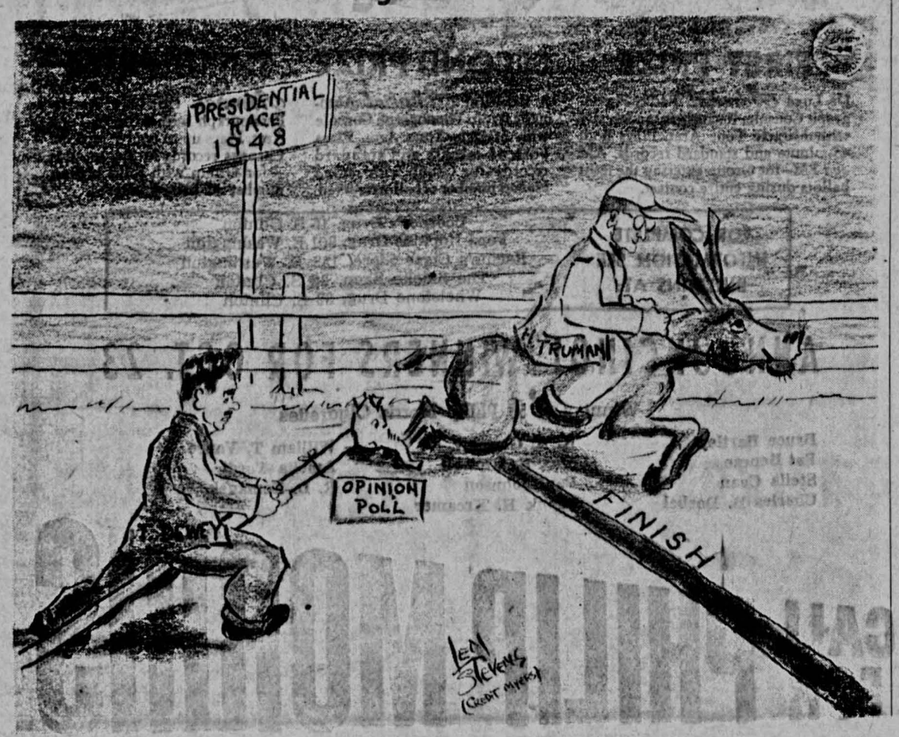
A. Beeby Thompson, English geologist, will confer informally with students and staff members of the SUI geology department during the rest of this week, Prof. A. C. Tester said yesterday.

Thompson and his wife arrived here last night. They are the guests of Prof. and Mrs. Tester.

Thompson, consulting petroleum geologist of Great Britain and a geological engineer, is an author of text books on petroleum resources and development. He has worked extensively in Africa, Asia, and in Russia as well as in other European countries, Tester said.

Most of It's Underwater, Tom

Not Enough in the Stretch



UN Reaction —

End Deadlock, Austin Asks

PARIS (AP) — The American delegation to the United Nations, swiftly following up President Truman's amazing election comeback, called yesterday for high level east-west talks to find out why Russia refuses to support measures to safeguard peace.

Warren R. Austin, chief permanent American delegate, made the bid for the talks at a full-dress session of the general assembly.

At the same time he and American delegate John Foster Dulles, who probably would have been the next secretary of state had Gov. Thomas E. Dewey been elected, assured that UN that American bi-partisan foreign policy would be maintained.

Austin also, in a separate statement to the political committee, said that the United States was now ready to push to showdown decisions on Palestine and other critical problems which had been put aside until the voters of the greatest power in the world could name their leader for the next four years.

Austin was speaking on the atomic energy control problem when he urged before the 58-nation assembly that the big powers confer at a high level chiefly to find out:

". . . The cause of the Soviet Union's finding itself at present unwilling or unable to take a co-operative part with other nations in the necessary measures for the maintenance of peace."

Austin's statement actually was written before the dramatic news of the overturn in the American election was received here. But it was delivered in the knowledge that he spoke for a United America and it was the first major policy statement by any American official after the victory news.

Secretary of State George C. Marshall, No. 1 diplomatist of the United States, remained almost silent. As usual, he delegated the work of appearing before individual UN bodies to his aides.

But before the news that Dewey had conceded the election came, and at a time when the UN had not realized the sudden turn, Marshall was asked about a report that he would resign Jan. 20 no matter which candidate won.

He pencilled out on a piece of paper the comment:

"I have made no statement whatsoever. I have on numerous occasions expressed a very sincere desire to retire from government service."

