Truman to Forgive Democrat 'Sinners'

KEY WEST, FLA. (AP) — Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath expressed belief last night that President Truman will forgive "venial, but not mortal sins" of the campaign when he proceeds with the reorganization of his administration.

Senator McGrath flew here from Washington with William (Bill) Boyle, a special political assistant. His arrival was scheduled to step up Mr. Truman's search for cabinet replacements. McGrath said he would be "glad to discuss anything the President wants to take up" while he is with him. The party chieftain, talking with reporters, was asked if he hadn't said there were some groups the President "won't forgive" for failure to support his hard-fought race.

"The President is not geared that way," McGrath said. "There are some groups that the President can't help but forgive."

"I'm sure he will forgive venial sins as opposed to mortal sins." Asked to define a mortal political sin, he said it was "one which kills the soul."

McGrath didn't volunteer a definition of a venial sin. Reporters looked up a chaplain who likened a venial sin to a misdemeanor.

McGrath and Boyle joined Senator Alben W. Barkley, vice president-elect, and Leslie L. Biffle, director of the senate Democratic policy committee, for top level discussions about prospective administrative changes as aftermath of the campaign.

Hoover Commission Report Urges Wide Executive Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Hoover commission urged a sweeping overhaul of important parts of the government's executive branch yesterday and predicted it would save "a good many billion dollars."

Headed by former President Herbert Hoover, the commission made these salient recommendations:

1. An end to political appointments in selecting the nation's 20,000 or more postmasters.
2. A bigger, stronger labor department.
3. Higher salaries for government officials.
4. Unification of the government's many housekeeping agencies into a single administrative staff under the President — to handle bookkeeping, buying, budget-making and the like.

Hoover disclosed the program in making public the first batch of tentative findings on the 12-member two-party "commission on organization of the executive branch." He is chairman of the body.

He based the estimate of saving billions on operation of the proposed new system for "say, five years."

The proposed changes will be submitted to the new Democratic-controlled 81st congress in January.

Princess Elizabeth Takes Ease in Sun

LONDON (AP) — Princess Elizabeth, her baby expected Sunday or soon after, took advantage of the November sunshine yesterday to stroll in the royal gardens of Buckingham palace.

The walk was her daily exercise and followed a visit yesterday morning by Sir William Gilliat, who will deliver the baby, and Sir John Weir, personal physician to King George.

Palace sources said the princess spends most of her time reading, reading and walking in the spacious gardens when the weather permits. Her reading fare includes baby books.

Doctors and the two correspondents who will flatly the news of the baby's birth to the world were on "constant call" yesterday. They were told to be near a telephone at all times. Gilliat cancelled his lectures at King's college.

Court correspondents Louis Nicholls of Exchange Telegraph and Louis Wulff of Press Association have been standing by in London all week, waiting for the urgent summons from Buckingham palace.

Find Battered Body Of Colorado Coed; Murderer at Large

BOULDER, COLO. (AP) — Sheriff Art Everson said last night his deputies are "working on a long shot in the dark" to solve the murder of the pretty University of Colorado coed whose nude body was found yesterday beneath a lonely bridge 15 miles south of Boulder.

The ravished and brutally beaten body of 18-year-old Theresa Foster, a freshman in the university's college of engineering, was found about 48 hours after she disappeared from a college church club meeting.

Sheriff Everson said it was "too early to be specific" about whatever evidence he had. He spent most of the day routing deputies throughout Boulder county to check into the girl's personal background.

"The girl was just a conscientious, clean living person," Everson said. "As far as we know she never dated anybody but her boyfriend."

Clad only in a gabardine jacket, she was found face down in dry gulch. Slacks and underclothes ripped from the body lay in a neat stack about 10 feet away. Officers said she was battered almost beyond recognition. From the light snow on the body, they believed she had been dumped there Tuesday night.

However, police picked up for questioning four or five college boys who were reported "cruising around town" the night the girl disappeared. Her "steady" boyfriend, Bob Weidenkeller, came in for routine questioning and was released, officers said.

Two hunters, Leonard Boom and El Blood, both of Golden, Colo., discovered the body shortly before noon beneath the bridge on the Golden-to-Boulder road. Her hands, covered with blood, were thrust upwards as though shielding her face.

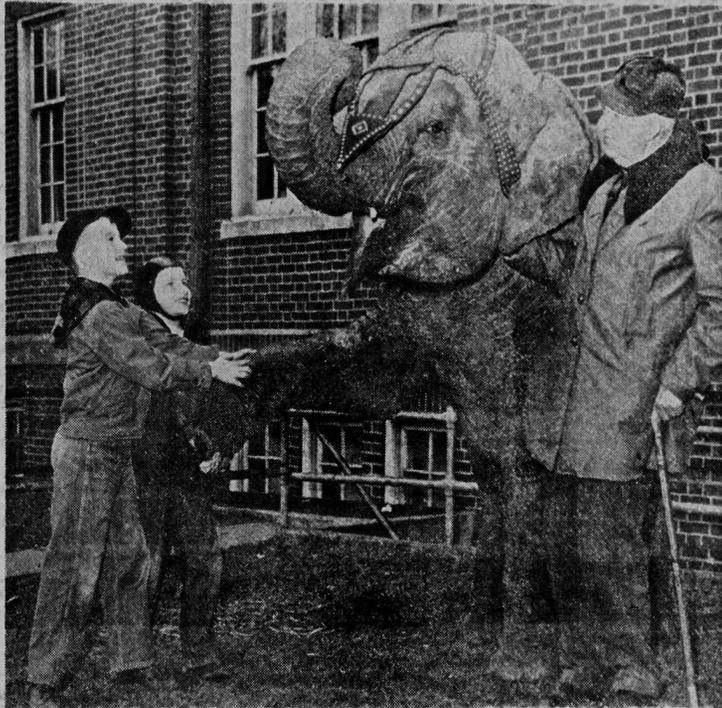

Miss Foster was last seen Tuesday night when she started walking home alone from a Newman club meeting. Prof. M. G. Messenheimer, a faculty member at whose home the girl roomed, notified police when she failed to return.

