Soviet Filibuster Ends As UN Limits Talks

PARIS (UP) — The United Nations political committee slapped a gag rule on debate on the Greek situation yesterday to break a filibuster by Yugoslavia and other Russian bloc countries.

American Delegate John Foster Dulles, accused the Soviet bloc of trying to frustrate the UN assembly with a filibuster in the Greek case.

The Soviet bloc heatedly denied the charge, but members of the political committee showed their impatience by clamping a 10-minute limit on all future speeches in the debate.

The vote to restrict the discussions was 42 to 1. Alex Bebler, Yugoslav delegate, cast the lone vote against the limit.

Bebler jestingly proposed that the 10-minute limit apply to all delegates except members of the Soviet bloc.

But Russian Delegate Alexandre Bogomolov bawled out Bebler for attempting to speak in Russia's name.

"I wish to say the Yugoslav delegate has no authority to speak for the Soviet delegation," Bogomolov said.

Russia and other Soviet-bloc countries had supported Yugoslavia in obstructing passage of a resolution by which the UN assembly would be called on to demand Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia for aiding the Greek Communist guerrillas.

When the committee finally adjourned last night it had approved all major provisions of the four-power resolution.

The committee yesterday called on Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia to cooperate with Greece in settling their troubles and to cooperate with the UN special committee on the Balkans (UNSCOB).

UN Mediator Asks for Armistice in Palestine

PARIS (UP) — Acting Mediator Dr. Ralph J. Bunche asked the United Nations security council yesterday to order an armistice in Palestine, establish a broad non-partisan Arab and Jewish and call upon them to reduce their armed forces.

Thomas Committee Shelves Spy Probes

WASHINGTON (UP) — The house un-American activities committee is going into hibernation for the rest of this year.

Informed sources said yesterday the committee has quietly shelved its pre-election plans for major investigations of atomic espionage and communism in Hollywood.

Four Republican members of the committee who retain leadership until the 81st congress convenes in January, are not in position at present to undertake lengthy hearings.

Reps. John McDowell (R-Pa.) and Richard B. Vail (R-Ill.) were defeated at the polls last Tuesday.

Rep. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) was elected to a senate seat.

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-N.J.) who was reelected to his seventh consecutive house term, was indicted by a federal grand jury Monday on charges of conspiring to defraud the government by padding his office payroll.

D. B. Stuit Appointed Temporary Dean of Liberal Arts College

Dewey B. Stuit, dean of student personnel services at the State University of Iowa, has been appointed acting dean of the college of liberal arts.

The appointment was announced yesterday by President Virgil M. Hancher.

Dean Stuit will take over the office of Dean Earl J. McGrath who resigned, effective Nov. 15, to become professor of higher education and head of a new program in the training of future college teachers at the University of Chicago.

A member of the faculty of the department of psychology, Dean

DEWEY B. STUIT

Stuit has been with the university since 1938. In 1946 he became professor of psychology and director of the student counseling office.

He was appointed dean of student personnel services in 1947 as part of a reorganization of those services. He will continue to perform his duties with the personnel service.

President Hancher indicated that a permanent dean of the college of liberal arts will be appointed in the near future.

Authorities Find Schacht Living in Small Cottage

HAMBURG, GERMANY (UP) — Hjalmar Schacht, object of an extensive search by German authorities since last Wednesday, was found today living in a small cottage at Seppensen, 20 miles south of Hamburg.

Authorities have been hunting for the German financial wizard, who served as president of the Reichsbank and finance minister for Adolph Hitler, with a warrant for retrial as a major Nazi offender.

MOELLER TO SPEAK

Prof. Leslie G. Moeller, director of the SUI school of journalism, will speak on "Keeping Down Newspaper Production Costs" at the Iowa Press association district meeting at Washington, Iowa, Friday.

Population Shifts in Holy Land Fighting

DESERTED BY ARABS are these empty homes in the Arab section of Safad, northern Galilee town in Palestine, which once had an Arab population of 10,000. Most of the Arabs fled to Syria and Lebanon after Jewish forces took the area and now the town is entirely Jewish, with the Arab section completely deserted. Meanwhile . . .

Nation Hit by Bad Weather

CHICAGO (AP) — A batch of bad weather — rain, snow, sleet and sub-zero temperatures — hit scattered areas in the nation yesterday and a hurricane was cooking off Florida's east coast.

The hurricane still was out in the Atlantic, kicking up winds as high as 75 miles an hour. It was about 600 miles from President Truman's vacation site at Key West and moving northwest or slightly north of west at from 16 to 18 miles an hour.

Cold weather elsewhere might act to halt the hurricane. The Miami storm forecaster said a cold front is moving east from the Mississippi river area and might stop the westerly movement of the hurricane.

Temperatures plummeted in the Rocky mountain area, and the mercury reached three below at Leadville, Colo. West of the Rockies it was clear and cold. Seattle had 32 degrees.

A 200-mile wide rain belt stretched across the Lake Michigan region, reaching through parts of Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and as far south as Louisiana. It was mixed with snow in some places.

An inch of snow fell at Wausau, Wis., and sleet hit Fort Worth, Tex.

Rain also was reported in the middle Atlantic area, while wind gusts which reached 80 miles an hour struck Fontana, Calif.

Strong winds in southern California fanned forest fires in areas about 40 miles southwest of Los Angeles. Settlements in Silverado and Modjeska canyons of the Santa Ana mountains were evacuated.

Mercury Wavers; First Snow Melts

The magician's tagline "now you see it, now you don't," could easily be applied to yesterday's first snow of the season.

Precipitation wavered back and forth between rain and snow most of the morning. Large, white snowflakes were evident at times, but they quickly vanished after hitting the warm ground.

The temperature fluctuated quite radically from hour to hour. The mercury slid from a peak of 56 degrees Monday to 34 degrees at noon yesterday. Then in the afternoon the mercury started climbing again, reaching 42 degrees at 4:00 p.m.

Despite yesterday's short sample of winter, the Iowa five-day weather outlook indicates that temperatures will average two to three degrees above normal. Today's high is expected to be 45 degrees.

Husband Costs Wife $15,000 Election Bet

WASHINGTON (UP) — Mrs. India Edwards, director of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, said yesterday that her husband cost her about $15,000 last Tuesday.

She explained that her spouse refused to let her put a $1,000 election bet on President Truman at 15-1 odds.

... JEWS RETURN TO THEIR HOMES in the Negev. Jewish settlers of Nizanim, in northern Negev, who returned to their homes after the settlement was recaptured by Israel forces, dig for bodies of comrades who died defending the community before it fell to the Egyptians last June. The bodies had been thrown into trenches and covered with sand in hasty burials.