But Marshall, during his brief diplomatic career, has taken the attitude that he is still a soldier whose life is at his country's service.

United Nations delegates generally were pleased especially by the fact that the election itself was now over and that an end of weeks and even months of uncertainty on American policy probably had ended.

Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, president of the general assembly when he said of President Truman in a special statement:

"What a magnificent fighter!"

Vladimir Houdek of Czechoslovakia gave the iron curtain view:

"It doesn't make any difference. To us there is no difference between the two parties."

Hundreds of Teachers

Four hundred teachers for one school year—"Impossible! Utopian!" sigh school boards in desperate need of teachers.

Yet at University high school more than 400 student teachers will have a hand in teaching 224 students before the school year ends.

This enlarged staff is explained by the fact that one of the school's primary purposes is to provide laboratory facilities for future teachers enrolled in SUI education courses.

Aid Regular Staff

Student teachers augment the regular faculty staff of 33, 13 of whom are employed on a permanent basis. Twenty are graduate students teaching part-time and serving as critic teachers.

Prof. L. A. Van Dyke, director of the school, heads the faculty. Myron Olson, who held a similar position in Fort Dodge, is the new principal and Lester Anderson, formerly of Rochester, Minn. is school counselor.

There are now 194 student teachers in the system. More than 200 are expected next semester.

University high school is actually a secondary school including grades seven through twelve.

Attracts National Interest

Because results of experimental study methods at University high are of state and national interest, the student body is kept as representative as possible, Van Dyke explained.

Among the experiments now under way is a three year program of general mathematics in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, emphasizing phases that are practical in carry-over value to home and business.

Unusual Classes

Another departure from ordinary academic procedure is the combination of science, social studies and health as a single course in junior high. The class, which meets two hours daily, has attracted nation-wide attention of psychiatrists.

Methodist Minister Discusses Needs of India's Government

"The independent Indian government and educational system will have to undergo many changes to be of benefit to the people of India," the Rev. Paul Ramaseshan, a Methodist minister from Madras, India, said at an interview yesterday.

The Rev. Mr. Ramaseshan, an authority on Indian rural life and work, is in Iowa City visiting his daughter Rukmini, a graduate student in education. He is on a six-month lecture tour of the United States under the auspices of the North American Foreign Missions assembly.

Cites Agricultural Needs

Speaking on rural conditions in India, the Rev. Mr. Ramaseshan said it will be necessary for the government to instigate new long range production and agricultural plans if it is going to succeed in rejuvenating the land of India.

The Rev. Mr. Ramaseshan said his main purpose in speaking before meetings of the Foreign Missions assembly in this country is to conduct propaganda for the rural churches of the far eastern countries and to canvass sympathy and cooperation for rural eastern churches.

Speaks in Des Moines

He spoke to 300 persons at a youth rally in Des Moines Sunday in connection with a two-day North American Foreign Missions conference.

So far in the mid-west the Rev. Mr. Ramaseshan has addressed audiences in Detroit, Chicago, Grand Rapids, Milwaukee, Minneapolis and Des Moines. After he leaves here Sunday he will speak in Denver, Lincoln, Kansas City and St. Louis.

The Rev. Mr. Ramaseshan arrived in this country on Sept. 13 and will leave in February to return to India by way of England.

Newman Club Gets New Loud Speaker

The Newman club initiated the new $225 public address system of the Catholic Student center, 108 McLean street, at a meeting Tuesday night.

The Stromberg-Carlson loud speaker system was installed to accommodate bigger audiences at the center.

In the past, the Rev. Leonard J. Brugman, director of the center, said yesterday, only 125 people could be accommodated at any meeting in the center. Now, he said, with a microphone in the main meeting room and loud speakers in two adjoining lounges 250 people can be accomodated.

Plan New Garage to Allow Clearing of Site for Library

The university plans to build a new 31-vehicle garage in the 400 block on South Madison street, George Horner, university architect, said yesterday.

Construction of the garage will also be the first of a series of steps that will eventually allow work to begin on SUI's new library, Horner said.

He said that later in the week the university will offer for sale two vacant dwellings, now occupying the garage site. One is a two-story seven-room frame house, the other a duplex bungalow consisting of two apartments.

The university purchased the 86 by 150 foot lot on which both houses are located some time ago, Horner said.

To House Ambulances

The new garage will be composed of two banks of individual garages that will face each other. A driveway off Madison street will run between them. One bank will hold 15 vehicles, the other 16. Each bank will be heated by a radiant heat system.