Searchers came on a blood-spattered roadside spot on the outskirts of Boulder yesterday. The missing girl's scarf and a ring were found there, and Sheriff Art Everson immediately launched a large-scale search for her body.

She had been bludgeoned and raped. Here her left knee protrudes from beneath a blanket thrown over the body by Sheriff Arthur Everson (above) of Boulder. The girl disappeared Tuesday night.

Senator-Elect Hubert H. Humphrey, mayor of Minneapolis, notified Mayor Preston Koser yesterday afternoon that he would be unable to attend the Democratic victory luncheon here today.

He said the luncheon today conflicted with an engagement made during the campaign when he accepted the chairmanship of the national convention of the World Federalist organization.

The committee in charge announced yesterday that Gov. Lester Hunt, senator-elect from Wyoming, had also notified them that he could not be present today.

Last night, Ed Lucas said that the luncheon committee was still waiting for word from President Truman on a plan to have the President speak over the telephone to the persons at the luncheon in the Hotel Jefferson.

The list of speakers for the luncheon, to be held at the Hotel Jefferson, includes Judge James P. Gaffney and Senator-Elect Guy M. Gillette. W. R. Hart, Democratic first district committeeman, will be toastmaster and Mayor Koser will preside. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. C. H. Meinberg, pastor of St. Mary's church, will give the invocation.

Student Council Accepts NSA As Part of Own Organization

The Student Council last night designated itself the National Students association representative on the SUI campus.

It took this action at its meeting in Old Capitol by:

1. Voting to pay $295 annual dues to the national NSA this year.
2. Setting up a council sub-committee to handle national NSA affiliations and work on regional intercollegiate projects.

Hultman Names Two Council President Evan Hultman named Valerie Dierks, town women representative, and Thomas Gray, South Quad member, to the council NSA committee. They were given the authority to appoint non-council members to aid in planning and carrying out the projects.

The council thus rejected NSA as a separate organization on the campus and threw out a proposed set of by-laws that would have governed NSA-Student Council relations.

Has Faith in Future The council based its decision on "faith" in the future of NSA as an organization to improve national and international student relations. It made itself an active member in building up the new and still immature organization which began in September, 1947. About 250 other U.S. colleges are paid NSA members.

Dean Walter R. Goetsch of the office of student affairs warned the council before the vote last night that "you'd better be convinced that it's worth spending $300 off the campus." He explained that the annual grant of $1,000 made to the council by the Iowa legislature was to aid students on this campus through their own system of student government.

Dr. A. C. Keele, 46, Rockwell City, was in serious condition at Mercy hospital last night following an auto accident about 6 p.m. on highway 6 east of Tiffin.

His wife, who was riding with him when the accident occurred, suffered a broken collar bone but was reported in good condition. Keele's injuries had not been determined last night.

Sheriff Pat Murphy said the driver apparently lost control of the car, causing it to swerve from the road. It plunged over a five-foot bank and came to rest about 500 feet from the spot where it left the pavement.

Prof. Charles C. Wylie of SUI's mathematics and astronomy department said yesterday that he will probably know by tomorrow whether the comet newly discovered in the southern hemisphere will be visible to Iowans.

When astronomers have taken three photographs 24 hours apart, Wylie said, they can predict a comet's path and the areas where it can be seen.

The comet was photographed Tuesday in Arizona and Wednesday at Mt. Palomar in Pasadena, Calif.

Wylie said the comet's path probably has been computed by this time by mathematicians at the University of California, but that SUI may not get a report on it until Saturday.

Five observers here watched for the comet earlier in the week, Wylie said, but were unable to see it at that time. In Arizona the comet was described as "low on the horizon, slightly south of east."

There were indications of Communist withdrawals on the eastern and western flanks in the bitter fighting near Suchow, north of this capital city.

The arrival of General Pai Chung-Hsi's Central China forces, plus unusually effective air support, was credited with turning the critical battle in the government's favor, at least for the moment.

There was a feeling in Nanking that the Suchow battle may not be decided for two or three weeks.

Nanking and Shanghai were calm under martial law after Wednesday's rice riots. Food shops reopened under strict rationing. The martial law included censorship on news sent abroad and that published domestically.

U.S. air force and marine planes were flying American military dependents from Nanking to Shanghai and Tsingtau to sail home. Originally totalling over 1,000, all were expected to be out of the capital by tonight.

There was no official word, but it was apparent that American military advisory personnel soon would follow their families.

Sioux City's Santa Laughs Too Loud

CHICAGO (AP) — Invitations for construction bids will be issued soon after Dec. 1 for a research building at Ames, the U.S. atomic energy commission's Chicago office said yesterday.

The office said plans and specifications for the building will be completed soon by Tinsley, Higgins and Lighter, Des Moines architects.

The building, a general laboratory, will be on the campus of the Iowa State college.

Sioux City's Santa Laughs Too Loud

SIoux CITY (AP) — Santa Claus, the police were told yesterday, is making too much noise.