Strikes, Food Riots in China; Communists Menace Suchow

SHANGHAI (UP) — Food riots and strikes broke out in Shanghai yesterday and China's new "gold yuan" currency plunged to virtual worthlessness.

Roger D. Lapham, Marshall plan administrator in China, promised "tons and tons" of rice by Dec. 1 in an effort to ease tension, but hungry mobs wrecked rice shops and looted vegetable stands in widespread rioting.

A United States army officer with long service in China, said: "This is the worst I've ever seen. These people are angry. They're just ripe for the Communists."

Economic chaos in South China overshadowed even the military situation in the north, where tens of thousands of victorious Chinese Communists swept through Great Wall passes from Manchuria.

The Communists claimed the capture of Shanhaikwan, "guardian of the North China plains," and Suchow, gateway to Nanking, was menaced by three Chinese Communist columns driving in hard from the north, west and east.

Despite President Chiang Kai-Shek's plea Monday for solidarity in the face of military setbacks, angry workers refused to accept the government's currency and demanded food instead.

However, a strike by 12,000 Shanghai, Nanking and Hangchow rail workers was called off after a few hours yesterday. The workers returned to their jobs after the government railway administration agreed to meet demands for more rice pay-worner and a 100-gold-yuan wage increase.

Prospects for alleviating the immediate hunger threat brightened yesterday with the announcement of an emergency program by Mayor K. C. Wu. He said an agreement had been reached with Lapham under which rice would be borrowed from a "neighboring country" to be repaid with ECA relief rice to arrive later.

Jews Ask Truman For Aid In Israel, Arab Negotiations

No More Nights Out for This 'Jurist'

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. (AP) — "Has the jury returned its verdict yet?" a woman telephoned Westchester county courthouse yesterday.

Supreme Court Jury Commissioner Ralph Mumford replied that no jury was deliberating at the time. The woman spluttered a denunciation of her husband and added:

"He hasn't been home all night and telephoned to tell me he was locked up on a deadlocked jury."

Barkley Joins Pres. Truman

KEY WEST, FLA. (AP) — Sen. Alben W. Barkley, the vice president-elect, joined President Truman at this vacation retreat last night, giving rise to speculation important administration changes soon would be in the making.

Barkley refused to talk politics — to reporters, that is — when he landed at Boca Chica airport with Leslie L. Biffle, director of the senate Democratic policy committee.

They drove to the president's quarters on the submarine base here where Mr. Truman greeted them on the back lawn of the commandant's house in one of the three Irish linen sports shirts presented to him earlier in the day for his part in the recent American Legion convention in Miami.

"Hi boss," the president said in welcoming the former senate majority leader under whom he once served.

A black and white cat scampered away as Barkley and Biffle drove up.

"You almost ran over my cat," the president complained. And that reminded him of a cat story which most reporters figured it was best not to relate.

Sen. J. Howard McGrath, the Democratic national chairman, is due later in the week.

"I'm just down here to rest — I'm not talking politics," Barkley smilingly observed to reporters.

Democrats Declare Purging of 'Rebels'

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Democrats yesterday were moving quietly to rebuild the southern wing of their party after announcing plans for a purge of "rebel" leaders who founded the states' rights offshoot.

Southerners who supported President Truman are being given the blessing of the Democratic national committee to weld together pro-administration forces in their states.

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath made it clear that there will be no room in party ranks for the key men who spearheaded the anti-Truman states rights movement. They will be purged from any positions of leadership they now hold in the regular party and will be denied place in high party councils in the future, he asserted.

Meantime, there is increasing talk of efforts to depose "old guard" leaders of the defeated Republican party.

Charge Britain Arming Iraq, Trans-Jordan

TEL AVIV, ISRAEL (UP) — Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of Israel, yesterday called an 11th hour appeal to President Truman stressing the "urgent need" for direct negotiations among Israel and the Arab states.

Weizmann said the negotiations should be based on "speedy withdrawal of the invading armies, full recognition of the state of Israel and its admission to the United Nations."

Weizmann called attention to the alleged maneuvers intended, he said, to detach "from our young commonwealth" vital territories in the Negev desert of southern Palestine. He said he believed that his intervention might help toward reaffirmation of the U.S. presidential policy and "its forthright assertion at the forthcoming meeting of the political committee of the general assembly."

The Israel foreign office also told headquarters of Dr. Ralph Bunche, acting UN mediator for Palestine, that Britain is re-arming both Iraq and Trans-Jordan, Arab foes of Israel. It charged large shipments of arms and military equipment for Iraq, including tanks of all classes, have arrived at the Port of Basra in a British ship.

In London the war office denied that any British troops have entered Palestine, since the evacuation after the British mandate was surrendered. A foreign office spokesman also said "no arms have been shipped either to Iraq or Trans-Jordan."

In the field, Israel forces yesterday captured the Egyptian fortress at Iraq-Suweidan, some 25 miles south of Tel Aviv, leaving only two Egyptian bases in southern Palestine.

The battle started, Perلمان said, when the Egyptians attempted to sneak through the Israeli Cordon to their main base at Faluja, about four miles to the south and east.

Plan Parade on Armistice Day

A half-hour parade will highlight Armistice Day observances groups participating tomorrow morning.

The parade will form at 9:45 a.m. at the intersection of Washington and Gilbert streets and will wind up on the east approach of Old Capitol.

Glenn Houston, American Legion commander of Post No. 17, will make the major address of the morning's activities. Prof. Harrison J. Thornton, history department, will speak also.

Two minutes of silence will be observed at 11 a.m., honoring the veterans of all U. S. wars. An aerial bomb, fired from atop the Iowa State Bank and Trust company will signal the silent observance. Free lunch will be served to all veterans at the Community building at 11:30 a.m. The American Legion will sponsor the meal.

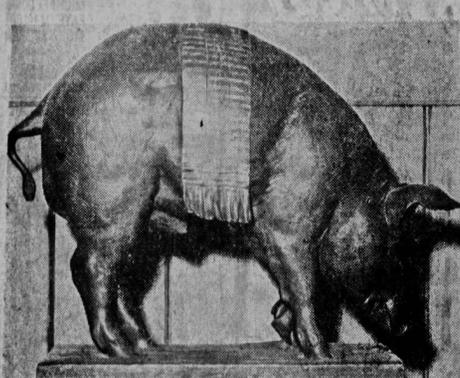

The office of student affairs said yesterday that SUI classes will not be dismissed to view the parade.