Horner said at first only hospital ambulances will be kept there, but later it will become the central garage for the university's physical plant.

Bids on actual construction of the structure will be accepted in the near future, Horner said.

Prelude Library Construction

He said two steps must be taken to enable work on the library to be located at the corner of Madison and Washington streets across from the present reserve library.

1. The physical plant's work shop, now occupying the library site, must be moved to a new location on Front street, near the Burlington street Crandic station. A new shop will be built there.

2. The present university garage, now using the same area as the new shop will occupy, must be moved to the new 31-vehicle garage on Madison street.

Horner said plans for the new library have been revised and that bids on construction will probably be accepted in early January. Last June, all bids on construction were rejected by the state as "too high."

To Tell About 'Little Known Siam'

SUI GRADUATE DOROTHY WARD will tell an Information First audience about "Little Known Siam" at 4:30 p.m. today in the senate chamber of Old Capitol. Miss Ward recently returned from the American embassy at Bangkok, Siam, where she was librarian in the U. S. information service for the past two years. A native of Iowa City, Miss Ward received her masters degree in speech here in 1943.

P. Taylor to Speak On Fiction Writing

Peter Taylor, noted fiction writer, will speak on "Writing Fiction" at 8 p.m. today in the Senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Taylor, brought here under the auspices of the Writer's Workshop, will read an unpublished story and discuss its composition, Prof. Paul Engle, English department, said yesterday.

"A Long Fourth," a book of short fiction stories, has recently been published by Taylor, Engle said.

Holy Hour Devotions At St. Thomas More

St. Thomas More Chapel will hold holy hour devotions to the Sacred Heart of Jesus Christ at 7:30 tonight. Confessions will be heard from 3:30 to 5 o'clock this afternoon and after the 7:30 holy hour service tonight.

Masses will be at 5:45, 7 and 7:30 a.m. Friday.

First Corn Loan Given Humphreys

The first corn loan in Johnson county this season was made yesterday to Allen Humphreys, route 3, County AAA Chairman Ray E. Smalley said.

Humphrey's corn had a moisture of 19.9. Eight hundred ninety-one bushels were sealed.

This year's corn loan rate for Johnson county is $1.39. Moisture test of corn under the loan program cannot exceed 20.5, Smalley said.

Four-Block Black-Out Caused by Line Blaze

Iowa City homes in a four block area and Mercy hospital were without electric power between 7 and 8 p.m. last night when two power transformers at 400 N. Linn street burned out.

Repairmen from the Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Co. attributed the cause to a "cut-out" in the transformers. The damage was repaired and power restored after the fire department extinguished the blaze.

Hillel to Hear of Jewish Philosophy, Art

Prof. Ralph Marcus, Oriental institute of the University of Chicago, will speak on "Judaism and Hellenism: In the World of Philosophy and Art" at Hillel foundation 7:30 Friday night.

The forum Friday night is the first in a series of forums to be conducted at Hillel Foundation on "The Intellectual Pilgrimage of Judaism." The forums are designed to help large academic audiences achieve greater familiarity with basic Jewish issues, Prof. Judah Goldin, foundation director, said yesterday.

In the second forum of the series Dec. 3, Prof. Frank Rosenthal, Drake university, will discuss "The Discovery of Judaism: Christian Scholars of Hebrew."

On Jan. 14 Prof. Robert S. Hoyt of the State University of Iowa will speak on "Rome and Jerusalem: The Church, the Jews, and Judaism", and Feb. 11, Prof. Cecil Roth, Oxford University, England, will discuss "Freedom and Tradition: The Making of the Modern Jew."

Chorus to Present Concert Wednesday

The university mixed chorus will present its first concert of the season Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the main lounge of Iowa Union, Prof. Herald Stark, chorus director, said yesterday.

Tickets may be obtained without cost at the Iowa Union desk beginning Saturday morning.

For part of the program, Stark said, the chorus of 185 voices will be divided into two sections, one conducted by Stark, the other by Assistant Conductor Charles Davis.

Stark said he had not decided the exact program which will be presented, but he said three choruses from Rossini's "Stabat Mater" would be sung.

Soloists in the "Stabat Mater" performance will be Penny Dykstra, soprano, Dorothy Krebill, contralto, Ralph Kent, tenor, Frank Pooler, baritone and Offie Leeper, bass, Stark said.