A resident complained that a laughing Santa Claus in a downtown store display is "causing disturbance" until 10:30 or 11 o'clock at night.

He said he thought most children were in bed by 9 p.m. and Santa should stop laughing at that hour.

Doctor, Wife Hurt When Car Plunges Over Embankment

Dr. A. C. Keele, 46, Rockwell City, was in serious condition at Mercy hospital last night following an auto accident about 6 p.m. on highway 6 east of Tiffin.

His wife, who was riding with him when the accident occurred, suffered a broken collar bone but was reported in good condition. Keele's injuries had not been determined last night.

Sheriff Pat Murphy said the driver apparently lost control of the car, causing it to swerve from the road. It plunged over a five-foot bank and came to rest about 500 feet from the spot where it left the pavement.

It was found right side up. Perry Beckler, Tiffin, said he came along shortly after the accident and stopped to give aid.

He helped ambulance attendants load Keele, who was lying in a corn field about 35 or 40 feet from the automobile, into the ambulance, he said.

Battered Convertible in Which Two Were Hurt

TWO PERSONS WERE INJURED. One seriously when their 1948 convertible left the road and plunged over a five-foot bank near Tiffin last night. Dr. and Mrs. A. C. Keele, Rockwell City, occupants of the car, were taken to Mercy hospital where Keele was reported in serious condition. Mrs. Keele suffered a broken collarbone. Her condition was termed "good" last night.

Gophers Aim To Slaughter Hawk Gridders

Rose Bowl Chances, Iowa's 1947 Upset Spurs Minnesota

By BUCK TURNBULL
Sports Editor

Every football game on the Iowa schedule can be put in the "crucial" category, one tough one leading right into another.

This year the Hawkeyes have entered almost every game with an underdog ranking. If they won they were heroes, and if they lost they were doing what everyone expected.

Tomorrow afternoon Minnesota's Golden Gophers, now being compared with the great Bernie Bierman teams of the 1930's, pits Dr. Eddie Anderson's Hawks with another seemingly unstopable avalanche.

Every Iowa fan is rooting for an upset, since the Gophers are heavy 14-point favorites.

But the Iowa players in trying for an upset, must realize two very pertinent factors which will be working against them tomorrow. They are:

1. Minnesota still has a chance to be the Big Nine's Rose Bowl representative. That one thought will drive the Gophers to a high peak.

2. Iowa stung Minnesota in the final game of the season here last year, 13-7. That's another reason why the Gophers want to sock the Hawkeyes by as big a score as possible.

Those are the mental aspects forecast for tomorrow. The physical capabilities of each squad also favors the Norsemen, by sheer brute strength if nothing else.

218-Pound Average
From tackle to tackle, the Minnesota forward wall will average 218 pounds. That is just by figuring the starters without the defensive line-backing terror, 232-pound Clayton Tommemaker.

Offensively the Gophers are not an exceptionally fast ball club, but have power to burn with a devastating single-wing attack cutting opponents to shreds behind their massive line.

Although the passing of other conference elevens has overshadowed the Gophers' aerial tactics, Minnesota has thrown more passes and currently rank as the No. 1 offensive team in the Big Nine.

Bierman's Gophers are averaging the exceptionally high total of 69.6 plays per game and 20.2 of these have been passes. Next to Michigan's defending champions, team in the conference, averaging 20 points per game.

No. 1 on Defense
On defense the Gophers are also the No. 1 team in the Big Nine, having limited their foes to an average of 202.6 yards a game. Iowa is the seventh in team defense at 258.2.

So the Hawkeyes must be keyed to a pitch exceeding any other game so far this season in order to spring a victory tomorrow.

Needless to say, the Hawks cannot count on gaining a considerable amount of ground through the middle of Minnesota's line. Only trickery and cunning of play-calling by Quarterback Al Dimarco can lead to a possible upset of the pre-game hope.

Dimarco's passing, of course, will be the keynote to the Iowa offense. But the Hawks have been working in practice this week on a few other surprises to spring against the confident Gophers.

Sophomores Carry Load
Sophomores have played a major part in Iowa's two Big Nine victories to date. Against Ohio State Jerry Faske broke loose on a 68-yard kickoff return to set up the deciding touchdown in the 14-7 Hawkeye triumph. Don Fryauf's unknown running talent zipped him into a starting left halfback spot after his speed afoot overcame Wisconsin two weeks ago, 19-13.

The sophomores, Faske, Fryauf, Glenn Drahn, Jimmy Halliburton and Bob Hoff, will again have to carry much of the load. All are backs except Hoff, who has been one of the leading defensive ends.

The Hawkeye line will be at full strength tomorrow, while the backfield will be without Halfbacks Bob Longley and Mearl Naber. Both are injured and are unlikely to see duty for the remainder of the season.

Yesterday's practice was again concentrated on offense in a dummy scrimmage against the freshmen. The frosh also ran Minnesota plays in a brisk test of the varsity defense.

Fans are reminded that tomorrow's game will start at 1:30 p.m. in accordance with a Big Nine ruling due to early darkness in November.

Former GI Frosh Ace Of Year?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Go ahead and argue over who will be the sophomore of this football year. The freshman of the year, Washington sports fans insist, already has been picked.

His name: Andy Davis of George Washington university, one of the few freshmen playing for a major college football team this year.

The 170-pound fullback is fourth in the nation in total yards gained, 1,041 in eight games.

He's the country's ninth best passer, statistically speaking, with 729 yards to his credit.

He's tied for eighth, with Lou Kusslerow of Columbia, in kick-off returns, with 308 yards.