Judge Rules She Keep Hubby Till She Is 21

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Lorraine Carroll Conley, 19, wasn't too young to get married six months ago but Superior Judge Frank G. Swain yesterday said she's too young to get a divorce.

The pretty model came into court seeking to set aside her marriage to Broker Albert J. Conley Jr. Judge Swain said she'd have to bring a legal guardian into court or wait until she's 21.

Humanities to Hear Wisconsin Professor

Merrill Jensen, professor of history at the University of Wisconsin, will discuss American history at the Humanities society meeting Friday at 8 p.m. in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

His topic, "Union Now and Union Then: A Misuse of Evidence," deals with American experience and application to modern problems of federalism and union. Prof. George L. Mosse, president of the Humanities society, said yesterday.

Three SUI professors will give commentaries after Jensen's speech. They are A. C. Kern and M. F. Heiser of the English department and G. E. Mowry of the history department.

Jensen is the author of the book "The Articles of Confederation."

Polio 'Actives' Decline To 17 at U. Hospitals

The active polio list at University hospitals dropped to 17 yesterday when one patient was discharged and no new patients were reported.

Discharged was Charles Henry, 28, Burlington. He was admitted to University hospitals Nov. 1.

Makes 'Mings'

Modeled After Trees Grown in Orient

With a few cents' worth of plaster, a handful of sticks and chunks of rock moss, Mrs. Donna Palmer, 147 Riverside park, has created a Ming tree, an unusual ornament for table or mantelpiece.

The tree is modeled after the gnarled trees of the Orient, some of which have been family treasures for a thousand years.

Taking her cue from the September Better Homes and Gardens, Mrs. Palmer tacked several twisted roots together to shape a wind-twisted tree. The trunk and branches she painted with a dark-stain varnish.

Then she embedded the trunk in a plaster-of-Paris mold heavy enough to hold it upright.

With a vacuum cleaner sprayer attachment she sprayed bits of rock moss for foliage. In this case white paint was used instead of green for a stylized rather than a naturalistic effect.

When the moss dried, Mrs. Palmer wired and glued it to the ends of the branches and completed the centerpiece with two small Oriental figurines.

Other colors, such as cherry-pink, can be used for the foliage and the base can also be painted with glue and sprinkled with colored sand.

Mrs. Palmer has made several Ming trees for herself, relatives and neighbors.

University Students Organize Club to Discuss Vital Issues

A Science and Social Philosophy club has been formed on the SUI campus. It was organized by a group of students who felt the need here for a society stimulating analytic and impartial thought on today's vital issues and social problems.

Deciding that the club should study these issues using the scientific approach to the social sciences, they proposed their plan to faculty members in the various university departments.

Receive Recognition

After obtaining approval and guidance on this subject, they applied for and received official recognition from the office of student affairs.

A council of students and faculty members was organized, and officers for the club were chosen by the council. The present officers are Gerold McClosky, president; Gene Krouse, vice-president; and Ruth Koenig, secretary-treasurer. Faculty advisor for the group is Prof. J. L. Cobitz of the philosophy department.

Study Vital Issues

The club will attack the vital issues of the day through forums, panel discussions and speeches. Persons considered experts on the subject under consideration will speak or lead the discussions. They may be faculty members, students or noted authorities.

At its initial meeting Nov. 30, Prof. Kirk Porter, head of the political science department, and Dr. Everett Hall, head of the philosophy department, will speak on "Analysis of the Scientific Method in Social Science."

Discuss Semantics

At later meetings the group intends to discuss "What is Semantics" and analyze the "Marxian" concept from the philosophical and historical points of view.

McClosky emphasized that the group proposes to present an understanding of the day's social problems without attempting to convince or confuse.

All students are invited to attend these meetings. Membership in the club requires only attendance and participation in the meetings. The group expects to meet in the senate chamber of Old Capitol.

Lions Slate Speech By Meier on Polls

"The Role of Public Opinion Polls in American Election Activities" will be the subject of a speech by Prof. Norman C. Meier, psychology department, at a noon luncheon of the Lions club today at Reich's cafe.

Meier, well known for his work as a consultant to public opinion pollsters, said yesterday that he will discuss what happened to the polls in the recent presidential election and the function of public opinion polls.

He said he would discuss ways the public has missed the idea of opinion polls and why the polls can't be blamed for the predictions in the recent Dewey-Truman campaign.

FINED ON 2 CHARGES

Schuyler Proffitt, Muscatine, paid $25 in fines to Justice of the Peace J. M. Kadlec yesterday. Proffitt was charged with hunting without a license and carrying an assembled gun in his car. He paid $12.50 for each charge.

Coffee Hour Talks Opened by Johnson Lecture on Russia

The Union Board gave its first coffee hour lecture of the season at the Memorial Union library today at 4:15. Prof. Jack Johnson opened the series with a discussion of Russian-American diplomacy and the effects of the national election on Russian relations.

He described our recent Russian policy as going through three stages, the era of Roosevelt, Byrnes, and Truman. He also affirmed that there is "no such thing as bi-partisan policy," despite the popular notion which has arisen from the talk coming out of Washington.

He defined the conflict of the U. S. containment policy and the Russian expansion movement as "a true dilemma." He referred to Harry Truman as "ineffective even when he is right," but, nevertheless, a man with "his heart in the right place" and "a tough customer" as far as Russia is concerned.

"The key to the situation," he asserted, "is to see who Truman appoints as secretary of state if Marshall resigns." "The election was a victory for liberalism" and the one path of the three potential ones that Russia preferred least to see followed by the American people, he said. "They would have preferred an extreme left or extreme right victory, in other words, a stronger showing for Wallace, or the victory of the conservative elements of the Republican party," said Johnson.

"Russia dislikes most a victory for liberalism. Liberalism is as strongly opposed to communism, if not more so than conservatism," Johnson declared.

Editors to Meet Labor, Business

Five officials of corporations and labor unions will confer with city editors of 25 midwestern newspapers in a two-day seminar here Nov. 15 and 16.

Relations of newspapers with business and labor will be among the problems studied by the newspaper executives. The seminar will be the first session of the Iowa Press institute established by the SUI school of journalism.

Other speakers will include 15 hospital officials and doctors.

Gets Divorce Decree, Custody of Minor Son

Mary Agnes Haman yesterday was granted a divorce from Francis W. Haman, Iowa City, after the defendant failed to appear at the hearing in Johnson county district court.

The plaintiff was awarded custody of a minor son, now in the army. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

Plant Tour Slated For SUI Students

Thirty students in the college of commerce will make an industrial tour of the John Deere plant at Moline, Ill., tomorrow.

Arrangements for the tour were made by Prof. Walter L. Daykin of the college of commerce and Russell Stark, tour chairman. It is sponsored by Sigma Delta Pi, professional commerce fraternity.

The SUI tourists will be guests of Deere company officials at a noon luncheon.

The forty law seniors who are scheduled for graduation in February yesterday elected Herman T. Bailey, 1027 Finkbine park, as their class president, the law office said.

New Class in 'Dry Skiing' to Be Organized

A class in "dry skiing" will be organized at the women's gymnasium tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. The no-credit class will be conducted by Louise Roloff of the women's physical education department, the department announced.

SUI students and faculty, men and women, who can furnish their own skis, boots, and poles may join the class. Ski boots are essential.

Those who cannot come to the first meeting of the class should contact Miss Roloff before the group is organized. Students who have ski equipment that could be brought back to school after Thanksgiving or Christmas are welcome to attend.

Dry skiing helps get muscles in shape and ready for the first snow fall, Miss Roloff said. It helps beginners understand the fundamentals of skiing and gives them practice in making turns. Miss

Federalists Pick 5 From Local Group For Policy Parley

The Iowa United World Federalists executive director, the executive secretary and three university members will attend the national UWF convention in Minneapolis, Nov. 12-14.

Going to the convention, which will form national UWF policy for 1949, will be Mr. and Mrs. David Stanley of Iowa City, state executive director and secretary respectively; Harlan Hockenber, Des Moines; Robert H. Myers, Quincy, Ill., and Robert H. Morris, Storkport. Hockenber will be the SUI voting delegate.

The convention is important to the university UWF chapter since the local branch will be more or less bound by policy formulated at the meeting, local UWF president William Shuttleworth said yesterday. Local chapters are expected to follow this policy so as to distinguish them as supporters of UWF, rather than other world government boosters, he explained.

Stanley pointed out yesterday that the national convention will present ideas for chapter projects to the local delegates.

Convention speakers will include Minnesota Gov. Luther Youngdahl, national UWF President Cled Meyer and Minnesota Senator-Elect Hubert M. Humphrey.

The election of Humphrey and other world government supporters to the U.S. congress has soared UWF hopes, Stanley declared. "Chances for world government have been greatly increased," he said, "and our task is easier now."

League Postpones Decision

The League of Women Voters at a general meeting Monday postponed a decision on backing a city-manager form of government for Iowa City.

According to its November bulletin, the group was expected to take a definite stand on the issue at this meeting. However, a majority of the members stated that they did not feel informed enough about the proposal.

The league has been studying the problem of city governments for over a year.

A summer workshop concentrated on the city-manager system as it might apply to Iowa City. The problem has been discussed at meetings, and literature on the subject has been disseminated among the members.

At Monday's meeting it was proposed that instead of taking an immediate stand on the issue, the league should concentrate before the next general meeting.

Mrs. Harriet Smith, state social welfare chairman of the Iowa league, told the members that the board of control of Iowa state institutions should be freed from political restriction.

An editorial writer for the Des Moines Register, Mrs. Smith proposed that legislation be passed revising the board of control along the lines of the state board of education.

She suggested that the board be composed of prominent persons working without salary along with a well-paid administrator. At present the three members of the control board are appointed by the governor to serve six-year terms.

Mrs. Smith also asked for legislation which would permit a person to be admitted to a state mental hospital for observation before being declared legally insane.

Blakely Labels Talk of War As 'Mark of Crazy People'

"We're all crazy," Robert Blakely, noted science journalist, told the Marengo adult school Monday evening.

The Marengo crowd of over 400 listened attentively as Blakely continued with, "no sane people would even think of war with the weapons we have today, let alone go to war."

"If thinking of this warlike type isn't a mark of a crazy people," he said, then I don't know the meaning of insanity."

Blakely with his topic of "Social Implications of Atomic Energy" concluded the series of lectures known as the "Marengo Experiment." The experiment was an attempt by SUI educators to familiarize laymen with atomic development and its resulting social implications.

Defines Insanity

Offering his definition of sanity, Blakely said that it is a balance between skills in the operation of "things" and "social skills." He related "things" with the handling of machines, raw materials and energies. By "social skills" he meant the relationships between one man and another.

If we can't balance these two "skills," and if we continue talking of an atomic war, then we're crazy, Blakely said. A balance between the two is necessary.

He told the group that many of our problems today result from the development of skills in handling "things" to a greater degree than development of "social skills." That is why the need for balance is "vital."

Skills Are New

He pointed out that our "skills with things are new," but our "skills with people are imitative of the past."

Since this age of the atom demands "new methods" for survival, we "must set up a new balance of our skills with things and people," he said. "We're not going back to the horse and buggy days, you know."

Blakely said the "American people need new ideas. On this depends our very lives."

'Keep Ahead'

"Our safety depends on our keeping ahead, free to think, and explore," he emphasized "keeping ahead," especially in the production of fissionable materials.

He repeated the statement "you can't mix the old and the new," four times, along with, "a new approach is needed."

Blakely said we have a new era before us, consequently, we must have new ideas for governmental methods. We must make up our minds about private capitalism, for example. He suggested the following:

1. We must make up our minds as to what we can do best with capital.
2. We must make up our minds as to what we can do best with government.
3. We must not let one factor get in the way of the other.

Blakely mentioned what we must do to face the problems of the new era. He said "we must adjust ourselves personally, accept change, be inventive, and develop a system of real world government."

Concluding he said that private enterprise and government must "balance, keeping democratic control by employing the talents of the best people we can get."

Kennedy, Comedian Veteran of Cinema, Dies After Illness

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Edgar Kennedy, 58, one of the original Keystone Kops of movie fame and a film comedian for 37 years, died yesterday after a long illness.

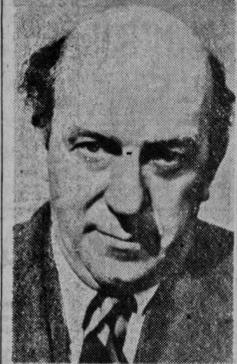

Kennedy's specialty on the screen was a type of comedy in which he appeared on the verge of a stroke of apoplexy, winning him the nickname of "slow burn" Kennedy.

Ill a Year

He died at the motion picture hospital in San Fernando valley after an illness of nearly a year.

Kennedy entered the hospital after completing his 1947-48 series of "average man" two-reel comedies. He had starred in those films for 18 years in addition to appearing in feature-length pictures.