But this is what makes the frisky freshman really a stand-out.

Out of a possible 480 playing minutes, handy Andy has been in there for 470 of them. He's particularly good on pass defense.

Of course, Davis' most surprising trick is that he's playing at all.

The Southern, like most conferences, has barred freshmen from varsity teams after permitting them to play during the war.

But it made one exception: The freshman ban didn't apply to ex-GI's like Davis.

As far as George Washington is concerned, there never has been a nicer exception.

Iowa Given Little Chance to Repeat 1947 Gopher Upset

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
NEW YORK (AP)—Scrambling out of last week's wreckage we limp doggedly into another football forecast dragging an average that still stands at .775 on 428 correct predictions and 124 misses:

Northwestern vs Notre Dame—The fur should fly in this one, unquestionably the top game of the week. If the Irish clear this toughest hurdle since their opener, they can breeze through another perfect season. A loss probably won't hurt the Wildcats' Rose Bowl chances, but it wouldn't do their prestige any good. On the theory that Notre Dame still is Notre Dame, the choice here is Notre Dame.

Army vs. Pennsylvania—The pressure is off the Quakers after their loss to Penn State and they'll be itching to take their spite out on Army. The powerful Cadets aren't the kind to let down, however, Army.

Baylor vs. Tulane—If the Green Wave can roll over Baylor, it may find itself in the familiar surroundings of the Sugar Bowl on New Year's day. Tulane.

Washington State vs. California—Nothing to get excited about here, although the all-conquering Bears haven't been able to do much coasting in their last two games. California.

Indiana vs. Michigan—The Wolverines are going to feel mighty lonesome, sitting at home on New Year's day. How about Michigan against Notre Dame or Army in the Sugar Bowl? Oh well, we can dream, can't we? This will be no. 8 for the Wolverines with one to go. Michigan.

Southern Methodist vs. Arkansas—No other choice here. Southern Methodist.

Alabama vs. Georgia Tech—Alabama shouldn't be too tough. Georgia Tech.

Minnesota vs. Iowa—It looks as if they've missed the boat, but the Gophers are scrambling to keep their Rose Bowl hopes alive. Little chance for Iowa to repeat its 13-7 upset of 1947. Minnesota.

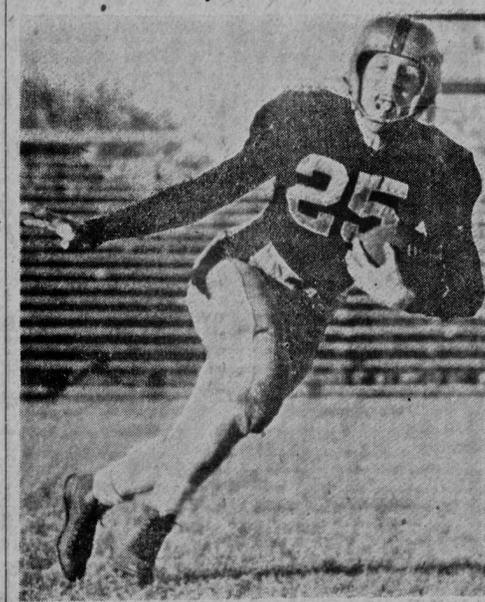

Tennessee vs. Mississippi—The Vols, with their upset over Georgia Tech, made believers out of us. Tennessee.

Princeton vs. Yale—The Tigers have caught fire. They're the pick against in-and-out Yale. Princeton.

North Carolina vs. Maryland—After blowing their chances for an all-winning season, the Tar Heels will be tough customers the rest of the way, but Maryland is no setup either. North Carolina.

Ohio State vs. Illinois—Any team that can score 20 points against Michigan and 21 against Army rates the nod in this one, especially on its home field. Illinois.

Flashes Style on Punt Returns

(AP Wirephoto)
THREATENS PUNT-RETURN RECORD—Lee Nalley, star half-back at Vanderbilt, is within 60 yards of a record for punt returns in one season. He's lugged the ball 557 yards and has 4 games left to play. The record is 616 yards, set by Colgate's Bill Geyer in 1941.

Gophers' Attention On Hawk Runners

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The University of Minnesota football team had variety on its schedule yesterday as it prepared for the game against the Iowa Hawkeyes Saturday at Iowa City. And the Gophers looked forward to variety on the gridiron.

Coach Bernie Bierman showed pictures of last year's 13 to 7 loss against Iowa, then sent the players through indoor and outdoor drills. The team will leave by plane late today, weather permitting.

With Captain Warren Beson out of the lineup nursing an injured hip, the Gophers worked on their ground defense in anticipation of the speedy, shifty Hawk backs.

7 Hawk Warriors In Big Nine Meet

Seven University of Iowa runners will compete in the Big Nine cross country meet, which will be held in Chicago today.

The race, which will be run over a four-mile course, is expected to be a three way battle between Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. Wisconsin's ace, Don Gehrman, is the individual favorite.

Keith Brown and Dick McClanahan are the main Iowa hopefuls for individual honors.

NEW YORK (AP)—If Ray Robinson defends his welterweight championship in January as scheduled, he probably will meet the winner of tonight's Madison Square Garden 10-rounder between Kid Gavilan of Havan and Tony Pellone of New York.

Gavilan, a flashy Cuban who has taken the best punches of Robinson and Ike Williams and come back for more, rates a 1 to 2 favorite to whip the rugged lad from Greenwich Village. The 20th Century Sporting club expects a crowd of 10,000 to pay $40,000 for the Garden show.