Since his movie debut in 1911

EDGAR KENNEDY

as a Keystone Kop, Kennedy appeared in about 500 films.

Born in Monterey

The actor was born in Monterey, Cal., April 27, 1890. He first gained attention as a boxer and at one time was amateur champion of the Pacific coast. He boasted that he stayed 14 rounds once with Jack Dempsey without being knocked out.

It was his ring work that brought Kennedy to the attention of comedy producer Mack Sennett who hired him in 1911 as a Keystone Kop. The first time the burly boxer came on a movie set 12 husky carpenters and other workmen ganged up on him to see if he was as good as his ring record indicated. Kennedy "knocked out" three of them.

Kennedy's feature pictures included "Kid Millions," "San Francisco," "Three Men on a Horse," "A Star Is Born," "Hollywood Hotel," and "Anchors Aweigh." His Broadway plays included "The Better 'Ole" and "The Gay Old Bird."

Last Drill Set for Military Students

The final drill period of the year will be held Friday, the military department said yesterday. Next spring, when the weather again becomes favorable for outside drill, weekly drills will be resumed.

All students who have make-up work to do because of absence, may attend special drills to be held the first four weeks following the last regular drill, the department said. These drills are scheduled for the same times as the regular drills.

The department also announced that Sgt. Frank B. Seidler, assistant supply sergeant and infantry instructor, has re-enlisted to the staff here. Seidler has been with the department nearly two years.

Two Students to Talk Of Frogs at Seminar

Two SUI students will speak of frogs at a zoology seminar at 4:30 p.m. Friday, in room 205, Zoology building.

C. Y. Chang will discuss "Hormonal Effects on the Sex Differentiation in Rana Sylvatica." Bernard Jaroslow, Brooklyn, N.Y., will talk on "The Effect of Temperature on the Development of Rana Pipiens."

YMCA Needs 200 For Hospital Work

Two hundred men are needed by the YMCA to help with its hospital service program, Jake De Ryke, chairman of the hospital service, said yesterday.

A meeting is planned for all interested men at 4:30 tomorrow in the Y rooms at Iowa Union.

De Ryke said the men would have to devote a minimum of one hour a week to the service. They would take part in an individual recreation-visiting program five afternoons a week at Children's hospital.

An additional part of the program is a Wednesday night entertainment program at University hospitals.

$235 Damage Reported In Truck-Cab Accident

A total of $235 damage resulted from a truck-cab accident at 6:20 a.m. yesterday "at the corner of Dubuque and Burlington streets, according to drivers' reports filed with police.

Arthur Elmer Davis, 27 W. Burlington street, estimated $125 damage to the panel truck he was driving. The cab driven by Edward Watkinson, 704 Ronalds street, received about $110 damages.

Honorary to Hold Three-Man Panel

"Cultural Recovery of Germany" will be discussed by a three-man panel at the next meeting of the Delta Phi Alpha, honorary fraternity for students of German at 8 p.m. tomorrow in room 213 Schaeffer hall.

The board will be composed of Prof. George L. Mosse of the SUI history department, Thomas G. Rosenmeyer, SUI classics department and Prof. Joseph Murphy, Upper Iowa university economics department.

Progressive Groups To Send Delegates To National Meeting

The local Progressive groups will send at least two persons to the national Progressive party conference in Chicago, Nov. 12.

Students for Wallace yesterday named Charlotte Leavitt, Fort Dodge, to represent their organization at the meeting. Miss Leavitt will go only as an observer, not an official delegate, Vice-Chairman Larry Kaplan said yesterday. Kaplan explained that the conference is mainly a meeting of state and national Progressive directors and committees and that local groups would send only observers.

Annette Zykovsky of Iowa City, co-chairman of the Iowa Progressive party executive committee, will attend the conference as a member of the state group. She is also a local Progressive party member.

The Johnson county group may send another person, as an observer, to the national meeting, Publicity Director Mary Baum said yesterday.

Future plans of Students for Wallace will be discussed at an open meeting in the geology auditorium, Nov. 15, in the light of decisions reached at the national conference. Miss Leavitt will report on the decisions at the meeting. Publicity Director Thelma Edis said yesterday that a proposal to change the name of the student group to "Young Progressives" will be presented to the members at the meeting. This will be the first step toward making Students for Wallace a permanent organization, she explained.

The Marengo Experiment -

Atomic Age Public Meets the Atom

THIS IS THE FIRST IN A SERIES DESCRIBING THE "MARENGO EXPERIMENT" OF EXPLAINING THE WORLD OF ATOMICS TO THE WORLD OF EVERYDAY LIFE. IN SUBSEQUENT ARTICLES ON THIS PAGE, EACH MARENGO LECTURE WILL BE SUMMARIZED.

By RUSS PAULDING
Can we learn enough about the atomic age to live in it without fear?

The question is asked by Prof. Hew Roberts, of the education department, who believes that "education of the masses" is the answer.

"The problem the educator faces," Roberts said "is how can such a complex matter be presented to the public in everyday language? Can the secret of the atom bomb be explained as simply as grandmother's secret recipe for brown sugar cookies? Can the infinitely small mass of an atom be appreciated by people accustomed to 200-pound football stars or 1,000-pound steers?"

No one is certain, but Roberts has put a plan in operation which may help solve the problem. His plan is making a test run in Marengo.

Roberts, a group of three SUI scientists, and a journalist, are conducting the plan. They are Prof. George Glockler, director of the chemistry department, Prof. Joseph Routh, biochemistry department, Prof. Arthur Roberts, physics department, and Robert Blakely, science journalist. The lecturers are developing a pattern which may be used in presenting atomic theory, and its social implications to the public.

The scientists are giving their "special" lectures to an adult Marengo group. This group, their reactions to the "special" lectures, and a test at a later date is called the "Marengo Experiment."

Roberts' desire to teach adults atomic energy facts, and its varied implications, stems from what he believes is the need of "millions of Americans" to "understand the problems that may become vital to them at any day."

Another reason, Roberts said, results from the lecture series given SUI students and laymen, last year. The series was not successful. Reasons why, were not immediately offered, "but we did learn one thing," he said. "We learned that the science lectures drew the largest crowds."

Roberts then decided to move a similar lecture series away from the campus. He hoped this would eliminate any possible errors created by a special crowd composed of college students "conditioned to attending only credit courses, and town residents who usually select from the university's many offerings rather than following one series of lectures." The "Marengo Experiment" idea soon developed, and Marengo became the proving ground.

The group under experimentation is the Marengo adult school, now in its thirteenth year. The students are bankers, farmers, clerks, and housewives. They are "eating up" the lectures given them by the scientists, Roberts said.

He explained that the lecturers must take "infinite pains" in preparation for their speeches.

The scientists must explain radioactive isotopes, electrons, protons, and chain reactions in terms both banker and housewife, can understand. A chain reaction, important in the development of atomic energy, is explained by showing the Marengo group a similar reaction known to all. A burning piece of coal, for example.

In order to understand atomic energy, Roberts pointed out, we must get the story from the source that developed it. Since scientists have given us the power commonly called atomic energy, the scientists must also give the explanation, he added.

The "Marengo Experiment" is the first of its type to attempt showing both scientific and social implications from the scientist's viewpoint.

Scientific theory was considered first in the lecture series, Roberts said, since it was the development of atomic energy which created "new social problems." This does not mean, he continued, that science theory can be satisfactorily presented without regarding its social implications. Roberts believes the two elements must go together, and it is an American's democratic duty to "understand both the scientific and social phases."

Members of the atomic energy commission have said they hope the public will adopt the atomic idea instead of being afraid of it. Many scientists would like to lift the cloud of secrecy which surrounds the subject of atomic energy. It is their belief that people can be frightened away from things just so long.

"Our program," Roberts said, "is designed to give citizens a feeling of easy familiarity with atomic energy."

Whatever the result may be, Roberts hopes the voice of the Marengo class will express the "reaction of a typical cross section" of the American people. If it can be proven that this is true, the "Marengo Experiment" might be used as a measure for giving doses of atomic energy education to the American people.

North Atlantic Alliance - Rio Defense Pact Is a Model

LONDON (AP)—A seven-power conference to work out a north Atlantic defense alliance "most probably" will be called in Washington early in January, a foreign office spokesman said yesterday.

Whitehall sources confirmed the Ottawa reports that the United States and Canada will meet early in 1949 to negotiate a mutual defense treaty with the western European union—Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

It is believed here that the path toward an Atlantic alliance has been cleared both in Europe and America. President Truman's reelection cleared up the U.S. internal scene. In Europe the five western union foreign ministers have already committed their countries to an across-the-Atlantic alliance.

western hemisphere pact signed at Rio de Janeiro in a desire to make American acceptance of the projected Atlantic alliance as easy as possible. It is believed American participation can be sold to both the public and the senate if essential points are modeled after the Rio document.

There also is strong impression here that an Atlantic alliance can bring about a solution to the differences between France on one side, and Britain and the U.S. on the other, over Germany's future. The French, it is believed here, may be more ready to compromise on Germany if they have a feeling of security.

Meanwhile, the western European union representatives here will proceed with almost daily conferences to prepare material for the Washington conference.

Through the Motions

Rep. J. Parnell Thomas went through the motions. He squirmed when the justice department ordered an investigation of his payroll activities.

Then he demanded a chance to appear before the grand jury but not until after the election. This was all a political smear he claimed—even though columnist Drew Pearson had been hitting the issue for several months and action came after a group of New Jersey lawyers asked the government to investigate their representative.

When Thomas did get his chance before the grand jury, he refused to testify on grounds that it might tend to degrade or incriminate him. But he had gone through the motions of an indignant man.

New Jersey sent him back to congress where he says he will stay. But under the Democratic reorganization of the house committees Thomas will lose the chairmanship of the un-American activities committee.

Probably it is a good thing that he will not go back in as head of the committee that has made his name well-known. The method of trial by suggestion and association that this committee used so effectively, frightened and disgusted most observers.

Now we come to the question to be asked the congressmen who prosecuted where they had no right to prosecute; who accused when they had no evidence to accuse, and who judged where they had no right to judge.

The committee was set up to investigate un-American activities and now its chairman has been indicted for alleged activities to defraud the American government.

Where is the line to be drawn between internal graft and internal sabotage? What is the difference between conspiring to bleed money from the government and conspiring to cheat the government out of its natural course of action?

The charges against Thomas take in a period of time from about January 1, 1940, to about January 30, 1945. During this time the New Jersey representative was going through the motions of being an upright supporter of the American way of life.

Then his committee went through the motions of sheriff, judge and jury to Hollywood, business and government figures who were accused of being un-American.

But after all the storm has subsided and the garish details of atomic spies and blond spy queens have become a little misty—we have a chance to see inside the man who owned the teacup in which the storm raged.

So we sit here, mix up a metaphor and conclude it may not have been a teacup at all—rather a pot calling some kettles black.

De Gaulle Is in the Cards . . .

The trend right in France is in full swing. Following up their sweeping victory in this week's council of the republic election, Gen. Charles de Gaulle's spokesmen said they can and will wreck the present government.

It may sound like a harsh prescription for France's ills, but the doctor has never been much of an advocate of the democratic treatment.

Technical discussions on whether De Gaulle has a legitimate claim to power are out the window. So are speculations on whether he could win if general elections are called.

The elections for the upper house expressed the will of the French people. Unofficially, De Gaulle captured 107 of the 262 seats at stake. That would give him about 33 percent of the council's 320 seats.

Banking on support of allied rightist parties, De Gaulle plans to block all legislation coming from the lower house. This process of systematic strangulation should topple Premier Queuille's government. The Communists failed in their coal strike try.

Queuille could stave off collapse by trying to make a deal with De Gaulle. This would stall, not stop, the crumbling of the third force—the coalition of middle-of-the-road parties.

Like it or not, the prospect right now is for a showdown. The Queuille cabinet's days are numbered. In the next cabinet crisis, President Auriol may not be able to summon another third force leader to form a government.

Last time, three men tried and failed before Queuille was able to unite the shaky third force. Next time, the lower house may be forced to register a vote of no confidence and call for national elections.

If the trend in voting continues as it did in this week's elections, De Gaulle will be given complete control.

The prospect, if this happens: ruthless combatting of the French Communist party, a turning from the Marshall plan, a demand that the western European union revolve around Paris instead of London.

De Gaulle would give France the strongman it needs at the moment. But strongman tactics will be dangerous in the long run.

I'D RATHER BE RIGHT Music from The Stars

By SAMUEL GRAFTON (New York Post Syndicate)

The young man and the girl picked the booth furthest from the door in the small bar.

She undid her coat, and placed her bag where it would be most likely to interfere with the service of the drinks.

"Nice place," said the young man.

"Yes," she said. "Let's never leave. Let's stay all winter."

"That'd be good," he said. "You can get everything you want here. Something to drink and something to eat."