If Robinson decides to give up his 147-pound crown because of trouble in making the weight, the Pellone-Gavilan winner would be in an excellent position. However, Robinson said Wednesday night he would fight for the title after the first of the year.

Small College Stars Top U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Two football players, both stars of small college teams, have carried the ball more than a thousand yards from scrimmage this season — a feat yet unaccomplished by any of the talented leather-luggers from the larger schools.

They are Hank Treesh of Hanover college in Indiana, who also tops all the scorers in the country with 102 points, and Tom Wimbler of the College of Idaho.

Treesh has covered a total of 1,197 yards in just 83 rushing plays, averaging better than 14 yards, averaging better than 14 carried the ball 118 times and picked up a total of 1,046 yards. His efforts cover eight games, whereas Treesh has played in only seven.

Despite their fine running, both players find themselves trailing two other gentlemen in the business of ground gaining by both running and forward passing, statistics for the smaller colleges issued yesterday by the National Collegiate Athletic bureau disclosed.

Jim Peterson, Treesh's Hanover teammate, is the leader in total offense with 1,371 yards, all but five of which have been chucked up by his forward passing.

The runner-up is Jim Macholtz of Anderson college in Indiana, who has made 740 yards on 114 running plays and 515 through the air for a total of 1,255. Following them in the total offensive standings are Treesh and Wimbler, who do no passing.

While Peterson's passes have accounted for more total distance than any other player — 1,346 yards — he stands in second place in the rankings based on total completions.

Head man in that department is Sam Gary of Swarthmore, who has completed 73 of 115 passes for 950 yards and 14 touchdowns. Peterson has completed 68 passes, 11 of them for scores.

Although he has been thrown for losses totaling 63 yards in the two dozen times he has tried to run with the ball, Don Fortinigo of Northern Illinois State has ripped 136 passes and completed 56 of them for 1,079 yards.

Sgt. Winborn, Family Back In Iowa City

Sgt. and Mrs. Walter Winborn and children, Roxanne, 8, and Rodney, 5, have returned home to Iowa City after two years in Germany where Winborn served in the occupation forces.

The family left Frankfurt by air Nov. 3. Mrs. Winborn and the children arrived here Sunday, but Winborn spent several days in New York waiting for their car, which had been shipped from Germany.

Getting tired of waiting, he came home yesterday. "I'll have to go back after it," he said.

Winborn said he bought the car, a new Chevrolet, in Germany. He explained that American car manufacturers reserve part of their production for export to Europe and American cars are available there at about $250 more than they would cost here.

Winborn was stationed in three cities in the American zone of Germany, Bamberg, Heidelberg and Stuttgart. The Winborns lived in private homes which the army confiscated from Nazis.

Only One Maid
One maid was furnished them, but "if you wanted another you had to pay her yourself," Mrs. Winborn said. She said she did her own cooking and took care of the children.

The children went to American schools. Mrs. Winborn said there were two to three hundred American children in school in Stuttgart.

Winborn now speaks "fair" German, she said, although he couldn't speak the language when he arrived in Germany. "The kids speak it fluently. They picked it up playing with German children," he said.

Winborn described the rations as "good but monotonous. We hungered most for fresh vegetables, but there was plenty of food. I gained 50 pounds in Germany."

The Winborns quoted English visitors to the American zone of Germany as saying the Germans were living better than the English people. One Englishman claimed he "just came to the American zone to eat."

But Germans in the British and French zones are on a near-starvation diet because there is little agriculture in these zones, Winborn said. "Of course the Russian zone is the real agricultural area of Germany, but the Russians take most of the produce."

Winborn described German farms as "all split up" and told of talking to a prosperous farmer who said he would have to travel 300 miles to visit all his sections of land.

"The people live in villages and if there is a forest near the village each man may cut wood out of his part of it, or if land on the other side of town is good for raising potatoes, each man will

Shriners 'Big Top' To Entertain Kids At SUI Hospitals

A raft of youngsters as well as a large number of oldersters were on hand yesterday afternoon at the Community center for the first Iowa City performance of Clyde Brothers Shrine Circus.

Under the sponsorship of the Iowa City Shrine club, the show is slated for four performances, two of which took place yesterday. Today's performances are at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m.

All young patients at the Children's hospital have been invited to a special hospital performance of the circus which the troop will give this morning.

A "big-time" circus with everything from cotton candy to clowns, some of the feature acts include Clark's trained bears; Captain Williams' trained elephant; Zetta; Gallagher's troop of acrobats and many others.

Special bleachers have been constructed in the Community center auditorium for the show.

Proceeds from the circus will be used by the Shrine for charitable activities, local club officials said.

Quarterbackers to Meet
The Quarterback club will entertain newspaper and radio men at a smoker at 8 p.m. tonight in Hotel Jefferson.

The club, which has 85 members, meets before each football game. Roland Smith is president of the club.

Kids Like to Jingle Pennies

HOME AGAIN AFTER TWO YEARS IN GERMANY, Sgt. and Mrs. Walter Winborn and Roxanne and Rodney are none the worse for their experiences. The children picked up a "fluent" knowledge of German playing with German youngsters. They now amuse themselves asking people for pennies because they used paper occupation money in Germany and the jingle of currency is a new experience. Winborn will be reassigned to duty after a 60-day furlough.

garden a patch of it," he said.

A lot of Ox-hours
Plowing is done with oxen, and it uses a lot of ox-hours plodding from patch to patch. He said American authorities are trying to get the Germans to consolidate their farms.

There are no fences on German farms, Winborn said. The Germans can't let livestock out unguarded, anyway, or else it would be stolen.