"Music, too," she said. "Juke box."

"And radio."

"Don't mention radio."

"Why don't you mention radio?"

"I don't know. Always talking about maybe a war. I wish they'd throw it out. I'd stay all winter if they threw it out."

"Yes," said the young man. "Just look at baseball games on television and eat hard-boiled eggs."

"No baseball games in winter," said the girl.

"It's always the same weather in here," said the young man.

"Say," he said, after a moment. "Have you heard this new thing, about the music of the stars?"

"They found out the stars give out sounds, something like music," said the young man. "You hear it with radar."

"You mean you can hear it coming in from away out there?" asked the girl.

"Sure you can," said the young man. "If you have the radar."

"It must be awful cold out there," said the girl. "I don't want to hear it. I just want what's in this room."

The waiter brought their order, asking which was whose, carefully.

"Maybe I'll hear it," said the young man.

"Hear what?" asked the girl.

"The music of the stars. Maybe I'll hear it in the army. When they give me that course, with radar."

"Are you sure they're going to

Katzenmeyer Dies Of Heart Ailment

Phillip J. Katzenmeyer, 85, the last member of a prominent Iowa City family, died of a heart ailment at 1 p.m. yesterday while walking along Davenport street.

Mr. Katzenmeyer resided at 622 N. Van Buren street. He was born Jan. 8, 1862 in Iowa City and spent most of his life here.

The body is at the Hohenschuh mortuary. Funeral arrangements were not completed yesterday afternoon.

He is survived by several nieces and nephews.

FORRESTAL TO EUROPE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defense Secretary Forrestal left yesterday for Europe to discuss "problems affecting the national military establishment" with American officials there.

He will go to Frankfurt, Paris, Berlin and London before flying back here Sunday.

McBride's Haul

By BILL MCBRIDE

There have been rumors that a pep rally of whopper proportions is being planned for Friday night, and if the vine carries it correctly, there will be a bonfire and much excitement. That is fine as far as inducements go. The question is now what will the turn-out be?

The main idea in having pep rallies is to show that the student body is behind the team. From the conversations going around, there can't be much doubt that students are proud of the team and don't hesitate to say so.

If that is true, then the chance to express your sentiments will be offered Friday night. Seniors especially should be there. This will be the last chance seniors will have to participate in an SUI football rally for a home game, and those rumors say it won't be one to miss.

From Agent D. L. Myers comes an extensive report on the tanning of deer hides, and although his penmanship is of the generous, full-blown style, I must confess there are phrases I can't quite make out. I suspect the fault lies in the lighting of this room and not Agent Myers' hand.

I am informed through this correspondence that women's gloves are sized in an entirely different and more complicated manner than men's, and the writer of the intelligence worries about the significance of the discrepancy.

Back up, Myers, old boy, this is just one of those things we have to face. They do the same things with women's hats. It keeps the glove and millinery industry from growing stogy, and also helps out the slide rule trade.

In what I assume is a postscript, M. Myers tests my knowledge of political history with the question, "Why did Andrew Jackson ride with more weight on the left side of the saddle than the right?"

To be frank, I don't think this is a good time to bring up that question. There was nothing politically significant about Jackson's tendency to lean toward the left while astride his horse, but it could be misconstrued.

The fact is that the horse was a former ridge runner from Kentucky, having a natural slope to the left since at that time ridge-running horses always traveled counter-clockwise around foot-hills and ridges. Jackson, being a man of strong will, trained the horse to run in a straight line, but never managed to eliminate the slope.

Some of our present day politicians have encountered the same difficulties, and often find themselves running in circles.

While visiting friends the other evening, the hostess proudly displayed her two-speed, manual egg beater. The tool shows considerable improvement over the old-fashioned one-speed beater, but for the life of me I can't figure why a high gear and a low gear should be needed.

It would make a splendid talking point for beater salesmen. "At last, an egg beater with two speeds!" Can't understand how we did without it for this long.

Publishers of cook books may find themselves behind times if this geared beater becomes popular. At present, directions say simply to beat egg whites until stiff. (The egg whites, of course.)

In the future it may read, beat the whites of six eggs for two minutes, then shift into high. Don't forget to double-clutch your beater when gearing down to low again.

A fellow by the name of Frank DuFresne, chief of the interior department's fish and wildlife service in Washington, D. C., is telling housewives that crow can be delicious.

He says he's eaten a lot of crow himself, and on the basis of that recommends it as a regular visitor to home menus. I was interested at first because of the nearness of Thanksgiving, but DuFresne places too many limitations for a crow diet to become popular.

He says it's important to get a young bird and make certain it hasn't been scavenging. None of us have time to follow crows around to check up on their eating habits, and it is getting more and more difficult every day to tell an old crow from a young crow.

Say Chavis Was in Debt

AMES, Mo. — Authorities investigating the Henry W. Chavis slaying said yesterday the dead man's canning plant is mortgaged for more than $240,000.

Officials said the indebtedness was filed Aug. 11, almost three months before Chavis' bullet-riddled body was found early Monday in a farm yard near here.

A worker at the Story county ord's show two mortgages have been filed against the Chavis property for $120,116.98 each.

One of them is a chattel mortgage held by the Iowa-Des Moines National bank in Des Moines, the other a real estate mortgage, the spokesman said.

County Attorney Ed Kelly said the investigators had gone over Chavis' public financial records but had admitted no report. He said his office will consider their findings today.

Authorities have been searching for a motive in the shooting of 55-year-old Chavis, a leader in the industry and owner of the Ames Canning company.

Police said they found a .32 caliber bullet in the dead man's body and another buried in the ground at the rear of his modern farm home.

They said they are convinced that Chavis was killed at the farm, which is one mile south of Ames.

Forum Says GOP's Must Alter Strategy

Four SUI professors last night agreed—public opinion polls or no public opinion polls—that the Republican party must alter its campaign techniques in order to rebound from its recent defeat by American voters.

During the forum discussion before about 150 persons in Schaeffer hall on the after-effects of the 1948 election, they contended that the voter was right in evaluating the score racked up during the campaign: Truman 23 (million votes), Dewey 21 (million votes).

History Prof. Robert Hoyt outlined three musts for the Republicans "to get out the votes" on future election days. They must:

1. Get out of the "stuffed shirt tradition" of political candidates. "Dewey's mustache lost (them) 500,000 votes," Hoyt remarked. He pointed to Theodore Roosevelt and Wendell Wilkie as candidates the average voter is liable to approve.

2. "Dissociate themselves from groups which in the average voter's mind are reactionary and against the interests of the common man." National Association of Manufacturers' (NAM) advertisements in the past year lost Dewey more than a million votes, Hoyt declared.

3. Come up with a tangible platform that is easy to understand and one that impresses the common man. "They must learn how not to say, 'Me, too,'" he joked.

Prof. Kirk Porter, head of the political science department, challenged Hoyt's "stuffed shirt" accusation. He described former Democratic President Woodrow Wilson as a "dignified man" who "almost got my vote."

Psychology Prof. Norman Meier, an advisor for both the Gallup and Iowa polls, declared that he suffered only a "minor ripple of embarrassment" from the ribbing the pollsters took after the election.

Speech Prof. A. Craig Baird contended that Truman did a better job of campaigning because he:

1. Talked about the issues—"not the real issues but the ones people think are issues," he remarked.

2. Talked on these issues in an "authoritative way" by bringing them into the fields with which he was most familiar.

Alumni Group Holds Banquet for Class Leaders

Hickerson, director of the alumni service; Bob Gregg, Pharmacy; Mrs. Gregg; Kenneth Smith, Commerce; and Mrs. Smith. Not pictured but at the banquet were Max Elder, Journalism, and Mrs. Elder. Evan Hultman, as president of the student council, represented the college of liberal arts.

Bachelor 'Beauties' Comment

One Candidate Blushed When Selected; Others Were Thrilled or Worried

The gentlemen's reply to the ladies' queen contest is here in the turnabout event of the season, with 24 candidates competing for the title of Most Eligible Bachelor. He and his two attendants will be presented Friday night during the intermission of the Spinster's Spree.

Candidates' responses when told they had been chosen to compete for the title ranged from sheepish embarrassment to frank astonishment and delight.

"Well, I guess I blushed a little when they told me," remarked Beta Theta Pi's candidate, Al Meyer, A2, Des Moines.

Charles Silliman thought that "at least this year I might get to go to the darn thing." A senior in commerce from Quincy, Ill., he was Phi Delta Theta rushing chairman this fall and is now college trainer.

"Here I am pinned," complained Dick Cutler, A2, Cedar Rapids. "I think people are just trying to get me into trouble." Although he has "no special major" he is a sports enthusiast and is athletic manager and activities chairman at the Delta Chi house.

William Buh, Quad candidate and a graduate in radio journalism, revealed his journalistic training when he remarked tersely, "No comment." He is a member of Newman club and Hick Hawks and participates in intramural sports.

Town Men's candidate and president of the Dolphin club, Phil Cady "guessed" he was eligible since his only girl at present is his mother.

"I thought I was kinda young and not the bachelor type yet," said Phi Epsilon Pi's candidate, Bill Myers. Bill is a sophomore from Des Moines.

Richard Fishbaugh, Phi Kappa Sigma's choice, was "kinda surprised but thought it was an honor to be chosen from the house." Dick, a junior in commerce, is from Shenandoah.

"It was quite a thrill," admitted Richard Witte, Sigma Alpha Epsilon's representative. Dick, a sophomore commerce major, is also active in Y.M.C.A.

"I didn't know about it until I read it in the paper," was Bob Wilson's surprising comment. A candidate from Loyola house, Bob is a freshman in dentistry from Dysart. He is active in Newman club and participates in intramural sports.

Phi Gamma Delta's choice, Bob Schulz, remarked that he was "a little embarrassed because they kidded Connie Amend when he won the title last year." Bob, a junior fromavenport, is a guard on the varsity basketball team.

"It certainly builds up a man's ego," said Thomas Kauffman, Hillcrest candidate, "and it got me a date for the thing," he added.

"They're just trying to get even with me by making me go through this," Paul Sulhoff, L2, Glenwood, accused his judges.

Other candidates include Don Winslow, Sigma Chi; Walt Reno, Alpha Tau Omega; Jack Kersten, Pi Kappa Alpha; Jack McAllister, Theta Xi; Ralph Doran, Sigma Nu; "Mac" McCulloch, Alpha Chi Sigma; Bill Sutter, Delta Upsilon; Jim Cooper, South Quad; Don Hult, Delta Sigma Delta; Joe Schluter, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Bruce Higley, Psi Omega, and Jerry Long, Phi Kappa Psi.

Bond Election Discussed by School Board

The first steps for a possible new bond issue election to finance additions to the Longfellow and Lincoln schools were taken last night by the Iowa City board of education.

The proposed additions would include four classrooms for the Lincoln school and three classrooms and an assembly room at Longfellow. At its regular meeting in the junior high building, the board directed the buildings and grounds committee to employ an architect or architects to prepare preliminary plans, specifications and cost estimates for the project.

Other decisions made were to:

1. Sign a petition to the city council asking that Benton street, on which Roosevelt school is located, be paved. The petition already has been signed by several property owners who, along with the school, would finance the paving.

2. To hire Charles Picha as janitor at Kirkwood school and Robert Vogt as temporary janitor at the junior high gym. Vogt replaces James Stika who was granted a leave of absence for the rest of the school year because of illness.

3. Transport Lincoln school's five third graders to Roosevelt by taxi effective Nov. 15. The move, suggested by Superintendent I. A. Opstad, affords better distribution of students, he said.

4. Accept the request of V. R. Miller, superintendent of buildings and grounds of city schools, that he be relieved of responsibility for a bus used for athletics and other special occasions.

Suit Filed to Remove 2 from Residence

Mary and Claudia M. Doliesh filed suit Monday in Johnson county district court asking that Ed C. and Margaret Benson Chase be removed from a house owned by the plaintiffs at 327 N. Johnson street.

Judge James P. Gaffney ordered a hearing of the case Nov. 16 at 9 a.m. at the courthouse.

The plaintiffs said they gave the defendants a 60-day notice to vacate Aug. 30, and a three-day notice to leave Oct. 30, but said the defendants refused to leave.

The plaintiffs claimed the defendants failed to keep the premises in as good a condition as when they first occupied it.

The suit stated that the house was now unfit for habitation and asked that the plaintiffs be allowed to recover possession for altering and remodeling.

Will J. Hayek is attorney for the plaintiffs.

We've proved it!

Problem: To hold down costs, and speed the extension of telephone service.

Solution: High-strength wire whose use allows the span between poles to be increased from 150 feet to more than 300. One pole now does the work of two.

The problem, of course, is a continuing one for telephone people. High-strength wire with required electrical qualities is only one of many things they have developed to help solve the problem in these days of high construction costs.

In total, their developments are the reason why telephone service here is the best in the world—the reason why a telephone call costs only a few pennies.