"The Germans don't trust anybody. Every cupboard has a lock and key, and there are no outside doorknobs, so once you're out, you're out."

Winborn said he did a lot of hunting in Germany. Since few Germans were allowed to have guns, game was plentiful, and deer and wild boar were quite a nuisance to the farmer.

The black market was still going strong, with cigarettes selling for about $20 a carton, he recalled.

Winborn is now on a 60-day furlough, after which he will be reassigned to duty in the United States.

The new patient is Rose Marie Cahalan, 7-year-old resident of Mason City, who was admitted to the polio ward Wednesday. Her condition is described as "serious" by hospital authorities. Discharged yesterday was Clare Sterner, 7, Wilton Junction. He was admitted to University hospitals Nov. 1.

French Riot, Face Crisis

PARIS (AP) — France was threatened yesterday with more labor trouble and another cabinet crisis while French leaders warned on a riot-marred Armistice day that Britain and the United States may be sowing the seeds of World War III.

Veteran politicians assailed the Anglo-American plan to return the industrial Ruhr to the Germans.

As they spoke, Communist war veterans clashed with police. One rioter was shot and wounded in a four-hour battle on the Champs Elysees.

Police last night seized a special edition of the Communist newspaper CeSole for printing headlines about the riot which were allegedly incorrect and compromising to the public security.

The uproar over the Ruhr decision overshadowed ominous developments on the labor front, where rail workers threatened a 24-hour strike. Dock workers said they might prolong their walkout and the coal strike passed its 38th day.

Estes Urges Team, Pep Fans on

SPIRITED JOHNNY ESTES, hospitalized Iowa quarterback, recorded a pep talk yesterday to help push the team and fans on Saturday against Minnesota's Gophers. Bob Roderick, A2, Des Moines, operates the wire recorder while Earl Banks, Iowa guard, looks on. The recording by Estes, who has been partially paralyzed since a parking accident July 26, will be played at the pep rally tonight on the parking lot south of the Iowa Union.

Pep rally fans will hear a wire recorded pep talk from Johnny Estes at the 7 o'clock pep rally tonight in the parking lot south of the Iowa Union, Dean Crawford, Tailfeathers president, said yesterday.

Estes, who played quarterback for Iowa in last year's game with Minnesota, has been in University hospital since July 26 after being partially paralyzed in a playground accident in Des Moines.

Also on the rally program will be a talk by Bill Kay, Iowa tackle, and Iowa yells led by the cheerleaders, Crawford said.

A Five-Ace Deck Isn't Safe

How good is your vision? If you drive a car, this may be very important to your life or the life of someone else.

Driving a car is quite like playing a game of cards. You hold a steering wheel instead of a hand of cards—but there are rules to follow; the other guy to bet against.

This game of driving can be dangerous if you don't know the rules. We heard about a guy who got shot because his fellow players forgot to tell him there were only four aces in a poker deck. We have also seen out-of-town drivers zip down Capitol street and across Burlington because there was no visible stop sign. You can certainly push your luck too far with five-ace poker decks and by driving unhesitatingly into Burlington street traffic.

The trouble with most Burlington intersections which have no stop lights is that for all practical purposes they don't have stop signs either. What has been gained if the city plants a stop sign and then drivers—even the interested ones with good vision—can't see it?

Somebody parks a truck in front of it. It may be too far to the side from the normal driving vision. It may be completely invisible at night; out of the range of car lights.

This goes on all over Iowa City. With parking space at a premium let's lift the stop signs up higher; put them on longer stems. Let's also get them reflectorized so the night driver has a chance to make the stop. Even though his lights don't reach that high, the reflectors will pick up scattered light.

The driver with poor vision and poor judgment will generally be in trouble; but a few changes in traffic controls would give the driver with good judgment and good vision a better chance.

Top Secret: The Shortest Distance . . .

Pull up a cocked ear, you science fans, while we expose a top military secret—under-earth warfare.

Our agents have followed the master proponent of this scheme for months. This scientist is Dr. Fritz Zwicky, professor of astrophysics at California Institute of Technology and director of research for Aerojet, world's largest builder of rocket engines.

This Dr. Zwicky has developed a revolutionary-type engine employing the principle of the pulse jet engine which powered the German V-1 bomb.

But this new engine has a fuel which combusts on contact with water instead of burning gasoline as does the V-1 engine. Our little man of science envisages his engine powering "a propelled vehicle that will drill through the earth like a mole."

Put in submarines, his engine could propel them at speeds up to 115 miles an hour. This is indeed a happy occasion. New horizons of warfare are at hand!

The straightest point between two ends of the globe is, after all, a straight line through the center of the earth. Why hasn't someone thought about utilizing such a direct route for military purposes before?

Imagine supplying blockaded Berlin with an "earth lift" burrowing through the ground instead of an airlift through the skies.

And if the cold war becomes a shooting war at sometime in the foggy future, think of the tactical advantage of a Zwicky-concocted machine.

The Russians could defend their behind-the-iron-curtain holdings at all strategic points along the border. But how could they defend against an army which suddenly pops out of the ground somewhere just north of Solvichegodsk?

And if Russia learns the secret of the mole-machine, then we still have a fighting chance. There would be a mad rush to carve up the center of the earth into spheres of influence and armed camps.

Regional alliances through the UN could bind great layers of the earth's lithosphere into powerful territorial blocs. The scars of mankind's warfare could etch deeper than the earth's surface.

Vast oil, coal and mineral deposits could be exploited or destroyed at the source. What good is total war when you are able to mutilate only the shell of our globe?

Naval battles five and six miles under the sea would have to be fought, meanwhile, to protect the conquered lands lying further down. The prospects for mass destruction are virtually unlimited.

Yes, once again an American scientist has labored long, hard and secretly. Once again he has triumphed in his experimentation. Once again America proves her scientific wizardry and her ability to match anyone in warfare. It may kill us all . . . but, then, science burrows on.

France Views the U.S. Elections — Wallace Vote No Comfort for Communists

(This is the first in a series analyzing European reactions to the recent U. S. elections. They are written by a former Austrian citizen familiar with the European mind and current continental problems. Other articles will appear in future issues. The Editor.)

France, in its present turmoil, must surely have taken time out to examine the implications of the Democratic sweep on election day.

Of special interest would be the Wallace vote. French labor—at least the part that is under the communist controlled Confederation of Labor—has been striking in what looks more like a political strike than a protest for higher wages.

The French miners must have looked with chagrin at the Wallace vote which registered just above one million votes.

The French have had long experience with a multi-party system. When early polls gave Wallace a chance to garner from seven to nine million votes, French communists saw a picture of minority governments in Washington, a type of government which could rule only by the grace of the coalition party.

The Marshall plan looked to be on its last legs. A split administration would have to yield to Wallace as the balance of power between Democrats and Republicans.

However, France's Communists failed to see one thing clearly—the American tradition of two-party government.

The death of the Democratic party failed to materialize. Rather, labor and the small farmer put their faith once again in the party which, under Roosevelt, had championed the little man's rights, and which under a Truman elected on his own, would continue to champion those rights. In short, the third party boom had failed, perhaps for a long time to come.

French Communists face a continued strong American policy toward communism everywhere.

Puerto Rican Governor — Asks Congress Voice

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO — Gov. Jesus T. Pinero, first native governor of the island, said yesterday that the Puerto Rican resident commissioner and the Hawaiian and Alaskan delegates in congress should be given the right to vote in committees of which they are members.

"Right now," he said in an exclusive interview, "they are prevented from doing so by a house rule which could easily be changed."

"If they had the votes they would have some real bargaining power instead of being mere figureheads."

Pinero said that Resident Commissioner Antonio Fernos Isern probably would confer soon in Washington on the best strategy to obtain such a concession from the new congress.

"I have great faith in the 81st congress. I know they will do everything possible to help Puerto Rico," Pinero said.

He said Puerto Rico's future political status would be "whatever status the people themselves want."

"When they feel they are ready and able to support their decision, whether it is for independence or statehood, they should and will make it," he said.

"We should remember that everything comes to him who waits." Pinero recalled that although slow in doing it, the United States finally appointed a native Puerto Rican as governor, and then allowed the island to elect its own governor.

On Nov. 2 Luis Munoz Marin was elected to succeed Pinero on Jan. 2.

Pinero said he was in complete agreement with Munoz to seek from the United States the right for Puerto Rico to write its own constitution, and a pledge from congress to permit Puerto Rico to choose independence or statehood whenever the people feel they are ready.

Reviewing the work of his administration since he took office Sept. 3, 1946, Pinero said the foremost accomplishment was the housing development program in which whole new sections were built up.

He pointed out that such development had attracted attention in the United States and other countries, particularly in the Philippines, where a similar problem exists.

Pinero listed insufficient education and unemployment as the two greatest problems facing the island.

"We have been trying to lick unemployment through increased industrialization, the best means we know," he said. "We have made great progress but can't fall asleep now. Puerto Rico is the only place under the American flag where there is unemployment."

"We have also made great stride in building up the educational system but still there is great lack of educational facilities in rural areas."

"The greatest threat to the welfare of Puerto Rico today is lack of education. Take any problem, analyze it and you can trace its roots back to lack of education."

"Democracy works when the people know their rights and privileges and also those of others. No country can have democracy if the people are kept in ignorance."

Miller Talks To Full House About Europe

Harlan Miller yesterday drew a brief sketch of his recent tour of Europe in the third lecture of the Information First series before an overflow crowd of 400 in Old Capitol.

Miller traveled 22,000 miles in five weeks last summer and visited 20 countries. He advised future tourists of Europe not to attempt to cover as many miles in as little time.

"Concentrate on one little village. Get to know the people. You'll find they're just like Americans—only not as fortunate," he said.

The Works in Half an Hour
"I saw Venice in 32 minutes," Miller explained sheepishly. "St. Mark's Square, the waterways, the doves and the works, I saw in just a little more than half an hour. It's no good to travel that way."

Miller's travels took him to two palaces—England and Sweden—across the deserts of North Africa, through Italy and a quick dash across Germany.

American Girls Out-Chic Princess
While visiting Buckingham Palace, Miller said he saw Princess Margaret. American girls have more "chic" than the princess, Miller reported.

Describing George Bernard Shaw as the "foremost man of letters in the world today," Miller declared that the 92-year-old author is not half as frightening as most people have been led to believe. "I talked to him for half an hour and thoroughly enjoyed it."

Lassies Plan Last 1948 Football Show

Tomorrow's Minnesota - Iowa game will be the final football appearance this year for the Scottish Highlanders, Pipe Major Bill Adamson said yesterday.

The next public appearance for the bag-pipe group will be the all-star basketball game in Chicago later this month.

At the Gopher-Hawk tilt, the group will perform before the game and during half-time. Selections include "Nellie Gray," the "Minnesota Rouler," as a tribute to the visitors, "Good Night Sweet Ladies," "Merrily We Roll Along" and the "Iowa Corn Song."

Each Year We Pay Tribute

IN MEMORY OF THESE HONORED DEAD — Iowa Citizens gathered on the east approach to Old Capitol yesterday for Armistice Day services. The SUI band, American Legion, national guardsmen and veterans marched through downtown Iowa City in a parade which ended on the campus for the brief morning program.

Observe Armistice With Parade, Speeches

Claiming that American influence early in the 20th century prevented "an eruption" in the Moroccan crisis in Europe and ended the Russo-Japanese war, Prof. Harrison J. Thornton yesterday asserted he thought similar boldness on the part of America might have prevented the "calamity among nations" that occurred in 1914.

Thornton, a professor in SUT's history department, spoke before several hundred people gathered in front of Old Capitol to observe ceremonies commemorating the 30th anniversary of Armistice day.

This year's observance of the end of World War I began at 10:10 when a parade led by Col. Will Haylek, parade marshal, and a color guard stepped off on its march to the east approach of Old Capitol.

Prof. C. B. Righter led a 45-piece University band directly behind the color guard. Following the band were Legionnaires, veterans, and nine national guard vehicles.

The parade passed through the business district and ended at the east approach to Old Capitol where a brief ceremony was conducted.

Thornton, main speaker, recalled that 30 years ago he had stood in a burning town in France and heard the news of the war's end.

America's participation in the first world war was proof that the age of isolation and alcoholism was over, Thornton said.

However, he added, America did try to withdraw from the international stage.

"But the flight from reality was fruitless," he said. After Pearl Harbor America faced the same problem that she had fled from in 1918, according to Thornton.

"No matter how unpalatable the fact," he said, "Americans now understand that their presence and their power are both necessary and inevitable in the affairs of the world if the primary problems are to be intelligently dealt with and the cause of permanent peace advanced."

That Americans have learned the lesson is apparent from the achievement of a bi-partisan foreign policy that can stand the test of a national election, Thornton added.

It is seen, too, he said, in the active participation in the councils of nations and in suppressing threats of aggression in cooperation with other peaceful nations.

Glenn Houston, local American Legion commander, said "We as survivors of these terrible wars should dedicate ourselves to the job of carrying out a program that those killed would have worked for, had they survived."

"Sure, I can do it," he said, "Just so the elephant isn't flighty."

Shrine Circus Man Has Varied Career; Stamps to Elephants

There is a big difference in size between a postage stamp and an elephant, but Ed Widamen has managed to make a living handling both.

Widamen, whose elephant, Zetta, is appearing with the Shriner's circus here, went from elephant training to postal clerk and back to elephant training.

The 58-year-old performer was born into a family of elephant trainers and handlers. Wounds suffered in World War I changed his occupation, however.

Lands in Postoffice

"I came home from the war and landed in the Los Angeles post-office," Widamen said. "Then after 21 years, I retired because my wounds started bothering me."

Subsequent medical examinations showed a piece of shrapnel embedded in his leg. After an operation in which the shrapnel was removed, Widamen went back to training elephants.

Right now, Widamen's favorite elephant is Zetta, the small female elephant traveling with him.

Zetta Likes People

"Each elephant has a definite personality — just like a person," Widamen said. "Zetta here likes people. Furthermore, she isn't flighty. A flighty elephant is hopeless."

"I was lucky when I bought Zetta," Widamen said stroking her trunk. "She has never been chained. That means she has never had another master and that made training easier."

Widamen bought Zetta "off the boat" about two years ago for $4,000. He estimates her age at nine years. Widamen also trained the elephant — a job that costs between $2,000 and $3,000 in case you have any elephants to train.

Need Trainers

There are actually only five other trainers in the U.S. according to Widamen. The field is wide open for anyone that can handle the job since several circuses have elephants they want trained.

Widamen has one secret ambition. He wants to train an elephant to ride a motor-driven tricycle.

The committee also plans to criss-cross strings of lights intertwined with balsam roping over four intersections.

Market Basket Index Shows Decline Again

For the third consecutive week, Iowa City housewives have won out in their battle of the food budget.

Yesterday's Daily Iowan market basket survey of local retail prices on 24 food items showed an index decline of two cents from a week ago. The market basket index was $17.19, compared to $17.21 last week.

Center cut pork chops, first grade bacon, lard, flour and grade A eggs were down, while prices on sliced peaches and coffee went up this week.

First grade bacon and center cut pork chops, down two and four cents a pound, respectively, registered the most significant declines noted yesterday. Pork chops have declined to their lowest point since March 18 of this year.

It was the second week in a row the two meat items have skidded, as wholesale prices on pork continued to drop. Beef prices remained steady, however, as retail listings for ground beef and choice round steak held at their last-week levels.

Grade A eggs, which had advanced four cents a dozen according to the survey a week ago, were off one cent yesterday. One-cent decreases were also recorded for 10-pound sacks of Gold Medal flour and Armour lard.

On the other side of the ledger, gains were scored yesterday by coffee and sliced peaches. One-pound cans of Hills Bros. coffee sold at 54 cents, an increase of one cent over the Nov.

11 listing. Del Monte sliced peaches were down two cents, on number two-an-one-half cans, and retailed yesterday at 35 cents.

The index of $17.19, which represents the amount a student family of three will spend for food this week, is at about the same level as last March 18.

MARKET BASKET: This week, $17.19. Last week, $17.21.

That is, the index figure takes into consideration both the costs of the items listed above and the amount of each item the student family of three uses in one week. The amount of each item the family of three uses in one week was arrived at in a survey conducted in cooperation with the university bureau of economic and business research.
